START

Microfilmed By:

NORTHEAST DOCUMENT CONSERVATION CENTER
Andover, MA 01810

July 1994

Camera Operator:
John Sullivan

MASTER NEGATIVE NUMBER: BSO-56-052

MICROFILMED
August 1993 - April 1994

BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA SCRAPBOOK MICROFILMING PROJECT

Funded in part by

THE NATIONAL ENDOWMENT FOR THE HUMANITIES

Grant No. PS-20709-93

BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA MICROFILMING PROJECT

A Cooperative Project Between the Boston Symphony Orchestra Archives and the Boston Public Library (August 1993 - April 1994)

The Microfilming Project incorporates two collections of scrapbooks housed in two separate repositories. The first set of scrapbooks (80 volumes) resides within the Allen A. Brown Collection of the Boston Public Library (BPL) Music Department. Their call number is M.125.5. The second set of scrapbooks (132 volumes) resides within the Press Clippings collection of the Boston Symphony Orchestra (BSO) Archives. They have the designation Pres 56.

The BPL scrapbooks begin with the founding of the BSO in 1881 and continue, through 79 seasons, to 1960. Articles consist mainly of reviews and feature stories from Boston and New York newspapers. Occasionally, magazine articles and press releases are also included. The scrapbooks cover most aspects of the BSO.

The BSO scrapbooks run from 1889, the Orchestra's 9th season, to 1973. In addition to local reviews and features, the volumes contain articles culled from national and international publications. The scrapbooks document, in detail, all aspects of the BSO: The Symphony Orchestra (including subscription concerts, tours, and trips), the Boston Pops, the Tanglewood Festival, the Tanglewood Music Center, and Symphony Hall.

The two sets of scrapbooks have been filmed as two separate entities. Researchers wanting to look at specific seasons or subjects must examine both sets of films to ensure full coverage.

The scrapbooks do not represent the complete holdings of either location on the subject of the BSO.

Requests for positive microfilm copies of individual rolls, or of film sets, should be directed to the respective repository:

Music Department
Boston Public Library
Post Office Box 286
Boston, MA 02117

Boston Symphony Orchestra Archives
Symphony Hall
Boston, MA 02115

BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA SCRAPBOOKS

1889 - 1973

132 VOLUMES

Source: Boston Symphony Orchestra Archives

FINDING AID

Boston Symphony Orchestra Scrapbooks (Series 56, Sub-Series 1)

Source: Press Office (Office of the Public Relations Director)

The BSO scrapbooks comprise part of one series in the BSO Archives. Series 56, Press Clippings, is divided by format into 3 sub-series: 1) Scrapbooks, 1889-1973 (132 volumes); 2) Loose Clippings, 1931-1991 (9 record cartons); and 3) Oversize Newspapers and Journals, 1919-1979 (1 oversize box). Each sub-series is arranged chronologically.

The scrapbooks contain concert notices and reviews, record reviews, and feature articles. Early scrapbooks may also contain programs, tickets, and subscription orders. Materials are organized by concert season into the following categories: BSO (including tours); Kneisel Quartet (and later Boston Symphony Chamber Players); Boston Pops (referred to in early years as Promenade concerts); and Tanglewood (including the Tanglewood Music Center, the Tanglewood Festival, Tanglewood-on-Parade, and the Fromm Festival of Contemporary Music).

Reviews and articles cover a wide range of subjects: Founder H.L. Higginson; BSO conductors, players, trustees, and other personnel; guest artists and composers; BSO and Pops performances and recordings; U.S. and overseas tours; BSO/Cecilia Society joint performances; open rehearsals; and special events connected to anniversary celebrations and fundraising.

Feature stories document changes in the size, composition, and location of the orchestra. Topics include the hiring of women and minorities; the unionization of players; controversies (such as the internment of conductor Karl Muck during World War II); the sale of the old Music Hall; and the construction of Symphony Hall and other structures (such as the Koussevitsky Music Shed at Tanglewood).

Reproductions of the materials in the collection may not be made without permission from the Boston Symphony Orchestra Archives.

GUIDE TO CONTENTS

Institution: BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Series Name: PRESS CLIPPINGS
Series Number: 56
Series Dates: 1889-1991

Sub-series Name: SCRAPBOOKS
Sub-series Number: 1
Sub-series Dates: 1889-1973

VOLUME LISTING

VOL	TITLE	DATES
1	BSO	1889-1890
2	BSO Kneisel Quartet	1890-1891
3	BSO	1891-1892
4	Promenade (Pops)	1892
5	BSO Kneisel Quartet	1892-1893
6	BSO Kneisel Quartet	1893-1894
7	BSO Kneisel Quartet	1894-1895
8	BSO	1895-1896
9	Promenade (Pops)	1895-1896
10	BSO	1896-1897
11	BSO	1897-1898
12	Promenade (Pops)	1897-1898
13	BSO	1898-1899
14	BSO	1899-1900
15	Pops	1899-1900
16	BSO	1900-1901
17	BSO	1901-1902
18	Pops	1901-1903
19	BSO	1902-1903
20	BSO	1903-1904
21	BSO	1904-1905
22	Pops	1904-1905
23	BSO	1905-1906
24	BSO	1906-1907
25	BSO	1907-1908
26	BSO	1908-1909
27	BSO Pops	1909-1910
28	BSO Pops	1910-1911
29	BSO Advertisements	1910-1911
30	BSO Pops	1911-1912
31	BSO Pops	1912-1913
32	BSO Pops	1913-1914
33	BSO Pops	1914-1915
34	BSO Pops	1915-1916
35	BSO Pops	1916-1917
36	BSO Pops	1917-1918
37	Karl Muck	1918
38	BSO Pops	1918-1919
39	BSO Pops	1919-1920
40	BSO Advertisements	1919-1920
41	BSO Pops	1920-1921
42	BSO Pops	1921-1922
43	BSO BSO Advertisements Pops Advertisements	1922-1923
44	BSO Pops	1922-1924
45	BSO Pops	1924
46	BSO BSO Advertisements Pops Advertisements	1924-1926
47	BSO Pops	1925-1926
48	BSO Advertisements Pops Advertisements	1926-1927
49	BSO Pops	1926-1928
50	BSO	1928
51	BSO Pops	1928-1929
52	BSO Pops U.S. Tour	1929-1930
53	BSO	1930-1931
54	BSO Pops	1931-1932
55	BSO Pops	1932-1933
56	BSO	1933-1934
57	BSO	1934-1935
58	BSO	1935-1936
59	BSO	1936-1937

VOL	TITLE	DATES
60	Pops
	Tanglewood	1936-1937
61	BSO	1937
62	BSO	1937-1938
63	Pops
	Tanglewood	1938
64	BSO	1938-1939
65	Pops
	Tanglewood	1939
66	BSO	1939-1940
67	Tanglewood	1939-1941
68	BSO
	Pops	1940
69	BSO	1940-1941
70	Tanglewood	1940-1944
71	BSO	1941-1942
72	BSO	1942-1943
73	BSO	1943-1944
74	BSO
	Pops
	Tanglewood	1944-1945
75	BSO
	Pops
	Tanglewood	1945-1946
76	BSO
	Pops
	Tanglewood	1946-1947
77	Tanglewood	1947-1948
78	BSO	1947-1949
79	Tanglewood	1949-1950
80	BSO	1949-1951
81	Tanglewood	1950-1951
82	BSO
	Pops	1951-1952
83	BSO
	Pops	1952-1953
84	Tanglewood	1952-1953
85	BSO	1953-1955
86	Tanglewood	1953-1954
87	Tanglewood	1954-1955
88	BSO
	Pops	1955-1956
89	Tanglewood	1955-1956
90	Tanglewood	1955-1956
91	European Tour	1956
92	European Tour	1956-1957
93	BSO
	Pops	1956-1957
94	Tanglewood	1957
95	BSO	1957-1958
96	BSO
	Pops	1958-1959

VOL	TITLE	DATES
97	BSO	1958-1959
98	Tanglewood	1958-1959
99	Tanglewood	1959
100	BSO
	Pops	1959-1960
101	Tanglewood	1959-1960
102	Far Eastern Tour	1959-1960
103	BSO
	Pops	1960-1961
104	Tanglewood	1961
105	BSO
	Pops	1961-1962
106	Tanglewood	1962
107	BSO
	Pops	1962-1963
108	Tanglewood	1963
109	BSO
	Pops	1963-1964
110	Tanglewood	1963-1964
111	BSO
	Pops	1964-1966
112	Tanglewood	1965
113	BSO 85th Anniversary	1965
114	BSO
	Pops	1965-1966
115	Tanglewood	1966
116	BSO
	Pops	1966-1967
117	Tanglewood	1967
118	BSO
	Pops	1967-1968
119	Tanglewood	1968-1969
120	BSO
	Pops	1968-1969
121	Tanglewood	1969
122	BSO
	Pops	1969-1970
123	Tanglewood	1970
124	BSO
	Pops	1970-1971
125	Tanglewood	1971
126	BSO
	Pops	1971-1972
127	European Tour	1970-1971
128	European Tour	1971
129	Tanglewood	1972
130	BSO
	Pops	1972-1973
131	Tanglewood	1973
132	BSO
	Pops	1973-1974

MATERIALS NOT FILMED

SUB-SERIES NUMBER	SUB-SERIES NAME	SUB-SERIES DATES
2	Loose Clippings	1931-1991
3	Oversize Newspapers and Journals	1919-1979

COPYRIGHT STATEMENT

The copyright law of the Unites States - Title 17, United States Code - concerns the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted material.

Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish a photocopy or other reproduction. One of these specified conditions is that the photocopy or other reproduction is not to be "used for any purpose other than private study, scholarship, or research." If a user makes a request for, or later uses, a photocopy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," that user may be liable for copyright infringement.

This institution reserves the right to refuse to accept a copy order if, in its judgment, fulfillment of the order would involve violation of the copy-right law.

TECHNICAL DATA

IMAGE PLACEMENT: (IA) IB IIA IIB

REDUCTION RATIO: 14x

FILM STOCK:

REEL 52

Volume 88

BSO
Pops
1955-1956

PM-MGP 13″x18″
METRIC GENERAL PURPOSE TARGET
PHOTOGRAPHIC

200 mm

150 mm

100 mm

A3

A4

A5

1.0 mm

1.5 mm

2.0 mm

2.5 mm

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz
1234567890

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz
1234567890

PRECISION℠ RESOLUTION TARGETS

Century

1303 Geneva Avenue
St. Paul, MN 55119

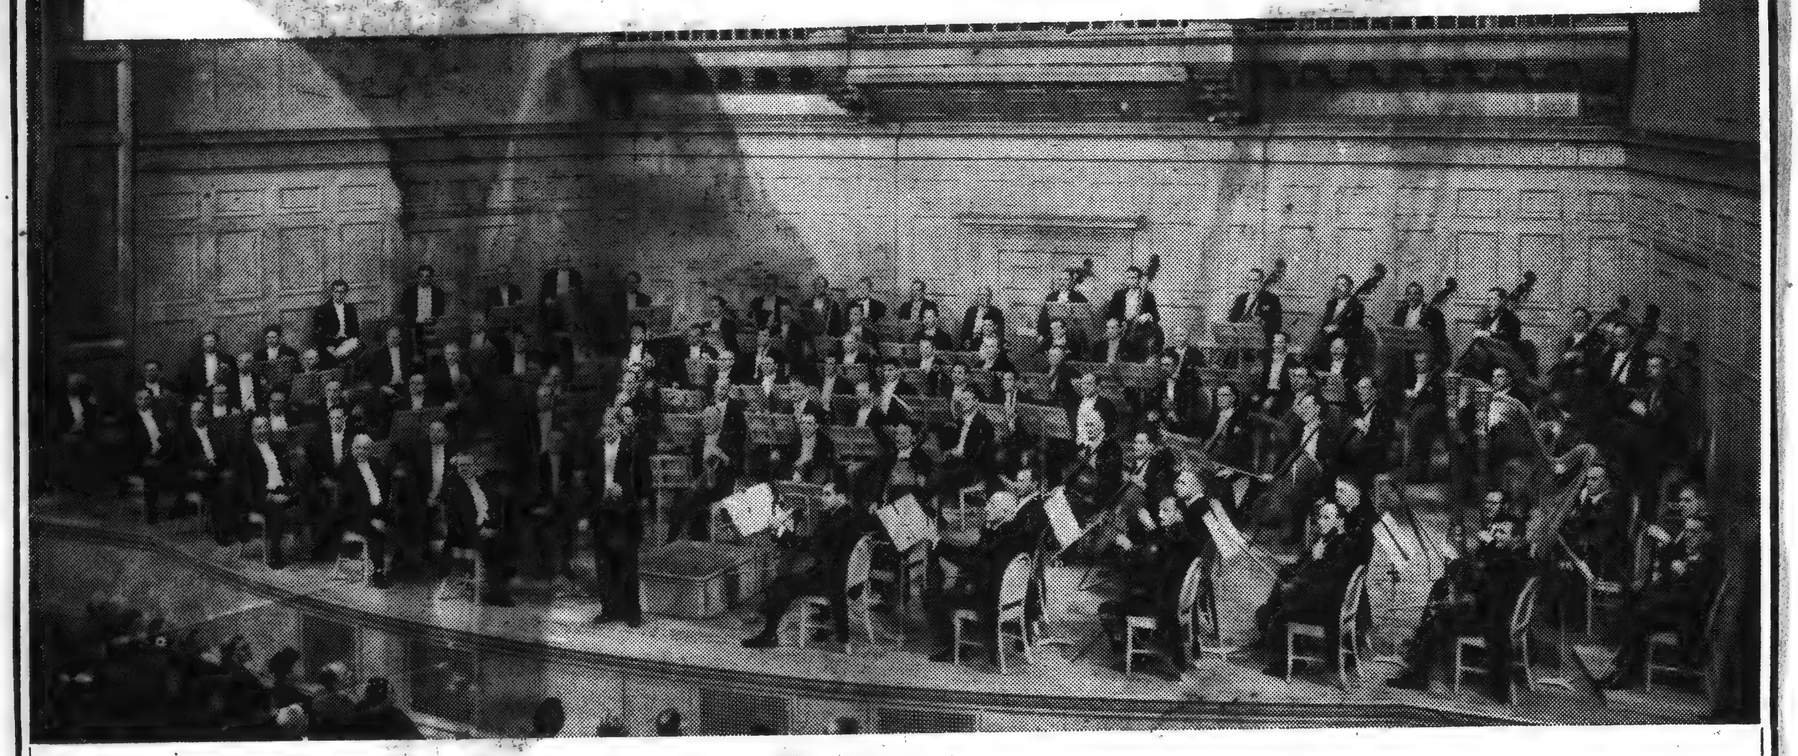
MULTIPLE EXPOSURES DUE TO COLOR VARIATIONS AND OVERLAPPING MATERIAL

VOLUME 88

BSO
Pops

1955 - 1956

A Report and Appeal on behalf of THE BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA



A statement by a distinguished citizen of Boston

Why don't you become a larger part and parcel of this cultural city of Boston, the capital city of the State of Massachusetts? We weren't around to fight at Bunker Hill, or at Concord, or Lexington, or perhaps to join the legions of those who responded to the colors in our three last wars, but now you can help support and maintain one of Boston's greatest attractions, the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Join in the support of the greatest orchestra in the world, one of the most famous jewels in Boston's crown. You are giving in order that music comes free to those who perchance cannot afford to get away from the heat of the city in the summer time with Esplanade Concerts. You are giving to help preserve one of Boston's chief cultural assets for its people. And remember any gift is deductible from your taxes, and it is deductible from your top bracket, not the bottom. It doesn't take too large an income to fall heir to the 50% tax in which event Uncle Sam in reality pays half of your gift.

Alvan T. Fuller

THE BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA is one of the great orchestras of this country and the world. To remain best and to improve the best is always difficult, but that is the fundamental and unchanging aim of the orchestra. It is for this purpose that once again we appeal for broad and generous public support of the orchestra which brings such distinction to this community and to which it gives such tremendous service. During last season it gave 156 concerts in Boston and Cambridge, 39 in other cities and 24 Berkshire Festival concerts at Tanglewood, a total of 219 concerts. Of these concerts 48 were broadcast in full by Station WGBH and this season, Mr. Munch and the Boston Symphony Orchestra are broadcast nationwide for an hour most Saturday evenings by the National Broadcasting Company. In addition thousands of Boston Symphony and Boston Pops records are sold each year.

It is gratifying to know that this large musical output is in great demand. There are no empty seats at our concerts, in fact we estimate that over 700,000 people hear the orchestra in person each season. Our sources of earned income are, however, limited both by the size of Symphony Hall and by the need to keep ticket prices within reasonable limits. Costs remain high and in order to attract and keep the best players we have had to increase salaries this season.

In our appeal a year ago we asked for broader community support. It was forthcoming. The number of individual givers rose from 9327 to 10561 and of business and professional givers from 12 to 119. Their names appear at the right. The total of gifts last season was $221,070. This season an appeal has already been made and the response has been generous. Nevertheless careful estimates lead the Trustees to believe that about $125,000 more is needed to enable us to meet this season's obligations.

We hope that you will want to help support and maintain this great Orchestra, one of Boston's greatest attractions and a cultural asset which brings our city's name to all parts of this country and of the world. Gifts are deductible for Federal income tax purposes.

Business contributors to the Orchestra's support in 1953 - 1954

Alden Press, The Allied Container Corporation
Anderson-Coffey Co., Inc.
Arter Grinding Machine Company
Avery & Saul Co.
Bachrach, Inc.
Bearings Specialty Company
Besse, Harry W.
Bettinger Corporation, The Boshco, Inc.
Boston Envelope Company
Boston Filter Company
Boston Insulated Wire & Cable Co.
Boston Music Company
Boston Transformer Company
Brotman, Michael Co., Inc.
Brown-Wales Company
Buck Printing Company
Business Equipment Corporation
Cabot, Godfrey L., Inc.
Campbell, A. S. Co., Inc.
Carpenter Manufacturing Company
Charles River Broadcasting Company
Chase, E. Sherman
Checker Taxi Company
Commonwealth Press
  Hamilton B. Wood
Commonwealth Shoe and Leather Co.
  Charles H. Jones, Jr.
  Paul Jones
Comtor Company, The Control Engineering Corporation
Curran-Morton of Lowell, Inc.
Donnelly, John & Sons
Dowd, H. J. Company, Inc.
Draper Top Company
Durkee-Mower, Inc.
Eastern Company, The Eastover, Inc.
Eaton and Howard
  Charles F. Eaton, Jr.
Fabric Research Laboratories, Inc.
Fay Foto Service
Felton & Son, Inc.
Ferguson, Stanley W., Inc.
Fibre Leather Manufacturing Company
Filene's, Wm. Sons Company
First National Stores
Ford Motor Company, Inc.
General Box Company
Gillette Safety Razor Company
Globe Plan, Inc.
Globe Ticket Company of New England
Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co.
Greer, J. W. Company
Hall, George D., Company
Hamel, L. H. Leather Company
Hawkridge Brothers Company
Hews, A. H. & Company, Inc.
Hixon Electric Company
Horn, E. B. Company
Howard, A. T. Company
Hyman Brothers, Inc.
Internatio Wool, Inc.
International Business Machines Corp.
Jordan Marsh Company
Kaufman, J. G., Company
Kenmore Hotel
Kennedy's Inc.
Klein-Farris Company, Inc.
LaPointe Machine Tool Company
Lawrence, A. G. Leather Co.
  Harold M. Goodspeed
Little, Arthur D., Foundation
M & M Transportation Company
Massachusetts Envelope Company
Matheson Radio Co., Inc. (WHDH)
Miller, Charles N. Company
Moore, Geo. C., Wool Scouring Mills
Moore, The J. W. Machine Company
New England Mica Company, Inc.
OBrion Russell & Co.
  Arthur J. Anderson
Old Corner Book Stores, Inc.
Pan American Airways System
Pappas, C. Co., Inc.
Parker Charitable Foundation
Pine-Wood Plastic Company, Inc.
Polaroid Corporation
Potvin, R. J. Shoe Company
Reed & Barton Corporation
Ryerson, Joseph T. & Son
Salada Tea Company
Sanborn Company
Scully Signal Company
Seiler, H. J. Company
Settimelli, E. & Sons, Inc.
Shell Oil Company
Sheraton Corporation
Silton Brothers, Inc.
Smith, A. L. Iron Company
Smith, Thomas Company
Socony-Vacuum Oil Company
Solby Bayes
Statler Hotel
Stearns, R. H. & Company
Stedfast & Roulston, Inc.
Stop & Shop, Inc.
Thorndike & Gerrish Company
Toy Town Tavern
Treadway Inns
Trimount Automatic Sales Corporation
Twin Harbors Lumber Company
Union Oil Co. of Boston
Volpe, John O. Construction Co., Inc.
Welch, James O. Company
Whiting & Davis
Williams, Edward, Jr.
Winchester Brick Company
Wright, E. T. & Company

Professional Contributors:
Bingham, Dana & Gould
Ernst and Ernst
Kenway, Jenney, Witter & Hildreth
Rittenhouse, Charles F. and Co.
Touche, Niven, Bailey & Smart

Send your check to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Symphony Hall, Boston.

THE TRUSTEES
HENRY B. CABOT, President
JACOB J. KAPLAN, Vice-President
RICHARD C. PAINE, Treasurer

PHILIP R. ALLEN
TALCOTT M. BANKS, JR.
JOHN NICHOLAS BROWN
THEODORE P. FERRIS
ALVAN T. FULLER
N. PENROSE HALLOWELL
FRANCIS W. HATCH
HAROLD D. HODGKINSON
M. A. DE WOLFE HOWE
C. D. JACKSON
MICHAEL T. KELLEHER
PALFREY PERKINS
LEWIS PERRY
CHARLES H. STOCKTON
EDWARD A. TAFT
RAYMOND S. WILKINS
OLIVER WOLCOTT

[1]

...of this message has been made possible by the generosity of Alvan T. Fuller.

PROOF SLIP FROM The Boston Globe FEB. 24 1955

BLANK PAGE

BLANK PAGE

Cir. (1,706,593)
This Clipping From
TIME MAGAZINE
CHICAGO, ILL.
MAR 14 1955

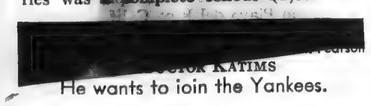
Home Run in Seattle

Conductors of the Seattle Symphony used to have about as much job security as French Premiers. In its 51 years the orchestra has had 13 "permanent" conductors, and few of them managed to last more than a season or two. Seattle's worst moment came in 1951, when French Conductor Manuel Rosenthal was forbidden re-entry to the U.S. for a Gallic breach of morals (the official reason was perjury concerning his marital status when he returned; the lady who traveled with him was not his wife). After the symphony's officials stopped blushing, they decided not to hire anyone for a while but to study a relay of guest conductors. By far the most popular of the visitors proved to be Brooklyn-born Milton Katims. The guest was asked twice, and last fall the board signed him up.

Life is not easy for the Seattle Symphony. At a salary of $11 a rehearsal or concert, musicians earn their livings at other jobs: two violinists are longshoremen, one cellist a bus driver, most others teach music or play in dance bands. But energetic Conductor Katims, 45, made the orchestra sound better than it has in years and proved himself a man to watch among the younger U.S. conductors.

"Barbaric!" With a springy step, a cheerful but firm manner and a superior baton technique, Katims can be as impassioned as Toscanini (he played the viola under the Maestro for eight years to study his technique, guest-conducted the NBC Symphony 52 times). "Warm . . . tender . . . dream with me!" Katims will shout in rehearsal, or "Barbaric! Make it barbaric!" "Come on," he once implored the cellos, trying to get them in the mood for Salome's final scene. "I want you to play like a bunch of sluts." At a recent rehearsal with Violinist Nathan Milstein, Katims called a halt to plead with the musicians: "Make it sparkle. Like—not like champagne, I've used that one too often . . ." Milstein leaned over to whisper in his ear, and Katims' face lit up. "That's it," he cried, "like Seven-Up."

With his orchestra well in hand, Katims schedules everything from Brahms to Morton Gould, interests all sorts of listeners. This season, for the first time, the orchestra's eight-concert subscription series was a complete sellout (2,600 subscribers). Katims also expanded a series of $1-admission concerts in the suburbs (where he sometimes gets a local businessman to take the baton for the concluding number), and so excited one old music lover that she offered a $150,000 apartment building toward a new hall. Next year's budget will be jumped from $160,000 to $215,000 (he'll [illegible] in as many concerts, more big-name [illegible] ists), and the pres[illegible]s Kousse[illegible]ndation has nam[illegible] Seattle as o[illegible]ities where its co[illegible]ssioned w[illegible] first performan[illegible] (others: Lo[illegible] Washington, D.C.).



DUCTOR KATIMS
He wants to join the Yankees.

Critical Ball Game. Last month Seattle started to worry again. On his winter leave Conductor Katims did a grueling, 17-concert guest stint with the Houston Symphony. Word leaked out that Houston, which was in the market for a permanent conductor (TIME, Feb. 7), made Katims an offer—$30,000 a year, far more than he gets in Seattle (about $18,000). Seattle prepared itself to be conductorless once more.

But on his return Katims smilingly announced that he had turned down the Houston invitation.* Said he: "I felt a musically moral—or morally musical—obligation to carry on in Seattle what we have started. I feel I am backed completely by the orchestra, the board and the public. To leave now would be like leaving in the eighth inning of a critical ball game when victory is in sight." He was seconded last week by Guest Cellist Gregor Piatigorsky: "It is clear he has started something that is very exciting."

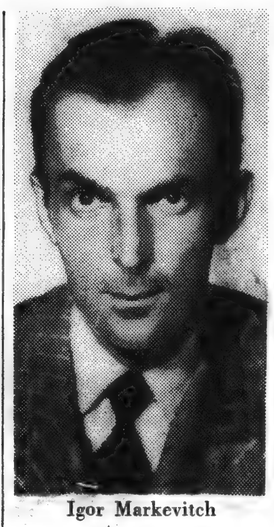
Katims is scheduled to stay in Seattle two more seasons. After that? "Where do baseball players always want to go?" he asks. "The New York [illegible] conductor it's the Boston [illegible]"

* But he will continue to commute to London for frequent appearances with the famed Philharmonia Orchestra, and to Milan for La Scala opera.

This Clipping From
HERALD TRIBUNE N.Y.
MAR 13 1955

Igor Markevitch to Give U. S. Taste of His Magic

By JAY S. HARRISON



Igor Markevitch

Igor Markevitch is a conductor—a conductor with a difference. As he put it recently, he is "entirely anti-prima donna"; so much so, in fact that he has developed a whole theory of conducting out of his belief. But while this detail is generally known to Europeans who have heard Mr. Markevitch on numberless occasions, America will encounter it for the first time Saturday night, when on a broadcast over NBC, Mr. Markevitch makes his domestic debut with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Even on these shores, however, a canny few have watched with especial interest the career of a musician who, since the 1920s, has been regarded with a compound of reverence and wonder.

Two years after his birth in Kiev, in 1912, the Markevitch family — headed by Markevitch senior, a Russian marshal of the gentry—emigrated to Switzerland. There young Igor's musical talents where discovered and nurtured by Alfred Cortot who, in turn, sent the precocious boy to Nadia Boulanger for study in composition. He was then thirteen. Three years later Markevitch came into contact with Serge Diaghilev, inspired director of the Russian ballet, who commissioned a piano concerto from the adolescent maestro and then presented him to the public, as soloist in his own work, at Covent Garden in London.

Rapid Succession of Works

There followed in rapid succession a parcel of pieces—all of them evoking wild shouts of glee or disapproval, all of them obviously the products of a born musician and creator. For orchestra there were "Rebus," "La Nouvelle Age," "Icare" and a Sinfonietta. For voice there were "Paradise Lost," "L'Oraison Musical," and a Cantata composed in collaboration with Jean Cocteau.

But today, as for many years past, it is Markevitch the conductor who holds the public's affection. And the reasons for his enormous success are not difficult to fathom. The "anti-prima donna-ism" is one; but there are others.

"Let me say to you," Mr. Markevitch began, "that I have been conducting for a long time, but it is only in the last eleven years that I have really begun to conduct. Let me explain. In 1935 I studied with Herman Scherchen, and to me he is the pioneer of the modern conducting technique that I employ. How is that? Well, let me demonstrate in terms of the piano. Before Liszt and Chopin, you found fifty types of piano playing, each one different. The way was thus prepared for Liszt and Chopin to establish a basic kind of technique that would serve all pianists.

Same True for Conducting

"And they did. If you can play Liszt and Chopin correctly, you can play anything, because their music shows you what the piano is, what it can and cannot do. Now, the same is true, I believe, with a conducting technique."

Mr. Markevitch, who, in addition to his other chores, serves during the summer as director of the International Course in Conducting at the Mozarteum in Salzburg, then added, "You must understand that baton technique is to a conductor what fingers are to a pianist. Certain movements produce certain sounds, and the way in which you get the sounds today, owing to the new conducting techniques, is much different than it was when—say—Toscanini started. If you have a good technique you need less time, less explanation in a rehearsal. And what is a rehearsal but part technical, part social and part personal.

"I must say also—and here I will make enemies—that today's orchestras are mostly better than today's conductors. If you have a flute audition, you get fifty flutists who have had far more orchestral experience than the average conductor. In fact, some young conductors get their experience at the expense of the orchestra."

So saying, Mr. Markevitch then launched into a discussion that reflects clearly and perfectly the conditions that make him something of a rara avis in his field.

"Dictator Is Old Hat"

"Now," he observed, "what must a conductor do? He must have such a perfect technique that the orchestra has the impression there are no difficulties. In our time, orchestras can play anything ever written—but some pieces can be difficult with one conductor and simple with another. To be a dictator is old hat. Our modern orchestras are too civilized, too gentlemanly to be treated like fools. Today the conductor must not dominate, he must collaborate. A director must unite his men, and in this act there is something beautiful because then only the spirit of music dominates.

"Indeed, my ideal as a conductor is to be forgotten, unnoticed. At my best concerts I always had the impression that they went by themselves. I had such contact with the orchestra, it was magic."

Mr. Markevitch continued by explaining that these thoughts really crystallized after the liberation in 1944, which found him in Florence, Italy. Actually, he had been trapped in Florence — where he had gone to study the life and time of Lorenzo the Magnificent in preparation for a choral work on the subject—by the German invasion of France, then his home. Finding himself isolated, Mr. Markevitch went underground, and for two years was in charge of the free press.

Hundreds of Students

The war, having ended, Mr. Markevitch immediately set about reorganizing the orchestra of the Maggio Musicale Florentino, which proved to be his most important stepping stone to musical fame. Conducting simply, without score and with a minimum of gesture, Mr. Markevitch has in the last decade found himself before virtually every leading symphonic group in Europe. To him, also, have flocked hundreds of students to learn his technical theories and absorb some of the humility that has made him the beloved of orchestras across the Continent.

"Yes," he concluded, "I teach and love it. My students must learn not to perspire—if they sweat, they are working too hard and are probably disturbing the players. Think—if Heifetz were carried away like most conductors he would play nothing but wrong notes. And my students must learn scores by heart. That trick I learned from my father. When I was very young we would walk in the garden and play chess without a chessman or a board. I therefore had to retain every move in my head. Believe me, it was good experience."

This Clipping From
NEW YORK TIMES
MAR 15 1955

MARKEVITCH TO DIRECT

Guest Conductor With Boston Symphony Lauds Musicians

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 14 — The Boston Symphony Orchestra is so efficient that a guest conductor making his United States debut this week feels "shy" during rehearsals, Igor Markevitch said today.

Mr. Markevitch, Russian-born conductor and composer, described his first rehearsal with the orchestra as "an old friend making chamber music with 100 people." He found the Boston musicians "most cooperative."

Mr. Markevitch will serve as guest conductor of the Boston group Friday, Saturday and Sunday. His program will consist of Handel's Concerto Grosso for String Orchestra, Opus 6, No. 5; Tchaikovsky's Overture-Fantasy "Romeo and Juliet," Britten's Variations and Fugue on a Theme of Purcell, and Stravinsky's "The Rite of Spring."

The conductor spent his childhood in Switzerland, and was taken to Paris at the age of 14 to study with Nadia Boulanger. He said today that his four days here reminded him of Switzerland, because of the "continuity of tradition" he had found.

Cir. (D 149,902) (S 382,056)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
EVENING GLOBE
MAR 15 1955

KOUSSEVITZKY TOLD TRUMAN:
Fine Arts Minister Needed

By FRANCIS W. HATCH

President Eisenhower's recommendation that there be established a Federal Advisory Commission for the Arts brings to mind a conversation with Serge Koussevitzky.

KOUSSEVITZKY

I had accompanied him across town from the Hotel Pierre to the Brooklyn Academy of Music where the Boston Symphony was making its annual mid-Winter appearance. With the faithful Victor behind the wheel of the big black limousine, we threaded through traffic with the speed and grace of a greyhound.

In the "Times" I had read of the orchestra's performance in Washington the evening previous. President Truman, according to the account, had visited Boston's eminent conductor in the Green Room at the conclusion of the concert.

"If it is not confidential, what matters did you and the President discuss?" I inquired.

With characteristic staccato intensity, Koussevitzky replied, "I say to Mr Truman, what you need Minister of Fine Arts in the cabinet—someone will represent music, litterature, painting and the drama. Mister Truman say to me, 'Dr. Koussevitzky, I think you have something there. I will think about it.' and then Mr. Truman ask me 'Why do you not play more American music on your program?' And I answer—if we play more American music, will you pay the deficit?"

During the concert I sat with Leroy Anderson who had come to listen with pleasure and prida to the great orchestra he had known during his Harvard days. I reflected that no conductor in America had done more to champion the cause of American music than Serge Koussevitzky

At intermission we visited the conductor in his dressing room. He had come wringing wet from the podium. Victor, turned valet, was assisting him into a complete change.

On the return trip across Brooklyn Bridge Victor drove with the same graceful abandon, an artistic compliment to the great conductor he worshipped and felt privileged to serve.

At Dr. Koussevitzky's funeral I shall never forget Victor sitting silently with head bowed in an expression of devastating sorrow while tears coursed down his cheeks.

Cir. (1,706,573)
This Clipping From
TIME MAGAZINE
CHICAGO, ILL.
MAR 14 1955

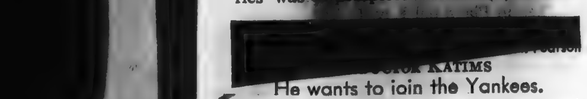
Home Run in Seattle

Conductors of the Seattle Symphony used to have about as much job security as French Premiers. In its 51 years the orchestra has had 13 "permanent" conductors, and few of them managed to last more than a season or two. Seattle's worst moment came in 1951, when French Conductor Manuel Rosenthal was forbidden re-entry to the U.S. for a Gallic breach of morals (the official reason was perjury concerning his marital status when he returned; the lady who traveled with him was not his wife). After the symphony's officials stopped blushing, they decided not to hire anyone for a while but to study a relay of guest conductors. By far the most popular of the visitors proved to be Brooklyn-born Milton Katims. The guest was asked twice, and last fall the board signed him up.

Life is not easy for the Seattle Symphony. At a salary of $81 a rehearsal or concert, musicians earn their livings at other jobs: two violinists are longshoremen, one cellist a bus driver, most others teach music or play in dance bands. But energetic Conductor Katims, 45, made the orchestra sound better than it has in years and proved himself a man to watch among the younger U.S. conductors.

"Barbaric!" With a springy step, a cheerful but firm manner and a superior baton technique, Katims can be as impassioned as Toscanini (he played the viola under the Maestro for eight years to study his technique, guest-conducted the NBC Symphony 52 times). "Warmer! tender . . . dream with me!" Katims will shout in rehearsal, or "Barbaric! Make it barbaric!" "Come on," he once implored the cellos, trying to get them in the mood for Salome's final scene. "I want you to play like a bunch of sluts." At a recent rehearsal with Violinist Nathan Milstein, Katims called a halt to plead with the musicians: "Make it sparkle. Like—not like champagne, I've used that one too often . . ." Milstein leaned over to whisper in his ear, and Katims' face lit up. "That's it," he cried, "like Seven-Up."

With his orchestra well in hand, Katims schedules everything from Brahms to Morton Gould, interests all sorts of listeners. This season, for the first time, the orchestra's eight-concert subscription series was a complete sellout (2,600 subscribers). Katims also expanded a series of $1-admission concerts in the suburbs (where he sometimes gets a local businessman to take the baton for the concluding number), and so excited one old music lover that she offered a $150,000 apartment building toward a new hall. Next year's budget will be jumped from $160,000 to $215,000 (b[illegible]in as many concerts, more big-n[illegible]sts), and the pres[illegible] Kou[illegible]ndation has nam[illegible]ities where its co[illegible]first performanc[illegible]ashington, D.C.



HE WANTS TO JOIN THE YANKEES.

Critical Bo[illegible] month Seattle started to worry again. On his winter leave Conductor Katims did a grueling, 17-concert guest stint with the Houston Symphony. Word leaked out that Houston, which was in the market for a permanent conductor (TIME, Feb. 7), made Katims an offer—$30,000 a year, far more than he gets in Seattle (about $18,000). Seattle prepared itself to be conductorless once more.

But on his return Katims smilingly announced that he had turned down the Houston invitation.* Said he: "I felt a musically moral—or morally musical—obligation to carry on in Seattle what we have started. I feel I am backed completely by the orchestra, the board and the public. To leave now would be like leaving in the eighth inning of a critical ball game when victory is in sight." He was seconded last week by Guest Cellist Gre[illegible] Piatigorsky: "It is clear he has started something that is very exciting." [illegible] Katims is scheduled to stay in Seattle t[illegible] seasons. After that? "Where baseball players always w[illegible] asks. "The New York [illegible] conductor it's the Boston[illegible]

* But he will continue to commute to London for frequent appearances with the famed Philharmonia Orchestra, and to Milan for La Scala opera.

This Clipping From
HERALD TRIBUNE N.Y.
MAR 13 1955

Igor Markevitch to Give U. S. Taste of His Magic

By JAY S. HARRISON

Igor Markevitch

Igor Markevitch is a conductor—a conductor with a difference. As he put it recently, he is "entirely anti-prima donna"; so much so, in fact that he has developed a whole theory of conducting out of his belief. But while this detail is generally known to Europeans who have heard Mr. Markevitch on numberless occasions, America will encounter it for the first time Saturday night, when on a broadcast over NBC, Mr. Markevitch makes his domestic debut with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Even on these shores, however, a canny few have watched with especial interest the career of a musician who, since the 1920s, has been regarded with a compound of reverence and wonder.

Two years after his birth in Kiev, in 1912, the Markevitch family — headed by Markevitch senior, a Russian marshal of the gentry—emigrated to Switzerland. There young Igor's musical talents where discovered and nurtured by Alfred Cortot who, in turn, sent the precocious boy to Nadia Boulanger for study in composition. He was then thirteen. Three years later Markevitch came into contact with Serge Diaghilev, inspired director of the Russian ballet, who commissioned a piano concerto from the adolescent maestro and then presented him to the public, as soloist in his own work, at Covent Garden in London.

Rapid Succession of Works

There followed in rapid succession a parcel of pieces—all of them evoking wild shouts of glee or disapproval, all of them obviously the products of a born musician and creator. For orchestra there were "Rebus," "La Nouvelle Age," "Icare" and a Sinfonietta. For voice there were "Paradise Lost," "L'Oraison Musical," and a Cantata composed in collaboration with Jean Cocteau.

But today, as for many years past, it is Markevitch the conductor who holds the public's affection. And the reasons for his enormous success are not difficult to fathom. The "anti-prima donna-ism" is one; but there are others.

"Let me say to you," Mr. Markevitch began, "that I have been conducting for a long time, but it is only in the last eleven years that I have really begun to conduct. Let me explain. In 1935 I studied with Herman Scherchen, and to me he is the pioneer of the modern conducting technique that I employ. How is that? Well, let me demonstrate in terms of the piano. Before Liszt and Chopin, you found fifty types of piano playing, each one different. The way was thus prepared for Liszt and Chopin to establish a basic kind of technique that would serve all pianists.

Same True for Conducting

"And they did. If you can play Liszt and Chopin correctly, you can play anything, because their music shows you what the piano is, what it can and cannot do. Now, the same is true, I believe, with a conducting technique."

Mr. Markevitch, who, in addition to his other chores, serves during the summer as director of the International Course in Conducting at the Mozarteum in Salzburg, then added, "You must understand that baton technique is to a conductor what fingers are to a pianist. Certain movements produce certain sounds, and the way in which you get the sounds today, owing to the new conducting techniques, is much different than it was when—say—Toscanini started. If you have a good technique you need less time, less explanation in a rehearsal. And what is a rehearsal but part technical, part social and part personal.

"I must say also—and here I will make enemies—that today's orchestras are mostly better than today's conductors. If you have a flute audition, you get fifty flutists who have had far more orchestral experience than the average conductor. In fact, some young conductors get their experience at the expense of the orchestra."

So saying, Mr. Markevitch then launched into a discussion that reflects clearly and perfectly the conditions that make him something of a rara avis in his field.

"Dictator Is Old Hat"

"Now," he observed, "what must a conductor do? He must have such a perfect technique that the orchestra has the impression there are no difficulties. In our time, orchestras can play anything ever written—but some pieces can be difficult with one conductor and simple with another. To be a dictator is old hat. Our modern orchestras are too civilized, too gentlemanly to be treated like fools. Today the conductor must not dominate, he must collaborate. A director must unite his men, and in that act there is something beautiful because then only the spirit of music dominates.

"Indeed, my ideal as a conductor is to be forgotten, unnoticed. At my best concerts I always had the impression that they went by themselves. I had such contact with the orchestra, it was magic."

Mr. Markevitch continued by explaining that these thoughts really crystallized after the liberation in 1944, which found him in Florence, Italy. Actually, he had been trapped in Florence — where he had gone to study the life and time of Lorenzo the Magnificent in preparation for a choral work on the subject—by the German invasion of France, then his home. Finding himself isolated, Mr. Markevitch went underground, and for two years was in charge of the free press.

Hundreds of Students

The war, having ended, Mr. Markevitch immediately set about reorganizing the orchestra of the Maggio Musicale Florentine, which proved to be his most important stepping stone to musical fame. Conducting simply, without score and with a minimum of gesture, Mr. Markevitch was in the last decade found himself before virtually every leading symphonic group in Europe. To him, also, have flocked hundreds of students to learn his technical theories and absorb some of the humility that has made him the beloved of orchestras across the Continent.

"Yes," he observed, "I teach and love it. My students must learn not to perspire—if they sweat, they are working too hard and are probably disturbing the players. Think—if Heifetz were carried away like most conductors he would play nothing but wrong notes. And my students must learn scores by heart. That trick I learned from my father. When I was very young we would walk in the garden and play chess without a chessman or a board. I therefore had to retain every move in my head. Believe me, it was good experience."

This Clipping From
NEW YORK TIMES
MAR 15 1955

MARKEVITCH TO DIRECT

Guest Conductor With Boston Symphony Lauds Musicians

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 14 — The Boston Symphony Orchestra is [illegible]ment that a guest conductor making his United States debut this week feels "shy" during rehearsals, Igor Markevitch said today.

Mr. Markevitch, Russian-born conductor and composer, described his first rehearsal with the orchestra as "an old friend making chamber music with 100 people." He found the Boston musicians "most cooperative."

Mr. Markevitch will serve as guest conductor of the Boston group Friday, Saturday and Sunday. His program will consist of Handel's Concerto Grosso for String Orchestra, Opus 6, No. 5; Tchaikovsky's Overture-Fantasy "Romeo and Juliet;" Britten's Variations and Fugue on a Theme of Purcell, and Stravinsky's "The Rite of Spring."

The conductor spent his childhood in Switzerland, and was taken to Paris at the age of 14 to study with Nadia Boulanger. He said today that his four days here reminded him of Switzerland, because of the "continuity of tradition" he had found.

Cir. (D 149,902) (S 382,056)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
EVENING GLOBE
MAR 15 1955

KOUSSEVITZKY TOLD TRUMAN:
Fine Arts Minister Needed

By FRANCIS W. HATCH

President Eisenhower's recommendation that there be established a Federal Advisory Commission for the Arts brings to mind a conversation with Serge Koussevitzky.

KOUSSEVITZKY

I had accompanied him across town from the Hotel Pierre to the Brooklyn Academy of Music where the Boston Symphony was making its annual mid-Winter appearance. With the faithful Victor behind the wheel of the big black limousine, we threaded through traffic with the speed and grace of a greyhound.

In the Times I had read of the orchestra's performance in Washington the evening previous. President Truman, according to the account, had visited Boston's eminent conductor in the Green Room at the conclusion of the concert.

"If it is not confidential, what matters did you and the President discuss?" I inquired.

With characteristic staccato intensity, Koussevitzky replied, "I say to Mr Truman, what you need Minister of Fine Arts in the cabinet—someone will represent music, litterature, painting and the drama. Mister Truman say to me, 'Dr. Koussevitzky, I think you have something there. I will think about it.' and then Mr. Truman ask me 'Why do you not play more American music on your program?' And I answer—if we play more American music, will you pay the deficit?"

During the concert I sat with Leroy Anderson who had come to listen with pleasure and pride to the great orchestra he had known during his Harvard days. I reflected that no conductor in America had done more to champion the cause of American music than Serge Koussevitzky.

At intermission we visited the conductor in his dressing room. He had become wringing wet from the podium. Victor, turned valet, was assisting him into a complete change.

On the return trip across Brooklyn Bridge Victor drove with the same graceful abandon, an artistic compliment to the great conductor he worshipped and felt privileged to serve.

At Dr. Koussevitzky's funeral I shall never forget Victor sitting silently with head bowed in an expression of devastating sorrow, while tears coursed down his cheeks.

Cir. (1,706,593)
This Clipping From
TIME MAGAZINE
CHICAGO, ILL.
MAR 14 1955

Home Run in Seattle

Conductors of the Seattle Symphony used to have about as much job security as French Premiers. In its 51 years the orchestra has had 13 "permanent" conductors, and few of them managed to last more than a season or two. Seattle's worst moment came in 1951, when French Conductor Manuel Rosenthal was forbidden re-entry to the U.S. for a Gallic breach of morals (the official reason was perjury concerning his marital status when he returned; the lady who traveled with him was not his wife). After the symphony's officials stopped blushing, they decided not to hire anyone for a while but to study a relay of guest conductors. By far the most popular of the visitors proved to be Brooklyn-born Milton Katims. The guest was asked twice, and last fall the board signed him up.

Life is not easy for the Seattle Symphony. At a salary of $81 a rehearsal or concert, musicians earn their livings at other jobs: two violinists are longshoremen, one cellist a bus driver, most others teach music or play in dance bands. But energetic Conductor Katims, 45, made the orchestra sound better than it has in years and proved himself a man to watch among the younger U.S. conductors.

"Barbaric!" With a springy step, a cheerful but firm manner and a superior baton technique, Katims can be as impassioned as Toscanini (he played the viola under the Maestro for eight years to study his technique, guest-conducted the NBC Symphony 52 times). "Warmer, tender . . . dream with me!" Katims will shout in rehearsal, or "Barbaric! Make it barbaric!" "Come on," he once implored the cellos, trying to get them in the mood for Salome's final scene. "I want you to play like a bunch of sluts." At a recent rehearsal with Violinist Nathan Milstein, Katims called a halt to plead with the musicians: "Make it sparkle. Like—not like champagne, I've used that one too often . . ." Milstein leaned over to whisper in his ear, and Katims' face lit up. "That's it," he cried, "like Seven-Up."

With his orchestra well in hand, Katims schedules everything from Brahms to Morton Gould, interests all sorts of listeners. This season, for the first time, the orchestra's eight-concert subscription series was a complete sellout (2,600 sub-

* But he will continue to commute to London for frequent appearances with the famed Philharmonia Orchestra, and to Milan for La Scala opera.

COFFEE-BR such big s

TIME, MARCH 14, 1955

[illegible] 72, as permanent conductor [illegible] contract.

[illegible] orals (the official reason was perjury [illegible] concerning his marital status when he re- [illegible] turned; the lady who traveled with him [illegible] was not his wife). After the symphony's [illegible] officials stopped blushing, they decided not [illegible] to hire anyone for a while but to study a [illegible] relay of guest conductors. By far the most [illegible] popular of the visitors proved to be [illegible] Brooklyn-born Milton Katims. The guest [illegible] was asked twice, and last fall the board [illegible] signed him up.

Life is not easy for the Seattle Sym-

This Clipping From
HERALD TRIBUNE N.Y.
MAR 13 1955

Igor Markevitch to Give U. S. Taste of His Magic

By JAY S. HARRISON

Igor Markevitch is a conductor—a conductor with a difference. As he put it recently, he is "entirely anti-prima donna"; so much so, in fact that he has developed a whole theory of conducting out of his belief. But while this detail is generally known to Europeans who have heard Mr. Markevitch on numberless occasions, America will encounter it for the first time Saturday night, when on a broadcast over NBC, Mr. Markevitch makes his domestic debut with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Even on these shores, however, a canny few have watched with especial interest the career of a musician who, since the 1920s, has been regarded with a compound of reverence and wonder.

Igor Markevitch

Two years after his birth in Kiev, in 1912, the Markevitch family — headed by Markevitch senior, a Russian marshal of the gentry—emigrated to Switzerland. There young Igor's musical talents where discovered and nurtured by Alfred Cortot who, in turn, sent the precocious boy to Nadia Boulanger for study in composition. He was then thirteen. Three years later Markevitch came into contact with Serge Diaghilev, inspired director of the Russian ballet, who commissioned a piano concerto from the adolescent maestro and then presented him to the public, as soloist in his own work, at Covent Garden in London.

Rapid Succession of Works

There followed in rapid succession a parcel of pieces—all of them evoking wild shouts of glee or disapproval, all of them obviously the products of a born musician and creator. For orchestra there were "Rebus," "La Nouvelle Age," "Icare" and a Sinfonietta. For voice there were "Paradise Lost," "L'Oraison Musical," and a Cantata composed in collaboration with Jean Cocteau.

But today, as for many years past, it is Markevitch the conductor who holds the public's affection. And the reasons for his enormous success are not difficult to fathom. The "anti-prima donna-ism" is one; but there are others.

"Let me say to you," Mr. Markevitch began, "that I have been conducting for a long time, but it is only in the last eleven years that I have really begun to conduct. Let me explain. In 1935 I studied with Herman Scherchen, and to me he is the pioneer of the modern conducting technique that I employ. How is that? Well, let me demonstrate, in terms of the piano. Before Liszt and Chopin, you found fifty types of piano playing, each one different. The way was thus prepared for Liszt and Chopin to establish a basic kind of technique that would serve all pianists.

Same True for Conducting

"And they did. If you can play Liszt and Chopin correctly, you can play anything, because their music shows you what the piano is, what it can and cannot do. Now, the same is true, I believe, with a conducting technique."

Mr. Markevitch, who, in addition to his other chores, serves during the summer as director of the International Course in Conducting at the Mozarteum in Salzburg, then added, "You must understand that baton technique is to a conductor what fingers are to a pianist. Certain movements produce certain sounds, and the way in which you get the sounds today, owing to the new conducting techniques, is much different than it was when—say—Toscanini started. If you have a good technique you need less time, less explanation in a rehearsal. And what is a rehearsal but part technical, part social and part personal.

"I must say also—and here I will make enemies—that today's orchestras are mostly better than today's conductors. If you have a flute audition, you get fifty flutists who have had far more orchestral experience than the average conductor. In fact, some young conductors get their experience at the expense of the orchestra."

So saying, Mr. Markevitch then launched into a discussion that reflects clearly and perfectly the conditions that make him something of a rara avis in his field.

"Dictator Is Old Hat"

"Now," he observed, "what must a conductor do? He must have such a perfect technique that the orchestra has the impression there are no difficulties. In our time, orchestras can play anything ever written—but some pieces can be difficult with one conductor and simple with another. To be a dictator is old hat. Our modern orchestras are too civilized, too gentlemanly to be treated like fools. Today the conductor must not dominate, he must collaborate. A director must unite his men, and in this act there is something beautiful because then only the spirit of music dominates.

"Indeed, my ideal as a conductor is to be forgotten, unnoticed. At my best concerts I always had the impression that they went by themselves. I had such contact with the orchestra, it was magic."

Mr. Markevitch continued by explaining that these thoughts really crystallized after the liberation in 1944, which found him in Florence, Italy. Actually, he had been trapped in Florence — where he had gone to study the life and time of Lorenzo the Magnificent in preparation for a choral work on the subject—by the German invasion of France, then his home. Finding himself isolated, Mr. Markevitch went underground, and for two years was in charge of the free press.

Hundreds of Students

The war, having ended, Mr. Markevitch immediately set about reorganizing the orchestra of the Maggio Musicale Florentine, which proved to be his most important stepping stone to musical fame. Conducting simply, without score and with a minimum of gesture, Mr. Markevitch was in the last decade found himself before virtually every leading symphonic group in Europe. To him, also, have flocked hundreds of students to learn his technical theories and absorb some of the humility that has made him the beloved of orchestras across the Continents.

"Yes," he continued, "I teach and love it. My students must learn not to perspire—if they sweat, they are working too hard and are probably disturbing the players. Think—if Heifetz were carried away like most conductors he would play nothing but wrong notes. And my students must learn scores by heart. That trick I learned from my father. When I was very young we would walk in the garden and play chess without a chessman or a board. I therefore had to retain every move in my head. Believe me, it was good experience."

This Clipping From
NEW YORK TIMES
MAR 15 1955

MARKEVITCH TO DIRECT

Guest Conductor With Boston Symphony Lauds Musicians

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 14 — The Boston Symphony Orchestra is apparent that a guest conductor making his United States debut this week feels "shy" during rehearsals, Igor Markevitch said today.

Mr. Markevitch, Russian-born conductor and composer, described his first rehearsal with the orchestra as "an old friend making chamber music with 100 people." He found the Boston musicians "most cooperative."

Mr. Markevitch will serve as guest conductor of the Boston group Friday, Saturday and Sunday. His program will consist of Handel's Concerto Grosso for String Orchestra, Opus 6, No. 5; Tchaikovsky's Overture-Fantasy "Romeo and Juliet," Britten's Variations and Fugue on a Theme of Purcell, and Stravinsky's "The Rite of Spring."

The conductor spent his childhood in Switzerland, and was taken to Paris at the age of 14 to study with Nadia Boulanger. He said today that his four days here reminded him of Switzerland, because of the "continuity of tradition" he had found.

Cir. (D 149,902) (S 382,056)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
EVENING GLOBE
MAR 15 1955

KOUSSEVITZKY TOLD TRUMAN:
Fine Arts Minister Needed

By FRANCIS W. HATCH

President Eisenhower's recommendation that there be established a Federal Advisory Commission for the Arts brings to mind a conversation with Serge Koussevitzky.

KOUSSEVITZKY

I had accompanied him across town from the Hotel Pierre to the Brooklyn Academy of Music where the Boston Symphony was making its annual mid-Winter appearance. With the faithful Victor behind the wheel of the big black limousine, we threaded through traffic with the speed and grace of a greyhound.

In the Times I had read of the orchestra's performance in Washington the evening previous. President Truman, according to the account, had visited Boston's eminent conductor in the Green Room at the conclusion of the concert.

"If it is not confidential, what matters did you and the President discuss?" I inquired.

With characteristic staccato intensity, Koussevitzky replied, "I say to Mr Truman, what you need Minister of Fine Arts in the cabinet—someone will represent music, litterature, painting and the drama. Mister Truman say to me, 'Dr. Koussevitzky, I think you have something there. I will think about it.' and then Mr. Truman ask me 'Why do you not play more American music on your program?' And I answer—if we play more American music, will you pay the deficit?"

During the concert I sat with Leroy Anderson who had come to listen with pleasure and pride to the great orchestra he had known during his Harvard days. I reflected that no conductor in America had done more to champion the cause of American music than Serge Koussevitzky.

At intermission we visited the conductor in his dressing room. He had come wringing wet from the podium. Victor, turned valet, was assisting him into a complete change.

On the return trip across Brooklyn Bridge Victor drove with the same graceful abandon, an artistic compliment to the great conductor he worshipped and felt privileged to serve.

At Dr. Koussevitzky's funeral I shall never forget Victor sitting silently with head bowed in an expression of devastating sorrow, while tears coursed down his cheeks.

Markevitch in Interview-

CSM - 3/16/55

Conductor In U.S. For First Time

By Harold Rogers

Igor Markevitch is giving Bostonians a new perspective on the New World. He and his wife have been in the United States less than two weeks, but he has already formed definite impressions of our country. One strong impression is that the New World is no longer new but older in many ways than the Old World.

"You are wrong if you consider Europe old and the United States new," he told members of the press earlier this week. The noted conductor and composer will lead the concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra Friday afternoon, Saturday evening, and Sunday afternoon.

"Cities like Hamburg and Rotterdam," he explained, "are almost completely new. Your country is very much like Switzerland. You both have old constitutions and a settled tradition. The United States has solved problems long ago which are now being solved in Europe. If we are keen to destroy what we have in Europe, then we'll have to come to Boston to see the 'old world.'"

He went on to say that we live a more restful life here, not only in Boston but also in New York. He agreed that the tempo was faster in New York but said there was not the same nervous tension found in Paris and Rome. He attributed this to the tremendous American efficiency that gave people time to relax.

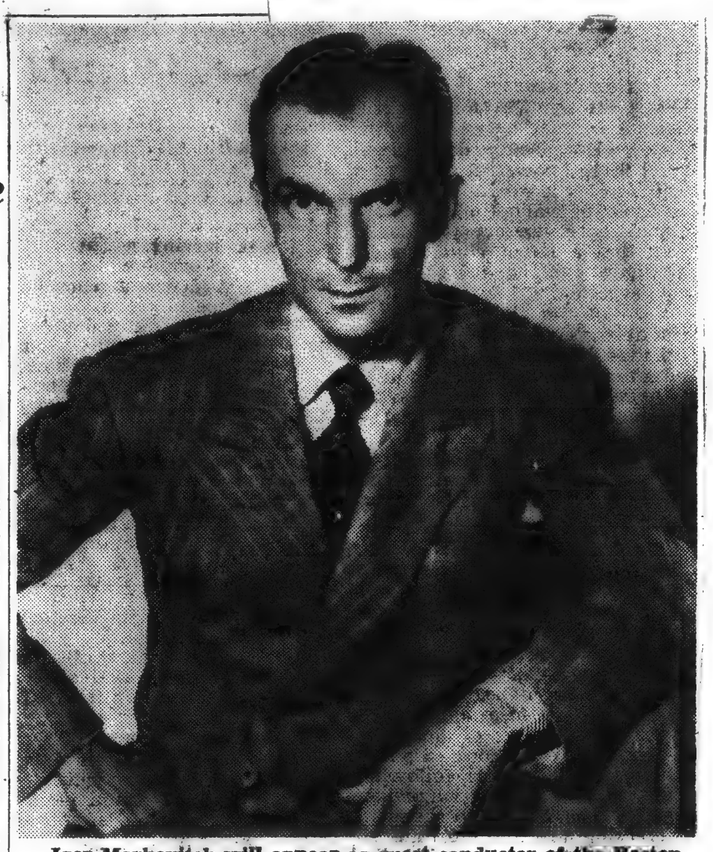
* * *

He and his wife were surprised at the beauty of our small towns like Concord, Mass., or the quaint charm of Louisburg Square on Beacon Hill. His wife, a native of Rome, is a multilingual woman of much personal radiance and a wide range of interests. Mr. Markevitch himself is penetrating in his analyses of musical problems and speaks fluently with an intensity of purpose.

Only occasionally did his very good English require some assistance from his wife. She learned her English as a child in Rome from English nurses. His first lessons in English were given him by the brother of James Joyce, some seven years ago.

"I am proud to have contact with such an orchestra as the Boston Symphony," he said. "At first I was shy, because I had the impression that your orchestras were so efficient, so perfect—too perfect, perhaps.

"Well, I find they are efficient because they are more cooperative. It is now old fashioned for one to be a prima donna or a temperamental conductor. I've had the impression at my rehearsals with the Boston Symphony that I was with old friends making chamber music with 100 people."



Igor Markevitch will appear as guest conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Symphony Hall Friday afternoon, Saturday night, and Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Markevitch feels that he was well prepared for his first visit to America by his friendship with Bernard Berenson, the art critic and collector, who was formerly of Boston. In 1940 Mr. Markevitch went to Florence to study the period of Lorenzo de' Medici for a cantata he was composing. Owing to the war he was unable to return to France and remained for seven years, during which he was one of Berenson's close friends. Berenson told him much of the United States and the achievements of Thomas Jefferson.

After the United States Army occupied Florence, he was asked to head the Florence Radio and also became the regular conductor of the Florence orchestra. "So you see," he said, "it was the Americans who gave me my first permanent conducting post."

* * *

Mr. Markevitch felt that about six weeks are usually required for a stranger to get the feeling of a couuntry. However, he feels that he can learn as much in half an hour if he's working with an orchestra.

"An orchestra is a small society that reflects the attitudes of a country. The Dutch, for instance, are an easygoing people and consequently do not respond instantly to the conductor's downbeat. The Italians, on the other hand, play almost before getting your signal. An orchestra reflects the mentality of the country, its way of life, its traditions."

Asked why he did not program his own works for his concerts with the Boston Symphony, Mr. Markevitch was somewhat embarrassed. He said that he would never play one of his own pieces at his first concert with an orchestra, that it would be "terribly immodest."

He was surprised to learn, however, that a cantata of his, composed in collaboration with Jean Cocteau 20 years ago, is to be performed March 29 and 30 at the annual concert by the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society.

Mr. Markevitch heads a music school, founded by Mahler, each year in Salzburg during the festival weeks. Here he teaches conducting. He believes that conducting technique should be taught to children while they are adaptable enough for correct training of muscles and breathing. This summer he will teach a boy of 12.

He said that conducting technique has not kept pace with the technical development of the orchestra, that much rehearsing has been done because the conductor needs it more than the orchestra. He hopes that the art of conducting can eventually be taught, mastered, and applied with less loss of time.

Cir. (D 124,110) (S 382,056)

This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE

MAR 19 1955

MUSIC

Markevitch Triumphs in His American Debut

Eighteenth pair of concerts in the Friday afternoon—Saturday evening series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, at Symphony Hall. They are conducted as guest by Igor Markevitch, who on this occasion makes his first appearances in the United States. The program: Handel: Concerto Grosso in D major, Op. 6, No. 5; Tchaikovsky: Overture — Fantasia, "Romeo and Juliet"; Britten: Variations and Fugue on a Theme of Purcell (first performances at these concerts); Stravinsky: "Le Sacre du Printemps."

By CYRUS DURGIN

The American debut of Igor Markevitch as conductor yesterday afternoon was a complete triumph. He proved himself a technical master, a forceful personality, an honest, driving, sincere musician, and an interpretive artist with a great deal of fire. Like the proverbial one swallow in Springtime, one program does not take the full measure of a symphonic conductor, but we may be sure that Mr. Markevitch is a man of intellectual facets who would prove interesting to hear time after time. Everything in yesterday's program pointed to that, for it was a diverse list, and as much in feeling as in musical style the four compositions offered a very wide variety.

Mr. Markevitch has what I would describe as a modern ear for orchestral sonorities. He likes a bright, live but not overly-brilliant or dazzling tone. He is, I think, almost pedantic in his insistence upon exact balance between sections. That meant a good deal in the heavy scoring of Stravinsky's "Sacre," for example, where unless much care is taken, numerous pages can sound thick and the quality of color is lost. The "Sacre" was startlingly clear in its complex rhythm and in the spectrum of instrumental colors and the separate instrumental lines. (Of course those portions where everything breaks loose defy clarity.)

Mr. Markevitch has said, publicly, that he dislikes show in conducting, and personal, "prima-donna" readings. Yesterday he proved he meant it. "Romeo and Juliet" was warmly romantic enough, and the strings had a flaming emotional intensity, just as in the Handel Concerto Grosso they boasted genuine classic poise and limpidity. Similarly, in the mechanics of his conducting, Mr. Markevitch avoids display. Just enough motion of the arms to give a clear beat and to reflect the nature of the passage at the moment are what you see. This he does with a notable degree of physical grace and ease, which probably make it much easier for him than would the repertory of wild and fancy gesticulations to which some brethren of the baton are partial.

While his almost-painfully thin small body moves little upon the stand, Markevitch is no prim time-beater, and there is nothing mechanical about his music-making. When the music is broad so are the gestures, but never displayful. He conducts for the orchestra, not the public.

We have Mr. Markevitch to thank for introducing to these concerts the hearty, pleasant and remarkably clever Variations and Fugue on a Theme by Purcell. This piece of Benjamin Britten has been done at Pops under its more familiar alias of "Young People's Guide to the Orchestra." This time the speaking part is omitted. The Variations and Fugue are not only a demonstration of what the orchestra can do, and how a composer may produce a range of tone colors, but they are also diverting and intrinsically substantial. I think that in the ninth Variation, where the harp is treated nimbly and brightly against the hushed tappings of tamtam and cymbals, that Britten invented a new tine.

At the end of the afternoon, when the last incisive crash had concluded a stunning performance of the "Sacre," the audience broke into cheers as well as applause. Mr. Markevitch and the most responsive Boston Symphony players truly deserved them.

Next week Mr. Munch will be back, and will present the Fifth Symphony of Schubert, the Second Symphony of Randall Thompson and the C minor Piano Concerto of Beethoven, with Claudio Arrau as soloist.

SATURDAY, MARCH 19, 1955

Markevitch Makes U.S. Debut

CSM

Conductor Acclaimed at Symphony Hall

By Harold Rogers

When Pierre Monteux conducted Stravinsky's "Le Sacre du Printemps" in Symphony Hall four years ago, there were many of us who felt he had said all.

But Igor Markevitch conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra in "Le Sacre" yesterday afternoon and added another chapter. It was Mr. Markevitch's American debut, and to say that he scored a triumph would not be saying enough. It is easy to win applause by a competent performance of "Le Sacre." It is not easy to infuse the work with artistic integrity, something that Mr. Markevitch gave to everything he played.

Mr. Markevitch is also a composer, and as a conductor of another composer's music he doubtless knows how to share the creative process, how to collaborate in producing an inspired performance.

We never lose interest in a masterpiece. With each conductor, provided he is a true artist, we gain additional insight.

Stravinsky's "Le Sacre," composed in 1913, has long since been acclaimed an authentic masterpiece of our century. To many listeners it has become as familiar as a Mozart symphony or a Beethoven quartet.

* * *

As for Mr. Markevitch's role yesterday, he displayed a combination of admirable qualities that are not often found in one musician. He approaches the music, the orchestra, and the audience with humility, not with false modesty. His readings reflect keen intelligence, control without tension, the subjective viewpoint that communicates emotion. He knows how to enter the music and take his listeners along. His reading of "Le Sacre" had genuine power without mere nervous excitement.

He knows how to make the orchestral texture completely lucid. He enables the music to assume its proper architectural shape. He is intensely aware of tone and timbre.

His conducting style is not magnetic or theatrical, yet it is not without drama. He uses what gestures he needs and no more. It was astonishing what he drew from the orchestra in "Le Sacre," especially in the massive detonations from the percussion section.

But what about the Handel Concerto Grosso for Strings, the fifth in Opus 6? He gave us not only purity of style, but a pure string tone of unusual beauty. And the Tchaikovksy "Romeo and Juliet" Overture-Fantasia? Again a jewel of interpretation, filled with surface scintillation and smoldering depths. Brilliance and humor were found in Britten's Variations and Fugue on a Theme of Purcell.

Mr. Markevitch is a man of ideas. He knows what to say and how to say it.

[5]

THE NEW YORK TIMES, 1955.

This Clipping From DALLAS, TEX.
TIMES-HERALD

Cir. (D 145,[illegible])

This Clipping From
WASHINGTON, D. C.
NEWS

Cir. (D 503,[illegible]) (S [illegible]096,738)

This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

Cir. (D 26,9[illegible])

This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE

MAR 24 1955

—Two writuctor birtht the and hony ay.

Stravinsky, Milhaud Pen Birthday Music For Pierre Monteux

BOSTON (UP) — Two world-famous conductors have written music to honor Conductor Pierre Monteux on his 80th birthday, it was announced here today. Monteux will conduct the compositions by Stravinsky and Milhaud at a concert on his birthday Monday.

Monteux, former conductor of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, will direct the Boston Symphony at the observance. Since his retirement, Monteux has lived at Hancock, Maine.

Stravinsky wrote a "greeting prelude for the 80th birthday of Pierre Monteux," while Milhaud wrote a "pensee amicale," Boston Symphony officials said.

THE NEW YORK TIMES, 1955.

MAR 24 1955

Bostonians Will Honor Pierre Monteux at 80

In honor of the eightieth birthday of its former conductor, Pierre Monteux, the Boston Symphony Orchestra will give a concert on April 4 in Symphony Hall, Boston. Two new works, composed for the occasion, will be conducted by Charles Munch.

Igor Stravinsky, whose early works had first performances under Mr. Monteux' direction, has written a "Greeting Prelude for the Eightieth Birthday of Pierre Monteux." Darius Milhaud, a long-time friend of the conductor, has composed a "Pensee amicale."

The remainder of the program will be conducted by Mr. Monteux, who was conductor of the Boston Symphony from 1919 to 1924. Proceeds of the concert, which will have Leon Fleisher as soloist in Beethoven's Fourth Piano Concerto, will benefit the orchestra's pension fund.

PORK
Always Tasty
Beef Short Ribs U.S. Gov't.
Beef Brisket Fresh, U.S. Gov't. Gr
Beef for Stew U.S. Top Grades, bo
Beef for Stew U.S. Top Co Plate, B
Chopped Chuck U.S. Gov't. C
Chopped Beef Visking-W

THE NEW YORK TIMES, 1955.

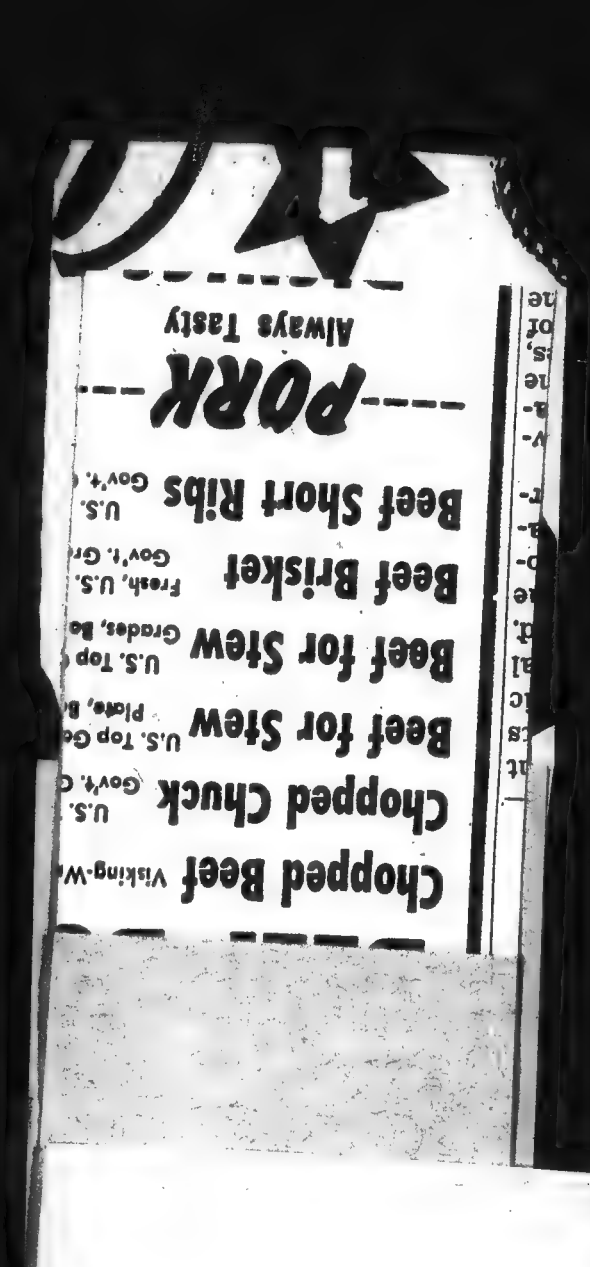
MAR 24 1955

Birthday Notes

BOSTON, March 24 (UP)—Two world-famous conductors have written music to honor Conductor Pierre Monteux on his 80th birthday. Mr. Monteux will conduct the compositions by Stravinsky and Milhaud at a Boston symphony concert on his birthday Monday.

ton Symphony at the observance. Since his retirement, Monteux has lived at Hancock, Maine.

Stravinsky wrote a "greeting prelude for the 80th birthday of Pierre Monteux," while Milhaud wrote a "Pensee Amicale," Boston symphony officials said.



THE NEW YORK TIMES. 55.

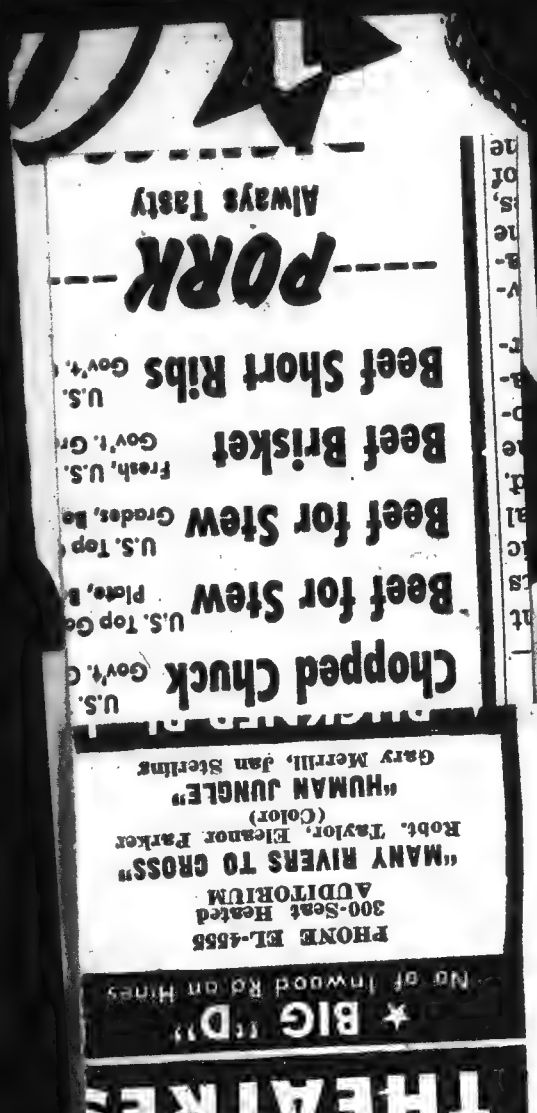
MAR 24 1955

Composers Honor Monteux at 80

Boston, March 24 (UP).—Two world-famous conductors have written music to honor Conductor Pierre Monteux on his 80th birthday. Monteux will conduct the compositions by Stravinsky and Milhaud at a concert on his birthday Monday.

Monteux, former conductor of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, will direct the Boston Symphony at the observance. Since his retirement, Monteux has lived at Hancock, Maine.

Stravinsky wrote a "greeting prelude for the 80th birthday of Pierre Monteux," while Milhaud wrote a "Pensee Amicale," Boston symphony officials said.



Bostonians Will Honor Pierre Monteux at 80

Two new works will be conducted by Charles Munch at the Boston Symphony Orchestra concert on April 4 in Symphony Hall, Boston, honoring the eightieth birthday of Pierre Monteux.

Igor Stravinsky, whose earfly works had first performances under Mr. Monteux' direction, has written a "Greeting Prelude for the Eightieth Birthday of Pierre Monteux." Darius Milhaud, a long-time friend of the conductor, has composed a "Pensee amicale."

The remainder of the program will be conducted by Mr. Monteux, who was conductor of the Boston Symphony from 1919 to 1924. Proceeds of the concert, which will have Leon Fleisher as soloist in Beethoven's Fourth Piano Concerto, will benefit the orchestra's pension fund.

Cir. (D 131,670) (S 288,529)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
MAR 19 1955

MUSIC

SYMPHONY HALL

Symphony Concert

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, Igor Markevitch conducting, presented the 18th program of the 74th season yesterday afternoon. The program:
Concerto Grosso for String Orchestra, in D major, Op. 6, No. 5 ..... Handel
"Romeo and Juliet" Overture-Fantasia ..... Tchaikowsky
Variations and Fugue on a Theme of Purcell, Op 34 ..... Britten
"Le Sacre du Printemps" ("The Rite of Spring")
Pictures of Pagan Russia in two parts ..... Stravinsky

By ROBERT TAYLOR

AN ORCHESTRA is the lengthened shadow of one man. Yesterday afternoon that man was the noted Parisian conductor-composer, Igor Markevitch, making his American debut with the Boston Symphony. And the shadow he cast was as tall as a figure in a sunset.

Lacking the nervous grace of a Cantelli, the limpid elegance of a Munch or an Ansermet, the staunch vigor of a Monteux, the theatrical flamboyance of a Bernstein, his authority derives from a source that embraces all these qualities: an intense dedication. So strong is it, that one feels an almost tangible power when this slight, balding, faintly-rumpled visitor proceeds shyly down the aisle through the rear desks. So concentrated is it, that the smallest flicker of a wrist conveys an instantaneous current of response.

PHYSICAL SCOPE

The range of his beat is limited in physical scope. He stands almost lanquidly. There is an absolute lack of mannerism. Scaled down in showiness, his style has the hypnotic fervor of a focussed esthetic sensibility. His gestures are angular, wiry. They contain an engaging awkwardness as he moulds a phrase with a cupped hand, brings the stick down a convoluted passage and thrusts out an odd elbow, damps a swell of sound with a vibrating finger: suddenly in a muted misterioso section or a climax in which he seems to hurl a clenched energy into the turmoil, the awkwardness is revealed as a vehicle of rugged strength. His style, assured and yet emotional, exhibits a primeval force due to its very economy.

The program which he scheduled for this brilliant, and in many respects, unforgettable introduction, appears dismaying at first glance. The bombast of the "Romeo and Juliet" overture would seem emptier than ever beside the apocalypse of "The Rite of Spring." The Handel could hold its own, but what about the Britten (otherwise entitled "The Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra")?

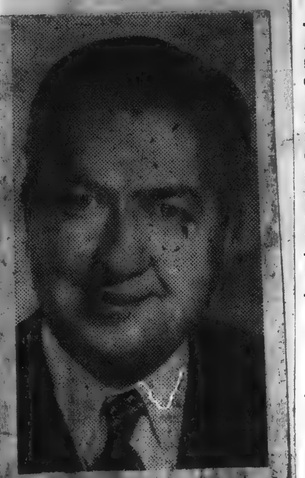
Mr. Markevitch answered these doubts by a virtuoso reading of the sort in which the most banal music would be an experience. For the first time in listening to the baroque in Symphony Hall I could hear Daniel Pinkham's harpsichord continuo running like a silver thread through a transparent pattern of interwoven melody. Even the movie mood-music longeurs of the "Romeo" were acceptable on an unabashed romantic basis.

MUSICAL INTENT

The Britten "Variations and Fugue on a Theme of Purcell" is a delightful exercise in technic with a didactic as well as musical intent. Starting with a typically florid theme—drawn from Purcell's incidental music to "Abdelazar or The Moor's Revenge" by Mrs. Aphra Behn—the variations are given to 13 instrumental combinations in turn, culminating in an elaborate fugue and coda by the orchestra. It serves a purpose as an illustration of the character of the instruments for children, and yet has a sprightly charm for adults.

In the "Sacre," however, Mr. Markevitch touched the level of superlatives. His tempi, a bit on the fast side, culminated in an awesome and darkling turbulence. The harsh proclamations of the brass, the brooding malevolence, the strident alternations of rhythm, the emphasis on the stark linear dissonance of Stravinsky's masterpiece, brought an unrelenting savagery of mood that yet was contrasted neatly with the strain of delicate pastoral lyricism beneath the oppressive and pitiless demands of nature. Here, definitely, the conductor's stature was disclosed.

At the next pair of concerts Dr. Munch resumes the helm with Schubert's Symphony No. 5, Randall Thompson's Second Symphony, and Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 3, in C minor, in which Claudio Arrau will be the soloist.



STEVE BRODY, president of Allied Artists Pictures, who will arrive in Boston on Wednesday, March 23, to address 200 exhibitors and members of the press at a luncheon at the Hotel Bradford.

DAY, MARCH 19, 1955 POST

Music in Review

By TUCKER KEISER

Igor Markevitch, the European conductor known here through his many excellent recordings, was the guest conductor yesterday afternoon in Symphony Hall, playing a program which included Handel's Concerto Grosso in D major, Tchaikovsky's "Romeo and Juliet," Britten's Variations on a theme of Purcell, and Stravinsky's "The Rite of Spring."

The applause from the Friday afternoon audience, notoriously undemonstrative but by no means unappreciative, indicated that the conductor had made a stunning success. In addition to the roar of the clapping, there was the stamping of feet and yells of "bravo." Mr. Markevitch returned time and time again to acknowledge the ovation. Even the orchestra contributed to the din of approval vigorously, not politely as they often do for a guest.

The conductor is a maestro who knows his business. His beats are firm, his indicatio precise, and bodily movemer economical. He never gets b tween the music and the listene

He is neither the strenuo cheer leader who thinks it ne essary to whip an orchest into an athletic frenzy nor t podium parasite who does litt for an orchestra of superb m sicians except appreciate the performance from a stfateg location. He is a finely grou lens which focuses and inten fies divergent rays of sound.

The playing of the orchest under such direction was supe lative, ranging from the sua and eloquent string section the Handel to the most savage exciting performance of "Th Rite of Spring" I have ever heard. While the barbaric dissonances of this last named work were brutal, they never once lost their musicality.

Mr. Markevitch is a brilliant addition to our list of B.S.O. guests. Let us hope that he will return for a longer stay next year.

Cir. (D 190,775) (S 203,908)
This Clipping From
WASHINGTON, D. C.
POST & TIMES HERALD
MAR 20 1955

A FAMILIAR and boring figure at every dance is the alcoholically inspired show-off who insists upon conducting the orchestra along about 2 a. m. The musicians generally humor the tosspot Toscanini and let him do calisthenics with the baton while they get along without direction. Of course Scalopini's Snappy Six doesn't play in the same league with concert orchestras, which also rarely are afflicted with volunteer conductors, but in either case the men with the stick are trying to do a like job, which is to lead the musicians through their interpretation of a musical composition—be it Berlin or Bach. Speaking from the peak of a profession which he considers a priesthood, Charles Munch, who leads the Boston Symphony, has written I AM A CONDUCTOR, a modest little book just published by Oxford University Press, New York, which explains his art in terms a harmonica player will understand and the most initiate of concert-goers will enjoy. We don't belong in either category, being barely able to whistle "How Dry I Am," let alone Wagner's "Liebestod," but Munch's book is some of the best reading we've had lately.—W. S.

Cir. (D 190,333) (S 172,832)
This Clipping From
FORT WORTH, TEXAS
MORNING STAR-TELEGRAM
MAR 20 1955

Book Authored By Conductor To Be Published

NEW YORK, March 19 (Spl)—Charles Munch's book "I Am a Conductor" will be published by Oxford University Press March 31. The book was written by the noted conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in French and has been translated for the American edition by Leonard Burkat.

In the [illegible], the noted conductor writes, the only reason for writing a book is so that future conductors who have faith and who desire to serve music rather than be served by it may profit from his experience."

The book, however, is not solely valuable as retrospective and young conductors, but should appeal to all who attend concerts, listen to radio broadcasts (such as those of the Boston Symphony on Radio) and enjoy playing their own recordings.

The Harvard Crimson
The University Daily Newspaper—Founded 1873

Entered at the post office at Boston, Massachusetts, as second class mail matter, December 1, 1877. Published daily, except Sundays, holidays, and during vacations (Christmas, Spring) from September to May inclusive, five times weekly during reading periods (first two weeks in January and last two weeks in May) and thrice weekly during examination periods (last two weeks in January and first two weeks in June) by the Harvard Crimson, 14 Plympton Street, Cambridge 38, Mass., Telephone Kirkland 7-2811, KI 7-2812, KI 7-7600. Subscription, per year, $9.00 delivered in dorms, $10.00 in Cambridge, $11.00 mailed.

Crimson Printing Co., 14 Plympton St., Cambridge 38, Mass.

Cliff F. Thompson '56, President
John J. Iselin '56, Managing Editor
Charles M. Diker '56, Business Manager
William W. Bartley, III '56, Editorial Chairman

Night Editor for this issue: John A. Rava '58
Business Editor for this issue: Burton A. Schwalb '57
Photographic Editor this issue: Robert M. Pringle '58

TUESDAY, MARCH 22, 1955

Music for the Family

The Boston Symphony Orchestra will present one of its monthly concerts in Sanders Theater this evening. Works by Bach, Stravinsky, and Brahms will be on the program. Yet to the overwhelming majority of music-lovers at the University, this information is both meaningless and frustrating. Tickets to the B.S.O. concerts at Sanders are sold only by season's subscription, and the subscribers list is a Who's Who of Faculty members, local alumni, and "friends of the University." The average student has about as much chance of hearing tonight's concert as he has of attending a meeting of the Corporation.

By all the logical rules of symphony managing, the concert series at Sanders should not exist at all. The theatre is too small, both in capacity and stage area, for an organization like the B.S.O. Like many other features of Boston and the University, however, the Sanders concerts are Tradition. "After all," one Symphony official has said, "the B.S.O and Harvard are two of the oldest organizations around here." Over the years the Sanders subscription list has also become traditional—"a family affair of the Harvard people," as the official described it. Indeed, some local families have occupied the same seats in Sanders through two or three generations.

But many of these subscribers have long since dissolved their ties with the University. Their affiliation with the "Harvard family" is tenuous when compared to that of any student. To make the B.S.O.-Sanders tradition meaningful, therefore, the Administration should prune from the subscribers list, people who are no longer attached to the University. It should then allot the extra seats, not to the most "eligible" persons applying for season's subscriptions, but on a "rush" basis to the first students who show up before each concert. In this way, Harvard music-lovers would have at least some chance of sharing in the fine tradition that they have inherited.

Cir. (S 55,231)
This Clipping From
TRENTON, N. J.
SUNDAY TIMES-ADVERTISER
MAR 20 1955

ON and OF

Liebman Gets Contract

Max Liebman, producer-director of NBC-TV's Spectaculars, has signed a new five-year contract with the network. The agreement provides for Liebman services both on the Spectaculars and other functions.

To Recreate Role

Martha Wright, WCBS Radio singing star, who sky-rocketed to fame as Nellie Forbush in the Broadway musical hit "South Pacific," will recreate the role during her Summer vacation. She will be on the stage of the Aqua Theater in her native Seattle, Washington, July 4 through 10.

Munchs' Book Published

Charles Munch's book "I Am a Conductor" will be published by Oxford University Press, March 31. The book was originally written by the famed conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in French, and has been translated for the American edition by Leonard Burkat.

Cir. (D 74,995) (S 59,910)
This Clipping From BRIDGEPORT, CONN.
POST
MAR 25 1955

Passing Show

By FRED RUSSELL

Boston Pops Record Favorite

A century ago no proper Bostonian found anything immoderate in the description of the Massachusetts capital as "the Athens of America" and even today Boston is the only city in America where a subway stop is named "Symphony Hall." The name applies, of course, to the Boston Symphony orchestra and to its springtime successor in the Hub City's musical affections, the Boston Pops. This city will get a "touch" of Boston when Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Tour orchestra appear here at the Klein Memorial on Sunday evening March 27.

Fiedler and the Boston Pops Tour orchestra have made two previous American tours—which, like their present 10-week stint away from home, were under the direction of Columbia Artists Management, and Fiedler has a substantial claim on the affections of millions of Americans who know and love many of the 150 recordings with which he is represented in RCA Victor's catalogue of "The Music America Loves Best."

40 Favorite Overtures

The waltzes of Offenbach, the nostalgia of the Strausses for Vienna, the sultry insinuations of Ravel's "Bolero," the magic of more than 40 favorite overtures, 14 moments from as many operas, spanning that literature from Verdi to Victor Herbert, a round two dozen marches, and music from 13 of the most popular ballets — from the delicate piano tapestries which became the score for Chopin's "Les Sylphides" to the exuberant bounce of Leonard Bernstein's sparkling "Fancy Free" and even popular tunes from Broadway musicals like "Oklahoma!" and "South Pacific," "Kiss Me, Kate," and "Annie Get Your Gun" have all been recorded by Fiedler and the Boston Pops. To Fiedler also went the distinction, in 1951, of being the first [illegible]ted Seal conductor to achieve a sale of 1,000,000 copies of a single record. The compositions were "Jalousie" coupled with Manuel de Falla's "Ritual Fire Dance," RCA Victor commemorated the milestone by presenting Fiedler with a gold pressing of his recording. This was a distinction which had previously been sacred to such popular recording singers and orchestras as Vaughn Monroe, Perry Como and Eddie Fisher.

Tenor Mario Lanza and conductor Leopold Stokowski are the only two serious artists who have subsequently matched the Fiedler achievement, and even they must let pass unchallenged the fact that 16 of the 101 of RCA Victor's all-time best-sellers were [illegible]ded by Fiedler and the Boston Pops.

Album in April

Among Fiedler's most recent releases were a special potpourri of Boston Pops favorites collected under the title "Fiedler's 25th," and marking the leader's silver jubilee as conductor of the orchestra, and a new high fidelity of the Offenbach melodies familiar to millions of ballet-goers as "Gaite Parisienne." Forthcoming in April will be an album called "The Family All Together," which is representative of Fiedler's continuing efforts to draw the members of a family together by persuading them to listen together to first-class performances of music everybody can and does like.

Last season the silver-haired maestro, who also founded the free Esplanade concerts on the banks of the placid Charles river, demonstrated his sense of humor with LP albums called "Classical Music for People Who Hate Classical Music," which promptly became a best-seller; "Opera Without Singing," and "Mr. Strauss Comes to Boston." This last-named album commemorated the visit of the Viennese waltz king to Boston in 1872, when he conducted an orchestra of 2,000 players, combined with a chorus of nothing less than 20,000 voices, who were reinforced by 100 anvils played by members of the Boston Fire department (of which Fiedler is an honorary chief)) for the familiar "Anvil Chorus" from Verdi's "Il Trovatore."

Cir. (D 131,670) (S 258,529)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
MAR 19 1955

MUSIC

SYMPHONY HALL

Symphony Concert

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, Igor Markevitch conducting, presented the 18th program of the 74th season yesterday afternoon. The program:
Concerto Grosso for String Orchestra, in D major, Op. 6, No. 5.....Handel
"Romeo and Juliet" Overture-Fantasia .....Tchaikowsky
Variations and Fugue on a Theme of Purcell, Op 34.....Britten
"Le Sacre du Printemps" ("The Rite of Spring")
Pictures of Pagan Russia in two parts .....Stravinsky

By ROBERT TAYLOR

AN ORCHESTRA is the lengthened shadow of one man. Yesterday afternoon that man was the noted Parisian conductor-composer, Igor Markevitch, making his American debut with the Boston Symphony. And the shadow he cast was as tall as a figure in a sunset.

Lacking the nervous grace of a Cantelli, the limpid elegance of a Munch or an Ansermet, the staunch vigor of a Monteux, the theatrical flamboyance of a Bernstein, his authority derives from a source that embraces all these qualities: an intense dedication. So strong is it, that one feels an almost tangible power when this slight, balding, faintly-rumpled visitor proceeds shyly down the aisle through the rear desks. So concentrated is it, that the smallest flicker of a wrist conveys an instantaneous current of response.

PHYSICAL SCOPE

The range of his beat is limited in physical scope. He stands almost languidly. There is an absolute lack of mannerism. Scaled down in showiness, his style has the hypnotic fervor of a focussed esthetic sensibility. His gestures are angular, wiry. They contain an engaging awkwardness as he moulds a phrase with a cupped hand, brings the stick down a convoluted passage and thrusts out an odd elbow, damps a swell of sound with a vibrating finger: suddenly in a muted misterioso section or a climax in which he seems to hurl a clenched energy into the turmoil, the awkwardness is revealed as a vehicle of rugged strength. His style, assured and yet emotional, exhibits a primeval force due to its very economy.

The program which he scheduled for this brilliant, and in many respects, unforgettable introduction, appears dismaying at first glance. The bombast of the "Romeo and Juliet" overture would seem emptier than ever beside the apocalypse of "The Rite of Spring." The Handel could hold its own, but what about the Britten (otherwise entitled "The Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra")?

Mr. Markevitch answered these doubts by a virtuoso reading of the sort in which the most banal music would be an experience. For the first time in listening to the baroque in Symphony Hall I could hear Daniel Pinkham's harpsichord continuo running like a silver thread through a transparent pattern of interwoven melody. Even the movie mood-music longeurs of the "Romeo" were acceptable on an unabashed romantic basis.

MUSICAL INTENT

The Britten "Variations and Fugue on a Theme of Purcell" is a delightful exercise in technic with a didactic as well as musical intent. Starting with a typically florid theme—drawn from Purcell's incidental music to "Abdelazar or The Moor's Revenge" by Mrs. Aphra Behn—the variations are given to 13 instrumental combinations in turn, culminating in an elaborate fugue and coda by the orchestra. It serves a purpose as an illustration of the character of the instruments for children, and yet has a sprightly charm for adults.

In the "Sacre," however, Mr. Markevitch touched the level of superlatives. His tempi, a bit on the fast side, culminated in a awesome and darkling turbulence. The harsh proclamations of the brass, the brooding malevolence, the strident alternations of rhythm, the emphasis on the stark linear dissonance of Stravinsky's masterpiece, brought an unrelenting savagery of mood that yet was contrasted neatly with the strain of delicate pastoral lyricism beneath the oppressive and pitiless demands of nature. Here, definitely, the conductor's stature was disclosed.

At the next pair of concerts Dr. Munch resumes the helm with Schubert's Symphony No. 5, Randall Thompson's Second Symphony and Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 3, in C minor, in which Claudio Arrau will be the soloist.

STEVE BRODY, president of Allied Artists Pictures, who will arrive in Boston on Wednesday, March 23, to address 200 exhibitors and members of the press at a luncheon at the Hotel Bradford.

HYRC Board Defeats Motion to Investigate Recent Club Election

Student action to force the Young Republican Club to investigate charges of unfair campaigning in the organization's recent election appears to have failed, after the HYRC planning board yesterday turned down a move for a probe, 6 to 1.

Last week several members had asked the club to establish an impartial committee to investigate the allegations. If the club did not set up such a committee, they said, they would favor consulting with Dean Watson about the possibilities of an official investigation.

What these students will do now that the club has refused to deal with these charges has not yet been made public.

Gordon P. Bugbee '56, club secretary, who voted for the investigation, last night refused to comment on the committee's action.

The former vice-president of the club, John C. Bildrdge '55, said last night, "I

SENATOR HOMER E. CAPEHART

...ulbright's office ...recall Galbraith ...ed in executive ...eting will prob... ...er Wednesday."

Planned

...rath recalled to ...ed by committee ...am J. Fulbright ...mittee,' in which ...ormy session of ...Connection ...g Capehart had ...nd then shifted ...pirath of being a ... to Adlai Steven... ...ession, Capehart ...g up a lot more ... once he got him ...tee. The profes... ...d his willingness ...d his earlier re... ...ket situation. ...r then went on ...g Galbraith back ...ting Committee's ...action.

Cir. (D 124,110) (S 382,056)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
MAR 23 1955

Honors for Monteux

Two new pieces will be conducted by Charles Munch at the 80th birthday concert for Pierre Monteux in Symphony Hall April 4.

Igor Stravinsky, whose music Monteux was a pioneer in introducing to the world, has composed "Greeting Prelude for the 80th Birthday of Pierre Monteux." Darius Milhaud, likewise a lifelong friend of this conductor, has composed a "Pensee amicale."

The concert will be performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Monteux, who was its conductor from 1919 to 1924 and who has conducted it recently as guest, in Europe, and in this country at large. The proceeds of this concert will benefit the orchestra's Pension Fund.

The program otherwise will be all-Beethoven, consisting of the Overture to "Egmont," the Fourth Piano Concerto, and the "Eroica" Symphony. Leon Fleisher will be piano soloist.

Cir. (D 74,995) (S 59,910)
This Clipping From
BRIDGEPORT, CONN.
POST
MAR 25 1955

Passing Show

By FRED RUSSELL

Boston Pops Record Favorite

A century ago no proper Bostonian found anything immoderate in the description of the Massachusetts capital as "the Athens of America" and even today Boston is the only city in America where a subway stop is named "Symphony Hall." The name applies, of course, to the Boston Symphony orchestra, and to its springtime successor in the Hub City's musical affections, the Boston Pops. This city will get a "touch" of Boston when Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Tour orchestra appear here at the Klein Memorial on Sunday evening, March 27.

Fiedler and the Boston Pops Tour orchestra have made two previous American tours—which, like their present 10-week stint away from home, were under the direction of Columbia Artists Management, and Fiedler has a substantial claim on the affections of millions of Americans who know and love many of the 150 recordings with which he is represented in RCA Victor's catalogue of "The Music America Loves Best."

40 Favorite Overtures

The waltzes of Offenbach, the nostalgia of the Strausses for Vienna, the sultry insinuations of Ravel's "Bolero," the magic of more than 40 favorite overtures, 14 moments from as many operas, spanning that literature from Verdi to Victor Herbert, a round two dozen marches, and music from 18 of the most popular ballets — from the delicate piano traceries which became the score for Chopin's "Les Sylphides" to the exuberant bounce of Leonard Bernstein's sparkling "Fancy Free"—and even popular tunes from Broadway musicals, like "Oklahoma!" and "South Pacific," "Kiss Me, Kate," and "Annie, Get Your Gun" have all been recorded by Fiedler and the Boston Pops. To Fiedler also went the distinction, in 1951, of being the first Red Seal conductor to achieve a sale of 1,000,000 copies of a single record. The compositions were "Jalousie" coupled with Manuel de Falla's "Ritual Fire Dance," RCA Victor commemorated the milestone by presenting Fiedler with a gold pressing of his recording. This was a distinction which had previously been sacred to such popular recording singers and orchestras as Vaughn Monroe, Perry Como and Eddie Fisher.

Tenor Mario Lanza and conductor Leopold Stokowski are the only two serious artists who have subsequently matched the Fiedler achievement, and even they must let pass unchallenged the fact that 16 of the 101 of RCA Victor's all time best-sellers were recorded by Fiedler and the Boston Pops.

Album in April

Among Fiedler's most recent releases were a special potpourri of Boston Pops favorites collected under the title "Fiedler's 25th," and marking the leader's silver jubilee as conductor of the orchestra, and a new high fidelity of the Offenbach melodies familiar to millions of ballet-goers as "Gaite Parisienne." Forthcoming in April will be an album called "The Family All Together," which is representative of Fiedler's continuing efforts to draw the members of a family together by persuading them to listen together to first-class performances of music everybody can and does like.

Last season the silver-haired maestro, who also founded the free Esplanade concerts on the banks of the placid Charles river, demonstrated his sense of humor with LP albums called "Classical Music for People Who Hate Classical Music," which promptly became a best-seller; "Opera Without Singing," and "Mr. Strauss Comes to Boston." This last-named album commemorated the visit of the Viennese waltz king to Boston in 1872, when he conducted an orchestra of 2,000 players, combined with a chorus of nothing less than 20,000 voices, who were reinforced by 100 anvils played by members of the Boston Fire department (of which Fiedler is an honorary chief)) for the familiar "Anvil Chorus" from Verdi's "Il Trovatore."

DAY, MARCH 19, 1955 POST

Music in Review

By TUCKER KEISER

Igor Markevitch, the European conductor known here through his many excellent recordings, was the guest conductor yesterday afternoon in Symphony Hall, playing a program which included Handel's Concerto Grosso in D major, Tchaikovsky's "Romeo and Juliet," Britten's Variations on a theme of Purcell, and Stravinsky's "The Rite of Spring."

The applause from the Friday afternoon audience, notoriously undemonstrative but by no means unappreciative, indicated that the conductor had made a stunning success. In addition to the roar of the clapping, there was the stamping of feet and yells of "bravo." Mr. Markevitch returned time and time again to acknowledge the ovation. Even the orchestra contributed to the din of approval vigorously, not politely as they often do for a guest.

The conductor is a maestro who knows his business. His beats are firm, his indications precise, and bodily movements economical. He never gets between the music and the listener.

He is neither the strenuous cheer leader who thinks it necessary to whip an orchestra into an athletic frenzy nor the podium parasite who does little for an orchestra of superb musicians except appreciate their performance from a strategic location. He is a finely ground lens which focuses and intensifies divergent rays of sound.

The playing of the orchestra under such direction was superlative, ranging from the suave and eloquent string section in the Handel to the most savagely exciting performance of "The Rite of Spring" I have ever heard. While the barbaric dissonances of this last named work were brutal, they never once lost their musicality.

Mr. Markevitch is a brilliant addition to our list of B.S.O. guests. Let us hope that he will return for a longer stay next year.

Cir. (D 110,333) (S 172,832)
This Clipping From
FORT WORTH, TEXAS
MORNING STAR-TELEGRAM
MAR 20 1955

Book Authored By Conductor To Be Published

NEW YORK, March 19 (Spl).—Charles Munch's book "I Am a Conductor" will be published by Oxford University Press March 31. The book was written by the noted conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in French and has been translated for the American edition by Leonard Burkat.

In the volume, the noted conductor writes: "My only reason for writing this book is so that future conductors who have faith and who want to serve music rather than be served by it may profit from my experience."

The book, however, is not solely valuable in retrospective and young conductors, but should appeal to all who attend concerts, listen to radio broadcasts (such as those of the Boston Symphony on Radio) and enjoy playing their own recordings.

Cir. (S 55,231)
This Clipping From
TRENTON, N. J.
SUNDAY TIMES-ADVERTISER
MAR 20 1955

ON and OF

Liebman Gets Contract

Max Liebman, producer-director of NBC-TV's Spectaculars, has signed a new five-year contract with the network. The agreement provides for Liebman services both on the Spectaculars and other functions.

To Recreate Role

Martha Wright, WCBS Radio singing star, who sky-rocketed to fame as Nellie Forbush in the Broadway musical hit "South Pacific," will recreate the role during her Summer vacation. She will be on the stage of the Aqua Theater in her native Seattle, Washington, July 4 through 10.

Munchs' Book Published

Charles Munch's book "I Am a Conductor" will be published by Oxford University Press, March 31. The book was originally written by the famed conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in French, and has been translated for the American edition by Leonard Burkat.

Cir. (D 196,775) (S 203,908)
This Clipping From
WASHINGTON, D. C.
POST & TIMES HERALD
MAR 20 1955

A FAMILIAR and boring figure at every dance is the alcoholically inspired show-off who insists upon conducting the orchestra along about 2 a. m. The musicians generally humor the tosspot Toscanini and let him do calisthenics with the baton while they get along without direction. Of course Scalopini's Snappy Six doesn't play in the same league with concert orchestras, which also rarely are afflicted with volunteer conductors, but in either case the men with the stick are trying to do a like job, which is to lead the musicians through their interpretation of a musical composition—be it Berlin or Bach. Speaking from the peak of a profession which he considers a priesthood, Charles Munch, who leads the Boston Symphony, has written I AM A CONDUCTOR, a modest little book just published by Oxford University Press, New York, which explains his art in terms a harmonica player will understand and the most initiate of concert-goers will enjoy. We don't belong in either category, being barely able to whistle "How Dry I Am," let alone Wagner's "Liebestod," but Munch's book is some of the best reading we've had lately.—W. F.

MUSIC

Symphony Concert

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conducting, gave the 19th program of the 74th season in Symphony Hall yesterday afternoon. The soloist was Claudio Arrau, piano. The program: Symphony No. 5 in B flat ..... Schubert
Symphony No. 2 in E minor ..... Thompson
Piano Concerto No. 3, Op. 37 ..... Beethoven

By RUDOLPH ELIE

This was a pleasant concert marked by fine orchestral playing, a contemporary revival of much interest and another one of Claudio Arrau's prodigious performances of a piano concerto.

It was prodigous, too, for Mr. Arrau, virtually unexcelled today for the commanding strength of his playing, gave Beethoven's Third a wonderfully robust outing. The work lends itself to such a treatment as it stands as a milepost in the composer's developing powers. It was, indeed, the turning point of his career for in it he let himself go for the first time, expressing himself in the dramatic and impassioned terms soon to be more fully realized in the later works. Within the ensuing nine years he was to compose the Fourth and Fifth Piano Concertos as well as the Violin Sonata and the Fourth and Fifth Symphonies.

Looking Back

The Third foreshadows them all, looking back on the two earlier works in the form hardly at all. In fact it seems hard to believe this followed the C major Concerto (numbered one but actually the second) by only a year, so advanced it is in scope, power and contrasting dynamic force. It calls for the grand style even in its solemn but melting slow movement, and for drive and energy throughout.

In it Mr. Arrau displayed the fullest range of his extraordinary keyboard technique, achieving scalewise passages of incredibly clean articulation, accomplishing the quadruple trills with all the clarity of tone of another doing a singe trill and, in the cadenza of the first movement, ranging up and down the keyboard in astounding virtuosity. But a virtuosity, it might be added, never sacrificing musical value for mere display. As always, Mr. Munch accompanied him in a style so integrated as to be no accompaniment at all but a musical partnership of the highest order.

It was good to have an opportunity again—after 15 years or more—to hear Randall Thompson's Second Symphony. The outstanding thing about it is its absolute lack of pretention. There is no straining whatever for the fashionable quality of incomprehensibility, no attempt to dazzle with scholastic musical formulae, no attempt to intrude aggressive dissonance for its own sake, no attempt to impress his composer-colleagues with that be-damned-with-the-audience attitude, no attempt to write for the ages.

It is honest, straightforward music of a conventional, though by no means musty idiom containing many references to the American scene, and as such a pleasure to hear. The slow movement is almost as much a spiritual as that of the Dvorak, but the work abounds with suggestions, many of them humorous, to familiar melodic materials, although none are directly quoted.

The principal weakness of the work, if it may be said to have one, is that it might have been more powerfully scored for the orchestra for there are moments when a slightly tentative quality is evident.

Highly Musical

On the other hand this might well have been the composer's intention, for nowhere in the symphony is there a touch of pretense, of striving for brilliance and grandeur. It is merely a highly musical but always genial essay attempting nothing but the musical diversion of a contemporary audience and as such a refreshing interlude among the tortured soul-searching of less adjusted men.

Mr. Munch did the symphony splendidly, underlining its lyrical qualities without sentiment and bringing out its busy-ness without fussiness. Mr. Thompson was in the audience, incidentally, to acknowledge a very cordial response.

Mr. Munch began the concert with an unusually reposed version of the Schubert Fifth, a very grateful work very sensitively done. Next week's program will be conducted by Richard Burgin. Gary Graffman will be the soloist in Prokofieff's Third Piano Concerto and the program includes Bartok's great concerto for orchestra with works of C. P. E. Bach and Richard Strauss.

Clr. (D 124,110) (S 382,056)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
MAR 26 1955

MUSIC

Arrau Symphony Soloist in Beethoven Concerto

Nineteenth program in the Friday afternoon–Saturday evening series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, at Symphony Hall. The program: Schubert: Fifth Symphony; Randall Thompson: Second Symphony; Beethoven: Piano Concerto No. 3, in C minor (Claudio Arrau, soloist).

By CYRUS DURGIN

The Boston Symphony concerts this week are highly enjoyable for several reasons. Mr. Munch is back on the conductor's stand, the soloist is that superb musician of the keyboard, pianist Claudio Arrau, and for the first time in more than 15 years we have a chance to hear a finely-wrought and engrossing American Symphony, the Second by Randall Thompson.

Mr. Thompson's work made a good impression when introduced here in 1934, and renewed that impression when performed three times in the early Autumn of 1939. Now after so many years, it was fascinating to listen to the piece again yesterday, and to note with a warmth of real satisfaction how well the music has worn. Although elements of jazz form a part of the style, they are much refined jazz, and the whole score shows a fastidious hand, both in expression and the weight of instrumentation

Now that time has begun to adjust one's perspective, I can see European influences in it that I did not see before. All the same, here is an indisputably American manner, and a very natural one, without self-conscious effort to be American or jazzy or recherche. There are tunes, and they flow easily above the frequent offbeats of jazz rhythm. The music has feeling and it arouses feeling, it has constant motion, it is fairly involved but not a maze of notes-on-paper complication, and best of all, it really sounds with the resources of the complete orchestra. Now it is more understandable than formerly why Mr. Thompson was so sparing with tympani: there is so much rhythm in the final two movements that added drum beats probably would have made the effect too heavy and might have allowed the momentum.

Mr. Thompson, today chairman of the music division at Harvard University, was present yesterday, and received a notably cordial demonstration. For once a contemporary composer could be sure that the applause came from genuine pleasure at his work.

Munch in Top Form

Mr. Munch was at the top of his form through the afternoon, save that the overly-light Beethoven scoring in portions of the C minor Concerto was not strongly enough emphasized and some detail, accordingly, was lost. But the spirit and the style of Beethoven and of Schubert (the latter performed with slightly reduced orchestra) was not only correct, it was bubbling with vitality. The orchestra sounded sweet and clear. Neither conductor nor players were perceptibly tense, and in consequence there was no strain either in tone or manner.

The Beethoven C minor Concerto is not a work with which a virtuoso can whip up a storm of applause. But it is delightfully animated, with gorgeous melody in the slow movement. Claudio Arrau is both virtuoso and responsible musician, and he played as such. His steady rhythm, prominent among the excellence which have brought him to the peak of success, was a joy to hear. If he took the largo very freely, that was a matter of personal feeling and not a show of sentimentality. Everything was balanced, in proportion, sensitive and elegant. What more could have been asked?

Richard Burgin will conduct the Friday-Saturday concerts next week. His program will consist of K. P. E. Bach's D major Concerto in the Steinberg arrangement, Bartok's Concerto for Orchestra, the Third Piano Concerto of Prokofieff with Gary Graffman as soloist, and Strauss' Dance of the Seven Veils from "Salome."

Clr. (D 294,859) (S 282,207)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
POST
MAR 26 1955

Music Review

By TUCKER KEISER

The chief interest of this week end's pair of concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra lies in the performance of Randall Thompson's Second Symphony. Composed 25 years ago and heard in Symphony Hall on three previous occasions, the work has not dated at all; in fact, judging by the numerous symphonies by other American composers heard during the intervening years, the symphony gains stature.

Mr. Thompson's vocabulary is an unusual one for a contemporary composer. He has not severed relations with those past idioms which have proved most useful and expressive; yet he uses them in such a way that they sound fresh and contemporary in spirit. Not only is his style intelligible but his great craftsmanship enables him to say exactly what he wants to in the simplest possible terms.

The Second Symphony is truly symphonic in its development; the themes grew logically and inevitably, dictating their ultimate form rather than having a kind of architecture forced upon them. The first movement energetically propells the listener to an eloquent climax and then paves the way for the second, a largo, a lengthy song of indescribable loveliness. The Scherzo contains some of the most toe-tapping rhythms in symphonic literature, and the finale is a forceful and noble declamation.

The concert opened with a perfunctory reading of Schubert's Fifth Symphony in B-flat and closed with Beethoven's Third Piano Concerto, with Claudio Arrau as soloist. In the concerto Mr. Munch and Mr. Arrau established some sort of slow motion record during the Largo, which threatened at any moment to sag to a dead stop from sheer inertia. The first movement had a kind of placid solemnity while the "gay" finale limped along without any particular distinction.

U.S. More Relaxed Than Europe, Says Symphony's Guest Maestro

By CYRUS DURGIN

Igor Markevitch is a Russian-born French musician who believes that America is now more the old world than Europe, and that life over here is much less nervous than that across the Atlantic. The short, very slim, dark-haired man, who will be guest conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra this week, arrived here the other night with his wife, who is Italian. They spent the week-end seeing historical spots, not omitting Lexington and Concord. Yesterday afternoon, chatting in a suite at the Ritz Carlton Hotel, they told about their impressions.

"Now that so much of Europe has been destroyed," smiled Mr. Markevitch, "I really feel that you have to come to America and a city like Boston to get the feel of settled tradition. Boston is much oldler, for example, than the present city of Rotterdam, which has had to be largely rebuilt since the war. And let me assure you that in the two weeks I have been in America, I have found life to be far less nervous and much more relaxed than in Europe. That is true even in New York."

About the Boston Symphony, with which he had his first rehearsal yesterday morning, the musician was rapturous.

"I had expected, naturally, to have to get acquainted with the players. But everything went so easily. There was no need for the visiting conductor to have to try to dominate. The orchestra responded beautifully and in a most friendly way. It has a tremendous efficiency. That is good, for I believe that the dominating, prima donna conductor is old-fashioned now.

Early Conducting Urged

"We conductors have never caught up with the progress the orchestra players have made in efficiency. We have never been able to reduce our work to a science and art which can be readily learned. As it is, conducting must be learned by the individual from his own experience. Oftentimes, he begins too late, so that he tires physically and that can have a slowing effect, as in the scherzo of Beethoven's Fifth Symphony. Children of 12 ought to be taught conducting, for then both their ears and their muscles can be developed the right way. Twenty-eight or 30 is too late. Fifteen to 18 would be an ideal age.

"I began as a composer, and I studied conducting because I felt that any composer ought to have direct contact with the actual production of music. As events turned out, I came to give almost all my time to conducting. I had gone to Florence to study the times of Lorenzo di Medici for a cantata I was writing, in 1940. When Italy declared war upon France, I was trapped there. In Florence I had a house quite close to that of the great art expert, Bernard Berenson, who, as you know, is very fond of America and especially Boston.

"Berenson used to tell me about Thomas Jefferson; he explained Jefferson's democratic ideals to me, and told me much about the United States. That, I think, was my basic preparation for coming to this country. I was also in touch with the Allied forces for I did underground work during the German occupation of Italy. So when Gen Clark's army arrived in Florence, they knew about me. They put me at the head of the Italian radio orchestra there, so I can say I owe my first permanent conducting job to the United States Army."

Modest Re: Own Works

Mr. Markevitch has not ceased to compose, but he finds very little time for creative work today. His last piece was an arrangement for a total orchestra of 45, of Bach's "The Musical Offering."

I asked him point-blank why he did not schedule some of his own music for performance while he is conducting the Boston Symphony. His thin face again broke into a self-deprecatory smile. "I don't like to use such a position to play my own music. I do not think it is right. Call it modesty, if you like. Anyway, there is so much other music to play."

Having had now considerable experience of orchestras in many places, Mr. Markevitch is inclined to believe that what he calls, with American practicality, "the team spirit" is more pronounced over here than in Europe—with certain notable exceptions.

Mr. Markevitch is married to a Roman lady. It was she, about seven years ago, who taught him English, which he now speaks with both fluency and command of everyday idioms. He also had some coaching from a brother of writer James Joyce. So perhaps the Markevitch proficiency may be credited in part to the purest English of all, the English spoken in Dublin.

Arrau Soloist at Symphony

Pianist Heard in Beethoven Concerto No. 3

By Harold Rogers

There is nothing indifferent about Claudio Arrau's playing. He is a pianist of extraordinary skill and musical perception. But otherwise the concert yesterday afternoon by the Boston Symphony Orchestra tended to leave the listener in a state of indifference.

The Schubert Symphony No. 5, which opened the Symphony Hall program, is a jewel of its kind, and Charles Munch's reading was certainly most pleasant. There was a casual air about it, however—amiable music for daydreaming on a balmy spring afternoon.

Randall Thompson's Symphony No. 2, composed in 1930-31, has had three former performances by the Boston Symphony, the most recent of which was in 1939. It suffers from belonging to one of America's most unsettled musical periods — the transitional state when composers were forsaking MacDowell's European romanticism and reaching forward to the authentic American speech enunciated by men like Harris, Copland, Creston, and Mennin. The most noteworthy composer of this in-between period was Gershwin. Composers made rather literal use of jazz and Negroid idioms, of hillbilly songs and hoedowns.

Mr. Thompson's symphony epitomizes this period, and the last three of its four movements especially are a repository of practically every folk idiom we posess. The first movement is the only one that has some genuine musical substance, but with the Largo we are instantly flooded with the sentimentality of the screen, western style, and from there on we are involved in a panorama of spirituals and cakewalks, and a finale that would represent either a sunrise or a sunset, depending on your viewpoint.

But Mr. Thompson's piece has historical interest. He is chairman of the music department of Harvard University. He has written much excellent music, more of which should be heard in our community. He was in the audience yesterday and rose to share the applause with Mr. Munch and the orchestra.

The Beethoven Piano Concerto No. 3, for which Mr. Arrau was the soloist, has also not been heard at these concerts since 1939. There's not a banal note in it, yet it hasn't the popularity of the First, Fourth, or Fifth.

The opening Allegro con brio is properly dramatic, yet it can't compare to the opening movement of the "Emperor." The middle Largo is filled with melodic charm and sincerity, yet it pales considerably in the light of the slow movement of the Fourth, one of the most inspired and inspiring movements in concerto literature. Only the final Rondo has the compelling vitality that saves the day.

But if Beethoven is not to be found in finest fettle here, surely the performance yesterday was above reproach. Mr. Arrau was dynamic in tone and temperament; but even more, he has an inward approach to the music that eschews mere technical display.

Mr. Munch, too, had his share in the success by again proving his remarkable ability as an accompanist. If Mr. Arrau wished to broaden a phrase, Mr. Munch saw to it that the orchestra was in instant accord. They gave us an expert and musicianly collaboration.

[7]

France-amérique

LE JOURNAL FRANÇAIS DES ETATS-UNIS

127 EAST 81ST STREET
NEW YORK 28, N. Y.
TEL. REGENT 7-9450

SELON une coutume élevée à la hauteur de dogme, toutes les fois que Charles Münch vient à New-York, entouré des splendides musiciens qui forment l'orchestre symphonique de Boston, le reste de l'activité musicale locale semble souffrir une éclipse temporaire, si grand est le prestige du célèbre chef d'orchestre français, si péremptoire la démonstration du bien-fondé de ce prestige.

On admire, chez certains artistes, la logique de leur exposé, la luminosité de leur analyse, leur respect du style, la précision de leurs exécutions — bref, tout ce qui est du ressort d'un cerveau érudit et bien organisé.

Chez d'autres, l'on admire les facteurs émotifs, tels qu'élan, ardeur, intensité, souvent, hélas! en opposition avec les éléments intellectuels cités plus haut. Rarement trouve-t-on réunis en un seul esprit ces deux aspects de la sensibilité artistique et alors, presque toujours, l'un prend le pas sur l'autre. Münch, lui, a pleinement réussi à en assurer l'équilibre, et ceci, au plus haut niveau culturel qu'on puisse imaginer. Il est devenu ainsi le parangon des vertus cardinales du parfait musicien et c'est pourquoi il nous "satisfait" avec une telle plénitude.

Dans ces conditions, il est à peine utile de s'attarder sur les détails de ses interprétations, qu'il s'agisse d'une Symphonie de Schumann ou de Brahms, de la "Water Music" de Haendel ou de l'éblouissante "Valse" de Ravel. Simple corollaire du fait que ces interprétations fussent conçues et réalisées par Charles Münch: elles sont "complètes".

— Suite de la page 9 —

En plus, M. Münch nous a fait faire la connaissance d'un ouvrage nouveau, en tous points remarquable: la VIème Symphonie du compositeur tchèque Bohuslav Martinu, écrite à la requête de l'Orchestre de Boston à l'occasion du 75ème anniversaire de cette institution.

M. Martinu est un compositeur prolifique doué d'une immense facilité qui lui permet de laisser la bride sur le cou à son inépuisable imagination, sans pourtant jamais avoir recours à l'artifice. En fait, il y a longtemps que M. Martinu n'avait produit un ouvrage aussi "direct", aussi concentré, aussi puissant. Utilisant toutes les ressources du vocabulaire harmonique moderne, il ne craint pas de se servir d'une mélodieuse séquence en sixtes ou d'un euphonique accord parfait si telles sont les exigences du discours musical.

CHARLES MÜNCH

par Edgard FEDER

Cette liberté dans le choix de ses moyens d'expression, alliée à une maîtrise transcendante du "métier" de compositeur, lui offre la possibilité de couvrir de vastes horizons expressifs et de bâtir un édifice solidement charpenté. L'atmosphère générale de l'ouvrage est plutôt sombre, avec quelques rares éclaircies seulement. Ceci ne nous suffit pourtant pas pour en conclure que l'auteur se souvient nostalgiquement de sa patrie perdue, bien que dans certains passages de la Symphonie, on retrouve des évocations de nature fo[illegible] que tchécoslovaque. M. M[illegible] écrit — fort bien, d'ailleurs — [illegible] de Saint-[illegible]quer l'en-[illegible]eurs.

musique pure et nous n'éprouvons nullement le besoin d'y chercher, pour mieux la comprendre et la savourer, quelque signification ésotérique.

Bien entendu, l'exécution magistrale de l'oeuvre sous la direction de Charles Münch a plus que largement contribué à l'éclatant succès de cette première audition.

Un autre élément du succès de ces concerts fut la présence sur l'estrade d'un soliste distingué, le célèbre pianiste Alexandre Braïlowsky, enfant gâté depuis plus de 25 ans des publics du monde entier et, particulièrement, des mélomanes parisiens — si blasés, si difficiles à contenter. Magnifiquement accompagné par l'orchestre de Boston et Charles Münch, M. Braïlowsky, virtuose étourdissant et musicien noble, généreux, poète,

---

Cir. (D 124,110) (S 382,056)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
MAR 27 1955

Man of the Y

Cir. (D 38,155)
This Clipping From
PAWTUCKET, R. I.
TIMES
MAR 30 1955

Music In Review

Boston Symphony Acclaimed At Final Concert In Series

The Boston Symphony Orchestra received a[illegible] night after the final concert of the Providence series in Veterans Memorial Auditorium. Charles Munch conducted the program which comprised Schubert's Fifth, Schumann's Fourth and Beethoven's Sixth Symphonies.

The Schubert was exquisitely played. There were no percussion instruments, and the only brass in this delicate work was two French horns. The first movement was pleasing in its joyousness, a lilting, almost rollicking, tempo. The second, a slow moving, andanted con moto, was deep and inspiring, filled with the full, mellow voices of the horns; a hymn of sedate simplicity.

The third movement, menuetto, was repetitious in its short, dainty themes, but delightful to hear, and the musicians thoroughly enjoyed playing it. The final movement, allegro vivace, was full of lilting little melodies, each one polished and flashing like the facets of a pure diamond.

The Schumann was magnificent and, at the end, brought loud and lengthy applause, and a few "bravos" from the more emotional listeners.

Woodwinds Open

The first movement, opened with the woodwinds, declaiming the theme soon to be joined by the brasses. It developed into a revel of joyous madness which filled the auditorium. The brasses shouted, the woodwinds hummed and whistled, the strings sang and spoke, the basses droned and the tympani laughed through it all.

The second began with a plaintive, then sad, refrain on the flutes and oboes in a solemn minor key. Then midway a beautiful fugue apeared on the first violin to be followed by the solemn theme sung by the woodwind voices.

The third was a scherzo, fast, and seemed to combine a gavotte and a bolero. Perhaps it was a joking, eccentric dance. It advanced, without pause into the finale which became riotous and explosive at the finish. And so was the applause, tumultuous and explosive. The musicians, when directed by Dr. Munch to stand, smiled their acknowledgement for the ovation.

Beethoven's 'Pastoral'

Beethoven's Sixth is rightfully called the "Pastoral." It opened like a quiet day in spring in a meadow where a brook runs and where the larks are singing. Its tempo was allegro ma non troppo and the grasses whispered, the trees talked and the brook hummed and roared at times.

The second movement was placid, andante with much motion. The breeze seemed to rise and fall, the flute called, the reeds sang and the brasses spoke. The dynamics were perfect in creating the impression of lazy, peaceful, murmuring pastoral life.

The third movement, allegro, was jocose and merry, a series of folk dances made up the first part of the movement. Then came the hint of a gathering storm, a threat of thunder and a whisper of rain. The whimpered bleating of the restless sheep could be heard; then the storm struck. It crashed and rumbled tempestuously and the sounds were hypnotic in frenzied intensity.

With reluctance, the roaring and shrieking wind diminished, the thunder receded, the rains gradually ceased. Then the grandeur of the sun and clear sky was pronounced by the glad voices of the instruments. It was one of the finest presentations of tonal coloring and descriptive expression of feeling ever written. It was painting with music and these musicians were master artists.

C.H.L.

Cir. (D 142,658)
This Clipping From
PROVIDENCE, R. I.
BULLETIN
MAR 30 1955

Music

The Boston Symphony Orc[illegible] conductor, presented the final[illegible] last evening at Veterans' Memo[illegible] concert featured three sympho[illegible] Schumann's No. 4 and Beetho[illegible] familiar, melodious fare for [illegible] audience.

The playing was marked by [illegible] vitality of rhythm and perfect[illegible] The listeners showed a decid[illegible] Schumann work and the orches[illegible] tion after its performance. Dr.[illegible] ers in a peaceful mood after an[illegible] of Beethoven's "Pastorale."

Cir. (D 21,689)
This Clipping From SALEM, MASS.
NEWS
MAR 18 1955

CONGRATULATIONS ARE IN ORDER

Charles Munch (left), conductor of the Boston Symphony orchestra, and [illegible] Wallace Woodworth in a happy mood following [illegible] appearance with the orchestra of the combined [illegible] Glee club-Radcliffe Choral society chorus, [illegible] Woodworth le[illegible] Berlioz' "Dam[illegible] in two cons[illegible]phony hall in Bost[illegible]ir at Carnegie [illegible]w York and one each [illegible]cton, Brooklyn and New Haven, they captivated [illegible] audiences without exception. The North Shore public will have an opporunity to hear the two college singing groups in a concert at the new Memorial Junior High school in Beverly next Friday night at 8.30. Tickets will be on sale at the door.

Cir. (D 131,670) (S 256,529)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
MAR 31 1955

Symphony Friends Donate $136,213

Friends of the Boston Symphony Orchestra last year contributed $136,213 to the orchestra, Dr. Palfrey Perkins, president, announced yesterday at a meeting of 1000 "Friends" in Symphony Hall.

A total of 82 Boston and New England business firms were among the donors.

Henry B. Cabot praised Charles Munch's role in maintaining the Boston Symphony at its world-famous high standards. He announced that a special 75th anniversary observance will be held next year, with guest conductors including Pierre Monteux, Leonard Bernstein, Ernest Ansermet and Arthur Fiedler.

[8]

France-amérique
LE JOURNAL FRANÇAIS DES ETATS-UNIS
127 EAST 81ST STREET
NEW YORK 28, N. Y.
TEL. REGENT 7-9450

SELON une coutume élevée à la hauteur de dogme, toutes les fois que Charles Münch vient à New-York, entouré des splendides musiciens qui forment l'orchestre symphonique de Boston, le reste de l'activité musicale locale semble souffrir une éclipse temporaire, si grand est le prestige du célèbre chef d'orchestre français, si péremptoire la démonstration du bien-fondé de ce prestige.

On admire, chez certains artistes, la logique de leur exposé, la luminosité de leur analyse, leur respect du style, la précision de leurs exécutions — bref, tout ce qui est du ressort d'un cerveau érudit et bien organisé.

Chez d'autres, l'on admire les facteurs émotifs, tels qu'élan, ardeur, intensité, souvent, hélas! en opposition avec les éléments intellectuels cités plus haut. Rarement trouve-t-on réunis en un seul esprit ces deux aspects de la sensibilité artistique et alors, presque toujours, l'un prend le pas sur l'autre. Münch, lui, a pleinement réussi à en assurer l'équilibre, et ceci, au plus haut niveau culturel qu'on puisse imaginer. Il est devenu ainsi le parangon des vertus cardinales du parfait musicien et c'est pourquoi il nous "satisfait" avec une telle plénitude.

Dans ces conditions, il est à peine utile de s'attarder sur les détails de ses interprétations, qu'il s'agisse d'une Symphonie de Schumann ou de Brahms, de la "Water Music" de Haendel ou de l'éblouissante "Valse" de Ravel. Simple corollaire du fait que ces interprétations fussent conçues et réalisées par Charles Münch: elles sont "complètes".

— Suite de la page 9 —

En plus, M. Münch nous a fait faire la connaissance d'un ouvrage nouveau, en tous points remarquable: la VIème Symphonie du compositeur tchèque Bohuslav Martinu, écrite à la requête de l'Orchestre de Boston à l'occasion du 75ème anniversaire de cette institution.

M. Martinu est un compositeur prolifique doué d'une immense facilité qui lui permet de laisser la bride sur le cou à son inépuisable imagination, sans pourtant jamais avoir recours à l'artifice. En fait, il y a longtemps que M. Martinu n'avait produit un ouvrage aussi "direct", aussi concentré, aussi puissant. Utilisant toutes les ressources du vocabulaire harmonique moderne, il ne craint pas de se servir d'une mélodieuse séquence en sixtes ou d'un euphonique accord parfait si telles sont les exigences du discours musical.

CHARLES MÜNCH

par Edgard FEDER

Cette liberté dans le choix de ses moyens d'expression, alliée à une maîtrise transcendante du "métier" de compositeur, lui offre la possibilité de couvrir de vastes horizons expressifs et de bâtir un édifice solidement charpenté. L'atmosphère générale de l'ouvrage est plutôt sombre, avec quelques rares éclaircies seulement. Ceci ne nous suffit pourtant pas pour en conclure que l'auteur se souvient nostalgiquement de sa patrie perdue, bien que dans certains passages de la Symphonie, on retrouve des évocations de nature folklorique tchécoslovaque. M. Martinu écrit — fort bien, d'ailleurs — de la musique pure et nous n'éprouvons nullement le besoin d'y chercher, pour mieux la comprendre et la savourer, quelque signification ésotérique.

Bien entendu, l'exécution magistrale de l'oeuvre sous la direction de Charles Münch a plus que largement contribué à l'éclatant succès de cette première audition.

Un autre élément du succès de ces concerts fut la présence sur l'estrade d'un soliste distingué, le célèbre pianiste Alexandre Braïlowsky, enfant gâté depuis plus de 25 ans des publics du monde entier et, particulièrement, des mélomanes parisiens — si blasés, si difficiles à contenter. Magnifiquement accompagné par l'orchestre de Boston et Charles Münch, M. Braïlowsky, virtuose étourdissant et musicien noble, généreux, poète, joue le IVème Concerto de Saint-Saëns de manière à provoquer l'enthousiasme de ses auditeurs.

Cir. (D 38,155)
This Clipping From
PAWTUCKET, R. I.
TIMES
MAR 30 1955

Music In Review

Boston Symphony

GO TO GERBER'S PERFECT GIFT...
FOR HER LIGHTER
MIXING NEEDS

Cir. (D 124,110) (S 382,056)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
MAR 27 1955

Man of the Year in Music

Chosen "Man of the Year in Music" was Dr. Charles Munch, director of Boston Symphony Orchestra, second right, presented with plaque as result of second annual survey conducted by Good Listening Magazine. Left to right are Thomas D. Perry Jr., Boston Symphony Orchestra manager; Jerome Rosenfeld, Good Listening publisher; Dr. Munch and Parker Wheatley, general manager of Symphony radio station.

Cir. (D 142,658)
This Clipping From
PROVIDENCE, R. I.
BULLETIN
MAR 30 1955

Music

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, conductor, presented the final concert of its series last evening at Veterans' Memorial Auditorium. The concert featured three symphonies. Schubert's No. 5, Schumann's No. 4 and Beethoven's No. 6, provided familiar, melodious fare for the large enthusiastic audience.

The playing was marked by beauty of tone color, vitality of rhythm and perfection of interpretation. The listeners showed a decided preference for the Schumann work and the orchestra was given an ovation after its performance. Dr. Munch left his listeners in a peaceful mood after an artistic interpretation of Beethoven's "Pastorale."

Cir. (D 131,670) (S 258,629)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
MAR 31 1955

Symphony Friends Donate $136,213

Friends of the Boston Symphony Orchestra last year contributed $136,213 to the orchestra, Dr. Palfrey Perkins, president, announced yesterday at a meeting of 1000 "Friends" in Symphony Hall.

A total of 82 Boston and New England business firms were among the donors.

Henry B. Cabot praised Charles Munch's role in maintaining the Boston Symphony at its world-famous high standards. He announced that a special 75th anniversary observance will be held next year, with guest conductors including Pierre Monteux, Leonard Bernstein, Ernest Ansermet and Arthur Fiedler.

CONGRATULATIONS ARE IN ORDER

Charles Munch (left), conductor of the Boston Sympathy orchestra, and L. Wallace, Woodworth in a happy mood following recent appearance with the orchestra of the combined Harvard Glee club-Radcliffe Choral society chorus, Prof. Woodworth leading. Offering Berlioz' "Dam[illegible]" in two concerts at Symphony hall in Bost[illegible] pair at Carnegie [illegible] New York and one each [illegible]ston, Brooklyn and New Haven, they captivated critics and audiences without exception. The North Shore public will have an opporunity to hear the two college singing groups in a concert at the new Memorial Junior High school in Beverly next Friday night at 8.30. Tickets will be on sale at the door.

[8]

MAR 27 1955

An Invaluable Book

Charles Munch Tells All About How to Conduct

I AM A CONDUCTOR, by Charles Munch. Translated from French by Leonard Burkat. (Oxford.)

John N. Burk of the Boston Symphony writes the foreword and, also of the Symphony, Burkat—no relation—does an introduction, as well as the translation.

In this short book Munch writes about apprenticeship, becoming a conductor, making a program, studying scores, rehearsing, the concert itself, and the musician's and the conductor's life. (An appendix lists works he has played in his five years as Boston conductor, and there is a gratifyingly large percentage of contemporary, including American, compositions.)

Technically this is an invaluable book; if you plan to conduct, read this first. Or if you go to concerts, by all means read it. Or if you just like books, read it; it pretends to so little, it amounts to so much, for it is simple, honest and eloquent.

But Munch has a subject which is bigger than craft; it is spirit. It's the aware, dedicated, indeed devout spirit of the total musician. He speaks of the "priesthood" of orchestra players; he is their bishop, their pope. The man with the baton has rarely been served so well by the man with the pen.—Associated Press.

This Clipping From NORTH ADAMS, MASS.
TRANSCRIPT
MAR 30 1955

Boston Symphony Conductor Munch Author of Book

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony orchestra and of the Berkshire festival and Berkshire Music center at Tanglewood, Lenox, is author of "I Am a Conductor," published on March 31 by the Oxford University Press, New York.

The book first appeared in France last summer as part of a series in which leading members of the professions describe their work—Dior on dress design, Honegger on being a composer, and many more.

"I Am a Conductor" is a personal view of a difficult art. It is not a text book on how to conduct but tells of what goes into making a conducting career. Munch describes his youth in a musical household where Albert Schweitzer was an intimate; his years of apprenticeship and how he became a conductor; the technical and esthetic problems of program, score, rehearsal and concert; the musician's life and the conductor's life.

The book is translated by Leonard Burkat of the Boston Symphony orchestra staff, whose 25 page introduction is the first full-length portrait of Charles Munch in English.

Cir. (D 12,308)

This Clipping From
NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE
MAR 30 1955

Charles Munch Book Is Out

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is author of "I Am a Conductor" published by the Oxford University Press, New York. The book first appeared in France last summer as part of a series in which leading members of the professions describe their work—Dior on dress design, Honegger on being a composer, and many more.

"I Am a Conductor" is a personal view of a difficult art. It is not a textbook on how to conduct but tells of what goes into making a conducting career. Munch describes his youth in a musical household where Albert Schweitzer was an intimate; his years of apprenticeship and how he became a conductor; the technical and esthetic problems of program, score, rehearsal and concert; the musician's life and the conductor's life.

The book is translated by Leonard Burkat of the Boston Symphony Orchestra staff, whose 25 page introduction is the first full-length portrait of Charles Munch in English.

Cir. (D 96,447)

This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES
APR 2 - 1955

Casella's Story That of Italy's Music; Munch Discloses Spirit of Conductor

By CARL E. LINDSTROM

Cir. (6,253)

This Clipping From
RETAIL BOOKSELLER
HILLSIDE, N. J.
APR - 1955

I AM A CONDUCTOR $2.75 G
Charles Munch Oxford
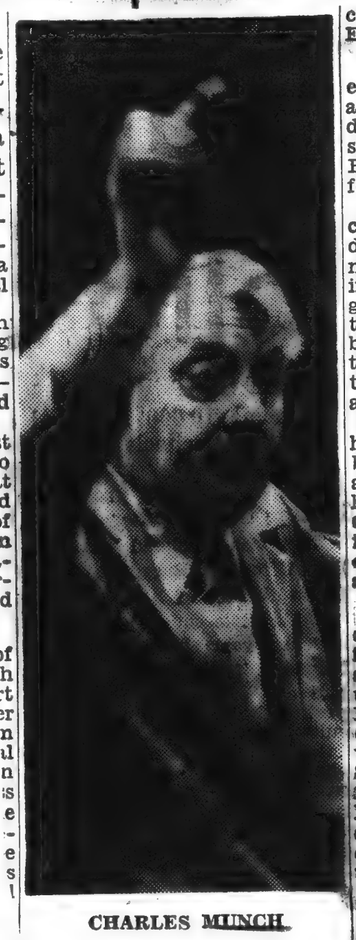
The conductor of the Boston Symphony writes of his training in Strasbourg, his first real experience as a conductor in Leipzig, his teaching at the Paris Conservatory, and particularly of those things which must be mastered in order to become a great conductor.
Mar. 31. 55-7675

Cir. (49,960)

This Clipping From
THE ARGONAUT
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.
APR 1 - 1955

In what is called "a personal view of a difficult art and profession," conductor Charles Munch of the Boston Symphony Orchestra writes about himself and about the rewards and problems of being a conductor. I Am a Conductor will be an Oxford University Press publication.

* * *



CHARLES MUNCH

PROBABLY NO conductor ever was faced with so difficult a job as Charles Munch had the day he succeeded Serge Koussevitzky who had directed the Boston Symphony Orchestra for a quarter of a century.

Koussevitzky, who had an exceedingly large and fanatically devoted personal following, was not at all averse to social lionizing and was as accessible as a great artist can be. Munch, retiring to the point of shyness, brought with him, besides something of an international reputation, only his dedicated artistry and gift of leadership.

These qualities won, but he has not been easy to know. If a book will help, there is now available a slender volume from his own hand called "I Am a Conductor" (Oxford, $2.75) but its most illuminating part is the extensive introduction by Leonard Burkat.

* * *

MUNCH, who has been credited with a special affinity for French music of all eras, is an Alsatian, born and brought up in Strasbourg in the Protestant faith and nurtured culturally on Bach. His uncle was the organ teacher of Albert Schweitzer. He himself played for eight years in the Gewandhaus Orchestra, sacred to Mendelssohnian tardition. He had no escape from being drafted into the German army.

* * *

HIS OWN PART of the book is a eulogium of the conductor's calling. He recites the sacrifices, the taxing physical demands, the even more searching requirements of musicianship. He tells how to build a program, conduct a rehearsal, to win and maintain the respect of the players.

Here the man whose back is turned to us during the grandeurs of symphonic experience reports to us just what he is facing.

Incidentally, Paris maintains five symphony orchestras and Munch tells us that when the players share the profits at the end of the year, "after a full season of rehearsals and concerts, each one had earned the equivalent of $1.45 per service cannot be confused with other European styles."

* * *

PROBABLY NO conductor ever was faced with so difficult a job as Charles Munch had the day he succeeded Serge Koussevitzky who had directed the Boston Symphony Orchestra for a quarter of a century.

Koussevitzky, who had an exceedingly large and fanatically devoted personal following, was not at all averse to social lionizing and was as accessible as a great artist can be. Munch, retiring to the point of shyness, brought with him, besides something of an international reputation, only his dedicated artistry and gift of leadership.

These qualities won, but he has not been easy to know. If a book will help, there is now available a slender volume from his own hand called "I Am a Conductor" (Oxford, $2.75) but its most illuminating part is the extensive introduction by Leonard Burkat.

* * *

MUNCH, who has been credited with a special affinity for French music of all eras, is an Alsatian, born and brought up in Strasbourg in the Protestant faith and nurtured culturally on Bach. His uncle was the organ teacher of Albert Schweitzer. He himself played for eight years in the Gewandhaus Orchestra, sacred to Mendelssohnian tardition. He had no escape from being drafted into the German army.

* * *

HIS OWN PART of the book is a eulogium of the conductor's calling. He recites the sacrifices, the taxing physical demands, the even more searching requirements of musicianship. He tells how to build a program, conduct a rehearsal, to win and maintain the respect of the players.

Here the man whose back is turned to us during the grandeurs of symphonic experience reports to us just what he is facing.

Incidentally, Paris maintains five symphony orchestras and Munch tells us that when the players share the profits at the end of the year, "after a full season of rehearsals and concerts, each one had earned the equivalent of $1.45 per service

---

Cir. (D 275,045)

This Clipping From
BUFFALO, N. Y.
NEWS
APR 2 - 1955

Orchestra Conductor Explains His Magic

I AM A CONDUCTOR, by Charles Munch. Translated from the French by Leonard Burkat; Oxford, 104 pp., $2.75.

How well can an audience come to know a conductor? Mostly, it sees his back, but, as Mr. Munch points out, seeing is not what counts. From John N. Burk's foreward to "I Am A Conductor."

TO THE AVERAGE audience— and Mr. Munch is writing for an average audience — an orchestra conductor is a mysterious hierophant describing cabalistic gestures on the air; a magician, even to the point of working his magic, like a wizard, with a wand.

In "I Am a Conductor," a most disarmingly candid and strangely attractive little book, Charles Munch, Alsatian-born successor to Serge Koussevitzky as conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, turns his face full to the audience and, without a vestige of pretense, swank, or mystification, unlocks for us some of the secrets of a conductor's career.

Maestro Munch—to say maestro spares one the task of deciding whether he should be rightly addressed as Herr or Monsieur — here strikes a pretty balance between common sense and rigorous idealism. He describes his profession as "a sacred calling, sometimes a priesthood, and often even a disease — a disease from which the only escape is death." The conductor's medium is "not speech but gesture, posture, telepathy."

* * *

WHILE HE MUST always remember to respect the precious human individuality of each separate musician, the orchestra itself becomes for him a sort of miraculous piano, each single key "a living thing." But success must always transcend technique. Each musician "bears within him a little of the supernatural as well . . . The highest purpose of the conductor is to release this superhuman potential in every one of his musicians."

Considering his ultimate profession, Charles Munch began life with certain great advantages. For one thing, he was born in Strasbourg where the great worlds of French and German culture meet, so that he was later able to unite within himself Gallic lucidity and cloud-marbled German romanticism. For another, the Lutheran church, where his father served as choirmaster, had Albert Schweitzer for its organist, an association which has meant much for Munch's spiritual as well as musical development.

Munch's views on program-making and score-analysis are sure to fascinate the lay mind.

To justify his fondness for conducting contemporary music, he quotes Saint-Saens: "The two kinds of music are not the contemporary and the other kind but the good and the other." He hears the scores he reads, if they happen to be classic scores; newer idioms take a great deal of getting used to. While he conducts he sees colors, landscapes, visual images—sometimes, as in Debussy's La Mer, "visual impressions that the composer had no intention of arousing."

* * *

MUNCH DEMONSTRATES a flair for pithy apothegm. What about the critics? With a winning Gallic shrug, he disposes of the critics: ". . . if you interpret music as you feel it, with ardor and faith, with all your heart and with complete conviction, I am certain that even if the critics attack you, God will forgive you." Regarding the limits of personal esthetic in interpretation, he makes this point:

We often hear said these days, speaking of the Fifth Symphony by Beethoven, 'Have you heard X's Fifth Symphony?' or 'Y's Fifth Symphony?' X and Y being conductors famous for the whimsy of their interpretations. I find this very distressing. I am interested in Beethoven's Fifth.

As he drives along the Charles River, Charles Munch likes to remark of his adopted city: C'est agreable, Boston." George Apley's eternal city has had many things said about it in its long day, but never before just this. The remark casts a certain light on Charles Munch. I think the reader of "I Am A Conductor" is inclined to return the compliment and murmur: C'est agreable, Charles Munch."

Cir. (D 55,727) (S 63,592)

This Clipping From
SHREVEPORT, LA.
TIMES
MAR 2[illegible] 1955

An Invaluable Book

Charles Munch Tells All About How to Conduct

I AM A CONDUCTOR, by Charles Munch. Translated from French by Leonard Burkat. (Oxford.)

John N. Burk of the Boston Symphony writes the foreword and, also of the Symphony, Burkat—no relation—does an introduction [illegible] as the translation.

In this [illegible] writes about [illegible] becoming a conductor, making a program, studying a score, rehearsing, the concert itself, and the musician's and the conductor's life. (An appendix lists works he has played in his five years as Boston conductor, and there is a gratifyingly large percentage of contemporary, including American, compositions.)

Technically this is an invaluable book; if you plan to conduct, read this first. Or if you go to concerts, by all means read it. Or if you just like books, read it; it pretends to so little, it amounts to so much, for it is simple, honest and eloquent.

But Munch has a subject which is bigger than craft; it is spirit. It's the aware, dedicated, indeed devout spirit of the total musician. He speaks of the "priesthood" of orchestra players; he is their bishop, their pope. The man with the baton has rarely been served so well by the man with the pen.—Associated Press.

This Clipping From NORTH ADAMS, MASS.
TRANSCRIPT
MAR 30 1955

Boston Symphony Conductor Munch Author of Book

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony orchestra and of the Berkshire festival and Berkshire Music center at Tanglewood, Lenox, is author of "I Am a Conductor," published on March 31 by the Oxford University Press, New York.

The book first appeared in France last summer as part of a series in which leading members of the professions describe their work—Dior on dress design, Honegger on being a composer, and many more.

"I Am a Conductor" is a personal view of a difficult art. It is not a text book on how to conduct but tells of what goes into making a conducting career. Munch describes his youth in a musical household where Albert Schweitzer was an intimate; his years of apprenticeship and how he became a conductor; the technical and esthetic problems of program, score, rehearsal and concert; the musician's life and the conductor's life.

The book is translated by Leonard Burkat of the Boston Symphony orchestra staff, whose 25 page introduction is the first full-length portrait of Charles Munch in English.

Cir. (D 12,308)

This Clipping From
NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE
MAR 30 1955

Charles Munch Book Is Out

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is author of "I Am a Conductor" published by the Oxford University Press, New York. The book first appeared in France last summer as part of a series in which leading members of the professions describe their work—Dior on dress design, Honegger on being a composer, and many more.

"I Am a Conductor" is a personal view of a difficult art. It is not a textbook on how to conduct but tells of what goes into making a conducting career. Munch describes his youth in a musical household where Albert Schweitzer was an intimate; his years of apprenticeship and how he became a conductor; the technical and esthetic problems of program, score, rehearsal and concert; the musician's life and the conductor's life.

The book is translated by Leonard Burkat of the Boston Symphony Orchestra staff, whose 25 page introduction is the first full-length portrait of Charles Munch in English.

Cir. (D 275,045)

This Clipping From
BUFFALO, N. Y.
NEWS
APR 2 1955

Orchestra Conductor Explains His Magic

I AM A CONDUCTOR, by Charles Munch. Translated from the French by Leonard Burkat; Oxford, 104 pp., $2.75.

How well can an audience come to know a conductor? Mostly, it sees his back, but, as Mr. Munch points out, seeing is not what counts. From John N. Burk's foreward to "I Am A Conductor."

TO THE AVERAGE audience—and Mr. Munch is writing for an average audience—an orchestra conductor is a mysterious hierophant describing cabalistic gestures on the air; a magician, even to the point of working his magic, like a wizard, with a wand.

In "I Am a Conductor," a most disarmingly candid and strangely attractive little book, Charles Munch, Alsatian-born successor to Serge Koussevitzky as conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, turns his [illegible] to the audience and, without a vestige of pretense, swank, or mystification, unlocks for us some of the secrets of a conductor's career.

Maestro Munch—to say maestro spares one the task of deciding whether he should be rightly addressed as Herr or Monsieur — here strikes a pretty balance between common sense and rigorous idealism. He describes his profession as "a sacred calling, sometimes a priesthood, and often even a disease — a disease from which the only escape is death." The conductor's medium is "not speech but gesture, posture, telepathy."

* * *

WHILE HE MUST always remember to respect the precious human individuality of each separate musician, the orchestra itself becomes for him a sort of miraculous piano, each single key "a living thing." But success must always transcend technique. Each musician "bears within him a little of the supernatural as well . . . The highest purpose of the conductor is to release this superhuman potential in every one of his musicians."

Considering his ultimate profession, Charles Munch began life with certain great advantages. For one thing, he was born in Strasbourg where the great worlds of French and German culture meet, so that he was later able to unite within himself Gallic lucidity and cloud-marbled German romanticism. For another, the Lutheran church, where his father served as choirmaster, had Albert Schweitzer for its organist, an association which has meant much for Munch's spiritual as well as musical development.

Munch's views on program-making and score-analysis are sure to fascinate the lay mind.

To justify his fondness for conducting contemporary music, he quotes Saint-Saens: "The two kinds of music are not the contemporary and the other kind but the good and the other." He hears the scores he reads, if they happen to be classic scores; newer idioms take a great deal of getting used to. While he conducts he sees colors, landscapes, visual images—sometimes, as in Debussy's La Mer, "visual impressions that the composer had no intention of arousing."

* * *

MUNCH DEMONSTRATES a flair for pithy apothegm. What about the critics? With a winning Gallic shrug, he disposes of the critics: "... if you interpret music as you feel it, with ardor and faith, with all your heart and with complete conviction, I am certain that even if the critics attack you, God will forgive you."

Regarding the limits of personal esthetic in interpretation, he makes this point:

"We often hear said these days, speaking of the Fifth Symphony by Beethoven, 'Have you heard X's Fifth Symphony?' or 'Y's Fifth Symphony?' X and Y being conductors famous for the whimsy of their interpretations. I find this very distressing. I am interested in Beethoven's Fifth."

As he drives along the Charles River, Charles Munch likes to remark of his adopted city: C'est agreable, Boston." George Apley's eternal city has had many things said about it in its long day, but never before just this. The remark casts a certain light on Charles Munch. I think the reader of "I Am A Conductor" is inclined to return the compliment and murmur: C'est agreable, Charles Munch."

Cir. (D 46,447)

This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES
APR 2 - 1955

Casella's Story That of Italy's Music; Munch Discloses Spirit of Conductor

By CARL E. LINDSTROM

Cir. (6,253)

This Clipping From
RETAIL BOOKSELLER
HILLSIDE, N. J.
APR - 1955

I AM A CONDUCTOR — $2.75 G
Charles Munch — Oxford

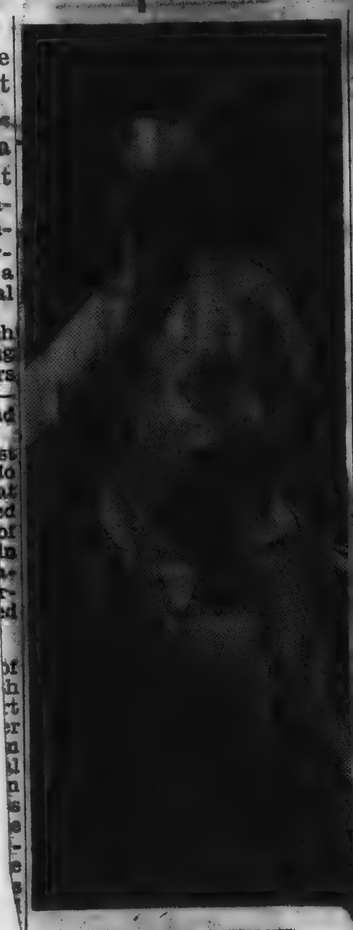
The conductor of the Boston Symphony writes of his training in Strasbourg, his first real experience as a conductor in Leipzig, his teaching at the Paris Conservatory, and particularly of those things which must be mastered in order to become a great conductor.

Mar. 31. 55-7675

Cir. (49,960)

This Clipping From
THE ARGONAUT
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.
APR 1 - 1955

In what is called "a personal view of a difficult art and profession," conductor Charles Munch of the Boston Symphony Orchestra writes about himself and about the rewards and problems of being a conductor. I Am a Conductor will be an Oxford University Press publication.



CHARLES MUNCH

de st
Th
a ut nra al ch ng rs d st lo ad
gn rd pr ht rn ls s e
a r
n

cannot be confused with other European styles."

PROBABLY NO conductor ever was faced with so difficult a job as Charles Munch had the day he succeeded Serge Koussevitzky who had directed the Boston Symphony Orchestra for a quarter of a century.

Koussevitzky, who had an exceedingly large and fanatically devoted personal following, was not at all averse to social lionizing and was as accessible as a great artist can be. Munch, retiring to the point of shyness, brought with him, besides something of an international reputation, only his dedicated artistry and gift of leadership.

These qualities won, but he has not been easy to know. If a book will help, there is now available a slender volume from his own hand called "I Am a Conductor" (Oxford, $2.75) but its most illuminating part is the extensive introduction by Leonard Burkat.

* * *

MUNCH, who has been credited with a special affinity for French music of all eras, is an Alsatian, born and brought up in Strasbourg in the Protestant faith and nurtured culturally on Bach. His uncle was the organ teacher of Albert Schweitzer. He himself played for eight years in the Gewandhaus Orchestra, sacred to Mendelssohnian tardition. He had no escape from being drafted into the German army.

* * *

HIS OWN PART of the book is a eulogium of the conductor's calling. He recites the sacrifices [illegible] taxing physical demands, [illegible] even more searching requirements of musicianship. He [illegible] to build a program, conduct a rehearsal, to win and maintain the respect of the players.

Here the man whose back is turned to us during the grandeurs of symphonic experience reports to us just what he is facing.

Incidentally, Paris maintains five symphony orchestras and Munch tells us that when the players share the profits at the end of the year, "after a full season of rehearsals and concerts, each one has earned the equivalent of $1.45 per ser[illegible]

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
APR 2 - 1955

Books

Munch Writes of His Profession

I AM A CONDUCTOR. By Charles Munch. Oxford University Press. New York, 1955. 104 pp. $2.75.

Reviewed by
JAY C. ROSENFELD

CHARLES MUNCH'S short book "I Am a Conductor" needs to be read twice: Once for the enjoyment of his personal story, the admonitions to apprentice-conductors and the interesting insight for laymen into the profession; a second time, to double-check the writer and his words. No one doubts that Munch knows his metier and he makes evident here that he is, as we know, a humble and unassuming man in music's service, but the question is: Is this a report on his career or a guide book benefiting from and relying on his many years' experience?

Munch's comments on conducting naturally are interesting, especially on the technique. His observations on using the right hand for tempo, the left for color, on the use of a baton, on swinging both arms in unison, on preparing a rehearsal and the subsequent concert, conducting from memory, mimicking an instrument, are genuine and valid. They often debunk the aura of glamor which the career of chef d'orchestre has acquired, except that Munch does not invariably abide by his own rules. Let it be said at once, however, that Munch himself uses no tricks on the podium designed other than for the music, and he therefore has a right to hold up to bright lights, if not for mild ridicule, certain of his confreres whose motives are not so pure.

* * *

BUT WHILE his commentary and anecdotes are revealing and instructive, it seems to us he has magnified the problems and responsibilities of his job. True, it is no post that can be adequately filled at a moment's notice although there are, if the truth were known, nearly a hundred aspirants in every hundred-man orchestra, but the cardinal factor which Munch ignores is that a good orchestra keeps to the road with very little steering. In fact, too many performances everywhere are not directed by the man standing before the orchestra. Sixteen final bars of frenetic tympani and exhausted brasses are too often the popular measure of a public's esteem.

The book is a scant hundred pages, while the introduction by Leonard Burkat, who also translated the book, is well over 20 pages, but there is substance on every page. Munch's consideration that "every performance is a combat of uncertain outcome" is not only true but probably is the essence of the lure of music, and specifically, conducting. Every program is an adventure. He thinks that "feelings must be made to reach an extreme of intensity." The conductor should not be "a traffic officer directing lanes of music through a complicated intersection, or making certain that orders previously given are meticulously observed," but he is distressed, and rightly so, at the custom in some places to speak of "X's fifth," or "Y's fifth." Munch believes it should be Beethoven's fifth, and his conducting supports that contention, that we can avow.

* * *

THE SHORT chapter devoted to his personal career is well told and is of extraordinary interest. He has lived and mingled with the musical elite of this century. His estimate of orchestral musicians in general and of the life of an average musician is not enticing. Speaking of the Europe and the Paris he knows best, he paints a discouraging picture for the common practitioner while, in a previous chapter, he has spoken of the elevating aspects of his particular niche.

Munch served in orchestral ranks for many years before he stepped forward to the podium. He speaks of the conservatory students who console themselves: "If I do not succeed at my instrument, I can become a conductor," and who find it is neither attainable or, even if so, not quite so simple. He might have continued his syllogism: "Failing that, I might finally have become a critic," for his opinion of that species is not flattering, but his discernment of many aspects of his task is keen. For instance, his statement that it is "a mistake to believe that a rehearsal is only for the orchestra and not for the conductor" is an indication of his true humility. His remarks on the attitude of a conductor toward the players at a rehearsal reveal the working musician, the colleague and not the martinet. His depreciatory attitude toward the practice of passing oneself off "as specialist in some particular piece or in one composer" bears scrutiny as does his opinion "that 'evenings' and 'festivals' of a single composer are very much overdone these days." This all exhibits sound judgment but here, as in other places, you will be turning to the front of the book to see who's writing it.

A short foreword by John N. Burke, writer of the notes of the Boston Symphony Orchestra programs, explains that Munch, "hardly a man of many words," would probably not have thought to discuss or analyze his profession at book length, had a publisher not talked him into doing it as part of a series of books which appeared last year in France personalizing the professions in which Dior described dress designing and Honegger wrote on composing. Munch has no desire to seek more recognition or to call attention to his successes.

A useful appendix to the book listing the repertoire of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the five seasons Munch has been its musical director requires 10 pages.

Cir. (D 503,999) (S 1,096,738)
This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
APR 3 - 1955

Behind the Baton

I AM A CONDUCTOR. By Charles Munch. Translated from the French by Leonard Burkat. 104 pp. New York: Oxford University Press. $2.75.

By MARK SCHUBART

IN this unpretentious volume Charles Munch, distinguished conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, sets forth at least a portion of his credo. Written with high sentiment, "I Am a Conductor" describes in capsule form some of Mr. Munch's musical experiences, his rise to fame as a conductor and his views on the delicate relationship between the conductor, the musician and the world of high art in which he functions. It is a surprisingly gentle book, since its author takes a somewhat detached view of the great and conflicting issues in the world of art today. In fact, one has the impression that it is the work of a man somewhat hors de combat by reason of his distinguished position and seniority in the field.

"Let no one be astonished then that I consider my work a priesthood, not a profession," says Mr. Munch. "It is not too strong a word. And like all sacred callings, that of the conductor supposes a total self-renunciation and a profound humility." One wonders whether other conductors grappling with the intricacies of boards of directors, publicity machinery, scheduling problems, personnel problems, broadcasting and recording are able to maintain such an exalted view of a career which has such thoroughly practical and devastatingly realistic aspects.

IN much of Mr. Munch's writing one discerns a somewhat naive conception of the musical world and the people who inhabit it. "How many pianists and violinists and other instrumentalists of all kinds vegetating in the conservatories console themselves with 'If I do not succeed at my instrument, I can become a conductor.' In truth they sometimes do. But they soon discover that with less than exceptional natural gifts, a conductor must acquire a technique that cannot be improvised." Perhaps in Mr. Munch's native France this sentiment is conceivable. But, having had some experience with young musicians, and particularly with conservatory students, I think there is an extensive realization of the tremendously difficult role of the conductor.

IT is, I suppose, inevitable that autobiographical notes be judged, at least to some extent, against the background of its author's achievements. In Mr. Munch's case, what he says in his book is on the whole borne out by his achievements in life. There is, however, one major exception—somewhat platitudinous remarks with regard to the duties of the conductor in regard to the performance of contemporary music. One hopes that the future will see a more courageous stand on Mr. Munch's part in regard to exploring the product of today's composers, and particularly those of the United States.

"Young musicians always want to create a movement at any cost," says Mr. Munch, "and they always want to impose it on others. They try to do so with ardor and often with insolence, with the expectation of freeing themselves from a past they scorn and disdain, and without the smallest concern for the masters who also sought, struggled and suffered."

This highly romantic view creates, to me at least, a most unfair and inaccurate picture of our young musicians. I have yet to encounter a gifted young composer — or conductor, for that matter—who does not revere and respect most of the great works of the repertory. All too often, alas, the more mature musician interprets the seeking for something new as a rejection of everything that has gone before. Since Mr. Munch includes such a statement in his book, one wonders if additional contact with the younger generation of musicians of our time might not change his point of view.

It is generally agreed that even when an artist reaches maturity he needs continuing nourishment for future growth. At least part of this nourishment can only be obtained by coming to grips with the challenging future as fearlessly as with the less controversial past. Mr. Munch has so much to offer that is soundly constructive, that one regrets all the more the impression he—no doubt unwittingly—gives of having isolated himself to some extent from the concerns of the next generation which are, after all, his own as well.

A former music critic, Mr. Schubart is now dean of the Juilliard School of Music.

(Continued on Page 37

Charles Munch

APRIL 3, 1955

Cir. (14,819)
This Clipping From
PUBLISHER'S WEEKLY
NEW YORK, N. Y.
APR 2 - 1955

MUNCH, Charles ★MUS

I am a conductor; tr. [from the French] by Leonard Burkat. 137p. front. (por.) D 55-7675 c. N.Y., Oxford 2.75

The conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra writes, out of his own experience, of the general principles and requirements of conducting. A biographical introduction is provided by the translator.

Cir. (D 95,436) (S 101,540)
This Clipping From NORFOLK, VA.
VIRGINIAN-PILOT
APR 3 - 1955

Great Authority

Boston Symphony's Leader Tells Conductor's Problems

Charles Munch

I AM A CONDUCTOR. By Charles Munch. Oxford. 104 pp. $2.75.

Next season when the Boston Symphony Orchestra comes to Norfolk, music lovers here will have an opportunity to hear the product of one of the world's most distinguished conductors. It is a matter for keen anticipation, whetted for this reviewer by the reading of this slim little volume which reveals Charles Munch as an artist completely devoted to his art, a man of modesty, intelligence and frankness.

Munch is a man who believes his calling to be a high one. He believes it with the earnestness of a mystic. Indeed, he is a mystic. "Fifteen years of work and study," he says, "do not make a conductor of a man if he is not possessed by an inner exaltation, an all-consuming flame, and a magnetism that can bewitch both the musicians of his orchestra and the audience come to hear his music-making."

Practical, Too

Yet he is a practical man, too. Unpatronizingly, frankly, he takes the reader through the problems a conductor must face, offers advice, warns against the pitfalls. We learn that conducting without a baton "is a bad habit . . . that creates difficulties for the musicians." That conducting by heart is dangerous and makes soloists nervous. That the conductor should avoid building his career on two or three programs that may seem to assure success but render no service to the art of music. That programs should not be too long—"A concert should not ordinarily have much more than 75 minutes of music." That a little modern music should be played with every concert, but "nothing does modern music a greater disservice than dissociating it from the rest of the repertoire." That the conductor should not make long speeches to his musicians—"musicians come to play, not to listen to lectures." That the performers should be corrected without being embarrassed in front of their comrades. And that "there really should not be very much to say about the concert, since the conductor's role there is to be noticed as little as possible." And so on.

Munch's own role in this book is noticed very little—his life and career he disposes of in a dozen or so pages. But his advice and comments are lucid, simple and to the point as only a great authority can offer them.

WARNER TWYFORD.

Cir. (D 152,401) (S 221,491)
This Clipping From
BALTIMORE, MD.
MORNING SUN
APR 3 - 1955

Orchestra Conductor

I AM A CONDUCTOR. By Charles Munch. Oxford. $2.75.

TO write meaningfully about music in non-technical language is difficult. Generally, this has been done best by professional writers such as Romain Rolland or James Gibbons Huneker. Performers turned writers all too frequently resort to platitudes or anecdotage. This book by the conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra is a welcome exception.

"I Am A Conductor" was first published in Paris as one of a series of books devoted to personal analyses of various professions. Hence the "I" in the title. In the book itself the "I" is greatly underplayed.

In less than 100 pages M. Munch grapples with the philosophy and the art of conducting; he also manages to say a good deal about the science. The approach is a highly individual one. It is the distilled thought of a man whose artistic integrity and sense of responsibility to music are well known to all musicians.

Written For Listeners

M. Munch describes his own career modestly, attributes a large part of it to luck, and warns embryo conductors not to follow in his footsteps. This chapter is a very necessary one, since in France, as in most of the world, there are no well-marked paths which lead ultimately to successful conducting careers.

Though the book is apparently written for nonmusicians, the most experienced public performer might well learn much from it. Particularly instructive are the chapters dealing with a conductor's own preparation of a score in private and its translation into actuality at a rehearsal and a concert.

M. Munch's description of the human relationships involving orchestral musicians and their conductor is most acute. Were this chapter to be made required reading for all conductors, both players and conductors might be happier and perhaps even enjoy making music together.

HUGO WEISGALL

ST. LOUIS GLOBE DE
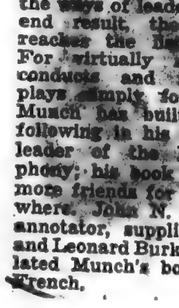
APR 3 - 1955

I AM A CONDUCTOR, by Charles Munch (Oxford)— Charles Munch, or Muench as the spelling had it before he came to America from his native Alsace, is a musician first and an author secondarily. But no one, music lover or not, will fail to respond to the sincerity and the earnestness with which he states his musical credo. He discusses the elements that go into the making or a conductor, the apprenticeship the score-studying, the program-making, the ways of leadership and the end result, the music that reaches the listening public. For virtually no conductor conducts and no orchestra plays simply for self alone. Munch has built up a wide following in his five years as leader of the Boston Symphony; his book should make more friends for music everywhere. John N. Burk, famed annotator, supplies a preface and Leonard Burkat has translated Munch's book from the French.



Munch

Cir. (D 36,412)
This Clipping From
SCHENECTADY, N. Y.
GAZETTE
APR 5 1955

Music Notes

By D. E. RITZ

April and Easter music go together this year and we find no concerts listed for Holy Week.

* * *

JENNIE TOUREL, mezzo-soprano, will present the final program in the Schenectady Civic Music series next Tuesday evening at the Plaza theater at 8:30 p.m.

April 15 will bring the Octavo Singers to Union College Memorial Chapel for an 8 p.m. performance of Dvorak's "Stabat Mater" under the direction of Gordon Mason and with an assisting quartet of New York oratorio soloists.

The Schenectady Choral Society will present its second concert of the season April 19 at Union College Memorial Chapel under the direction of Rufus Wheeler. Mrs. Madeline Bramer Ingram, pianist, and her husband, John Ingram, baritone, will be the featured soloists.

The United States Navy Band is scheduled to present two concerts here on April 22. A matinee performance will be presented at 2 p.m and an evening program at 8 o'clock. Tickets are available at the local music stores. The band is coming here under the sponsorship of the Scotia and Niskayuna Kiwanis Clubs.

The Schenectady Symphony Orchestra will present its spring program April 26 under the direction of Anthony R. Stefan and with Anita Myers, pianist, as the guest soloist. The program will be presented at the Erie theater.

The Schubert Club will present its spring program April 29 at 8:30 p.m. at Union College Memorial Chapel with Nancy Trickey, Soprano, as soloist. Dr. Elmer A. Tidmarsh will direct the club.

* * *

"I AM A CONDUCTOR," a personal view of the art of conducting by Charles Munch was published March 31 by Oxford University Press in New York in a translation by Leonard Burkat of the Boston Symphony Orchestra staff. Burkat's 25-page introduction is the first "full-length" portrait of Charles Munch in English.

The book first appeared in France last summer as a part of a series in which leading members of the professions describe their work.

It is not a text book on how to conduct but tells of what goes into making a conducting career. In it Munch describes his youth in a musical household where Albert Schweitzer was an intimate; his years of apprenticeship and how he became a conductor; the technical and esthetic problems of program, score, rehearsal and concert; the musican's life and the conductor's life.

* * *

A SERIES OF SIX Wednesday evening programs will be presented by famous chamber groups at the Theatre at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., as a part of the Berkshire Festival. The programs will include;

The Kroll String Quartet, July 6, Beethoven Quartets opus 18, number 4; opus 95 (Serioso); opus 131 (C sharp minor).

Beaux Arts Trio, July 13, Trios opus 1, number 3; opus 70, number 1 ("Ghost"); and opus 97 ("Archduke").

Isaac Stern and Alexander Zakin July 20, violin sonatas, opus 12 number 2; opus 24 ("Spring"); opus 30, number 2.

New Music String Quartet, July 27, String Quartets opus 18, number 2, opus 127, and opus 132.

Rudolf Serkin, Aug. 3; piano sonatas, opus 10, numbers 2 and 3 and opus 106 ("Hammerklavier").

Gregor Piatigorsky and Ralph Berkowitz, Aug. 10, the five Cello sonatas, opus 5, numbers 1 and 2 opus 69, opus 102, numbers 1 and 2.

Circ. (D 39,151) (S 36,113)
This Clipping From SPRINGFIELD, ILL.
ILL. STATE REGISTER
APR 5 - 1955

"I Am a Conductor," by Charles Munch. Translated from French by Leonard Burkat (Oxford).

John N. Burk of the Boston Symphony writes the foreword and, also of the symphony, Burkat—no relation—does an introduction as well as the translation. They are both informative and helpful. I know no book in which I wouldn't be happy to see them, yet I hold it against them that by as little as pages V to XXXIII they separate us from Munch.

Munch is Munch in Muench—the spelling until he came here, via Paris, from his native Alsace. Though in the world of books he may not be a familiar figure, in music he needs no introduction. If you know music, you know Munch.

In this short book he writes about apprenticeship, becoming a conductor, making a program, studying scores, rehearsing, the concert itself, and the musician's and the conductor's life. (An appendix lists works he has played in his five years as Boston conductor, and there is a gratifyingly large percentage of contemporary, including American, compositions.)

Technically this is an invaluable book; if you plan to conduct, read this first. Or if you go to concerts, by all means read it. Or if you just like books, read it; it pretends to so little, it amounts to so much, for it is simple, honest and eloquent. But Munch has a subject, which is bigger than craft; it is spirit. It's the aware, dedicated, indeed devout spirit of the total musician. He speaks of the "priesthood" of orchestra players; he is their bishop their pope. The man with the baton has rarely been served so well by the man with the pen.

This Clipping From HOUSTON, TEX.
CHRONICLE
APR 3 - 1955

Munch Opens Secret World Of Conductors

I AM A CONDUCTOR by Charles Munch; Oxford, 104 pages, $2.75.

This charming little book is cherry pie for anyone interested in music, either as performer or auditor. It's no collection of anecdotes—Munch is far too respectful of his "priesthood," far too modest for that. He holds with von Bulow that there are no bad orchestras, only bad conductors.

For the past six years, Munch has been conductor of the Boston Symphony and the lustre of that great musical organization has not dimmed since he succeeded Koussevitzky. With Bruno Walter, he stands among the two truly great living conductors active today.

And like Walter, Munch is a dedicated man, filled with humility for the great part he has been destined to play in the world of sound—sound modulated into those pleasing variations of pitch and tempo and volume we recognize as music.

Incidentally, Bruno Walter once told this writer in an interview that he was on the podium for more than 20 years before he felt capable of doing justice to Mozart's great G minor symphony, before he gave it a public reading. Such is the modesty of real musicians.—T. M.

Cir. (D 7,191)
This Clipping From GREENSBURG, PA.
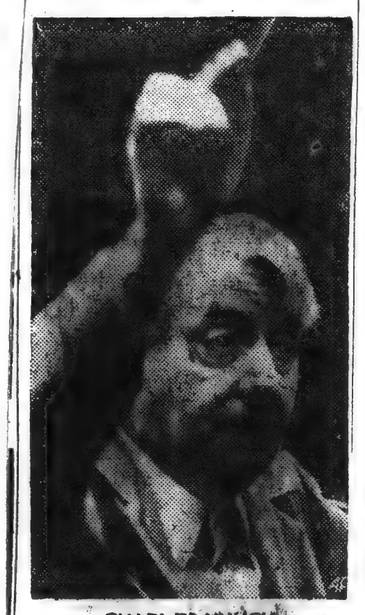
REVIEW
APR 8 1955



CHARLES MUNCH

Charles Munch, who tells his story, or in the larger sense the music story, in "I Am a Conductor," was born in Strosbourg in 1891. At 21 he made his debut as violinist. He studied in Paris, taught and played in a conservatory and orchestra in Strosbourg, continued his career in Leipzig and in 1932 returned to France, his real homeland. He was director of the Conservatoire orchestra, and in 1949 succeeded Koussevitsky as conductor of the Boston Symphony.

Clr. (D 215,218)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
POST
APR 10 1955

New Book By Munch On Music

By TUCKER KEISER

Appearing in bookstores this week for the first time is the English translation of Charles Munch's "I Am a Conductor," published by the Oxford University Press. Originally written in French for a series on the professions, including Dior's "I Am a Couturier" and Honegger's "I Am a Composer," the book is not a text but rather a collection of observations and reminiscences.

Mr. Munch's contribution to the English-language edition can easily be read in an hour. To pad out the slender volume John N. Burk, the perceptive annotator of the Symphony programs, has added a foreword, Leonard Burkat, the translator, has contributed a lengthy hero-worshipping introduction, and a list of all the compositions performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra during the first five years of Mr. Munch's tenure has been appended.

In the foreword Mr. Burk writes: "From the past comes a memory of friendships, and a fund of experience—a fund from which any conductor (himself included) may profit." It might be profitable for Mr. Munch to re-read his own words because many of the principles which he sets forth earnestly he ignores consistently.

At one point the conductor states that the essential thing in his work is "perfect clarity of gesture." With this principle everyone agrees. Musicians must know precisely where they are in which measure. But on countless occasions we have witnessed the spectacle of a conductor so overcome by the emotional impact of the score that his gestures lose all definition.

In defense he cites Wagner's remark that "only orchestra musicians have the capacity to judge good or bad conductors." This is true up to a point, but listeners do have ears.

Earlier in the book he apologizes for a personal approach to conducting. "Your communication must radiate with such force that your orchestra feels simultaneously the same wishes and desires as you and cannot refrain from expressing them. You must substitute your will for theirs . . . A conductor's effectiveness is limited if he cannot depend to some degree on a magic emanation from his person."

Elsewhere he excuses himself for some of the violence which he brings to non-violent music. "You have a perfect right to a conception of music based on your own temperament." According to this line of rationalization, if a conductor's podium temperament is volcanic, he has a perfect right to turn a largo into a presto.

Shortly thereafter follows an interesting contradiction, "The conductor must discover and show what the creator wanted understood."

Mr. Munch cautions against 'evenings' and 'festivals' of one composer which, he believes, "are much overdone these days." Last year we nearly drowned in Berlioz both in Boston and in the Berkshires. This summer we are to have a Beethoven season at Tanglewood.

by Charles Munch. (Oxford University Press, 140 pages, $2.75). The French "chef d'orchestre" of the Boston Symphony is, needless to say, a world-acclaimed director.

This informative but never involved little book tells much about the art and therefore about the professional man Munch. His calling is to him more than a profession. It is a priesthood in the ministry of music. I shall have more to say about his ideas, which will prove particularly fascinating to those listening to recordings or broadcasts of the Boston Symphony.

▼ ▼ ▼

Munch writes with a curious blend of the objective and the personal about becoming a conductor, rehearsing, program making, studying the scores, audiences, orchestras and first and last, music. There are glimpses of his own mode of life. They have been supplemented by biographic introductions from John N. Burke and Leonard Burkat, who translated Munch's writing from the French.

The translators give close-ups of a great personality, who, after years of triumphs, at 65, still feels his responsibilities almost shyly, humbly, keenly, each time he becomes the intermediary between composer and orchestra, orchestra and public.

Clr. (D 192,249) (S 2H,152)
This Clipping From
PORTLAND, ORE.
OREGON JOURNAL
APR 10 1955

Munch Publishes

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony, is author of "I Am a Conductor," published March 31 by the Oxford University Press, New York. The book first appeared in France last summer as part of a series in which leading members of the professions describe their work—Dior on dress design and Honneger on being a composer, among others.

SAN DIEGO-CALL.

Any one interested in the mechanism and miracles of orchestral direction should read "I Am A Conductor"

Clr. (D 247,308)
This Clipping From ATLANTA, GA.
JOURNAL
APR 10 1955

CHARLES MUNCH CONDUCTS HIS ORCHESTRA
His Book Offers New Musical Insight

CLARITY AND WARMTH

Why Arm Waving? Munch Answers

I AM A CONDUCTOR. By Charles Munch. Oxford University Press, New York. 94 pages. $2.75.

Reviewed by ANNE COGBURN

"It was a fine concert, but why'd we have to have that conductor waving his arms in front of the orchestra?"

Just such a comment left famous conductor Charles Munch dreaming of writing the book now released. It took him 30 years to get around to the job, but his answers were worth waiting for.

Munch, who is something of a national hero in France and who conducts the famous Boston Symphony Orchestra now, gives a personal view of a conductor's life. He evaluates a conductor's obligations to himself, to his orchestra and to his audience.

* * *

WITH CLARITY and with warmth, Munch writes a book that will send any concert-goer back to listen and look with an altogether new sense of values.

The conductor was born in Strasbourg, a city where "music has always been important and still is."

"By the age of six I had begun to try my hand at the organ, to hammer on the piano and scratch a little on the violin. I loved the organ and piano, but my start on the violin was painful—which did not prevent me from becoming a violinist."

* * *

FROM HIS SCRATCHY beginning with the violin to mastering the instrument, the Munch story goes. And it continues with his conducting one of the finest assemblies of musicians in Paris to filling Koussevitsky's shoes heading the Boston Symphony.

His book should be inspiration to any ambitious young musician, and it should be enlightening to a mere listener as well.

Cir. (D 90,143) (S 90,143)
This Clipping From
NEW HAVEN, CONN.
REGISTER
APR 10 1955

'PRIESTHOOD' OF MUSICIANS:

Charles Munch Describes The Life Of A Conductor

I AM A CONDUCTOR by Charles Munch. Translated from French by Leonard Burkat (Oxford).

John N. Burk of the Boston Symphony writes the foreword and, also of the Symphony, Burkat—no relation—does an introduction as well as the translation. They are both informative and helpful. We know no book in which we wouldn't be happy to see them, yet we hold it against them that by as little as pages V to XXXIII they separate us from Munch.

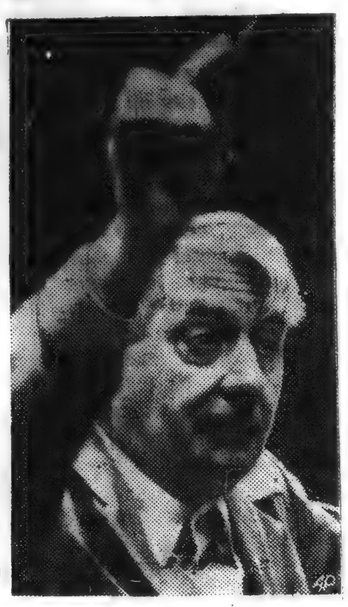
Munch is Munch is Muench—the spelling until he came here, via Paris, from his native Alsace. Though in the world of books he may not be a familiar figure, in music he needs no introduction. If you know music, you know Munch.

In this short book he writes about apprenticeship, becoming a conductor, making a program, studying scores, rehearsing, the concert itself, and the musician's and the conductor's life. (An appendix lists works he has played in his five years as Boston conductor, and there is a gratifyingly large percentage of contemporary, including American, compositions.)

Technically this is an invaluable book; if you plan to conduct, read this first. Or if you go to concerts, by all means read it. Or if you just like books, read it; it pretends to so little, it amounts to so much, for it is simple, honest and eloquent.

But Munch has a subject, which is bigger than craft; it is spirit. It's the aware, dedicated, indeed devout spirit of the total musician. He speaks of the "priesthood" of orchestra players; he is their bishop, their pope.

The man with the baton has rarely been served so well by the man with the pen.



CHARLES MUNCH

Clr. (D 159,679)
This Clipping From
INDIANAPOLIS, IND.
NEWS
APR 16 1955

REPORT, LA.
TIMES
APR 10 1955

BOOK REVIEWS — "America's Music," by Gilbert Chase, is a bulky volume, covering a lot of ground. But how did this erudite writer overlook such composers as Frank Loesser, Alec Wilder, Harold Morris, Tom Scott, George Kleinsinger, Wintter Watts, Robert Sanders and Charles Haubiel, to name only a few?—Charles Munch, of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, gives a lot of inside information in his highly personal book, "I Am a Conductor."

* * *

Cir. (D 284,238) (S 502,727)
This Clipping From PITTSBURGH, PA.
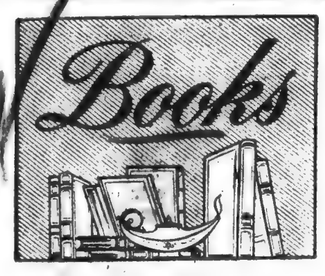
PRESS
APR 16 1955



Maestro's Reply To the Critics

I AM A CONDUCTOR (Charles Munch, Oxford, $2.75).—More than 30 years ago the author, famed conductor of the Boston Symphony, overheard this conversation after a concert in his native France:

Mr. Munch

"Lovely concert."

"Bah! The orchestra is fine. But I wonder why we must always have a conductor in front of it."

This dissertation (100 pages) is Maestro Munch's charming answer to the question. Samples:

On critics: "I for one have been assassinated many times but I am still among the living."

On life on the podium: "You perch on a pedestal in the middle of a battlefield. You are Saint Sebastian exposed to Roman arrows. You are Joan of Arc ready to burn at the stake for what you believe."

—Sam Hood

* * *

Conductor Is Captive of Composer's Score

"I AM A CONDUCTOR." By Charles Munch. New York: Oxford University Press. $2.75.

CHARLES MUNCH . . . "cold notes into warm sound"

By WALTER WHITWORTH

The complications of an orchestral score are beyond the understanding of the average concert goer, who listens to symphony orchestras for pleasure, for emotional intensification and occasionally for intellectual stimulation.

The average concert goer is unaware of how much concentration the conductor lavishes on the score—the finer the conductor, the greater the concentration—in order to understand, not only its intricacies, but also its musical meaning.

For the composer uses orchestral instruments as a painter uses his colors: To create a certain mood and they to express in the language of sound his own attitude toward human experience. He stresses what is important to him, revealing his own esthetic.

Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, tells in some measure in his brief book, "I Am a Conductor," what it means to translate printed, cold notes into moving, warm sound, so that his listeners can capture something of his own excitement from the music.

He strives not only for this kind of excitement, but also for a clarification of the composer's intentions. Acting as a sensitive medium, as a servant of the composer, he spends tortured hours with old music as well as new music, always seeking the truth behind the notes.

In order to accomplish his aims, Munch writes, he must be a captive, a captivity made bearable only by a great love of his art. He might have added that the conductor also must be a discriminating musician, intent on unselfish devotion to the composers he chooses, eschewing self-glorification. Munch knows that the men of genius are greater than he is. They demand humility as well as hard work.

His book is short, but it should be read by all concert-goers who take good conducting for granted. They then will learn what music expects and demands of its practitioners.

Cir. (D 331,853) (S 567,298)
This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
APR 10 1955

Munch's Book Reveals The Burden of the Baton

By JAY S. HARRISON

The observations of a baker on baking are by definition of interest to any man whose passion is pastry. Similarly, the words of a famous musician gain especial meaning when they are addressed to those for whom music is more than a toy or aural bath. And words such as these, by Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, have recently been published in book form by the Oxford University Press under the unequivocal title "I Am a Conductor."

The volume is a slim one and its language is modest almost to the point of self-effacement. Rather than adhering to a logical continuity, moreover, its ideas sprawl and stretch themselves in every direction, for which reason the book is likely to have only a limited appeal to professionals. Fortunately, however, Mr. Munch makes no pretense at having produced a learned tome seeded with discussions of esthetics, technique and polemics. In "I Am a Conductor" he is concerned principally with the layman, and in ninety-one pages he carries the amateur to a two-tier backstage—the backstage of a symphony hall as well as the backstage of a conductor's inquiring mind.

Mr. Munch begins, as is only natural, with what he believes to be the position of the conductor—"That it is not a profession at all but a sacred calling, sometimes a priesthood, and often even a disease — a disease from which the only escape is death." And "if even after forty years of conducting you are still struck to the heart before every concert by fear and panic that overwhelm you with the strength of a tidal wave, if you feel this formidable transport of anguish still more intensely each time, you are still making progress and every time you conduct you will understand your mission a little better."

It is particularly interesting to note that at one point Mr. Munch, in a reference to what is clearly his podium, calls it, unconsciously I suspect, his "pedestal." Then, "I believe that every human being endowed with intelligence, memory and strength of character bears within him a little of the supernatural. The highest purpose of the conductor is to release this superhuman potential in every one of his musicians."

Awesome Responsibility

This being the case, Mr. Munch turns to the matter of a conductor's awesome responsibility. "The collective conscience of a hundred musicians is no light burden. Think for a moment of what it would mean to a pianist if by some miracle every key of his instrument should suddenly become a living thing. A friend of mine, a musician in the Orchestra de la Suisse romande, once said to me: 'When every member of the orchestra feels that you are conducting for him alone, you are conducting well.'"

And the manner in which this responsibility is professionally discharged is thus taken into account: "He [the conductor] has two ways of communicating with them [the orchestra], facial expression and gesture. The look in his eyes is often more important than the motion of a baton or the position of a hand. He may even use pantomime, but cautiously, for the conductor must be neither clown nor gymnast. . . . It is of the greatest importance that the gestures be prevented from contradicting the desired expression.'"

Conductor's Instrument

Mr. Munch continues, taking no straight path, with a succession of thoughts each of which provides ample fuel for meditation.

About rehearsal: "The sole purpose of rehearsal is work—and what a mistake to believe that it is only for the orchestra and not for the conductor. No soloist would dream of appearing before the public without practicing on his instrument and the orchestra is the conductor's instrument."

About conducting students: "Now that you know how I became a conductor, take this advice: Don't do it my way. Chance, happy chance has had a big part in my career but it is better to start out with a detailed battle plan rather than trust too much to luck—except of course that you must be ready to take advantage of it when you can. . . . Educate your ear, for you work with your ears even more than with your arms."

About interpretation: "If you interpret music as you feel it, with ardor and faith, with all your heart and with complete conviction, I am certain that even if the critics attack you, God will forgive you."

The gist of "I am a Conductor," therefore, as the above implies, concerns the monstrous problems that confront every man who fancies that conducting is his rightful career, that he is to the baton born. But for all its rewards and echoes of glory, musical leadership is an agonizing, a back-breaking profession.

Indeed, this writer shall never forget a Toscanini rehearsal he once attended at which time the Maestro was engaged in preparing a performance of Tchaikovsky's "Manfred" Symphony. During a triumphant tutti, an errant trumpet passage caught his attention. In rage he stopped the orchestra and bellowed, "It is bruta, ugly, ugly. No, no, I 'ate, I 'ate to conduct. Because I suffer — torture — ah!" And then with tears on his cheeks—"Why do you look at me in this way? You think that I am crazy? No, no, not crazy—only sensitive, terribly sensitive. So don't look at me in this way. Ah, how I 'ate to conduct."

Suddenly, however, the Maestro—no doubt recalling the kind of dedication that Charles Munch speaks of and the circumstance that the concert had to take place—broke his baton in two and snorted, "Well! All right! We try again. Da capo! Back to the beginning!"

[13]

Clr. (D 433,624) (S 455,132)
This Clipping From DETROIT, MICH.
FREE PRESS
APR 17 1955

113-YEAR-OLD PHILHARMONIC DUE MONDAY

N.Y. Symphony Is Steeped in History

BY J. DORSEY CALLAGHAN
Free Press Music and Drama Critic

To say that the Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra of New York is 113 years old doesn't convey much in the matter of consciousness of time passed. It is more interesting to consider it in the light of America affairs of that period.

The Orchestra, which plays at Masonic Temple Monday night under Dimitri Mitropoulos' direction, came into being in a New York that had a mere 400,000 residents.

* * *

FOR IN 1842 the United States was just beginning to emerge from its pioneer days. John Tyler was President and Daniel Webster Secretary of State.

It was only 15 years since the death of Beethoven and 14 years after Schubert passed away. Tschaikowsky was two years old and Brahms nine. In England Queen Victoria, a bride of two years, was taking her first ride on a railroad train.

Callaghan

New York had 15 theaters, including the American Museum under P. T. Barnum. Junius Booth, and young Joseph Jefferson were packing them in and the novels of J. Fenimore Cooper headed the best seller list.

WHISKERS AND tight pantaloons were the style when a group of musicians met on Saturday, April 2, 1842, in the Apollo Rooms on lower Broadway.

Their purpose was to consider "the practicability of forming a society of professional musicians residing in the city, having for its object the advancement of instrumental music, and of producing a number of concerts each year of a much higher order than had ever been given in the city."

From this meeting grew the present organization, which has survived without interruption ever since. The first concert took place the following Dec. 2.

The concert Monday night will include, of course, the Shostakovich 10th Symphony, rights to which were acquired by Mitropoulos and the orchestra when it was released.

Otherwise the concert will consist of Kabalevsky's Overture to "Colas Breugnon;" the Brahms Variations on a Theme by Haydn and a set of four Greek dances by Skalkottas. The present tour is the orchestra's first since 1934.

* * *

CHARLES MUNCH, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has written a book called "I Am a Conductor," published by the Oxford University Press, New York. The book first appeared in France last summer as part of a series in which leading members of the professions describe their work—Dior on dress design, Honegger on being a composer, and others.

"I Am a Conductor" is a personal view of a difficult art. It isn't a textbook on conducting, but tells of what goes into making a conducting career.

* * *

MUNCH tells of his youth in a musical household where Albert Schweitzer was an intimate; his apprenticeships and how he became a conductor; the technical and esthetic problems of programming, scores, rehearsals and concerts; and the musician's life and the conductor's life.

The book was translated by Leonard Burkat of the Boston Symphony Orchestra staff, whose introduction is the first full-length portrait of Charles Munch in English.

"I Am a Conductor" will interest music-lover and musician alike. It sums up a great career and a difficult profession—the combined story of the art and artist for those who love the concerts, the records and the broadcasts of Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

* * *

PRIZE WINNERS in the first Michigan Student Composers' contest, sponsored by the Michigan Composers' Club, will be presented at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday at the Club's 14th annual concert in the Detroit Institute of Arts Lecture Hall.

Winners were Normain Kimmel of Michigan State College and Elaine Friedman of the University of Michigan. Kimmel's entry was incidental music for "Medea," composed for brass, woodwinds, harp, piano and tympani.

Miss Friedman won with her "Quintet for Winds."

The balance of the concert will be devoted to a group of three piano pieces by Alice Richman, of Detroit, with the composer at the piano; Richard Palmer's Sonata in D major, with Donna Palmer, violinist, and the composer, and James Niblock's String Quartet, played by the MSC String Quartet.

* * *

ALSO ON THE program will be Ballad for Two Pianos by Mark Wessell, played by Maud Skinner and Virginia Poole; Passacaglia for Two Pianos by John Phelps, played by Dorothy and John Phelps, and Ballet for Two Pianos by Frank Gill, played by the composer and Milton Setzer.

TULSA, OKLA
WORLD
4/10/55

MUSICIAN — Charles Munch, who tells his story, or in a larger sense the music story, in "I Am a Conductor" (Oxford), made his debut as a violinist in his native France at 21, continued his career in Germany, in 1949 succeeded Koussevitsky as conductor of the Boston Symphony. In this short book he writes about apprenticeship, becoming a conductor, making a program, studying scores, rehearsing, and the concert itself. But he has a bigger subject than craft; it is spirit. It is the aware, dedicated, indeed devout spirit of the total musician. Munch does well with the pen as he does well with the baton.

Clr. (D 57,751) (S 49,376)
This Clipping From
NEW BEDFORD, MASS.
STANDARD-TIMES
APR 10 1955

A Look At the Arts

By E.I.D.

Charles Munch Publishes Autobiographical Work

Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is the author of "I Am a Conductor," which was published last month by the Oxford University Press.

Munch

The book first appeared in France last Summer as part of a series in which leading members of the professions describe their work—Dior on dress design, Honegger on being a composer, and the like.

"I Am a Conductor" is a personal view of a difficult art. It is not a textbook on how to conduct but is concerned rather with what goes into the making of a conducting career. Munch describes his youth in a musical household where the great Albert Schweitzer was an intimate, his years of apprenticeship and how he became a conductor; the technical and aesthetic problems of program, score, rehearsal and concert; the musician's life and the conductor's life.

The book is translated by Leonard Burkat of the Boston Symphony staff, and Mr. Burkat's 25-page introduction is the first full-length portrait of Mr. Munch in English.

"I Am a Conductor" will be of equal interest to music lover and musician. It is a summary of a great career and a difficult profession, the combined story of the art and artist for those who know the concerts, the records and the broadcasts of Mr. Munch and the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Clr. (D 302,908) (S 510,181)
This Clipping From CLEVELAND, OHIO
PLAIN DEALER
APR 10 1955

Boston Music Master Writes His Memoirs

I AM A CONDUCTOR. By Charles Munch. Translated by Leonard Burkat. (Oxford University Press. $2.75. 104 pp.)

Here is a slight, but wholly charming book which reveals a very important and charming man of music, Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra since 1949. Originally the work appeared in France as a part of series in which leading professional men and women described their work. Translator Leonard Burkat of the Boston Symphony Orchestra staff draws an introductory 25-page portrait of simple, modest, warm-hearted man, who is an extremely able conductor.

Munch describes his boyhood in a musical family to which Albert Schweitzer came as an organ pupil. But chiefly he delights in writing intimately, about his work as "chef d'orchestre," in which his medium is not words but "gesture, posture, telepathy, and an irresistibly keen radiation." He considers his work as sacred as priesthood.

Reminiscences color his story of apprenticeship. He gives advice on "Becoming a Conductor," and on such problems as rehearsing, program-making, appearing at concerts, and living the musician's life. Talents, budgets, the daily existence of the orchestral musician are not above his concern. He finally concludes that "people who hate one another should not be allowed to make music together."

"Most of the time you finish by renouncing almost everything not directly connected with conducting," he writes. But not quite. For like every true artist he knows "at what fountain he finds comfort and strength," whether in Boston, Paris or Strasbourg. There he may slip away to favorite antique shops, old print dealers, or be found browsing in second-hand book stores.

For the general reader, this book fully answers the question: Why the conductor? To lovers of music, it reveals a way of life. —Rena C. Holtkamp

[14]

Cir. (D 433,624) (S 455,132)
This Clipping From DETROIT, MICH.
FREE PRESS
APR 17 1955

113-YEAR-OLD PHILHARMONIC DUE MONDAY

N.Y. Symphony Is Steeped in History

BY J. DORSEY CALLAGHAN
Free Press Music and Drama Critic

To say that the Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra of New York is 113 years old doesn't convey much in the matter of consciousness of time passed. It is more interesting to consider it in the light of America affairs of that period.

The Orchestra, which plays at Masonic Temple Monday night under Dimitri Mitropoulos' direction, came into being in a New York that had a mere 400,000 residents.

* * *

FOR IN 1842 the United States was just beginning to emerge from its pioneer days. John Tyler was President and Daniel Webster Secretary of State.

It was only 15 years since the death of Beethoven and 14 years after Schubert passed away. Tschaikowsky was two years old and Brahms nine. In England Queen Victoria, a bride of two years, was taking her first ride on a railroad train.

Callaghan

New York had 15 theaters, including the American Museum under P. T. Barnum. Junius Booth, and young Joseph Jefferson were packing them in and the novels of J. Fenimore Cooper headed the best seller list.

WHISKERS AND tight pantaloons were the style when a group of musicians met on Saturday, April 2, 1842, in the Apollo Rooms on lower Broadway.

Their purpose was to consider "the practicability of forming a society of professional musicians residing in the city, having for its object the advancement of instrumental music, and of producing a number of concerts each year of a much higher order than had ever been given in the city."

From this meeting grew the present organization, which has survived without interruption ever since. The first concert took place the following Dec. 2.

The concert Monday night will include, of course, the Shostakovich 10th Symphony, rights to which were acquired by Mitropoulos and the orchestra when it was released.

Otherwise the concert will consist of Kabalevsky's Overture to "Colas Breugnon;" the Brahms Variations on a Theme by Haydn and a set of four Greek dances by Skalkottas. The present tour is the orchestra's first since 1934.

* * *

CHARLES MUNCH, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has written a book called "I Am a Conductor," published by the Oxford University Press, New York. The book first appeared in France last summer as part of a series in which leading members of the professions describe their work—Dior on dress design, Honegger on being a composer, and others.

"I Am a Conductor" is a personal view of a difficult art. It isn't a textbook on conducting, but tells of what goes into making a conducting career.

* * *

MUNCH tells of his youth in a musical household where Albert Schweitzer was an intimate; his apprenticeships and how he became a conductor; the technical and esthetic problems of programming, scores, rehearsals and concerts; and the musician's life and the conductor's life.

The book was translated by Leonard Burkat of the Boston Symphony Orchestra staff, whose introduction is the first full-length portrait of Charles Munch in English.

"I Am a Conductor" will interest music-lover and musician alike. It sums up a great career and a difficult profession—the combined story of the art and artist for those who love the concerts, the records and the broadcasts of Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

* * *

PRIZE WINNERS in the first Michigan Student Composers' contest, sponsored by the Michigan Composers' Club, will be presented at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday at the Club's 14th annual concert in the Detroit Institute of Arts Lecture Hall.

Winners were Normain Kimmel of Michigan State College and Elaine Friedman of the University of Michigan. Kimmel's entry was incidental music for "Medea," composed for brass, woodwinds, harp, piano and tympani.

Miss Friedman won with her "Quintet for Winds."

The balance of the concert will be devoted to a group of three piano pieces by Alice Richman, of Detroit, with the composer at the piano; Richard Palmer's Sonata in D major, with Donna Palmer, violinist, and the composer, and James Niblock's String Quartet, played by the MSC String Quartet.

* * *

ALSO ON THE program will be Ballad for Two Pianos by Mark Wessell, played by Maud Skinner and Virginia Poole; Passacaglia for Two Pianos by John Phelps, played by Dorothy and John Phelps, and Ballet for Two Pianos by Frank Gill, played by the composer and Milton Setzer.

TULSA, OKLA
WORLD
4/10/55

MUSICIAN — Charles Munch, who tells his story, or in a larger sense the music story, in "I Am a Conductor" (Oxford), made his debut as a violinist in his native France at 21, continued his career in Germany, in 1949 succeeded Koussevitsky as conductor of the Boston Symphony. In this short book he writes about apprenticeship, becoming a conductor, making a program, studying scores, rehearsing, and the concert itself. But he has a bigger subject than craft; it is spirit. It is the aware, dedicated, indeed devout spirit of the total musician. Munch does well with the pen as he does well with the baton.

Cir. (D 57,751) (S 49,376)
This Clipping From
NEW BEDFORD, MASS.
STANDARD-TIMES
APR 10 1955

A Look At the Arts

By E. J. D.

Charles Munch Publishes Autobiographical Work

Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is the author of "I Am a Conductor," which was published last month by the Oxford University Press. The book first appeared in France last Summer as part of a series in which leading members of the professions describe their work—Dior on dress design, Honegger on being a composer, and the like.

Munch

"I Am a Conductor" is a personal view of a difficult art. It is not a textbook on how to conduct but is concerned rather with what goes into the making of a conducting career. Munch describes his youth in a musical household where the great Albert Schweitzer was an intimate, his years of apprenticeship and how he became a conductor; the technical and aesthetic problems of program, score, rehearsal and concert; the musician's life and the conductor's life.

The book is translated by Leonard Burkat of the Boston Symphony staff, and Mr. Burkat's 25-page introduction is the first full-length portrait of Mr. Munch in English.

"I Am a Conductor" will be of equal interest to music lover and musician. It is a summary of a great career and a difficult profession, the combined story of the art and artist for those who know the concerts, the records and the broadcasts of Mr. Munch and the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Cir. (D 302,908) (S 510,181)
This Clipping From
CLEVELAND, OHIO
PLAIN DEALER
APR 10 1955

Boston Music Master Writes His Memoirs

AM A CONDUCTOR. By Charles Munch. Translated by Leonard Burkat. (Oxford University Press. $2.75. 104 pp.)

Here is a slight, but wholly charming book which reveals a very important and charming man of music, Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra since 1949. Originally the work appeared in France as a part of series in which leading professional men and women described their work. Translator Leonard Burkat of the Boston Symphony Orchestra staff draws an introductory 25-page portrait of simple, modest, warm-hearted man, who is an extremely able conductor.

Munch describes his boyhood in a musical family to which Albert Schweitzer came as an organ pupil. But chiefly he delights in writing intimately, about his work as "chef d'orchestre," in which his medium is not words but "gesture, posture, telepathy, and an irresistibly keen 'radiation.'" He considers his work as sacred as priesthood.

Reminiscences color his story of apprenticeship. He gives advice on "Becoming a Conductor," and on such problems as rehearsing, program-making, appearing at concerts, and living the musician's life. Talents, budgets, the daily existence of the orchestral musician are not above his concern. He finally concludes that "people who hate one another should not be allowed to make music together."

"Most of the time you finish by renouncing almost everything not directly connected with conducting," he writes. But not quite. For like every true artist he knows "at what fountain he finds comfort and strength," whether in Boston, Paris or Strasbourg. There he may slip away to favorite antique shops, old print dealers, or be found browsing in second-hand book stores.

For the general reader, this book fully answers the question: Why the conductor? To lovers of music, it reveals a way of life. —Rena C. Holtkamp

Clr. (D 678,064) (S 1,126,901)
This Clipping From PHILADELPHIA, PA.
INQUIRER
APR 17 1955

From "Portraits" by Sir Joshua Reynolds

SAMUEL JOHNSON

Director Munch's Own Musical Story

I AM A CONDUCTOR. By Charles Munch. Translated by Leonard Burkat. (Oxford University Press. 104 pp. $2.75)

Charles Munch says he was impelled by an "insult" to write this book. It was not a recent affront, but one that gave him food for thought for 30 years. It goes back to a conversation he heard one evening long ago after a concert in Strasbourg, France. When young Munch came out on the street stirred by a Brahms symphony, he heard one member of the audience say to another: "A nice concert, but why does the orchestra always have to have a conductor in front of it?"

In "I Am a Conductor" the present maestro of the Boston Symphony Orchestra answers that question.

The book deals with many of the problems of a conductor. There are brief chapters on program-making (Munch believes in variety among the classics and the stimulation of new music). Of rehearsals he says: "I do not like to make speeches. A rehearsal is work for both the players and the conductor."

And there are some pages about the enormously complicated text a conductor uses — the orchestral score.

The 64-year-old author was born in Strasbourg of a musical family. His uncle, Eugene Munch, was the teacher of another famous Alsatian, Albert Schweitzer.

Charles Munch studied the violin under Hans Pfitzner in Strasbourg and in Paris under a famous master, Lucien Capet. Later Munch appeared as soloist with many major orchestras, including the famous Gewandhaus Orchestra of Leipzig, then under the baton of his friend, the late Wilhelm Furtwaengler.

At the age of 42 Munch arrived in Paris burning with an ambition to conduct. In a city which then boasted five major orchestras, he soon found his opportunity.

In 1947 Munch came to this country for a trans-continental tour with the French government radio National Orchestra. Two years later he succeeded a world famous maestro, Serge Koussevitszky, to one of the blue-ribbon posts in the world of music—the podium of the great Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Eminently successful with the Bostonians, Munch lives with his family in a suburban home 12 miles from Symphony Hall and visits Europe each summer. He is a happy and dedicated man in love with his work.

E. H. S.

Clr. (D 146,820) (S 298,053)
This Clipping From
BUFFALO, N. Y.
COURIER-EXPRESS
APR 17 1955

"I am a conductor"
. . . Charles Munch

Personality of Munch Pervades His New Book

By KENNETH GILL

I AM A CONDUCTOR. By Charles Munch. Oxford University Press, New York. 104 pp. $2.75.

It is difficult to imagine music's Charles Munch launching into a discourse on the importance of a symphony conductor. This reviewer's first meeting with "Le Beau Charles" was backstage of Kleinhans Music Hall when the veteran of European concert halls made his first American tour as successor to Koussevitzky with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Strangely enough, this new personality on the Boston course held no dressing room court like so many of the maestros. He sat alone and unattended, calm of face and somewhat sad in expression. His English was limited, and his voice was the kindly subdued tone of a tired man.

A Musician Simple, Direct

There was no effusion, no affectation and no temperament. It was a simple, "How do you do? I like your city" and a genuine "Au revoir."

Ten minutes later, a dynamic giant lived Beethoven through a baton snapped in the first 20 bars and an orchestra of players who seemed to sense a disciple of good composition.

His published "I Am a Conductor," is a similar expression. It is calm, forthright, and without temperament. It is not Charles Munch in history, but it is Charles Munch in personality. It sets forth clearly and confidently the purpose that burns in every music director, and it soundly defines the course to be followed from apprenticeship and the long climb through professional leagues to the ever-present struggle to keep faith with a conductor's ideals.

It doesn't dwell on the podium too long but wanders through managerial offices, extension work in new scores, and the daily routine to which a conductor must resign.

First Printed in French

Originally processed in French at the commission of "Editions du Conquistador" of Paris under the title, "Je suis chef d'orchestre," it was anglicized through the efforts of Leonard Burkat, a close associate with Munch at Boston.

Little has been said of the Boston Munch that could build the American chapters in his legend. This volume is the first to speak. It reads as fluently to non musician as it does to the musician. It's continually modest, yet continually purposeful.

It speaks with the same procedure as a Charles Munch concert. It enters humbly, it unfolds with energy, reason and intelligence, and when the score has been devotedly fulfilled, it defers to the conductor's aides on stage and his listeners in the audience.

Clr. (D 202,001)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
TRAVELER
APR 5 1955

Charles Munch's Conducting Book

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony, is author of "I Am a Conductor," which has been published by the Orford University Press.

The book first appeared last summer in france as part of a series in which leading memvers of the professions describe their work.

The Munch book is not a text book on how to conduct but tells of his career. He tells of his youth in a musical household where Albert Scrweitzer was an intimate, his apprenticeship, the problems of program, score, rehearsal asd concert, a musician's life and a conductor's life.

The book is translated by Leonard Burkat of the orchestra staff, whose 25-page introduction is the first full-length portrait of Charles Munch in English.

Clr. (D 69,251)
This Clipping From
PEORIA, ILL.
JOURNAL
APR 23 1955

Noted Conductor Tells His Story

"My only reason for writing this book is so that future conductors who have faith and who wish to serve music rather than be served by it may profit from my experienec," says Charles Munch in his "I Am A Conductor" (Oxford University Press).

The book is a personal view of a difficult art and profession by the famous conductor of the Boston Symphony orchestra. In it he has given the general principles of conducting, setting forth what his kind of work involves, what it must encounter, and how it reaches its end—the listening public.

Clr. (D 99,877)
This Clipping From RICHMOND, VA.
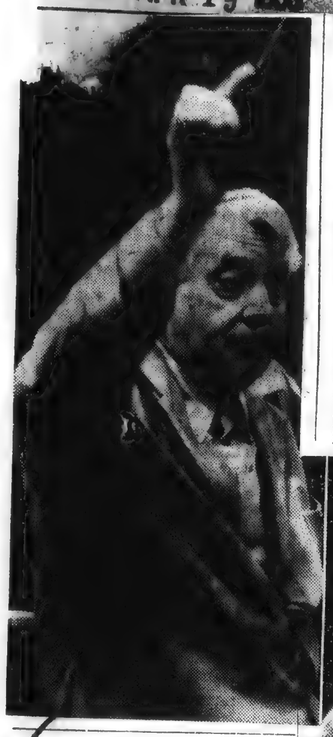
NEWS LEADER
APR 1 9 1955

BOOKS IN THE NEWS:

Intricacies of a Conductor's Art and Mind



I AM A CONDUCTOR, by Charles Munch; translated by Leonard Burkat; Oxford, xxxiii, 104 p., $2.75.

Reviewed by

MARIAN BENNETT COCHRANE

Twice within the past fortnight books have come from the press expressing concern over audience reaction to music: one by a critic, Pleasants' "The Agony of Modern Music," and the present volume by the distinguished conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. This is a healthy sign.

Mr. Munch points out the fact, rarely noted in recent years, that there is no bad public; there are, however, bad composers, bad musicians and bad conductors. He emphasizes that "in music more than anywhere else, our deeds pursue us," and concludes that "in the end it is the public who writes our history, who names the masterpieces and the great interpreters—it is hard to please."

THE MAIN PURPOSE of this book is to explain to the layman the function and importance of the conductor as an interpreter of music through the medium of the symphony orchestra he directs. The author has sound advice for those contemplating a conducting career, as well as some extremely valuable information for the concert-going public. Those who believe that a conductor's activities are confined to beating time and cueing in the various musical entrances of the orchestra are assured that a conductor's career is just as exciting as the composer's. A conductor must have not only a complete technical mastery of his material; he must also train like an athlete and budget his time and energy carefully. In addition, a conductor's life is a perpetual renewing of learning.

"Not the least interesting part of "I Am a Conductor" is an account of Mr. Munch's personal experiences, his reactions to music and the allied arts, and his understanding of the musicians with whom he has worked. He does not disdain any orchestra, he says, having found it most stimulating to work with some of the less-finished groups, for "their goodwill and enthusiasm often more than compensate for their lack of technical attainment. I have many happy memories of conducting orchestras for young musicians," he goes on, "and provincial semiprofessional orchestras."

This small but well-written volume is highly readable, and provides an insight into the intricacies of a conductor's art and mind.

SOCIETY: Birthday Concert to Honor Pierre Monteux, 80

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

Friendships dating back 36 years will be renewed at a much-anticipated concert honoring the 80th birthday of Pierre Monteux on Monday. "Papa" Monteux, as he is affectionately known to members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, came here to conduct in 1919, remaining until the late Serge Koussevitzky was named to the post in 1924. A reception given by the orchestra at the Hotel Fensgate after the Monday evening concert at Symphony Hall will give the musicians a chance to renew acquaintance with Monteux, who has been a frequent guest conductor here since 1951 and on transcontinental tours of the orchestra, sharing honors with Charles Munch.

The all-Beethoven program whic Monteux will conduct will be climaxed by two birthday musical tributes conducted by Munch, and composed for the occasion by Igor Stravinsky and Darius Milhaud. Monteux helped to win public acceptance for Stravinsky's "Petrouchka" and "The Rite of Spring" in the concert hall and for the music of Milhaud, when th latter was a member of France' avant-garde composers known as "Les Six."

Monteux spent 17 years in San Francisco, building that orchestra into one of the major ones of the country, but since his official retirement, he has been living in Hancock, Me., where his wife, the former Doris Hodgkinson, was born.

Among the first to show interest in the Monteux anniversary concert are Boston Symphony "regulars" who have heard every conductor in the orchestra's history, thanks to the return engagement in 1931 of Sir George Henschel, the orchestra's first conductor in 1881.

Among the many honor-roll regulars interested in the Monteux concert are Mrs. S. V. R. Crosby, Miss Frances G. Curtis, Mrs. Henry Endicott, Mrs. Dudley B. Fay, Mrs. Parker Fiske, Mrs. William S. Parker, Mrs. Louis A. Frothingham, Mrs. Carlton Frothingham, Mrs. Franklin T. Hammond, Mrs. Sidney Harwood, Mrs. Henry Hornblower, Mrs. Frederick Hull, Mrs. Edward L. Kent, Mrs. George Lewis, Mrs. Francis A. Seamans, Mrs. Edmund Sears and Mrs. Alvin F. Sortwell.

BOSTON TRAVELER, FRIDAY, APRIL 1, 1955

Monteux Says U. S. Needs 'Minister Of Fine Arts'

Noted Conductor Also Urges Eisenhower Establish a National Conservatory

By HENRY MINOTT

President Eisenhower should add to his cabinet a "minister of fine arts" the dean of America's symphony orchestra conductors said today.

"Ike is a painter — and a darned good one," Pierre Monteux told the United Press. "I can't understand why the President hasn't taken steps to create such a cabinet post and establish a national conservatory."

GUEST OF HONOR MONDAY NIGHT

Monteux will be honor guest at Symphony Hall, Monday night, at a musical salute on his 80th birthday.

The noted musician said he found it "very shocking" that this country, with the world's finest symphony orchestras, had no cabinet post representing the arts.

"Most countries have a minister of fine arts," he said. In France, such a minister is very effective.

"While art is one of the most important parts of American life, the whole world regards us as a commercial country."

Monteux, former conductor of the Boston and the San Francisco symphonies, thinks it's "wicked" for parents to force their children to take music lessons.

Jazz definitely serves a good purpose in the world of music, he believes.

"There is good music and bad music and good jazz and bad jazz. But when someone like Duke Ellington plays popular music it has as much of a place in the American scene as any other kind of good music."

Monteux thinks Beethoven is perhaps the greatest composer that ever lived. He things Beethoven's Ninth Symphony ranks among the greatest compositions, along with the four symphonies of Brahms and Brahms' Requiem.

LAUDS COPELAND AND BERNSTEIN

Asked to name the outstanding composer America has produced thus far, Monteux said: "Undoubtedly Aaron Copeland is best known. But Leonard Bernstein certainly has the most innate and absolute talent.

"And Paul Creston and Walter Piston also are great."

The word "octogenarian" holds no terrors for Monteux. Still actively conducting symphony orchestras up and down the country, looking forward to fall. Then he is to open the Metropolitan Opera season in New York.

[16]

Berkshire Music Festival

WHEN Nathaniel Hawthorne lived and wrote at Tanglewood a century ago, he never dreamed that the same beautiful setting in the green hills of western Massachusetts would some day be the home of one of the nation's best-attended music festivals. Neither did the founders of the Berkshire Festival when they launched the first concert in the summer of 1934.

The initial Festival, consisting of three concerts, was held on the Dan Hanna estate in the Township of Stockbridge. Sixty-five New York Philharmonic-Symphony players performed under the direction of Henry Hadley.

The Festival Committee engaged the Boston Symphony with Serge Koussevitzky as conductor for the 1936 season, and that orchestra has played at each succeeding Festival. Since 1951, following the death of Dr. Koussevitzky, his successor, Charles Munch, has conducted. In the winter of 1936 the 210-acre "Tanglewood" estate was presented to the Boston Symphony Orchestra by Mrs. Gorham Brooks and her aunt, Miss Mary Aspinwall Tappan.

The Music Shed was erected in time for the 1938 Festival, and in 1940 the Berkshire Music Center was established. It includes orchestral conducting, an advanced orchestra, second orchestra, a class in choral conducting, classes in composition, an opera department, and a Festival chorus.

More recently, Festival accomodations have been further enlarged, Shed concerts extended to six weeks, and season's attendance has soared well past the 100,000 mark. That the Festival will continue to flourish seems assured, for as one reviewer observes, "The Festival has a way of making its guests feel at home, and they do their best to reciprocate."

Cir. (D 172,699)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
Christian Science Monitor
APR 2 1955

Pianist Wins Acclaim In Prokofiev Concerto

By Harold Rogers

Gary Graffman is one of the virtuosi of our younger generation of pianists, who are ready to tackle anything. Yesterday afternoon in Symphony Hall he tackled Prokofiev's tour de force, the Third Piano Concerto, and came through in a blaze of pianistic glory.

There are several requisites for this concerto—a cool head, a warm heart, and fingers of steel. Mr. Graffman qualifies. He was unperturbed by the complexities devised by Prokofiev for the keyboard. The notes shot from the piano as if white hot. It would be difficult to say if Mr. Graffman at present has much more than scintillating technique, but it can be said that little more than scintillating technique is needed for this concerto.

* * *

The piano seldom sings for itself but strikes off showers of sparks while the orchestra throbs with a melody of aspiration. In the lyrical Andantino, however, Mr. Graffman showed us briefly that he has a singing tone. The few flaws in this performance were owing to Richard Burgin's difficulty in keeping the Boston Symphony Orchestra instantly integrated with the piano.

But if Mr. Burgin's readings were not always reaching for the skies, his program was interesting from first to last. He opened with a thoroughly satisfying reading of the Concerto in D major for Stringed Instruments, attributed to C.P.E. Bach and arranged by Maximilian Steinberg.

* * *

He continued with the masterwork Bartók composed for the Boston Symphony in 1943—the Concerto for Orchestra. Here, however, the vital spark was all but missing. The music was not enough on tiptoe. The sound—and Bartók was a master at producing fascinating sound—was generally what it should have been, but more than sound is needed for a memorable performance.

After Mr. Graffman played the Prokofiev and took his several calls to enthusiastic applause, Mr. Burgin conducted the voluptuous music from Richard Strauss's "Salome"—the Dance of the Seven Veils. He gave us an entertaining performance, and perhaps it is to his credit that he didn't make the music sound so wicked as it really is.

Ostrovsky Recital Sunday

A recital by Fredy Ostrovsky, member of the first violin section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will be presented Sunday evening at 8:15 at the Boston Club, 20 Beacon Street. No tickets are required.

Assisted by Frank Sheldon at the piano, Mr. Ostrovsky will play [illegible] in A major, Bloch's Nocturne, Ravel's Tzigane, and three pieces for violin alone composed by himself.

MUSIC

Symphony Concert

The Boston Symphony orchestra, Richard Burgin conducting, gave the 20th program of the 74th season in Symphony Hall yesterday afternoon. Gary Graffman, pianist, was the soloist. The program:

Concerto in D . . . C.P.E. Bach-Steinberg
Concerta for Orchestra . . . . . Bartok
Concerto for Piano No. 3, Op. 26 . . . Prokofieff
"Dance of the Seven Veils" from "Salome" . . . . . Strauss

By RUDOLPH ELIE

To those whose attitude to contemporary music is that of change and decay in all around I see, yesterday's program stands as a triumphant assertion of the force and vitality of the real contemporary masterworks.

First of all Bartok's Concerto for Orchestra, a towering work that may well, in the years to come, be regarded as a Fifth Symphony of the 20th century. Today but 11 years old—it was given its world premiere by this orchestra in 1944—it has already found its place as a standard symphonic work on the programs of every major orchestra in the world and there exist no less than four recordings of it.

Tragic Figure

Unlike many an orchestral masterpiece, the Concerto was recognizing from the beginning. Happily, too, for the sake of the composer, a tragic figure who died less than a year after the premiere secure in the knowledge he had at last awakened his audiences. Contrary to the notes in the program by H. W. Heinsheimer, he was present at the first performance in Boston. He came to the stage to knowledge the applause, of which, I reported at the time, "there was a heartening volume."

There was more than a "heartening volume" yesterday afternoon as Richard Burgin conducted the work in a performance as remarkable for the overall impact of its musicality as for its great orchestral virtuosity; indeed, it may be said that it achieved an ovation.

The Concerto begins softly, hauntingly, almost tentatively, presently carrying itself away in a turbulent stream of conflicting rhythms and aggressive harmonies suggesting, perhaps, Bartok's own early struggles in the finding of his musical language. It is impossible to describe the special atmosphere he evokes in the ensuing four movements, the good humored but lugubrious instrumental clowning of the scherzo; the unreleived tragedy of the elegy, almost unparalled in music for its despair and resignation; the radiant, pastoral beauty of the long-breathed melody of the intermezzo and the strong, re-assertive character of the last movement. The instrument bodies are treated throughout as soloists, which lends the Concerto a special brilliance while at the same time providing an endless procession of extraordinary sound effects. All in all, it made its way with the audience as if it were no more formidable than a Brahms symphony.

Complex Idiom

Next was Prokofieff's Third Piano Concerto, also a contemporary masterpiece, and also recognized as such by the audience. To be sure a much less difficult work in its overall intentions, it is nonetheless clothed in a difficult and complex idiom with its typically sudden Prokofieffian modulations into remote keys, its fierce motor force and its bold harmonies. The slow movement, as charming a set of variations as there is, presents no problems whatever while the two outer movements move so fast and so boldly they all but conceal the aggressive character of the musical idiom.

It was played with great bravura and technical assurance by Gary Graffman, a 27-year-old pianist with a formidable keyboard equipment. I like always to remain a little reserved about pianists until I have heard them in solo, for a concerto performance rarely reveals a pianist's real capabilities, but I must say this serious-looking young man gave a very impressive reading of the concerto, excellently seconded by Mr. Burgin and the orchestra.

The concert began with a marvelously grateful little orchestral Concerto bby Emmanuel Bach tastefully scored by Maxmillian Steinberg, a work again revealing the great attainment of the string band (as well as the glowing artistry of the solo woodwinds), and came as an end with Strauss' "Dance of the Seven Veils," as libidinous an essay as Strauss ever composed—and he was an old hand at it. Again Mr. Burgin displayed his great orchestral authority while presenting us, at the same time, with a most interesting program. Mr. Munch returns next week to offer works of Mozart, Berlioz, Debussy and Ravel with Victoria De Los Angeles as soprano soloist in the Berlioz.

Cir. (D 165,036) (S 177,199)
This Clipping From DALLAS, TEX.
NEWS
APR 2 1955

Conductor's Book Debuted in France

BOSTON, Mass.—Charles Munch's just-published "I Am a Conductor" first appeared in France last summer as part of a series in which leading members of professions described their work.

The series originally included Dior on dress design and Honegger on composing.

Cir. (D 331,853) (S 567,298)
This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
APR 2 1955

Boston Symphony Bill

Pierre Monteux will celebrate his eightieth birthday Monday evening by conducting the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a concert for the benefit of its pension fund in Boston's Symphony Hall. The first half of the program, including Beethoven's "Egmont" Overture and Piano Concerto in G major with Leon Fleisher as soloist, will be broadcast on the National Broadcasting Company network from 8:15 to 9 p. m. At the close of the concert, Charles Munch will conduct the orchestra in works composed by Igor Stravinsky and Darius Milhaud in honor of Mr. Monteux' birthday.

April 1

Berkshire Music Festival

WHEN Nathaniel Hawthorne lived and wrote at Tanglewood a century ago, he never dreamed that the same beautiful setting in the green hills of western Massachusetts would some day be the home of one of the nation's best-attended music festivals. Neither did the founders of the Berkshire Festival when they launched the first concert in the summer of 1934.

The initial Festival, consisting of three concerts, was held on the Dan Hanna estate in the Township of Stockbridge. Sixty-five New York Philharmonic-Symphony players performed under the direction of Henry Hadley.

The Festival Committee engaged the Boston Symphony with Serge Koussevitzky as conductor for the 1936 season, and that orchestra has played at each succeeding Festival. Since 1951, following the death of Dr. Koussevitzky, his successor, Charles Munch, has conducted. In the winter of 1936 the 210-acre "Tanglewood" estate was presented to the Boston Symphony Orchestra by Mrs. Gorham Brooks and her aunt, Miss Mary Aspinwall Tappan.

The Music Shed was erected in time for the 1938 Festival, and in 1940 the Berkshire Music Center was established. It includes orchestral conducting, an advanced orchestra, second orchestra, a class in choral conducting, classes in composition, an opera department, and a Festival chorus.

More recently, Festival accomodations have been further enlarged, Shed concerts extended to six weeks, and season's attendance has soared well past the 100,000 mark. That the Festival will continue to flourish seems assured, for as one reviewer observes, "The Festival has a way of making its guests feel at home, and they do their best to reciprocate."

Clr. (D [illegible])
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
Christian Science Monitor
APR 2 1955

Pianist Wins Acclaim In Prokofiev Concerto

By Harold Rogers

Gary Graffman is one of the virtuosi of our younger generation of pianists, who are ready to tackle anything. Yesterday afternoon in Symphony Hall he tackled Prokofiev's tour de force, the Third Piano Concerto, and came through in a blaze of pianistic glory.

There are several requisites for this concerto—a cool head, a warm heart, and fingers of steel. Mr. Graffman qualifies. He was unperturbed by the complexities devised by Prokofiev for the keyboard. The notes shot from the piano as if white hot. It would be difficult to say if Mr. Graffman at present has much more than scintillating technique, but it can be said that little more than scintillating technique is needed for this concerto.

* * *

The piano seldom sings for itself but strikes off showers of sparks while the orchestra throbs with a melody of aspiration. In the lyrical Andantino, however, Mr. Graffman showed us briefly that he has a singing tone. The few flaws in this performance were owing to Richard Burgin's difficulty in keeping the Boston Symphony Orchestra instantly integrated with the piano.

But if Mr. Burgin's readings were not always reaching for the skies, his program was interesting from first to last. He opened with a thoroughly satisfying reading of the Concerto in D major for Stringed Instruments, attributed to C.P.E. Bach and arranged by Maximilian Steinberg.

He continued with the masterwork Bartók composed for the Boston Symphony in 1943—the Concerto for Orchestra. Here, however, the vital spark was all but missing. The music was not enough on tiptoe. The sound—and Bartók was a master at producing fascinating sound—was generally what it should have been, but more than sound is needed for a memorable performance.

After Mr. Graffman played the Prokofiev and took his several calls to [illegible] applause, Mr. Burgin conducted the voluptuous [illegible] Richard Strauss's "Salome's Dance of the Seven Veils" gave us an entertaining performance, and perhaps it is to his credit that he didn't make the music sound so wicked as it really is.

Ostrovsky Recital Sunday

A recital by Fredy Ostrovsky, member of the first violin section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will be presented Sunday evening at 8:15 at the Bost[illegible], Beacon Street. No [illegible] are [illegible].

A [illegible] noon at the [illegible] will play [illegible] major, Bach; [illegible], Ravel's Tzigane, and three pieces for violin alone composed by himself.

MUSIC

Symphony Concert

The Boston Symphony orchestra, Richard Burgin conducting, gave the 20th program of the 74th season in Symphony Hall yesterday afternoon. Gary Graffman, pianist, was the soloist. The program:

Concerto in D..... C.P.E. Bach-Steinberg
Concerto for Orchestra..... Bartok
Concerto for Piano No. 3, Op. 26..... Prokofieff
"Dance of the Seven Veils" from "Salome"..... Strauss

By RUDOLPH ELIE

To those whose attitude to contemporary music is that of change and decay in all around I see, yesterday's program stands as a triumphant assertion of the force and vitality of the real contemporary masterworks.

First of all Bartok's Concerto for Orchestra, a towering work that may well, in the years to come, be regarded as a Fifth Symphony of the 20th century. Today but 11 years old—it was given its world premiere by this orchestra in 1944—it has already found its place as a standard symphonic work on the programs of every major orchestra in the world and there exist no less than four recordings of it.

Tragic Figure

Unlike many an orchestral masterpiece, the Concerto was recognizing from the beginning. Happily, too, for the sake of the composer, a tragic figure who died less than a year after the premiere secure in the knowledge he had at last awakened his audiences. Contrary to the notes in the program by H. W. Heinsheimer, he was present at the first performance in Boston. He came to the stage to knowledge the applause, of which, I reported at the time, "there was a heartening volume."

There was more than a "heartening volume" yesterday afternoon as Richard Burgin conducted the work in a performance as remarkable for the overall impact of its musicality as for its great orchestral virtuosity; indeed, it may be said that it achieved an ovation.

The Concerto begins softly, hauntingly, almost tentatively, presently carrying itself away in a turbulent stream of conflicting rhythms and aggressive harmonies suggesting, perhaps, Bartok's own early struggles in the finding of his musical language. It is impossible to describe the special atmosphere he evokes in the ensuing four movements, the good humored but lugubrious instrumental clowning of the scherzo; the unrelieved tragedy of the elegy, almost unparalled in music for its despair and resignation; the radiant, pastoral beauty of the long-breathed melody of the intermezzo and the strong, re-assertive character of the last movement. The instrument bodies are treated throughout as soloists, which lends the Concerto a special brilliance while at the same time providing an endless procession of extraordinary sound effects. All in all, it made its way with the audience as if it were no more formidable than a Brahms symphony.

Complex Idiom

Next was Prokofieff's Third Piano Concerto, also a contemporary masterpiece, and also recognized as such by the audience. To be sure a much less difficult work in its overall intentions, it is nonetheless clothed in a difficult and complex idiom with its typically sudden Prokofieffian modulations into remote keys, its fierce motor force and its bold harmonies. The slow movement, as charming a set of variations as there is, presents no problems whatever while the two outer movements move so fast and so boldly they all but conceal the aggressive character of the musical idiom.

It was played with great bravura and technical assurance by Gary Graffman, a 27-year-old pianist with a formidable keyboard equipment. I like always to remain a little reserved about pianists until I have heard them in solo, for a concerto performance rarely reveals a pianist's real capabilities, but I must say this serious-looking young man gave a very impressive reading of the concerto, excellently seconded by Mr. Burgin and the orchestra.

The concert began with a marvelously grateful little prchestral Concerto bby Emmanuel Bach tastefully scored by Maxmillian Steinberg, a work again revealing the great attainment of the string band (as well as the glowing artistry of the solo woodwinds), and came as an end with Strauss' "Dance of the Seven Veils," as libidinous an essay as Strauss ever composed—and he was an old hand at it. Again Mr. Burgin displayed his great orchestral authority while presenting us, at the same time, with a most interesting program. Mr. Munch returns next week to offer works of Mozart, Berlioz, Debussy and Ravel with Victoria De Los Angeles as soprano soloist in the Berlioz.

Clr. (D 185,036) (S 177,199)
This Clipping From [illegible] NEWS
APR 2 1955

Conductor's Book Debuted in France

BOSTON, Mass.—Charles Munch's just-published "I Am a Conductor" first appeared in France last summer as part of a series in which leading members of professions described their work.

The series originally included Dior on dress design and Honegger on composing.

Clr. (D 331,853) (S 567,298)
This Clipping From
NEW YORK
HERALD TR[illegible]
APR [illegible] 1955

Boston Symphony Bill

Pierre Monteux will celebrate his eightieth birthday Monday evening by conducting the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a concert for the benefit of its pension fund in Boston's Symphony Hall. The first half of the program, including Beethoven's "Egmont" Overture and Piano Concerto in G major with Leon Fleisher as soloist, will be broadcast on the National Broadcasting Company network from 8:15 to 9 p. m. At the close of the concert, Charles Munch will conduct the orchestra in works composed by Igor Stravinsky and Darius Milhaud in honor of Mr. Monteux' birthday.

MUSIC

Burgin Leads Symphony; Graffman Piano Soloist

Twentieth pair of concerts in the Friday afternoon—Saturday evening series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Richard Burgin conducting, at Symphony Hall. The program: C. P. E. Bach: Concerto in D major for Strings (arr. by Maximilian Steinberg); Bela Bartok: Concerto for Orchestra; Prokofieff: Third Piano Concerto (Gary Graffman, soloist, first appearances with this orchestra); Strauss: Dance of the Seven Veils, from "Salome."

BY CYRUS DURGIN

The Boston Symphony concerts this week are conducted by Richard Burgin, and they are a long crescendo of rhythm, intensity and excitement from the serenities of the string Concerto attributed to Emanuel Bach, to the erotic fevers of Salome's Dance. This music is the sort, I think, for which Mr. Burgin shows highest inclination and proficiency, and he conducted the exacting program very ably indeed.

More than nine years after it was introduced to us, Bela Bartok's Concerto for Orchestra yesterday aroused some remaining grumbles of displeasure from conservative members of the audience. But for the most part, the Friday subscribers—and others, including a good number of college boys and girls on Spring vacation—gave this memorable piece a lively hand. Well they might, for as I view it, here is one of the great masterpieces of the mid-20th Century.

This is really big music, organized with enormous skill of construction, of rhythmic variety and ingenuity beyond adequate description, and melodic invention quite remarkable. Yes, I said it, melodic invention, for beneath the cluster effects of dissonant harmony and of groups of instruments pitted against each other, the score is full of tunes. Some are longer, some fragmentary, but there they are, and they are tunes, often folkish in character, sometimes the sort of tunes which sound well on one instrument and not on another.

Not the least important part of the Concerto for Orchestra is the virtuosity of orchestration. It is as much personal in style as Bartok's masterful juggling of rhythm. Above all these component elements which make the whole, however, is the stature of the piece as communication in music, and this is most impressive stature. The music speaks, it has any amount of heart once you get to know the piece.

Gary Graffman Soloist

Gary Graffman was a soloist new to us, a 26-year-old New Yorker with a big technic, a fine, strong sense of rhythm, and an artist who does not pound even when the forceful rhythmic iterations of Prokofieff invite heavy hands. Indeed, in some of the Concerto's variations, Mr. Graffman played almost shyly. It takes a musician as well as a keyboard virtuoso to play this Concerto, which closely integrates orchestra and piano. The opportunity for solo display is comparatively small. Mr. Graffman is beyond any doubt a genuine musician. He was most enthusiastically recalled after his performance. Needless to add, he should be invited to return in another season.

If the Dance of the Seven Veils is of an Oriental savagery it is also lush and sensual in its ardors. If, as one lady correctly pointed out, "those are very noisy veils," they are silken as well, and there are places where the orchestra must have a fine sheen. That both these exactions were fully met was tribute to the ability of Mr. Burgin.

Next week Mr. Munch will return to the conductor's stand. He will conduct Mozart's E-flat Symphony (K. 543), Berlioz' song cycle, "Nuits d'ete," "La Damoiselle Elue" by Debussy, and the F major Suite by Roussel. The Spanish soprano, Victoria de los Angeles, who has not appeared at these concerts, will be soloist in Berlioz and Debussy.

N. B.—Since next Friday is Good Friday, the afternoon concert of the week will be given on Thursday.

Graffman Soloist at the Symphony

Pianist Wins Acclaim In Prokofiev Concerto

By Harold Rogers

Gary Graffman is one of the virtuosi of our younger generation of pianists, who are ready to tackle anything. Yesterday afternoon in Symphony Hall he tackled Prokofiev's tour de force, the Third Piano Concerto, and came through in a blaze of pianistic glory.

There are several requisites for this concerto—a cool head, a warm heart, and fingers of steel. Mr. Graffman qualifies. He was unperturbed by the complexities devised by Prokofiev for the keyboard. The notes shot from the piano as if white hot. It would be difficult to say if Mr. Graffman at present has much more than scintillating technique, but it can be said that little more than scintillating technique is needed for this concerto.

* * *

The piano seldom sings for itself but strikes off showers of sparks while the orchestra throbs with a melody of aspiration. In the lyrical Andantino, however, Mr. Graffman showed us briefly that he has a singing tone. The few flaws in this performance were owing to Richard Burgin's difficulty in keeping the Boston Symphony Orchestra instantly integrated with the piano.

But if Mr. Burgin's readings were not always reaching for the skies, his program was interesting from first to last. He opened with a thoroughly satisfying reading of the Concerto in D major for Stringed Instruments, attributed to C.P.E. Bach and arranged by Maximilian Steinberg.

* * *

He continued with the masterwork Bartók composed for the Boston Symphony in 1943—the Concerto for Orchestra. Here, however, the vital spark was all but missing. The music was not enough on tiptoe. The sound—and Bartók was a master at producing fascinating sound—was generally what it should have been, but more than sound is needed for a memorable performance.

After Mr. Graffman played the Prokofiev and took his several calls to enthusiastic applause, Mr. Burgin conducted the voluptuous music from Richard Strauss's "Salome"—the Dance of the Seven Veils. He gave us an entertaining performance, and perhaps it is to his credit that he didn't make the music sound so wicked as it really is.

BEANS PORRIDGE HOT

Even after our bodies are fed, the food which keeps us truly alive is an invisible manna which rains from heaven and is picked up from the Desert's dusty face each morning as fresh as dew. We live, all of us live, by the benefactions of men, of institutions, and ideas whose very names, often, we have never heard, —like children whose teeth are saved by dental research, words which they do not comprehend.

A university which depended on students' fees would collapse; a museum of fine arts which relied on its turnstile coins would be a farce; a public library at the mercy of charges for books loaned would be an intellectual junk-heap; a great hospital solely dependent on what patients could pay would be a death-trap. Always it is the same; when we move from the mere level of earning our livings up to those concerns which alone make our livings worth earning, these higher activities of man are seldom if ever entirely self-sustaining in hard money; they are, on the contrary, that which man owes to himself.

* * *

Two world wars and two revolutions have shifted the social ballast in our ship of state. These life-sustaining and spirit-renewing agencies of civilized life, once paid for largely by the rich, are now the possession of the many,—of ourselves. Hospital, library, university, museum, such institutional charges are accepted largely as routine, but a great Orchestra, being relatively a newcomer to our social apparatus, new because the newest as well as the greatest of our contemporary arts, requires an act of conscious thought to admit its claim to the support of the whole community.

The whole community, of course, it serves. "Grandeur of character," says Emerson, "acts in the dark, and succours them who never saw it." Many and many a time over does the Boston Symphony Orchestra pay its way, invisibly, in coin of a higher realm. If any institution gives this city a better repute over a wider area, national and international, what is its name? Money for its daily bread, its bread of the body, it needs and will need yearly, even after its subscribers, its "Friends," its recordings, and broadcasts have paid, as they do pay, all they can. There remains, then, one major course of financial support which is now finally beginning to be appealed to, the business community. "What! Business houses give money to a Symphony Orchestra? What has music to do with business?"

Let a philosopher, the late Alfred North Whitehead, for two decades resident in our midst, suggest an answer:

"It is the function of businessmen to civilize themselves by using their power over the practical processes of life to civilize their sociological functions. It is not enough that they should amass fortunes; and then endow a college or a hospital. The motive in amassing a fortune should be in order to use it for a socially constructive end."

* * *

Cathedrals are symphonies in stone, an orchestral symphony is a cathedral in tone, and America's "Orchestra cities" are to our society as Cathedral cities were to the Middle Ages, power plants of spiritual energy.

No one need be told at this late day the greatness of the Boston Symphony Orchestra when two continents ring with its fame, our own and Europe. No longer a possession of the few (if it ever was), it is now the delight of the many, even to free concerts on the Esplanade and by broadcast, and it is also our responsibility. Its diffusion of civilizing influence is like medical research, it benefits people who have hardly heard of it. This, then, its need of money is beans porridge hot, for what would Boston be without its Orchestra? Baked beans without brown bread?

UNCLE DUDLEY.

BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
APR 3 - 1955

Monteux Got 4 Francs a Day at Folies Bergere

By CYRUS DURGIN

Pierre Monteux will give his own musical birthday party when he turns 80, tomorrow. That is, at night in Symphony Hall he will conduct the Boston Symphony in a special, gala, pension fund concert devoted to the music of Beethoven. There will be other festivities during the day when he will be guest of honor, including a private get-together, with cake, arranged by the musicians of the Orchestra.

But even at the concert he will also be the central figure in more ways than one, for Charles Munch will conduct the first performances of birthday greeting pieces composed and sent by old friends, Igor Stravinsky and Darius Milhaud.

Whatever he will be thinking about tomorrow, I doubt that Pierre Monteux will be much concerned with the fact of having completed four score years upon this uneasy planet. He is not the sort of man to have age upon his mind. Two months ago, in Boston, he grinned when he said to me: "Perhaps I shall retire at 90, but certainly not at 80! That is much too young to stop working!"

Pierre Monteux doesn't show his age much.

★ ★ ★

Those of us in Symphony Hall tomorrow evening will see a familiar and reassuring sight when the door is opened by invisible hands, and the short man with the aldermanic middle and the baton in his right hand, steps out.

★ ★ ★

The walrus mustache will be white, but the hair rippling straight back from his forehead will be black. He will walk slowly and take the long step up to the stand with a little effort. But once he has smilingly accepted applause, with bows, he will turn abruptly and with no more effort than it takes to shake a stick, he will launch the orchestra into the grave unison F which begins the "Egmont" Overture.

There will be no more—and no less—show of effort the rest of the evening, through the Beethoven "Eroica" Symphony or when he joins his young friend, pianist Leon Fleisher, whom he discovered as a boy in San Francisco, in the G major Concerto. It is always this way, the sameness not of stagnation but of an artist who does things in the proper way natural to him.

Monteux is a rudder, a keel, a gyroscope or any other figure you choose, to infer stabilizing influence. He is a gentleman and a scholar, a builder of orchestras, an artist who never was given to calisthenics, who knows his business inside out and who today is at the peak of his musical powers.

★ ★ ★

Beneath all this calm, however, is the Monteux of feeling and zest, of humor and enormous knowledge, which are ageless. He may appear to be taking things easy, but listen to the music! Drama and eloquence, passion and surge are in your ears as he urges the music on.

★ ★ ★

Although he claims to be lazy, for a good many years now, Monteux has been urging the music on. Ever since the day, in 1911, when he conducted the first performance in Paris, by the Diaghilev Ballet Russe, of Stravinsky's "Petrouchka." That was his real big start, although for some years before he had been making his way with the baton.

If chickens come from eggs—and vice versa—where do musical conductors come from? Usually—and best—they come from the ranks of the orchestra, players with a special, added gift. Munch was a violinist, Koussevitzky a double-bass virtuoso, Toscanini a cellist. Monteux had been both violinist and violist. He was born in Paris April 4, 1875, of a mother who taught piano and a father who, in Monteux's own words, was "not only not musical, but almost anti-musical."

"My father was a traveler in shoes, a manufacturer's agent," smiled the conductor, his spectacles on his nose and a reminiscent gleam in his eyes. "My father knew nothing about music, cared nothing about it, and had no ear whatever for it. If occasion demanded that he join in singing 'La Marseillaise' he would go like this . . ." and Mr. Monteux sang the first phrase of the French National Anthem completely out of tune.

★ ★ ★

"That was not bad for me," Monteux continued, "for by the time I began to show talent, my father had learned his lesson. It did go badly for my older brother, however, for he wanted desperately to be a musician and our father would not permit it. So my brother in his early 'teens, went into business.

★ ★ ★

"Naturally he was not successful, for he dreamed of nothing but music. When he was 18, our father relented and my brother turned with what joy I cannot tell you, to music. But it was too late for him to make a big career, and he spent his life conducting small cafe concert bands. Yet he did become my first teacher of harmony and solfege.

"By the time I was six, my father had determined that if I did have talent, I should begin to study early. So he put in my hands a half-size violin, and sent me to study with Felix Bloc, who had married my sister. She had learned piano from my mother, and she and her husband played sonatas together and must have made a certain musical atmosphere in the family that had its effect upon me.

"After three years, I was entered at the Paris Conservatory. By 13 I was playing, when I could, with my brother's cafe concert band, and by 14 I had a part-time job playing second violin in the Folies Bergere orchestra. All this time, of course, I was still a pupil at the Paris Conservatory.

★ ★ ★

"I got four francs a day at the Folies Bergere," and the reminiscent smile became a grin as he thought of it, "enough for me to pay my mother for room and board. So truthfully I can say that I have been earning my own living since I was 14."

★ ★ ★

This account of his youth was punctuated, from time to time, with the phrase "but I am so lazy, you know." He explained that he never had become much of a pianist. "I could have learned, so easily, from my mother," and here he looked into space for a moment, and then the smile returned as he concluded: "but I really am lazy."

That seems to be an exaggeration. All during his student years he combined education with the practical business of making a living by music. And at some point, he does not recall exactly when, he also took up the viola, and entirely upon his own initiative.

"I never actually studied the viola, if only for the reason that, at the time, there was no course in viola at the Paris Conservatory. I liked the viola, and eventually I gave up the violin for it."

But that was not until he had won first prize in violin at the Conservatory. It was 1896, Monteux was 21, and on the same day he and his friend, Jacques Thibaud (the latter to become a famous virtuoso) each won a "first" award.

"You have to have a much bigger technic for violin than viola. I simply played the two interchangeably. After all, when you have a viola in your hand, you forget, for the moment, about the violin. There were really two reasons why I became a violist. One was my laziness, I did not want to practice as much as you have to "PAPA" MONTEUX invariably has a twinkle in his eye that makes you think he is a good deal less than the 80 he will be tomorrow. He'll give his own musical birthday party by conducting Boston Symphony pension fund concert at Symphony Hall tomorrow night.

if you want to keep up violin technic. The viola I did not have to practice. The other reason was practical, economic.

★ ★ ★

"At 18 I had learned that the post of first viola in the Colonne Orchestra was vacant. I won the competition for it, though still a student.

★ ★ ★

"Edouard Colonne himself said to me: 'Monteux, if you keep up your practice you can become one of 200 first-rate violinists in France. But if you change to viola, you can become the best viola player in all of France.' I took his advice and never regretted it. Thus I began what was to be 17 years as solo viola with Colonne."

The years slipped by. Monteux learned a large portion of the symphonic repertory "from the inside out," and learned so well that when later he began to conduct he had no need to study anew the symphonic scores of Mozart, Beethoven, Brahms and so on.

He had time for a few chamber concerts occasionally, and was received into a quartet whose other three members were Albert Geloso, first violin; Lucien Capet, second violin and Monteux' intimate friend, and a Netherlander named Fritz Schneklund, the cellist. Schneklund was fated to remain totally obscure, except for a shred of reflected glory, for Schneklund was a friend of the Paris stockbroker who left money, position and family to paint in the South Seas—Paul Gauguin.

★ ★ ★

Sometime during those 17 years, and he cannot for the life of him remember just exactly when or what the music was—Pierre Monteux began to conduct. It evidently was during his early 20s, for at 26 his fellow players elected him assistant conductor of the Colonne Orchestra.

★ ★ ★

Probably you could say that Monteux studied conducting by doing it. He had learned much from the invaluable experience of having played under nearly all the great conductors of the day—Colonne himself, Felix Mottl, Artur Nikisch, Hermann Levi, Hans Richter, Felix Weingartner, Willem Mengelberg, Gustav Mahler and Richard Strauss. After more than 40 years, three of them remain vividly in his mind: Nikisch, whom he recalls as the most remarkable, "a real poet;" Mahler, fearfully intense and a precise, demanding disciplinarian, and Strauss, the easy-going. Nikisch, you gather, has remained Monteux' ideal of "a most impressive, all-around conductor."

From 26 to 37 Monteux worked faithfully and modestly, laying the foundation for what, not yet known to him, would be a distinguished international career. Then the big chance came, and like so many big chances in this world, it was something of an accident.

The Diaghilev Ballet Russe was popular in Paris, and a year before a young Russian composer named Igor Stravinsky had made a success with a ballet called "The Firebird." Now he had a new score, and a difficult one, whose title was "Petrouchka."

Nikolai Tcherepnine was Diaghilev's regular conductor, but when the troupe visited Paris they always hired the Colonne Orchestra for the pit. Once again the Colonne players were signed, but someone had to rehearse the orchestral part of "Petrouchka" before the dancers arrived. Gabriel Pierne, French elder statesman among musicians, was approached, and he was agreeable provided that he could also conduct the premiere. That was not to Diaghilev's liking, so Pierne said a cool No.

★ ★ ★

The next choice was Pierre Monteux, who eagerly took up the work and prepared it so well that Diaghilev reversed his position and delightedly invited Monteux to preside at the Paris premiere. That made Monteux, and from then on the way was up and easier.

★ ★ ★

A year later Monteux was asked to share the conducting with Tcherepnine; a year after that he was abruptly summoned to London when a dispute parted Diaghilev and Tcherepnine. Until World War I, Monteux was Diaghilev's principal conductor. Five days after France ordered mobilization, Monteux was in the army.

The next two years were military service, mostly grim and gray, but whenever he was not in proximity to Wilhelm II's spike-helmeted troops, and a fiddle could be found, Monteux limbered up fingers and bowing arm, and his fellow poilus liked it.

To Diaghilev, evidently, the war meant mostly deprivation of his best conductor. By the season of 1916-17, the Ballet Russe had departed upon their first visit to the United States. The stubborn impressario wanted his first conductor back, war or no war. He had sufficient brass to pull wires with the French military brass, and emerged with incredible success. Not only did he get a three-months leave for Monteux, but even obtained an extension. Probably Diaghilev did not deserve all the credit for this spectacular maneuver.

★ ★ ★

The French are wise in an old and civilized way, and the chances are that men in the War Office and along the Quai d'Orsay felt that a Monteux in uniform was but another morsel of cannon fodder, whereas a Monteux in America as representative of the finest in French musical theatre could be a valuable maker of friends-for-France.

★ ★ ★

That, exactly, was what happened. When the Ballet Russe season had ended, Otto Kahn, then a power at the Metropolitan Opera, asked Monteux to remain and conduct the French repertory in the dingy yellow brick temple at the corner of Broadway and 39th st. Monteux was obliged personally to cable the French Ministry and ask permission. The reply was a special order-with-power, to the French consul in New York to separate one Pierre Monteux temporarily from the French army. An honorable discharge followed.

Now Monteux was an international figure in music. He was highly respected for the quiet, efficient manner in which he could produce a good orchestra from more or less raw material. He had finesse, elegance as interpreter, authority as technician.

Up in Boston, in the Spring of 1918, Dr. Karl Muck, a German and great conductor of the great Boston Symphony, was arrested and interned under circumstances which, to my knowledge, have never been explained sufficiently to warrant assumption that he was guilty of espionage. Forty-odd members of the orchestra were German, and they had to go.

From a sumptuous instrument, Maj Higginson's pride was reduced to a crippled ensemble. A new conductor had to be found, and one of eminence. Henri Rabaud, something of a composer, less of a conductor, but French and esteemed, was the man chosen. But he could not cross the Atlantic, full of U-boats, in time for the season's opening.

★ ★ ★

Monteux it was who stepped in for the first three weeks, drilled the orchestra and opened the season.

Raubaud spent his year here and if I may enter a speculation both he and the Boston trustees were inwardly pleased when he declined to return. Now Monteux was No. 1 man. The Autumn of 1919 saw him assume the stand as conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in full power, title and reputation.

But in March, 1920, trouble returned. The episode of the musicians' strike is too long to be told again here, but when the heat of disagreement had cooled, again the orchestra was reduced in numbers, crippled in effectiveness. Again Monteux set to work building it up. He did it so well, restoring the Boston Symphony's good musical name as well as its prowess that, in 1924, when he left Boston and Serge Koussevitzky arrived, Monteux handed over a first-rate orchestra to the brilliant, intuitive Slav.

The next move changed Monteux' base of operation from America to Europe. Asked to help out with the Concertgebouw Orchester of Amsterdam while Willem Mengelberg was sick, Monteux readily agreed. The eventual outcome was 12 years in the Dutch city, and status as associate conductor with Mengelberg.

★ ★ ★

All this time, however, as before, Monteux traveled about when he was free, conducting many orchestras as guest. He estimates that he has worked with 66 different orchestras.

★ ★ ★

Another call for help was received in 1936. This time it was from the city of San Francisco, where the Symphony had all but breathed its last. Dr. Monteux took charge of the patient, nursed it carefully, and saw it restored to better health than it ever had enjoyed. All told, 17 years of the Monteux Odyssey were spent in the cosmopolitan West Coast city, where the life, musical and gourmet, pleased him.

Cir. (D 503,999) (S 1,096,790)
This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
APR 3 - 1955

MONTEUX AT 80

Conductor's Vitality Is Undiminished As He Plans for Continued Activity

By OL[illegible]ES

TOMORROW night Pierre Monteux, on the occasion of his eightieth birthday, will conduct in Symphony Hall the major part of the program of the Pension Fund of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The orchestra is one with which he has special ties, lasting from the five years of his directorship of that body from 1919 to 1924, and the many "guest" appearances he has made since and will make again as its leader.

At the same concert Charles Munch, the Boston orchestra's present director, will salute Mr. Monteux by conducting two short new works Darius Milhaud and Igor Stravinsky have composed in his honor. After the concert there will be still further festivities in his honor.

The nature of this occasion will be characteristic of Monteux and of his rather incredible activities as a foremost orchestral leader of our period. He celebrates his birthday not by taking some leisure and relaxation with family and friends, but by donating his services to the Pension Fund of the great orchestra with whose very survival in the troubled years after World War I he had much to do, and whose existence and impeccable standards of achievement he has deeply at heart.

It is also significant of Monteux and his career that tomorrow night's concert has in it nothing of the valedictory nature about it. It will be an episode, a memorable one, but simply an event in a series of symphonic and operatic occasions which, through the coming summer, here and abroad, represents a fragment of two years' quota of performances that leave Monteux as much engaged as he can contemplate with equanimity up to 1958!

In eleven days last February Mr. Monteux conducted nine Boston Symphony concerts and one Metropolitan opera. It is his boast, and an extremely pardonable one, that in sixty-five years of conducting he has not missed a rehearsal or a performance. This is due not only to physical stamina but also to courage. One day in a season past, on a short tour with the Boston Symphony, Mr. Monteux was in an automobile accident that cracked four of his ribs. The orchestra's manager, William Brennan, put it to him squarely—could he endure the four concerts just in front of them, and rest when they got back to Boston? Mr. Monteux conducted that night, after the doctor had taped and strapped him, and went through with the four concerts of the itinerary.

Busy Schedule

And here, aside from another Metropolitan appearance this week and a few more orchestral dates before he sails for London, is what our octogenarian friend has before him in the months immediately to come:

Two concerts with the London Philharmonic on April 24 and 25.

Opera performances, with four young American singers with whom Monteux has already worked in preparation and will take abroad with him, of Gluck's "Orfeo" and Debussy's "Pelléas et Mélisande" at the Théatre Royale de la Monnaie, on May 18, 19, 20, 26, 27, and 28.

The making of records—orchestral—in Paris in early June.

A gala concert there on the ninth of that month, when the program will consist entirely of certain of the most famous of the "firsts" that Monteux has conducted in his lifetime. They will include Stravinsky's "Petruchka" and "Sacre du printemps"; Debussy's "Jeux"; Ravel's "Daphnis et Chloe." He conducts the "Sacre du printemps" on June 15 at Strassbourg—and what memories that performance, which he conducted in 1913, have for him!

He directs four concerts for the Holland Music Festival, in Amsterdam, Scheveningen, and other cities that festival visits in the course of its annual ministrations, on June 24, 25, 26 and 27.

He then [illegible] for our various summer festivals, including appearances at the Stadium concert of July 27; at the Dell in Philadelphia; at the Tanglewood Festival in the two weeks in late July, and at Ravinia Park in Chicago for his fifteenth consecutive season there.

Here, also, are special associations for Monteux. One of them is an occasion, during the annual Ravinia summer season, when the viola player of the Budapest Quartet was unexpectedly delayed, just prior to its concert. Informed of the mishap, Monteux found a viola—"not my viola," he said, "but a viola"—took his place in the quartet without rehearsal, and played with complete security and a resultant smoothness of ensemble.

The other personal association is the manner in which his Ravinia engagements are made. There is no contract, nor has there been one. But at the end of the season Mr. Monteux receives a bottle of his favorite Pontet-Canet wine, and on this bottle a ribbon with the inscription: "A bientôt"! It is a comrade's agreement.

Violinist

From early beginnings, and before he graduated as a first prize-winner in violin from the Paris Conservatoire in 1896, Monteux was conducting, in small theatres, in cafés, with little orchestras that soon were to give place to big ones. In the violin test there were 300 competing. Two other winners of first prizes besides Monteux were Jacques Thibaud and Pierre Sechiari. Sechiari, phenomenally gifted, died young.

Already Monteux had become authoritative with the viola as well as the violin, and had augmented his income by many a small fee received for taking part in quartet performances. A 'cellist advised that he specialize on the viola, as Paris was overcrowded with first-rate violinists. Monteux became first violist in the orchestra of the Opéra-Comique and first violinist of the Colonne Orchestra, of which he soon became assistant conductor. He later conducted the Colonne Orchestra, just as he later conducted most of the great orchestras of Russia, England, France, Italy and America. His last engagement as the permanent director of a symphonic body was the seventeen years he spent, from 1935, in building the San Francisco Orchestra to its present eminence.

It is not easy to separate the strands, chronologically speaking, of the intense and varied activities of his early years, or of the years that lie directly in his path. These include that activity which lies nearest his heart—the conductor's school that he directs each August at Hancock, Me. He shrugged his shoulders, with mock chagrin, and twinkling eye. "And yet," he complained, referring to the end of his long engagement with the San Francisco Symphony, "they say I have resigned!"

Cir. (D 294,859) (S 252,207)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
POST
APR 3 - 1955

Rare Symphony Program To Benefit Pension Fund

By ROSE WALSH
Society Editor

Boston Symphony followers and their friends have a rare treat in store tomorrow evening when the noted Pierre Monteux who conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra from 1919 to 1924 returns to Symphony Hall to celebrate his 80th birthday by conducting a concert of all-Beethoven music for the benefit of the orchestra's pension fund. Beethoven is the conductor's favorite composer. Many music lovers who attended symphony during Monteux' era will be on hand to wish him "happy returns of the day," tomorrow evening. During his notable career including 17 years with the San Francisco Symphony Mr. Monteux has conducted 65 orchestras in the United States and abroad.

A special feature of the occasion will come at the end of the concert when Boston Symphony conductor Dr. Charles Munch will lead the orchestra in two compositions written by Igor Stravinsky and Darius Milhaud.

Among those planning to attend the important symphony event are Mrs. R. L. deNormandie, Mrs. S. L. Slosberg, Mrs. William Dexter, Mrs. George E. Judd, Mrs. Roger S. Clapp, Mrs. Templeton Pond, Mrs. Serge Koussevitsky, Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Means, Mrs. Margaret Ruthven Lang, Mrs. Samuel Mixter, Mrs. Mary M. Sampson, Mrs. Eleonore Gould, Mrs. E. J. Samson, Mrs. Elton Gray, Cushman, Mrs. John Lunn, Mrs. Otis T. Russell, Mrs. Gregory Camp, Mrs. Philip R. Mather, Mrs. Robert H. Montgomery and numerous others.

Cir. (D 131,670) (S 258,529)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
APR 3 - 1955

Boston to Honor Monteux Tomorrow

The 80th birthday of Pierre Monteux, a landmark in a long career, will be celebrated tomorrow night when a large audience greets him in Symphony hall. Mr. Monteux in response will conduct the Boston Symphony orchestra, which was once his own, in an all-Beethoven program for the benefit of the orchestra's pension fund. It will include the "Egmont" Overture, the Fourth Piano Concerto, with Leon Fleisher as soloist and the "Eroica" Symphony. At the conclusion of the regular program, Charles Munch will greet his colleague, make a presentation yet to be divulged and conduct two works composed for the occasion by two of the foremost living composers, long indebted to this conductor for introduction of their music. They are "Greeting Prelude for the 80th Birthday of Pierre Monteux" by Stravinsky, and "Pensee amicale" by Milhaud.

Cir. (D 54,143) (S 104,048)
This Clipping From
WORCESTER, MASS.
TELEGRAM
APR 3 - 1955

Monteux To Direct Symphony

The 119th Pension Fund Concert of the Boston Symphony Orchestra on Mont[illegible]ll be heard in part on WBZ-NBC radio at 8.15 p.m. The renowned conductor Pierre Monteux, will direct this concert, and the American pianist Leon Fleischer will be soloist.

The occasion also will mark Monteux' 80th birthday, and special ceremonies will be held in Boston to mark the occasion after the broadcast.

For the special broadcast, Monteux has chosen two of Beethoven's most popular works. The "Egmont Overture" will open the concert, followed by the "Concerto No. 4 in C Major" with Leon Fleischer as soloist.

His contribution to the musical life of the U. S. has been prodigious. As conductor of the original Ballet Russe starring the great Nijinsky in its American tours, and then as conductor of the Boston Symphony from 1919 to 1924, he wrote glorious pages in the history of musical performance.

Later, as director of the San Francisco Symphony and currently as a guest conductor of the Boston Symphony and Berkshire Music Center, he continues to bring his great art to American audiences. In recent years he has added to his renown with performances at the Metropolitan Opera. He also was one of the founders of the NBC Symphony Orchestra.

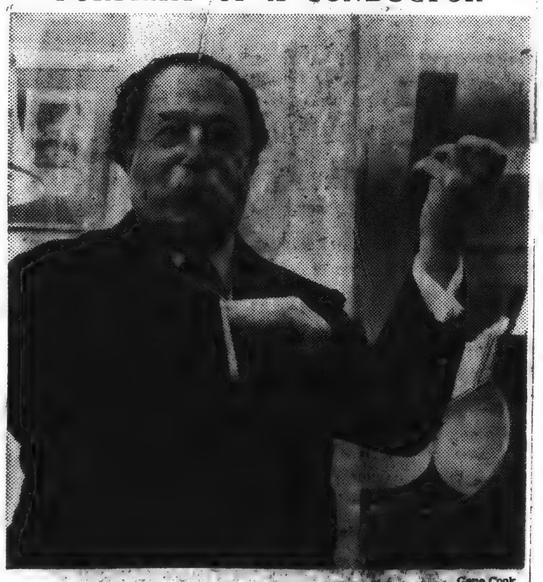
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
APR 3 - 1955

Munch Will Return For Saturday Concert

Cities Service Band of America, under direction of Paul Lavalle, will salute the circus tomorrow with "Under the Big Top" and "Circus Day Parade."

The Boston Symphony Orchestra on Saturday will be directed by Charles Munch, with Victoria de los Angeles as guest soloist in Berlioz's "Nuits d'Ete."

PORTRAIT OF A CONDUCTOR



Gene Cook

Pierre Monteux, in relaxed mood, as he was photographed a few days before his 80th birthday, which occurs tomorrow.

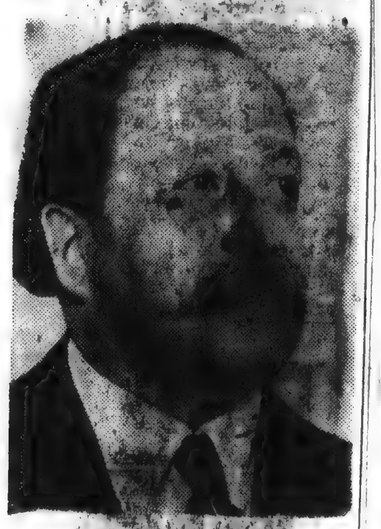
[20]

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
APR 3 - 1955

MONTEUX WILL CONDUCT ON HIS 80TH BIRTHDAY

To Lead BSO Pension Fund Concert at Boston Tomorrow

Boston, April 2—The 119th Pension Fund Concert of the Boston Symphony Orchestra tomorrow will be heard in part on the NBC Radio network (8.15 to 9 p. m., EST). Pierre Monteux, will direct this special concert and the American pianist Leon Fleischer will be soloist. The occasion also will mark Monteux' 80th birthday, and special ceremonies will be held in



PIERRE MONTEUX

Boston to mark the occasion after the broadcast.

For the special broadcast, Monteux has chosen two of Beethoven's most popular works. The "Egmont" Overture will open the concert, followed by the Concerto No. 4 in C major with Fleischer as soloist.

Monteux' contribution to the musical life of the U. S. has been prodigious. As conductor of the original Ballet Russe starring the great Nijinsky in its American tours and then as conductor of the Boston Symphony from 1919 to 1924, he wrote glorious pages in the history of musical performance. Later, as director of the San Francisco Symphony and currently as a guest conductor of the Boston Symphony and Berkshire Music Center, he continues to bring his great art to American audiences.

In recent years he has added to his renown with brilliant performances at the Metropolitan Opera. He also was one of the founders of the NBC Symphony Orchestra.

Cle. (D 57,751) (S 49,376)
This Clipping From
NEW BEDFORD, MASS.
STANDARD-TIMES
APR 3 1955

Pierre Monteux Feted Tomorrow

Will Conduct Boston Symphony in Program

Special to The Standard-Times

BOSTON, April 2—The 80th birthday of Pierre Monteux, a landmark in a long career, will be celebrated Monday night when a great audience greets him in Symphony Hall.

Mr. Monteux, in response will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra, which [illegible] his own, in an all-Beethoven program for the benefit of the orchestra's pension fund. It will include the "Egmont" Overture, the "Fourth Piano Concerto," with Leon Fleisher as soloist and the "Eroica Symphony."

At the conclusion of the regular program, Charles Munch will greet his colleague and make a presentation which cannot yet be divulged and conduct two works composed for the occasion by two foremost living composers, who are long indebted to this conductor for the introduction of their music.

They are "Greeting Prelude for the 80th Birthday of Pierre Monteux" by Stravinsky, and "Pensee Amicale," by Milhaud.

The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Munch, will give the 21st pair of concerts at Symphony Hall next Thursday afternoon and Saturday night. The program will open with Mozart's "Symphony No. 30 in E Flat." Victoria de los Angeles, the soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, will make her first apperances at these concerts in two numbers, one of which will have its first performance in this series—Berlioz's "Summer Nights," a cycle of six songs by Theophile Gautier and composed for voice and orchestra. The other work will be Debussy's "The Blessed Damozel," in which the Radcliffe Choral Society and Carol Smith, contralto, will also assist. The closing number will be Roussel's "Suite in F."

There will be a concert on April 12 in Symphony Hall, in which Maurice Eisenberg will appear as soloist in Elgar's "Concerto in E Minor," for violoncello and orchestra. Mr. Munch will open with Roussel's "Suite in F" and close the program with Beethoven's "Pastoral Symphony."

On April 14, the last of the series of open rehearsals will take place. Isaac Stern, the violinist, will take part in this rehearsal in preparation for the program to follow.

France-amérique

LE JOURNAL FRANÇAIS DES ETATS-UNIS

127 EAST 81ST STREET
NEW YORK 28, N. Y.
TEL. REGENT 7-9450

Pour ses 80 ans PIERRE MONTEUX

conduira, le lundi 4 avril, l'orchestre symphonique de Boston

VOICI plus d'un demi-siècle, quelques années avant la première guerre, mon père était violoniste et altiste du fameux orchestre des Concerts Colonne de Paris. Pour compléter notre éducation musicale, chaque samedi matin, mes deux frères et moi partions "avec Papa" pour assister à par Louis SPEYER, soliste de l'Orchestre symphonique de Boston

la répétition. Avec quelle joie nous admirions les musiciens et le grand chef, Edouard Colonne! Ce petit homme, avec sa tête inspirée, son immense chevelure et sa barbe blonde, nous semblait un géant sur la scène! C'était un grand romantique; ses interprétations de Berlioz et de Franck sont restées incomparables. Lorsque nous avons entendu pour la première fois la "Damnation de Faust", l'impression fut inoubliable. Le chef des choeurs, second chef et alto solo, était un jeune artiste que, déjà, on admirait beaucoup. Il s'appelait Pierre Monteux.

Ce fut ma première rencontre avec celui qui devait devenir un de mes chefs, le professeur de violon de mon frère et, j'ose le dire avec fierté, un grand ami.

Quelques années plus tard, armé de mon premier prix de hautbois, je pris part à certains concerts de l'Orchestre Colonne, sous la direction de Gabriel Pierné.

Le mois de mai à Paris a toujours été l'époque musicale par excellence: festivals, récitals par les plus grands artistes du monde. En 1909, les Ballets russes de Diaghilev donnèrent à l'Opéra leurs premières représentations. Ce fut une véritable révolution artistique.

Un nouvel orchestre, consacré à la musique moderne, fut formé à Paris: les Concerts Monteux. Mon frère et moi en faisions partie. Le "Sacre du Printemps" y fut donné pour la première fois.

1914. Plus d'autre musique, hélas, que celle des canons et fusils. Pierre Monteux, mobilisé aux premières heures de la guerre, fait son devoir dans les tranchées, bien loin des salles de concert. En 1916, un ordre ministériel rappelle notre poilu: il s'agit d'aller affirmer la pérennité artistique de la France aux Etats-Unis, où tous les grands chefs d'orchestre sont allemands. Pierre Monteux part conduire les Ballets russes à l'Opéra Métropolitain de New-York.

1918, victoire! L'orchestre de Boston fait appel à la France pour remplacer son chef allemand, le Dr K. Muck, obligé de démissionner. Henri Rataud, grand musicien, compositeur de l'opéra "Marouf", accepte de venir, mais ne peut commencer la saison en octobre. Pierre Monteux se dévoue pour son collègue et conduit les trois premiers concerts; ils sont accueillis avec enthousiasme.

Henri Rataud, après une saison trop longue pour ses forces, est rappelé à Paris, à la direction du Conservatoire.

Pierre Monteux est à Boston. Il le remplace sur l'heure. Il restera cinq années avec la "Boston Symphony". Nous pouvons lui accorder le titre de "Sauveur" de cet orchestre. Seul, un musicien comme lui pouvait faire face à des événements aussi graves que le renvoi de tous les musiciens allemands non naturalisés et une grève qui laissa l'orchestre réduit à quelques dizaines de musiciens.

Avec un courage inouï, Monteux fit face à toutes les difficultés. Par un travail acharné, grâce à son immense talent et à ses profondes qualités humaines, notre grand chef put laisser à son successeur, Serge Koussevitzky, un excellent orchestre.

Après un court séjour à Philadelphie, Monteux revint en France pour prendre la direction de l'Orchestre Symphonique. Ensuite, il partagea avec W. Mengelberg la direction du fameux Concertgebow de Hollande.

En 1935, retour aux Etats-Unis. San Francisco appelle Pierre Monteux. En quelques années, le San Francisco Symphony devint l'un des meilleurs du pays.

Aujourd'hui, le fameux Maestro est invité par les plus grands orchestres du monde entier. Son succès, et le respect qu'il inspire, le placent en tête du monde musical.

Après chaque saison bien remplie, il n'a qu'une hâte: retourner à Hancock, Maine, avec Mme Doris Monteux, originaire de cette région. Là, ils retrouvent le calme apaisant de leur "home". Mais le Maître peut-il rester inactif? Il a fondé "L'Ecole Monteux pour chefs d'orchestre". Pendant six semaines, les jeunes musiciens viennent, sous sa direction et dans une charmante atmosphère d'intimité artistique, étudier l'art de diriger.

Charles Münch, le chef de la Boston Symphony, a toujours montré son amitié et son admiration pour son collègue, en partageant avec lui les grandes tournées d'Europe et des Etats-Unis.

Dans un geste magnifique, Pierre Monteux a offert à la Boston Symphony de venir le jour de son 80ème anniversaire, lundi prochain, 4 avril, conduire le concert donné au bénéfice de la Pension des Musiciens. Pour tous les musiciens qui ont travaillé avec lui, pour ses innombrables amis, rien ne pouvait être plus beau que de revoir en ce jour mémorable notre Pierre Monteux au pupitre de l'orchestre, qui lui doit tant.

DALLAS, TEX.
NEWS
APR 4 1955

Monteux, Boston Symphony in Benefit Concert

A special concert of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will be heard at 7:15-8 p.m., Monday, on WFAA-820. The concert for the benefit of the Orchestra's Pension Fund will be conducted by Pierre Monteux and the American pianist Leon Fleischer will be soloist.

The occasion also will mark Monteux's 80th birthday, and there will be a special greeting to him during the intermission.

Two of Beethoven's most popular works, the "Egmont" Overture and the Concerto No. 4 in C Major have been chosen for the concert.

CELLIST-COMPOSER of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Jacobus Langendoen, whose salute to Pierre Monteux will be given tonight at pension fund concert.

(Globe Staff Photo by Thomas O'Connor)

VETERAN MUSICIANS—Pierre Monteux (center), 80 years old today, will direct Boston Symphony Orchestra tonight in special concert. He is shown with Arthur Fiedler (left), who played under Monteux in 1915, and Richard Burgin, who also started his career under Monteux.

Langendoen Conducts Own Tribute

Cellist Turns Table on Papa Monteux

Tonight is the night that famed symphony conductor Pierre "Papa" Monteux has a very special party on his 80th birthday.

Symphony Hall will be jammed, and a coast to coast radio audience will listen into the special Boston Symphony Orchestra pension fund concert.

But that won't be all. After the last applause has died down at Symphony Hall, a few of Monteux' Boston Symphony friends from the old days (he was its conductor from 1919-24) will go over to the Hotel Fensgate.

And there the tables will be turned, so to speak, on Monteux by Jacobus Langendoen, the cellist Monteux brought to Boston many years ago from Holland. Monteux is famed for introducing new music, and Langendoen has oftentimes played with the Symphony in that capacity.

But tonight the 64-year-old Langendoen will pick up the baton, and the older man with the walrus mustache will listen while Langendoen's own private birthday tribute is played by 12 of the Symphony players.

Langendoen, known to hundreds of music lovers hereabouts as "Jake," lives in Newton. He also has a substantial reputation as a teacher and composer.

His special birthday tribute tonight is full of witty twists. It includes a bit from Igor Stravinski's famed "Rites of Spring," which Monteux long ago introduced to a Boston audience.

This evokes the story of how the famed French-born conductor engaged Langendoen for the Boston Symphony. The cellist still remembers the details with excitement.

Discovered in 1919

"Jake" trained in the Dutch Royal Conservatory and became first cellist of the Royal Opera at The Hague. The year was 1919, and Monteux, the Boston Symphony's conductor, was in Paris. He needed a new cellist for his orchestra.

Informed that young Jacobus Langendoen seemed a likely candidate, Monteux sent word that he would like to come from Paris to audition him.

The e[illegible] took place in a hotel, with Beethoven's "Symphonic Variations" as the test piece. At the end, Monteux was enthusiastic. He said, "You're engaged, if you can go to Boston."

"Er, sir, would you wait a little until I consult my wife," Jake gulped.

Ran Home and Told

"I grabbed my cello and ran for home," he recalled today. "I figured I could make better time on foot than by other way.

"In 20 minutes the cello and I arrived at home, and I gasped out to my wife, 'Lenie, do you want to go to America with me?'"

The cellist's wife replied without hesitation, "I'll go anywhere."

Langendoen played in the front rank of the Boston Symphony cellists throughout the five years of Monteux' regime, then a quarter century under Serge Koussevitzky.

He has continued under Charles Munch's six seasons.

Recently Munch introduced two of Langendoen's compositions at Symphony concerts and Arthur Fiedler has played his works—some of them symphonic, some in lighter vein—at the Pops. "Jake" has been heading the Pop's cello section and the Esplanade concerts.

MONDAY, APRIL 4, 1955

Monteux Leads Boston Symphony

By FRED BRADY

Pierre Monteux—dean of world conductors—tonight gets his 80th birthday present when he plays Beethoven with "my old orchestra," the Boston Symphony.

Monteux conducted the Boston Symphony from 1919 to 1924 and has been here as guest conductor again and again, most recently during the illness of Charles Munch.

Monteux, citizen of the world and voting citizen of Hancock, Me., will have some of his old orchestra tonight — 13 players who were here when he was conductor.

POPS CONDUCTOR

If you look carefully into the viola section during the "Egmont Overture"—his is an all-Beethoven program—you will see his old viola man—Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Pops.

Mr. and Mrs. Fiedler, Thomas D. Perry, Jr., manager of the Boston Symphony, and violinist Harry Ellis Dickson, met M. Monteux yesterday at 5 p. m. at the Back Bay station and he stepped off the New York train with all the vigor of a Beethoven coda.

The celebrated artist, who dared to conduct Stravinsky's "Sacre du Printemps" when the audience threw chairs, will conduct tonight in Symphony Hall a special birthday symphony concert which major symphonies throughout the nation tried to lure away from Boston.

But they couldn't. Because last night in his suite at the Hotel Sheraton Plaza the white-moustached man, who always seems to live con brio, said that he accepted the Boston Symphony invitation because:

"I still consider the Boston Symphony as my old orchestra."

A few minutes later he was welcomed to a suite at the Hotel Sheraton Plaza by Mme. Monteux, the former Doris Hodgkinson of Hancock, Me. Since the war he's had his summer conducting school there, not far from Bar Harbor, and he's quite proud of being a voting citizen in Hancock, population 700.

Then the noted conductor took time to greet his French poodle, Fifi, and then found his way to a chair in the flower-trimmed suite.

BIRTHDAY PRESENT

I asked him: "What would the dean of American conductors like for his 80th birthday?"

M. Monteux said: "I like to conduct the Boston Symphony and play Beethoven."

He will play Beethoven — the "Egmont Overture," the Fourth Piano concerto and the "Eroica" symphony.

But for the last part of the program Charles Munch will take the baton and conduct two birthday tributes especially composed for him by the two composers whose works he dared to introduce—Milhaud and Stravinsky.

The works will be Milhaud's "Pensee Amicale" and Stravinsky's "Prelude to Pierre Monteux on his 80th Birthday."

With Munch conducting, it will mean that Monteux will be hearing the world premiere of the works of two noted composers who perhaps might never have had a world premiere if he hadn't played them.

I asked him if it took courage to play their premieres in the early years of this century and he said:

As 80th Birthday Gift Tonight

"It certainly did."

Then I asked him what he would play if he were a young conductor just beginning his career. The maestro smiled and said:

"I would play Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, even Strauss. I would play some moderns—Americans like Kreisler, Barber, Copland — but I would play mostly the classics."

Then I asked a delicate question about his thinking of retiring.

Monteux shot up a classic eyebrow and demanded: "Retire? What is that word? Is it English?"

On that note we retired.

[22]

Cir. (D 131,670) (S 258,529)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
APR 4 1955

BIRTHDAY IN BOSTON—Pierre Monteux, noted conductor, is welcomed at the Back Bay station by, left to right, violinist Harry Ellis Dickson, Pops conductor Arthur Fiedler and Thomas D .Perry, Jr., Boston Symphony manager.

Cir. (D 57,751) (S 49,376)
This Clipping From
NEW BEDFORD, MASS.
STANDARD-TIMES
APR 6 - 1955
Cir. (D 149,902) (S 382,056)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
EVENING GLOBE
APR 5 1955

BIRTHDAY TOAST—Guest of honor Pierre Monteux is flanked by Charles Munch of Boston Symphony and Arthur Fiedler of Boston Pops.

Monteux Leads Boston Symphony As 80th Birthday Gift Tonight

By FRED BRADY

Pierre Monteux—dean of world conductors—tonight gets his 80th birthday present when he plays Beethoven with "my old orchestra," the Boston Symphony.

The celebrated artist, who dared to conduct Stravinsky's "Sacre du Printemps" when the audience threw chairs, will conduct tonight in Symphony Hall a special birthday symphony concert which major symphonies throughout the nation tried to lure away from Boston.

HIS OLD ORCHESTRA

But they couldn't. Because last night in his suite at the Hotel Sheraton Plaza the white-moustached man, who always seems to live con brio, said that he accepted the Boston Symphony invitation because:

"I still consider the Boston Symphony as my old orchestra."

Monteux conducted the Boston Symphony from 1919 to 1924 and has been here as guest conductor again and again, most recently during the illness of Charles Munch.

Monteux, citizen of the world and voting citizen of Hancock, Me., will have some of his old orchestra tonight—13 players who were here when he was conductor.

POPS CONDUCTOR

If you look carefully into the viola section during the "Egmont" Overture"—his is an all-Beethoven program—you will see his old viola man—Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Pops.

Mr. and Mrs. Fiedler, Thomas D. Perry, Jr., manager of the Boston Symphony, and violinist Harry Ellis Dickson, met M. Monteux yesterday at 5 p. m. at the Back Bay station and he stepped off the New York train with all the vigor of a Beethoven coda.

A few minutes later he was welcomed to a suite at the Hotel Sheraton Plaza by Mme. Monteux, the former Doris Hodgkinson of Hancock, Me. Since the war he's had his summer conducting school there, not far from Bar Harbor, and he's quite proud of being a voting citizen in Hancock, population 700.

Then the noted conductor took time to greet his French poodle, Fifi, and then found his way to a chair in the flower-trimmed suite.

BIRTHDAY PRESENT

I asked him: "What would the dean of American conductors like for his 80th birthday?"

M. Monteux said: "I like to conduct the Boston Symphony and play Beethoven."

He will play Beethoven — the "Egmont Overture," the Fourth Piano concerto and the "Eroica" symphony.

But for the last part of the program Charles Munch will take the baton and conduct birthday tributes especially composed for him by the two composers whose works he dared to introduce—Milhaud and Stravinsky.

The works will be Milhaud's "Pensee Amicale" and Stravinsky's "Prelude to Pierre Monteux on his 80th Birthday."

With Munch conducting, it will mean that Monteux will be hearing the world premiere of the works of two noted composers who perhaps might never have had a world premiere if he hadn't played them.

I asked him if it took courage to play their premieres in the early years of this century and he said:

"It certainly did."

Then I asked him what he would play if he were a young conductor just beginning his career. The maestro smiled and said:

"I would play Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, even Strauss. I would play some moderns—Americans like Kreisler, Barber, Copland — but I would play mostly the classics."

Then I asked a delicate question about his thinking of retiring.

Monteux shot up a classic eyebrow and demanded: "Retire? What is that word? Is it English?"

On that note we retired.

Cir. (D 38,155)
This Clipping From
PAWTUCKET, R. I.
TIMES
Cir. (D 90,143) (S 90,143)
This Clipping From
NEW HAVEN, CONN.
REGISTER
Cir. (D 46,023) (S 174,898)
This Clipping From
PROVIDENCE, R. I.
JOURNAL
Cir. (D 39,943) (S 44,918)
This Clipping From
WHEELING, W. VA.
NEWS-REGISTER
APR 5 1955

onteux Honored Upon 80th Birthday

Noted Boston Musicians Fete 'Visiting Fireman'

Pierre Monteaux (left) points proudly to his City of San Francisco — United Press Telephoto honorary fire chief's badge, which he wore prominently during his 80th birthday celebration in Boston, Mass., last night. With the maestro are Arthur Fiedler (center), conductor of the Boston Pops orchestra, and Charles Munch (right), conductor of the Boston Symphony. Monteaux, former conductor of the Boston and San Francisco Symphony orchestras, directed a pension fund concert for the Boston Symphony and the musicians.

[23]

Cir. (D 131,670) (S 258,529)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
APR 4 1955

BIRTHDAY IN BOSTON—Pierre Monteux, noted conductor, is welcomed at the Back Bay station by, left to right, violinist Harry Ellis Dickson, Pops conductor Arthur Fiedler and Thomas D .Perry, Jr., Boston Symphony manager.

—Associated Press Wirephoto

BIRTHDAY TOAST—Conductor Pierre Monteux, center, is honored with a toast on his 80th birthday in Boston. Drinking to his health are Charles Munch, left, of the Boston Symphony and Arthur Fiedler of Boston Pops. Fiedler was a violin player in the Boston Symphony when Monteux directed the orchestra after World War I.

Monteux Leads Boston Symphony As 80th Birthday Gift Tonight

By FRED BRADY

Pierre Monteux—dean of world conductors—tonight gets his 80th birthday present when he plays Beethoven with "my old orchestra," the Boston Symphony.

The celebrated artist, who dared to conduct Stravinsky's "Sacre du Printemps" when the audience threw chairs, will conduct tonight in Symphony Hall a special birthday symphony concert which major symphonies throughout the nation tried to lure away from Boston.

HIS OLD ORCHESTRA

But they couldn't. Because last night in his suite at the Hotel Sheraton Plaza the white-moustached man, who always seems to live con brio, said that he accepted the Boston Symphony invitation because:

"I still consider the Boston Symphony as my old orchestra."

Monteux conducted the Boston Symphony from 1919 to 1924 and has been here as guest conductor again and again, most recently during the illness of Charles Munch.

Monteux, citizen of the world and voting citizen of Hancock, Me., will have some of his old orchestra tonight—13 players who were here when he was conductor.

POPS CONDUCTOR

If you look carefully into the viola section during the "Egmont Overture"—his is an all-Beethoven program—you will see his old viola man—Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Pops.

Mr. and Mrs. Fiedler, Thomas D. Perry, Jr., manager of the Boston Symphony, and violinist Harry Ellis Dickson, met M. Monteux yesterday at 5 p. m. at the Back Bay station and he stepped off the New York train with all the vigor of a Beethoven coda.

A few minutes later he was welcomed to a suite at the Hotel Sheraton Plaza by Mme. Monteux, the former Doris Hodgkinson of Hancock, Me. Since the war he's had his summer conducting school there, not far from Bar Harbor, and he's quite proud of being a voting citizen in Hancock, population 700.

Then the noted conductor took time to greet his French poodle, Fifi, and then found his way to a chair in the flower-trimmed suite.

BIRTHDAY PRESENT

I asked him: "What would the dean of American conductors like for his 80th birthday?"

M. Monteux said: "I like to conduct the Boston Symphony and play Beethoven."

He will play Beethoven — the "Egmont Overture," the Fourth Piano concerto and the "Eroica" symphony.

But for the last part of the program Charles Munch will take the baton and conduct birthday tributes especially composed for him by the two composers whose works he dared to introduce—Milhaud and Stravinsky.

The works will be Milhaud's "Pensee Amicale" and Stravinsky's "Prelude to Pierre Monteux on his 80th Birthday."

With Munch conducting, it will mean that Monteux will be hearing the world premiere of the works of two noted composers who perhaps might never have had a world premiere if he hadn't played them.

I asked him if it took courage to play their premieres in the early years of this century and he said:

"It certainly did."

Then I asked him what he would play if he were a young conductor just beginning his career. The maestro smiled and said:

"I would play Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, even Strauss. I would play some moderns—Americans like Kreisler, Barber, Copland — but I would play mostly the classics."

Then I asked a delicate question about his thinking of retiring.

Monteux shot up a classic eyebrow and demanded: "Retire? What is that word? Is it English?"

On that note we retired.

Cir. (D 38,155)
This Clipping From
PAWTUCKET, R. I.
TIMES
Cir. (D 90,143) (S 90,143)
This Clipping From
NEW HAVEN, CONN.
REGISTER
Cir. (D 44,023) (S 174,898)
This Clipping From
PROVIDENCE, R. I.
JOURNAL
Cir. (D 29,543) (S 44,918)
This Clipping From
WHEELING, W. VA.
NEWS-REGISTER
APR 5 1955

onteux Honored Upon 80th Birthday

Noted Boston Musicians Fete 'Visiting Fireman'

Pierre Monteaux (left) points proudly to his City of San Francisco honorary fire chief's badge, which he wore prominently during his 80th birthday celebration in Boston, Mass., last night. With the maestro are Arthur Fiedler (center), conductor of the Boston Pops orchestra, and Charles Munch (right), conductor of the Boston Symphony. Monteaux, former conductor of the Boston and San Francisco Symphony orchestras, directed a pension fund concert for the Boston Symphony and then was feted by the musicians.

— United Press Telephoto

a Boston
t) of the n Boston

ft) of the [23]

Cir. (D 131,670) (S 258,529)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
APR 4 1955

BIRTHDAY IN BOSTON—Pierre Monteux, noted conductor, is we
Back Bay station by, left to right, violinist Harry Ellis Dickson, P
Arthur Fiedler and Thomas D .Perry, Jr., Boston Symphony manag

—Associated Press Wirephoto

BIRTHDAY TOAST—Conductor Pierre Monteux, center, is honored with a toast on his 80th birthday in Boston. Drinking [illegible] Munch, left, of the Boston Symphony [illegible] was a violin player

Monteux Leads Boston Symphony As 8

By FRED BRADY

Pierre Monteux—dean of world conductors—tonight gets his 80th birthday present when he plays Beethoven with "my old orchestra," the Boston Symphony.

The celebrated artist, who dared to conduct Stravinsky's "Sacre du Printemps" when the audience threw chairs, will conduct tonight in Symphony Hall a special birthday symphony concert which major symphonies throughout the nation tried to lure away from Boston.

HIS OLD ORCHESTRA

But they couldn't. Because last night in his suite at the Hotel Sheraton Plaza the white-moustached man, who always seems to live con brio, said that he accepted the Boston Symphony invitation because:

"I still consider the Boston Symphony as my old orchestra."

Monteux conducted the Boston Symphony from 1919 to 1924 and has been here as guest conductor again and again, most recently during the illness of Charles Munch.

Monteux, citizen of the world and voting citizen of Hancock, Me., will have some of his old orchestra tonight—13 players who were here when he was conductor.

POPS CONDUCTOR

If you look carefully into the viola section during the "Egmont Overture"—his is an all-Beethoven program—you will see his old viola man—Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Pops.

Mr. and Mrs. Fiedler, Thomas D. Perry, Jr., manager of the Boston Symphony, and violinist Harry Ellis Dickson, met M. Monteux yesterday at 5 p. m. at the Back Bay station and he stepped off the New York train with all the vigor of a Beethoven coda.

A few minutes later he was welcomed to a suite at the Hotel Sheraton Plaza by Mme. Monteux, the former Doris Hodgkinson of Hancock, Me. Since the war he's had his summer conducting school there, not far from Bar Harbor, and he's quite proud of being a voting citizen in Hancock, population 700.

Then the noted conductor took time to greet his French poodle, Fifi, and then found his way to a chair in the flower-trimmed suite.

BIRTHDAY PRESENT

I asked him: "What would the dean of American conductors like for his 80th birthday?"

M. Monteux said: "I like to conduct the Boston Symphony and play Beethoven."

He will play Beethoven — the "Egmont Overture," the Fourth Piano concerto and the "Eroica" symphony.

But for the last part of the program Charles Munch will take the baton and conduct birthday tributes especially composed for him by the two composers whose works he dared to introduce—Milhaud and Stravinsky.

The works will be Milhaud's "Pensee Amicale" and Stravinsky's "Prelude to Pierre Monteux on his 80th Birthday."

With Munch conducting, it will mean that Monteux will be hearing the world premiere of the works of two noted composers who perhaps might never have had a world premiere if he hadn't played them.

I asked him if it took courag to play their premieres in t early years of this century a he said:

APR 6 - 1955

Toasting Health of Pierre Monteux, center, world famous conductor, on his 80th birthday yesterday in Boston are Charles Munch, left, of the Boston Symphony and Arthur Fiedler of Boston Pops. The "grand old man" of the conducting world has directed 56 orchestras in the United States and Europe. Fiedler was a viola player in the Boston Symphony when Monteux directed the orchestra after World War I.

—Associated Press Photo

[23]

Cir. (D 131,670) (S 258,529)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
APR 4 1955

BIRTHDAY IN BOSTON—Pierre Monteux, noted conductor, is we
Back Bay station by, left to right, violinist Harry Ellis Dickson, P
Arthur Fiedler and Thomas D .Perry, Jr., Boston Symphony manag

Monteux Leads Boston Symphony As 8

By FRED BRADY

Pierre Monteux—dean of world conductors—tonight gets his 80th birthday present when he plays Beethoven with "my old orchestra," the Boston Symphony.

The celebrated artist, who dared to conduct Stravinsky's "Sacre du Printemps" when the audience threw chairs, will conduct tonight in Symphony Hall a special birthday symphony concert which major symphonies throughout the nation tried to lure away from Boston.

HIS OLD ORCHESTRA

But they couldn't. Because last night in his suite at the Hotel Sheraton Plaza the white-moustached man, who always seems to live con brio, said that he accepted the Boston Symphony invitation because:

"I still consider the Boston Symphony as my old orchestra."

Monteux conducted the Boston Symphony from 1919 to 1924 and has been here as guest conductor again and again, most recently during the illness of Charles Munch.

Monteux, citizen of the world and voting citizen of Hancock, Me., will have some of his old orchestra tonight—13 players who were here when he was conductor.

POPS CONDUCTOR

If you look carefully into the viola section during the "Egmont Overture"—his is an all-Beethoven program—you will see his old viola man—Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Pops.

Mr. and Mrs. Fiedler, Thomas D. Perry, Jr., manager of the Boston Symphony, and violinist Harry Ellis Dickson, met M. Monteux yesterday at 5 p. m. at the Back Bay station and he stepped off the New York train with all the vigor of a Beethoven coda.

A few minutes later he was welcomed to a suite at the Hotel Sheraton Plaza by Mme. Monteux, the former Doris Hodgkinson of Hancock, Me. Since the war he's had his summer conducting school there, not far from Bar Harbor, and he's quite proud of being a voting citizen in Hancock, population 700.

Then the noted conductor took time to greet his French poodle, Fifi, and then found his way to a chair in the flower-trimmed suite.

BIRTHDAY PRESENT

I asked him: "What would the dean of American conductors like for his 80th birthday?"

M. Monteux said: "I like to conduct the Boston Symphony and play Beethoven."

He will play Beethoven — the "Egmont Overture," the Fourth Piano concerto and the "Eroica" symphony.

But for the last part of the program Charles Munch will take the baton and conduct birthday tributes especially composed for him by the two composers whose works he dared to introduce—Milhaud and Stravinsky.

The works will be Milhaud's "Pensee Amicale" and Stravinsky's "Prelude to Pierre Monteux on his 80th Birthday."

With Munch conducting, it will mean that Monteux will be hearing the world premiere of the works of two noted composers who perhaps might never have had a world premiere if he hadn't played them.

I asked him if it took courage to play their premieres in the early years of this century and he said:

"It ce
Then would conduct reer. T
said:
"I Brahms
I would Americ

Iranian Premier Resigns Office

Tehran, Iran — (AP) — Premier Gen. Fazollah Zahedi yesterday submitted his resignation to the Shah, an authoritative royal court source said.

Zahedi, who became premier at

...ouncillo's letter said the bar-
...bers are not making an Ameri-
...can standard of living. It also ...criticized the Health Department
...for refusing a price increase on
...haircuts to rise from $1 to $1.15,
...and for declining to give the bar-
...bers a five-day week.

In 40 states, the letter said, barber control boards are inde-

...The present barbering board now
...serves under the jurisdiction of ...the Health Department.

In that, Casey said the bill ...would place control over barber-...shops in a board "which would be ...presumably more concerned with ...the interests of its own trade ...group than with the interests of ...the public in general."

The old man slouched in the ...back seat, his eyes almost closed, ...a new cigar in his ample moist ...lips.

And then, almost as an after-...thought, when his car was 20 feet ...from the main body of the crowd—...Winston Churchill flashed the V-...for-Victory sign.

...They may not have known that ...Churchill was making an historic ...last ride, but they knew it was ...Churchill and that was enough. ...They let loose a thundering roar.

Then Churchill's car returned ...into view.

Ten minutes later only a hand-...ful of people remained before the ...palace gates. The others drifted ...away.

"It's Winston!"

...big black cigar and those ...chievous eyes.

...of the man in the back se...

...ace outside Buckingham Palace ...esterday and many recognized ...nly a tired old man.

...They saw Sir Winston Church...ide up to the palace in a limou-...ine and, after a spell inside, ride...way again. He had presented ...Queen Elizabeth II his resignation ...s Prime Minister.

But because of London's news-...aper strike—now in its 12th day—...ost of the viewers were utterly ...n the dark as a page of history ...ipped over before their eyes.

"Pardon me," said a Scot, Mal-...olm MacFie, "I've been standing ...ere for two hours and I haven't ...he foggiest notion what all this is ...bout."

...His case appeared typical. ...An exasperated mother turned to ...er teen-age daughter.

"Have you detected anything, or ...re we simply standing in this ...rowd for no good reason?" she ...sked.

"Mother," answered the girl, ...something must be happening." ..."Then I hope it happens in a ...rry."

...At 4:22 p.m. the Queen's car ...vung up before the gates.

...Eight minutes later, Churchill's ...r hove into view.

...London —(AP)— Three thousand ...ersons stared history full in the ...ce outside Buckingham Palace ...esterday and many recognized ...nly a tired old man.

...They saw Sir Winston Church...ide up to the palace in a limou-...ine and, after a spell inside, ride...way again. He had presented ...Queen Elizabeth II his resignation ...s Prime Minister.

But because of London's news-...aper strike—now in its 12th day—...ost of the viewers were utterly ...n the dark as a page of history ...ipped over before their eyes.

"Pardon me," said a Scot, Mal-...olm MacFie, "I've been standing ...ere for two hours and I haven't ...he foggiest notion what all this is ...bout."

...His case appeared typical. ...An exasperated mother turned to ...er teen-age daughter.

"Have you detected anything, or ...re we simply standing in this ...rowd for no good reason?" she ...sked.

"Mother," answered the girl, ...something must be happening." ..."Then I hope it happens in a ...rry."

...At 4:22 p.m. the Queen's car ...vung up before the gates.

...Eight minutes later, Churchill's ...r hove into view.

News Blackout Keeps Londc Unaware of Historic Event

APR 6 1955

Conductor Pierre Monteux Honored Upon 80th Birthday

Pierre Monteux, world-famous conductor (center) is honored with a toast on his 80th birthday in Boston. Drinking to his health are, Charles Munch (left) of the Boston Symphony and Arthur Fiedler of Boston Pops. The grand old man of the conducting world has directed 56 orchestras in the United States and Europe. Fiedler was a viola player in the Boston Symphony when Monteux directed the orchestra after World War I. (AP)

...n Boston
...lt) of the

...in Boston
...ft) of the [23]

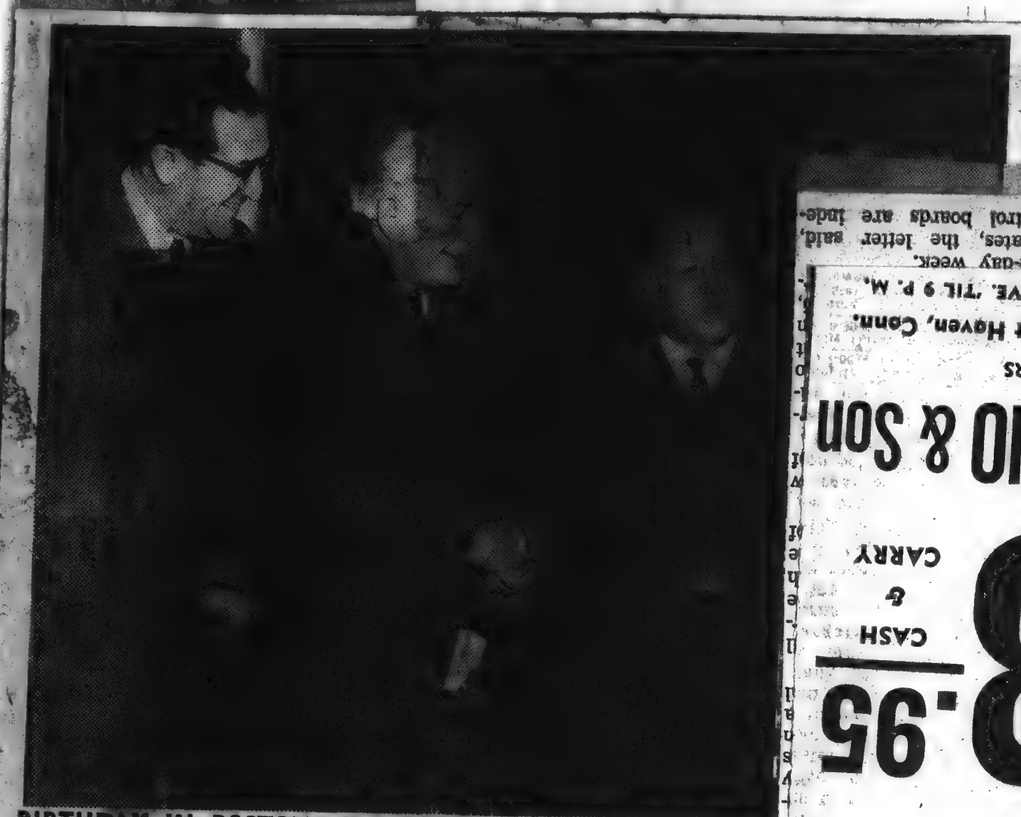
Cir. (D 131,670) (S 258,629)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
APR 4 1955



BIRTHDAY IN BOSTON—Pierre Monteux, noted conductor, is Back Bay station by, left to right, violinist Harry Ellis Dickson Arthur Fiedler and Thomas D .Perry, Jr., Boston Symphony ma

Monteux Leads Boston Symphony As

By FRED BRADY

Pierre Monteux—dean of world conductors—tonight gets his 80th birthday present when he plays Beethoven with "my old orchestra," the Boston Symphony.

The celebrated artist, who dared to conduct Stravinsky's "Sacre du Printemps" when the audience threw chairs, will conduct tonight in Symphony Hall a special birthday symphony concert which major symphonies throughout the nation tried to lure away from Boston.

HIS OLD ORCHESTRA

But they couldn't. Because last night in his suite at the Hotel Sheraton Plaza the white-moustached man, who always seems to live con brio, said that he accepted the Boston Symphony invitation because:

"I still consider the Boston Symphony as my old orchestra."

Monteux conducted the Boston Symphony from 1919 to 1924 and has been here as guest conductor again and again, most recently during the illness of Charles Munch.

Monteux, citizen of the world and voting citizen of Hancock, Me., will have some of his old orchestra tonight—13 players who were here when he was conductor.

POPS CONDUCTOR

If you look carefully into the viola section during the "Egmont Overture"—his is an all-Beethoven program—you will see his old viola man—Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Pops.

Mr. and Mrs. Fiedler, Thomas D. Perry, Jr., manager of the Boston Symphony, and violinist Harry Ellis Dickson, met M. Monteux yesterday at 5 p. m. at the Back Bay station and he stepped off the New York train with all the vigor of a Beethoven coda.

A few minutes later he was welcomed to a suite at the Hotel Sheraton Plaza by Mme. Monteux, the former Doris Hodgkinson of Hancock, Me. Since the war he's had his summer conducting school there, not far from Bar Harbor, and he's quite proud of being a voting citizen in Hancock, population 700.

Then the noted conductor took time to greet his French poodle, Fifi, and then found his way to a chair in the flower-trimmed suite.

BIRTHDAY PRESENT

I asked him: "What would the dean of American conductors like for his 80th birthday?"

M. Monteux said: "I like to conduct the Boston Symphony and play Beethoven."

He will play Beethoven — the "Egmont Overture," the Fourth Piano concerto and the "Eroica" symphony.

But for the last part of the program Charles Munch will take the baton and conduct birthday tributes especially composed for him by the two composers whose works he dared to introduce—Milhaud and Stravinsky.

The works will be Milhaud's "Pensee Amicale" and Stravinsky's "Prelude to Pierre Monteux on his 80th Birthday."

With Munch conducting, it will mean that Monteux will be hearing the world premiere of the works of two noted composers who perhaps might never have had a world premiere if he hadn't played them.

I asked him if it took courage to play their premieres in the early years of this century and he said:

"It c
Then would conduc reer.
said:
"I
Brahm
I wou
Ameri

CHAS. P. MONTANO & Son
COMPLETE HOME FURNISHERS
607-609 Campbell Ave. West Haven, Conn.
WA 4-2647 OPEN THURS. & FRI. EVE. 'TIL 9 P. M.
LIMITED QUANTITIES
Model 179G39
8.95
CASH & CARRY
SANDWICH GRILL AND WAFFLE IRON
Reg. 18.95 NOW!
GENERAL ELECTRIC
ANOTHER
OPEN 'TIL 9 P. M.
THURS. & FRI. NITES
Twin or Full Size at N
Extra Cost. Mattress Con struction Guaranteed 10 Years.

Shah, an authoritative royal court source said.

Zahedi, who became premier after

bers a five-day week.

In 40 states, the letter said, barber control boards are independent

Living

THOUSANDS OF THE FINEST CHICKENS IN THE COUNTRY!

WOODMONT—Plans are being completed for the fourth annual dessert bridge and fashion show of the members of St. Agnes Guild which will be held Monday evening, April 25, at 8 p. m. in Sea-breeze School. Mrs. Howard F. Kendall and Mrs. Edward J. Dolin-sky are in charge of the evening.

Miss Helen F. Marinan and Miss Dorothy Conte are in charge of the fashion show, which will be conducted by Mrs. Kenneth E. Raine. Guild members who will model are Mrs. Edward Connolly, Mrs. William J. Delaney, Mrs. M. M. Hannan, Mrs. John E. Kennard, Mrs. Matthew J. Kiely, Mrs. James F. Malone, Mrs. Richard Monahan and Mrs. Roy Phaneuf. Junior fashions will be modeled by Judy Montano and Mary Jane Muggleton.

Committee chairmen for the bridge include: Mrs. Joseph R. Scull and Mrs. Herbert J. Borman, door prizes; Mrs. Robert C. Senior, special prizes; Mrs. [illegible] M. Hannan and Mrs. Edward T. Flynn, refreshments; Mrs. Lucius Montano, reservations; and Mrs. Raymond O'Connor, tables.

Eight minutes later, Churchill's [illegible] vung up before the gates.

r hove into view.

WOODMONT

The regulations provide that the removal of sand and gravel may be carried on only after public hearing and approval by the planning board.

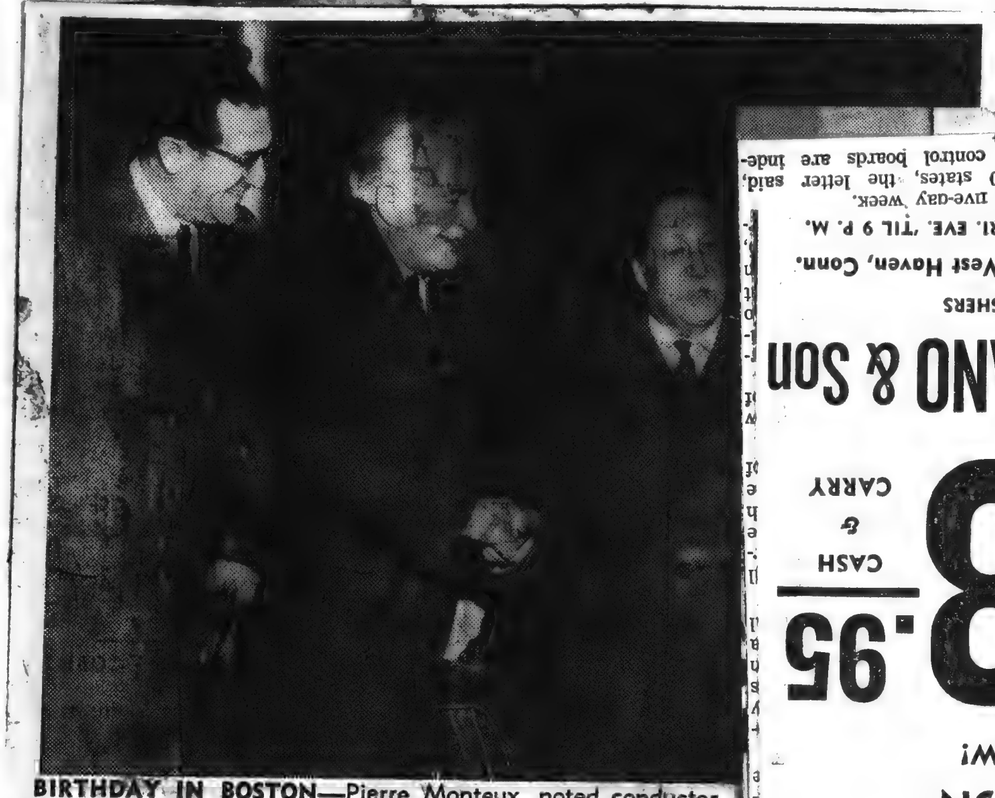
Planning Board Executive Secretary George C. Lay said that he did not know whether the state could exercise its right of eminent domain in order to obtain a temporary sand storage area over the protests of the municipality.

BIRTHDAY TOAST—Pierre Monteux, world-famous conductor (center) is honored in Boston with a toast on his 80th birthday. Drinking to his health are Charles Munch (left) of the Boston Symphony and Arthur Fiedler of Boston Pops. (Associated Press Photo)

BIRTHDAY TOAST—Pierre Monteux, world-famous conductor (center) is honored, in Boston with a toast on his 80th birthday. Drinking to his health are Charles Munch (left) of the Boston Symphony and Arthur Fiedler of Boston Pops. (Associated Press Photo)

[23]

Cir. (D 131,670) (S 258,529)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
APR 4 1955



BIRTHDAY IN BOSTON—Pierre Monteux, noted conductor, Back Bay station by, left to right, violinist Harry Ellis Dickso Arthur Fiedler and Thomas D .Perry, Jr., Boston Symphony m

Monteux Leads Boston Symphony As

By FRED BRADY

Pierre Monteux—dean of world conductors—tonight gets his 80th birthday present when he plays Beethoven with "my old orchestra," the Boston Symphony.

The celebrated artist, who dared to conduct Stravinsky's "Sacre du Printemps" when the audience threw chairs, will conduct tonight in Symphony Hall a special birthday symphony concert which major symphonies throughout the nation tried to lure away from Boston.

HIS OLD ORCHESTRA

But they couldn't. Because last night in his suite at the Hotel Sheraton Plaza the white-moustached man, who always seems to live con brio, said that he accepted the Boston Symphony invitation because:

"I still consider the Boston Symphony as my old orchestra."

Monteux conducted the Boston Symphony from 1919 to 1924 and has been here as guest conductor again and again, most recently during the illness of Charles Munch.

Monteux, citizen of the world and voting citizen of Hancock, Me., will have some of his old orchestra tonight—13 players who were here when he was conductor.

POPS CONDUCTOR

If you look carefully into the viola section during the "Egmont Overture"—his is an all-Beethoven program—you will see his old viola man—Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Pops.

Mr. and Mrs. Fiedler, Thomas D. Perry, Jr., manager of the Boston Symphony, and violinist Harry Ellis Dickson, met M. Monteux yesterday at 5 p. m. at the Back Bay station and he stepped off the New York train with all the vigor of a Beethoven coda.

A few minutes later he was welcomed to a suite at the Hotel Sheraton Plaza by Mme. Monteux, the former Doris Hodgkinson of Hancock, Me. Since the war he's had his summer conducting school there, not far from Bar Harbor, and he's quite proud of being a voting citizen in Hancock, population 700.

Then the noted conductor took time to greet his French poodle, Fifi, and then found his way to a chair in the flower-trimmed suite.

BIRTHDAY PRESENT

I asked him: "What would the dean of American conductors like for his 80th birthday?"

M. Monteux said: "I like to conduct the Boston Symphony and play Beethoven."

He will play Beethoven — the "Egmont Overture," the Fourth Piano concerto and the "Eroica" symphony.

But for the last part of the program Charles Munch will take the baton and conduct birthday tributes especially composed for him by the two composers whose works he dared to introduce—Milhaud and Stravinsky.

The works will be Milhaud's "Pensee Amicale" and Stravinsky's "Prelude to Pierre Monteux on his 80th Birthday."

With Munch conducting, it will mean that Monteux will be hearing the world premiere of the works of two noted composers who perhaps might never have had a world premiere if he hadn't played them.

I asked him if it took courage to play their premieres in the early years of this century and he said:

"It
Ther would conduc
reer.
said:
"I
Brahm
I wou
Ameri

Cir. (D 38,155)
This Clipping From
PAWTUCKET, R. I.
TIMES
APR 6 1955

BIRTHDAY TOAST—Pierre Monteux, world-famous conductor (center) is honored in Boston with a toast on his 80th birthday. Drinking to his health are Charles Munch (left) of the Boston Symphony and Arthur Fiedler of Boston Pops. (Associated Press Photo)

[23]

MONTEUX, AT 80, DIRECTS CONCERT

Conducts Boston Symphony on Birthday—2 Composers Offer Musical Tributes

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 4—An 80-year-old registered voter from Hancock, Me., conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra tonight in a Beethoven program.

Conducting the Boston organization was nothing new for the podium guest. But the occasion was, for today was Pierre Monteux' birthday.

As part of the celebration, Mr. Monteux was invited to conduct a major part of the program of the orchestra's pension fund concert. Among the orchestra members were thirteen instrumentalists who had played under Mr. Monteux when he was the Boston conductor from 1919 to 1924.

During the "Egmont" Overture, for example, Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra, sat in his old place in the viola section.

Had Filled in for Munch

Younger members of the orchestra recall Mr. Monteux from frequent appearances as guest conductor. Only recently, he filled in during the illness of the present conductor, Charles Munch.

Tonight, Mr. Monteux' other Beethoven selections were the Fourth Piano Concerto and the "Eroica" symphony.

Mr. Munch took over the baton for the final part of the program. This was made up of tributes to Mr. Monteux. Two of these were prepared especially for the occasion by two composers whose works Mr. Monteux had introduced in the early years of the century. They were Darius Milhaud and Igor Stravinsky.

The works were Mr. Milhaud's "Pensée Amicale" and Mr. Stravinsky's "Prelude to Pierre Monteux on His Eightieth Birthday."

One Among 700

Mr. Monteux' last engagement as the permament director of a symphony group was with the San Francisco Orchestra for seventeen years, from 1935. Since World War II, he has operated a summer conducting school at Hancock. One of his proudest boasts is that he is a voting citizen of Hancock, which has a population of 700.

As for retirement, the word caused him to lift an eyebrow before the concert.

"Retire?" he asked. "What is that word; is it English?"

To demonstrate his contempt for thoughts of retirement, Mr. Monteux attended a birthday party in his honor, after the concert, at 11 o'clock at the near-by Fensgate Hotel.

At the party, several members of the orchestra played musical salutes. Among the offerings were two pieces Mr. Monteux had composed in his youth. The playing of them took Mr. Monteux by surprise.

Symphony Members Give Monteux Special Party

The members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra gave Pierre Monteux a super-special birthday party late last evening, following the pension fund concert at Symphony Hall.

The 80-year-old musician and Mrs. Monteux had the places of honor at a table which included Charles Munch, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Feidler, tenor Roland Hayes and Mrs. Hayes; Henry D. Cabot, president of the orchestra's trustees; Dr. Joseph Barone, musician of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Monteux' associate at the Doman School of Conducting in Hancock, Me., and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Burgin.

Mr. Monteaux was toasted repeatedly in champagne, and received from colleagues and old friends many expressions of admiration and affection. There were, too, a portrait of "maitre" Monteux, to be hung at Hancock, and a surrealist cartoon of him which emphasized, among other points, that in his life the conductor has never been late to a concert or rehearsal, much less missed one.

Of course there was music, and as the master of ceremonies, Harry Ellis Dickson, explained, the first piece was by an unknown composer, and perhaps Mr. Monteaux with his long, long memory might identify the composer. Mr. Monteaux' twinkling answer was "the composer of this work shall remain known." There was another such, an Ariette and March for winds.

(My private operatives tell me that both pieces were written by a viola player named Pierre Monteaux, many year ago.

Hilarious Arrangement

Jacobus Langendoen's contribution was a hilarious arrangement of "Happy Birthday," with certain features of the Monteaux "Domain" at Hancock woven in—the bleating of the sheep from "Don Quixote," since the Monteaux estate has sheep; a bark signifying the Monteaux poodle, Fifi; "Happy Birthday" worked up in the manner of Stravinsky's "Le Sacre du Printemps," in the style of the Straus Waltz, "Voices of Spring," and finally, everybody standing and singing, the birthday tune itself.

At this point in came a three-tier birthday cake, and a chocolate one which had been sent, by air, from Rome by Mr. Monteaux' protege and colleague who appeared under his baton with the Boston Symphony earlier this season, pianist Vera Fanceschi.

Numerous Speeches

The speeches were numerous and graceful and deeply felt, and to the point, by Archibald T. Davison, Mr. Munch and many others. Roland Hayes, referring to the opportunity which had been given him by Mr. Monteaux to appear with the Boston Symphony in 1923, over some opposition, concluded: "Had Mr. Monteaux' valiant stand only won for me, personally, a chance to sing with the orchestra, that alone would have been a great achievement, but its significance extended much further. It purged traditions of a blot—the removal of which opened wide the door of opportunity to worthy artists of the Negro race.

"With gratitude, therefore, I salute Mr. Monteaux on this, his 80th birthday. He is a great musician-conductor. But even greater, is he a man!"

Said Mr. Monteaux, at the end of the party: "I am deeply moved and I am very grateful, for this all was a surprise to me. This evening I shall remember all my life."

The guests included Meyer Davis, band leader; a delegation from Ellsworth, near Hancock, in Maine, and George Judd, former manager of the Boston Symphony, and Mrs. Judd.

Cir. (D 54,567)

This Clipping From
FORT WORTH, TEX.
PRESS
APR 5 1955

At 80, Maestro Works to Earn His Supper

BOSTON, April 5. (U.P.)—Maestro Pierre Monteux celebrated his 80th birthday last night by working for his supper.

The former conductor of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra directed a pension fund concert for the Boston Symphony and then was feted by the musicians at a hotel.

Messages of congratulation were read from President Eisenhower and Queen Juliana of The Netherlands.

BIRTHDAY TOAST—Guest of honor Pierre Monteux is flanked by Charles Munch of Boston Symphony and Arthur Fiedler of Boston Pops.

4/5/55 GLOBE

Monteux Makes Birthday No. 80 an Enriching Experience for All

By CYRUS DURGIN

Pierre Monteux celebrated his 80th birthday in public last night by conducting the Boston Symphony in a Beethoven program at Symphony Hall for the benefit of the Orchestra's pension fund. He gave his services, as did piano soloist Leon Fleisher, and so did all the players.

Naturally this was very much a gala occasion, with a large audience whose purchase of tickets, according to Henry B. Cabot, president of the trustees, increased the pension fund by $11,842. The conductor's stand was ringed with a low bank of greenery, in the middle of which was a medallion with the words Pierre Monteux in white, and the figure 80 in gold. Arthur Fiedler, present conductor of the Boston Pops and a viola player when Mr. Monteux first came to Boston, sat in his old section and played viola in the opening number, the "Egmont" Overture.

It was a good concert, and a lively one, through "Egmont," the G major Piano Concerto, and the "Eroica" Symphony.

When the program had finished, the applause was swelled by cheers and stamping, and in a few seconds the crowd rose spontaneously, and stood applauding. Rotund Mr. Monteux, with his black hair and white walrus mustache, his cheeks noticeably flushed, stood bowing and smiling.

An Anniversary Volume

Then the special birthday part began. Mr. Monteux returned to the stage followed by the Boston Symphony's music director, Charles Munch, and Mr. Cabot. The president of the trustees, first remarking that there was a strict rule of the trustees not to talk publicly at concerts except on great occasions, gave a happy little speech in which he outlined Mr. Monteaux' musical commitments for the next five months—enough to tire a much younger man. Then he read some congratulatory telegrams, of which one from the Metropolitan Opera Association should be quoted:

"Dear Master: You have conducted 'Faust' so many times that you have learned the trick of changing from an old man to a young man."

Mr. Cabot then presented to Mr. Monteaux all the messages received in commemoration of the birthday, which had been bound in a gold-covered large volume. Among the messages were letters from President Eisenhower, Chief Justice Warren of the United States Supreme Court, former Queen Wilhelmina of The Netherlands, Governor Herter, conductor Arturo Toscanini and Mayor Hynes.

An Example Set

Thereupon Mr. Monteux and Mr. Cabot sat down in chairs just at the front of the orchestra for the performance of some birthday music especially composed. These two pieces, Charles Munch conducted. One was Darius Milhaud's "Pensee amicale," a tender piece for strings, and for which the instant the last chord was sounded, Mr. Monteux led the applause.

The second piece was "Greeting Prelude" by Igor Stravinsky. This beginning with a terrific thwack of drums, and punctuated by them as if by celebration gunfire, was just a trace in the manner of Stravinsky's "Le Sacre du Printemps," that historic piece in whose tumultuous premiere both Monteux and Stravinsky were actively concerned. By the abrupt ending, you might judge that the "Greeting Prelude" was some kind of perpetual motion which has no conclusion. And that, too, was highly appropriate in symbolic application to Mr. Monteux's career.

Once again much applause, bows and cheers, and conductors and orchestra were off to a private party tendered Mr. Monteux by the men themselves. They, by the way, all had worn white lapel carnations for suitable decoration. By way of one last detail, Mr. Monteux, it was said, determined to make this concert strictly a benefit for the pension fund and declined to accept a free ticket for Mrs. Monteux. Sticking to his principles, he bought one!

Monteux, at 80, Given Ovations As He Leads Symphony Here

(Picture on Page 30)

By RUDOLPH ELIE

Pierre Monteux celebrated his 80th birthday last night in Symphony Hall by presenting Boston, the city in which he began his American career, 36 years ago, with one of the most distinguished musical birthday cakes in the city's history . . . an all Beethoven program to benefit the pension fund of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

He received in return a prolonged ovation by a standing audience.

The famous octogenarian, whose black hair belies his years, was greeted with a rising ovation by the audience as he appeared to lead the orchestra on a conductor's stand banked by greens, about a blue and gold medallion inscribed with his name.

LIKE OLD TIMES

Seated among the violas in the orchestra was Arthur Fiedler, celebrated conductor of the Pops, one of the few remaining men of the orchestra who was a player under Monteux during his term here from 1919 to 1924.

Fiedler had not touched the instrument since his duties with the Pops forced him to leave the orchestra in the mid-30's.

Monteaux presented a program offering Beethoven's overture to Egmont, the Fourth Piano Concerto and the Eroica Symphony. The soloist was Monteux's protege, the young San Francisco pianist, Leon Fleisher, who had appeared with the orchestra earlier in the season.

After the performance of the symphony, Monteux was presented a birthday book containing letters and messages of felicitation from outstanding personalities throughout the world.

Among those whose messages were mounted in the book were President Eisenhower, Queen Juliana of the Netherlands, Fritz Kreisler, Jascha Heifetz, Bing Crosby, Governor Herter, Mayor Hynes and nearly every ranking conductor and musician of the times.

The presentation was made on the stage by Henry Cabot, president of the Board of Trustees, who described, to the audience's astonishment, Monteux's forthcoming schedule, which finds him conducting a score or more concerts throughout Europe.

SPECIAL TRIBUTE

Following the presentation, Charles Munch conducted the orchestra in two works, especially composed to honor the celebrated French conductor.

These were Darius, Milhaud's "Pensee Amicale," a tender work for strings, lasting but a minute, and Igor Stravinsky's "Greeting Prelude for the 80th Birthday of Pierre Monteux," a noisy parody of the familiar strain of "Happy Birthday to You."

It was Pierre Monteux who conducted the first performance of Stravinsky's "Rite of Spring" in 1913, an occasion that resulted in a riot.

Monteux's name has in fact been associated with the world premiere of a number of long since established classics, among them Ravel's "Daphnis and Chloe."

After the concert, the first half of which was broadcast nationally by NBC, Mr. and Mrs. Monteux were guests at a reception given them by the members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra at the Fensgate Hotel, an affair attended by musical jokes designed to appeal especially to Monteux's famous sense of humor.

Cir. (D 99,838)

This Clipping From
WORCESTER, MASS.
GAZETTE
APR 5 1955

Maestro Plays for Supper on Birthday

BOSTON, April 5 (UP)—Maestro Pierre Monteux celebrated his 80th birthday Monday night by working for his supper.

P. Monteux

The former conductor of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra directed a pension fund concert for the Boston Symphony and then was feted afterwards by the musicians at a Back Bay hotel.

Igor Stravinsky and Darius Milhaud composed short pieces especially for the occasion.

At the midnight supper a group of symphony musicians played two pieces Monteux composed at the age of 18.

Messages of congratulations were read from President Eisenhower and Queen Juliana of the Netherlands.

[24]

Cir. (D 124,110) (S 382,056)
This Clipping From BOST MORN BE
LEON FLEIS
Leon Fleisher, the pianist who appeared last night as soloist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has been engaged by Aaron Richmond to appear in the Boston University Celebrity Series next season, when he will give his first local recital.

Cir. (D 68,801)
This Clipping From TULSA, OKLA.
TRIBUNE
APR 6 1955

Maestro, 80, Celebrates by Working for Supper

BOSTON, April 6 (AP)—Maestro Pierre Monteux celebrated his 80th birthday by working for his supper.

The former conductor of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra directed a pension fund concert for the Boston Symphony, then was feted by the musicians at a hotel.

Cir. (49,960)
This Clipping From
THE ARGONAUT
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.
APR 8 - 1955

Cir. (D 124,110) (S 382,056)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
APR 5 1955

Are We So Intellectually Lazy That We Shun New Works of Music?

To the Editor—I was most amazed by the letter in the March 29 Globe. Evidently the writer wants to stop music in its tracks, retroactive to the German Romanticists!

I am as fond of the music of Bach and Beethoven as anyone, but I would find a musical diet of nothing but relatively early works both unhealthy and monotonous.

Admittedly much contemporary music is difficult to listen to, but are we so intellectually lazy that we shun new works because they present problems at first hearings?

The satisfaction that comes with an awakening feeling for contemporary music more than makes up for any preliminary pangs, for a whole new field is opened for one's listening enjoyment.

I think most of us who love and admire the Boston Symphony Orchestra will disagree wholeheartedly with the criticism of the orchestra's programming. Instead, I, at least, am grateful that the works of contemporary composers are mixed so liberally with the well-known favorites.

Heaven help us if "experimental" music ceases to be written and played. Music is not an academic art. It needs to live and grow.

Cambridge. MARJORIE LINCOLN.

Cir. (D 57,751) (S 49,378)
This Clipping From
NEW BEDFORD, MASS.
STANDARD-TIMES
APR 7 1955

MOMENT IN HISTORY

Pierre Monteux, whose hair still is black and in whose face there is an ageless virility, is 80. Mr. Monteux was conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra from 1919 to 1924 and he began his American career in that city 36 years ago.

He observed his 80th birthday by conducting the Boston orchestra in an all-Beethoven program and when it was completed, the audience stood and gave him one of those prolonged ovations which comes spontaneously, contagiously from the heart. Seated among the violas was Arthur Fiedler, better known as Pops conductor, who played that instrument under Mr. Monteux's direction, as a member of the Bos[illegible]ony.

Bing Crosby, Queen Juliana of The Netherlands, Fritz Kreisler and President Eisenhower were among those who sent congratulatory messages. And Charles Munch conducted the orchestra in Igor Stravinsky's "Greeting Prelude for the 80th Birthday of Pierre Monteux," a sort of parody of "Happy Birthday to You." It was Monteux who conducted the first performance of Stravinsky's "Rite of Spring" in 1913.

Even to those who may be tone-deaf or indifferent to music, there must inevitably come a desire to cherish this moment and all that it represents. For here, in the midst of the world's angry parleys, trigger counters and unbalanced budgets is a civilized and gentle aspect of mankind of which one may be proud without reservation. Here is a man dedicated to beauty and, in the best tradition, beauty communicated to others; in all this, is a greatness which surpasses much of that with which one comes in daily contact. To know that the world still honors art is gratifying; the intelligence that motivates this recognition may one day be its salvation.

MUSIC

By JOSEPH BISKIND

Tribute to Pierre Monteux

THE life of Pierre Monteux is a symphony still in process of composition. At the age of eighty he is still in harness, adding fresh laurels at a time when most men would have been compelled to step down. It seems, however, that there are two types of musicians, and, perhaps, of humanity in general. The one type is firmly convinced that after thirty-five it is use less to learn anything or attempt anything new. As Miss Lilias Mackinnon points out, these people comfort themselves with the thought, "I am too old to learn," instead of carrying out the good resolution, "Every day I am going to learn something new." Long ago Pierre Monteux had joined the ranks of those who take the line of most resistance and to this day he refuses to allow an increasing number of birthdays to interfere with his mental and musical development. Unlike the youth who congratulates himself with the thought "I am too old to concentrate," Pierre Monteux joyfully undertook the study of new symphonies at the age of seventy or more, thus showing himself truly youthful in spirit.

AGE CANNOT WITHER . . .

It is his eternal youthfulness allied to the maturest wisdom to which we wish to pay tribute on the eightieth birthday of Pierre Monteux. That spirit was in evidence when he presented those history-making premieres of works like Igor Stravinsky's "Rite of Spring" in 1913; it was still burning when he rebuilt the Boston, the Paris, and the San Francisco Symphony Orchestras, and when in his seventies undertook to present such modern premieres as that of the Second Symphony of Roger Sessions. It is still burning vigorously today as he leads the Boston Symphony and famous European orchestras like those of Amsterdam and Paris. Maitre Monteux is an eternal inspiration to those who believe that the arts are more than a passing entertainment and that dedication of one's life to their perfection counts for more than all the headline-making past, present and to come. It is just because Pierre Monteux has devoted himself so whole-heartedly to his chosen lifework that his worth as a human being [illegible] gradually become apparent ev[illegible] lay citizen. And for that reason Pierre Monteux, musician and conductor, has become one of us—Pierre Monteux, citizen.

Concerts in Review

In the concert season now drawing to a close, musical San Francisco has been inundated by a small tidal-wave of pianists, great and small. Names famous and unknown have paraded across Bay Area stages to give of their art to Bay Region audiences and because so many have played in rapid succession and have chosen programs so much alike, one cannot blame audiences for not remembering every detail of each performance. As a matter of fact, even the critics might have a hard time of it if they were forced to sit down and review the season as a whole. Rubinstein, Solomon, Backhaus, Myra Hess, Badura-Skoda, Karl Ulrich Schnabel, Samuel Lipman, Eugene Gash, and many others gave us a variety of pianistic and musical fare that apparently taxed the digestive capacities of local music lovers strongly enough to make them cry "Quits" when still another pianist showed up for a concert at Veterans' Auditorium the evening of March 30.

MASSELOS PLAYS CONTEMPORARY MUSIC

The pianist in question was William Masselos, whose first local performance last season drew acclaim from both audience and press. Young Masselos showed himself a musician capable of tackling the best there is in all types of music, new and old, and his searching reading of the First Piano Sonata of Charles Ives was an event in Bay Area musical annals. This time he introduced the music of three composers to us and again his authoritative and powerful readings turned another page in San Francisco's musical history. Lou Harrison's "Trio for Keyboard," Dane Rudhyar's "Granites" and Ben Weber's "Episodes, Opus 26" were given their first local hearings in performances quite as searching as the one which probed so deeply into the music of Charles Ives last season. Harrison and Ben Weber share an interest in a somewhat dissonant idiom and their work has a tendency to be successful with smaller-scale structures. Rudhyar's piece, subtitled "Tone Poem in Five Sections," was composed in 1929 and in many ways is much more modern than the music of either Harrison or Weber. It is a rather remarkable study in sonorities of various kinds, and from the construction and destruction of these sonorities Rudhyar eventually draws out a long-drawn melody, which after some adventures retires back into whatever world it came from.

A RESOURCEFUL MUSICIAN

All this music was heard on the second half of the program, but the first half offered more conventional material. Schubert's perennially lovely A major Sonata, Opus 120, the B flat minor Sonata of Chopin, two Etudes and the "Reflections in the Water" of Claude Debussy were offered to sustain the point that Masselos is as much at home in music of the "standard repertoire" as he is in contemporary music. But even here his adventurous spirit makes him emphasize what some more timid souls might not prefer hearing. Thus in the last movement of Chopin's B flat minor Sonata, Opus 35, we were treated to a rather novel revelation of Chopin's inner design behind the running figures. And the serenity and haunting lyricism in the slow movement of the Schubert Sonata emerged subtly and shyly, as if uncertain about their reception. Then to close the second half of the program Masselos let loose his technical powers to make child's play of the difficulties in the famous Brahms-Paganini Variations—though here, as elsewhere, more fastidious players might well have disagreed with him in matters of emphasis.

MEMO TO MASSELOS

Masselos is a remarkable musician and [illegible] pianist, and it is [illegible] performance was [illegible] at the [illegible] season that featured [illegible] many pianists. For his playing and his program-making are both distinctly off the beaten track and deserve a much larger audience than was in attendance that evening. We hope that when he returns next season he will bring with him more of the challenging works of today's composers, and some of still unexplored masterworks from the treasury of music. A program with the Schubert G major Fantasy, a half dozen Scarlatti Sonatas, the Piano Sonata of Paul Dukas, and the Three Piano Pieces, Opus 11, of Arnold Schoenberg—that would be one worth waiting for! How about it, William Masselos?

[25]

Cir. (D 124,110) (S 382,056)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
APR 5 1955

LEON FLEISHER

Leon Fleisher, the pianist who appeared last night as soloist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has been engaged by Aaron Richmond to appear in the Boston University Celebrity Series next season, when he will give his first local recital.

Cir. (D 124,110) (S 382,056)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
APR 5 1955

Are We So Intellectually Lazy That We Shun New Works of Music?

To the Editor—I was most amazed by the letter in the March 29 Globe. Evidently the writer wants to stop music in its tracks, retroactive to the German Romanticists!

I am as fond of the music of Bach and Beethoven as anyone, but I would find a musical diet of nothing but relatively early works both unhealthy and monotonous.

Admittedly much contemporary music is difficult to listen to, but are we so intellectually lazy that we shun new works because they present problems at first hearings?

The satisfaction that comes with an awakening feeling for contemporary music more than makes up for any preliminary pangs, for a whole new field is opened for one's listening enjoyment.

I think most of us who love and admire the Boston Symphony Orchestra will disagree wholeheartedly with the criticism of the orchestra's programming. Instead, I, at least, am grateful that the works of contemporary composers are mixed so liberally with the well-known favorites.

Heaven help us if "experimental" music ceases to be written and played. Music is not an academic art. It needs to live and grow.

Cambridge. MARJORIE LINCOLN.

Cir. (D 57,751) (S 49,376)
This Clipping From
NEW BEDFORD, MASS.
STANDARD-TIMES
APR 7 1955

MOMENT IN HISTORY

Pierre Monteux, whose hair still is black and in whose face there is an ageless virility, is 80. Mr. Monteux was conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra from 1919 to 1924 and he began his American career in that city 36 years ago.

He observed his 80th birthday by conducting the Boston orchestra in an all-Beethoven program and when it was completed, the audience stood and gave him one of those prolonged ovations which comes spontaneously, contagiously from the heart. Seated among the violas was Arthur Fiedler, better known as Pops conductor, who played that instrument under Mr. Monteux's direction, as a member of the Boston Symphony.

Bing Crosby, Queen Juliana of The Netherlands, Fritz Kreisler and President Eisenhower were among those who sent congratulatory messages. And Charles Munch conducted the orchestra in Igor Stravinsky's "Greeting Prelude for the 80th Birthday of Pierre Monteux," a sort of parody of "Happy Birthday to You." It was Monteux who conducted the first performance of Stravinsky's "Rite of Spring" in 1913.

Even to those who may be tone-deaf or indifferent to music, there must inevitably come a desire to cherish this moment and all that it represents. For here, in the midst of the world's angry parleys, ledger counters and unbalanced budgets is a civilized and gentle aspect of mankind of which one may be proud without reservation. Here is a man dedicated to beauty and, in the best tradition, beauty communicated to others; in all this, is a greatness which surpasses much of that with which one comes in daily contact. To know that the world still honors art is gratifying; the intelligence that motivates this recognition may one day be its salvation.

Cir. (D 68,801)
This Clipping From TULSA, OKLA.
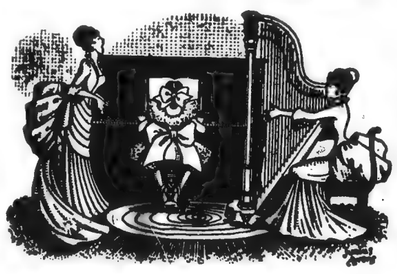
TRIBUNE
APR 6 1955

Maestro, 80, Celebrates by Working for Supper

BOSTON, April 6 (AP)—Maestro Pierre Monteux celebrated his 80th birthday by working for his supper.

The former conductor of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra directed a pension fund concert for the Boston Symphony, then was feted by the musicians at a hotel.

Cir. (49,960)
This Clipping From
THE ARGONAUT
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.
APR 8 - 1955



MUSIC

By JOSEPH BISKIND

Tribute to Pierre Monteux

THE life of Pierre Monteux is a symphony still in process of composition. At the age of eighty he is still in harness, adding fresh laurels at a time when most men would have been compelled to step down. It seems, however, that there are two types of musicians, and, perhaps, of humanity in general. The one type is firmly convinced that after thirty-five it is use less to learn anything or attempt anything new. As Miss Lilias Mackinnon points out, these people comfort themselves with the thought, "I am too old to learn," instead of carrying out the good resolution, "Every day I am going to learn something new." Long ago Pierre Monteux had joined the ranks of those who take the line of most resistance and to this day he refuses to allow an increasing number of birthdays to interfere with his mental and musical development. Unlike the youth who congratulates himself with the thought "I am too old to concentrate," Pierre Monteux joyfully undertook the study of new symphonies at the age of seventy or more, thus showing himself truly youthful in spirit.

AGE CANNOT WITHER . . .

It is his eternal youthfulness allied to the maturest wisdom to which we wish to pay tribute on the eightieth birthday of Pierre Monteux. That spirit was in evidence when he presented those history-making premieres of works like Igor Stravinsky's "Rite of Spring" in 1913; it was still burning when he rebuilt the Boston, the Paris, and the San Francisco Symphony Orchestras, and when in his seventies undertook to present such modern premieres as that of the Second Symphony of Roger Sessions. It is still burning vigorously today as he leads the Boston Symphony and famous European orchestras like those of Amsterdam and Paris. Maitre Monteux is an eternal inspiration to those who believe that the arts are more than a passing entertainment and that dedication of one's life to their perfection counts for more than all the headline-making past, present and to come. It is just because Pierre Monteux has devoted himself so whole-heartedly to his chosen lifework that his worth as a human being has gradually become apparent even to the lay citizen. And for that reason Pierre Monteux, musician and conductor, has become one of us—Pierre Monteux, citizen.

Concerts in Review

In the concert season now drawing to a close, musical San Francisco has been inundated by a small tidal-wave of pianists, great and small. Names famous and unknown have paraded across Bay Area stages to give of their art to Bay Region audiences and because so many have played in rapid succession and have chosen programs so much alike, one cannot blame audiences for not remembering every detail of each performance. As a matter of fact, even the critics might have a hard time of it if they were forced to sit down and review the season as a whole. Rubinstein, Solomon, Backhaus, Myra Hess, Badura-Skoda, Karl Ulrich Schnabel, Samuel Lipman, Eugene Gash, and many others gave us a variety of pianistic and musical fare that apparently taxed the digestive capacities of local music lovers strongly enough to make them cry "Quits" when still another pianist showed up for a concert at Veterans' Auditorium the evening of March 30.

MASSELOS PLAYS CONTEMPORARY MUSIC

The pianist in question was William Masselos, whose first local performance last season drew acclaim from both audience and press. Young Masselos showed himself a musician capable of tackling the best there is in all types of music, new and old, and his searching reading of the First Piano Sonata of Charles Ives was an event in Bay Area musical annals. This time he introduced the music of three composers to us and again his authoritative and powerful readings turned another page in San Francisco's musical history. Lou Harrison's "Trio for Keyboard," Dane Rudhyar's "Granites" and Ben Weber's "Episodes, Opus 26" were given their first local hearings in performances quite as searching as the one which probed so deeply into the music of Charles Ives last season. Harrison and Ben Weber share an interest in a somewhat dissonant idiom and their work has a tendency to be successful with smaller-scale structures. Rudhyar's piece, subtitled "Tone Poem in Five Sections," was composed in 1929 and in many ways is much more modern than the music of either Harrison or Weber. It is a rather remarkable study in sonorities of various kinds, and from the construction and destruction of these sonorities Rudhyar eventually draws out a long-drawn melody, which after some adventures retires back into whatever world it came from.

A RESOURCEFUL MUSICIAN

All this music was heard on the second half of the program, but the first half offered more conventional material. Schubert's perennially lovely A major Sonata, Opus 120, the B flat minor Sonata of Chopin, two Etudes and the "Reflections in the Water" of Claude Debussy were offered to sustain the point that Masselos is as much at home in music of the "standard repertoire" as he is in contemporary music. But even here his adventurous spirit makes him emphasize what some more timid souls might not prefer hearing. Thus in the last movement of Chopin's B flat minor Sonata, Opus 35, we were treated to a rather novel revelation of Chopin's inner design behind the running figures. And the serenity and haunting lyricism in the slow movement of the Schubert Sonata emerged subtly and shyly, as if uncertain about their reception. Then to close the second half of the program Masselos let loose his technical powers to make child's play of the difficulties in the famous Brahms-Paganini Variations—though here, as elsewhere, more fastidious players might well have disagreed with him in matters of emphasis.

MEMO TO MASSELOS

Masselos is a remarkable musician and a remarkable pianist, and it is unfortunate that his performance was scheduled at the end of a season that features so many pianists. For his playing and his program-making are both distinctly off the beaten track and deserve a much larger audience than was in attendance that evening. We hope that when he returns next season he will bring with him more of the challenging works of today's composers, and some of still unexplored masterworks from the treasury of music. A program with the Schubert G major Fantasy, a half dozen Scarlatti Sonatas, the Piano Sonata of Paul Dukas, and the Three Piano Pieces, Opus 11, of Arnold Schoenberg—that would be one worth waiting for! How about it, William Masselos?

[25]

Cir. (D 68,801)

This Clipping From TULSA, OKLA.
TRIBUNE

APR 6 1955

Maestro, 80, Celebrates by Working for Supper

BOSTON, April 6 (AP)—Maestro Pierre Monteux celebrated his 80th birthday by working for his supper.

The former conductor of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra directed a pension fund concert for the Boston Symphony, then was feted by the musicians at a hotel.

APR 5 1955

Leon Fleisher Booked

Leon Fleisher, the pianist who appeared as soloist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra last night, has been engaged by Aaron Richmond to appear in the Boston University Celebrity Series next season, when he will give his first local recital.

Cir. (D 124,110) (S 382,056)

This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE

APR 5 1955

Are We So Intellectually Lazy That We Shun New Works of Music?

To the Editor—I was most amazed by the letter in the March 29 Globe. Evidently the writer wants to stop music in its tracks, retroactive to the German Romanticists!

I am as fond of the music of Bach and Beethoven as anyone, but I would find a musical diet of nothing but relatively early works both unhealthy and monotonous.

Admittedly much contemporary music is difficult to listen to, but are we so intellectually lazy that we shun new works because they present problems at first hearings?

The satisfaction that comes with an awakening feeling for contemporary music more than makes up for any preliminary pangs, for a whole new field is opened for one's listening enjoyment.

I think most of us who love and admire the Boston Symphony Orchestra will disagree wholeheartedly with the criticism of the orchestra's programming. Instead, I, at least, am grateful that the works of contemporary composers are mixed so liberally with the well-known favorites.

Heaven help us if "experimental" music ceases to be written and played. Music is not an academic art. It needs to live and grow.

Cambridge.

MARJORIE LINCOLN.

Cir. (D 57,751) (S 49,376)

This Clipping From
NEW BEDFORD, MASS.
STANDARD-TIMES

APR 7 1955

MOMENT IN HISTORY

Pierre Monteux, whose hair still is black and in whose face there is an ageless virility, is 80. Mr. Monteux was conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra from 1919 to 1924 and he began his American career in that city 36 years ago.

He observed his 80th birthday by conducting the Boston orchestra in an all-Beethoven program and when it was completed, the audience stood and gave him one of those prolonged ovations which comes spontaneously, contagiously from the heart. Seated among the violas was Arthur Fiedler, better known as Pops conductor, who played that instrument under Mr. Monteux's direction, as a member of the Bos[illegible]phony.

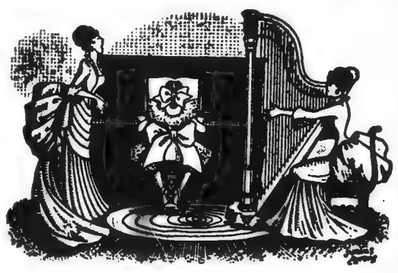
Bing Crosby, Queen Juliana of The Netherlands, Fritz Kreisler and President Eisenhower were among those who sent congratulatory messages. And Charles Munch conducted the orchestra in Igor Stravinsky's "Greeting Prelude for the 80th Birthday of Pierre Monteux," a sort of parody of "Happy Birthday to You." It was Monteux who conducted the first performance of Stravinsky's "Rite of Spring" in 1913.

Even to those who may be tone-deaf or indifferent to music, there must inevitably come a desire to cherish this moment and all that it represents. For here, in the midst of the world's angry parleys, finger counters and unbalanced budgets is a civilized and gentle aspect of mankind of which one may be proud without reservation. Here is a man dedicated to beauty and, in the best tradition, beauty communicated to others; in all this, is a greatness which surpasses much of that with which one comes in daily contact. To know that the world still honors art is gratifying; the intelligence that motivates this recognition may one day be its salvation.

Cir. (49,960)

This Clipping From
THE ARGONAUT
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.

APR 8 - 1955



MUSIC

By JOSEPH BISKIND

Tribute to Pierre Monteux

THE life of Pierre Monteux is a symphony still in process of composition. At the age of eighty he is still in harness, adding fresh laurels at a time when most men would have been compelled to step down. It seems, however, that there are two types of musicians, and, perhaps, of humanity in general. The one type is firmly convinced that after thirty-five it is use less to learn anything or attempt anything new. As Miss Lilias Mackinnon points out, these people comfort themselves with the thought, "I am too old to learn," instead of carrying out the good resolution, "Every day I am going to learn something new." Long ago Pierre Monteux had joined the ranks of those who take the line of most resistance and to this day he refuses to allow an increasing number of birthdays to interfere with his mental and musical development. Unlike the youth who congratulates himself with the thought"I am too old to concentrate," Pierre Monteux joyfully undertook the study of new symphonies at the age of seventy or more, thus showing himself truly youthful in spirit.

AGE CANNOT WITHER . . .

It is his eternal youthfulness allied to the maturest wisdom to which we wish to pay tribute on the eightieth birthday of Pierre Monteux. That spirit was in evidence when he presented those history-making premieres of works like Igor Stravinsky's "Rite of Spring" in 1913; it was still burning when he rebuilt the Boston, the Paris, and the San Francisco Symphony Orchestras, and when in his seventies undertook to present such modern premieres as that of the Second Symphony of Roger Sessions. It is still burning vigorously today as he leads the Boston Symphony and famous European orchestras like those of Amsterdam and Paris. Maitre Monteux is an eternal inspiration to those who believe that the arts are more than a passing entertainment and that dedication of one's life to their perfection counts for more than all the headline-making past, present and to come. It is just because Pierre Monteux has devoted himself so whole-heartedly to his chosen lifework that his worth as a human being has gradually become apparent even to the lay citizen. And for that reason Pierre Monteux, musician and conductor, has become one of us—Pierre Monteux, citizen.

Concerts in Review

In the concert season now drawing to a close, musical San Francisco has been inundated by a small tidal-wave of pianists, great and small. Names famous and unknown have paraded across Bay Area stages to give of their art to Bay Region audiences and because so many have played in rapid succession and have chosen programs so much alike, one cannot blame audiences for not remembering every detail of each performance. As a matter of fact, even the critics might have a hard time of it if they were forced to sit down and review the season as a whole. Rubinstein, Solomon, Backhaus, Myra Hess, Badura-Skoda, Karl Ulrich Schnabel, Samuel Lipman, Eugene Gash, and many others gave us a variety of pianistic and musical fare that apparently taxed the digestive capacities of local music lovers strongly enough to make them cry "Quits" when still another pianist showed up for a concert at Veterans' Auditorium the evening of March 30.

MASSELOS PLAYS CONTEMPORARY MUSIC

The pianist in question was William Masselos, whose first local performance last season drew acclaim from both audience and press. Young Masselos showed himself a musician capable of tackling the best there is in all types of music, new and old, and his searching reading of the First Piano Sonata of Charles Ives was an event in Bay Area musical annals. This time he introduced the music of three composers to us and again his authoritative and powerful readings turned another page in San Francisco's musical history. Lou Harrison's "Trio for Keyboard," Dane Rudhyar's "Granites" and Ben Weber's "Episodes, Opus 26" were given their first local hearings in performances quite as searching as the one which probed so deeply into the music of Charles Ives last season. Harrison and Ben Weber share an interest in a somewhat dissonant idiom and their work has a tendency to be successful with smaller-scale structures. Rudhyar's piece, subtitled "Tone Poem in Five Sections," was composed in 1929 and in many ways is much more modern than the music of either Harrison or Weber. It is a rather remarkable study in sonorities of various kinds, and from the construction and destruction of these sonorities Rudhyar eventually draws out a long-drawn melody, which after some adventures retires back into whatever world it came from.

A RESOURCEFUL MUSICIAN

All this music was heard on the second half of the program, but the first half offered more conventional material. Schubert's perennially lovely A major Sonata, Opus 120, the B flat minor Sonata of Chopin, two Etudes and the "Reflections in the Water" of Claude Debussy were offered to sustain the point that Masselos is as much at home in music of the "standard repertoire" as he is in contemporary music. But even here his adventurous spirit makes him emphasize what some more timid souls might not prefer hearing. Thus in the last movement of Chopin's B flat minor Sonata, Opus 35, we were treated to a rather novel revelation of Chopin's inner design behind the running figures. And the serenity and haunting lyricism in the slow movement of the Schubert Sonata emerged subtly and shyly—as if uncertain about their reception. Then to close the second half of the program Masselos let loose his technical powers to make child's play of the difficulties in the famous Brahms-Paganini Variations—though here, as elsewhere, more fastidious players might well have disagreed with him in matters of emphasis.

MEMO TO MASSELOS

Masselos is a remarkable musician and a remarkable pianist, and it is unfortunate that his performance was scheduled at the end of a season that featured so many pianists. For his playing and his program-making are both distinctly off the beaten track and deserve a much larger audience than was in attendance that evening. We hope that when he returns next season he will bring with him more of the challenging works of today's composers, and some of still unexplored masterworks from the treasury of music. A program with the Schubert G major Fantasy, a half dozen Scarlatti Sonatas, the Piano Sonata of Paul Dukas, and the Three Piano Pieces, Opus 11, of Arnold Schoenberg—that would be one worth waiting for! How about it, William Masselos?

* * *

[25]

Cir. (D 294,859) (S 252,207)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
POST
APR 8 - 1955

Music in Review

By TUCKER KEISER

The outstanding event in yesterday's Boston Symphony concert was the performance of Berlioz' "Summer Nights," a cycle of six songs which tower as an Everest above the placid plains of the French art song. Originally writing for voice and piano, the composer brought to his orchestration a genius for instrumental color. Each striking melody fittingly expresses a poignant text by Theophile Gautier.

To Victoria de Los Angeles goes the honor of introducing them at these concerts, though they were composed in 1832 and by no means belong to the vast repository of forgotten masterpieces. The Met opera soprano was in excellent voice yesterday and sang with that deceptive simplicity which moves the listener without insisting that he recognize the astonishing artistry employed.

These songs encompass a tremendous emotional range, as in the naive "Villanelle," the melancholy "Le Spectre de la Rose," the intense "Au Cimetiere," and the passionate "L'Ile Inconnue." Last summer we heard Eleanor Steber give a flamboyantly operatic version of them at Tanglewood, excusably scaling her performance to the large Music Shed. Yesterday we heard them sung as they should be, passionately but introspectively. Mr. Munch provided beautifully tailored accompaniments.

The rest of the program did not offer very much. It opened with the worst reading of the Mozart E-flat major I have yet encountered. There was no continuity, the tempos were driven beyond all reason, and Straussian melodrama was substituted for Mozartian lyricism.

Debussy's watery "La Damoiselle Elue" again found the soprano in the soloist's spotlight but this time sharing it with Carol Smith, contralto, and the Radcliffe Choral Society. The work does little more than parade atmospherics, and these were handled capably enough.

The concert closed with Roussel's noisy, brassy, and busy Suite in F minor; Mr. Munch achieved the ultimate and definite quantity of noise, brassiness and busyness.

Cir. (D 124,110) (S 382,056)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
APR 8 - 1955

Cir. (D 212,608) (S 242,866)
This Clipping From SEATTLE, WASH.
TIMES
APR 21 1955

Two members of the Boston Symphony demonstrate for children from the Beethoven School, Newton, some of the ancient instruments on display in the Casadesus collection at Symphony Hall. Some of the items date from the 16th Century.

OLD-TIMER: In Boston—Youngsters listened as George Moleux, first contrabassist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, played a one-string ancestor to the present-day double bass. Old instruments, some dating back to the 16th century, were placed on display recently.

Cir. (D 149,902) (S 382,056)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
EVENING GLOBE
APR 8 1955

Victoria de los Angeles Is Soloist at Symphony

Twenty-first program in the "regular" series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch music director. The program: Mozart: Symphony in E-flat (K.543); Berlioz: Song cycle, "Summer Nights" (first performances at these concerts; soloist: Victoria de los Angeles, soprano); Debussy: "La Damoiselle Elue" soloists: Miss de los Angeles, and Carol Smith, contralto; chorus: members of the Radcliffe Choral Society, prepared by G. Wallace Woodworth); Roussel: Suite in F major.

BY CYRUS DURGIN

The Boston Symphony concerts this week are distinguished by the presence of the Spanish soprano, Victoria de los Angeles, who makes her first appearances as soloist with this orchestra in Berlioz' exquisite song cycle, and the not-too-often performed "Damoiselle Elue." Since today is Good Friday, the afternoon concert of the week, according to custom, was advanced to Thursday. The evening concert will be given Saturday as usual.

Miss de los Angeles, as we have known these four years past from her opera appearances and solo concerts, is a fastidious artist, and an intelligent one. Whatever she sings will be done properly. The style will be correct, the rhythm exact, the phrases nicely arched and the text rather clearly enunciated. So it all was yesterday, and the singer, striking in black gown and cinnamon-colored (or was it pumpkin colored?) stole, was recalled several times by the notably warm applause of this usually not too demonstrative audience.

As sheer resonance, her voice sounded well, although the upper tones, when soft as in the opening of "Au Cimetiere," seemed pinched. But that indefinable quality which touches the heart was not there—not, at least, for me. I thought, incredulously, of Debussy's description of Grieg's piano music—"bonbons filled with snow" — for in times past the de los Angeles voice has been deeply moving. Somehow the powerful communication of feeling which Berlioz' songs have brought on another occasion, was missing. There was everything but real emotion. The soprano part of the "Damoiselle Elue," musically stylized and poetically synthetic, is another matter and wholly a decorative one, and that Miss de los Angeles managed impeccably.

It was pleasant to hear Debussy's early and radiant score, and to have the choral part sung so wonderfully well by the Radcliffe girls. Every note was in place, every syllable clear, the voices blended thoroughly and the style of Debussy could not have been more accurately established. Mr. Woodworth indeed had prepared the chorus well. Miss Smith sang capably, and her voice is nice, but you could not get many of her words.

Roussel's Suite, exuberant to the point of being rambunctious but a fine work and very clever, came as a healthy, astringent contrast to the honeyed beauties of Debussy and the perfumed nonsense of Rossetti. We ought to hear more of Roussel; he was a big talent and he had a sense of humor in music, which, when you come to think of it, is a fairly uncommon merit.

The orchestra was in splendid form, and so was the conducting of Munch, in all save the Mozart. I arrived too late for the first movement, but the first violin did some sloppy phrasing in the andante, and the remainder was played much too heavily, as if the composer were Beethoven rather than Mozart.

Cir. (D 131,670) (S 258,529)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
APR 8 - 1955

MUSIC

Symphony Concert

The Boston Symphony orchestra, Charles Munch conducting, gave the 21st program of the 74th season in Symphony Hall yesterday afternoon. The solists were Victoria De Los Angeles, soprano and Carol Smith, contralto, the assisting artists the Radcliffe Choral Society. The program:
Symphony in E flat (K.543).....Mozart
"Nuits d'ete," Op. 7.....Berlioz
"La Damoiselle Elue".....Debussy
Suite in F, Op. 33.....Roussel

By RUDOLPH ELIE

Although no stranger to the stage of Symphony Hall, Victoria De Los Angeles appeared on it with the Boston Symphony orchestra yesterday to demonstrate anew her superb artistry as singer, musician and personality.

The essence of her singing may be summed up in the word distinction. She has been, I think, in better voice than she was yesterday; her upper tones seemed occasionally slightly rough in quality as if she might have just recovered from a cold, but the way in which she used it, the purity and focus and nobility of it was in every way remarkable.

It is a great many years since this Berlioz cycle of six songs for soprano and orchestra has been done here. The program, usually so faithful in these matters, does not say, but an acquaintance recalled having heard Mary Garden do them. They are, in any case, perfectly exquisite in the delicacy of their expression and the haunting beauty of their melodies, melodies that are never four square or obvious but that spin on and on so wedded to the words as to be in fact a part of them.

Poetic Sentiment

Of the six only the first, "Villanelle," moves with animation; the rest are of a slow, declamatory nature rising at times to dramatic intensity but on the whole introspective, filled with poetic sentiment but never sentimentality. The orcrestra is as much a part of their atmosphere as the words and melodic lines: "L'absence," for instance, the only one of the set often encountered in recital, gains infinitely in effect with the orchestral textures re-inforcing it.

Yet it might be said that Berlioz reveals in these six songs his major flaw as a composer: the lack of instinct for the solid foundation of the bass. It is everywhere weak and unsubstantial, a fact that contributes in some measure to the ethereal quality of the songs but at the same time robs them of memorability; they pass on and are gone, and it is impossible to recall them save as evocations of a fleeting vision.

If Miss De Los Angeles, whose charming manner and appearance captivates her audience before she sings a note, sang the Berlioz songs with rare distinction, she sang the ensuing role of the Damoiselle with even greater poetic sensibility. Indeed, this was the best performance of Debussy's distilled setting of Rosetti's mystical poem in my experience, the Radcliffe Choral Society combining with the orchestra to provide Mr. Munch with one of his interpretative wonders. Carol Smith was splendid in the brief contralto role but it was in every way Miss De Los Angeles' angelic conception and execution of the central character that made this such a notable event.

Great Vigor

Mr. Munch did the familiar Mozart Symphony with great vigor, informing the middle section of the andante with a force seldom to be noted in it. However, like everyone else, he took the finale at a terrific pace to diminish its pleasure—for me, at least.

I don't consider it my task to quarrel with a conductor's tempo unless it is positively eccentric, but it does seem to me this happy conclusion would be a lot happier at a more reasonable speed. The Roussel Suite, which has a peculiar sound and a quality so much its own as to be almost unique, found Mr. Munch in a holiday mood, and he did it with a bravura and a spirit that only he can manage, though how he does it escapes me entirely. Next week Isaac Stern will be the violin soloist in Mozart's G major Concerto and Leonard Bernstein's Serenade. Haydn's D major Symphony and Wagner's Prelude to "Die Meistersinger" round out the program.

Cir. (D 294,859) (S 252,207)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
POST
APR 8 - 1955

Music in Review

By TUCKER KEISER

The outstanding event in yesterday's Boston Symphony concert was the performance of Berlioz' "Summer Nights," a cycle of six songs which tower as an Everest above the placid plains of the French art song. Originally writing for voice and piano, the composer brought to his orchestration a genius for instrumental color. Each striking melody fittingly expresses a poignant text by Theophile Gautier.

To Victoria de Los Angeles goes the honor of introducing them at these concerts, though they were composed in 1832 and by no means belong to the vast repository of forgotten masterpieces. The Met opera soprano was in excellent voice yesterday and sang with that deceptive simplicity which moves the listener without insisting that he recognize the astonishing artistry employed.

These songs encompass a tremendous emotional range, as in the naive "Villanelle," the melancholy "Le Spectre de la Rose," the intense "Au Cimetiere," and the passionate "L'Ile Inconnue." Last summer we heard Eleanor Steber give a flamboyantly operatic version of them at Tanglewood, excusably scaling her performance to the large Music Shed. Yesterday we heard them sung as they should be, passionately but introspectively. Mr. Munch provided beautifully tailored accompaniments.

The rest of the program did not offer very much. It opened with the worst reading of the Mozart E-flat major I have yet encountered. There was no continuity, the tempos were driven beyond all reason, and Straussian melodrama was substituted for Mozartian lyricism.

Debussy's watery "La Damoiselle Elue" again found the soprano in the soloist's spotlight but this time sharing it with Carol Smith, contralto, and the Radcliffe Choral Society. The work does little more than parade atmospherics, and these were handled capably enough.

The concert closed with Roussel's noisy, brassy, and busy Suite in F minor; Mr. Munch achieved the ultimate and definite quantity of noise, brassiness and busyness.

Cir. (D 124,110) (S 382,056)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
APR 8 - 1955

Two members of the Boston Symphony demonstrate for children from the Beethoven School, Newton, some of the ancient instruments on display in the Casadesus collection at Symphony Hall. Some of the items date from the 16th Century.

OLD-TIMER: In Boston—Youngsters listened as George Moleux, first contrabassist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, played a one-string ancestor to the present-day double bass. Old instruments, some dating back to the 16th century, were placed on display recently.

Cir. (D 149,902) (S 382,056)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
EVENING GLOBE
APR 8 1955

Victoria de los Angeles Is Soloist at Symphony

Twenty-first program in the "regular" series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch music director. The program: Mozart: Symphony in E-flat (K.543); Berlioz: Song cycle, "Summer Nights" (first performances at these concerts: soloist: Victoria de los Angeles, soprano); Debussy: "La Damoiselle Elue" soloists: Miss de los Angeles, and Carol Smith, contralto; chorus: members of the Radcliffe Choral Society, prepared by G. Wallace Woodworth); Roussel: Suite in F major.

BY CYRUS DURGIN

The Boston Symphony concerts this week are distinguished by the presence of the Spanish soprano, Victoria de los Angeles, who makes her first appearances as soloist with this orchestra in Berlioz' exquisite song cycle, and the not-too-often performed "Damoiselle Elue." Since today is Good Friday, the afternoon concert of the week, according to custom, was advanced to Thursday. The evening concert will be given Saturday as usual.

Miss de los Angeles, as we have known these four years past from her opera appearances and solo concerts, is a fastidious artist, and an intelligent one. Whatever she sings will be done properly. The style will be correct, the rhythm exact, the phrases nicely arched and the text rather clearly enunciated. So it all was yesterday, and the singer, striking in black gown and cinnamon-colored (or was it pumpkin colored?) stole, was recalled several times by the notably warm applause of this usually not too demonstrative audience.

As sheer resonance, her voice sounded well, although the upper tones, when soft as in the opening of "Au Cimetiere," seemed pinched. But that indefinable quality which touches the heart was not there—not, at least, for me. I thought, incredulously, of Debussy's description of Grieg's piano music—"bonbons filled with snow" — for in times past the de los Angeles voice has been deeply moving. Somehow the powerful communication of feeling which Berlioz' songs have brought on another occasion, was missing. There was everything but real emotion. The soprano part of the "Damoiselle Elue," musically stylized and poetically synthetic, is another matter and wholly a decorative one, and that Miss de los Angeles managed impeccably.

It was pleasant to hear Debussy's early and radiant score, and to have the choral part sung so wonderfully well by the Radcliffe girls. Every note was in place, every syllable clear, the voices blended thoroughly and the style of Debussy could not have been more accurately established. Mr. Woodworth indeed had prepared the chorus well. Miss Smith sang capably, and her voice is nice, but you could not get many of her words.

Roussel's Suite, exuberant to the point of being rambunctious but a fine work and very clever, came as a healthy, astringent contrast to the honeyed beauties of Debussy and the perfumed nonsense of Rossetti. We ought to hear more of Roussel; he was a big talent and he had a sense of humor in music, which, when you come to think of it, is a fairly uncommon merit.

The orchestra was in splendid form, and so was the conducting of Munch, in all save the Mozart. I arrived too late for the first movement, but the first violin did some sloppy phrasing in the andante, and the remainder was played much too heavily, as if the composer were Beethoven rather than Mozart.

Cir. (D 131,670) (S 258,529)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
APR 8 - 1955

MUSIC

Symphony Concert

The Boston Symphony orchestra, Charles Munch conducting, gave the 21st program of the 74th season in Symphony Hall yesterday afternoon. The soloists were Victoria De Los Angeles, soprano and Carol Smith, contralto, the assisting artists the Radcliffe Choral Society. The program:
Symphony in E flat (K.543).....Mozart
"Nuits d'ete," Op. 7.....Berlioz
"La Damoiselle Elue".....Debussy
Suite in F, Op. 33.....Roussel

By RUDOLPH ELIE

Although no stranger to the stage of Symphony Hall, Victoria De Los Angeles appeared on it with the Boston Symphony orchestra yesterday to demonstrate anew her superb artistry as singer, musician and personality.

The essence of her singing may be summed up in the word distinction. She has been, I think, in better voice than she was yesterday; her upper tones seemed occasionally slightly rough in quality as if she might have just recovered from a cold, but the way in which she used it, the purity and focus and nobility of it was in every way remarkable.

It is a great many years since this Berlioz cycle of six songs for soprano and orchestra has been done here. The program, usually so faithful in these matters, does not say, but an acquaintance recalled having heard Mary Garden do them. They are, in any case, perfectly exquisite in the delicacy of their expression and the haunting beauty of their melodies, melodies that are never four square or obvious but that spin on and on so wedded to the words as to be in fact a part of them.

Poetic Sentiment

Of the six only the first, "Villanelle," moves with animation; the rest are of a slow, declamatory nature rising at times to dramatic intensity but on the whole introspective, filled with poetic sentiment but never sentimentality. The orcrestra is as much a part of their atmosphere as the words and melodic lines: "L'absence," for instance, the only one of the set often encountered in recital, gains infinitely in effect with the orchestral textures re-inforcing it.

Yet it might be said that Berlioz reveals in these six songs his major flaw as a composer: the lack of instinct for the solid foundation of the bass. It is everywhere weak and unsubstantial, a fact that contributes in some measure to the ethereal quality of the songs but at the same time robs them of memorability; they pass on and are gone, and it is impossible to recall them save as evocations of a fleeting vision.

If Miss De Los Angeles, whose charming manner and appearance captivates her audience before she sings a note, sang the Berlioz songs with rare distinction, she sang the ensuing role of the Damoiselle with even greater poetic sensibility. Indeed, this was the best performance of Debussy's distilled setting of Rosetti's mystical poem in my experience, the Radcliffe Choral Society combining with the orchestra to provide Mr. Munch with one of his interpretative wonders. Carol Smith was splendid in the brief contralto role but it was in every way Miss De Los Angeles' angelic conception and execution of the central character that made this such a notable event.

Great Vigor

Mr. Munch did the familiar Mozart Symphony with great vigor, informing the middle section of the andante with a force seldom to be noted in it. However, like everyone else, he took the finale at a terrific pace to diminish its pleasure—for me, at least.

I don't consider it my task to quarrel with a conductor's tempo unless it is positively eccentric, but it does seem to me this happy conclusion would be a lot happier at a more reasonable speed. The Roussel Suite, which has a peculiar sound and a quality so much its own as to be almost unique, found Mr. Munch in a holiday mood, and he did it with a bravura and a spirit that only he can manage, though how he does it escapes me entirely. Next week Isaac Stern will be the violin soloist in Mozart's G major Concerto and Leonard Bernstein's Serenade. Haydn's D major Symphony and Wagner's Prelude to "Die Meistersinger" round out the program.

Cir. (D 131,670) (S 268,529)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
APR 10 1955

Charles Munch Tips His Hand In a Memorable Little Book

By RUDOLPH ELIE

In his six years as conductor and musical director of the Boston Symphony orchestra, Charles Munch has remained, to the public at large and, indeed, to many of his colleagues, a sphinx. He has neither entertained nor been entertained on anything but the most intimate and infrequent scale. He has not appeared publicly in the theater and only rarely in the music halls. He has not held forth in the green room, been lionized socially, interviewed often by the press, expressed his opinion on the affairs of the day politically or otherwise, been a spokesman for any movement in music, made speeches about anything, or revealed the slightest glimpse of his thought and personality save on the conductor's stand before the orchestra itself. The reason, on the surface, is simple: He has been too busy with the appallingly ardous task of conducting the musical affairs of a musical organization whose budget exceeds by half a million that of any other orchestra in the world and one whose public performances are nearly double those of any other.

Below the surface, however, there is another reason, a reason disclosed for the first time in the publication, last week, of the English translation of his book "I Am a Conductor" (Oxford, $2.75; 104 pp.). That reason is an essential modesty, an essential integrity and an essential dedication to his art perhaps unequalled among the conductors of the world, now or ever. And to read his brief, brilliant statement of his art and his life is to warm to him as a personality of infinite charm and of wisdom as well, to learn, at last, what kind of man he really is.

The book first appeared in a French series devoted to the revelation, by men famous in all walks of life, of their approach to their professions. Arthur Honegger did "I Am a Composer," but there are, I presume, a number of others ranging from "I Am a Novelist" to "I Am a Cop." On its appearance, Lanning Humphrey of the Symphony Hall staff provided me with a translation of a number of interesting passages, about which I wrote not too long ago. But excerpts are never satisfactory, and it remains for this excellent translation by Leonard Burkat, perhaps Mr. Munch's closest American confident (who provides, incidentally, a foreword detailing more of the conductor's biography than anything so far), to reveal the true depth, the true artistic image and the true intellectual range of a very remarkable man.

Mr. Munch makes no attempt to recount his life in detail—Mr. Burkat fills in some of the gaps—nor does he attempt to set forth the technical aspects of his calling in a text book for conductors. Essentially, his book is a series of musical pensees, of meditations on a host of peripheral matters. And the felicity of his expression, the singular clarity of his thought, the indisputable logic and "rightness" of his opinions combines to convey the impression that the author is one of the most literate and cultivated men of the day.

"Is there a simple rule by which one true tempo may be discovered?" he asks. I do not think so but Kreisler has laid down this general principle: 'Where the notes are few and large in value don't slow down the beat. Where there are many short notes, take your time.' If you follow this you will at least approach the truth."

Musical Events

The Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch will give concerts in Symphony Hall next Tuesday evening, April 12, Frday afternoon and Saturday evening, April 15-16, and in Sanders Theatre, Cambridge, on Tuesday evening, April 19.

Next Thursday, April 14 at 7:30, the last Open Rehearsal of the series of six will take place. Isaac Stern, the violinist, will take part in this rehearsal in preparation of the program to follow. An additional Open Rehearsal is announced for the following week, Thursday, April 21 at the same hour, when Bach's Mass in B Minor will be rehearsed. The program for April 12 will consist of Wagner's Prelude to "Die Meistersinger", Elgar's Concerto for Cello, with Maurice Eisenberg as soloist, and Beethoven's Symphony No. 6, "Pastoral". The program for April 15-16 will consist of Haydn's "London" Symphony No. 104, Mozart's Violin Concerto No. 3, in G major, Leonard Bernstein's Serenade for Violin and Orchestra, which is then to have its first American performance, and Wagner's Prelude to "Die Meistersinger". In the works by Mozart and Bernstein, the soloist will be Isaac Stern. The program for Cambridge will consist of Haydn's Symphony No. 104, Randall Thompson's Symphony No. 2, Schubert's Symphony No. 5, and Prelude to "Die Meistersinger".

TODAY

ARTUR RUBINSTEIN, pianist, gives a Symphony Hall concert under the auspices of the Boston University Celebrity Series. The program: Sonata in E flat Major, Op. 31, No. 3, Beethoven; Sonata in B minor, Liszt; Polonaise in F sharp minor, Op. 44, Three Posthumous Etudes, Fantasie Impromptu, Mazurka, Chopin; Sonata in three movements from "Petrouchka" Stravinsky; 3:30 P. M.

EASTER MUSIC will be sung by candlelight by the choir of the Evangelical Covenant Church, Cambridge, under the direction of Elmer G. Westlund. The public is invited: 8 P. M.

WEDNESDAY

THE LONGY SCHOOL of Music will present Trudi Salomon, a recent graduate of the school, in a free program of piano music in the school. Included in the program are the Sonata in D major, Intermezzi and Capriccio of Brahms, Theme and Variations of Faure, and Etudes by Chopin, Liszt and Scriabin: 3:30 P. M.

EMIL BEYER, pianist-composer, will give a free concert in Huntington Hall, M.I.T. (Room 10-250, second floor). He will play works by Chopin, Liszt, Handel, Niemann, Scriabin and his own music: 5 P. M.

THE BOSTON UNIVERSITY Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Francis Findlay, will present a free concert at the Boston University Theatre. Mr. Findlay has chosen a program beginning with the Gluck "Overture to Iphicenia in Aulis," and including the Franck D. Minor Symphony, Mousorgsky's "A Night on Bald Mountain," and two contemporary original works. The conductor, Mr. Findlay, has composed a book-song fantasy called "Latin America," which will be performed at this concert and this will be followed by "Western Overture," to be conducted by the composer, Malloy Miller: 8:15 P. M.

THE MUSICAL GUILD OF BOSTON presents a concert at the College Club, 40 Commonwealth avenue. Guest artists are Gay Tapley, soprano, who will be accompanied by Allen Barker, pianist, Maria-Pia Antonelli, pianist Dorothy Bales, violinist, accompanied by Nicolas Slonimsky, pianist: 8 P. M.

THURSDAY

HARPSICHORDIST Daniel Pinkham, a teaching associate at Boston University's school of fine and applied arts, college of music, will present a program of his own compositions in an informal concert from 3:15-4:45 P. M.

FRIDAY

CHAMBER MUSIC will be presented in a free recital by David Hurwitz, violin, Stephen McGhee, 'cellist, Katherine Mark, pianist, at Paine Hall, Harvard University. Works by Loeillet Brahms and Schubert are listed: 8:30 P. M.

THE BOSTON CONSERVATORY of Music Dance Department, under the direction of Jan Veen, will present the first Choreographic performances in the United States of Carl Orff's "Carmina Burana" in the Conservatory Auditorium, 31 Hemenway Street, on Friday and Saturday evenings, April 15 and 16 at 8:30, and Saturday and Sunday afternoons, April 16 and 17 at 3:30.

SATURDAY

JAZZ CONCERT presented by the B.U. Jazz Society in the Boston University Theater. The artists performing are Serge Chaloff and his sextet, Boots Mussulli and Herb Pomeroy: 8:30 P. M.

AUDITIONS for admission to the Opera Department of the Berkshire Music Center—Tanglewood—will be held at Symphony Hall, Boston from 10 to 12 noon. An accompanist will be pres-

Cir. (D 60,922)
This Clipping From
JACKSONVILLE, FLA.
JOURNAL
APR 9 1955

'Pop' Concert Program Listed For April 19

Complete program for the Jacksonville Symphony's first "pops" concert on Tuesday, April 19, in the George Washington Auditorium, was announced today by Chairman Robert R. Bowen.

A tentative program, of light classical and show music, announced earlier, has been altered slightly and added to by Director James Christian Pfohl, Bowen said. Starting time is 8 p.m.

The concert will include, in the first group of selections, Strauss' overture to "Die Fledermaus," Handel's "Largo" from "Xerxes" and Bizet's "March of the Toreadors."

Miss Marlys Watters, coloratura soprano and current holder of the Blanche Thebom Scholarship award, will appear as guest soloist and will sing Rossini's "Una Voce Poco Fa" from "The Barber of Seville" as her first number.

A group of Sigmund Romberg favorites will be heard next, after which Miss Watters will return to sing "Vilia" from Lehar's "Merry Widow;" Richard Rodgers' "If I Loved You" from "Carousel" and "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms."

The final orchestral group will include Sousa's "Washington Post March," "Syncopated Clock" by Anderson and selections from Jerome Kern's "Show Boat."

* * *

The concert is being patterned after the famous Boston Symphony "Pops" and tables will be located on the main floor of the auditorium and refreshments served.

Tickets are priced at $1.50 each and sales were resumed today after a Good Friday recess.

Booths are located at Jacobs Jewelers, Adams and Laura Sts.; Symphony Headquarters, 216 W. Beaver St.; Reynolds Piano Co., 2006 San Marco Blvd., and Helen Kennard Antiques, 3575 St. Johns Ave.

Co-chairman of the "pops" committee with Bowen is Mrs. Angus B. Rosborough. Decorations committee includes Dr. C. S. L'Engle and Miss Marion Whatley. Mrs. Olin E. Watts is chairman of publicity.

Mrs. James P. Hill is serving as co-ordinator; Miss Becky Yerkes, chairman of ticket sales and George Booker, television publicity.

Cir. (D 38,502)
This Clipping From
WATERBURY, CONN.
AMERICAN
APR 15 1955

Serenade Given American Premiere

Boston, April 15 (UP)— The Boston Symphony Orchestra today presented the American premiere of the last work personally commissioned by the late Serge Koussevitzky.

Lawrence - born Leonard Bernstein's serenade for violin solo, strings and percussion was conducted by Charles Munch with Isaac Stern as soloist. Bernstein, director of creative arts at Brandeis University, conducted the world premiere at Venice last Sept. 12, with the same soloist.

The serenade is in five parts, each titled with a series of statements in praise of love by Plato.

Stern described the work as "full of life," and "warmth" for contemporary music. The composer was "unafraid to sing" in writing the melodies which were "really fleet," and not just a progression of academic notes, Stern said.

Stern said he will play the Bernstein piece at the Hollywood Bowl and in Italy.

Cir. (D 149,902) (S 382,056)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
EVENING GLOBE
APR 12 1955

ISAAC STERN will be the soloist with Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony in Mozart's Third Violin Concerto at this week's Friday and Saturday concerts, and the Thursday evening Open Rehearsal as well.

Cir. (D 203,001)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
TRAVELER
APR 15 1955

Symphony Solo

ISAAC STERN is soloist with Charles Munch and Boston Symphony in Mozart Violin Concerto No. 3 in G major, today and tomorrow.

Cir. (D 26,086)
This Clipping From
NEW BRITAIN, CONN.
HERALD
APR 15 1955

Boston Symphony Presents Premiere

BOSTON (UP)—The Boston Symphony Orchestra today presented the American premiere of the last work personally commissioned by the late Serge Koussevitzky.

Lawrence-born Leonard Bernstein's Serenade for violin solo, strings and percussion was conducted by Charles Munch with Isaac Stern as soloist. Bernstein, director of creative arts at Brandeis University, conducted the world premiere at Venice last Sept. 12, with the same soloist.

The Serenade is in five parts, each titled with a series of statements in praise of love by Plato.

Stern described the work as "full of life," and "warmth" for contemporary music.

Cir. (D 149,902) (S 382,056)

This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
EVENING GLOBE
APR 13 1955

MUSIC

Maurice Eisenberg Plays With Boston Symphony

Boston Symphony Orchestra, in Symphony Hall, Charles Munch conducting. The program: Wagner, Prelude to "Die Meistersinger von Nuernberg"; Elgar, Concerto in E minor for cello and orchestra (soloist: Maurice Eisenberg); Beethoven, Sixth Symphony.

By JOHN WM. RILEY

The Boston Symphony Orchestra is midway in its last month, only a few weeks away from the close of its 74th season. But you could never guess its age, nor its season in the year by the kind of performance the orchestra delivered in Symphony Hall last night under Charles Munch. The tonal freshness, the resiliency, more nearly belonged to the season of Spring, the season of awakening and the rebirth of Winter dormant things. This must be one of the marks of a great orchestra which, when the test is the hardest, will deliver the best.

Not much Wagner is played on symphony programs today, and the Boston Orchestra is no exception. Yet Wagner, thrice-performed, is as much a test as any composer. When conductor and orchestra can deliver sounds with the luminosity and sheen which we heard last night in the "Meistersinger" Prelude, you can be sure of its stature. And especially at a late hour in the season. Though you have heard the Boston Symphony play countless times, this is another proof of its virtuosity.

Then Beethoven, furnishes another test. The Sixth Symphony sounds like spring in Mr. Munch's hands, and the orchestra plays with an easy, relaxed manner which almost makes the myriad details seem like everyday stuff. You have to watch and listen closely to realize that only the finest collaboration between conductor and orchestra produces such richly tapestried results.

Here, with Wagner and Beethoven, in almost commonly familiar surroundings, one feels more than comfortably at home. A work new to our ears, new to the orchestra, furnishes another approach. In this case, the Elgar Cello Concerto, was given its first performance by the Boston Symphony. The soloist was Maurice Eisenberg, who has taught in Cambridge at the Longy School, but who was making his first appearance with the orchestra.

Technique is second nature to Mr. Eisenberg. He plays with practiced ease, drawing a fine, firmly spun tone from his instrument. He neither buzzes, like some cellists, nor produces a tone which is all honey. On the contrary, it has character, body and a personal style uncommonly welcome. Furthermore, he has wit, which is essential with Elgar, a Britisher whose humor is both characteristically English and at the same time beyond his contemporaries.

Music lovers familiar with the "Enigma" Variations and the Serenade can steal a march from others with the Cello Concerto. They will understand exactly what Donald Tovey meant when he wrote of the finale, that it has a "mischievous second subject, slightly suggestive of dignity at the mercy of a banana skin." If this sounds like Emmett Kelly and the Ringling Circus, it is not far wrong. For Elgar's humor was circusy in a polite British way. And Maurice Eisenberg makes this distinction very neatly. We should have him back, perhaps in the familiar repertory, but better in some unusual works which he might choose himself.

Cir. (D 31,572) (S 31,386)

This Clipping From LA CROSSE, WIS.
TRIBUNE

APR 15 1955

CONCERT BY THE FAMED BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA at 7:30 Saturday night. Music by Haydn and Mozart will be featured — and the brilliant American violinist ISAAC STERN will be guest soloist.

Cir. (D 124,110) (S 382,056)

This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
APR 16 195

MUSIC

Stern Violin Soloist in Bernstein Serenade

Twenty-second pair of concerts in th Friday afternoon—Saturday evenin series by the Boston Symphony Orches ra, Charles Munch music director, a Symphony Hall. The program: Haydn "London" Symphony (No. 104, in D major); Mozart: Violin Concerto in G major (K. 216); Leonard Bernstein Serenade (after Plato's "Symposium" for Violin Solo and String Orchestra with Percussion (first performances in the United States); Wagner: Prelude to Die Meistersinger von Nuernberg." Isaac Stern is violin soloist in the music of Mozart and Bernstein.

By CYRUS DURGIN

One of the noteworthy items of new music in this Boston Symphony season comes [redacted] Serenade of Leonard Bernstein, which made a deeply favorable impression upon its American premiere yesterday.

There are two ways to view this work, which is "after" the Symposium of Plato in praise of love, and which falls in five movements according to the dialogue of Phaedrus and Pausanias, the statement of Aristophanes, the declaration of Erixymathus, the physician; the panegyric of Agathon and the discourses of Socrates and Alcibiades. The first way would be to consider it, though without program, as a musical embodiment of the thoughts about love in the Symposium, which evidently was the composer's aim. To get very far on this approach will require thorough acquaintance with the score, and that can come only with time.

The other way is to view it as abstract music, and we can make some headway immediately on that basis. Here is a very finely wrought music, of distinction and character and taste, as well as high skill in the treatment of solo violin and the massed strings and percussion. This is music of genuine creative ideas in terms of abundant melody, and of a texture wherein the solo instrument stands out boldly against the weavings of strings and the rhythmic propulsion, the colors and the decorative accents of percussion.

Apart from some jazz influence in the finale, the style is all of a piece, solidly symphonic and concerted. No matter that you can find a few reminiscences of other composers, this is perhaps the finest and most condensed serious music that Mr. Bernstein has written. It is mature, it communicates emotionally, it has beauty of sound and a sense of structure. There is nothing freakishly experimental about it, and even the jazz coloration is a manner quite native to the man who also wrote the tunes of "On the Town," "Fancy Free" and "Wonderful Town." This is a work to be heard again and again.

Isaac Stern, who was soloist in the world premiere at Venice, last September, played it yesterday with a fine virtuoso sweep and the concern of a dedicated musician for substance and technical demands. His rich, luminous tone was not an end in itself but a means of communication from composer to audience. Bravura was subordinated to expression. As there is depth in the music, so was there depth in Mr. Stern's playing. Earlier, his gorgeous performance of Mozart's Concerto—whose slow movement is among the deceptively simple, lyrical wonders of all music—had brought a glow to the listener's heart, and to him sustained, cordial applause. After the Serenade, the triumph was even bigger. Mr. Stern as we have known, is a brilliant fiddler, but as the years go by he becomes even greater as a perceptive and devoted artist. If there were any shortcomings in his playing, only he would know it. He has a few peers in his field, but I doubt there is anyone who excels Mr. Stern in any aspect of violin art.

Haydn's Symphony was played by the full orchestra, justifiable since the Salomon orchestra for which Haydn wrote the work, was large. It was a good performance, though too loud in the drums and perhaps a shade too intense and a shade under the crispness certain details ought to have. Mozart, for which the orchestra quite properly was out way down, went beautifully, and if one may judge on a first hearing, Bernstein's Serenade was admirably treated by Mr. Munch and the players. The Wagner Prelude, however, was a paradox that started loud in winds and especially timpani (which the conductor urged up and up!) and yet, in the contrapuntal strings beautifully clear. Had Symphony Hall been twice as large, the dynamic scale would have been about right.

Next week Mr. Munch will conduct the B minor Mass of Bach, in a performance estimated to run about two hours and 40 minutes. Naturally, some cuts will have to be made to get the vast work within one session. The choruses will be the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society.

TURDAY, APRIL 16, 19

BOSTON HERALD

MUSIC

Symphony Concert

The Boston Symphony orchestra, Charles Munch conducting, gave the 123d concert of the season in Symphony Hall yesterday afternoon. The soloist was Isaac Stern, violinist. The program:

Symphony in D No. 104	Haydn
Concerto in G (K. 216)	Mozart
Serenade for Violin, Strings and Percussion	Bernstein
Prelude to "Die Meistersinger"	Wagner

By RUDOLPH ELIE

Charles Munch, Isaac Stern and Leonard Bernstein combined yesterday afternoon to greet the advent of spring with one of the truly memorable concerts in a season that has had its full share of memorable concerts.

Though himself in Europe, Leonard Bernstein's presence dominated the occasion in the first American performance of his Serenade for Violin Solo, Strings and Percussion, a work that finds Mr. Bernstein back on the road of his early promise as a serious composer of real consequence. As everyone knows, this 37-year-old former Bostonian has been flying off in various directions in recent years, one of the directions being down in the sense he has long proclaimed the one true way for the contemporary American composer lies in the musical theater.

His own Broadway successes may well account for the view, but there has always been an essential dichotomy in his personality as revealed by his extraordinary gifts as pianist, conductor, composer of serious and popular music, librettist and, at Brandeis and Tanglewood, administrator. His central interest may be said to be composing but I fear he is too gregarious and too restless minded to ever apply himself to it as perhaps he would like to; life on the Broadway circuit, not to mention in the concert halls of the world, calls powerfully to so essentially social-minded a man.

Difficult Work

His output has thus not been large or, for that matter, cumulatively more and more important. The Serenade does not qualify as "more" important either, I would say, but it would seem to have every chance of restoring the composer's position in serious music and of being performed in public for many years to come. An exceedingly difficult work to perform (though its difficulties are not conveyed to the audience), it is astonishingly immediate in its appeal reflecting, as it does, an idiom at once fresh and original but somehow vaguely familiar, a melodic invention of singular felicity and a warmth and humanity of the most fraternal character.

In five movements each suggested by episodes from Plato's dialogue "in praise of love," the Serenade is especially grateful for its lack of pretension, of striving for monumental utterance aimed at some vague audience a hundred years away. It is music for the here and now, and therein lies its great strength.

It begins with an interesting solo declamation for the violin presently joined by other voices in a little fugato culminating in a busy but comprehensible development of urgency and power. The second movement is of the most lyric character, indeed, exceedingly beautiful while the third, a scherzo, is so amusing and so pointed it drew a distinct reaction of amusement from the audience.

The following adagio rises to heights of remarkable sonority and harmonic tension, as does the ensuing introduction to the finale, while the finale itself, containing elements of contemporary jazz idioms (slap bass and all) brings the work to a brilliant end.

The solo violin's role in all this is outstanding being, in essence, a concerto, and one written in a most violinistic fashion as well. But the orchestral sounds and procedures, now suggesting Stravinsky and again Prokofieff yet always retaining an individual stamp, are fascinating; the composer's use of the percussion deserving an essay all its own. But the best thing about the work, whatever reservations there may be is the open, cordial and friendly nature of its inspiration and, in consequence, its communication.

For Mr. Stern's part in all this and in the Mozart Concerto which preceded it, I cannot find words enough to heap him praise. Surely there lives today no violinist with such consummate self-possession combined with such consummate technical and musical achievement.

He did the Bernstein marvelously, but I do believe his performance of the Mozart, seconded by Mr. Munch's inspired accompanying, was the high water mark of the whole season. This leaves little to be said of the opening Haydn symphony or the closing Meistersinger Prelude, except that they all combined to lift the whole occasion into the blue . . . and this, nearly at the end of a exhausting season! Next week's program will be given over to Bach's B minor Mass.

[28]

ge—Monteux's Anniversary

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Tributes Paid to Conductor At Special Symphony Concert

By Harold Rogers

When a musician of Pierre Monteux's eminence arrives at his eightieth milestone, the music world at large finds cause for rejoicing. But the specific celebration took place last night—on the date of his anniversary—in Boston. It was a celebration of magnificent proportions.

The party began in Symphony Hall when Mr. Monteux, his eyes twinkling with beneficence, conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a Beethoven program. It continued with a salutation from Henry B. Cabot, president of the trustees. Charles Munch then guided the musicians in two works composed especially for the event by Darius Milhaud and Igor Stravinsky. And it ended—sometime during the small hours this morning—with a testimonial banquet given him at the Hotel Fensgate by the members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

In Symphony Hall Mr. Cabot said that this was a unique party, that the guest of honor was donating his services in behalf of the orchestra's pension fund. Mr. Monteux refused to accept a ticket for his wife but purchased it instead. His birthday concert added $11,842 to the pension fund.

Mr. Cabot also said that it would be easy to reminisce at this point about Mr. Monteux's remarkable career, but that Mr. Monteux himself was looking forward to a summer of activity. He will conduct concerts, opera, or make recordings in Montreal, London, Brussels, Paris, Strasbourg, Holland, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, and Tanglewood. Then he will take charge of his summer conducting school in Hancock, Maine. After that he will have five weeks' vacation.

* * *

The concert itself was ignited by a special spark that one finds only on great occasions. Mr. Monteux conducted with vigor and élan. The musicians played as if inspired. The listeners contributed boundless enthusiasm. The collaboration produced memorable music.

When Mr. Monteux opened with the "Egmont" Overture, Arthur Fiedler was playing in the viola section, a position he held some years ago before becoming conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra. There were doubtless many in the audience who used to attend the symphony concerts when Mt. Monteux headed the orchestra from 1919 to 1924.

The soloist for the Fourth Piano Concerto was Leon Fleisher, a young pianist from San Francisco whom Mr. Monteux discovered and championed. From Mr. Fleisher's performance last night, as well as from another of his recent ones in Boston, it was evident that Mr. Monteux has championed a winner. His traversal of the Andante con moto had the necessary introspection, the serene faith and sublime superiority the piano displays in the face of urgent opposition by the orchestra. He is equally at home at the other end of the dynamic spectrum; he has power and brilliance to spare.

* * *

Mr. Monteux's reading of the "Eroica" Symphony was truly heroic in its sweep, its grandeur, its distilled emotion. The resulting ovation brought the audience to its feet. After Mr. Cabot's remarks, Mr. Munch conducted Milhaud's "Pensée amicale," a tender, loving, and quietly warm-hearted piece. He then gave a vigorous downbeat for Stravinsky's "Greeting Prelude for the 80th Birthday of Pierre Monteux," and the thunderous timpani were electrifying.

The entire orchestra leaped into rollicking joy, and just as one was settling down with the comfortable thought that here was the best composition of Stravinsky's late period, it was suddenly all over—an extended fanfare! The listeners burst into laughter and applause. Everyone stood up again while Mr. Munch kissed Mr. Monteux on both cheeks, and happiness reined supreme.

Victoria de los Angeles will be the soprano soloist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra Thursday afternoon and Saturday evening.

Opera Auditions

Auditions for admission to the Opera Department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood will be held in Symphony Hall, Boston, on Saturday morning, April 16, from 10 to 12 noon. An accompanist will be present.

The Berkshire Music Center is the summer school maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. This thirteenth session will extend from July 4 to Aug. 14.

Applicants should notify the school office of their intention to attend these auditions by writing to the Registrar, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass. Catalogue and application forms may also be obtained from this address.

Cir. (D 294,859) (S 252,207)

This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
POST

APR 16 1955

Music Review

By TUCKER KEISER

Leonard Bernstein's Serenade for Violin Solo and String Orchestra with Percussion received its first American performance yesterday by the Boston Symphony under the baton of Charles Munch. Isaac Stern, who had given the world premiere at the Venice Festival last September, was the soloist.

The Serenade, in five movements vaguely based on Plato's Symposium, is destined to become the most popular of Bernstein's serious compositions. Its appeal is immediate and the audience gave it (and the soloist) what amounted for a Friday concert a tumultuous ovation.

At every point skillfully written and for the most part economical in tonal resources, the Serenade represents the composer's finest work to date. Like Plato's dialogue, the Serenade is in praise of love. Mr. Bernstein to achieve unity has successive sections evolve from preceding ones.

The first movement treats the lyrical aspects, the second the charming, the third the humorous, the fourth the emotional, and the fifth the sophistiscated. The third movement brought from the audience unrestrained laughter. The fourth was an exceedingly beautiful love song for the violin, and the fifth disclosed the most convincing use of jazz I have heard in contemporary music.

Bernstein Music in U.S. Première

Stern Plays Violin Serenade at Symphony

By Harold Rogers

Leonard Bernstein's new Serenade enjoyed a great popular success yesterday in Symphony Hall. Isaac Stern was the violin soloist for this first American performance, and he played brilliantly.

Mr. Stern was accompanied by the string and percussion sections of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. They encompassed a variety of tempos and difficult rhythms under the orderly guidance of Charles Munch. The listeners showed their appreciation by showering Mr. Stern and Mr. Munch with applause. If Mr. Bernstein had been in Boston rather than Italy, he would have received his share.

Composed last year on commission by the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, this is Mr. Bernstein's maturest work since his "Jeremiah" Symphony. His "Age of Anxiety," known as his Second Symphony, was almost a digression—as confused as the source of its inspiration. But in his Serenade (after Plato's "Symposium") for Violin Solo and String Orchestra with Percussion, Mr. Bernstein has tapped deeper springs. This indicates that he has passed his age of anxiety, that he is now entering a calmly considered age of maturity.

Mr. Bernstein is still composing in his characteristic style, but he has gained the power that comes with restraint. "The music, like Plato's dialogue, is a series of related statements in praise of love," he writes, and he goes on to explain that each movement evolves out of elements in the preceding one.

It opens with a lyrical fugato, begun by the soloist, that represents Phaedrus in a Lento mood. Then, Allegro, we find Pausanias in a lively oration. In the second movement Aristophanes comes to us in Allegretto terms and talks in quiet tones.

Erixymathus in the third movement provides a short scherzo in Presto tempo (and drew laughter from the audience). For the Adagio of the fourth movement we are given a rhapsodic song by Agathon. Socrates comes forward in the final movement in solemn mien, Molto tenuto, only to be interrupted by Alcibiades who turns the party into something of a shambles, Allegro molto vivace.

But even though the celebration hints of jazz—for which the composer apologizes, saying that it is "the natural expression of a contemporary American composer imbued with the spirit of that timeless dinner party"—it is nothing more than a hint and is held within the framework of the whole.

Mr. Bernstein taxes the violinist in fascinating ways — for flights of poetry, for unusual effects, for virtuoso display. The unfortunate aspect of this concert, which is one of the best this season by the Boston Symphony, is that Mr. Bernstein's piece is played in the second portion of the concert, thereby missing the transcontinental broadcast. Here is an engaging new work that could be shared with the nation.

But the radio listeners will be able to hear Mr. Stern in Mozart's Violin Concerto in G major, K. 216, played yesterday in superlative style. And they'll also hear an impressive reading of Haydn's last Symphony, the "London."

Those who tune in to WGBH, of course, will hear the Bernstein and also a smashing performance of Wagner's Prelude to "Die Meistersinger."

Cir. (D 131,670) (S 258,529)

This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD

APR 17 1955

(Stein-Paris)

TO MARRY IN SEPTEMBER. — Miss Ellen Isabel Leibovici, whose engagement is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Joseph Leibovici of Brookline, to Mr. Roger Hahn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Pierre Hahn of New York city and Paris, France. Miss Liebovici, whose father is a member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is a graduate of Wellesley College, class of 1954. She is now in France studying music and voice at The Conservatoire National de Paris and is a member of the American Students and Artists Club of Paris. Mr. Hahn attended the Horace Mann and Lincoln Schools and was graduated in 1953 from Harvard College. He was graduated from the Harvard School of Education in 1954 and now holds a Fulbright Fellowship in History of Science at the University of Paris.

Cir. (D 57,751) (S 49,376)

This Clipping From
NEW BEDFORD, MASS.
STANDARD-TIMES

APR 17 1955

Symphony Nears End of Season

Boston Orchestra's Final Programs Listed

Special to The Standard-Times

BOSTON, April 16—The Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch is nearing the close of its 74th season. The series in Sanders Theater, Cambridge, will close next Tuesday night. The 23d pair of concerts in the Friday afternoon and Saturday evening series will take place in Symphony Hall Friday and Saturday. The closing concerts of the Sunday afternoon and Tuesday evening series will be held in Symphony Hall, April 24 and 26. An extra open rehearsal will be given Thursday night.

Bach's great Mass in B minor, an event of the symphony season to be heard in each of the subscription series, will be available to all through an extra open rehearsal which will be given at 7:30 p. m. Thursday. This will be a dress rehearsal with chorus and soloists in final preparation by conductor Munch.

Bach's Mass in B minor has been performed at special concerts but has not been performed by this orchestra in Boston since 1949. The Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, G. Wallace Woodworth conductor, will assist the orchestra. The soloists will be Adele Addison, soprano; Florence Kopleff, contralto; John McCollum, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass. The Mass will be cut in several parts to avoid the excessive length which would result from a complete performance in one session.

The program for the concert in Cambridge next Tuesday night will consist of Haydn's "London" Symphony, No. 104, Randall Thompson's Symphony No. 2, Schubert's Symphony No. 5, and the Prelude to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger."

Cir. (D 103,308)

This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES

APR 19 1955

A. W. Perkins New Manager Of Symphony

Arthur W. Perkins, assistant manager of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, has been named to the newly created post of manager of the Hartford Symphony Orchestra.

According to an announcement by Henry P. Bakewell president of the Symphony Society Mr. Perkins has accepted a three-year contract as manager. He will have sole charge of all of the orchestra's business, publicity, fund raising and office management affairs.

Mr. Perkins, since his graduation from Harvard College in 1947, has gained experience in the orchestral management field by serving for two years as the manager of the San Antonio (Tex.) Symphony, an organization with a budget of $340,000.

* * *

FOR THE PAST YEAR, he has been in his post as assistant manager of the Detroit Symphony, a musical group with a budget of $700,000.

Before taking his job at San Antonio, Mr. Pedkins war personnel manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and personal secretary to Charles Munch, the Boston Symphony's conductor.

After graduating from college, Mr. Perkins served for two years in the diplomatic service in Paris, France, and Frankfort, Germany. He has also studied the piano for 15 years.

* * *

MR. BAKEWELL said today that the "Symphony Society believes that with the engaging of Mr. Perkins we are taking another step towards putting ourselves on a sound and firm footing.

"Mr. Perkins, we believe, will develop the society administratively and financially as Fritz Mahler has developed it musically. Since 90 per cent of the orchestra's income stays right here in Greater Hartford, this will mean that we will have an opportunity to contribute even more to the growth of this area as a musical center."

* * *

MR. PERKINS is a native of Boston, Mass., where his father, the Rev. Palfrey Perkins, was minister of King's Chapel. His father is also chairman of the board of Wellesley College and a member of the board of the Boston Symphony.

Mr. Perkins is married and has two children. The Symphony ociety did not disclose what his salary in Hartford would be. He will take up his duties Aug. 1.

Cir. (D 563,999) (S 1,096,758)

This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

Cir. (D [illegible]) (S 258,638)

This Clipping From SEATTLE, WASH.
POST INTELLIGENCER

Cir. (D 462,936) (S 559,134)

This Clipping From DETROIT, MICH.
NEWS

Cir. (D 542,899)

This Clipping From CHICAGO, ILL.
NEWS

Cir. (D 131,670) (S 258,529)

This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD

Cir. (D 117,485)

This Clipping From
ST. PAUL, MINN.
DISPATCH

Cir. (D 414,942) (S 563,957)

This Clipping From DETROIT, MICH.
TIMES

Cir. (D 463,282) (S 982,681)

This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
JOURNAL-AMERICAN

Cir. (D 647,466) (Sat. 274,94[illegible])

This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
WORLD-TELEGRAM & S[illegible]

Cir. (D 123,613) (S 220,413)

This Clipping From
FORT WORTH, TEX.
Evening Star-Telegram

Cir. (D 178,154) (S 307,172)

This Clipping From
BALTIMORE, MD.
MORNING SUN

OAKLAND, CALIF.
TRIBUNE
Circ: D. 1[illegible]676 - S. 20[illegible]520

APR 2[illegible] 1955

U.C. Composer Wins Award

BERKELEY, April 21.—Andrew Imbrie, 33, University of California professor-composer, today won a $1,000 merit award of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The award was made to Imbrie and Ross Lee Finney, of the University of Michigan, to "foster and promote the writing of symphonic compositions by composers resident in the United States," the Associated Press reported.

Imbrie, 74 Tamalpais Road, last year went to Rome on a Guggenheim fellowship, has won other honors, and is considered one of America's top composers.

APR 23 1955

Bach at Symphony

Christian Science Monitor

Harvard-Radcliffe Singers Featured in B Minor Mass

By Harold Rogers

For the penultimate concerts in the week-end series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch has chosen Bach's Mass in B minor, considerably shortened but superbly done. He will repeat it tonight and also for the final concerts in the Sunday and Tuesday series.

This is a work in which many vocal and instrumental soloists can shine, and the choral support by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society reached a new standard of finesse. Mr. Munch chose a fine quartet of soloists, all of whom have appeared before in Symphony Hall.

Though the performance is still rather long in spite of the cuts, it would be worth lengthening a few minutes to give Adele Addison a solo. Her appearances with Florence Kopleff in the "Christe eleison" and with John McCollum in the "Domine Deus" were enough to display the remarkable beauty of her soprano and the depth of her musicianship. But it was only enough to make us want more.

Speaking of the "Domine Deus," Doriot Dwyer's flute solo was adroit as it entwined a graceful way among the soprano and tenor lines. When Miss Kopleff thoughtfully sang the alto solo, "Qui Sedes," she was eloquently accompanied on the oboe d'amore by Louis Speyer.

* * *

Although Mr. McCollum did not display the vocal freedom nor liquid tone his tenor has had in past performances, he sang the "Benedictus" with devotion, supported by Richard Burgin's violin. Donald Gramm, who has appeared here two seasons in the Berlioz "Damnation of Faust," gave us a better opportunity to assess his bass voice. It is youthful and resonant, appealing for its fine focus and rich tone.

There were many other soloists, too, who deserve much praise—James Stagliano for his horn playing in the "Quoniam tu solus sanctus," Roger Voisin for his brilliant trumpeting (together with his colleagues) in the "Osanna in excelsis," E. Power Biggs for his masterful restraint at the organ console, and Daniel Pinkham for his effective work at the harpsichord.

* * *

But high honors were also won by the choral singers, impeccably trained by G. Wallace Woodworth, their conductor. Mr. Munch was able to elicit pianissimo passages that sounded more like music in remembrance than in actuality. By contrast their fortissimos were especially stirring.

For the final concerts of the season next weekend Mr. Munch will conduct Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony, Piston's Second Symphony, and the Beethoven Fifth.

[30]

Cir. (D 131,670) (S 258,529)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS. HERALD
APR 17 1955

(Stein-Paris)

TO MARRY IN SEPTEMBER — Miss Ellen Isabel Leibovici, whose engagement is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Joseph Leibovici of Brookline, to Mr. Roger Hahn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Pierre Hahn of New York city and Paris, France. Miss Liebovici, whose father is a member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is a graduate of Wellesley College, class of 1954. She is now in France studying music and voice at The Conservatoire National de Paris and is a member of the American Students and Artists Club of Paris. Mr. Hahn attended the Horace Mann and Lincoln Schools and was graduated in 1953 from Harvard College. He was graduated from the Harvard School of Education in 1954 and now holds a Fulbright Fellowship in History of Science at the University of Paris.

Cir. (D 57,751) (S 49,376)
This Clipping From
NEW BEDFORD, MASS. STANDARD-TIMES
APR 17 1955

Symphony Nears End of Season

Boston Orchestra's Final Programs Listed

Special to The Standard-Times

BOSTON, April 16—The Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch is nearing the close of its 74th season. The series in Sanders Theater, Cambridge, will close next Tuesday night. The 23d pair of concerts in the Friday afternoon and Saturday evening series will take place in Symphony Hall Friday and Saturday. The closing concerts of the Sunday afternoon and Tuesday evening series will be held in Symphony Hall, April 24 and 26. An extra open rehearsal will be given Thursday night.

Bach's great Mass in B minor, an event of the symphony season to be heard in each of the subscription series, will be available to all through an extra open rehearsal which will be given at 7:30 p. m. Thursday. This will be a dress rehearsal with chorus and soloists in final preparation by conductor Munch.

Bach's Mass in B minor has been performed at special concerts but has not been performed by this orchestra in Boston since 1949. The Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, G. Wallace Woodworth conductor, will assist the orchestra. The soloists will be Adele Addison, soprano; Florence Kopleff, contralto; John McCollum, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass. The Mass will be cut in several parts to avoid the excessive length which would result from a complete performance in one session.

The program for the concert in Cambridge next Tuesday night will consist of Haydn's "London" Symphony, No. 104, Randall Thompson's Symphony No. 2, Schubert's Symphony No. 5, and the Prelude to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger."

Cir. (D 103,308)
This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN. TIMES
APR 19 1955

A. W. Perkins New Manager Of Symphony

Arthur W. Perkins, assistant manager of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, has been named to the newly created post of manager of the Hartford Symphony Orchestra.

According to an announcement by Henry P. Bakewell president of the Symphony Society Mr. Perkins has accepted a three-year contract as manager. He will have sole charge of all of the orchestra's business, publicity, fund raising and office management affairs.

Mr. Perkins, since his graduation from Harvard College in 1947, has gained experience in the orchestral management field by serving for two years as the manager of the San Antonio (Tex.) Symphony, an organization with a budget of $340,000.

* * *

FOR THE PAST YEAR, he has been in his post as assistant manager of the Detroit Symphony, a musical group with a budget of $700,000.

Before taking his job at San Antonio, Mr. Pedkins war personnel manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and personal secretary to Charles Munch, the Boston Symphony's conductor.

After graduating from college, Mr. Perkins served for two years in the diplomatic service in Paris, France, and Frankfort, Germany. He has also studied the piano for 15 years.

* * *

MR. BAKEWELL said today that the "Symphony Society believes that with the engaging of Mr. Perkins we are taking another step towards putting ourselves on a sound and firm footing.

"Mr. Perkins, we believe, will develop the society administratively and financially as Fritz Mahler has developed it musically. Since 90 per cent of the orchestra's income stays right here in Greater Hartford, this will mean that we will have an opportunity to contribute even more to the growth of this area as a musical center."

* * *

MR. PERKINS is a native of Boston, Mass., where his father, the Rev. Palfrey Perkins, was minister of King's Chapel. His father is also chairman of the board of Wellesley College and a member of the board of the Boston Symphony.

Mr. Perkins is married and has two children. The Symphony ociety did not disclose what his salary in Hartford would be. He will take up his duties Aug. 1.

Cir. (D 303,999) (S 1,096,728)
This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y. TIMES
Cir. (D 758,638) (S 258,638)
This Clipping From
SEATTLE, WASH. POST INTELLIGENCER
Cir. (D 467,936) (S 559,134)
This Clipping From
DETROIT, MICH. NEWS
Cir. (D 542,899)
This Clipping From
CHICAGO, ILL. NEWS
Cir. (D 131,670) (S 258,529
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS. HERALD
Cir. (D 117,935)

APR 21 1955

Composers Win Award

Boston, April 20 (AP)—Composers Ross Lee Finney and Andrew Imbrie were announced today as winners of the Boston Symphony Orchestra Merit Award and were given $1,000 each for their winning compositions.

States."

Finney is a native of Wells, Minn., and is a member of the University of Michigan faculty.

APR 21 1955
Christian Science Monitor

Bach at Symphony

Harvard-Radcliffe Singers Featured in B Minor Mass

By Harold Rogers

For the penultimate concerts in the week-end series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch has chosen Bach's Mass in B minor, considerably shortened but superbly done. He will repeat it tonight and also for the final concerts in the Sunday and Tuesday series.

This is a work in which many vocal and instrumental soloists can shine, and the choral support by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society reached a new standard of finesse. Mr. Munch chose a fine quartet of soloists, all of whom have appeared before in Symphony Hall.

Though the performance is still rather long in spite of the cuts, it would be worth lengthening a few minutes to give Adele Addison a solo. Her appearances with Florence Kopleff in the "Christe eleison" and with John McCollum in the "Domine Deus" were enough to display the remarkable beauty of her soprano and the depth of her musicianship. But it was only enough to make us want more.

Speaking of the "Domine Deus," Doriot Dwyer's flute solo was adroit as it entwined a graceful way among the soprano and tenor lines. When Miss Kopleff thoughtfully sang the alto solo, "Qui Sedes," she was eloquently accompanied on the oboe d'amore by Louis Speyer.

* * *

Although Mr. McCollum did not display the vocal freedom nor liquid tone his tenor has had in past performances, he sang the "Benedictus" with devotion, supported by Richard Burgin's violin. Donald Gramm, who has appeared here two seasons in the Berlioz "Damnation of Faust," gave us a better opportunity to assess his bass voice. It is youthful and resonant, appealing for its fine focus and rich tone.

There were many other soloists, too, who deserve much praise—James Stagliano for his horn playing in the "Quoniam tu solus sanctus," Roger Voisin for his brilliant trumpeting (together with his colleagues) in the "Osanna in excelsis," E. Power Biggs for his masterful restraint at the organ console, and Daniel Pinkham for his effective work at the harpsichord.

* * *

But high honors were also won by the choral singers, impeccably trained by G. Wallace Woodworth, their conductor. Mr. Munch was able to elicit pianissimo passages that sounded more like music in remembrance than in actuality. By contrast their fortissimos were especially stirring.

For the final concerts of the season next weekend Mr. Munch will conduct Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony, Piston's Second Symphony, and the Beethoven Fifth.

Cir. (D 131,670) (S 258,529)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
APR 17 1955

(Stein-Paris)

TO MARRY IN SEPTEMBER. — Miss Ellen Isabel Leibovici, whose engagement is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Joseph Leibovici of Brookline, to Mr. Roger Hahn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Pierre Hahn of New York city and Paris, France. Miss Liebovici, whose father is a member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is a graduate of Wellesley College, class of 1954. She is now in France studying music and voice at The Conservatoire National de Paris and is a member of the American Students and Artists Club of Paris. Mr. Hahn attended the Horace Mann and Lincoln Schools and was graduated in 1953 from Harvard College. He was graduated from the Harvard School of Education in 1954 and now holds a Fulbright Fellowship in History of Science at the University of Paris.

Cir. (D 57,751) (S 49,376)
This Clipping From
NEW BEDFORD, MASS.
STANDARD-TIMES
APR 17 1955

Symphony Nears End of Season

Boston Orchestra's Final Programs Listed

Special to The Standard-Times

BOSTON, April 16—The Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch is nearing the close of its 74th season. The series in Sanders Theater, Cambridge, will close next Tuesday night. The 23d pair of concerts in the Friday afternoon and Saturday evening series will take place in Symphony Hall Friday and Saturday. The closing concerts of the Sunday afternoon and Tuesday evening series will be held in Symphony Hall, April 24 and 26. An extra open rehearsal will be given Thursday night.

Bach's great Mass in B minor, an event of the symphony season to be heard in each of the subscription series, will be available to all through an extra open rehearsal which will be given at 7:30 p. m. Thursday. This will be a dress rehearsal with chorus and soloists in final preparation by conductor Munch.

Bach's Mass in B minor has been performed at special concerts but has not been performed by this orchestra in Boston since 1949. The Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, G. Wallace Woodworth conductor, will assist the orchestra. The soloists will be Adele Addison, soprano; Florence Kopleff, contralto; John McCollum, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass. The Mass will be cut in several parts to avoid the excessive length which would result from a complete performance in one session.

The program for the concert in Cambridge next Tuesday night will consist of Haydn's "London" Symphony, No. 104, Randall Thompson's Symphony No. 2, Schubert's Symphony No. 5, and the Prelude to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger."

Cir. (D 103,306)
This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES
APR 19 1955

A. W. Perkins New Manager Of Symphony

Arthur W. Perkins, assistant manager of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, has been named to the newly created post of manager of the Hartford Symphony Orchestra.

According to an announcement by Henry P. Bakewell president of the Symphony Society Mr. Perkins has accepted a three-year contract as manager. He will have sole charge of all of the orchestra's business, publicity, fund raising and office management affairs.

Mr. Perkins, since his graduation from Harvard College in 1947, has gained experience in the orchestral management field by serving for two years as the manager of the San Antonio (Tex.) Symphony, an organization with a budget of $340,000.

* * *

FOR THE PAST YEAR, he has been in his post as assistant manager of the Detroit Symphony, a musical group with a budget of $700,000.

Before taking his job at San Antonio, Mr. Pedkins war personnel manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and personal secretary to Charles Munch, the Boston Symphony's conductor.

After graduating from college, Mr. Perkins served for two years in the diplomatic service in Paris, France, and Frankfort, Germany. He has also studied the piano for 15 years.

* * *

MR. BAKEWELL said today that the "Symphony Society believes that with the engaging of Mr. Perkins we are taking another step towards putting ourselves on a sound and firm footing.

"Mr. Perkins, we believe, will develop the society administratively and financially as Fritz Mahler has developed it musically. Since 90 per cent of the orchestra's income stays right here in Greater Hartford, this will mean that we will have an opportunity to contribute even more to the growth of this area as a musical center."

* * *

MR. PERKINS is a native of Boston, Mass., where his father, the Rev. Palfrey Perkins, was minister of King's Chapel. His father is also chairman of the board of Wellesley College and a member of the board of the Boston Symphony.

Mr. Perkins is married and has two children. The Symphony ociety did not disclose what his salary in Hartford would be. He will take up his duties Aug. 1.

Cir. (D 103,999) (S 1,096,738)
This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Cir. (D 158,638)
This Clipping From SEATTLE, WASH.
POST INTELLIGENCER
Cir. (D 487,938) (S 559,134)
This Clipping From DETROIT, MICH.
NEWS
Cir. (D 542,899)

...calculus. None of this had yet been taught him in school. He was also deeply interested in philosophy.

He intended to follow his father's profession and took entrance examinations at the Polytechnic Academy in Zurich, Switzerland. His knowledge and understanding of mathematics and physics amazed his professors.

The young scientist, however, was mainly occupied with physics. He said he early learned to study only what led to the fundamentals and "to turn aside from everything else."

this article, the third and last

APR 21 1955

Symphony Awards Go To Faculty Members

BOSTON, April 21 (AP).—Composers Ross Lee Finney and Andrew Imbrie have received $1,000 each for winning the Boston Symphony Orchestra merit award.

The award which both won Wednesday was established in 1945 and is intended to "foster and promote the writing of symphonic compositions by composers resident in the United States."

Finney is a native of Wells, Minn., and is a member of the University of Michigan faculty.

APR 23

Bach at Symphony

Christian Science Monitor

Harvard-Radcliffe Singers Featured in B Minor Mass

By Harold Rogers

For the penultimate concerts in the week-end series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch has chosen Bach's Mass in B minor, considerably shortened but superbly done. He will repeat it tonight and also for the final concerts in the Sunday and Tuesday series.

This is a work in which many vocal and instrumental soloists can shine, and the choral support by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society reached a new standard of finesse. Mr. Munch chose a fine quartet of soloists, all of whom have appeared before in Symphony Hall.

Though the performance is still rather long in spite of the cuts, it would be worth lengthening a few minutes to give Adele Addison a solo. Her appearances with Florence Kopleff in the "Christe eleison" and with John McCollum in the "Domine Deus" were enough to display the remarkable beauty of her soprano and the depth of her musicianship. But it was only enough to make us want more.

Speaking of the "Domine Deus," Doriot Dwyer's flute solo was adroit as it entwined a graceful way among the soprano and tenor lines. When Miss Kopleff thoughtfully sang the alto solo, "Qui Sedes," she was eloquently accompanied on the oboe d'amore by Louis Speyer.

* * *

Although Mr. McCollum did not display the vocal freedom nor liquid tone his tenor has had in past performances, he sang the "Benedictus" with devotion, supported by Richard Burgin's violin. Donald Gramm, who has appeared here two seasons in the Berlioz "Damnation of Faust," gave us a better opportunity to assess his bass voice. It is youthful and resonant, appealing for its fine focus and rich tone.

There were many other soloists, too, who deserve much praise—James Stagliano for his horn playing in the "Quoniam tu solus sanctus," Roger Voisin for his brilliant trumpeting (together with his colleagues) in the "Osanna in excelsis," E. Power Biggs for his masterful restraint at the organ console, and Daniel Pinkham for his effective work at the harpsichord.

* * *

But high honors were also won by the choral singers, impeccably trained by G. Wallace Woodworth, their conductor. Mr. Munch was able to elicit pianissimo passages that sounded more like music in remembrance than in actuality. By contrast their fortissimos were especially stirring.

For the final concerts of the season next weekend Mr. Munch will conduct Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony, Piston's Second Symphony, and the Beethoven Fifth.

Cir. (D 131,670) (S 258,529)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
APR 17 1955

(Stein-Paris)

TO MARRY IN SEPTEMBER — Miss Ellen Isabel Leibovici, whose engagement is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Joseph Leibovici of Brookline, to Mr. Roger Hahn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Pierre Hahn of New York city and Paris, France. Miss Liebovici, whose father is a member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is a graduate of Wellesley College, class of 1954. She is now in France studying music and voice at The Conservatoire National de Paris and is a member of the American Students and Artists Club of Paris. Mr. Hahn attended the Horace Mann and Lincoln Schools and was graduated in 1953 from Harvard College. He was graduated from the Harvard School of Education in 1954 and now holds a Fulbright Fellowship in History of Science at the University of Paris.

Cir. (D 57,751) (S 49,376)
This Clipping From
NEW BEDFORD, MASS.
STANDARD-TIMES
APR 17 1955

Symphony Nears End of Season

Boston Orchestra's Final Programs Listed

Special to The Standard-Times

BOSTON, April 16—The Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch is nearing the close of its 74th season. The series in Sanders Theater, Cambridge, will close next Tuesday night. The 23d pair of concerts in the Friday afternoon and Saturday evening series will take place in Symphony Hall Friday and Saturday. The closing concerts of the Sunday afternoon and Tuesday evening series will be held in Symphony Hall, April 24 and 26. An extra open rehearsal will be given Thursday night.

Bach's great Mass in B minor, an event of the symphony season to be heard in each of the subscription series, will be available to all through an extra open rehearsal which will be given at 7:30 p. m. Thursday. This will be a dress rehearsal with chorus and soloists in final preparation by conductor Munch.

Bach's Mass in B minor has been performed at special concerts but has not been performed by this orchestra in Boston since 1949. The Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, G. Wallace Woodworth conductor, will assist the orchestra. The soloists will be Adele Addison, soprano; Florence Kopleff, contralto; John McCollum, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass. The Mass will be cut in several parts to avoid the excessive length which would result from a complete performance in one session.

The program for the concert in Cambridge next Tuesday night will consist of Haydn's "London" Symphony, No. 104, Randall Thompson's Symphony No. 2, Schubert's Symphony No. 5, and the Prelude to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger."

Cir. (D 103,308)
This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES
APR 19 1955

A. W. Perkins New Manager Of Symphony

Arthur W. Perkins, assistant manager of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, has been named to the newly created post of manager of the Hartford Symphony Orchestra.

According to an announcement by Henry P. Bakewell president of the Symphony Society Mr. Perkins has accepted a three-year contract as manager. He will have sole charge of all of the orchestra's business, publicity, fund raising and office management affairs.

Mr. Perkins, since his graduation from Harvard College in 1947, has gained experience in the orchestral management field by serving for two years as the manager of the San Antonio (Tex.) Symphony, an organization with a budget of $340,000.

* * *

FOR THE PAST YEAR, he has been in his post as assistant manager of the Detroit Symphony, a musical group with a budget of $700,000.

Before taking his job at San Antonio, Mr. Pedkins war personnel manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and personal secretary to Charles Munch, the Boston Symphony's conductor.

After graduating from college, Mr. Perkins served for two years in the diplomatic service in Paris, France, and Frankfort, Germany. He has also studied the piano for 15 years.

* * *

MR. BAKEWELL said today that the "Symphony Society believes that with the engaging of Mr. Perkins we are taking another step towards putting ourselves on a sound and firm footing.

"Mr. Perkins, we believe, will develop the society administratively and financially as Fritz Mahler has developed it musically. Since 90 per cent of the orchestra's income stays right here in Greater Hartford, this will mean that we will have an opportunity to contribute even more to the growth of this area as a musical center."

* * *

MR. PERKINS is a native of Boston, Mass., where his father, the Rev. Palfrey Perkins, was minister of King's Chapel. His father is also chairman of the board of Wellesley College and a member of the board of the Boston Symphony.

Mr. Perkins is married and has two children. The Symphony ociety did not disclose what his salary in Hartford would be. He will take up his duties Aug. 1.

Cir. (D 103,???) (S 1,076,?58)
This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
APR 21 19?5

Boston Symphony Honors Pair

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, April 21.—Composers Ross Lee Finney and Andrew Imbrie were announced yesterday as winners of the Boston Symphony Orchestra merit award and received $1000 each for their winning compositions.

Mr. Finney, a native of Wells, Minn., is a member of the University of Michigan faculty. Mr. Imbrie, a native of New York City, teaches at the University of California.

APR 22 [illegible]

Bach at Symphony

Christian Science Monitor

Harvard-Radcliffe Singers Featured in B Minor Mass

By Harold Rogers

For the penultimate concerts in the week-end series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch has chosen Bach's Mass in B minor, considerably shortened but superbly done. He will repeat it tonight and also for the final concerts in the Sunday and Tuesday series.

This is a work in which many vocal and instrumental soloists can shine, and the choral support by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society reached a new standard of finesse. Mr. Munch chose a fine quartet of soloists, all of whom have appeared before in Symphony Hall.

Though the performance is still rather long in spite of the cuts, it would be worth lengthening a few minutes to give Adele Addison a solo. Her appearances with Florence Kopleff in the "Christe eleison" and with John McCollum in the "Domine Deus" were enough to display the remarkable beauty of her soprano and the depth of her musicianship. But it was only enough to make us want more.

Speaking of the "Domine Deus," Doriot Dwyer's flute solo was adroit as it entwined a graceful way among the soprano and tenor lines. When Miss Kopleff thoughtfully sang the alto solo, "Qui Sedes," she was eloquently accompanied on the oboe d'amore by Louis Speyer.

* * *

Although Mr. McCollum did not display the vocal freedom nor liquid tone his tenor has had in past performances, he sang the "Benedictus" with devotion, supported by Richard Burgin's violin. Donald Gramm, who has appeared here two seasons in the Berlioz "Damnation of Faust," gave us a better opportunity to assess his bass voice. It is youthful and resonant, appealing for its fine focus and rich tone.

There were many other soloists, too, who deserve much praise—James Stagliano for his horn playing in the "Quoniam tu solus sanctus," Roger Voisin for his brilliant trumpeting (together with his colleagues) in the "Osanna in excelsis," E. Power Biggs for his masterful restraint at the organ console, and Daniel Pinkham for his effective work at the harpsichord.

* * *

But high honors were also won by the choral singers, impeccably trained by G. Wallace Woodworth, their conductor. Mr. Munch was able to elicit pianissimo passages that sounded more like music in remembrance than in actuality. By contrast their fortissimos were especially stirring.

For the final concerts of the season next weekend Mr. Munch will conduct Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony, Piston's Second Symphony, and the Beethoven Fifth.

Cir. (D 131,670) (S 258,529)

This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD

APR 17 1955

(Stein-Paris)

TO MARRY IN SEPTEMBER. — Miss Ellen Isabel Leibovici, whose engagement is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Joseph Leibovici of Brookline, to Mr. Roger Hahn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Pierre Hahn of New York city and Paris, France. Miss Liebovici, whose father is a member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is a graduate of Wellesley College, class of 1954. She is now in France studying music and voice at The Conservatoire National de Paris and is a member of the American Students and Artists Club of Paris. Mr. Hahn attended the Horace Mann and Lincoln Schools and was graduated in 1953 from Harvard College. He was graduated from the Harvard School of Education in 1954 and now holds a Fulbright Fellowship in History of Science at the University of Paris.

Cir. (D 57,751) (S 49,376)

This Clipping From
NEW BEDFORD, MASS.
STANDARD-TIMES

APR 17 1955

Symphony Nears End of Season

Boston Orchestra's Final Programs Listed

Special to The Standard-Times

BOSTON, April 16—The Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch is nearing the close of its 74th season. The series in Sanders Theater, Cambridge, will close next Tuesday night. The 23d pair of concerts in the Friday afternoon and Saturday evening series will take place in Symphony Hall Friday and Saturday. The closing concerts of the Sunday afternoon and Tuesday evening series will be held in Symphony Hall, April 24 and 26. An extra open rehearsal will be given Thursday night.

Bach's great Mass in B minor, an event of the symphony season to be heard in each of the subscription series, will be available to all through an extra open rehearsal which will be given at 7:30 p. m. Thursday. This will be a dress rehearsal with chorus and soloists in final preparation by conductor Munch.

Bach's Mass in B minor has been performed at special concerts but has not been performed by this orchestra in Boston since 1949. The Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, G. Wallace Woodworth conductor, will assist the orchestra. The soloists will be Adele Addison, soprano; Florence Kopleff, contralto; John McCollum, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass. The Mass will be cut in several parts to avoid the excessive length which would result from a complete performance in one session.

The program for the concert in Cambridge next Tuesday night will consist of Haydn's "London" Symphony, No. 104, Randall Thompson's Symphony No. 2, Schubert's Symphony No. 5, and the Prelude to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger."

Cir. (D 103,308)

This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES

APR 19 1955

A. W. Perkins New Manager Of Symphony

Arthur W. Perkins, assistant manager of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, has been named to the newly created post of manager of the Hartford Symphony Orchestra.

According to an announcement by Henry P. Bakewell president of the Symphony Society Mr. Perkins has accepted a three-year contract as manager. He will have sole charge of all of the orchestra's business, publicity, fund raising and office management affairs.

Mr. Perkins, since his graduation from Harvard College in 1947, has gained experience in the orchestral management field by serving for two years as the manager of the San Antonio (Tex.) Symphony, an organization with a budget of $340,000.

* * *

FOR THE PAST YEAR, he has been in his post as assistant manager of the Detroit Symphony, a musical group with a budget of $700,000.

Before taking his job at San Antonio, Mr. Pedkins war personnel manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and personal secretary to Charles Munch, the Boston Symphony's conductor.

After graduating from college, Mr. Perkins served for two years in the diplomatic service in Paris, France, and Frankfort, Germany. He has also studied the piano for 15 years.

* * *

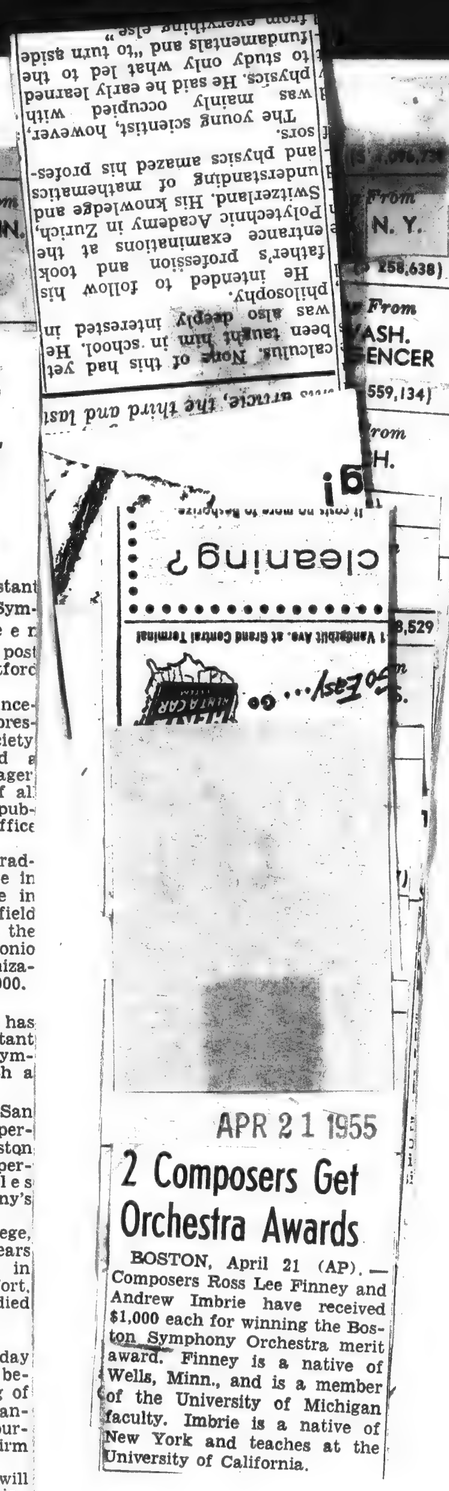
MR. BAKEWELL said today that the "Symphony Society believes that with the engaging of Mr. Perkins we are taking another step towards putting ourselves on a sound and firm footing.

"Mr. Perkins, we believe, will develop the society administratively and financially as Fritz Mahler has developed it musically. Since 90 per cent of the orchestra's income stays right here in Greater Hartford, this will mean that we will have an opportunity to contribute even more to the growth of this area as a musical center."

* * *

MR. PERKINS is a native of Boston, Mass., where his father, the Rev. Palfrey Perkins, was minister of King's Chapel. His father is also chairman of the board of Wellesley College and a member of the board of the Boston Symphony.

Mr. Perkins is married and has two children. The Symphony ociety did not disclose what his salary in Hartford would be. He will take up his duties Aug. 1.



APR 21 1955

2 Composers Get Orchestra Awards

BOSTON, April 21 (AP). — Composers Ross Lee Finney and Andrew Imbrie have received $1,000 each for winning the Boston Symphony Orchestra merit award. Finney is a native of Wells, Minn., and is a member of the University of Michigan faculty. Imbrie is a native of New York and teaches at the University of California.

APR 23

Christian Science Monitor

Bach at Symphony

Harvard-Radcliffe Singers Featured in B Minor Mass

By Harold Rogers

For the penultimate concerts in the week-end series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch has chosen Bach's Mass in B minor, considerably shortened but superbly done. He will repeat it tonight and also for the final concerts in the Sunday and Tuesday series.

This is a work in which many vocal and instrumental soloists can shine, and the choral support by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society reached a new standard of finesse. Mr. Munch chose a fine quartet of soloists, all of whom have appeared before in Symphony Hall.

Though the performance is still rather long in spite of the cuts, it would be worth lengthening a few minutes to give Adele Addison a solo. Her appearances with Florence Kopleff in the "Christe eleison" and with John McCollum in the "Domine Deus" were enough to display the remarkable beauty of her soprano and the depth of her musicianship. But it was only enough to make us want more.

Speaking of the "Domine Deus," Doriot Dwyer's flute solo was adroit as it entwined a graceful way among the soprano and tenor lines. When Miss Kopleff thoughtfully sang the alto solo, "Qui Sedes," she was eloquently accompanied on the oboe d'amore by Louis Speyer.

* * *

Although Mr. McCollum did not display the vocal freedom nor liquid tone his tenor has had in past performances, he sang the "Benedictus" with devotion, supported by Richard Burgin's violin. Donald Gramm, who has appeared here two seasons in the Berlioz "Damnation of Faust," gave us a better opportunity to assess his bass voice. It is youthful and resonant, appealing for its fine focus and rich tone.

There were many other soloists, too, who deserve much praise—James Stagliano for his horn playing in the "Quoniam tu solus sanctus," Roger Voisin for his brilliant trumpeting (together with his colleagues) in the "Osanna in excelsis," E. Power Biggs for his masterful restraint at the organ console, and Daniel Pinkham for his effective work at the harpsichord.

* * *

But high honors were also won by the choral singers, impeccably trained by G. Wallace Woodworth, their conductor. Mr. Munch was able to elicit pianissimo passages that sounded more like music in remembrance than in actuality. By contrast their fortissimos were especially stirring.

For the final concerts of the season next weekend Mr. Munch will conduct Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony, Piston's Second Symphony, and the Beethoven Fifth.

Cir. (D 131,670) (S 258,529)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
APR 17 1955

(Stein-Paris)

TO MARRY IN SEPTEMBER — Miss Ellen Isabel Leibovici, whose engagement is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Joseph Leibovici of Brookline, to Mr. Roger Hahn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Pierre Hahn of New York city and Paris, France. Miss Liebovici, whose father is a member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is a graduate of Wellesley College, class of 1954. She is now in France studying music and voice at The Conservatoire National de Paris and is a member of the American Students and Artists Club of Paris. Mr. Hahn attended the Horace Mann and Lincoln Schools and was graduated in 1953 from Harvard College. He was graduated from the Harvard School of Education in 1954 and now holds a Fulbright Fellowship in History of Science at the University of Paris.

Cir. (D 57,751) (S 49,376)
This Clipping From
NEW BEDFORD, MASS.
STANDARD-TIMES
APR 17 1955

Symphony Nears End of Season

Boston Orchestra's Final Programs Listed

Special to The Standard-Times

BOSTON, April 16—The Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch is nearing the close of its 74th season. The series in Sanders Theater, Cambridge, will close next Tuesday night. The 23d pair of concerts in the Friday afternoon and Saturday evening series will take place in Symphony Hall Friday and Saturday. The closing concerts of the Sunday afternoon and Tuesday evening series will be held in Symphony Hall, April 24 and 26. An extra open rehearsal will be given Thursday night.

Bach's great Mass in B minor, an event of the symphony season to be heard in each of the subscription series, will be available to all through an extra open rehearsal which will be given at 7:30 p. m. Thursday. This will be a dress rehearsal with chorus and soloists in final preparation by conductor Munch.

Bach's Mass in B minor has been performed at special concerts but has not been performed by this orchestra in Boston since 1949. The Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, G. Wallace Woodworth conductor, will assist the orchestra. The soloists will be Adele Addison, soprano; Florence Kopleff, contralto; John McCollum, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass. The Mass will be cut in several parts to avoid the excessive length which would result from a complete performance in one session.

The program for the concert in Cambridge next Tuesday night will consist of Haydn's "London" Symphony, No. 104, Randall Thompson's Symphony No. 2, Schubert's Symphony No. 5, and the Prelude to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger."

Cir. (D 103,308)
This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES
APR 19 1955

A. W. Perkins New Manager Of Symphony

Arthur W. Perkins, assistant manager of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, has been named to the newly created post of manager of the Hartford Symphony Orchestra.

According to an announcement by Henry P. Bakewell president of the Symphony Society Mr. Perkins has accepted a three-year contract as manager. He will have sole charge of all of the orchestra's business, publicity, fund raising and office management affairs.

Mr. Perkins, since his graduation from Harvard College in 1947, has gained experience in the orchestral management field by serving for two years as the manager of the San Antonio (Tex.) Symphony, an organization with a budget of $340,000.

* * *

FOR THE PAST YEAR, he has been in his post as assistant manager of the Detroit Symphony, a musical group with a budget of $700,000.

Before taking his job at San Antonio, Mr. Pedkins war personnel manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and personal secretary to Charles Munch, the Boston Symphony's conductor.

After graduating from college, Mr. Perkins served for two years in the diplomatic service in Paris, France, and Frankfort, Germany. He has also studied the piano for 15 years.

* * *

MR. BAKEWELL said today that the "Symphony Society believes that with the engaging of Mr. Perkins we are taking another step towards putting ourselves on a sound and firm footing.

"Mr. Perkins, we believe, will develop the society administratively and financially as Fritz Mahler has developed it musically. Since 90 per cent of the orchestra's income stays right here in Greater Hartford, this will mean that we will have an opportunity to contribute even more to the growth of this area as a musical center."

* * *

MR. PERKINS is a native of Boston, Mass., where his father, the Rev. Palfrey Perkins, was minister of King's Chapel. His father is also chairman of the board of Wellesley College and a member of the board of the Boston Symphony.

Mr. Perkins is married and has two children. The Symphony ociety did not disclose what his salary in Hartford would be. He will take up his duties Aug. 1.

cleaning?
1 Vanderbilt Ave. at Grand Central Terminal
Mel-O-Bit
1 lb. brick 63¢

APR 21 1955

Composer Wins

BOSTON, April 21 (AP) — Composers Ross Lee Finney and Andrew Imbrie were announced today as winners of the Boston Symphony Orchestra merit award and were given $1,000 each for their winning compositions. Finney is a member of the University of Michigan faculty.

[illegible] the United States."

Finney is a native of Wells, Minn., and is a member of the University of Michigan faculty. Imbrie is a native of New York and teaches at the University of California.

APR 23 1955
Christian Science Monitor

Bach at Symphony

Harvard-Radcliffe Singers Featured in B Minor Mass

By Harold Rogers

For the penultimate concerts in the week-end series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch has chosen Bach's Mass in B minor, considerably shortened but superbly done. He will repeat it tonight and also for the final concerts in the Sunday and Tuesday series.

This is a work in which many vocal and instrumental soloists can shine, and the choral support by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society reached a new standard of finesse. Mr. Munch chose a fine quartet of soloists, all of whom have appeared before in Symphony Hall.

Though the performance is still rather long in spite of the cuts, it would be worth lengthening a few minutes to give Adele Addison a solo. Her appearances with Florence Kopleff in the "Christe eleison" and with John McCollum in the "Domine Deus" were enough to display the remarkable beauty of her soprano and the depth of her musicianship. But it was only enough to make us want more.

Speaking of the "Domine Deus," Doriot Dwyer's flute solo was adroit as it entwined a graceful way among the soprano and tenor lines. When Miss Kopleff thoughtfully sang the alto solo, "Qui Sedes," she was eloquently accompanied on the oboe d'amore by Louis Speyer.

* * *

Although Mr. McCollum did not display the vocal freedom nor liquid tone his tenor has had in past performances, he sang the "Benedictus" with devotion, supported by Richard Burgin's violin. Donald Gramm, who has appeared here two seasons in the Berlioz "Damnation of Faust," gave us a better opportunity to assess his bass voice. It is youthful and resonant, appealing for its fine focus and rich tone.

There were many other soloists, too, who deserve much praise—James Stagliano for his horn playing in the "Quoniam tu solus sanctus," Roger Voisin for his brilliant trumpeting (together with his colleagues) in the "Osanna in excelsis," E. Power Biggs for his masterful restraint at the organ console, and Daniel Pinkham for his effective work at the harpsichord.

* * *

But high honors were also won by the choral singers, impeccably trained by G. Wallace Woodworth, their conductor. Mr. Munch was able to elicit pianissimo passages that sounded more like music in remembrance than in actuality. By contrast their fortissimos were especially stirring.

For the final concerts of the season next weekend Mr. Munch will conduct Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony, Piston's Second Symphony, and the Beethoven Fifth.

Cir. (D 131,670) (S 258,529)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
APR 17 1955

(Stein-Paris)

TO MARRY IN SEPTEMBER — Miss Ellen Isabel Leibovici, whose engagement is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Joseph Leibovici of Brookline, to Mr. Roger Hahn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Pierre Hahn of New York city and Paris, France. Miss Liebovici, whose father is a member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is a graduate of Wellesley College, class of 1954. She is now in France studying music and voice at The Conservatoire National de Paris and is a member of the American Students and Artists Club of Paris. Mr. Hahn attended the Horace Mann and Lincoln Schools and was graduated in 1953 from Harvard College. He was graduated from the Harvard School of Education in 1954 and now holds a Fulbright Fellowship in History of Science at the University of Paris.

Cir. (D 57,751) (S 49,376)
This Clipping From
NEW BEDFORD, MASS.
STANDARD-TIMES
APR 17 1955

Symphony Nears End of Season

Boston Orchestra's Final Programs Listed

Special to The Standard-Times

BOSTON, April 16—The Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch is nearing the close of its 74th season. The series in Sanders Theater, Cambridge, will close next Tuesday night. The 23d pair of concerts in the Friday afternoon and Saturday evening series will take place in Symphony Hall Friday and Saturday. The closing concerts of the Sunday afternoon and Tuesday evening series will be held in Symphony Hall, April 24 and 26. An extra open rehearsal will be given Thursday night.

Bach's great Mass in B minor, an event of the symphony season to be heard in each of the subscription series, will be available to all through an extra open rehearsal which will be given at 7:30 p. m. Thursday. This will be a dress rehearsal with chorus and soloists in final preparation by conductor Munch.

Bach's Mass in B minor has been performed at special concerts but has not been performed by this orchestra in Boston since 1949. The Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, G. Wallace Woodworth conductor, will assist the orchestra. The soloists will be Adele Addison, soprano; Florence Kopleff, contralto; John McCollum, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass. The Mass will be cut in several parts to avoid the excessive length which would result from a complete performance in one session.

The program for the concert in Cambridge next Tuesday night will consist of Haydn's "London" Symphony, No. 104, Randall Thompson's Symphony No. 2, Schubert's Symphony No. 5, and the Prelude to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger."

Cir. (D 103,308)
This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES
APR 19 1955

A. W. Perkins New Manager Of Symphony

Arthur W. Perkins, assistant manager of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, has been named to the newly created post of manager of the Hartford Symphony Orchestra.

According to an announcement by Henry P. Bakewell president of the Symphony Society Mr. Perkins has accepted a three-year contract as manager. He will have sole charge of all of the orchestra's business, publicity, fund raising and office management affairs.

Mr. Perkins, since his graduation from Harvard College in 1947, has gained experience in the orchestral management field by serving for two years as the manager of the San Antonio (Tex.) Symphony, an organization with a budget of $340,000.

* * *

FOR THE PAST YEAR, he has been in his post as assistant manager of the Detroit Symphony, a musical group with a budget of $700,000.

Before taking his job at San Antonio, Mr. Pedkins war personnel manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and personal secretary to Charles Munch, the Boston Symphony's conductor.

After graduating from college, Mr. Perkins served for two years in the diplomatic service in Paris, France, and Frankfort, Germany. He has also studied the piano for 15 years.

* * *

MR. BAKEWELL said today that the "Symphony Society believes that with the engaging of Mr. Perkins we are taking another step towards putting ourselves on a sound and firm footing.

"Mr. Perkins, we believe, will develop the society administratively and financially as Fritz Mahler has developed it musically. Since 90 per cent of the orchestra's income stays right here in Greater Hartford, this will mean that we will have an opportunity to contribute even more to the growth of this area as a musical center."

* * *

MR. PERKINS is a native of Boston, Mass., where his father, the Rev. Palfrey Perkins, was minister of King's Chapel. His father is also chairman of the board of Wellesley College and a member of the board of the Boston Symphony.

Mr. Perkins is married and has two children. The Symphony ociety did not disclose what his salary in Hartford would be. He will take up his duties Aug. 1.

APR 21 1955

Wells Native Wins Symphony Award

BOSTON — (AP) — Composers Ross Lee Finney and Andrew Imbrie have received $1,000 each for winning the Boston Symphony orchestra merit award.

The award which both won Wednesday was established in 1945 and is intended to "foster and promote the writing of symphonic compositions by composers resident in the United States."

Finney is a native of Wells, Minn., and is a member of the University of Michigan faculty. Imbrie is a native of New York and teaches at the University of California.

Bach at Symphony

Christian Science Monitor

Harvard-Radcliffe Singers Featured in B Minor Mass

By Harold Rogers

For the penultimate concerts in the week-end series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch has chosen Bach's Mass in B minor, considerably shortened but superbly done. He will repeat it tonight and also for the final concerts in the Sunday and Tuesday series.

This is a work in which many vocal and instrumental soloists can shine, and the choral support by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society reached a new standard of finesse. Mr. Munch chose a fine quartet of soloists, all of whom have appeared before in Symphony Hall.

Though the performance is still rather long in spite of the cuts, it would be worth lengthening a few minutes to give Adele Addison a solo. Her appearances with Florence Kopleff in the "Christe eleison" and with John McCollum in the "Domine Deus" were enough to display the remarkable beauty of her soprano and the depth of her musicianship. But it was only enough to make us want more.

Speaking of the "Domine Deus," Doriot Dwyer's flute solo was adroit as it entwined a graceful way among the soprano and tenor lines. When Miss Kopleff thoughtfully sang the alto solo, "Qui Sedes," she was eloquently accompanied on the oboe d'amore by Louis Speyer.

♪ ♪ ♪

Although Mr. McCollum did not display the vocal freedom nor liquid tone his tenor has had in past performances, he sang the "Benedictus" with devotion, supported by Richard Burgin's violin. Donald Gramm, who has appeared here two seasons in the Berlioz "Damnation of Faust," gave us a better opportunity to assess his bass voice. It is youthful and resonant, appealing for its fine focus and rich tone.

There were many other soloists, too, who deserve much praise—James Stagliano for his horn playing in the "Quoniam tu solus sanctus," Roger Voisin for his brilliant trumpeting (together with his colleagues) in the "Osanna in excelsis," E. Power Biggs for his masterful restraint at the organ console, and Daniel Pinkham for his effective work at the harpsichord.

♪ ♪ ♪

But high honors were also won by the choral singers, impeccably trained by G. Wallace Woodworth, their conductor. Mr. Munch was able to elicit pianissimo passages that sounded more like music in remembrance than in actuality. By contrast their fortissimos were especially stirring.

For the final concerts of the season next weekend Mr. Munch will conduct Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony, Piston's Second Symphony, and the Beethoven Fifth.

Cir. (D 131,670) (S 258,529)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS. HERALD
APR 17 1955

(Stein-Paris)

TO MARRY IN SEPTEMBER — Miss Ellen Isabel Leibovici, whose engagement is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Joseph Leibovici of Brookline, to Mr. Roger Hahn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Pierre Hahn of New York city and Paris, France. Miss Liebovici, whose father is a member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is a graduate of Wellesley College, class of 1954. She is now in France studying music and voice at The Conservatoire National de Paris and is a member of the American Students and Artists Club of Paris. Mr. Hahn attended the Horace Mann and Lincoln Schools and was graduated in 1953 from Harvard College. He was graduated from the Harvard School of Education in 1954 and now holds a Fulbright Fellowship in History of Science at the University of Paris.

Cir. (D 57,751) (S 49,376)
This Clipping From
NEW BEDFORD, MASS. STANDARD-TIMES
APR 17 1955

Symphony Nears End of Season

Boston Orchestra's Final Programs Listed

Special to The Standard-Times

BOSTON, April 16—The Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch is nearing the close of its 74th season. The series in Sanders Theater, Cambridge, will close next Tuesday night. The 23d pair of concerts in the Friday afternoon and Saturday evening series will take place in Symphony Hall Friday and Saturday. The closing concerts of the Sunday afternoon and Tuesday evening series will be held in Symphony Hall, April 24 and 26. An extra open rehearsal will be given Thursday night.

Bach's great Mass in B minor, an event of the symphony season to be heard in each of the subscription series, will be available to all through an extra open rehearsal which will be given at 7:30 p. m. Thursday. This will be a dress rehearsal with chorus and soloists in final preparation by conductor Munch.

Bach's Mass in B minor has been performed at special concerts but has not been performed by this orchestra in Boston since 1949. The Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, G. Wallace Woodworth conductor, will assist the orchestra. The soloists will be Adele Addison, soprano; Florence Kopleff, contralto; John McCollum, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass. The Mass will be cut in several parts to avoid the excessive length which would result from a complete performance in one session.

The program for the concert in Cambridge next Tuesday night will consist of Haydn's "London" Symphony, No. 104, Randall Thompson's Symphony No. 2, Schubert's Symphony No. 5, and the Prelude to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger."

Cir. (D 103,308)
This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN. TIMES
APR 19 1955

A. W. Perkins New Manager Of Symphony

Arthur W. Perkins, assistant manager of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, has been named to the newly created post of manager of the Hartford Symphony Orchestra.

According to an announcement by Henry P. Bakewell president of the Symphony Society Mr. Perkins has accepted a three-year contract as manager. He will have sole charge of all of the orchestra's business, publicity, fund raising and office management affairs.

Mr. Perkins, since his graduation from Harvard College in 1947, has gained experience in the orchestral management field by serving for two years as the manager of the San Antonio (Tex.) Symphony, an organization with a budget of $340,000.

* * *

FOR THE PAST YEAR, he has been in his post as assistant manager of the Detroit Symphony, a musical group with a budget of $700,000.

Before taking his job at San Antonio, Mr. Pedkins war personnel manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and personal secretary to Charles Munch, the Boston Symphony's conductor.

After graduating from college, Mr. Perkins served for two years in the diplomatic service in Paris, France, and Frankfort, Germany. He has also studied the piano for 15 years.

* * *

MR. BAKEWELL said today that the "Symphony Society believes that with the engaging of Mr. Perkins we are taking another step towards putting ourselves on a sound and firm footing.

"Mr. Perkins, we believe, will develop the society administratively and financially as Fritz Mahler has developed it musically. Since 90 per cent of the orchestra's income stays right here in Greater Hartford, this will mean that we will have an opportunity to contribute even more to the growth of this area as a musical center."

* * *

MR. PERKINS is a native of Boston, Mass., where his father, the Rev. Palfrey Perkins, was minister of King's Chapel. His father is also chairman of the board of Wellesley College and a member of the board of the Boston Symphony.

Mr. Perkins is married and has two children. The Symphony ociety did not disclose what his salary in Hartford would be. He will take up his duties Aug. 1.

APR 21 1955

Finney, Imbrie Win Symphony Awards

Composers Ross Lee Finney and Andrew Imbrie were announced yesterday as winners of the Boston Symphony Orchestra merit award and were given $1,000 each for their winning compositions.

Finney, a native of Wells Minn., is a member of the University of Michigan faculty. Imbrie, a native of New York City teaches at the University of California.

The award, established in 194 is intended to "foster and promote the writing of symphoni compositions by composers resident in the United States."

Bach at Symphony

Christian Science Monitor

Harvard-Radcliffe Singers Featured in B Minor Mass

By Harold Rogers

For the penultimate concerts in the week-end series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch has chosen Bach's Mass in B minor, considerably shortened but superbly done. He will repeat it tonight and also for the final concerts in the Sunday and Tuesday series.

This is a work in which many vocal and instrumental soloists can shine, and the choral support by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society reached a new standard of finesse. Mr. Munch chose a fine quartet of soloists, all of whom have appeared before in Symphony Hall.

Though the performance is still rather long in spite of the cuts, it would be worth lengthening a few minutes to give Adele Addison a solo. Her appearances with Florence Kopleff in the "Christe eleison" and with John McCollum in the "Domine Deus" were enough to display the remarkable beauty of her soprano and the depth of her musicianship. But it was only enough to make us want more.

Speaking of the "Domine Deus," Doriot Dwyer's flute solo was adroit as it entwined a graceful way among the soprano and tenor lines. When Miss Kopleff thoughtfully sang the alto solo, "Qui Sedes," she was eloquently accompanied on the oboe d'amore by Louis Speyer.

* * *

Although Mr. McCollum did not display the vocal freedom nor liquid tone his tenor has had in past performances, he sang the "Benedictus" with devotion, supported by Richard Burgin's violin. Donald Gramm, who has appeared here two seasons in the Berlioz "Damnation of Faust," gave us a better opportunity to assess his bass voice. It is youthful and resonant, appealing for its fine focus and rich tone.

There were many other soloists, too, who deserve much praise—James Stagliano for his horn playing in the "Quoniam tu solus sanctus," Roger Voisin for his brilliant trumpeting (together with his colleagues) in the "Osanna in excelsis," E. Power Biggs for his masterful restraint at the organ console, and Daniel Pinkham for his effective work at the harpsichord.

* * *

But high honors were also won by the choral singers, impeccably trained by G. Wallace Woodworth, their conductor. Mr. Munch was able to elicit pianissimo passages that sounded more like music in remembrance than in actuality. By contrast their fortissimos were especially stirring.

For the final concerts of the season next weekend Mr. Munch will conduct Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony, Piston's Second Symphony, and the Beethoven Fifth.

Cir. (D 131,670) (S 258,529)

This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD

APR 17 1955

(Stein-Paris)

TO MARRY IN SEPTEMBER — Miss Ellen Isabel Leibovici, whose engagement is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Joseph Leibovici of Brookline, to Mr. Roger Hahn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Pierre Hahn of New York city and Paris, France. Miss Liebovici, whose father is a member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is a graduate of Wellesley College, class of 1954. She is now in France studying music and voice at The Conservatoire National de Paris and is a member of the American Students and Artists Club of Paris. Mr. Hahn attended the Horace Mann and Lincoln Schools and was graduated in 1953 from Harvard College. He was graduated from the Harvard School of Education in 1954 and now holds a Fulbright Fellowship in History of Science at the University of Paris.

Cir. (D 57,751) (S 49,376)

This Clipping From
NEW BEDFORD, MASS.
STANDARD-TIMES

APR 17 1955

Symphony Nears End of Season

Boston Orchestra's Final Programs Listed

Special to The Standard-Times

BOSTON, April 16—The Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch is nearing the close of its 74th season. The series in Sanders Theater, Cambridge, will close next Tuesday night. The 23d pair of concerts in the Friday afternoon and Saturday evening series will take place in Symphony Hall Friday and Saturday. The closing concerts of the Sunday afternoon and Tuesday evening series will be held in Symphony Hall, April 24 and 26. An extra open rehearsal will be given Thursday night.

Bach's great Mass in B minor, an event of the symphony season to be heard in each of the subscription series, will be available to all through an extra open rehearsal which will be given at 7:30 p. m. Thursday. This will be a dress rehearsal with chorus and soloists in final preparation by conductor Munch.

Bach's Mass in B minor has been performed at special concerts but has not been performed by this orchestra in Boston since 1949. The Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, G. Wallace Woodworth conductor, will assist the orchestra. The soloists will be Adele Addison, soprano; Florence Kopleff, contralto; John McCollum, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass. The Mass will be cut in several parts to avoid the excessive length which would result from a complete performance in one session.

The program for the concert in Cambridge next Tuesday night will consist of Haydn's "London" Symphony, No. 104, Randall Thompson's Symphony No. 2, Schubert's Symphony No. 5, and the Prelude to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger."

Cir. (D 103,308)

This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES

APR 19 1955

A. W. Perkins New Manager Of Symphony

Arthur W. Perkins, assistant manager of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, has been named to the newly created post of manager of the Hartford Symphony Orchestra.

According to an announcement by Henry P. Bakewell president of the Symphony Society Mr. Perkins has accepted a three-year contract as manager. He will have sole charge of all of the orchestra's business, publicity, fund raising and office management affairs.

Mr. Perkins, since his graduation from Harvard College in 1947, has gained experience in the orchestral management field by serving for two years as the manager of the San Antonio (Tex.) Symphony, an organization with a budget of $340,000.

* * *

FOR THE PAST YEAR, he has been in his post as assistant manager of the Detroit Symphony, a musical group with a budget of $700,000.

Before taking his job at San Antonio, Mr. Pedkins war personnel manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and personal secretary to Charles Munch, the Boston Symphony's conductor.

After graduating from college, Mr. Perkins served for two years in the diplomatic service in Paris, France, and Frankfort, Germany. He has also studied the piano for 15 years.

* * *

MR. BAKEWELL said today that the "Symphony Society believes that with the engaging of Mr. Perkins we are taking another step towards putting ourselves on a sound and firm footing.

"Mr. Perkins, we believe, will develop the society administratively and financially as Fritz Mahler has developed it musically. Since 90 per cent of the orchestra's income stays right here in Greater Hartford, this will mean that we will have an opportunity to contribute even more to the growth of this area as a musical center."

* * *

MR. PERKINS is a native of Boston, Mass., where his father, the Rev. Palfrey Perkins, was minister of King's Chapel. His father is also chairman of the board of Wellesley College and a member of the board of the Boston Symphony.

Mr. Perkins is married and has two children. The Symphony ociety did not disclose what his salary in Hartford would be. He will take up his duties Aug. 1.

APR 21 1955

Music Winners

BOSTON — (AP) — Composers Ross Lee Finney and Andrew Imbrie have received $1,000 each for winning the Boston Symphony Orchestra merit award.

APR 23

Bach at Symphony

Christian Science Monitor

Harvard-Radcliffe Singers Featured in B Minor Mass

By Harold Rogers

For the penultimate concerts in the week-end series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch has chosen Bach's Mass in B minor, considerably shortened but superbly done. He will repeat it tonight and also for the final concerts in the Sunday and Tuesday series.

This is a work in which many vocal and instrumental soloists can shine, and the choral support by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society reached a new standard of finesse. Mr. Munch chose a fine quartet of soloists, all of whom have appeared before in Symphony Hall.

Though the performance is still rather long in spite of the cuts, it would be worth lengthening a few minutes to give Adele Addison a solo. Her appearances with Florence Kopleff in the "Christe eleison" and with John McCollum in the "Domine Deus" were enough to display the remarkable beauty of her soprano and the depth of her musicianship. But it was only enough to make us want more.

Speaking of the "Domine Deus," Doriot Dwyer's flute solo was adroit as it entwined a graceful way among the soprano and tenor lines. When Miss Kopleff thoughtfully sang the alto solo, "Qui Sedes," she was eloquently accompanied on the oboe d'amore by Louis Speyer.

* * *

Although Mr. McCollum did not display the vocal freedom nor liquid tone his tenor has had in past performances, he sang the "Benedictus" with devotion, supported by Richard Burgin's violin. Donald Gramm, who has appeared here two seasons in the Berlioz "Damnation of Faust," gave us a better opportunity to assess his bass voice. It is youthful and resonant, appealing for its fine focus and rich tone.

There were many other soloists, too, who deserve much praise—James Stagliano for his horn playing in the "Quoniam tu solus sanctus," Roger Voisin for his brilliant trumpeting (together with his colleagues) in the "Osanna in excelsis," E. Power Biggs for his masterful restraint at the organ console, and Daniel Pinkham for his effective work at the harpsichord.

* * *

But high honors were also won by the choral singers, impeccably trained by G. Wallace Woodworth, their conductor. Mr. Munch was able to elicit pianissimo passages that sounded more like music in remembrance than in actuality. By contrast their fortissimos were especially stirring.

For the final concerts of the season next weekend Mr. Munch will conduct Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony, Piston's Second Symphony, and the Beethoven Fifth.

Cir. (D 131,670) (S 258,529)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS. HERALD
APR 17 1955

(Stein-Paris)

TO MARRY IN SEPTEMBER — Miss Ellen Isabel Leibovici, whose engagement is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Joseph Leibovici of Brookline, to Mr. Roger Hahn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Pierre Hahn of New York city and Paris, France. Miss Liebovici, whose father is a member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is a graduate of Wellesley College, class of 1954. She is now in France studying music and voice at The Conservatoire National de Paris and is a member of the American Students and Artists Club of Paris. Mr. Hahn attended the Horace Mann and Lincoln Schools and was graduated in 1953 from Harvard College. He was graduated from the Harvard School of Education in 1954 and now holds a Fulbright Fellowship in History of Science at the University of Paris.

Cir. (D 57,751) (S 49,376)
This Clipping From
NEW BEDFORD, MASS. STANDARD-TIMES
APR 17 1955

Symphony Nears End of Season

Boston Orchestra's Final Programs Listed

Special to The Standard-Times

BOSTON, April 16—The Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch is nearing the close of its 74th season. The series in Sanders Theater, Cambridge, will close next Tuesday night. The 23d pair of concerts in the Friday afternoon and Saturday evening series will take place in Symphony Hall Friday and Saturday. The closing concerts of the Sunday afternoon and Tuesday evening series will be held in Symphony Hall, April 24 and 26. An extra open rehearsal will be given Thursday night.

Bach's great Mass in B minor, an event of the symphony season to be heard in each of the subscription series, will be available to all through an extra open rehearsal which will be given at 7:30 p. m. Thursday. This will be a dress rehearsal with chorus and soloists in final preparation by conductor Munch.

Bach's Mass in B minor has been performed at special concerts but has not been performed by this orchestra in Boston since 1949. The Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, G. Wallace Woodworth conductor, will assist the orchestra. The soloists will be Adele Addison, soprano; Florence Kopleff, contralto; John McCollum, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass. The Mass will be cut in several parts to avoid the excessive length which would result from a complete performance in one session.

The program for the concert in Cambridge next Tuesday night will consist of Haydn's "London" Symphony, No. 104, Randall Thompson's Symphony No. 2, Schubert's Symphony No. 5, and the Prelude to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger."

Cir. (D 103,308)
This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN. TIMES
APR 19 1955

A. W. Perkins New Manager Of Symphony

Arthur W. Perkins, assistant manager of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, has been named to the newly created post of manager of the Hartford Symphony Orchestra.

According to an announcement by Henry P. Bakewell president of the Symphony Society Mr. Perkins has accepted a three-year contract as manager. He will have sole charge of all of the orchestra's business, publicity, fund raising and office management affairs.

Mr. Perkins, since his graduation from Harvard College in 1947, has gained experience in the orchestral management field by serving for two years as the manager of the San Antonio (Tex.) Symphony, an organization with a budget of $340,000.

* * *

FOR THE PAST YEAR, he has been in his post as assistant manager of the Detroit Symphony, a musical group with a budget of $700,000.

Before taking his job at San Antonio, Mr. Pedkins war personnel manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and personal secretary to Charles Munch, the Boston Symphony's conductor.

After graduating from college, Mr. Perkins served for two years in the diplomatic service in Paris, France, and Frankfort, Germany. He has also studied the piano for 15 years.

* * *

MR. BAKEWELL said today that the "Symphony Society believes that with the engaging of Mr. Perkins we are taking another step towards putting ourselves on a sound and firm footing.

"Mr. Perkins, we believe, will develop the society administratively and financially as Fritz Mahler has developed it musically. Since 90 per cent of the orchestra's income stays right here in Greater Hartford, this will mean that we will have an opportunity to contribute even more to the growth of this area as a musical center."

* * *

MR. PERKINS is a native of Boston, Mass., where his father, the Rev. Palfrey Perkins, was minister of King's Chapel. His father is also chairman of the board of Wellesley College and a member of the board of the Boston Symphony.

Mr. Perkins is married and has two children. The Symphony ociety did not disclose what his salary in Hartford would be. He will take up his duties Aug. 1.

NEWS
APR 21 1955

U-M Prof Shares Symphony Award

BOSTON, April 21.—(AP)—Composers Ross Lee Finney and Andrew Imbrie are winners of the Boston Symphony Orchestra merit award. They were given $1,000 each for their winning symphonic compositions.

Finney, a native of Wells, Minn., is a member of the University of Michigan faculty. Imbrie teaches at the University of California.

Bach at Symphony

APR 21 1955
Christian Science Monitor

Harvard-Radcliffe Singers Featured in B Minor Mass

By Harold Rogers

For the penultimate concerts in the week-end series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch has chosen Bach's Mass in B minor, considerably shortened but superbly done. He will repeat it tonight and also for the final concerts in the Sunday and Tuesday series.

This is a work in which many vocal and instrumental soloists can shine, and the choral support by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society reached a new standard of finesse. Mr. Munch chose a fine quartet of soloists, all of whom have appeared before in Symphony Hall.

Though the performance is still rather long in spite of the cuts, it would be worth lengthening a few minutes to give Adele Addison a solo. Her appearances with Florence Kopleff in the "Christe eleison" and with John McCollum in the "Domine Deus" were enough to display the remarkable beauty of her soprano and the depth of her musicianship. But it was only enough to make us want more.

Speaking of the "Domine Deus," Doriot Dwyer's flute solo was adroit as it entwined a graceful way among the soprano and tenor lines. When Miss Kopleff thoughtfully sang the alto solo, "Qui Sedes," she was eloquently accompanied on the oboe d'amore by Louis Speyer.

* * *

Although Mr. McCollum did not display the vocal freedom nor liquid tone his tenor has had in past performances, he sang the "Benedictus" with devotion, supported by Richard Burgin's violin. Donald Gramm, who has appeared here two seasons in the Berlioz "Damnation of Faust," gave us a better opportunity to assess his bass voice. It is youthful and resonant, appealing for its fine focus and rich tone.

There were many other soloists, too, who deserve much praise—James Stagliano for his horn playing in the "Quoniam tu solus sanctus," Roger Voisin for his brilliant trumpeting (together with his colleagues) in the "Osanna in extelsis," E. Power Biggs for his masterful restraint at the organ console, and Daniel Pinkham for his effective work at the harpsichord.

* * *

But high honors were also won by the choral singers, impeccably trained by G. Wallace Woodworth, their conductor. Mr. Munch was able to elicit pianissimo passages that sounded more like music in remembrance than in actuality. By contrast their fortissimos were especially stirring.

For the final concerts of the season next weekend Mr. Munch will conduct Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony, Piston's Second Symphony, and the Beethoven Fifth.

Cir. (D 131,670) (S 258,529)

This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD

APR 17 1955

(Stein-Paris)

TO MARRY IN SEPTEMBER — Miss Ellen Isabel Leibovici, whose engagement is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Joseph Leibovici of Brookline, to Mr. Roger Hahn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Pierre Hahn of New York city and Paris, France. Miss Liebovici, whose father is a member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is a graduate of Wellesley College, class of 1954. She is now in France studying music and voice at The Conservatoire National de Paris and is a member of the American Students and Artists Club of Paris. Mr. Hahn attended the Horace Mann and Lincoln Schools and was graduated in 1953 from Harvard College. He was graduated from the Harvard School of Education in 1954 and now holds a Fulbright Fellowship in History of Science at the University of Paris.

Cir. (D 57,751) (S 49,376)

This Clipping From
NEW BEDFORD, MASS.
STANDARD-TIMES

APR 17 1955

Symphony Nears End of Season

Boston Orchestra's Final Programs Listed

Special to The Standard-Times

BOSTON, April 16—The Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch is nearing the close of its 74th season. The series in Sanders Theater, Cambridge, will close next Tuesday night. The 23d pair of concerts in the Friday afternoon and Saturday evening series will take place in Symphony Hall Friday and Saturday. The closing concerts of the Sunday afternoon and Tuesday evening series will be held in Symphony Hall, April 24 and 26. An extra open rehearsal will be given Thursday night.

Bach's great Mass in B minor, an event of the symphony season to be heard in each of the subscription series, will be available to all through an extra open rehearsal which will be given at 7:30 p. m. Thursday. This will be a dress rehearsal with chorus and soloists in final preparation by conductor Munch.

Bach's Mass in B minor has been performed at special concerts but has not been performed by this orchestra in Boston since 1949. The Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, G. Wallace Woodworth conductor, will assist the orchestra. The soloists will be Adele Addison, soprano; Florence Kopleff, contralto; John McCollum, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass. The Mass will be cut in several parts to avoid the excessive length which would result from a complete performance in one session.

The program for the concert in Cambridge next Tuesday night will consist of Haydn's "London" Symphony, No. 104, Randall Thompson's Symphony No. 2, Schubert's Symphony No. 5, and the Prelude to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger."

Cir. (D 103,308)

This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES

APR 19 1955

A. W. Perkins New Manager Of Symphony

Arthur W. Perkins, assistant manager of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, has been named to the newly created post of manager of the Hartford Symphony Orchestra.

According to an announcement by Henry P. Bakewell president of the Symphony Society Mr. Perkins has accepted a three-year contract as manager. He will have sole charge of all of the orchestra's business, publicity, fund raising and office management affairs.

Mr. Perkins, since his graduation from Harvard College in 1947, has gained experience in the orchestral management field by serving for two years as the manager of the San Antonio (Tex.) Symphony, an organization with a budget of $340,000.

* * *

FOR THE PAST YEAR, he has been in his post as assistant manager of the Detroit Symphony, a musical group with a budget of $700,000.

Before taking his job at San Antonio, Mr. Pedkins war personnel manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and personal secretary to Charles Munch, the Boston Symphony's conductor.

After graduating from college, Mr. Perkins served for two years in the diplomatic service in Paris, France, and Frankfort, Germany. He has also studied the piano for 15 years.

* * *

MR. BAKEWELL said today that the "Symphony Society believes that with the engaging of Mr. Perkins we are taking another step towards putting ourselves on a sound and firm footing.

"Mr. Perkins, we believe, will develop the society administratively and financially as Fritz Mahler has developed it musically. Since 90 per cent of the orchestra's income stays right here in Greater Hartford, this will mean that we will have an opportunity to contribute even more to the growth of this area as a musical center."

* * *

MR. PERKINS is a native of Boston, Mass., where his father, the Rev. Palfrey Perkins, was minister of King's Chapel. His father is also chairman of the board of Wellesley College and a member of the board of the Boston Symphony.

Mr. Perkins is married and has two children. The Symphony ociety did not disclose what his salary in Hartford would be. He will take up his duties Aug. 1.

Gregory Peck and Jennifer Jones in "DUEL IN THE SUN" (Color) Joseph Tobey, Mariorie Sherlock, "THE THING FROM ANOTHER WORLD"
DRIVE-IN-LAKES Grand River, East of Brighton
DICK POWELL and Dorothy Lamour

APR 22 1955

Composers Awarded

BOSTON, April 21. — (AP) — Composers Ross Lee Finney and Andrew Imbrie have received $1,000 each for winning the Boston Smyphony Orchestra Merit Award.

APR 22

Bach at Symphony

Christian Science Monitor

Harvard-Radcliffe Singers Featured in B Minor Mass

By Harold Rogers

For the penultimate concerts in the week-end series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch has chosen Bach's Mass in B minor, considerably shortened but superbly done. He will repeat it tonight and also for the final concerts in the Sunday and Tuesday series.

This is a work in which many vocal and instrumental soloists can shine, and the choral support by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society reached a new standard of finesse. Mr. Munch chose a fine quartet of soloists, all of whom have appeared before in Symphony Hall.

Though the performance is still rather long in spite of the cuts, it would be worth lengthening a few minutes to give Adele Addison a solo. Her appearances with Florence Kopleff in the "Christe eleison" and with John McCollum in the "Domine Deus" were enough to display the remarkable beauty of her soprano and the depth of her musicianship. But it was only enough to make us want more.

Speaking of the "Domine Deus," Doriot Dwyer's flute solo was adroit as it entwined a graceful way among the soprano and tenor lines. When Miss Kopleff thoughtfully sang the alto solo, "Qui Sedes," she was eloquently accompanied on the oboe d'amore by Louis Speyer.

* * *

Although Mr. McCollum did not display the vocal freedom nor liquid tone his tenor has had in past performances, he sang the "Benedictus" with devotion, supported by Richard Burgin's violin. Donald Gramm, who has appeared here two seasons in the Berlioz "Damnation of Faust," gave us a better opportunity to assess his bass voice. It is youthful and resonant, appealing for its fine focus and rich tone.

There were many other soloists, too, who deserve much praise—James Stagliano for his horn playing in the "Quoniam tu solus sanctus," Roger Voisin for his brilliant trumpeting (together with his colleagues) in the "Osanna in excelsis," E. Power Biggs for his masterful restraint at the organ console, and Daniel Pinkham for his effective work at the harpsichord.

* * *

But high honors were also won by the choral singers, impeccably trained by G. Wallace Woodworth, their conductor. Mr. Munch was able to elicit pianissimo passages that sounded more like music in remembrance than in actuality. By contrast their fortissimos were especially stirring.

For the final concerts of the season next weekend Mr. Munch will conduct Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony, Piston's Second Symphony, and the Beethoven Fifth.

Cir. (D 131,670) (S 258,529)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
APR 17 1955

(Stein-Paris)

TO MARRY IN SEPTEMBER. — Miss Ellen Isabel Leibovici, whose engagement is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Joseph Leibovici of Brookline, to Mr. Roger Hahn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Pierre Hahn of New York city and Paris, France. Miss Liebovici, whose father is a member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is a graduate of Wellesley College, class of 1954. She is now in France studying music and voice at The Conservatoire National de Paris and is a member of the American Students and Artists Club of Paris. Mr. Hahn attended the Horace Mann and Lincoln Schools and was graduated in 1953 from Harvard College. He was graduated from the Harvard School of Education in 1954 and now holds a Fulbright Fellowship in History of Science at the University of Paris.

Cir. (D 57,751) (S 49,376)
This Clipping From
NEW BEDFORD, MASS.
STANDARD-TIMES
APR 17 1955

Symphony Nears End of Season

Boston Orchestra's Final Programs Listed

Special to The Standard-Times

BOSTON, April 16—The Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch is nearing the close of its 74th season. The series in Sanders Theater, Cambridge, will close next Tuesday night. The 23d pair of concerts in the Friday afternoon and Saturday evening series will take place in Symphony Hall Friday and Saturday. The closing concerts of the Sunday afternoon and Tuesday evening series will be held in Symphony Hall, April 24 and 26. An extra open rehearsal will be given Thursday night.

Bach's great Mass in B minor, an event of the symphony season to be heard in each of the subscription series, will be available to all through an extra open rehearsal which will be given at 7:30 p. m. Thursday. This will be a dress rehearsal with chorus and soloists in final preparation by conductor Munch.

Bach's Mass in B minor has been performed at special concerts but has not been performed by this orchestra in Boston since 1949. The Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, G. Wallace Woodworth conductor, will assist the orchestra. The soloists will be Adele Addison, soprano; Florence Kopleff, contralto; John McCollum, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass. The Mass will be cut in several parts to avoid the excessive length which would result from a complete performance in one session.

The program for the concert in Cambridge next Tuesday night will consist of Haydn's "London" Symphony, No. 104, Randall Thompson's Symphony No. 2, Schubert's Symphony No. 5, and the Prelude to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger."

Cir. (D 103,308)
This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES
APR 19 1955

A. W. Perkins New Manager Of Symphony

Arthur W. Perkins, assistant manager of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, has been named to the newly created post of manager of the Hartford Symphony Orchestra.

According to an announcement by Henry P. Bakewell president of the Symphony Society Mr. Perkins has accepted a three-year contract as manager. He will have sole charge of all of the orchestra's business, publicity, fund raising and office management affairs.

Mr. Perkins, since his graduation from Harvard College in 1947, has gained experience in the orchestral management field by serving for two years as the manager of the San Antonio (Tex.) Symphony, an organization with a budget of $340,000.

* * *

FOR THE PAST YEAR, he has been in his post as assistant manager of the Detroit Symphony, a musical group with a budget of $700,000.

Before taking his job at San Antonio, Mr. Pedkins war personnel manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and personal secretary to Charles Munch, the Boston Symphony's conductor.

After graduating from college, Mr. Perkins served for two years in the diplomatic service in Paris, France, and Frankfort, Germany. He has also studied the piano for 15 years.

* * *

MR. BAKEWELL said today that the "Symphony Society believes that with the engaging of Mr. Perkins we are taking another step towards putting ourselves on a sound and firm footing.

"Mr. Perkins, we believe, will develop the society administratively and financially as Fritz Mahler has developed it musically. Since 90 per cent of the orchestra's income stays right here in Greater Hartford, this will mean that we will have an opportunity to contribute even more to the growth of this area as a musical center."

* * *

MR. PERKINS is a native of Boston, Mass., where his father, the Rev. Palfrey Perkins, was minister of King's Chapel. His father is also chairman of the board of Wellesley College and a member of the board of the Boston Symphony.

Mr. Perkins is married and has two children. The Symphony ociety did not disclose what his salary in Hartford would be. He will take up his duties Aug. 1.

APR 22 1955

Composers Get $1,000 Awards

BOSTON, April 21 (AP)—Ross Lee Finney and Andrew Imbrie, composers, yesterday received $1,000 each for winning the Boston Symphony Orchestra Merit Award. The award was established in 1945 and is intended to "foster and promote the writing of symphonic compositions by composers resident in the United States."

Bach at Symphony

APR 23 1955
Christian Science Monitor

Harvard-Radcliffe Singers Featured in B Minor Mass

By Harold Rogers

For the penultimate concerts in the week-end series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch has chosen Bach's Mass in B minor, considerably shortened but superbly done. He will repeat it tonight and also for the final concerts in the Sunday and Tuesday series.

This is a work in which many vocal and instrumental soloists can shine, and the choral support by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society reached a new standard of finesse. Mr. Munch chose a fine quartet of soloists, all of whom have appeared before in Symphony Hall.

Though the performance is still rather long in spite of the cuts, it would be worth lengthening a few minutes to give Adele Addison a solo. Her appearances with Florence Kopleff in the "Christe eleison" and with John McCollum in the "Domine Deus" were enough to display the remarkable beauty of her soprano and the depth of her musicianship. But it was only enough to make us want more.

Speaking of the "Domine Deus," Doriot Dwyer's flute solo was adroit as it entwined a graceful way among the soprano and tenor lines. When Miss Kopleff thoughtfully sang the alto solo, "Qui Sedes," she was eloquently accompanied on the oboe d'amore by Louis Speyer.

* * *

Although Mr. McCollum did not display the vocal freedom nor liquid tone his tenor has had in past performances, he sang the "Benedictus" with devotion, supported by Richard Burgin's violin. Donald Gramm, who has appeared here two seasons in the Berlioz "Damnation of Faust," gave us a better opportunity to assess his bass voice. It is youthful and resonant, appealing for its fine focus and rich tone.

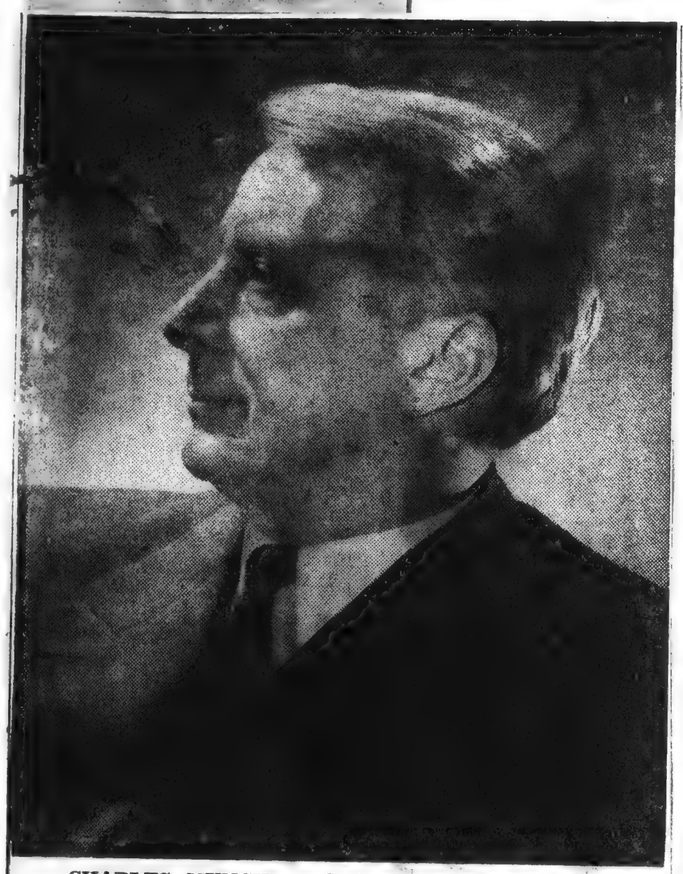
There were many other soloists, too, who deserve much praise—James Stagliano for his horn playing in the "Quoniam tu solus sanctus," Roger Voisin for his brilliant trumpeting (together with his colleagues) in the "Osanna in excelsis," E. Power Biggs for his masterful restraint at the organ console, and Daniel Pinkham for his effective work at the harpsichord.

* * *

But high honors were also won by the choral singers, impeccably trained by G. Wallace Woodworth, their conductor. Mr. Munch was able to elicit pianissimo passages that sounded more like music in remembrance than in actuality. By contrast their fortissimos were especially stirring.

For the final concerts of the season next weekend Mr. Munch will conduct Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony, Piston's Second Symphony, and the Beethoven Fifth.

Cir. (D 74,847) (S 117,225)
This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT
APR 24 1955



CHARLES MUNCH, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra the past seven years, who will again conduct this famous New England ensemble next season in the Bushnell Symphony Series, has announced special plans for the Orchestra's 75th anniversary year. Starting earlier than usual, next September 30, the players will tour leading cities of the South and Midwest. During the season many works newly commissioned from world-famous composers will be played and several conductors active in the orchestra in the past will return as guests, including Pierre Monteux, Leonard Bernstein and Ernest Ansermet. In addition to the Boston Symphony, next season's Bushnell Series will bring the Buffalo Philharmonic, Philadelphia, Cleveland and New York Philharmonic-Symphony orchestras. Series ticket applications are now being taken.

Cir. (D 74,847) (S 117,225)
This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT
APR 24 1955

Boston Symphony Making Plans For 75th Anniversary

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, which has played more Hartford concerts than any other visiting ensemble and which will return in next season's Bushnell Symphony Series, will celebrate its seventy - fifth year starting in September. Special plans are being made for the diamond jubilee year, which will include a larger number of concerts than the normal schedule of the orchestra.

New England's famous orchestra, which last year triumphantly toured Europe, will open its coming season a week earlier than usual, on Sept. 30, in order that a tour of Southern and Midwestern states may be made. Cities to be visited, some of them for the first time, will include Norfolk, Charlotte, Birmingham, New Orleans, Jackson, Atlanta, Chattanooga, Fort Wayne, Detroit, Saginaw, Ann Arbor and others.

In observance of its anniversary, the orchestra will be conducted not only by Charles Munch, who succeeded Serge Koussevitzky on the podium, but during the season by several others who have been intimately associated with the ensemble in the past: Pierre Monteux, Ernest Ansermet, Arthur Fiedler and Leonard Bernstein. During the season also, a series of recently - commissioned works by some of the world's greatest composers will have their first performances.

In addition to the Boston, the Bushnell Symphony Series for next season will also bring the New York Philharmonic - Symphony with Dimitri Mitropoulos; Philadelphia Orchestra with Eugene Ormandy; Cleveland Orchestra with George Szell; Buffalo Philharmonic with Josef Krips. Applications for series seats at $14, $16 and $18 are now being accepted at the Bushnell Memorial.

Cir. (D 131,670) (S 258,529)
This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
APR 24 1955

Munch Given Harvard Glee Club Medal

The Harvard Glee Club Medal for "outstanding contributions in the field of choral music" was awarded to Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, last night at a ceremony in Symphony Hall.

The medal was presented by Prof. G. Wallace Woodworth, glee club director, at the end of a joint performance of Bach's B-Minor Mass by the orchestra, glee club and Radcliffe Choral Society.

Attending the presentation were Dr. Nathan Pusey, Harvard president, members of the orchestra and choral groups, and trustees.

SECOND TIME GIVEN

It was the second time the medal has been conferred since its institution in 1951. The first recipient was Dr. Archibald T. Davison who first developed the glee club to high artistic standing.

The medal, bearing a figure of Apollo and other classical symbols of the musical art, was designed by Joseph A. Coletti, sculptor and Glee Club alumnus.

Speaking briefly, Munch commended the Harvard Glee Club members for their intelligence and enthusiam.

On Tuesday, the group will complete the fourth in a series of presentations of Bach's B-Minor Mass with the Symphony.

HELENA, MONT.
Independent-Record
Circ. D. 7,765 - S. 7,844
APR 24 1955

Arthur Fiedler and Boston Pops Orchestra Community Concert Attractions as Campaign Opens

The Helena Community Concert association will offer Arthur Fiedler and the famed Boston Pops orchestra as its feature attraction of the 1955-56 season, President Norman Winestine has announced.

Memberships in the 26th anniversary season will go on sale Tuesday. The kickoff banquet will be held at the Montana club at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow evening with Margaret Blackburn representing national headquarters.

The names of Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops have long been synonymous with the best in semiclassical and popular music. The enthusiasm with which they have been received by critics and capacity audiences during their three transcontinental tours has been almost unbounded, Winestine said.

A minimum of three and possibly four additional concerts will be selected Saturday night, following the end of the membership drive. Memberships are offered for one week, after which the sale is closed and no individual tickets are available. It is possible to "buy now and pay later," but it will not be possible to buy later.

Mrs. Lyman Wallin is membership drive chairman. "Much of the success of our campaign depends on attendance at the dinner Monday night of all workers and members of the executive committee," she said Saturday. "Those who have worked in previous years and those working for the first time gain much by attending the kick-off dinner. We hope to fill every last seat in our Helena 'Carnegie Hall' for next season. Music is an important part of our daily lives. Believing it to be an experience, unique and inspirational, we offer to every resident of the Helena area an invitation to listen to the best in music through our organized audience plan."

Mrs. Wallins' corps of workers includes: Mrs. E. C. Alberts, Miss Emily Bach, Mrs. A. E. Banks, Mrs. May Bartos, Mrs. J. S. Benjamin, Mrs. Ray Bjork, Charles Blossom, Mrs. Louis Brackman, Milton Brown, Mrs. Jerry Bue, Mrs. Kenneth Burrell, Mrs. Cora Lee Burke, Miss Carol Jean Carlson, Mrs. John Casebolt, Mrs. Homer Chase, Mrs. C. L. Covington, Mrs. Ray Church, Mrs. Richard Dightman, Ralph Domer, Miss Susan Eaker,

Mrs. Paul R. Ensign, Mrs. H. T. Faarrelius, Mrs. Ed Fallan, Mrs. Charles Fields, Mrs. Frances Gruner, S. E. Haraldson, Mrs. S. E. Haraldson, Mrs. W. E. Harrisberger, Mrs. J. M. Heidt, Mrs. Roy Hitchcock, Miss Elsie Hollowman, Mrs. Eleanora Jung, Miss Louise Kaiser, Mrs. Carrie Drummond Keil, Mrs. Dana Kelly, Mrs. Robert Kendall, Mrs. Otto G. Klein,

Miss Marie Leslie, Mrs. John W. Mahan, Jr., Mrs. Peter Meloy, Mrs. J. W. Melugin, Mrs. M. P. Moe, Mrs. D. W. Neifert, Mrs. Jackson Nichols, Mrs. Ralph Normann, Mrs. Victoria O'Malley, Mrs. J. Ross Pollock, Anealia Rostad, Mrs. John E. Screnar, Jr., Mrs. Irvin Shope, Mrs. Virgil Sinclair, Mrs. Frank Stermitz, Mrs. Anne Sutphen, Mrs. Kenneth Thompson, Mrs. Frank Tompkins, Mrs. W. R. Totten, Mrs. Arthur Wilson and Mrs. Marjorie Wright.

President Winestine said, "We celebrate the 26th season of bringing great music to Helena by offering one of America's finest attractions, the Boston Pops orchestra. Everyone has heard their records and their broadcasts, now we can see them perform.

"During the years, Community Concerts have featured the finest artists of this generation on the Helena concert stage. The citizens of this community have heard these artists for a fraction of what it would cost to hear them in New York, London, Paris and other musical centers of the world and with far more convenience and comfort.

"With the loyal help of the crusaders for good music who year after year work in the Community Concert campaigns, Helena will continue to enjoy the greatest musicians and artists of our time."

Mrs. M. P. Moe, loyal secretary who has served since the organization was founded here, and who has been the sparkplug behind membership drives for 26 years, said, "Our dream of bringing Carnegie Hall to Last Chance Gulch is now an accomplished fact.

"There is only one sound businesslike way to conduct such a program, and that is the systematic method of Community Concerts. We have our membership drive, the money is there or assured, and then the contracts are signed. If we have a successful membership drive, we have a big concert year, bringing the expensive top-flight artists and groups to Helena. If the drive is not so successful and there is not as much money to spend, we contract for one name artist and the rest of the concerts are hired according to the budget. Some of those available to associations with restricted budgets are just as talented as those who have acquired names for themselves and Helena audiences have the thrill of hearing them when they are on their way up the ladder of fame."

Helena's Community Concert membership has averaged about 2,000 members for the past several years. "Credit for this must be given to dedicated music lovers, who have worked unceasingly through the years to make Community Concert such an important part of Helena's cultural life," Mrs. Moe said.

All workers and board members have been urged to attend the dinner tomorrow night.

DES MOINES, IOWA
REGISTER
Circ. D. 227,375 - S. 527,450
APR 24 1955

The New Records

So It's Corn

THIS WEEK'S batch of review records comprises four albums which seem for several reasons to be related. First, by pairs they are similar in musical content. Second, all the music is quite familiar (long-haired highbrows can sneer that the albums are corn-ball and commercial).

Third, all the album notes are couched in sticky, purple prose. But fourth, if one descends from his lofty perch, relaxes and just listens, the albums for the most part contain good music, well performed and excellently reproduced.

The one most easily branded as corny nevertheless easily may have the largest general sales appeal. It's a concert by the Boston "Pops" Arthur Fiedler conducting, with this gooey title: "The Family All Together" (RCA Victor). Basically the music is a sixth-grade music appreciation lesson: "Porgy and Bess Synthesis," "Pop Goes the Weasel," 'Clair de lune," "Prelude in C Sharp Minor" (yes, that one), "Clock Store," "Hunt in the Black Forest," Ravel's "Bolero," "Warsaw Concerto," et al. The notes, by a former lady magazine editor, start thus: "This 'program' has been planned to give your whole family a relaxed good time. America has rediscovered that great institution, the happy family . . ." and they go on from there. Oh, well and so what—the record sounds good and the pieces won't poison you.

DAILY RECORD
APR 26

Misses Opening

ARTHUR FIEDLER

For the first time in 26 years, Arthur Fiedler, popular director of the Boston "Pops" Orchestra now recovering from an operation, will not lead the group when it opens its 70th season next Tuesday at Symphony Hall.

The announcement was made last night by Boston Symphony Director Thomas D. Perry Jr. who stated Fiedler would not be able to conduct the first few concerts.

In his place will be a long time friend and a member of the orchestra's first violin section, Harry Ellis Dickson, of Brookline. The "Pops" leader recently underwent an operation at the New England Medical Center.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
POST
Circ. D. 372,583 - S. 247,755
APR 28 1955

Fight Move To Raze Carnegie Hall

Classical music faced stiff competition today on two fronts—commerce and jazz.

In Manhattan, the Philharmonic-Symphony Society of New York was faced with the prospect of having Carnegie Hall sold out from under it, and the society was reportedly negotiating to buy the place, for about $4,000,000.

The owners of the hall, taking advantage of the peak real estate market, are believed to have received a firm bid from an outfit that would raze the hall and erect a commercial building in its place.

And in Tanglewood, Mass., where the Boston Symphony will hold forth at the Berkshire Music Center this summer, an invasion of jazz is scheduled. The Berkshire Music Barn, a scant mile from the center, will hold jazz concerts at the same time the classical squares are fiddling away.

CEDAR RAPIDS, IA.
GAZETTE
Circ. D. 57,674 - S. 52,665
APR 24 1955

Boston "Pops" Orchestra Is Unique Group

The Boston "Pops" orchestra, which will appear in Cedar Rapids on the 1955-56 Community Concerts series, occupies a unique place in the American musical scene.

Under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, the Boston "Pops" acquired its name and its reputation by performing light, enjoyable, classical music for highly critical Boston audiences, and only since 1953 has the orchestra been available for appearances outside its home city.

Known to the entire country for its recordings, some of which have sold more than one million copies, the Boston "Pops" will appear in Cedar Rapids during its third consecutive sold-out tour.

Paul Anthony, president of the Cedar Rapids Community Concert Association, has announced that, in addition to other classical and semi-classical selections, the "Pops" will present Ruth Slenczynska in a piano concerto.

Fiedler, dynamic conductor of the orchestra, has appeared as guest conductor with the Minneapolis, San Francisco and Montreal symphony orchestras and has made numerous radio and television appearances.

The local Community Concert group which is conducting its twenty-fifth annual membership campaign this week, will also present William Warfield, baritone; Robert Casadesus, pianist, and the Alma Trio (violin, cello and piano) on its 1955-56 series.

Memberships, which entitle the holder to attend all four concerts, will be available through Saturday and may be obtained either from a Community Concerts worker or at the association's headquarters at the Montrose hotel, Parlor "F". The phone number is 4-1877.

Memberships fees remain at $6 for adults, $3 for students and $8.50 for reserved seats.

BOSTON HERALD, TUESDAY, APRIL 26,

Fiedler Recovering; Dickson Substitutes

It was announced yesterday that Arthur Fiedler — whose progress after a recent operation at the New England Medical Center has been "very satisfactory" — is now making plans to conduct the 70th year of Pops concerts opening May 3.

However, he will not be able to lead the first few concerts of the season and has invited Harry Ellis Dickson to conduct in his place. Mr. Dickson, a member of the first violin section of the Symphony, is noted for his frequent appearances with both the Pops and Esplanade orchestras, and as the commentator at the Open Rehearsals.

Cir. (D 503,999) (S 1,096,738
This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
APR 28 1955

ORCHESTRA TO BID ON CARNEGIE HALL

Philharmonic May Lose Old Home Unless It Buys

By HOWARD TAUBMAN

The Philharmonic-Symphony Society of New York is negotiating to buy Carnegie Hall. If it does not make the purchase, it may have to look for a new home.

The private company that owns Carnegie Hall, New York's major concert auditorium since 1891, is believed to have a firm offer from a bidder whose plan is to tear down the building and erect a commercial structure.

It was learned last night that the Philharmonic board of directors had named a committee to study the orchestra's problem. This committee has met with representatives of the owners. The price is said to be $4,000,000.

The razing of Carnegie Hall would affect many others besides the Philharmonic. Out-of-town orchestras such as the Boston and Philadelphia play regular subscription series there. Other ensembles use it as their forum, and the principal concert-giving artists of our time give their recitals there.

The Philharmonic, which has a twenty-eight-week season at Carnegie Hall, has the biggest stake in it. The orchestra's board has few alternatives. There is no other hall in New York with comparable seating capacity, acoustics and traditions.

If the Philharmonic board decides against buying Carnegie Hall, its likeliest move would be to seek a new auditorium in the redevelopment scheduled in the Lincoln Square area.

This is not the first time the Philharmonic has considered buying Carnegie Hall. But this time its need to make a decision is more acute than ever. It knows that the contracts for the sale to the nonmusical bidder are in preparation.

In the Forties the Philharmonic made several overtures to buy the hall. One year, it is understood, the board approved the purchase. Then the deal fell through.

One of the reasons for the current urgency is the peak state of the real estate market. The private owners of Carnegie Hall can sell the property at a favorable price today. Since the hall does not produce the kind of income a real estate investment of this scope would normally bring in, there is great pressure on the owners to find a more profitable use for the property.

Carnegie Hall opened on May 5, 1891, with a five-day festival. The great Russian composer Tchaikovsky was the guest of honor and conducted several of his works.

Andrew Carnegie provided most of the funds for the hall's construction. When it opened it was called the Music Hall. In 1898 it was renamed in Mr. Carnegie's honor.

In 1925 the hall was purchased from Mrs. Carnegie by a syndicate headed by the late Robert E. Simon, real estate dealer. At that time it was stipulated that the new owner must guarantee that the orchestra could continue to use the hall for at least five years.

Robert E. Simon Jr. is the head of the company that owns the hall today. His personal affection for the building, and particularly the auditorium, is known to be strong, and he is believed to have made efforts to keep the place as a music center.

While he would not discuss the negotiations last night, Mr. Simon admitted that he had had plans drawn up some years ago for the modernization of the hall.

This job, he said, could be done at a cost of less than $1,000,000, at least by estimates of several years ago.

PASTE OVER

COLUMBIA, S. C.
RECORD
Circ. D. 28,805
APR 29 1955

Views From Fadiman, Munch, Pleasants

I AM A CONDUCTOR, By Charles Munch. Translated from French by Leonard Burkat. Oxford.

John N .Burk of the Boston Symphony writes the foreword and, also of the Symphony, Burkat—no relation—does an introduction as well as the translation. They are both informative and helpful. I know no book in which I wouldn't be happy to see them, yet I hold it against them that by as little as pages V to XXXIII they separate us from Munch.

Munch is Munch is Muench—the spelling until he came here, via Paris, from his native Alsace. Though in the world of books he may not be a familiar figure, in music he needs no introduction. If you know music, you know Munch.

In this short book he writes about apprenticeship, becoming a conductor, making a program, studying scores, rehearsing, the concert itself, and the musician's and the conductor's life. (An appendix lists works he has played in his five years as Boston conductor, and there is a gratifyingly large percentage of contemporary, including American, compositions).

Technically this is an invaluable book; if you plan to conduct, read this first. Or if you go to concerts, by all means read it. Or if you just like books, read it; it pretends to so little, it amounts to so much, for it is simple, honest and eloquent. But Munch has a subject, which is bigger than craft; it is spirit. It's the aware, dedicated, indeed devout spirit of the total musician. He speaks of the "priesthood" of orchestra players; he is their bishop, their pope. The man with the baton has rarely been served so well by the man with the pen.

—W. G. Rogers.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Christian Science Monitor (e)
Circ. 167,096
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
APR 30 1955

Final Symphony of the Season

047

Piston's Second on Program With Schubert, Beethoven

By Harold Rogers

Charles Munch is bringing the 74th season of the Boston Symphony Orchestra to a close with the works of three noted symphonists. His weekend Symphony Hall program includes the Schubert "Unfinished" and the Beethoven Fifth—pieces that shine with enduring fame. He also played the Symphony No. 2 by Walter Piston, a composer considered by many, this listener included, to be the leading American symphonist.

* * *

There are other American symphonic composers whose names may be bracketed with Mr. Piston's — Aaron Copland and Roy Harris, perhaps, though Mr. Piston's four symphonies are winning a widening public more rapidly than some of the symphonic works of these others. Peter Mennin is a challenger whose musical integrity should not be underestimated. He has composed some powerful music that is bringing him rapidly to the fore.

Mr. Piston's Second is a stimulating work in spite of several flaws that are not easily explained. The opening Moderato is marked by strong thematic material and a development section handled with superb craftsmanship. Solid musical substance is presented in two alternating moods — brooding introspection and a contrasting buoyant dance.

The Adagio, too, is put together with a master's touch, beginning with quiet contemplation, manifesting a growing tension, an urgent development, and a dissonant climax. But for some strange reason of musical chemistry it does not quite come off. It does not always hold the attention or grip the emotions.

The final Allegro gains interest through its agitated rhythms, the bold use of percussive color, the virile dissonances. But too much is going on. One has the feeling that the movement would grow in power through attenuation of materials. It does hold the attention, however, and it ends in a golden blaze. Mr. Piston achieved greater triumphs in his Third and Fourth. He was present in Symphony Hall yesterday to accept the hearty applause and to shake hands with the conductor.

* * *

Mr. Munch opened with a tender and gentle performance of Schubert's B minor Symphony, and he closed with a work that is often appropriately used to end a season, the Beethoven Fifth. Though Mr. Munch gave the Beethoven an electric reading, it was not enough to erase the vivid memory of the recent Boston performance by the Berlin Philharmonic under Herbert von Karajan. One cannot help feeling that the Berlin musicians gave us the authentic Beethoven.

The traversal yesterday reflected light from its surface, so to speak; it did not shine from its core. At times Mr. Munch took things faster than the musicians could effectively play them—the fugato section in the Trio, for instance. The performance yesterday was often shallow and occasionally shoddy, but there is no denying that it gave off showers of dazzling sparks. It was a jolly way to end a season.

SPARTANBURG, S. C.
HERALD-JOURNAL
Circ. S. 33,812
APR 24 1955

Conductor Tells Eloquent Story

I AM A CONDUCTOR, By Charles Munch. Translated from French by Leonard Burkat. Oxford.

John N. Burk of the Boston Symphony writes the foreword and, also of the Symphony, Burkat—no relation—does an introduction as well as the translation. They are both informative and helpful. I know no book in which I wouldn't be happy to see thm, yet I hold it against them that by as little as pages V to XXXIII they separate us from Munch.

Munch is Munch is Muench—the spelling until he came here, via Paris, from his native Alsace. Though in the world of books he may not be a familiar figure, in music he needs no introduction. If you know music, you know Munch.

In this short book he writes about apprenticeship, becoming a conductor, making a program, studying scores, rehearsing, the concert itself, and the musician's and the conductor's life. (An appendix lists works he has played in his five years as Boston conductor, and there is a gratifyingly large percentage of contemporary, including American, compositions.)

Technically this is an invaluable book; if you plan to conduct, read this first. Or if you go to concerts, by all means read it. Or if you just like books, read it; it pretends to so little, it amounts to so much, for it is simple, honest and eloquent. But Munch has a subject, which is bigger than craft; it is spirit. It's the aware, dedicated, indeed devout spirit of the total musician. He speaks of the "priesthood" of orchestra players; he is their bishop, their pope. The man with the baton has rarely been served so well by the man with the pen.

W. G. Rogers

NEW ORLEANS, LA.
STATES
Circ. D. 92,316
APR 30 1955

ON THE RECORDS

RCA-Victor Disc Fans Home Fires

NEW YORK (INS)—RCA-VICTOR has decided that family life has come back to America (has it been away?) and for the purpose of fanning the home fires,' offers a record, "The Family All Together."

A good idea, really, this record (LM 1879, 12-inch). It has something for mother, dad and the kids. For mother and dad it does fine. For the youngsters it does fine, too, instructurally, with an excellent pot pourri.

There's some Gershwin (Porgy and Bess symphonically melded); Ravel (Bolero, of course); Rachmaninoff's Prelude in C-Sharp Minor, and so on. Mostly all sure-fire stuff for all ages.

One mistake in "The Family All Together" might be the obvious bow to the kiddies with "Pop Goes the Weasel." This is symphonically treated, also, and somehow you can just hear the little one saying, "Wah?"

When you pop the weasel, for kids or otherwise, it seems better just to pop it, straight. Yet this is a minor beef. It's all done by the Boston Pops under the baton of Arthur Fiedler. Let's hope it's but the forerunner of more "family" collections.

On Rating the Concerts

By Paul Hume

WHAT WERE the best concerts you heard in 1954?

Do you remember a night when the music was just the way you liked it, and the performance of it all that it needed? These are the events that stand out in my mind as the "Best of '54." They are all listed chronologically and in no other order in any way related to their relative quality.

The number of outstanding concerts is a little smaller than last year. But the sources are numerically considerably changed. The Library of Congress and Washington Cathedral have come up high into the lists over former years.

JANUARY 8: The Harpsichord Quartet, in a Baroque program. Library of Congress. January 22: William Primrose and David Stimer, Library of Congress. March 11: Boston Symphony under Munch, with Harvard and Radcliffe, singing Berlioz' Romeo and Juliet.

March 19: Budapest Quartet with Milton Katims, Library of Congress, in Mozart's C Minor and G Minor Quintets, with the Third Rasoumovsky. March 22: Victoria de los Angeles, in Constitution Hall, recital.

April 29 and 30: Budapest Quartet with woodwind quartet in Beethoven and Schubert, Library of Congress. May 4: Ballet Theater, with Constantia, Aleko, Fancy Free, and Theme and Variations, National Theater. June 6: Beveridge Webster, pianist, Phillips Gallery.

June 7: Yella Pessl, harpsichord, with Paul Olefsky, cello, Phillips Gallery. June 27: Isobel Baillie, soprano, and Washington Chamber Chorus, Washington Cathedral.

NOVEMBER 10: National Symphony under Mitchell, with Casadesus, pianist, Constitution Hall. November 16: Washington Cathedral Choral Society under Callaway: Verdi Requiem. November 19: New York Woodwind Quintet, Library of Congress. November 28: Bach Aria Group, Constitution Hall. December 27: Washington Cathedral Choral Society under Calloway, in Berlioz' Childhood of Christ, Washington Cathedral.

The Library of Congress with the Budapest Quartet as a nucleus, brightened with guest soloists and various visiting ensembles, constantly adds weight and value to our music.

IT IS IN our concert life in the larger, commercial halls that things have dropped, with fewer and fewer artists of substance, and less and less music of vital impact for today.

The Boston Symphony seems to register little with us unless it is involved in one of the great choral machines notably of Berlioz, in which Munch can still strike fire.

The Philadelphia Orchestra at times ceases to matter at all, unless a guest appears with news of the world of note. The National Symphony with Robert Casadesus brought life and brilliance to their concert last November, while Victoria de los Angeles and the Bach Aria Group made the Hayes series noteworthy. A single ballet program of the many seen here in a year is memorable.

And from the Phillips Gallery the memories of one of Paul Olefsky's recitals, assisted by Yella Pessl, and the solo recital of the great, and greatly ignored American pianist, Beveridge Webster—these things are testimony to the strange currents that keep our concert life from being vital, fresh, and commercially successful.

WILL THE National Symphony speak with a new and authoritative voice in its next, and twenty-fifth anniversary, year?

Will the Philadelphia Orchestra, and the Boston Symphony, which have added so little to the musical progress of this city, withdraw from the scene, or do some kind of about face? Music can make so significant a contribution to the total cultural makeup of a city that none of its component parts should fail in its duty.

[33]

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Rep
Circ. 130,

APR 30 19

MUSIC

Symphony Concert

[illegible] Symphony [illegible] conducting [illegible] 74th season [illegible] afternoon [illegible]

[illegible] B minor [illegible] Waltz. Piston
[illegible] No. 5 in C minor. Beethoven

By RUDOLPH ELIE

A little old lady snatched me by the sleeve in the corridor of Symphony Hall yesterday afternoon, waggling a program in her fist, said "I hope you like that!"

It was Walter Piston's Waltz No. 2, which yesterday received just 11 years after its Boston premiere by this orchestra. While I cannot say I found the work lovable (the one quality that has so far been found in contemporary music) I found it highly interesting, not to say stimulating and entertaining. This, I might say, in contradistinction to my reactions to it in print, when I find I said that it was "good neat, clean and tidy" and that it didn't appeal to me very much.

Good, Neat, Tidy

A lot of music has gone over the bridge since then and today, on a second hearing, the Symphony emerges far more than merely neat, clean and tidy though it is, in fact, all these. Mr. Piston is as meticulous a craftsman as there is in the field of music today. But the urgency and the essential musicality of his communication was very evident yesterday.

The Symphony begins with a fine and distinguished melody assigned to the cellos, presently giving to a series of powerful climaxes between which are lyrical and amusing interludes suggesting snatches of music of the street, much as Mahler intrudes similar references to the familiar sounds about him. The movement calls for massive proclamations by brass and percussion and generates excitement and verve before it subsides in the calm mood of the opening.

If "lovable" may not exactly be applied to the second movement it is nonetheless a very beautiful inspiration in a pastoral vein, quite as evocative of the American scene in its spirit-like atmosphere as Smetana of the Czech countryside. It is distinctively American, too, in its elements, which often suggest the "blues" on an elevated level. I felt that it rose to an unnecessarily violent climax considering its gentle, lyric character, while the finale was also aggressive to a degree, but all in all it proved to be a very fine work displaying Mr. Piston's immense command of the orchestra as well as his brilliant—though oftimes suppressed—gift as a melodist.

Other Works

Mr. Munch, who led the applause for it while the composer stood from the floor below the stage, performed it with the conviction he bestows on all contemporary music that has caught his own admiration, and the audience—my little old lady excluded, perhaps—applauded with reasonable vigor.

There was no doubt about the other two works on the program, they being among the most beloved works in the repertoire. Mr. Munch gave Schubert's endlessly lovely "Unfinished" a glowing reading, inspired at once with spirit and with lyric charm and radiance. It was most interesting to hear his way with the C Minor after hearing it so recently done by the Berlin Phil-

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Ind. Democrat
Circ. 291,604

APR 30 1955

Music Review

By TUCKER KEISER

Instead of scheduling a big work for the final concert by the Boston Symphony yesterday, Charles Munch chose two time-tested compositions, Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony and Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, plus a contemporary work, Walter Piston's Second Symphony. It was a musical afternoon designed to please both the conservative listener and the listener who delights in the astringent qualities of present-day composition.

Though Mr. Piston's three-movement symphony seldom touches the heart with ardent melodies, it never fails to tickle the intellect by its ingenious devices. The second movement, adagio, is a remarkable feat of liquid continuity, a broad theme flowing and developing with the effortless grace of an expansive 16th century motet. The final allegro is technical tour de force blending rhythmic vigor with thematic unity in a movement characterized by steady dynamism.

The "Unfinished" Symphony, surely one of the most beautiful pieces ever written, received an affectionate performance from the orchestra and conductor who lavished loving care on its every phrase. Indeed, it was one of the finest moments of the season, one which will linger in the memory of those who heard it.

The Beethoven will be remembered, too, but for an entirely different reason. As if to write a dramatic finis to this series, the conductor pulled out every stop and let 'er rip. With a sleeves-rolled-up attitude, conductor and orchestra charged furiously into every measure, never stopping for one beat of breath along the way. It was awful Beethoven, and it was not even good Munch, but it was terrifically exciting all the way.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-0068

Two different approaches would be hard to imagine, on the one hand the warm, poetic and elegant refinement of Von Karajan, rising occasionally to excitement; on the other the driving energy, the huge dynamic shadings and the fabulous virtuosity of Munch. The odd thing about it is that both ways were equally effective and equally right. After all, Beethoven, like Shakespeare, is capable of a universe of interpretative variation within a certain tradition, and who is to say which is the one true way?

On this occasion as he often has before, Mr. Munch displayed the essential nobility and generosity of his character in calling out of the orchestra Carlos Pinfield, one of its most distinguished violinists whose last concert—after more than 40 years—this was. It was at once a charming and touching tribute to a dedicated musician, and it brought the 74th season to a heart-warming close. And so until we meet again for the glitter of the 75th season next October, I wish all my readers who have I hope, borne with me on these Saturday mornings, a pleasant and happy season in the sun.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 151,303

APR 30 1955

MUSIC

Boston Symphony Winds Up 74th Season

Twenty-fourth and concluding concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's 74th season, at Symphony Hall. Charles Munch conducts the following program: Schubert: "Unfinished" Symphony; Walter Piston: Second Symphony; Beethoven: Fifth Symphony.

By CYRUS DURGIN

No sooner is it October than it is April, when you reach a certain time in life. The Boston Symphony concerts of yesterday afternoon and tonight are, almost incredibly, the last of the orchestra's 74th season.

The program for these occasions follows the usual course: no soloist, and music that is mostly familiar. Yet there is one novelty, the Second Symphony by Walter Piston, and that is not too well known to most of the subscribers, for it had not been done, until now, since its Boston premiere at the hands of the composer's colleague, G. Wallace Woodworth, in April, 1944.

Eleven years is altogether too long for this work to go unheard at Symphony Hall, even though by comparison with the two Piston symphonies that followed, it is not quite so striking.

Nonetheless, it is a remarkably well-wrought work, one of substance and stature, and most ably orchestrated by Mr. Piston, who recently published a superb book on that subdivision of the art-and-science of music.

While the Second Symphony is by no means either austere or lacking in motion, it is, I think, somewhat less out-giving, even in the slow movement, and somewhat less nimble than the Third and Fourth Symphonies. There is, in the Second, a notable clarity and solidity of musical ideas, which were worked up into no mean structure. There is logic, too, and melody, without any trace of pure experiment, on the one hand, or on the other of any re-working of old things, a process cheerfully known as "corn."

The performance was brisk, precise, highly effective and plenty loud. Mr. Piston, who was sitting in the audience, received most cordial applause when he walked down the center aisle to shake the hands of Mr. Munch and concertmaster Burgin, and to bow modestly and briefly.

Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony, one of those rare miracles of pure lyricism, is music of which it is difficult to tire, no matter how often heard.

Yesterday's performance was good, if a little tense, and the playing of the four first woodwinds, Mrs. Dwyer and Messrs. Gomberg, Cioffi and Walt, was enchanting in its richness of tone and in its grace and ease.

Mr. Munch is a conductor whom, in most things, I greatly admire, a dynamic, modest and earnest musician. But though I dislike to end a season on a somewhat sour note, it must be said that the performance of Beethoven's Fifth Symphony was not the best that he can do.

The first movement and finale were too fast, phrases were run together and fine string detail obscured, the tympani were much too loud and the brass often dry. In short, the music seemed to run away with him, or he with it.

Even so, the audience burst in upon the final chord with tremendous applause. Mr. Munch's leave-taking, until he rejoins the orchestra at Tanglewood in July, was an occasion of happy cordiality.

Cir. (D 215,362) (S 527,095)
This Clipping From
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.
EXAMINER
APR 24 1955

Book by Munch Tells Of Conductor's Task

By ALEXANDER FRIED

IF YOU CIRCULATE among people who go to concerts, you'll find that symphony conducting replaces weather as the standard topic of conversation.

Even music-lovers of long experience admit surprising puzzlement about what the man with the baton needs in the way of technique, personality and musical insights. And the query often comes up:

"Does an orchestra need a conductor at all, since the musicians are all sitting there with their printed music in front of them?"

Of course a conductor is necessary—to set the tempo of the performance, in all its complexity and changes, and to reveal in a particularly sensitive manner the colors and strands of expression that well up endlessly through the warp and woof of the orchestra.

CONDUCTING CALLED SACRED CALLING

For guidance on the subject, I refer you to an extremely interesting, sincere and enthusiastic new little book: "I Am a Conductor," by Charles Munch, leader of the Boston Symphony (Oxford University Press, $2.75).

"Conducting," says Munch, "is not a profession, but a sacred calling, sometimes a priesthood, and often even a disease—a disease from which the only escape is death . . . Fifteen years of work and study do not make a conductor of a man who is not possessed of an inner exaltation, an all-consuming flame, and a magnetism that can bewitch both the musicians of the orchestra and the audience who come to hear his music-making."

For many concert-goers, a conductor seems to enjoy such power, in the way he knocks the grand sonorities of an orchestra about, that these concertgoers revel more in the show of power than in the music itself. They look upon a conductor's work as a sort of demonstration of strength of character—with sound effects.

HARROWING DESCRIPTION OF LABOR

But, according to Munch, the conductor's problem is not so much command as it is communication. His medium is not speech, but gesture, posture, telepathy and an irresistibly keen radiation:

"Your orchestra must feel simultaneously the same wishes and desires as you and must be unable to refrain from expressing them" . . . The conductor on the podium "can only live, let his heart beat, his soul vibrate and his emotions sing."

Don't gather from such ecstatic descriptions that Munch thinks conducting is all "inspiration." No, he gives an almost harrowing description of the labor (in rehearsals, concerts and endless study by lamplight) which faces a conductor who has to keep a season going through week after week of symphony programs.

Munch was born in Strasbourg, the son of a musician-conductor. He sang as a child, studied music theory, violin and some organ, piano and trumpet; made an excursion into the study of medicine, but returned to become an orchestra concertmaster in Strasbourg and Leipzig.

It is characteristic of him that even when he had become a noted conductor, and Toscanini came to Paris to lead an orchestra, Munch put aside his own baton, picked up a violin and sat faithfully in the last stand of the strings to learn everything he could from playing under the great maestro.

USES VACATION TO SIT AS AUDITOR

And even now—though he's the eminent leader of one of the finest orchestras of all time—he occasionally uses precious vacation hours to sit in as an auditor on conservatory classes. In 1953, he says, he learned a lot by attending such Paris classes in percussion and trumpet.

To him it is not a bore to be a judge at instrumental competitions. If you want to know what a clarinet can and can't do, he remarks, there's no better way of finding out than to hear thirty gifted clarinetists in a row stand up and compete with each other in a difficut test piece.

By the same token, he finds that a helpful way to learn a score—in addition to other methods of eye and piano analysis, and perhaps listening to records—is to sit up all night and copy out the score in all its parts, making the marking of expressions and bowing that he will want to tell the players at his rehearsals.

Is is not surprising that Munch admits listening to records of new music. Many conductors are puritanical on this point, and avoid (or say they avoid) such a shortcut to knowledge because they want to build up their own interpretation of a new piece and not be influenced by another conductor's conception.

TELEPHONES INTERFERE WITH WORK

Questions of rehearsal method ("No long speeches!"), orchestral seating, human relations with the players, tempo, nuance, instrumental balance, accompaniment, memorizing, program making, recreation (in his case, he favors antique shops and second hand book stores) and even gymnastics (for physical fitness) are subjects for Munch's pithy comments.

A man obviously of good heart he expresses no grudges.

Perhaps his sharpest pique is directed once or twice at telephones.

They interfere with his work.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

MAY 1 - 1955

Fisher Jr. College

Over one-hundred fifty students will attend the Boston Symphony Pops Concert on Wednesday evening May fourth. This is one of the regular college activities to which all students are invited.

Plans for the Annual Alumnae Banquet to be held at the Sherry-Biltmore Hotel on Saturday evening May twenty-first have been announced by Dean Macdonald. The Reunion Committee for the Class of '54 includes Suzanne Gortner of Greenfield, Alberta Frantello of Quincy, Ruth Ann Cassidy of West Roxbury, Janet Twomey of Framingham, Mavis Bentley of Methuen, and Lois Russell of Washburn, Maine.

Mary Wotton of Boston, Class of '45 is Chairman of the Tenth Year Reunion Committee and is being assisted by Mrs. Patricia Churchley Mellor '45 of Torrington, Connecticut.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Ind. Democrat
Circ. 226,942

MAY 1 - 1955

Thursday's Pops program at Symphony Hall will be enjoyed by Friends of the Peter Brent Brigham Hospital who have taken over part of the floor and balcony. Committee heads include (left to right) Mrs. F. Gregg Bemis, Mrs. Donald B. Baker, Jr., and Mrs. James Donovan.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Indep. Republican
Circ. 252,998

MAY 1 - 1955

PLANNING Temple Mishkan Tefila's annual Pops concert schedule for Symphony Hall on May 23 are, left to right, Mrs. Harry L. Lavine, Mrs. Leon Miller and Mrs. David Feldman, members of the temple's Sisterhood. The concert will be conducted by Arthur Fiedler.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 357,463

MAY 1 - 1955

Fiedler Convalescing, but Pops Open Tuesday Under Harry Ellis Dickson

The 70th anniversary season of the Boston Pops Concerts will open Tuesday night at Symphony Hall. Arthur Fiedler, who is a convalescent from a recent illness, has invited Harry Ellis Dickson to conduct the opening nights until he is able to take the baton for his 26th season as the Pops conductor.

Opening night, Ozan Marsh, a native of California and a pianist of international repute, will make his first appearance at the Pops in Liszt's "Dance of Death." The soloist for Wednesday will be the pianist, Mineko Sasahara. The first violin soloist will be Hazel Weems, who will appear on Friday.

The programs for the week follow.

Tuesday—Pomp and Circumstance, Elgar; Overture to "Der Freischutz," Weber; Clair de Lune, Debussy; Voices of Spring, Waltzes, Strauss; Finlandia, Tone Poem, Sibelius; Suite from "Carmen," Bizet; Totentanz for Piano and Orchestra, Liszt (Soloist: Ozan Marsh); Selection from "Can-Can," Porter; Butler's Holiday, Anderson; The Stars and Stripes Forever, March, Sousa.

Wednesday—Procession of Bacchus from "Sylvia," Delibes; Overture to "The Barber of Seville," Rossini; Largo from "Xerxes," Handel (Solo Violin: Alfred Krips); Polovetzian Dances from "Prince Igor," Borodin; Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 2 in G minor, Op. 22, Saint-Saens (Soloist: Mineko Sasahara); Overture to "Tannhauser," Wagner; Selection from "South Pacific," Rodgers; Sandpaper Ballet, Anderson; Semper Fidelis, March, Sousa.

Thursday — Prelude to "Carmen," Bizet; Overture to "Egmont," Beethoven; Largo from Symphony No. 2 in E minor, R. Thompson; Waltzes from "Der Rosenkavalier," Strauss; Suite from "Peer Gynt," Grieg; Warsaw Concerto for Piano and Orchestra, Addinsell (Soloist, Leo Litwin); Ouverture Solennelle, 1812, Tchaikovsky; Selection from "Kiss Me Kate," Porter; Jalousie, Gypsy Tango, Gade; Look Sharp—Be Sharp, Merrick-Bennett.

Friday — National Emblem, March, Bagley; Overture to "Fingal's Cave," Mendelssohn; Panis Angelicus, Franck; Excerpts from Act III, "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg," Wagner; Marche Slave, Tchaikovsky; Concerto for Violin and Orchestra No. 1 in G minor, Op. 26, Bruch (Soloist: Hazel Weems); Bolero, Ravel; Selection from "Can-Can," Porter; Classical Juke Box, Anderson; Hungarian Dance No. 6, Brahms.

Saturday—Entrance of the Guests into the Wartburg from "Tannhauser," Wagner; Overture to "Oberon," Weber; Ave Maria, Bach-Gounod (solo violin, Alfred Krips); Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2, Liszt; "Espana" Waltzes, Waldteufel; Irish Suite, Anderson; Regis College Glee Club (Jaqueline M. Cyr, '55, director; Patricia Thalheimer, '55, accompanist); Agnus Dei, Bizet; Gypsy Dance from "Carmen," Bizet; Ouvre Ton Coeur, Bizet; Many Happy Returns, arr. by Mason; A Trumpeter's Lullaby, Anderson; Washington Post, March, Sousa; Regis Alma Mater.

Sunday—Marche Militaire, Schubert; Excerpts from Act III, "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg," Wagner; waltz from the Serenade for Strings, Tchaikovsky; Academic Festival Overture, Op. 80, Brahms; The Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra, Op. 34, Britten (speaker, Leonard Burkat); Colby Junior College Glee Club (Margaret E. Cawley, director; Susan Litchfield '55, Eleanor Kent '56, accompanists); The Peasant Cantata, J. S. Bach; Liebeslieder Waltzes Op. 52 and Op. 65, Brahms; Holiday Song, W. Schuman; Don't Leave Me Bartok; Old Abram Brown, Britten; Same Was a Man Persichetti; Selection from "Kiss Me Kate," Porter; Hernando's Hideaway from "The Pajama Game," Adler and Ross; Sailors' Dance, Gliere.

Monday—Knightsbridge March, Coates; Overture to "Orpheus in Hades," Offenbach; Clair de Lune, Debussy; Polovetzian Dances from "Prince Igor," Borodin; Concerto in E flat for Two Pianos (K. 365), Mozart (soloists: Zosia Jacynowicz, Leo Litwin); Bolero, Ravel; Selection from "South Pacific," Rodgers; Sandpaper Ballet, Anderson; Second Regiment Connecticut March, Reeves.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 357,463

MAY 1 - 1955

Boston University Night at Pops on June 3rd

Highlighting Boston University's Commencement weekend will be a "Night at Pops" on Friday evening, June 3. A special section of Symphony Hall will be reserved for the 35 and 50-year classes, and Dr. James R. Houghton, conductor of the University chorus, will direct vocal selections by the audience. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the concert.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 357,463

MAY 1 - 1955

Women's City Club Night at Pops to Be Held Wed.

A number of supper parties are ...mbers of the ... before they ... to a "Night ...day evening. ...he direction ...ted "Pops" ...ed by the ...ittee of the ...ell is chair... ...rs Beckett

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 357,463

MAY 1 - 1955

FRIENDS of the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital have made possible the attractive planting around the Hospital grounds, as well as the more than a hundred major volunteer services given regularly to patients and staff. Helping with the benefit Pops night at Symphony Hall, May 5th, will be Mrs. F. Gregg Bemis, Mrs. Donald B. Baker Jr., and Mrs. James Donovan of the Friends.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

MAY 1 - 1955

Fisher Jr. College

Over one-hundred fifty students will attend the Boston Symphony Pops Concert on Wednesday evening May fourth. This is one of the regular college activities to which all students are invited.

Plans for the Annual Alumnae Banquet to be held at the Sherry-Biltmore Hotel on Saturday evening May twenty-first have been announced by Dean Macdonald. The Reunion Committee for the Class of '54 includes Suzanne Gortner of Greenfield, Alberta Frantello of Quincy, Ruth Ann Cassidy of West Roxbury, Janet Twomey of Framingham, Mavis Bentley of Methuen, and Lois Russell of Washburn, Maine.

Mary Wetton of Boston, Class of '45 is Chairman of the Tenth Year Reunion Committee and is being assisted by Mrs. Patricia Churchley Mellor '45 of Torrington, Connecticut.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Ind. Democrat
Circ. 226,942

MAY 1 - 1955

Thursday's Pops program at Symphony Hall will be enjoyed by Friends of the Peter Brent Brigham Hospital who have taken over part of the floor and balcony. Committee heads include (left to right) Mrs. F. Gregg Bemis, Mrs. Donald B. Baker, Jr., and Mrs. James Donovan.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Indep. Republican
Circ. 252,998

MAY 1 - 1955

PLANNING Temple Mishkan Tefila's annual Pops concert schedule for Symphony Hall on May 23 are, left to right, Mrs. Harry L. Lavine, Mrs. Leon Miller and Mrs. David Feldman, members of the temple's Sisterhood. The concert will be conducted by Arthur Fiedler.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 357,463

MAY 1 - 1955

Fiedler Convalescing, but Pops Open Tuesday Under Harry Ellis Dickson

047

The 70th anniversary season of the Boston Pops Concerts will open Tuesday night at Symphony Hall. Arthur Fiedler, who is a convalescent from a recent illness, has invited Harry Ellis Dickson to conduct the opening nights until he is able to take the baton for his 26th season as the Pops conductor.

Opening night, Ozan Marsh, a native of California and a pianist of international repute, will make his first appearance at the Pops in Liszt's "Dance of Death." The soloist for Wednesday will be the pianist, Mineko Sasahara. The first violin soloist will be Hazel Weems, who will appear on Friday.

The programs for the week follow.

Tuesday—Pomp and Circumstance, Elgar; Overture to "Der Freischutz," Weber; Clair de Lune, Debussy; Voices of Spring, Waltzes, Strauss; Finlandia, Tone Poem, Sibelius; Suite from "Carmen," Bizet; Totentanz for Piano and Orchestra, Liszt (Soloist: Ozan Marsh); Selection from "Can-Can," Porter; Bugler's Holiday, Anderson; The Stars and Stripes Forever, March, Sousa.

Wednesday—Procession of Bacchus from "Sylvia," Delibes; Overture to "The Barber of Seville," Rossini; Largo from "Xerxes," Handel (Solo Violin: Alfred Krips); Polovetzian Dances from "Prince Igor," Borodin; Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 2 in G minor, Op. 22, Saint-Saens (Soloist: Mineko Sasahara); Overture to "Tannhauser," Wagner; Selection from "South Pacific," Rodgers; Sandpaper Ballet, Anderson; Semper Fidelis, March, Sousa.

Thursday — Prelude to "Carmen," Bizet; Overture to "Egmont," Beethoven; Largo from Symphony No. 2 in E minor, R. Thompson; Waltzes from "Der Rosenkavalier," Strauss; Suite from "Peer Gynt," Grieg; Warsaw Concerto for Piano and Orchestra, Addinsell (Soloist, Leo Litwin); Ouverture Solennelle, 1812, Tchaikovsky; Selection from "Kiss Me Kate," Porter; Jalousie, Gypsy Tango, Gade; Look Sharp—Be Sharp, Merrick-Bennett.

Friday — National Emblem, March, Bagley; Overture to "Fingal's Cave," Mendelssohn; Panis Angelicus, Franck; Excerpts from Act III, "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg," Wagner; Marche Slave, Tchaikovsky; Concerto for Violin and Orchestra No. 1 in G minor, Op. 26, Bruch (Soloist: Hazel Weems); Bolero, Ravel; Selection from "Can-Can," Porter; Classical Juke Box, Anderson; Hungarian Dance No. 6, Brahms.

Saturday—Entrance of the Guests into the Wartburg from "Tannhauser," Wagner; Overture to "Oberon," Weber; Ave Maria, Bach-Gounod (solo violin, Alfred Krips); Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2, Liszt; "Espana" Waltzes, Waldteufel; Irish Suite, Anderson; Regis College Glee Club (Jaqueline M. Cyr, '55, director; Patricia Thalheimer, '55, accompanist); Agnus Dei, Bizet; Gypsy Dance from "Carmen," Bizet; Ouvre Ton Coeur, Bizet; Many Happy Returns, arr. by Mason; A Trumpeter's Lullaby, Anderson; Washington Post, March, Sousa; Regis Alma Mater.

Sunday—Marche Militaire, Schubert; Excerpts from Act III, "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg," Wagner; waltz from the Serenade for Strings, Tchaikovsky; Academic Festival Overture, Op. 80, Brahms; The Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra, Op. 34, Britten (speaker: Leonard Burkat); Colby Junior College Glee Club (Margaret E. Cawley, director; Susan Litchfield '55, Eleanor Kent '56, accompanists); The Peasant Cantata, J. S. Bach; Liebeslieder Waltzes Op. 52 and Op. 65, Brahms; Holiday Song, W. Schuman; Don't Leave Me, Bartok; Old Abram Brown, Britten; Same Was a Man, Persichetti; Selection from "Kiss Me Kate," Porter; Hernando's Hideaway from "The Pajama Game," Adler and Ross; Sailors' Dance, Gliere.

Monday—Knightsbridge March, Coates; Overture to "Orpheus in Hades," Offenbach; Clair de Lune, Debussy; Polovetzian Dances from "Prince Igor," Borodin; Concerto in E flat for Two Pianos (K. 365), Mozart (soloists: Zosia Jacynowicz, Leo Litwin); Bolero, Ravel; Selection from "South Pacific," Rodgers; Sandpaper Ballet, Anderson; Second Regiment Connecticut March, Reeves.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 357,463

MAY 1 - 1955

Boston University Night at Pops on June 3rd

047

Highlighting Boston University's Commencement weekend will be a "Night at Pops", on Friday evening, June 3. A special section of Symphony Hall will be reserved for the 35 and 50-year classes, and Dr. James R. Houghton, conductor of the University chorus, will direct vocal selections by the audience. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the concert.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 357,463

MAY 1 - 1955

Women's City Club Night at Pops to Be Held Wed.

047

A number of supper parties are being planned by members of the Women's City Club before they and their guests go on to a "Night at Pops" next Wednesday evening. The concert, under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, noted "Pops" conductor, is sponsored by the special projects committee of the club. Mrs. Joel E. Harrell is chairman and Mrs. Gladys Beckett Jones is vice-chairman.

FRIENDS of the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital have made possible the attractive planting around the Hospital grounds, as well as the more than a hundred major volunteer services given regularly to patients and staff. Helping with the benefit Pops night at Symphony Hall, May 5th, will be Mrs. F. Gregg Bemis, Mrs. Donald B. Baker Jr., and Mrs. James Donovan of the Friends.

047

[35]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 357,463
MAY 1 - 1955

LABRADOR CHILDREN along the bleak coasts miles from Boston will have these attractive flower sellers at the Grenfell Pops to thank for special medical supplies needed to comb tuberculosis. Fo rmore than a decade the wonderful work of th Grenfell Missions has been aided by the opening of the Pop and on Tuesday post-debs Marcie Gross and Joan Miles will their part to keep up the tradition as the 70th season of concer begins at Symphony Hall.

047

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 167,096
MAY 2 - 1955

047

One Man's Music

One man's music is another man's time to take a walk in the open air.

This assumption, hardly original but nevertheless potent, has provided a springboard for lively discussion of the merits of "modern" as against "classical" music, and whether the twain should meet.

In Boston, whose concertgoers have enjoyed for generations one of the finest symphony orchestras in the world, discussion has spilled over from newspapers to radio.

It all started with a letter to this newspaper by Mr. William Henry Chamberlin advocating segregation of modern music from the classics by playing the moderns in separate programs. This in the interests of concertgoers who prefer the "Three B's" (Bach, Beethoven, Brahms) to a fourth B which some call Bedlam.

The debate has embraced all sorts of questions, aesthetic, moral, political. But does not one answer to the problem lie in that unaesthetic device called compromise? a reader asks: Might a season of concerts be divided three ways: one third made up of familiar works, one third new or recent works, one third comprising both sorts?

One can get too much of the familiar as well as too much of the unfamiliar in art. But from the continuing interest displayed in the controversy over programing the old and the new music, it is clear that one can never get too much discussion.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Ind. Democrat
Circ. 226,942
MAY 1 - 1955

Students to Attend Pops Concert

Over 150 students of Fisher Junior College will attend the Boston Symphony Pops Concert on Wednesday evening May 4. This is one of the regular college activities to which all students are invited.

Plans for the Annual Alumnae Banquet to be held at the Sherry-Biltmore Hotel on Saturday evening May 21, have been announced by Dean Macdonald. The Reunion Committee for th Class of '54 includes Suzann Gortner of Greenfield, Albert Frantello of Quincy, Ruth An Cassidy of West Roxbury, Jane Twomey of Framingham, Mavi Bentley of Methuen, and Loi Russell of Washburn, Maine.

Mary Wotton of Boston, class of '45 is chairman of the 10th year reunion committee and is being assisted by Mrs. Partricia Churchley Mellor '45 of Torrington, Connecticut.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Ind. Democrat
Circ. 226,942
MAY 1 - 1955

Pops Opens Next Tuesday

The 70th anniversary program of the Boston Pops Concerts will open next Tuesday night at Symphony Hall. Arthur Fiedler, who is a convalescent from a recent illness, has invited Harry Ellis Dickson to conduct the opening nights until he is able to take the baton for his 26th season as the Pops conductor.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 357,463
MAY 1 - 1955

Annual Dana Hall Night at Pops

047

Scheduled for Friday, May 6th

On the long list of reservations for Dana Hall school Annual Night at Pops are Dr. and Mrs. Alfred T. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. George J. Johnston, Mrs. Werner Hegemann, Miss Denise Bacon, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick D. Bonner, Dr. and Mrs. David Boyd, Mr. and Mrs. L. Albert Daloz, and many more.

The concert, which benefits the Dana Hall Building Fund, will include violin selections by a guest artist, Hazel Weems. She is a member of the Music Department at the School in Wellesley, and a graduate of the Institute of Musical Art of the Juilliard School of Music. She was formerly a member of the faculty of the Hartford School of Music and Smith College Summer School of Music.

Mrs. Mark C. Wheeler of Wellesley Hills is chairman of the benefit, and her assistants are Mrs. J. Englebert Dunphy, Mrs. John Farnum, Mrs. Samuel Johnston, Mrs. C. Winslow Lewis Jr., and Mrs. Sturgis Stevens, all of Wellesley. Others working with Mrs. Wheeler are Mrs. Frederick D. Bonner of Weston, Mrs. Robert McDowell of Dover, and Mrs. Ernest Sharaf of Newton.

CINCINNATI, OHIO
ENQUIRER
Circ. D. 200,412 - S. 282,550
MAY 1 1955

Uneasy Lies Hand That Wears Baton When Audiences See Same Hand Often

BY ARTHUR DARACK

THE FIRST faint stirrings of Summer Opera are in the air already but before we fan that particular breeze there is something else to be ventilated.

One hears, from time to time, about the climate of opinion in other large cities on the matter of their symphony orchestra operations.

Recently I have talked with persons who follow the New York Philharmonic and Boston Orchestra fortunes. I read reviews regularly and the reviews do not often agree with the "scuttlebutt."

★ ★ ★

IT SEEMS that the lot of the permanent conductor of these establishments is not often serene. It is said, for example, that the New York Philharmonic is "demoralized" under Mitropoulos; the orchestra only plays properly for guest conductors.

The Boston Orchestra has "deteriorated" sadly under Munch. Koussevitsky is supposed to be turning over in his grave.

And one hears the same thing about the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra under Thor Johnson.

Only the Philadelphia Orchestra and the Chicago Orchestra are exempt from this kind of back biting.

Sometimes Steinberg and the Pittsburgh Orchestra are placed in the favored category, other times not.

★ ★ ★

HAVING HEARD Munch conduct the Boston Orchestra, here and on the radio, as well as on records, and having somewhat similar acquaintance with Mitropoulos, I find it difficult to believe stories about their alleged inability to exert discipline and maintain high artistic standards.

Cincinnatians who heard Munch conduct the Boston Orchestra here, several years ago, marveled at the results.

Mitropoulos created a minor sensation as guest conductor with our orchestra.

Yet the week before the Mitropoulos concert, Thor Johnson conducted a performance of the Shostakovitch Fifth Symphony that was almost as exciting in its own way as the Mitropoulos stint. So it was thought by most listeners.

The final program of our season, in which we heard Brahms' "A German Requiem," was another example of "big league" direction and results. And there were others.

One cannot dismiss a conductor, or anyone else, who is capable of producing outstanding efforts occasionally. The human animal is so constituted that great variation in results in the expected performance, no matter what the occupation.

Conductors and other musicians of eminence are not exempt from humanity in this respect.

★ ★ ★

DISSATISFACTION with "permanent" conductors often is the rule and the greatest conductors are not immune.

There were grumblings about the Toscanini repertory when he was regular conductor of the New York Philharmonic, though admittedly there were few complaints about performance.

Actually, Toscanini and Bruno Walter seem to be just about the only recent conductors of great fame in America who have been able to silence opposition effectively. And Bruno Walter has not been a "permanent" conductor in any one place for a long period.

HOW LONG Reiner will continue to enthrall Chicago remains to be seen. At the moment he has a firm supporter in Claudia Cassidy, critic of the Tribune, who enjoys an influence in Chicago denied to critics elsewhere.

If Miss Cassidy tires of Reiner it is not improbable that his regime will go the way of all conductorial flesh.

Moreover, he is "new" and novelty is important in a conductor. Indeed, this may be the only distinction of a conductor and he may achieve eminence as a consequence.

★ ★ ★

THE IMPORTANCE of novelty in conductors is similar to its importance with tiny children. A small child is captivated by an unexpected piece of dry bread discovered in a corner whereas he will disdain an expensive but familiar toy.

Much audience response to conductors is childlike.

★ ★ ★

ONE PERSON likes a conductor because she thinks he is handsome. Another dislikes him because she finds him ugly. A third dislikes his speaking voice.

Such things can be magnified and often are. To be sure, seasoned music critics and concertgoers who take their music seriously may be expected to arrive at standards of judgment which are not based on the cut of a man's coat.

But I am not now talking about critical response. As far as I know, only Miss Cassidy's tastes, among critics, are important enough to be shared by audiences.

★ ★ ★

GUEST CONDUCTORS may be the answer in situations where the "permanent" conductor enjoys long tenure. The novelty provided by the guest stimulates the orchestra and gives people something to talk about.

I am certain, however, that influential guests, such as Mitropoulos, are expensive to obtain and just as a hostess comes to rue the extraordinary preparations undertaken to snare a famous guest, so the Symphony may be faced with a similar problem.

★ ★

TWO OTHER solutions exist. Fire the conductor every year or so. Get Toscanini or Bruno Walter.

But since I cannot sensibly advocate either "solution" I must admit that the problem of the "permanent" conductor admits of no permanent solution.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 357,463
MAY 1 - 1955

LABRADOR CHILDREN along the bleak coasts miles from Boston will have these attractive flower sellers at the Grenfell Pops to thank for special medical supplies needed to combat tuberculosis. Fo rmore than a decade the wonderful work of the Grenfell Missions has been aided by the opening of the Pops, and on Tuesday post-debs Marcie Gross and Joan Miles will do their part to keep up the tradition as the 70th season of concerts begins at Symphony Hall.

047

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 167,096
MAY 2 - 1955

One Man's Music

047

One man's music is another man's time to take a walk in the open air.

This assumption, hardly original but nevertheless potent, has provided a springboard for lively discussion of the merits of "modern" as against "classical" music, and whether the twain should meet.

In Boston, whose concertgoers have enjoyed for generations one of the finest symphony orchestras in the world, discussion has spilled over from newspapers to radio.

It all started with a letter to this newspaper by Mr. William Henry Chamberlin advocating segregation of modern music from the classics by playing the moderns in separate programs. This in the interests of concertgoers who prefer the "Three B's" (Bach, Beethoven, Brahms) to a fourth B which some of them call Bedlam.

The debate has embraced all sorts of questions, aesthetic, moral, political. But does not one answer to the problem lie in that unaesthetic device called compromise? a reader asks: Might a season of concerts be divided three ways: one third made up of familiar works, one third new or recent works, one third comprising both sorts?

One can get too much of the familiar as well as too much of the unfamiliar in art. But from the continuing interest displayed in the controversy over programing the old and the new music, it is clear that one can never get too much discussion.

NATI, OHIO
UIRER
412 - S. 282,550
1955

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Ind. Democrat
Circ. 226,942
MAY 1 - 1955

Students to Attend Pops Concert

Over 150 students of Fisher Junior College will attend the Boston Symphony Pops Concert on Wednesday evening May 4. This is one of the regular college activities to which all students are invited.

Plans for the Annual Alumnae Banquet to be held at the Sherry-Biltmore Hotel on Saturday evening May 21, have been announced by Dean Macdonald. The Reunion Committee for the Class of '54 includes Suzann Gortner of Greenfield, Albert Frantello of Quincy, Ruth An Cassidy of West Roxbury, Jane Twomey of Framingham, Mavi Bentley of Methuen, and Lo Russell of Washburn, Maine.

Mary Wotton of Boston, class of '45 is chairman of the 10th year reunion committee and is being assisted by Mrs. Partricia Churchley Mellor '45 of Torrington, Connecticut.

New England Newsclip Agen
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmon
Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass
Ind. Democrat
Circ. 226,942
MAY 1 - 1955

Pops ... Next ...

The 70th ... gram of the ... certs will ... night at Sy... thur Fiedler, ... cent from a ... invited Harry ... conduct the ... til he is able ... for his 26th se... conductor.

tha... ba... 2. an...

Uneasy Lies Hand That Wears Baton When Audiences See Same Hand Often

BY ARTHUR DARACK

THE FIRST faint stirrings of Summer Opera are in the air already but before we fan that particular breeze there is something else to be ventilated.

One hears, from time to time, about the climate of opinion in other large cities on the matter of their symphony orchestra operations.

Recently I have talked with persons who follow the New York Philharmonic and Boston Orchestra fortunes. I read reviews regularly and the reviews do not often agree with the "scuttlebutt."

★ ★ ★

IT SEEMS that the lot of the permanent conductor of these establishments is not often serene. It is said, for example, that the New York Philharmonic is "demoralized" under Mitropoulos; the orchestra only plays properly for guest conductors.

The Boston Orchestra has "deteriorated" sadly under Munch. Koussevitsky is supposed to be turning over in his grave.

And one hears the same thing about the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra under Thor Johnson.

Only the Philadelphia Orchestra and the Chicago Orchestra are exempt from this kind of back biting.

Sometimes Steinberg and the Pittsburgh Orchestra are placed in the favored category, other times not.

★ ★ ★

HAVING HEARD Munch conduct the Boston Orchestra, here and on the radio, as well as on records, and having somewhat similar acquaintance with Mitropoulos, I find it difficult to believe stories about their alleged inability to exert discipline and maintain high artistic standards.

Cincinnatians who heard Munch conduct the Boston Orchestra here, several years ago, marveled at the results.

Mitropoulos created a minor sensation as guest conductor with our orchestra.

Yet the week before the Mitropoulos concert, Thor Johnson conducted a performance of the Shostakovitch Fifth Symphony that was almost as exciting in its own way as the Mitropoulos stint. So it was thought by most listeners.

The final program of our season, in which we heard Brahms' "A German Requiem," was another example of "big league" direction and results. And there were others.

One cannot dismiss a conductor, or anyone else, who is capable of producing outstanding efforts occasionally. The human animal is so constituted that great variation in results in the expected performance, no matter what the occupation.

Conductors and other musicians of eminence are not exempt from humanity in this respect.

★ ★ ★

DISSATISFACTION with "permanent" conductors often is the rule and the greatest conductors are not immune.

There were grumblings about the Toscanini repertory when he was regular conductor of the New York Philharmonic, though admittedly there were few complaints about performance.

Actually, Toscanini and Bruno Walter seem to be just about the only recent conductors of great fame in America who have been able to silence opposition effectively. And Bruno Walter has not been a "permanent" conductor in any one place for a long period.

HOW LONG Reiner will continue to enthrall Chicago remains to be seen. At the moment he has a firm supporter in Claudia Cassidy, critic of the Tribune, who enjoys an influence in Chicago denied to critics elsewhere.

If Miss Cassidy tires of Reiner it is not improbable that his regime will go the way of all conductorial flesh.

Moreover, he is "new" and novelty is important in a conductor. Indeed, this may be the only distinction of a conductor and he may achieve eminence as a consequence.

★ ★ ★

THE IMPORTANCE of novelty in conductors is similar to its importance with tiny children. A small child is captivated by an unexpected piece of dry bread discovered in a corner whereas he will disdain an expensive but familiar toy.

Much audience response to conductors is childlike.

★ ★ ★

ONE PERSON likes a conductor because she thinks he is handsome. Another dislikes him because she finds him ugly. A third dislikes his speaking voice.

Such things can be magnified and often are. To be sure, seasoned music critics and concertgoers who take their music seriously may be expected to arrive at standards of judgment which are not based on the cut of a man's coat.

But I am not now talking about critical response. As far as I know, only Miss Cassidy's tastes, among critics, are important enough to be shared by audiences.

★ ★ ★

GUEST CONDUCTORS may be the answer in situations where the "permanent" conductor enjoys long tenure. The novelty provided by the guest stimulates the orchestra and gives people something to talk about.

I am certain, however, that influential guests, such as Mitropoulos, are expensive to obtain and just as a hostess comes to rue the extraordinary preparations undertaken to snare a famous guest, so the Symphony may be faced with a similar problem.

★ ★

TWO OTHER solutions exist. Fire the conductor every year or so. Get Toscanini or Bruno Walter.

But since I cannot sensibly advocate either "solution" I must admit that the problem of the "permanent" conductor admits of no permanent solution.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 357,463
MAY 1 - 1955

Annual Dana Hall Night at Pops Scheduled for Friday, May 6th

047

On the long list of reservations for Dana Hall school Annual Night at Pops are Dr. and Mrs. Alfred T. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. George J. Johnston, Mrs. Werner Hegemann, Miss Denise Bacon, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick D. Bonner, Dr. and Mrs. David Boyd, Mr. and Mrs. L. Albert Daloz, and many more.

The concert, which benefits the Dana Hall Building Fund, will include violin selections by a guest artist, Hazel Weems. She is a member of the Music Department at the School in Wellesley, and a graduate of the Institute of Musical Art of the Juilliard School of Music. She was formerly a member of the faculty of the Hartford School of Music, and Smith College Summer School of Music.

Mrs. Mark C. Wheeler of Wellesley Hills is chairman of the benefit, and her assistants are Mrs. J. Englebert Dunphy, Mrs. John Farnum, Mrs. Samuel Johnston, Mrs. C. Winslow Lewis Jr., and Mrs. Sturgis Stevens, all of Wellesley. Others working with Mrs. Wheeler are Mrs. Frederick D. Bonner of Weston, Mrs. Robert McDowell of Dover, and Mrs. Ernest Sharaf of Newton.

[36]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 2 - 1955

'TV Blackboard'

Debut Climaxes Channel 2 Drive

By Mary Handy
Staff Writer of The Christian Science Monitor

First telecasts this afternoon by Boston's educational TV station climax three years of vigorous planning and fund raising by hundreds of Massachusetts people.

Their hopes—which at times seemed unrealizable — of a "blackboard in the sky" have come fulfilled. Starting at 5:30 today, Boston's cultural heritage can come into your living room and that of a million and a quarter TV families at the flick of a dial on Channel 2.

Boston has now joined eleven other American cities from Pittsburgh to San Francisco that have operating ETV stations.

Their educational telecasts are within reach of 23 million Americans. This ETV movement—if it continues growing and improving—could well revolutionize the educational systems of our nation.

These stations have got[illegible] under way in the three [illegible] since channels reserved for educators were made available by the Federal Communications Commission.

Twelve more ETV stations are now under construction. Preliminary action is said to be under way in a hundred more communities across the nation.

After much citizen agitation and study by members of the State Legislature, its construction was made possible on April 14, 1953, by the gift of $450,000 from funds established in honor of Edward A. and Lincoln Filene —the 20th Century Fund, the Lincoln and Therese Filene Foundation, and the Filene Fund.

Pledge for this gift came dramatically at a time when it was believed that Channel 2 might be made available to commercial telecasters.

The Fund for Adult Education also gave $50,000. This made $600,000 available to build the new studio and erect the TV tower and antenna.

In April, 1953, the Massachusetts Citizens Committee for Educational Television was also organized. It carried on a fund-raising drive that netted $143,000 for the station. This committee included scores of volunteers in suburbs and towns around Boston who have worked to spread interest and collect dollars for ETV.

It is possible that this committee may be again called on to help raise future operational costs—more than is paid by members of the Lowell Institute Cooperative Broadcasting council.

The new station run by the [illegible] Educational Foundation [illegible] the abilities of a professional staff plus the advice of faculty and educators in leading Boston area schools and educational institutions. It draws primarily, but not exclusively, on the abilities of members of the Lowell Institute Cooperative Broadcasting Council.

Council members are: Lowell Institute, Boston College, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Boston University, Brandeis University, Harvard University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston Museum of Fine Arts, New England Conservatory of Music, Northeastern University, and Tufts University.

Other stories and pictures: Page 5.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Journal (e)
MERIDEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 7,861

MAY 3 - 1955

Dickson To Conduct Boston Orchestra

Boston, May 3 (UP) — The 70th anniversary season of the Boston Pops concerts begins tonight but the principal figure will be absent for the first time in 26 years.

Harry Ellis Dickson will conduct the orchestra in place of Arthur Fiedler who is recuperating from surgery. Fiedler never before has missed an opening night on the podium.

Dickson, a violinist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is a long time friend of Fiedler and has guest - conducted the Pops in the past.

The initial program will feature the Boston debut of California pianist Ozan Marsh in Liszt's "Dance of Death."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Enterprise & Times (e)
BROCKTON, Mass.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 40,923

MAY 3 - 1955

Boston Pops Concert Season Begins Tonight

BOSTON.—(UP)—The 70th anniversary season of the Boston Pops Concerts begins tonight but the principal figure will be absent for the first time in 26 years. Harry Ellis Dickson will conduct the orchestra in place of Arthur Fiedler who is recuperating from surgery. Fiedler never before has missed an opening night on the podium.

Dickson, a violinist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is a long-time friend of Fiedler and has guest-conducted the Pops in the past.

The initial program will feature the Boston debut of California pianist Ozan Marsh in Liszt's "Dance of Death."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

News-Tribune (e)
WALTHAM, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 13,413

MAY 2 - 1955

Wellesley Alumnae Reserve for Pops

A distinguished list of patronesses have reserved tables for Wellesley Night at Pops, Saturday, May 14, at which time the talented Wellesley alumna, Elsie Sears of Brookline, and Irene Dubois of the New England Conservatory will play the Mozart Concerto in E flat for Two Pianos and Orchestra with Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops in Symphony Hall.

Patronesses include Mrs. Howard Gambrill Jr. and Mrs. Theodore G. Patterson of Weston, and Mrs. Nathaniel P. Brackett of Waltham.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-42

Bulletin (e)
PROVIDENCE, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 144,073

MAY 3 - 1955

Fiedler to Miss Pops' Opening

Boston — (UP) — The 70th anniversary season of the Boston Pops concerts begins tonight but the principal figure will be absent for the first time in 26 years.

Harry Ellis Dickson will conduct the orchestra in place of Arthur Fiedler who is recuperating from surgery. Fiedler never before has missed an opening night on the podium.

Dickson, a violinist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is a long-time friend of Fiedler and has guest-conducted the Pops in the past.

The initial program will feature the Boston debut of California pianist Ozan Marsh in Liszt's "Dance of Death."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Standard-Times (e)
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 58,894

MAY 3 - 1955

Pops Season Opens

BOSTON, May 3 (UP) — The 70th season of Boston Pops concerts begins tonight, but the principal figure will be absent for the first time in 26 years. Harry Ellis Dickson will conduct the orchestra in place of Arthur Fiedler, who is recuperating from surgery.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Gazette (e)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 101,022

MAY 3 - 1955

PEOPLE in the NEWS

Pops Concerts Open Tonight

BOSTON, May 3 (UP)—The 70th anniversary season of the Boston Pops Concerts begins tonight but the principal figure will be absent for the first time in 26 years.

A. Fiedler

Harry Ellis Dickson will conduct the orchestra in place of Arthur Fiedler, who is recuperating from surgery. Fiedler never before has missed an opening night on the podium.

Dickson, a violinist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is a long-time friend of Fiedler and has guest-conducted the Pops in the past.

The initial program will feature the Boston debut of California pianist Ozan Marsh in Liszt's "Dance of Death."

HAZLETON, PA.
STANDARD-SENTINEL
Circ. D. 7,782

MAY 3 1955

Boston Pops Orchestra To Highlight Concert Season

Hazleton Community Concert officials announced that Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra have been secured as the feature attraction of the 1955-56 series of concerts. In addition, members who joined the association during this year's highly successful membership campaign will hear three other outstanding performances by leading artists.

The Boston Pops, composed of players from the famous Boston Symphony Orchestra, is known to everyone through its long and impressive list of recordings for RCA Victor as well as by its numerous radio and television appearances.

During the late spring and summer the Pops Orchestra takes over Boston's staid Symphony Hall and lighter, more familiar music replaces the winter's repertoire.

Last season for the first time music lovers were able to hear the Pops outside of Boston when the group made its first grand tour of the United States. Everywhere the Pops appeared they were met with not only high critical acclaim but with the thanks of their audiences and critics for the entertainment and brilliance of the programs.

So popular is this orchestra that one of their recordings was the first RCA Victor Red Seal record by an orchestra to win the coveted gold record award for passing the one million sales mark. In a recent list of RCA Victor's "101 Best Sellers of All Time" the Boston Pops scored with 16 recordings, more than twice as many as any other artist.

Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops will appear here at 8:45 p. m. on January 4, 1956, two days after opening their new transcontinental tour in New York. Hazleton has the distinction of being one of the three Pennsylvania cities the orchestra will visit.

The Hazleton Community Concert season will open on October 24 with a performance by the brilliant new Metropolitan Opera soprano, Heidi Krall.

Described as "a new young singer of tremendous impact", Heidi Krall won fame in Carlo-Menotti's "The Consul" in both its New York and London runs. She subsequently won the Metropolitan Opera Auditions of the Air and in 1953 made her Metropolitan debut in Bizet's "Carmen." She was greeted with enthusiastic acclaim and a fine succession of roles followed.

On November 21, Community Concert members will hear a unique attraction in The Song Masters, male quartet, with Helena Kaprielian as accompanist.

This vigorous new group which has achieved distinction for its perfection of ensemble singing, is composed of four artists, each of whom is an artist in his own right. The Song Masters offer a program of wide variety and popular appeal. Their repertoire includes classics sacred songs and spirituals, folk songs and Lieder, ballads and sea chanteys, medleys and popular tunes. Many of their arrangements have been created expressly for them.

The final concert of the series will be heard on March 24, 1956, when Ernest and Miles Mauney, twin duo-pianists, will appear.

These brilliant young artists have the rare distinction of being identical twins, a circumstance which, as many critics have noted, may account for their unusual unity of performance.

For the past several seasons the Mauney Twins appeared with orchestra and in recital in the east, the south and in Canada.

Due to the large membership of the association, other organizations now planning their fall and winter programs are asked to make note of these dates.

All concerts are held in the Hazleton Senior High School auditorium and are open to members only. Admission is by membership card and no tickets are sold at the door.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Messenger (e)
NORWOOD, Mass.
Bi-Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,650

MAY 3 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At "Pops"

Members and friends of Samoset Chapter No. 109, Order of the Eastern Star, will be welcomed by Mrs. Florence Flower, W. M. at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, Thursday, May 26.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16th, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O. E. S., for the evening of May 26. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-0068

The Crusader
WILMINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Part.
Circ. 1,550

MAY - 1955

EASTERN STAR NIGHT AT "POPS"

Members and friends of Acacia Chapter No. 80 Order of the Eastern Star will be welcomed by Mrs. Barbara Goodpaster, W.M. at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, Thursday May 26, 1955.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16th, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Call (e)
WOONSOCKET, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 25,407

MAY 3 - 1955

Area Views Bow Of Educational TV

Greater Woonsocket got its first glimpse of educational television last night as WBGH-TV made its debut.

The Boston channel is the first educational station in New England. The Lowell Institute Cooperative Broadcasting Council operates the station on channel 2.

Viewers in this area reported audio reception was "good." Video rated "fair" in the opinion of most persons who reported tuning in the new channel.

The transmitter for the new channel is on Great Blue Hill, Milton, Mass. The transmitter is reportedly capable of beaming its signal to five million people in northern and central Rhode Island, Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire.

Persons as far south as Cranston said reception was "fair."

Channel 2 is a very high frequency outlet requiring no TV set conversion. Taking part in the production of programs are the Lowell Institute, Boston University, Boston College, the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Brandeis University, Harvard University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the Museum of Fine Arts, and Tufts University, and Northeastern University.

Programs are scheduled from 5:30 to 9 p.m. on weekdays until the station has been operating for some time. Complete listing on Channel 2 programs are carried daily in this newspaper.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 4 - 1955

PLAYS TONIGHT—This interested and interesting young pianist is Japanese-Californian Mineko Sasahara, practicing all alone on the stage of Symphony Hall for her Pops appearance tonight in the Second Concerto of Saint-Saens, with Harry Dickson conducting.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 185,401

MAY 4 - 1955

Pops Acclaimed as 70th Season Opens Royally

By PEGGY DOYLE

Along with the department-store windows, the Boston Pops has gone pink. At last night's 70th annual opening of the historic event in Symphony Hall, pink punch was the favorite refreshment.

The favorite music? Whatever was being played at the moment, and it was ever thus. Be it Sibelius' "Finlandia," Cole Porter's "Can-Can" score or TViana, there seemed not to be a dissenting hand in the enthusiastically applauding capacity audience.

And this was a tribute to Cambridge-born Harry Ellid Dickson, violinist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who is conducting until the convalescing Arthur Fiedler is sufficiently well to take up the baton again in this 26th year of his stewardship as conductor.

Mrs. Dickson, appearing quietly pleased if understandably intent at a nearby table, couldn't have been more elated over the pinch-hitting conductor's heart-warming reception than was Clement Lenom, former conductor of the Pops, one-time first oboe with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and one of the great solfege teachers in this country.

"Harry's sky is very high," was the distinguished, 90-year-old teacher's comment anent his favorite New England Conservatory of Music pupil's able performance last night. "Harry will go very far."

The audience was as varied as the program. There were older couples making a very handsome appearance in dinner clothes and there were young people of college age, foursomes usually, in casual sweaters and skirts or sports jackets and slacks.

Heard last night were Weber's Overture to "Der Freischutz," "Clair de Lune" by Debussy, the Strauss waltzes, "Voices of Spring"; Bizet's Suite from "Carmen," Leroy Anderson's Bugler's Holiday and Sousa's ringing march, "The Stars and Stripes Forever."

Ozan Marsh was the soloist. His "Toccatina for Piano and Orchestra" [illegible] stopped the sho.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 4 - 1955

Fiedler Missing

By A. E. Wa

Belated spring should realize now that it has to get on the ball because Boston's Pops premiered last night, for the 70th time, at Symphony hall. Missing were some familiar Pops first nighters, notably Arthur Fiedler, who is convalescing after an operation.

Conducting in his place was Harry Ellis Dickson, Symphony Orchestra violinist, who has been a guest conductor in the past. Mr. Dickson was quite at home with his musicians and his baton. The orchestra, about 80 strong, swung into the cadence and sprightly melody of lighter music as if it had been rehearsing

Bost
four Sym laun cust
com or com
the on.
O feat
the cisc exa cert enjc

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 4 - 1955

(Globe Photo by Laurence Welsh)

AT POPS LAST NIGHT—Clement Lenom (left) chats with conductor Harry Ellis Dickson.

Dickson Gets Pops Season to Brisk, Fiedler-ish Start

By CYRUS DURGIN

The 70th season of Pops began at Symphony Hall last night, but with a difference. Arthur Fiedler wasn't there. For the first time since he assumed conductorship of the Pops in 1930, the debonair maestro was not in command on the flower-banked stand upon an opening night. He was at home recovering from surgery that will keep him from his music for still a few more weeks.

But Mr. Fiedler's mind was upon orchestra, audience and the gay scene that the beginning of each new Pops season presents. To Harry Ellis Dickson, who will conduct until he returns, Mr. Fiedler sent a friendly telegram: "You have all my good wishes for a fine opening. My thanks for everything."

Even though, as I heard it said in the lobby: "It isn't the same without him," this Pops opening was in the familiar Fiedler style. The program was a Fiedler sort of program, and it was played in much the brisk, precise Fiedler way.

Vive Les Gals

After the foul weather of the week past, it was very pleasant that the Pops had a fine, warm evening to begin, when cute young gals could come in with a light stole or a fur wrap over low-cut evening gowns that left their shoulders bare. A casual look about the premises indicated more festive dress on the part of women than men, although you could spot a black tie and dinner jacket here and there.

Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance" March started the musical proceedings, followed by Weber's Overture to "Der Freischuetz," Debussy's "Clair de Lune" and the Strauss Waltz, "Voices of Spring." Mr. Dickson, a member of the first violins of the Boston Symphony and Pops orchestra, was not a stranger, as he lifted his baton to start. A friend and colleague of Arthur Fiedler, he had, numerous times, been invited by Mr. Fiedler to conduct a Pops or an Esplanade concert.

There is no side, no nonsense about Mr. Dickson's conducting. A practical orchestra man, who himself has played for many conductors, he sets the tempo, beats the time, indicates the volume and occasionally the nuances. The orchestra knows him and he knows the orchestra. All, therefore goes in safe, accustomed course.

Pianist Warmly Received

The first soloist of the season was Ozan Marsh, a California pianist who, say the records, was making his first appearance in Boston. He elected to play Liszt's "Dance of Death," a virtuoso show piece with much glitter and grandiloquenoce, and some real music. Mr. Marsh is a player of big technique, who can make his instrument thunder and whisper, with a good many shades of color and volume in between. He has a lively sense of rhythm, he can make cromatic scales purl like running water, and he has a feeling for the style of Liszt. Naturally, therefore, Mr. Marsh was very warmly applauded when the work was finished.

Sibilius' "Finlandia," an orchestral suite from the opera "Carmen," tunes from Cole Porter's "Can-Can" music, "Bugler's Holiday" (for which the three trumpets were bidden to rise for a big hand), and Sousa's March, "The Stars and Stripes Forever," with all the brass standing to blare out the final reprise, made the balance of the program.

[illegible] ana," es-
[illegible] at hand very ad-able por-audience
[illegible] t of the associa-
ized also [illegible] ennard's
[illegible] ars And he finale.
the en-
"Sand-nce to

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Messenger (e)
NORWOOD, Mass.
Bi-Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,650

MAY 3 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At "Pops"

Members and friends of Samoset Chapter No. 109, Order of the Eastern Star, will be welcomed by Mrs. Florence Flower, W. M. at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, Thursday, May 26.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16th, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O. E. S., for the evening of May 26. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-0068

The Crusader
WILMINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Part.
Circ. 1,550

MAY 5 - 1955

EASTERN STAR NIGHT AT "POPS"

Members and friends of Acacia Chapter No. 80 Order of the Eastern Star will be welcomed by Mrs. Barbara Goodpaster, W.M. at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, Thursday May 26, 1955.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16th, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts. O.E.S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 4 - 1955

PLAYS TONIGHT—This interested and interesting young pianist is Japanese-Californian Mineko Sasahara, practicing all alone on the stage of Symphony Hall for her Pops appearance tonight in the Second Concerto of Saint-Saens, with Harry Dickson conducting.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 4 - 1955

Fiedler Missing As Pops Premieres 70th

By A. E. Watts.

Belated spring should realize now that it has to get on the ball because Boston's Pops premiered last night, for the 70th time, at Symphony hall. Missing were some familiar Pops first nighters, notably Arthur Fiedler, who is convalescing after an operation.

Conducting in his place was Harry Ellis Dickson, Symphony Orchestra violinist, who has been a guest conductor in the past. Mr. Dickson was quite at home with his musicians and his baton. The orchestra, about 80 strong, swung into the cadence and sprightly melody of lighter music as if it had been rehearsing this sort of music for months.

Pops began in 1885 at the old Boston Music Hall, as "Proms," four years after the Boston Symphony Orchestra was launched. Following a European custom of good music to the accompaniment of food and drink, or food and drink to the accompaniment of good music, the concerts immediately caught on, here.

One of the most attractive features of the Pop concerts is the thorough musicanship. Precison and phrasing are just as exact as in the Symphony concerts. Attending last night and enjoying it hugely was Clement Lenom, Pops conductor 41 years ago.

It has become practically a tradition to open the first night concert with "Pomp and Circumstance," which is never spectacular, but remains a pleasing concert-opener. Weber's Overture to "Der Freischultz" followed. It is a curious mixture with a pleasing flute obligation. Additional accompaniment was furnished last night by the shuffling tap of the feet of late-comers. Debussy's "Clair de Lune" was lovely as always and was beautifully played. Old reliable, the Strauss waltzes concluded the first group. Sibelius' tone poem, "Finlandia," was worth waiting for with its majestic overtones

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 185,401

MAY 4 - 1955

Pops Acclaimed as 70th Season Opens Royally

By PEGGY DOYLE

Along with the department-store windows, the Boston Pops has gone pink. At last night's 70th annual opening of the historic event in Symphony Hall, pink punch was the favorite refreshment.

The favorite music? Whatever was being played at the moment, and it was ever thus. Be it Sibelius' "Finlandia," Cole Porter's "Can-Can" score or TViana, there seemed not to be a dissenting hand in the enthusiastically applauding capacity audience.

And this was a tribute to Cambridge-born Harry Ellid Dickson, violinist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who is conducting until the convalescing Arthur Fiedler is sufficiently well to take up the baton again in this 26th year of his stewardship as conductor.

Mrs. Dickson, appearing quietly pleased if understandably intent at a nearby table, couldn't have been more elated over the pinch-hitting conductor's heart-warming reception than was Clement Lenom, former conductor of the Pops, one-time first oboe with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and one of the great solfege teachers in this country.

"Harry's sky is very high," was the distinguished, 90-year-old teacher's comment anent his favorite New England Conservatory of Music pupil's able performance last night. "Harry will go very far."

The audience was as varied as the program. There were older couples making a very handsome appearance in dinner clothes and there were young people of college age, foursomes usually, in casual sweaters and skirts or sports jackets and slacks.

Heard last night were Weber's Overture to "Der Freischutz," "Clair de Lune" by Debussy, the Strauss waltzes, "Voices of Spring"; Bizet's Suite from "Carmen," Leroy Anderson's Bugler's Holiday and Sousa's ringing march, "The Stars and Stripes Forever."

Ozan Marsh was the soloist. His "Totentanz for Piano and Orchestra" equally stopped the sho.

and with the lilting Aragonaise, Intermezzo and Dragoon and Toreador of "Carmen" following, the concert was in full swing.

Ozan Marsh was the piano soloist in Liszt's "Totentanz," a constant series of crashing crescendos in which the dexterity of the soloist seemed uppermost in the composer's conception. Mr. Marsh's playing was flawless.

In the final group the audience relaxed to Cole Porter "Can-Can" music and Anderson's ever-popular "Bugler's Holiday." Naturally Sousa's "Stars And Stripes Forever" was the finale.

A standout among the encores was Anderson's "Sandpaper Ballet." It was nice to hear the familiar "TViana," especially with a grandson at hand who could translate every advertising melody. A sizeable portion of the first night audience attended for the benefit of the New England Grenfell association and much was realized also from Mrs. Robert Kennard's expert flower sellers.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Call (e)
WOONSOCKET, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 25,407

MAY 3 - 1955

Area Views Bow Of Educational TV

Greater Woonsocket got its first glimpse of educational television last night as WBGH-TV made its debut.

The Boston channel is the first educational station in New England. The Lowell Institute Cooperative Broadcasting Council operates the station on channel 2.

Viewers in this area reported audio reception was "good." Video rated "fair" in the opinion of most persons who reported tuning in the new channel.

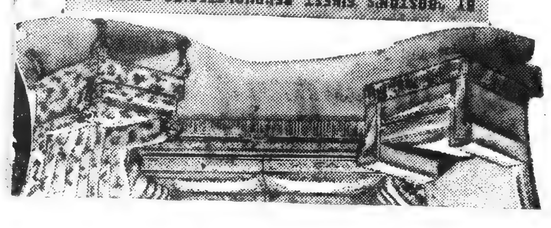
The transmitter for the new channel is on Great Blue Hill, Milton, Mass. The transmitter is reportedly capable of beaming its signal to five million people in northern and central Rhode Island, Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire.

Persons as far south as Cranston said reception was "fair."

Channel 2 is a very high frequency outlet requiring no TV set conversion. Taking part in the production of programs are the Lowell Institute, Boston University, Boston College, the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Brandeis University, Harvard University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the Museum of Fine Arts, and Tufts University, and Northeastern University.

Programs are scheduled from 5:30 to 9 p.m. on weekdays until the station has been operating for some time. Complete listing on Channel 2 programs are carried daily in this newspaper.

REUPHOLSTOM
CUSTOM
BY "BOSTON'S FINEST REUPHOLSTERING FACTORY"



FREE
(For Limited Time Only)

This beautiful footstool given with every 3-piece set reupholstered.

Our representative will call at out obligation. He will show America's finest mills—over tapestries and nylons. Over from—all available up to 50%

We will BUY RUBBER

CALL OUR NEAREST OFFICE
BROCKTON 9410
FITCHBURG 3-8193
TAUNTON 4-9661
LYNN 8-1280
LAWRENCE 3-2439
FRANKINGHAM, CALL TRINITY 6-5298

AVON UPHOLSTERING CO.
17 East Concord St. Boston Ma
Call Day or Night Sunday too
Phone Today
Copley 7-5130

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6. ● RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 4 - 1955

-Opening Night at the Pops

Harry Ellis Dickson conducted the opening concert of the 70th season of the Boston Pops last night in Symphony Hall.

Dickson Conducts Program As Seventieth Season Starts

By Harold Rogers

The Boston Pops programs are 70 years old this season, and the opening program last night had all the usual trimmings except one—Arthur Fiedler. But his recuperation is steady, according to informed sources, and it shouldn't be long before he is in his accustomed place on the Symphony Hall stage.

Meanwhile, Harry Ellis Dickson, a member of the first violin section, has stepped forward at Mr. Fiedler's invitation to take the baton. Mr. Dickson has guided the orchestra on a number of occasions, but last night marked his first opportunity to preside at an opening. His colleagues played their hearts out. With few exceptions the music sounded like Fiedler's. It had the same stamina, fortitude, and acceleration.

Symphony Hall, of course, has changed to spring dress. The walls have doffed their winter maroon for a light green—lighter than usual, it seems. Tables, not all engaged last night, cover the floor. The audience was generally solemn, preferring to listen rather than chat. Conversation is difficult with strong competition from the stage.

* * *

Mr. Dickson opened with a stately performance of Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance" and continued with such favorite items as Weber's Overture to "Der Freischütz," Debussy's "Clair de Lune," and Johann Strauss's "Voices of Spring." One might say that Mr. Dickson's concept of the Viennese waltz is a bit too square, but since square is hardly the right figure to apply to a waltz, perhaps we might say it was too triangular. It wanted more sweep, more lilt, more hesitation, more of a sigh on the third beat.

Ozan Marsh, a young pianist from California, gave an astonishing performance of Liszt's "Totentanz" for Piano and Orchestra. With fingers like trip hammers he dazzled our ears with glaring cascades of sound as he struck off the many variations Liszt fashioned on the Dies Irae.

One could not help being awed by Mr. Marsh's performance. One also wondered just where the dividing line lay between true music and a stunt. Perhaps Mr. Marsh was justified in handling this piece this way, since it is obviously designed for show-off. It is to be hoped that he would not use the same approach for the Beethoven Fourth, for instance, or Franck's Symphonic Variations.

* * *

Mr. Dickson's program also included Sibelius's "Finlandia," a suite from Bizet's "Carmen," and selections from Cole Porter's "Can-Can." He threw in a few extras by the way—"Hora Staccato," "TVanna," and a new one, I think, called "Sandpaper Ballet."

The last-named by Leroy Anderson proved a big hit. Attention was centered on the percussion section where Vic Firth played the tenor sandpaper, Charles Smith the baritone sandpaper, and where Harold Farberman made some kind of a noise on something that sounded like bass sandpaper. These three timbres were handled contrapuntally, polyrhythmically, and perhaps pandiatonically, if one chooses to consider the sandpaper spectrum. The performance was truly ingratiating, though one can hardly ignore the fact that it was a bit rough.

After Mr. Dickson concluded with a rousing performance of Sousa's "The Stars and Stripes Forever" (with the Trio a bit too fast), he was called several times to acknowledge the enthusiastic applause. When he left the stage for the last time his colleagues made a tunnel with their bows, using them as swords in military fashion.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 4 - 1955

MUSIC

The Pops 047

The Boston Pops entered its 70th season in Symphony Hall last night with about 90 members of the Boston Symphony orchestra conducted by Harry Ellis Dickson. The soloist was Ozab Marsh. The program:

PROGRAM

Pomp and Circumstance.....Elgar
Overture to "Der Freischutz"...Weber
Claire de Lune.....Debussy
Voices of Spring, Waltzes.....Strauss

* * *

Finlandia, Tone Poem.....Sibelius
Suite from "Carmen".....Bizet
Totentanz for Piano and Orchestra.....Liszt

* * *

Selection from "Can-Can".....Porter
Bugler's Holiday.....Anderson
The Stars and Stripes Forever, March.....Sousa

By RUDOLPH ELIE

Everything was there last night as the Pops entered their 70th season: the bank of gladioli on the stage, the flags flanking either side, the bright green walls, the tables with their captive chairs, the popping of corks, the happy clamor, the attractive, festive crowd—

But everyone was not there, for Arthur Fiedler, conductor of this unique institution, missed the opening concert for the first time in the 26 years of his reign, missed it because of a minor operation of a fortnight ago. He is happily now convalescing at home and will be back at his familiar post presently, and if it may be said the Pops was not quite the Pops without him last night the view is largely sentimental.

For in his place was Harry Ellis Dickson, a first violinist of the orchestra one often a guest Pops conductor in previous seasons, and clearly a very gifted leader whose clarity of intention and straightforward approach conceals a compelling leadership at once exact and inspiring. And before him was the Pops orchestra itself, as knowing and as reliable a group of musicians as ever was assembled in the name of musical entertainment.

The program last night was as typical of the Pops as could be imagined: there wasn't a dull moment for anyone. "Pomp and Circumstance" contrasted with "Claire de Lune," "Finlandia" with a suite from "Carmen" and all interspersed with such bonuses as "Hora Staccato" and Morton Gould's attractive new novelty "Crinoline and Lace."

The major offering of the evening was Liszt's bombastic variations on the Dies Irae and it was especially notable for the debut in Boston of a youthful pianist by the name of Ozan Marsh. I always hesitate to say much about a pianist until I have heard him in the quite different atmosphere of the solo recital, but I must say this young man impressed me as having—aside from the prodigious technique so characteristic of the day—a musical temperament of a fresh and vital quality, informed at once with a keen sensitivity and a bravure springing more from an inner urge than from mere technical proficiency. I'd like to hear him again in something a little more distinguished but he did, in fact, make a weary piece seem pretty lustrous. He was splendidly accompanied, too, by Mr. Dickson and the orchestra.

For the rest it was all good fun: a "Can-Can" medley, a new Anderson novelty and good old Sousa for a finale. Once again it is pleasant to reflect on the singularly beautiful trumpet playing of the incomparable Armando Ghitala, the flute playing of James Pappoutsakis and, in fact, the evergreen attitude of the whole orchestra which, after 28 weeks of a most arduous symphony season, comes out to do things that must weary it to death as if it were thoroughly enjoying itself. But that, after all, is what makes the Pops pop. —and they certainly did last night.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Independent
BRIDGEWATER, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 1073

MAY 5 - 1955

May 26 OES Night At Pops Concert

Members and friends of Bridgewater Chapter No. 173 and Sachem Rock Chapter No. 140, Order of the Eastern Star, will be welcomed by Mrs. Anna G. Brush, W.M., and Mrs. Helen Bouldry, W.M., at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, Thursday, May 26. The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16th by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Roxbury Citizen
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 19,000 Free

MAY 5 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At "Pops"

Members and friends of Blue Hills Chapter No. 53, Order of the Eastern Star, will be welcomed by Mrs. Louise Myntti, W.M. at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston on Thursday, May 26.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16 by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening of May 26.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-0068

Herald
WINCHESTER, Mass.
Weekly Independent

MAY 6 - 1955

Invited To Attend Pops At Symphony

No beginning chester Chapter No. 175 Order of the Eastern Star will be welcomed by Miss Marguerite Troop, H. M. at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston Thursday, May 26. 047

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening of May 26. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 4 - 1955

Dickson Opens Pops Season in Fiedler Tradition

By CYRUS DURGIN

The 70th season of Pops began at Symphony Hall last night, but with a difference. Arthur Fiedler wasn't there. For the first time since he assumed conductorship of the Pops in 1930, the debonair maestro was not in command on the flower-banked stand upon an opening night. He was at home recovering from surgery that will keep him from his music for still a few more weeks.

POPS
Page Seven

(Globe Photo by Laurence Welsh)

AT POPS LAST NIGHT—Clement Lenom (left) chats with conductor Harry Ellis Dickson.

POPS

Continued from the First Page

But Mr. Fiedler's mind was upon orchestra, audience and the gay scene that the beginning of each new Pops season presents. To Harry Ellis Dickson, who will conduct until he returns, Mr. Fiedler sent a friendly telegram: "You have all my good wishes for a fine opening. My thanks for everything."

Even though, as I heard it said in the lobby: "It isn't the same without him," this Pops opening was in the familiar Fiedler style. The program was a Fiedler sort of program, and it was played in much the brisk, precise Fiedler way. And as has been the rule most of the time in the past quarter-century, the hall was nearly filled by a pleased and markedly cordial audience.

Over the week-end, since the end of the Boston Symphony season on Saturday night, the rows of seats upon the floor of Symphony Hall had been replaced by the small tables-with-chairs-chained-to-them, and the red lower walls had been washed over with their usual Spring-time green. Waitresses stood ready to bring you wine, beer, or Pops punch; sandwiches, candy or other munchables. And as often has been the case, a section of the hall had been taken by members of the New England Grenfell Association.

Vive Les Gals

After the foul weather of the week past, it was very pleasant that the Pops had a fine, warm evening to begin, when cute young gals could come in with a light stole or a fur wrap over low-cut evening gowns that left their shoulders bare. A casual look about the premises indicated more festive dress on the part of women than men, although you could spot a black tie and dinner jacket here and there.

Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance" March started the musical proceedings, followed by Weber's Overture to "Der Freischuetz," Debussy's "Clair de Lune" and the Strauss Waltz, "Voices of Spring." Mr. Dickson, a member of the first violins of the Boston Symphony and Pops orchestra, was not a stranger, as he lifted his baton to start. A friend and colleague of Arthur Fiedler, he had, numerous times, been invited by Mr. Fiedler to conduct a Pops or an Esplanade concert.

There is no side, no nonsense about Mr. Dickson's conducting. A practical orchestra man, who himself has played for many conductors, he sets the tempo, beats the time, indicates the volume and occasionally the nuances. The orchestra knows him and he knows the orchestra. All, therefore goes in safe, accustomed course.

Pianist Warmly Received

The first soloist of the season was Ozan Marsh, a California pianist who, say the records, was making his first appearance in Boston. He elected to play Liszt's "Dance of Death," a virtuoso show piece with much glitter and grandiloquenoce, and some real music. Mr. Marsh is a player of big technique, who can make his instrument thunder and whisper, with a good many shades of color and volume in between. He has a lively sense of rhythm, he can make cromatic scales purl like running water, and he has a feeling for the style of Liszt. Naturally, therefore, Mr. Marsh was very warmly applauded when the work was finished.

Sibilius' "Finlandia," an orchestral suite from the opera "Carmen," tunes from Cole Porter's "Can-Can" music, "Bugler's Holiday" (for which the three trumpets were bidden to rise for a big hand), and Sousa's March, "The Stars and Stripes Forever," with all the brass standing to blare out the final reprise, made the balance of the program.

Of course, the encores were plentiful, as always, and were announced in the customary silent fashion by a man at the rear of the orchestra, who held up a big black-lettered placard giving the title of the number of the moment. These included "Crinoline and Old Lace," which was pleasant, and "TV-iana," that favorite which invariably gets a noisy hand.

Before many weeks are past, we all hope, Mr. Fiedler will be back where he belongs, and everyone will be glad that he is well again. Meanwhile, his Pops are in good hands.

Traveler Bows After Bow Work May 5

(Traveler Staff Photo by Calvin Campbell)

FAMOUS VIOLINIST Jack Benny bows to the crowd at Symphony Hall after guest appearance with the Pops Orchestra. He holds pot of flowers presented for performance. Comedian showed audience he can play a serious fiddle when he wants to.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Dorchester Argus-News
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 27,000

MAY 5 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At "Pops" May 26th

Members and friends of local chapters of the Order of the Eastern Star will attend the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops, in Symphony Hall Thursday, May 26.

Groups from this area planning for the event are Wenona Chapter No. 59, Reliance Chapter No. 62, Hadassah Chapter No. 113, Sabbatia Chapter No. 124, and Roxbury Chapter No. 56.

The floor and first balcony of Symphony Hall have been reserved until May 16th, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O. E. S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Times (e)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 109,680

MAY 5 - 1955

* * *

Miss Lois Ann Bennett, daughter of Earl D. Bennett of Church St., Wethersfield, a member of the Colby Junior Glee Club, will sing with the club Sunday evening in a concert with the Boston Pops Orchestra, in Symphony Hall, Boston. Miss Bennett was a member of a group of twenty-four singers, that recently sang in concert with the Dartmouth College Glee Club, at Hanover, N. H.

* * *

...son of

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Mattapan Tribune
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 8,500

MAY 5 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At "Pops"

Members and friends of Blue Hills Chapter No. 53, Order of the Eastern Star, will be welcomed by Mrs. Louise Myntti, W.M. at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston on Thursday, May 26.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16 by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening of May 26.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Minute Man
LEXINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4669

MAY 5 - 1955

Hazel Weems Soloist

Hazel Weems, violinist, will be the soloist at Dana Hall Night at the Boston Pops at Symphony Hall tomorrow. She will be heard playing the Adagio and Finale from the Bruch Concerto in G Minor.

At the present time Mrs. Weems is the teacher of violin at Dana Hall School in Wellesley, and has private pupils in Lexington.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Standard
ROCKLAND, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 1,800

MAY 5 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At "Pops" May 26

Members and friends of Hatherly Chapter No. 185 Order of the Eastern Star will be welcomed by Mrs. Mary Louise Daly, W.M. at the Annual Eastern Star nights at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, Thursday, May 26, 1955.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

[40]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Globe
N, Mass.
Independent
122,000
MAY 4 - 1955

(Globe Photo by Laurence Welsh)

AT POPS LAST NIGHT—Clement Lenom (left) chats with conductor Harry Ellis Dickson.

POPS

Continued from the First Page

But Mr. Fiedler's mind was upon orchestra, audience and the gay scene that the beginning of each new Pops season presents. To Harry Ellis Dickson, who will conduct until he returns, Mr. Fiedler sent a friendly telegram: "You have all my good wishes for a fine opening. My thanks for everything."

Even though, as I heard it said in the lobby: "It isn't the same without him," this Pops opening was in the familiar Fiedler style. The program was a Fiedler sort of program, and it was played in much the brisk, precise Fiedler way. And as has been the rule most of the time in the past quarter-century, the hall was nearly filled by a pleased and markedly cordial audience.

Over the week-end, since the end of the Boston Symphony season on Saturday night, the rows of seats upon the floor of Symphony Hall had been replaced by the small tables-with-chairs-chained-to-them, and the red lower walls had been washed over with their usual Spring-time green. Waitresses stood ready to bring you wine, beer, or Pops punch; sandwiches, candy or other munchables. And as often has been the case, a section of the hall had been taken by members of the New England Grenfell Association.

Vive Les Gals

After the foul weather of the week past, it was very pleasant that the Pops had a fine, warm evening to begin, when cute young gals could come in with a light stole or a fur wrap over low-cut evening gowns that left their shoulders bare. A casual look about the premises indicated more festive dress on the part of women than men, although you could spot a black tie and dinner jacket here and there.

Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance" March started the musical proceedings, followed by Weber's Overture to "Der Freischuetz," Debussy's "Clair de Lune" and the Strauss Waltz, "Voices of Spring." Mr. Dickson, a member of the first violins of the Boston Symphony and Pops orchestra, was not a stranger, as he lifted his baton to start. A friend and colleague of Arthur Fiedler, he had, numerous times, been invited by Mr. Fiedler to conduct a Pops or an Esplanade concert.

There is no side, no nonsense about Mr. Dickson's conducting. A practical orchestra man, who himself has played for many conductors, he sets the tempo, beats the time, indicates the volume and occasionally the nuances. The orchestra knows him and he knows the orchestra. All, therefore goes in safe, accustomed course.

Pianist Warmly Received

The first soloist of the season was Ozan Marsh, a California pianist who, say the records, was making his first appearance in Boston. He elected to play Liszt's "Dance of Death," a virtuoso show piece with much glitter and grandiloquence, and some real music. Mr. Marsh is a player of big technique, who can make his instrument thunder and whisper, with a good many shades of color and volume in between. He has a lively sense of rhythm, he can make cromatic scales purl like running water, and he has a feeling for the style of Liszt. Naturally, therefore, Mr. Marsh was very warmly applauded when the work was finished.

Sibilius' "Finlandia," an orchestral suite from the opera "Carmen," tunes from Cole Porter's "Can-Can" music, "Bugler's Holiday" (for which the three trumpets were bidden to rise for a big hand), and Sousa's March, "The Stars and Stripes Forever," with all the brass standing to blare out the final reprise, made the balance of the program.

Of course, the encores were plentiful, as always, and were announced in the customary silent fashion by a man at the rear of the orchestra, who held up a big black-lettered placard giving the title of the number of the moment. These included "Crinoline and Old Lace," which was pleasant, and "TV-iana," that favorite which invariably gets a noisy hand.

Before many weeks are past, we all hope, Mr. Fiedler will be back where he belongs, and everyone will be glad that he is well again. Meanwhile, his Pops are in good hands.

Traveler Bows After Bow Work May 5

(Traveler Staff Photo by Calvin Campbell)

FAMOUS VIOLINIST Jack Benny bows to the crowd at Symphony Hall after guest appearance with the Pops Orchestra. He holds pot of flowers presented for performance. Comedian showed audience he can play a serious fiddle when he wants to.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Dorchester Argus-News
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 27,000
MAY 5 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At "Pops" May 26th

Members and friends of local chapters of the Order of the Eastern Star will attend the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops, in Symphony Hall Thursday, May 26.

Groups from this area planning for the event are Wenona Chapter No. 59, Reliance Chapter No. 62, Hadassah Chapter No. 113, Sabbatia Chapter No. 124, and Roxbury Chapter No. 56.

The floor and first balcony of Symphony Hall have been reserved until May 16th, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O. E. S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Times (e)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 109,680
MAY 5 - 1955

* * *

Miss Lois Ann Bennett, daughter of Earl D. Bennett of Church St., Wethersfield, a member of the Colby Junior Glee Club, will sing with the club Sunday evening in a concert with the Boston Pops Orchestra, in Symphony Hall, Boston. Miss Bennett was a member of a group of twenty-four singers, that recently sang in concert with the Dartmouth College Glee Club, at Hanover, N. H.

* * * ...son of [40]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Mattapan Tribune
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 8,500
MAY 5 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At "Pops"

Members and friends of Blue Hills Chapter No. 53, Order of the Eastern Star, will be welcomed by Mrs. Louise Myntti, W.M. at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston on Thursday, May 26.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16 by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening of May 26.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Minute Man
LEXINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4669
MAY 5 - 1955

Hazel Weems Soloist

Hazel Weems, violinist, will be the soloist at Dana Hall Night at the Boston Pops at Symphony Hall tomorrow. She will be heard playing the Adagio and Finale from the Bruch Concerto in G Minor.

At the present time Mrs. Weems is the teacher of violin at Dana Hall School in Wellesley, and has private pupils in Lexington.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Standard
ROCKLAND, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 1,800
MAY 5 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At "Pops" May 26

Members and friends of Hatherly Chapter No. 185 Order of the Eastern Star will be welcomed by Mrs. Mary Louise Daly, W.M. at the Annual Eastern Star nights at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, Thursday, May 26, 1955.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 27,538

MAY 5 - 1955

Benny Finally Plays Entire Violin Solo— With Boston Pops

BOSTON (UP) — An unannounced soloist was the hit of Wednesday night's Boston Pops concert.

Comedian Jack Benny did what he always starts to do and never finishes on radio and television—he played a violin solo.

The capacity crowd of 2,500 and the 90 Boston Symphony players roundly cheered the 39-year-old star's performance of Monti's Czardas, a Hungarian dance piece.

Conductor Harry Ellis Dickson and the orchestra applauded the "soloist" and the audience guffawed as Benny wryly stuck out his tongue as if to say, "I told you so!"

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

News (e)
FRAMINGHAM, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 10,441

MAY 5 - 1955

S.T.C. Alumnae Pops Concert

The Massachusetts State Teachers College Alumni Federation will sponsor a pops concert and the Lowell Teachers college choir at Symphony hall, Boston on May 27. Alumni and other interested in obtaining tickets may purchase them from Miss Helen Spooner, 70 Speen street, Natick.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Enterprise (e)
MARLBORO, Mass.
Indep. Republican
Circ. 5,285

MAY 5 - 1955

JACK BENNY PLAYED IN POPS CONCERT

Comedian Gave Violin Solo Last Night In Boston Music Hall

Boston (UP) — An unannounced soloist was the hit of Wednesday night's Boston Pops concert.

Comedian Jack Benny did what he always starts to do and never finishes on radio and television — he played a violin solo.

The capacity crowd of 2,500 and the 90 Boston Symphony players roundly cheered the 39-year-old star's performance of Monti's Czardas, a Hungarian dance piece.

Benny imitated the mannerisms of several well-known violinists, then nonchalantly dashed off the Monti piece.

Conductor Harry Ellis Dickson and the orchestra applauded the "soloist' 'and the audience guffawed as Benny wryly stuck out his tongue as if to say, "I told you so!"

Benny arrived here Wednesday. Tonight, he will receive a citation from the Massachusetts Committee of Catholics, Protestants and Jews.

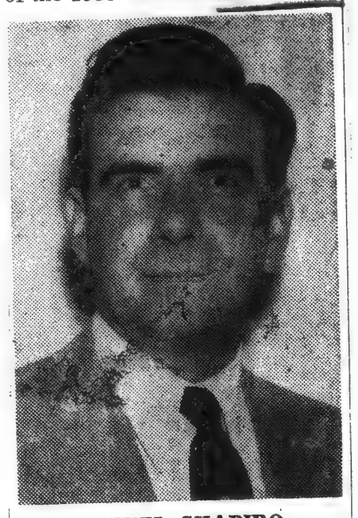
New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

MAY 5 - 1955

Samuel Shapiro Heads Israel Night at Pops

Samuel D. Shapiro of Brookline has been named chairman of the 1955 Israel Night at Pops



SAMUEL SHAPIRO

Committee by the board of directors of the Greater Boston Israel Histadrut Committee.

Mr. Shapiro has undertaken the responsibility of supervising this annual concert which will take place Thursday evening, June 16, at Symphony Hall in Boston. The concert, which has become a tradition since its establishment over 15 years ago, features the music of the Boston Pops Orchestra under the direction of Arthur Fiedler and a guest artist.

Mr. Shapiro, who is currently the secretary of the Greater Boston Israel Histadrut Committee, has also served as its associate treasurer and as president of the Friends of Histadrut. He has served as president of the Temple Kadimah Brotherhood, as a member of the Brandeis Associates, the B'nai B'rith and many other communal organizations.

Assisting Mr. Shapiro will be a concert committee headed by the honorary chairman, Oscar Sterman. Mr. Sterman, who is also honorary chairman of the Campaign Committee, is one of the veteran leaders not only of the Histadrut Campaign, but also of the Combined Jewish Appeal, Israel Bond Drive and a score of other community philanthropies and organizations.

The funds received from this concert will be allocated as in the past years to the medical work conducted by the Histadrut, Israel's pioneering organization, through its own health system, Kupat Holim. Kupat Holim today provides health facilities for over 900,000 Israelis and, in particular, every new immigrant to the Jewish State.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Chronicle
NEEDHAM, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4824

MAY 5 - 1955

Needhamites To Attend Eastern Star Pops Night

Members and friends of Wistaria Chapter No. 188, Order of the Eastern Star, will be welcomed by Mrs. Janet Lyons, worthy matron, at the annual Eastern Star night at the Pops, Symphony Hall, Boston, on Thursday, May 26.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16th by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sun (e)
HUDSON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 1,965

MAY 5 - 1955

JACK BENNY PLAYED IN POPS CONCERT

Comedian Gave Violin Solo Last Night In Boston Music Hall

Boston (UP) — An unannounced soloist was the hit of Wednesday night's Boston Pops concert.

Comedian Jack Benny did what he always starts to do and never finishes on radio and television — he played a violin solo.

The capacity crowd of 2,500 and the 90 Boston Symphony players roundly cheered the 39-year-old star's performance of Monti's Czardas, a Hungarian dance piece.

Benny imitated the mannerisms of several well-known violinists, then nonchalantly dashed off the Monti piece.

Conductor Harry Ellis Dickson and the orchestra applauded the "soloist' 'and the audience guffawed as Benny wryly stuck out his tongue as if to say, "I told you so!"

Benny arrived here Wednesday. Tonight, he will receive a citation from the Massachusetts Committee of Catholics, Protestants and Jews.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Graphic
NEWTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 9,879

MAY 5 - 1955

Newtonians

A long and distinguished list of patronesses have reserved tables for Wellesley Night at Pops, Saturday, May 14. Patronesses from the Newtons include Mrs. Edward A. Caredis, Mrs. Russell A. Cox, Mrs. John E. Eaton, Jr., Mrs. Harold Goldberg, Mrs. Joseph B. Jamieson, Mrs. T. Edson Jewell, Jr., Mrs. Clive W. Lacy, Mrs. Robert H. Loomis, Mrs. George H. Lusk, Mrs. John P. Rattigan, Mrs. William F. Ray, Mrs. Isaac G. Swope and Miss M. Louise Walworth of Newton Centre; Mrs. Paul Myerson, Mrs. Percy L. Nelson, Mrs. Neil W. Swinton and Mrs. Edward T. Uehlein of Waban; Mrs. Benjamin W. Pepper of Auburndale; Mrs. Robert C. Foster and Mrs. Willis C. Pattison of Newtonville; Mrs. Leonard T. Jenney of Newton Highlands and Miss Nancy MacMillan and Mrs. Carl J. Shapiro of West Newton.

[41]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

MAY 5 - 1955

PLANNING POPS NIGHT—Arranging for Temple Mishkan Tefila's annual Pops concert scheduled for Symphony Hall May 23 are, left to right: Mmes. Harry L. Lavine, Leon Miller and David Feldman, members of the Sisterhood. Arthur Fiedler will conduct. The committee, in addition to the three women above includes: Jean Paul Weinstein of Belmont, general chairman; George M. Levy of Newton, publicity director and Forum group; Alvin Koppel and Joseph Lassoff of the Brotherhood; Morris Markson, Young People's League; and Arnold Borofsky, USY.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Gazette (e)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 101,022

MAY 5 - 1955

Boston Audience Cheers Guest Soloist

BOSTON, May 5 (UP)—An unannounced soloist was the hit of Wednesday night's Boston Pops Concert.

Comedian Jack Benny did what he always starts to do and never finishes on radio and television—he played a violin solo.

J. Benny

The capacity crowd of 2500 and the 90 Boston Symphony players roundly cheered his performance of Monti's Czardas, a Hungarian dance piece.

Benny imitated the mannerisms of several well-known violinists, then nonchalantly dashed off the Monti piece.

Conductor Harry Ellis Dickson and the orchestra applauded the "soloist" and the audience guffawed as Benny wryly stuck out his tongue as if to say, "I told you so!"

Tonight, he will receive a citation from the Massachusetts Committee of Catholics, Protestants and Jews.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068

Times (e)
GLOUCESTER, Mass.
Ind. Republican
Circ. 8,580

TV, FM and U. and I

Cape Ann was quick to take up television—at least that's the way it seemed to us years back, when the first TV show was received here. Radio dealers had sets in their show windows so people could stand on the sidewalk and marvel at the pictures.

Since then many have graduated to larger and larger screens. Antennas have sprouted in all sorts of sizes and shapes. And color is just around the corner—or should we say just over the horizon.

The latest development in television is bound to provide enjoyment for some viewers, including an assortment of people who have not yet succumbed to the lure of the TV set. We refer to educational TV, as presented on Channel 2 by WGBH-TV. Some may think it dull to have college lectures and demonstrations pictured. Others will be glad to have food for thought in this form. And as the station expands its program, now limited to 5.30 p.m. and through the evening, more and more worthwhile shows will be provided.

A key to the character of educational TV is the FM programming of Station WGBH, with studio at Symphony Hall, Boston. It excels in music, notably live broadcasts of the Boston Symphony. It goes in for stimulating discussions, too. Both Boston FM and Boston TV—actually, the educational TV originates in Cambridge, in a studio on the campus of M.I.T.—reflect ideals. Edward A. and Lincoln Filene, Boston merchants, started foundations that have given $450,000 to WGBH-TV, more than two-thirds of the money it has taken to build and equip the station.

And Parker Wheatley, the leisurely-voiced announcer-manager of WGBH-FM, has long dreamed of having the tools to bring great music, great literature, learning and wisdom to a million people without charging them anything. Now his dream has come true, through FM and educational TV.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 5 - 1955

(Globe Photo by Gil Friedberg)

"LOVE IN BLOOM"—Jack Benny performs his famed interpretation of the old favorite with Rosario "Rosy" Mazzio, personnel manager of Boston Pops Orchestra. Michael J. Kelleher, center, listens closely. The comedian performed later with the Pops Orchestra.

FACK 047

Waukegan's Gift to Music
Crowd at Pops Thrilled by Violinist Jack Benny

By MARY CREMMEN

Jack Benny looked down from the window of his suite at the Ritz Carlton: "I haven't been here since the Tea Party—

—boy, things have changed," He waved a hand toward the buildings that stand between the hotel and the Charles River. "They must be new."

Jack is in town to receive one of three awards that will be given tonight by the Massachusetts Committee of Catholics, Protestants, and Jews. But last night he had quite a different experience — Waukegan's most famous violinist made his debut in Symphony Hall.

But that is getting too far ahead of the story. The evening began with dinner in Jack's suite. When Irving Fein, director of public relations for C. B. S. Radio in Hollywood, asked the waiter for a menu, the comedian let out a roar, "You mean you've come all the way to Boston and don't know you have to eat fish chowder?"

In case you think he was kidding, I should add here that Jack finished a whole tureen of it.

As dinner went on there was no doubt that there has probably never been a celebrity with a pleasanter, more attractive manner.

He admitted that the Tea Party really wasn't his last trip to Boston. "I used to work at Keith's, Boston and Philadelphia were my favorite stops. I like the audiences."

He thought a moment, "They had class."

Unlike many comedians who feel they must be funny off-camera, Jack speaks fluently on all kinds of subjects. In one of his more serious moments, he declared rather wistfully, "I go to all kinds of places and see all kinds of things, but I always feel bad about not having an education. It's so important in life."

BENNY
Page Twenty-six

"Chardis" by

Maestro Dick- his bow. I can ve never heard e more silent. er to hold their ir ears listening note. But the played without ally he beamed down at the photographers clustered by the stage and once he called out to the audience. "Here comes the hard part—if I don't go fast I'm dead."

What followed the finale was like an explosion. If anyone applauded more vigorously than the audience it was the musicians.

With just a suggestion of a smile, Jack strolled off stage. A few minutes later we were back in the car. He just sat there in the back seat beaming, laughing, slapping his knee.

The first thing he said was, "You must admit I've got guts walking out there and playing it straight when they expected 'Love in Bloom'." He shook his head.

"It was so much more fun than telling jokes—I can do that anytime."

My Boston

Lots of Jack in Town But Thrifty Benny Balks

By ALAN FRAZER

WITH both JACK BENNY and JACKIE GLEASON here, it's a great day in Boston. There's a lot of "jack" in town . . . Luckily, they didn't pick the same hotel. Gleason went to the Sheraton Plaza and Benny to the Ritz. Jackie phoned Jack and wanted to join him, but Benny said: "Now, Jackie, wouldn't that be silly without a sponsor?"

MIKE KELLEHER arranged for Benny to play his fiddle at the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall. Gleason was reported at the Huntington ave. alleys, developing a new bowling routine.

HARVEY STRUTHERS, gen. mgr. of WEEI, threw a cocktail party for Benny. Jack, upon arriving in Boston, looked sleepy, and said: 'I think I'll take a nap." So the party was tossed in his parlor and bedroom at the Ritz, with a battery of cameramen stationed between him and the bed.

IT WAS also arranged for Benny to dine at Locke Ober's and play golf at The Country Club, teamed with FRANCIS OUIMET against ELMER WARD and JOE CRONIN. This led to a story, dealing with a reporter's experiences when he kept slicing his drives into the rough. Stifling a yawn, Jack listened to the end, then said: "If you think that was rough, wait till you try television."

LIVE television is so frightening, according to Benny, that his wife, Mary, won't do TV except for film. He said ALAN LADD was scheduled on his live program one night. "He's got lots of guts, as you know," said Jack, "but he got so scared, his stomach flipped and I wouldn't let him go on."

STILL 39, Benny promised to put on a big celebration on TV next year of his 40th birthday. Repeating that he wears his own hair, rooted in his scalp, he explained that he had worn a toupee only in the movies. "Later, I made a joke of it on radio," he said, "and the darn joke got away from me. It had a mind of its own."

"I DON'T wear a toupee either, as those of you who know me may readily observe. On the way to the party, I went to the Ritz Carlton barbershop and asked, frugally: "How much do you charge for a haircut here?" They received me with open arms. They thought I was Jack . . . Of course, I looked a little older than 39.

AFTERWARD, I waited in the hotel lobby for the time of the party. TYRONE POWER came in, dressed in sport clothes and cap, and bearded for his role at the Colonial. He had celebrated LINDA CHRISTIAN'S divorce and million dollar settlement by a picture-taking trip with a young lady.

THIS is the final week, this season, of Storyville. After Sunday night, it will close for the summer and undergo enlargement. The circular bar will be altered. Meanwhile, Miss TEDDI KING of Revere, formerly of Brighton, E. Boston and Malden High '47, is demonstrating that she is in the front rank of singers of pops, blues, rhythm and roll.

If she came from Tulsa, Okla., or Detroit, Mich., I would say the same thing. In fact, Teddi is better known elsewhere than in Boston. A voice to enchant. Also at Storyville is RICHARD DYER-BENNET, master of folk songs and ballads. The clean kind!

Alan Frazer's column is a regular feature of the Sunday Advertiser.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 185,401

MAY 5 - 1955

INFORMATION OBSCURED

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Times (e)
GLOUCESTER, Mass.
Ind. Republican
Circ. 8,580

TV, FM and U. and I

Cape Ann was quick to take up television—at least that's the way it seemed to us years back, when the first TV show was received here. Radio dealers had sets in their show windows so people could stand on the sidewalk and marvel at the pictures.

Since then many have graduated to larger and larger screens. Antennas have sprouted in all sorts of sizes and shapes. And color is just around the corner—or should we say just over the horizon.

The latest development in television is bound to provide enjoyment for some viewers, including an assortment of people who have not yet succumbed to the lure of the TV set. We refer to educational TV, as presented on Channel 2 by WGBH-TV. Some may think it dull to have college lectures and demonstrations pictured. Others will be glad to have food for thought in this form. And as the station expands its program, now limited to 5.30 p.m. and through the evening, more and more worthwhile shows will be provided.

A key to the character of educational TV is the FM programming of Station WGBH, with studio at Symphony Hall, Boston. It excels in music, notably live broadcasts of the Boston Symphony. It goes in for stimulating discussions, too. Both Boston FM and Boston TV—actually, the educational TV originates in Cambridge, in a studio on the campus of M.I.T.—reflect ideals. Edward A. and Lincoln Filene, Boston merchants, started foundations that have given $450,000 to WGBH-TV, more than two-thirds of the money it has taken to build and equip the station.

And Parker Wheatley, the leisurely-voiced announcer-manager of WGBH-FM, has long dreamed of having the tools to bring great music, great literature, learning and wisdom to a million people without charging them anything. Now his dream has come true, through FM and educational TV.

My Boston

Lots of Jack in Town But Thrifty Benny Balks

By ALAN FRAZER

WITH both JACK BENNY and JACKIE GLEASON here, it's a great day in Boston. There's a lot of "jack" in town . . . Luckily, they didn't pick the same hotel. Gleason went to the Sheraton Plaza and Benny to the Ritz. Jackie phoned Jack and wanted to join him, but Benny said: "Now, Jackie, wouldn't that be silly without a sponsor?"

MIKE KELLEHER arranged for Benny to play his fiddle at the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall. Gleason was reported at the Huntington ave. alleys, developing a new bowling routine.

HARVEY STRUTHERS, gen. mgr. of WEEI, threw a cocktail party for Benny. Jack, upon arriving in Boston, looked sleepy, and said: 'I think I'll take a nap." So the party was tossed in his parlor and bedroom at the Ritz, with a battery of cameramen stationed between him and the bed.

IT WAS also arranged for Benny to dine at Locke Ober's and play golf at The Country Club, teamed with FRANCIS OUIMET against ELMER WARD and JOE CRONIN. This led to a story, dealing with a reporter's experiences when he kept slicing his drives into the rough. Stifling a yawn, Jack listened to the end, then said: "If you think that was rough, wait till you try television."

LIVE television is so frightening, according to Benny, that his wife, Mary, won't do TV except for film. He said ALAN LADD was scheduled on his live program one night. "He's got lots of guts, as you know," said Jack, "but he got so scared, his stomach flipped and I wouldn't let him go on."

STILL 39, Benny promised to put on a big celebration on TV next year of his 40th birthday. Repeating that he wears his own hair, rooted in his scalp, he explained that he had worn a toupee only in the movies. "Later, I made a joke of it on radio," he said, "and the darn joke got away from me. It had a mind of its own."

"I DON'T wear a toupee either, as those of you who know me may readily observe. On the way to the party, I went to the Ritz Carlton barbershop and asked, frugally: "How much do you charge for a haircut here?" They received me with open arms. They thought I was Jack . . . Of course, I looked a little older than 39.

AFTERWARD, I waited in the hotel lobby for the time of the party. TYRONE POWER came in, dressed in sport clothes and cap, and bearded for his role at the Colonial. He had celebrated LINDA CHRISTIAN'S divorce and million dollar settlement by a picture-taking trip with a young lady.

THIS is the final week, this season, of Storyville. After Sunday night, it will close for the summer and undergo enlargement. The circular bar will be altered. Meanwhile, Miss TEDDI KING of Revere, formerly of Brighton, E. Boston and Malden High '47, is demonstrating that she is in the front rank of singers of pops, blues, rhythm and roll.

If she came from Tulsa, Okla., or Detroit, Mich., I would say the same thing. In fact, Teddi is better known elsewhere than in Boston. A voice to enchant. Also at Storyville is RICHARD DYER-BENNET, master of folk songs and ballads. The clean kind!

Alan Frazer's column is a regular feature of the Sunday Advertiser.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 185,401

MAY 5 - 1955

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 5 - 1955

Pops Concert Is Open Rehearsal

Also at ... Sweeney, ... Struthers, ... just about ... French pastry ... leher, one of Bo... spirited citizens, a... us all to Symphony ...

By the time we ar... must have been 9 o'... concert had begun. Eve... seated, intent on the musi... could slip in—almost unnoti...

He never took his attention ... guest soloist Mineko Sasahara ... she played a piano concerto ... Saint-Saens. He leaned over to ... whisper to me, "Don't you love the way she attacks the piano? Wonderful? Great?"

But although Jack's attention never wavered from the stage, word of his presence was making its way along the grapevine. You could almost see it travel. A head would turn, take a look to make sure, then lean toward whoever was nearest. It went down rows and across aisles, and soon as the ovation for the soloist had died, the autograph crowd swarmed in. "Sign my program . . . this napkin . . . a matchcover."

The crowd got bigger, the aisles were blocked—and a worried look came over Jack's face. He stopped in the middle of an autograph, "Gee, this won't spoil the concert, will it?"

But Jack would never have bothered to ask if he'd known about that staunch crowd which goes to the Pops for only one reason—music. The second Conductor Harry Ellis Dickson appeared on stage a great SSSSssssh! filled the hall.

The autograph seekers rushed back to their tables and Jack turned to Fein, "Let's have some of that pink stuff that they're serving in pitchers."

'An Open Rehearsal'

It was not until after the selections from South Pacific that Maestro Dickson solemnly announced from the podium: "For the first time in the history of the Boston Pops we are going to have an open rehearsal." A knowing laughter filled the air. "I introduce to you now a man who needs no introduction—you will know him by his violin."

Out walked Jack through the rows of musicians. And the hallowed old walls of Symphony fairly rocked.

In that famous unsmiling way, he accepted the greeting, then nonchalantly reached in his pocket for a handkerchief to tuck under the violin. It looked like "Love in Bloom" for sure, but the orchestra began the "Chardis" by Monte.

At a signal from Maestro Dickson, Benny raised his bow. I can honestly say I have never heard the Pops audience more silent. The listeners seemer to hold their breath, strain their ears listening for just one sour note. But the Waukegan master played without a flaw. Occasionally he beamed down at the photographers clustered by the stage and once he called out to the audience. "Here comes the hard part—if I don't go fast I'm dead."

What followed the finale was like an explosion. If anyone applauded more vigorously than the audience it was the musicians.

With just a suggestion of a smile, Jack strolled off stage. A few minutes later we were back in the car. He just sat there in the back seat beaming, laughing, slapping his knee.

The first thing he said was, "You must admit I've got guts walking out there and playing it straight when they expected 'Love in Bloom'." He shook his head.

"It was so much more fun than telling jokes—I can do that anytime."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 5 - 1955

Social Chatter

By Alison Arnold

ORCHIDS AND GARDENIAS will be the wares of many attractive flower vendors at Vassar-Smith Night at the Pops Tuesday, May 10, in Symphony Hall. Mrs. Powell Robinson, Jr., of Needham is chairman of the Vassar Club committee, and Mrs. Charles Carothers, 3d, of Milton heads the flower vendors. Among the Vassar alumnae who will sell flower are Mrs. John L. Moore, Jr., (Hope Trumbull), Mrs. Douglas M. Kinney (Martha Snowden), Mrs. Arthur H. Nelson (Eleanor Thomas), Deborah Worcester, Margaret Allen, Josephine Swan and Elizabeth Wakefield. Mrs. Richard Ely is chairman of the Smith Club committee and Carol Traylor of Wellesley heads the Smith flower vendors. They include Jane Davis, Sara Shaeffer, Ann Backus, Nancy Pointer, Mrs. William E. Atcheson, Rachel Felton, Gail Cameron, Bernice Dennison and Anne Hoerner.

MRS. ROBINSON

* * *

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,246

MAY 5 - 1955

Personals

Miss Ruth Joyce of Linden St., a teacher in the South Hadley schools, will sail next month on the Queen Mary for a summer holiday in Europe.

Mrs. Walter F. Bachelder has returned to her home on Harvard St. after spending the season at her winter home in Daytona Beach, Fla.

Miss Elaine Gilman of Jefferson St., is one of the 59 members of the Colby Glee Club who will travel to Boston to appear with the Boston Pops Orchestra in Boston' Symphony Hall Sunday evening, "Colby Night at Pops" is an annual traditional subscription performance sponsored by the Boston Colby Club, and the Glee Club regularly presents a group of songs at intermission. Miss Gilman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis E. Gilman, is a graduate of the Mary Burnham school in Northampton.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest W. Boley of Dartmouth St. plan to leave later this month for a four-week holiday in Europe.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

MAY 5 - 1955

ELSIE SEARS, pianist and music commentator, will be guest artist with the Pops Saturday, May 14, when Arthur Fiedler conducts for Wellesley night. An alumna of the College, Mrs. Sears is noted for her own program, The Music Gallery, which began originally as a radio series, winning the George Foster Peabody award for entertainment in music. Assisted by Miss Irene Dubois at the second piano, Mrs. Sears will perform the first movement of the Mozart Concerto in E Flat for Two Pianos and Orchestra.

Post (e)
BRIDGEPORT, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 75,955
5 - 1955

JACK BENNY SOLOIST AT BOSTON CONCERT

BOSTON, May 5—(UP) An unannounced soloist was the hit of last night's Boston Pops concert.

Comedian Jack Benny did what he always starts to do and never finishes on radio and television—he played a violin solo.

The capacity crowd of 2,500 and the 90 Boston Symphony players roundly cheered the star's performance of Monti's Czardas, a Hungarian dance piece.

Benny imitated the mannerisms of several wellknown violinists, then nonchalantly dashed off the Monti piece.

Conductor Harry Ellis Dickson and the orchestra applauded the "soloist" and the audience guffawed as Benny wryly stuck out his tongue as if to say, "I told you so!"

Benny arrived here yesterday. Tonight, he will receive a citation from the Massachusetts committee of Catholics, Protestants and Jews.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Back Bay Ledger &
Beacon Hill Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,000 Free

MAY 5 - 1955

70th Anniversary Season Of "Pops" Opens This Week

The 70th anniversary season of the Boston Pops concerts will open this week at Symphony Hall. Arthur Fiedler, who is a convalescent from a recent illness, has invited Harry E. Dickson to conduct the opening nights until he is able to take the baton for his 26th season as the Pops conductor.

The concerts for opening week bring music of special interest and soloists of high ability. At the opening night, Ozan Marsh[illegible] a native of California and a pian[illegible]ternational repute, will make his first appearance at the Pops in Liszt's "Dance of Death." The soloist for Wednesday will be Mineko Sasahara, pianist. The first violin soloist will be Hazel Weems, who will appear on Friday.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Courier
CAMBRIDGE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 11,000 Free

MAY 5 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At 'Pops' Thurs. May 26

Members and friends of Cambridge Chapter No. 152 & Signet Chapter No. 22 Order of the Eastern Star will be welcomed by Miss Ada Norman, W. M. & Mrs. Janet Bowlby, W. M. at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, Thursday, May 26, 1955. 047

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16th, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O. E. S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-0068

Reporter
FOXBORO, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,120

MAY 5 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At "Pops"

Members and friends of Easter Chapter No. 47 Order of the Eastern Star will be welcomed by Mrs. Dorothy Hicks, W.M. at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, Thursday, May 26, 1955.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16th by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-0068

Journal
HINGHAM, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,200

MAY 5 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At Boston "Pops" May 26th

Members and friends of Dorothy Bradford Chapter, No. 135, Order of Eastern Star will be welcomed by Mrs. Frances Bates, W.M. at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston on Thursday night, May 26th.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16th by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S. for May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Norfolk County Free Press
NORWOOD, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 7,300

MAY 5 - 1955

Page Four

Eastern Star Night At "Pops"

Members and friends of Blue Hills Chapter No. 53, Order of the Eastern Star, will be welcomed by Mrs. Louise Myntti, W.M. at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston on Thursday, May 26.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16 by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening of May 26.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Telegram-News (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Democrat
Circ. 21,071

MAY 5 - 1955

Jack Benny Scores Hit at Pops Concert

BOSTON, May 5.—(UP)—An unannounced soloist was the hit of last night's Boston Pops concert.

Comedian Jack Benny did what he always starts to do and never finishes on radio and television—he played a violin solo.

The capacity crowd of 2,500 and the 90 Boston Symphony players roundly cheered the 39-year-old star's performance of Monti's Czardas, a Hungarian dance piece.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 151,303
MAY 5 - 1955

Jack Benny Socko

Appears on Pops Platform With His

BENNY MAKES OUT THAT HE IS WORLD'S STINGIEST MAN on his radio and TV shows. But as soon as he landed in Boston he told those who met him he was thirsty. He ordered soft drinks all around, paid the bill himself with a $2 bill and left the change (circled) on the counter.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
News (e)
NAUGATUCK, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 4,840
MAY 5 - 1955

BENNY PLAYS

Boston, May 5—(UP)—An unannounced soloist was the hit of Wednesday night's Boston Pops concert. Comedian Jack Benny did what he always starts to do and never finishes on radio and television—he played a violin solo.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Pembroke Colonist
ROCKLAND, Mass.
Weekly
MAY 5 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At "Pops" May 26

Members and friends of Scituate Chapter No. 213, Order of Eastern Star will be welcomed by Mrs. Aubrey Benson, W.M., at the annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall, Boston, Thursday, May 26. The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16 by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for that evening. The concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

at Symphony

Violin Last Night and Plays It Straight

BENNY FIDDLES WHILE POPS BURNS—The audience was surprised at Benny's appearance on the stage and more surprised when he didn't go through his usual act of playing his own composition, "Love in Bloom," out of tune. Instead he played "Chardis" by Monte along with the Pops Symphony Drchestra under the direction of Harry Ellis Dickson. (Globe Staff Photos by Gil Friedberg)

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068
Cohasset Cottager
ROCKLAND, Mass.
Weekly
Combined Circ. 2,900
MAY 5 -

Eastern Star Night At "Pops" May 26

Members and friends of Scituate Chapter No. 213, Order of Eastern Star will be welcomed by Mrs. Aubrey Benson, W.M., at the annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall, Boston, Thursday, May 26. The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16 by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for that evening. The concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Times (e)
PAWTUCKET - CENTRAL FALLS, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 38,858
MAY 5 - 1955

Pops Audience Hears Jack Benny 'String' Out Gag

BOSTON (UP)—An unannounced soloist was the hit of last night's Boston Pops concert.

Comedian Jack Benny did what he always starts to do and never finishes on radio and television—he played a violin solo.

The capacity crowd of 2,900 and the 90 Boston Symphony players roundly cheered the "39-year-old" star's performance of Monti's Czardas, a Hungarian dance piece.

Benny imitated the mannerisms of several well-known violinists, then nonchalantly dashed off the Monti piece.

Conductor Harry Ellis Dickson and the orchestra applauded the "soloist" and the audience guffawed as Benny wryly stuck out his tongue as if to say, "I told you so!"

Benny arrived here yesterday. Tonight, he will receive a citation from the Massachusetts Committee of Catholics, Protestants and Jews.

By MARY CREMMEN

Jack Benny looked down from the window of his suite at the Ritz Carlton: "I haven't been here since the Tea Party—

—boy, things have changed." He waved a hand toward the buildings that stand between the hotel and the Charles River. "They must be new."

Jack is in town to receive one of three awards that will be given tonight by the Massachusetts Committee of Catholics, Protestants, and Jews. But last night he had quite a different experience — Waukegan's most famous violinist made his debut in Symphony Hall.

But that is getting too far ahead of the story. The evening began with dinner in Jack's suite. When Irving Fein, director of public relations for C. B. S. Radio in Hollywood, asked the waiter for a menu, the comedian let out a roar, "You mean you've come all the way to Boston and don't know you have to eat fish chowder?"

In case you think he was kidding, I should add here that Jack finished a whole tureen of it.

As dinner went on there was no doubt that there has probably never been a celebrity with a pleasanter, more attractive manner.

He admitted that the Tea Party really wasn't his last trip to Boston. "I used to work at Keith's, Boston and Philadelphia were my favorite stops. I like the audiences."

He thought a moment, "They had class."

Unlike many musicians who feel they must be funny off-camera, Jack speaks fluently on all kinds of subjects. In one of his more serious moments, he declared rather wistfully, "I go to all kinds of places and see all kinds of things, but I always feel bad about not having an education. It's so important in life."

THE AISLES WERE SOON BLOCKED by autograph hunters, writes the Globe's TV commentator, Mary Cremmen (right), who went to dinner and Pops with Mr. Benny's party.

Unnoticed . . . Almost

Also at the dinner were Dorothy Sweeney, Boston, and Hal Struthers, WEEI. We were all just about ready for a second French pastry when Michael Kelleher, one of Boston's most public spirited citizens, appeared to take us all to Symphony.

By the time we arrived there it must have been 9 o'clock. The concert had begun. Everyone was seated, intent on the music. Jack could slip in—almost unnoticed.

He never took his attention from guest soloist Mineko Sasahara as she played a piano concerto by Saint-Saens. He leaned over to whisper to me, "Don't you love the way she attacks the piano? Wonderful? Great?"

But although Jack's attention never wavered from the stage, word of his presence was making its way along the grapevine. You could almost see it travel. A head would turn, take a look to make sure, then lean toward whoever was nearest. It went down rows and across aisles, and soon as the ovation for the soloist had died, the autograph crowd swarmed in. "Sign my program . . . this napkin . . . a matchcover."

The crowd got bigger, the aisles were blocked,—and a worried look came over Jack's face. He stopped in the middle of an autograph, "Gee, this won't spoil the concert, will it?"

But Jack would never have bothered to ask if he'd known about that staunch crowd which goes to the Pops for only one reason—music. The second Conductor Harry Ellis Dickson appeared on stage a great SSSSssh! filled the hall.

The autograph seekers rushed back to their tables and Jack turned to Fein, "Let's have some of that pink stuff that they're serving in pitchers."

'An Open Rehearsal'

It was not until after the selections from South Pacific that Maestro Dickson solemnly announced from the podium: "For the first time in the history of the Boston Pops we are going to have an open rehearsal." A knowing laughter filled the air. "I introduce to you now a man who needs no introduction—you will know him by his violin."

Out walked Jack through the rows of musicians. And the hallowed old walls of Symphony fairly rocked.

In that famous unsmiling way, he accepted the greeting, then nonchalantly reached in his pocket for a handkerchief to tuck under the violin. It looked like "Love in Bloom" for sure, but the orchestra began the "Chardis" by Monte.

At a signal from Maestro Dickson, Benny raised his bow. I can honestly say I have never heard the Pops audience more silent. The listeners seemed to hold their breath, strain their ears listening for just one sour note. But the Waukegan master played without a flaw. Occasionally he beamed down at the photographers clustered by the stage and once he called out to the audience, "Here comes the hard part—if I don't go fast I'm dead."

What followed the finale was like an explosion. If anyone applauded more vigorously than the audience it was the musicians.

With just a suggestion of a smile, Jack strolled off stage. A few minutes later we were back in the car. He just sat there in the back seat beaming, laughing, slapping his knee.

The first thing he said was, "You must admit I've got guts walking out there and playing it straight when they expected 'Love in Bloom'." He shook his head.

"It was so much more fun than telling jokes—I can do that anytime."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Bulletin (e)
PROVIDENCE, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 144,073

MAY 5 - 1955

'I Told You So'

Jack Benny a Hit At Boston Pops

Boston — (UP) — An unannounced soloist was the hit of last night's Boston Pops concert.

Comedian Jack Benny did what he always starts to do and never finishes on radio and television—he played a violin solo.

The capacity crowd of 2,500 and the 90 Boston Symphony players roundly cheered the star's performance of Monti's "Czardas," a Hungarian dance piece.

Conductor Harry Ellis Dickson and the orchestra applauded the "soloist" and the audience guffawed as Benny wryly stuck out his tongue as if to say, "I told you so!"

Benny arrived here yesterday. Tonight, he will receive a citation from the Massachusetts Committee of Catholics, Protestants and Jews.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Press
MALDEN, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 23,000 Free

MAY 5 - 1955

Chapters Will Attend "Pops"

Members and friends of Crystal Chapter 36, Malden Chapter 99, and Mona Bine Chapter 178, Order of the Eastern Star, will be welcomed by Miss Jean Ricker, W. M., Mrs. Edythe Riley, W. M., and Mrs. Anne Wentworth, W. M., respectively, at the annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall, Boston, Thursday, May 26.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Hyde Park Tribune
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 9100

MAY 5 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At "Pops"

Members and friends of Blue Hills Chapter No. 53, Order of the Eastern Star, will be welcomed by Mrs. Louise Myntti, W.M. at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston on Thursday, May 26.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16 by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening of May 26.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Advocate
ARLINGTON, Mass
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,987

MAY 5 - 1955

—Among Arlington residents on the committee for "Emmanuel Night" at the Boston Pops are Mrs. Lawrence J. Heidt, Mrs. Charles Normille, Mrs. John McGann, Mrs. Walter May, Mrs. Thomas Kenna, Miss Marie Conners, Mrs. James Wiles and Miss Joan Williams.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Village & Transcript
NEWTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,087

MAY 5 - 1955

Newton women planning for the Wellesley Night at Pops May 14 include Mrs. Edward A. Caredis, Mrs. Carl J. Shapiro and Mrs. T. Edson Jewell, Jr.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Dorchester Citizen
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 29,300

MAY 5 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At "Pops" May 26th

Members and friends of local chapters of the Order of the Eastern Star will attend the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops, in Symphony Hall Thursday, May 26.

Groups from this area planning for the event are Wenona Chapter No. 59, Reliance Chapter No. 62, Hadassah Chapter No. 113, Sabbatia Chapter No. 124, and Roxbury Chapter No. 56.

The floor and first balcony of Symphony Hall have been reserved until May 16th, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O. E. S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-0068

Times
HOLBROOK, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 1,481

MAY 5 - 1955

EASTERN STAR NIGHT AT "POPS"

Members and friends of U[nion] Chapter No. 165 Order of the E[astern] Star will be welcomed [by] Mrs. Norma Gaudreau, W.M [at] the Annual Eastern Star nigh[t] Pops at Symphony Hall in Bos[ton] Thursday, May [26], 1955.

The floor and first [balcony] been reserved until May 16th, the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Times (e)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 109,680

MAY 5 - 1955

Boston Symphony Announces 2 Awards

Boston — (AP) — Composers Ross Lee Finney and Andrew Imbrie have received $1,000 each for winning the Boston Symphony Orchestra merit award.

The award was established in 1945 and is intended to "foster and promote the writing of symphonic compositions by composers resident in the United States.

Finney is a native of Wells, Minn., and is a member of the University of Michigan faculty. Imbrie is a native of New York and teaches at the University of California.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Standard-Times (e)
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 58,894

5 - 1955

Attend Opening of Pops

Dr. and Mrs. Robert H. Goodwin of 1 Prospect Street, South Dartmouth, with a party of 12 attended the 70th opening night of Boston's Pops concerts.

The occasion was the 13th year that the New England Grenfell Association has had the opening night as a means of raising funds for the work of the Grenfell Missions along the Labrador Coast. The concerts are held in Symphony Hall.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-0068

News
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 9,700

- 1955

Longfellow Chapter To Attend "Pops"

Members and friends of Longfellow Chapter No. 117 Order of the Eastern Star will be welcomed by Mrs. Venetta Gammeil, W. M. at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, Thursday, May 26.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O. E. S., for the evening of May 26. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

By MARY CREMMEN

Jack Benny looked down from the window of his suite at the Ritz Carlton: "I haven't been here since the Tea Party—

—boy, things have changed." He waved a hand toward the buildings that stand between the hotel and the Charles River. "They must be new."

Jack is in town to receive one of three awards that will be given tonight by the Massachusetts Committee of Catholics, Protestants, and Jews. But last night he had quite a different experience — Waukegan's most famous violinist made his debut in Symphony Hall.

But that is getting too far ahead of the story. The evening began with dinner in Jack's suite. When Irving Fein, director of public relations for C. B. S. Radio in Hollywood, asked the waiter for a menu, the comedian let out a roar, "You mean you've come all the way to Boston and don't know you have to eat fish chowder?"

In case you think he was kidding, I should add here that Jack finished a whole tureen of it.

As dinner went on there was no doubt that there has probably never been a celebrity with a pleasanter, more attractive manner.

He admitted that the Tea Party really wasn't his last trip to Boston. "I used to work at Keith's, Boston and Philadelphia were my favorite stops. I like the audiences."

He thought a moment, "They had class."

Unlike many comedians feel they must be funny camera, Jack speaks fluently all kinds of subjects. In on his more serious moments, declared rather wistfully, "I to all kinds of places and all kinds of things, but I ways feel bad about not hav an education. It's so important in life."

THE AISLES WERE SOON BLOCKED by autograph hunters, writes the Globe's TV commmentator, Mary Cremmen (right), who went to dinner and Pops with Mr. Benny's party.

Unnoticed . . . Almost

Also at the dinner were Dorothy Sweeney, Boston, and Jim Struthers, WEEI. We were just about ready for a second French pastry when Michael Kelleher, one of Boston's most public spirited citizens, appeared to take us all to Symphony.

By the time we arrived there it must have been 9 o'clock. The concert had begun. Everyone was seated, intent on the music. Jack could slip in—almost unnoticed.

He never took his attention from guest soloist Mineko Sasahara as she played a piano concerto by Saint-Saens. He

I pulled a "gag"
Luckily, it didn't hurt us but the other team's lineup.
cision because I lost track of there. I made a wrong de-repeated, "I was asleep out ager of the New York Giants
"That's right," the man-
real shock.
from Leo Durocher, it is a league manager but coming when made by any major ment is surprising enough
Such a self-accusing state-the first time I ever did that."
asleep on the bench. That's NEW YORK — (AP) — "I fell was nearest. It went down rows and across aisles, and soon as the ovation for the soloist had died, the autograph crowd swarmed in. "Sign my program . . . this napkin . . . a matchcover."

The crowd got bigger, the aisles were blocked—and a worried look came over Jack's face. He stopped in the middle of an autograph, "Gee, this won't spoil the concert, will it?"

But Jack would never have bothered to ask if he'd known about that staunch crowd which goes to the Pops for only one reason—music. The second Conductor Harry Ellis Dickson appeared on stage a great SSSssshh! filled the hall.

The autograph seekers rushed back to their tables and Jack turned to Fein, "Let's have some of that pink stuff that they're serving in pitchers."

'An Open Rehearsal'

It was not until after the selections from South Pacific that Maestro Dickson solemnly announced from the podium: "For the first time in the history of the Boston Pops we are going to have an open rehearsal." A knowing laughter filled the air. "I introduce to you now a man who needs no introduction—you will know him by his violin."

Out walked Jack through the rows of musicians. And the hallowed old walls of Symphony fairly rocked.

In that famous unsmiling way, he accepted the greeting, then nonchalantly reached in his pocket for a handkerchief to tuck under the violin. It looked like "Love in Bloom" for sure, but the orchestra began the "Chardis" by Monte.

At a signal from Maestro Dickson, Benny raised his bow. I can honestly say I have never heard the Pops audience more silent. The listeners seemer to hold their breath, strain their ears listening for just one sour note. But the Waukegan master played without a flaw. Occasionally he beamed down at the photographers clustered by the stage and once he called out to the audience, "Here comes the hard part—if I don't go fast I'm dead."

What followed the finale was like an explosion. If anyone applauded more vigorously than the audience it was the musicians.

With just a suggestion of a smile, Jack strolled off stage. A few minutes later we were back in the car. He just sat there in the back seat beaming, laughing, slapping his knee.

The first thing he said was, "You must admit I've got guts walking out there and playing it straight when they expected 'Love in Bloom'." He shook his head.

"It was so much more fun than telling jokes—I can do that anytime."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-00

Times
HOLBROOK, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 1,481

MAY 5 - 1955

EASTERN STAR NIGHT AT "POPS"

Members and friends of Union Chapter No. 165 Order of the Eastern Star will be welcomed by Mrs. Norma Gaudreau, W.M. at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, Thursday, May [illegible], 1955.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16th, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Standard-Times (e)
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 58,894

MAY 5 - 1955

Attend Opening of Pops

Dr. and Mrs. Robert H. Goodwin of 1 Prospect Street, South Dartmouth, with a party of 12 attended the 70th opening night of Boston's Pops concerts.

The occasion was the 13th year that the New England Grenfell Association has had the opening night as a means of raising funds for the work of the Grenfell Missions along the Labrador Coast. The concerts are held in Symphony Hall.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Bulletin (e)
PROVIDENCE, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 144,073

MAY 5 - 1955

'I Told You So'

Jack Benny a Hit At Boston Pops

Boston — (UP) — An unannounced soloist was the hit of last night's Boston Pops concert.

Comedian Jack Benny did what he always starts to do and never finishes on radio and television—he played a violin solo.

The capacity crowd of 2,500 and the 90 Boston Symphony players roundly cheered the star's performance of Monti's "Czardas," a Hungarian dance piece.

Conductor Harry Ellis Dickson and the orchestra applauded the "soloist" and the audience guffawed as Benny wryly stuck out his tongue as if to say, "I told you so!"

Benny arrived here yesterday. Tonight, he will receive a citation from the Massachusetts Committee of Catholics, Protestants and Jews.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-0068

Press
MALDEN, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 23,000 Free

MAY 5 - 1955

Chapters Will Attend "Pops"

Members and friends of Crystal Chapter 36, Malden Chapter 99, and Mona Bine Chapter 178, Order of the Eastern Star, will be welcomed by Miss Jean Ricker, W. M., Mrs. Edythe Riley, W. M., and Mrs. Anne Wentworth, W. M., respectively, at the annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall, Boston, Thursday, May 26.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Hyde Park Tribune
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 9100

MAY 5 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At "Pops"

Members and friends of Blue Hills Chapter No. 53, Order of the Eastern Star, will be welcomed by Mrs. Louise Myntti, W.M. at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston on Thursday, May 26.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16 by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening of May 26.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Advocate
ARLINGTON, Mass
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,987

MAY 5 - 1955

—Among Arlington residents on the committee for "Emmanuel Night" at the Boston Pops are Mrs. Lawrence J. Heidt, Mrs. Charles Normille, Mrs. John McGann, Mrs. Walter May, Mrs. Thomas Kenna, Miss Marie Conners, Mrs. James Wiles and Miss Joan Williams.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Village & Transcript
NEWTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,087

MAY 5 - 1955

Newton women planning for the Wellesley Night at Pops May 14 include Mrs. Edward A. Caredis, Mrs. Carl J. Shapiro and Mrs. T. Edson Jewell, Jr.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Dorchester Citizen
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 29,300

MAY 5 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At "Pops" May 26th

Members and friends of local chapters of the Order of the Eastern Star will attend the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops, in Symphony Hall Thursday, May 26.

Groups from this area planning for the event are Wenona Chapter No. 59, Reliance Chapter No. 62, Hadassah Chapter No. 113, Sabbatia Chapter No. 124, and Roxbury Chapter No. 56.

The floor and first balcony of Symphony Hall have been reserved until May 16th, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O. E. S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-0068

News
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 9,700

MAY 5 - 1955

Longfellow Chapter To Attend "Pops"

Members and friends of Longfellow Chapter No. 117 Order of the Eastern Star will be welcomed by Mrs. Venetta Gammeil, W. M. at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, Thursday, May 26.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O. E. S., for the evening of May 26. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

[45]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Herald
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 4500

Eastern Star Night At "Pops" May 26

Members and friends of Belmont Chapter No. 108, Order of the Eastern Star, will be welcomed by Mrs. Helen Morrell, W. M., at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, Thursday, May 26.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16th, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O. E. S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Standard-Times (e)
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 58,894

MAY 5 - 1955

Jack Benny's Violin Solo Is Hit of Boston Pops

BOSTON, May 5 (UP)—An unannounced soloist was the hit of last night's Boston Pops Concert. Comedian Jack Benny did what he always starts to do and never finishes on radio and television—he played a violin solo.

Benny

The capacity crowd of 2,500 and the 90 Boston Symphony players roundly cheered the 39-year-old star's performance of Monti Czardas, a Hungarian dance piece.

Benny imitated the mannerisms of several well-known violinists, then nonchalantly dashed off the Monti piece.

Conductor Harry Ellis Dickson and the orchestra applauded the "soloist" and the audience guffawed as Benny wryly stuck out his tongue as if to say, "I told you so!"

Benny arrived here yesterday. Tonight, he will receive a citation from the Massachusetts Committee of Catholics, Protestants and Jews.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-0068

News & Times
MANSFIELD, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 1,696

MAY 5 - 1955

Annual Eastern Star night at the Pops in Symphony Hall will be May 16. Reservations until May 16.

7-54

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-0068

Herald
RANDOLPH, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 1,938

MAY 5 - 1955

EASTERN STAR NIGHT AT "POPS"

Members and friends of Herbert F. French Chapter No. 172 Order of the Eastern Star will be welcomed by Mrs. Hazel Henderson, W. M., at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston Thursday, May 26, 1955.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16th by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O. E. S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Herald
SCITUATE, Mass.
Weekly
Comb. Circ. 3620

MAY 5 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At "Pops" May 26

Members and friends of Scituate Chapter No. 213, Order of Eastern Star will be welcomed by Mrs. Aubrey Benson, W.M., at the annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall, Boston, Thursday, May 26. The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16 by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for that evening. The concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Observer
BRAINTREE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 3,577

MAY 6 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At "Pops"

Members and friends of Braintree Chapter, No. [illegible] of the Eastern Star will be welcomed by Mrs. Mae E. Smith, W. M. ,at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, Thursday, May 26, 1955.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16th, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Item (e)
WAKEFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,603

MAY [illegible] - 1955

Three Meetings For Commandery

Hugh de Payens Commandery No. 20, Knights Templars, of Melrose, has scheduled three meetings for this month, on next Monday and Wednesday evenings, May 9 and 11, and Thursday evening, May 19, at each of which ritualistic work will be conferred as a wind-up of many of the season's activities.

Monday night, following a short-form opening at 7:30 p.m., the Illustrious Order of the Red Cross will be exemplified in full form for a class of 30 candidates.

Wednesday night, also at 7:30 (the regular stated monthly business meeting night, the Order of Malta will be exemplified for the same group, in full form, and on Thursday, May 19, a selected group of candidates will receive the Order of the Temple, the remainder of the class to receive the work in June.

Members are reminded of "Templar Night" at the Boston Pops, Tuesday, June 7, for which there is now only a limited ticket supply available; the church service at Leominster, Sunday, June 12, and the 46th triennial conclave in New York City, August 21-25, with the "big parade" scheduled for Tuesday, Aug. 23, in which will be a large delegation from Melrose, it is anticipated.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Duxbury Pilgrim
ROCKLAND, Mass.
Weekly
Comb. Circ. 2900

MAY [illegible]

Eastern Star Night At "Pops" May 26

Members and friends of Scituate Chapter No. 213, Order of Eastern Star will be welcomed by Mrs. Aubrey Benson, W.M., at the annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall, Boston, Thursday, May 26. The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16 by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for that evening. The concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Gazette & Transcript
WEYMOUTH, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 3,435

MAY 5 - 1955

NIGHT AT "POPS"

Members and friends of Wessagusset Chapter No. 192 of South Weymouth and Mayflower Chapter No. 65 of East Weymouth, Order of the Eastern Star will be welcomed by Mrs. Ruth Phoenix, W.M. and Mrs. Isabell Fitch, W.M. at the annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, Thursday, May 26.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16th, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-0068

Messenger (e)
NORWOOD, Mass.
Bi-Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,650

MAY 5 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At "Pops"

Members and friends of Blue Hills Chapter No. 53, Order of the Eastern Star, will be welcomed by Mrs. Louise Myntti, W.M. at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston on Thursday, May 26.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16 by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening of May 26.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Enterprise & Times (e)
BROCKTON, Mass.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 40,923

MAY 5 - 1955

Jack Benny Plays His Violin at Hub Concert

BOSTON. — (UP) — An unannounced soloist was the hit of last night's Boston Pops concert.

Comedian Jack Benny did what he always starts to do and never finishes on radio and television—he played a violin solo.

The capacity crowd of 2500 and the 90 Boston Symphony players roundly cheered the star's performance of Monti's Czardas, a Hungarian dance piece.

Benny imitated the mannerisms of several well-known violinists, then nonchalantly dashed off the Monti piece.

Conductor Harry Ellis Dickson and the orchestra applauded the "soloist" and the audience guffawed as Benny wryly stuck out his tongue as if to say, "I told you so!"

Benny arrived here yesterday. Tonight, he will receive a citation from the Massachusetts Committee of Catholics, Protestants and Jews.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Telegram (m)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 55,423

MAY 6 - 1955

To Sing at Pops

Three area students at Colby Junior College, New London, N. H., are among 59 members of the Colby Glee Club who will appear Sunday night with the Boston Pops Orchestra in Symphony Hall, Boston.

They are the Misses Janet Schmierer of 24 Stark road, Grace Colton of Sutton and Sally Marker of Whitinsville.

"Colby Night at Pops" is an annual performance sponsored by the Boston Colby Club.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Item (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 21,384

M[illegible] 6 - 1955

Dartmouth Night Planned at Pops

The annual Dartmouth Night at the Boston Symphony Pops has been announced for Wednesday, May 18. All proceeds from the sale of tickets will be contributed to the Greater Boston Scholarship Fund which is sponsored by the Dartmouth Alumni Association.

John Williamson of Wellesley is chairman of the pops committee, assisted by Daniel B. Ruggles, Jr., of Marblehead, Robert Y. Kimball of Lynnfield, and Esmond Crowley of Swampscott.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Italian News
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 11,205

MAY 6 - 1955

Italians in new Boston Quintet

Two Italo-Americans have been named to the newly-formed Boston University "Boston Woodwind Quintet."

They are Gino Cioffi, clarinet, of 82 Gainsborough st., Boston, and James Stagliano, French horn, 250 Cliff rd., Wellesley.

The Quintet has been appointed to the B.U. faculty as a group and each musician will give instruction in his own instrument.

All five members of the quintet play with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The Quintet will present special occasional concerts during the academic year, the first of which was heard last week at the college.

ADD TO B.U.

Separately and together, the talents of these five musicians, according to B.U. President Harold C. Case, will increase to a marked degree the University's quality of instruction by a faculty which is already star-studded in the teaching and creative area of music.

The individual backgrounds of all five members of the Boston Woodwind Quintet reveal lifetimes of musical training and experience, each of them having shown early marks of genius early in their lives.

CIOFFI UNDER TOSCANINI

Cioffi, born in Naples, Italy, of a highly musical family, started his career at the age of seven years, studied with Italy's famed Carpio and Piccone, was graduated from Naples Conservatory when he was 17, and joined the Boston Symphony in 1950 as first clarinet.

Dubbed by Erno Rapee as the "Paganini of the clarinet" while he was playing with the celebrated Radio City Music Hall Orchestra, Cioffi rapidly progressed to the top of the U.S. musical ladder of fame after his arrival here from Italy.

His career took him as solo clarinetist to the Pittsburgh Symphony under Fritz Reiner, Cleveland with Arthur Rodzinsky, NBC Symphony with Arturo Toscanini, New York Philarmonic with Bruno Walter and Rodzinsky, and the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra from which he came to Boston.

Cioffi's greatest pride rests in his two sons who are advancing the family tradition in music. Andrew won a five-year scholarship to the Juilliard School of Music in New York, and is now with the U.S. Army Band in Washington, D.C. Albert is majoring in the study of trumpet at New York University.

STAGLIANO'S DAD FAMOUS

When the father of young James Stagliano died, the future looked dim, for it was his father, Joseph, a teacher in Rome, Italy, noted for his instruction in solfeggio (learning to read music) and the piano, who had seen budding of musical talent in his young son and had started James early in life in what has become a brilliant career.

However, the boy's uncle, Albert Stagliano, also a well known musician and teacher, who played solo horn under Toscanini in the famous NBC orchestra, took James under his wing.

The young man who had left Cass Technical High School in his native Detroit, Mich., to play French horn in the Detroit Symphony under Ossip Gavrilowitsch, became successively a member of the Symphony Orchestras in St. Louis, Mo., with Frederick Stock, 1934-36; Los Angeles with Otto Klemper, 1936-1945; Cleveland under Eric Leinsdorf, 1946; and so to Boston under the leadership of Serge Koussevitsky in 1947.

HEADS BOSTON RECORDS

About foru years ago Stagliano became director of Boston Records which specializes in the recording of chamber music with solo players and guest soloists of the Boston Symphony and for which the Bston Woodwind Quartet records exclusively. He holds a cherished war citation for his patriotic services to his country in giving concerts and selling war bonds with Bruno Walter.

Stagliano's wife is Margu... Willauer, opera singer, who was heard recently in Boston with the Metropolitan Opera as Marguerite in "Faust".

She made her debut as the countess in "The Marriage of Figaro." Soprano soloist with the New York City Opera Company, she was soloist in "The Rake's Progress". Mr. and Mrs. Stagliano are very proud of the fact that their 2-year-old daughter, Linda Maria, already sings scales with her mother.

TAUGHT MUENCH GOLF

The busy members of the Boston Woodwind Quintet seem to be so professionally occupied that they have little time for hobbies, with the exception of Stagliano who indulges in two sidelines. He belongs to an exclusive group of 200 members, The Mycolegy Society. They hunt wild mushrooms. Also, he belongs to the Stockbridge (Mass.) Golf Club where he enjoys a handicap of five, and is exceedingly proud of the fact that he taught Dr. Muench how to play golf.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● HAncock 6-9297

Transcript
METHUEN, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 1,600

MAY 6 - 1955

EASTERN STAR NIGHT AT "POPS"

Members and friends of Methuen Chapter No. 204, Order of the Eastern Star will be welcomed by Mrs. Muriel Finethy, W. M. at the Annual Eastern Star Night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, Thursday, May 26, 1955.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16th, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O. E. S., for th eevening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Press-Herald (m)
PORTLAND, Me.
Independent Republican
Circ. 45,711

MAY 6 -1955

Prof. Tillotson To Play May 8 With Boston Pops

BRUNSWICK, May 5 — Frederic E. T. Tillotson, Bowdoin Professor of Music and concert pianist, will give a preview of Bowdoin College Night at the Boston Pops, when he plays the Shostakovich Piano Concerto on Sunday, May 8. The public is invited to attend without charge.

Prof. Tillotson will appear at Harvey Dow Gibson Hall of Music on the Bowdoin Campus, at 8 o'clock. David W. Holmes, '56, of Brunswick, will play the orchestral accompaniment.

The annual appearance of the Bowdoin Glee Club with the Boston "Pops" Orchestra in Symphony Hall, will take place on May 19, at 8:30. The Meddiebempsters will also be part of the program, as will the a cappella choir.

Prof. Tillotson, who will play the Shostakovich Piano Concerto with the "Pops" Orchestra, has been Professor of Music at Bowdoin since 1936. He made his debut as a concert pianist at Boston's Jordan Hall in 1921 and from that time until 1936 appeared as soloist with many symphony orchestras and also made extended concert tours.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Journal
CANTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,015

MAY 6 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At "Pops"

Members and friends of Canton Chapter No. 132, Order of the Eastern Star, will be welcomed by Mrs. Ella Blaustein, W.M., of 9 Ponkapoag Way, at the Annual Eastern Star Night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, Thursday, May 26, 1955.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O. E. S., for the evening of May 26. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the Order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Star
WINCHESTER, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,000

...r a new Chevrolet, call Harry ... a good used car. Bean, Mirak Chevrolet, Inc., AR... lington 5-8000 or WInchester 6... 0167. ja7-tf

Mrs. W. E. Underwood of 9... Ravenscroft road, will be one of 60... Massachusetts women to attend a... 3-day Republican Women's National... Conference in Washington on May... 10th. Speakers scheduled to address... the conference include: President... Dwight D. Eisenhower, Secretary of... State John Foster Dulles, Senator... Knowland, Rep. Joseph Martin, and... other Republican leaders.

Tennis and Badminton racquets... restrung. Winchester Sport Shop, 41 Church street, Tel. WInchester 6-1931. mr11-tf

Members and friends of Winchester Chapter No. 175 Order of the Eastern Star will be welcomed by Miss Marguerite Troop, W. M., at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, Thursday, May 26.

We have what you want. Chevrolet's New Look, New Life, V-8 or 6 cylinder. New everything. See Chris Powers at Lannan-Ungerman, WOburn 2-0120, WInchester 6-3686. de17-tf

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Citizen
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-partisan
Circ. 4,048

MAY 6 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At Pops May 26

Members and friends of Belmont Chapter No. 108, Order of the Eastern Star will be welcomed by Mrs. Helen Morrell, W. M., at the annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall, Boston, Thursday, May 26.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening of May 26. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Citizen
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-partisan
Circ. 4,048

MAY 6 - 1955

Local Alumnae Among Pops Patronesses For Wellesley Night

A long and distinguished list of patronesses have reserved tables for Wellesley Night at Pops, Saturday, May 14, at which time the talented Wellesley alumna, Elsie Sears of Brookline and Irene Dubois of the New England Conservatory will play the Mozart Concerto in Eb for two pianos and orchestra with Arthur Fiedler and the orchestra.

Patronesses from Belmont include Mrs. John A. Donovan, Mrs. John H. Hughes, Mrs. Lawrence M. Jackson, Mrs. Paul K. McElroy, Mrs. Harold S. Wilkins and Mrs. Henry A. Wood, Jr.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 285,839

MAY 5 - 1955

Gala Pops Opening

Topmost in the stack of telegrams received on Tuesday's opening night at Pops by Harry Ellis Dickson, acting conductor in the absence of Arthur Fiedler, was the one from his college freshman daughter, Kitty, reading: "Dad, I know tonight will be perfect. Love." He is very proud that she has been chosen honor maid for the crowning of the Queen of the May at Penn State on Saturday.

Among those enjoying the evening's sparkling program were Mrs. Harold R. Keller with her son and daughter-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. John W. Keller, and Mr. and Mrs. S. Bruce Black. With Mrs. Robert M. P. Leonard, chairman of the opening benefiting the Grenfell Mission in Labrador, were Mr. Kennard, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Toppan and Mrs. A. W. K. Billings. John Cahill was accompanied by his daughter, Dorothy Ann, and her classmate, Barbara Jean Carroll. Dr. and Mrs. Harold F. Rheinlander, Mr. and Mrs. John Alles and Mr. and Mrs. Paul T. Babson were others noted.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Hour (e)
NORWALK, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 15,252

...1955

Featuring a week of activities of seniors in Boston University's Sargent College of Physical Education, Boston, Mass., which opened earlier with a banquet and will be climaxed on Sunday with a picnic and Boston Pops concert, coveted annual awards were made at the annual senior assembly on Wednesday at the school.

Miss Beryl Breny, daughter of Mrs. Clesson E. Breny of 4 Eclipse avenue and the late Mr. Breny, was among the students receiving an Activities Award. These awards were made for the first time this year on the basis of extra-curricular activity alone.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

East Boston Leader
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 2,985

MAY 6 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At The Pops

Members and friends of Mystic Chapter No. 34 and Willena Canton Chapter No. 218, Order of the Eastern Star, will be welcomed by Mrs. Margaret Parsons, W. M. and Mrs. Cele Golden, W. M. at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, Thursday, May 26, 1955.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16th, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

[47]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Gazette (e)
HAVERHILL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 18,794

MAY 4 - 1955

Bradford College Girls To Attend Concert

More than 300 Bradford Junior College girls will attend the second pops program of the season tonight in Symphony Hall, Boston.

Alumnae, faculty members, and friends of the college will also attend.

Eight buses will provide transportation.

Miss Minsko Sasahara, former Bradford music instructor and Boston pianist, will play at the concert.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Jamaica Plain Citizen
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 11,800

...1955

Eastern Star Night At "Pops"

Members and friends of Blue Hills Chapter No. 53, Order of the Eastern Star, will be welcomed by Mrs. Louise Myntti, W.M. at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston on Thursday, May 26.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16 by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts O.E.S., for the evening of May ...

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Kennebec Journal (m)
AUGUSTA, Me.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 12,765

Augusta Girl Wins Award at Sargent

A week of traditional activi ties of seniors in Boston Ur versity's Sargent College of phy ical education, Cambridge, Mas which opened earlier with a di ner, will be climaxed Sund with a picnic and Boston Po Concert. Among winners awards was Miss Priscilla F. W kins, daughter of Mr. and M Austin H. Wilkins, Blaine Av

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

Regis Night at Pops

PLANS FOR THE 19TH ANNUAL Regis College Night tomorrow at the Pops concert are complete. The concert will be sponsored by the Regis College Guild: Mrs. William L. Graham of Milton, co-chairman (left) and chairman Mrs. Frank J. Dillon, also of Milton.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

West Roxbury Transcript
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 5,751

MAY 5 - 1955

Annual Simmons Night at Pops

The annual Simmons Night at Pops is being held on Tuesday, May 17, under the sponsorship of the Simmons Club of Boston. Simmons was one of the first colleges to hold "nights" at Pops, and the proceeds go to benefit the scholarship program.

The Glee Club, under the able direction of Burton Cleaves will sing. The Senior Flower Vendors with their trays of gardenias and carnations will add a colorful note.

Ilmi Saari Jones, a director of the club, is in charge and is assisted by Mary Massa. Reservations must be in by May 7.

Mrs. Richard P. Bonney of West Roxbury, president of the Boston Simmons Club, reports that many local graduates have already taken tables, and are anticipating an evening of delightful music in the company of their classmates.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Transcript
DEDHAM, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 4,294

MAY 6 - 1955

To Attend Eastern Star Pops Night

Members and friends of Con tentment Chapter No. 184, Order of the Eastern Star, will be welcomed by Mrs. Marjorie Speight, worthy matron, at the annual Eastern Star night at the Pops, Symphony Hall, Boston, on Thursday, May 26.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16, by the Grand Chapter o Massachusetts, O.E.S., for th evening of May 26. This con cert will benefit the benevo lences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-0068

Telegram
WOBURN, Mass.
Weekly

MAY 6 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At "Pops"

Members and friends of Aletheon Chapter No. 154 Order of the Eastern Star will be welcomed by Mrs. Jean Tait, W.M. at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, Thursday, May 26, 1955.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

Buzzelle's
ESTABLISHED 1888
BArclay 7-5371
PRESS CLIPPING BUREAU
165 Church Street - New York

BALTIMORE, MD.
EVENING SUN
Cir. D. 200,79[illegible]

MAY 6 1955

Books In Review

A Great Conductor's Reflections

I Am a Conductor. By Charles Munch. Translated by Leonard Burkat. Oxford University Press. $2.75.

ANYONE, whether he be layman, student or professional musician, will be richly rewarded by reading Charles Munch's little book.

In reality it is a series of essays, delicately written and filled with a sensitive awareness of what great music really means to people. The title itself might be misleading to some, for there are scores of conductors who would not hesitate to dwell fully on the I Am. Not Mr. Munch, for his one idea is to shed light on his profession, and he constantly avoids the personal element in what he has to say. For this reason, the book is, of course, all the better and, indeed, far more personal.

For generations the Munch family have been ministers, teachers or organists in the Protestant Alsatian churches.

—o—

Charles's father, Ernest Munch, was a teacher and organist, and his uncle, Eugene, was the teacher of Albert Schweitzer.

Both elder Munches studied in Berlin under the great August Haupt, and Eugene returned to Alsace to become the organist of the Temple Protestant in Mulhausen and the leader of the chief choral society. Ernest Munch became the organist of St. William's Church in Strasbourg, where, after 1884, all of the important choral literature from Bach on was performed.

It was in this rarified atmosphere that young Charles first caught the spirit and vision which only the finest music can give. Through his city passed the great of the day—Von Bülow, Nikisch, Strauss, Mahler, Weingartner, Massenet and Walter.

Charles became an excellent violinist, and with another brother, Fritz, a cellist, appeared frequently in public. Organ recitals by Widor were frequent; the violinists were legion, and their very names have become legendary — Kreisler, Sarasate, Ysaye and Enesco. Inspired by this rich musical fare, Charles went to Paris to study with Lucien Capet and, after the first World War, to Leipzig, where, under Wilhelm Furtwängler, he played violin at the first desk in the Gewandhaus Orchestra, whose marvelous hall was the model for our own Lyric Theater.

By 1932, Munch knew that he must conduct and, hating the new German nationalism, he decided to regain his identity as a Frenchman by going to Paris.

The rest is musical history, for Munch's fame soon spread throughout Europe and ultimately his reputation was world-wide. He dared to play Brahms and Bruckner in Paris and he soon became a champion of the latest contemporary music. Today, he and Monteux are the two greatest French conductors, respected and admired by all.

He believes that conducting "is not a profession at all, but a sacred calling, sometimes a priesthood, and often a disease—a disease from which the only escape is death."

—o—

Taking over the Boston Symphony in 1949 after Koussevitsky's long and illustrious tenure, Munch brought his simple ideals to America.

His respect for his audiences is boundless, for "we should never forget that it is for us to please those who listen. There is no bad public . . . the total responsibility is the conductor's," he says. The audience "comes to be enriched, instructed, fortified."

Munch also gives his reader an insight into both the mind and daily life of the conductor.

The reader gets some idea of the years that go into an apprenticeship; of how a rehearsal should be conducted and programs planned; of the virtual slavery of a dedicated musician, whether he be in the pit or on the podium.

In the end [he concludes] it is the public who writes our history, who names the masterpieces and the great interpreters—and it is hard to please. There is only one valid, certain, effective way to keep its favor: to practice our art with frankness and joy and to love music more than anything else in the world.

George Kent Bellows.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

West Roxbury Transcript
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 5,751

MAY 5 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At Boston Pops

Members and friesds of Roslindale Chapter, No. 104, and Contentment Chapter, No. 184, Order of Eastern Star, will be welcomed by Mrs. Laura Olsen, worthy matron, and Mrs. Marjorie Speight, worthy matron, at the annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall, Boston, Thursday, May 26.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16th, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O. E. S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Gazette (e)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 101,022

MAY 4 - 1955

Grand Chapter Pops Concert

The Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, Order of the Eastern Star will have its annual Pops Concert program May 26 in Symphony Hall, Boston.

Among worthy matrons who will be hostesses are Mrs. Olive M. West of Stella Chapter and Mrs. Jean S. Smith of Clement Chapter.

Proceeds will benefit lodge benevolences.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 10,315

MAY 5 1955

HISTADRUT "POPS"

The Board of Directors of the Greater Boston Israel Histadrut Committee has named Samuel D. Shapiro of Brookline, as Chairman of the 1955 Israel Night at Pops to be held on Thursday evening, June 16, at Symphony Hall.

Assisting Mr. Shapiro will be a Concert Committee headed by the honorary chairman, Oscar Sterman, who is also Honorary Chairman of the Campaign Committee.

The Concert, which has become a tradition since its establishment more than 15 years ago, features the music of the Boston Pops Orchestra under the direction of Arthur Fiedler and an outstanding guest artist.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

West Roxbury Transcript
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 5,751

MAY 5 - 1955

Beth Israel Junior Auxiliary Pops Night

The Beth Israel Hospital Junior Auxiliary will hold its 12th annual "Pops" evening on Tuesday, May 31, at Symphony Hall in Boston. This year's program book will be dedicated to Dr. Cecil G. Sheps, executive director of the hospital.

Ticket co-chairmen, Marilyn Schwartz and Beverly Weiss, announce that tickets may be purchased by contacting the Junior Auxiliary at the Beth Israel Hospital or any member of the organization.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
VARIETY

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-0068

Item (e)
CLINTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 3,292

MAY 3 - 1955

Bos[illegible] Open 70th Season

BOSTON (UP) - The 70th anniversary season of the Boston Pops concerts begins tonight but the principal figure will be absent for the first time in 26 years.

Harry Ellis Dickson will conduct the orchestra in place of Arthur Fiedler who is recuperating from surgery. Fiedler never before has missed an opening night on the podium.

Dickson, a violinist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is a long-time friend of Fiedler and has guest-conducted the Pops in the past.

The initial program will feature the Boston debut of California pianist Ozan Marsh in Liszt's "Dance of Death."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Kennebec Journal (m)
AUGUSTA, Me.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 12,765

Augusta Girl Wins Award at Sargent

A week of traditional activities of seniors in Boston University's Sargent College of physical education, Cambridge, Mass., which opened earlier with a dinner, will be climaxed Sunday with a picnic and Boston Pops Concert. Among winners of awards was Miss Priscilla F. Wilkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Austin H. Wilkins, Blaine Ave.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

Regis Night at Pops

PLANS FOR THE 19TH ANNUAL Regis College Night tomorrow at the Pops concert are complete. The concert will be sponsored by the Regis College Guild: Mrs. William L. Graham of Milton, co-chairman (left) and chairman Mrs. Frank J. Dillon, also of Milton.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

West Roxbury Transcript
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 5,751

MAY 5 - 1955

Annual Simmons Night at Pops

The annual Simmons Night at Pops is being held on Tuesday, May 17, under the sponsorship of the Simmons Club of Boston. Simmons was one of the first colleges to hold "nights" at Pops, and the proceeds go to benefit the scholarship program.

The Glee Club, under the able direction of Burton Cleaves will sing. The Senior Flower Vendors with their trays of gardenias and carnations will add a colorful note.

Ilmi Saari Jones, a director of the club, is in charge and is assisted by Mary Massa. Reservations must be in by May 7.

Mrs. Richard P. Bonney of West Roxbury, president of the Boston Simmons Club, reports that many local graduates have already taken tables, and are anticipating an evening of delightful music in the company of their classmates.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Transcript
DEDHAM, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 4,294

MAY 6 - 1955

To Attend Eastern Star Pops Night

Members and friends of Con[tentment] Chapter No. 184, Order of the Eastern Star, will be welcomed by Mrs. Marjorie Speight, worthy matron, at the annual Eastern Star night at the Pops, Symphony Hall, Boston, on Thursday, May 26.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening of May 26. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-0068

Telegram
WOBURN, Mass.
Weekly

MAY 6 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At "Pops"

Members and friends of Aletheon Chapter No. 154 Order of the Eastern Star will be welcomed by Mrs. Jean Tait, W.M. at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, Thursday, May 26, 1955.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

Buzzelle's
ESTABLISHED 1888
BArclay 7-5371
PRESS CLIPPING BUREAU
165 Church Street - New York

BALTIMORE, MD.
EVENING SUN
Cir. D. 200,795

MAY 6 1955

Books In Review

A Great Conductor's Reflections

I Am a Conductor. By Charles Munch. Translated by Leonard Burkat. Oxford University Press. $2.75.

ANYONE, whether he be layman, student or professional musician, will be richly rewarded by reading Charles Munch's little book.

In reality it is a series of essays, delicately written and filled with a sensitive awareness of what great music really means to people. The title itself might be misleading to some, for there are scores of conductors who would not hesitate to dwell fully on the I Am. Not Mr. Munch, for his one idea is to shed light on his profession, and he constantly avoids the personal element in what he has to say. For this reason, the book is, of course, all the better and, indeed, far more personal.

For generations the Munch family have been ministers, teachers or organists in the Protestant Alsatian churches.

—o—

Charles's father, Ernest Munch, was a teacher and organist, and his uncle, Eugene, was the teacher of Albert Schweitzer.

Both elder Munches studied in Berlin under the great August Haupt, and Eugene returned to Alsace to become the organist of the Temple Protestant in Mulhausen and the leader of the chief choral society. Ernest Munch became the organist of St. William's Church in Strasbourg, where, after 1884, all of the important choral literature from Bach on was performed.

It was in this rarified atmosphere that young Charles first caught the spirit and vision which only the finest music can give. Through his city passed the great of the day—Von Bülow, Nikisch, Strauss, Mahler, Weingartner, Massenet and Walter.

Charles became an excellent violinist, and with another brother, Fritz, a cellist, appeared frequently in public. Organ recitals by Widor were frequent; the violinists were legion, and their very names have become legendary — Kreisler, Sarasate, Ysaye and Enesco. Inspired by this rich musical fare, Charles went to Paris to study with Lucien Capet and, after the first World War, to Leipzig, where, under Wilhelm Furtwängler, he played violin at the first desk in the Gewandhaus Orchestra, whose marvelous hall was the model for our own Lyric Theater.

By 1932, Munch knew that he must conduct and, hating the new German nationalism, he decided to regain his identity as a Frenchman by going to Paris.

The rest is musical history, for Munch's fame soon spread throughout Europe and ultimately his reputation was world-wide. He dared to play Brahms and Bruckner in Paris and he soon became a champion of the latest contemporary music. Today, he and Monteux are the two greatest French conductors, respected and admired by all.

He believes that conducting "is not a profession at all, but a sacred calling, sometimes a priesthood, and often a disease—a disease from which the only escape is death."

—o—

Taking over the Boston Symphony in 1949 after Koussevitsky's long and illustrious tenure, Munch brought his simple ideals to America.

His respect for his audiences is boundless, for "we should never forget that it is for us to please those who listen. There is no bad public . . . the total responsibility is the conductor's," he says. The audience "comes to be enriched, instructed, fortified."

Munch also gives his reader an insight into both the mind and daily life of the conductor.

The reader gets some idea of the years that go into an apprenticeship; of how a rehearsal should be conducted and programs planned; of the virtual slavery of a dedicated musician, whether he be in the pit or on the podium.

In the end [he concludes] it is the public who writes our history, who names the masterpieces and the great interpreters—and it is hard to please. There is only one valid, certain, effective way to keep its favor: to practice our art with frankness and joy and to love music more than anything else in the world.

George Kent Bellows.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

West Roxbury Transcript
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 5,751

MAY 5 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At Boston Pops

Members and friesds of Roslindale Chapter, No. 104, and Contentment Chapter, No. 184, Order of Eastern Star, will be welcomed by Mrs. Laura Olsen, worthy matron, and Mrs. Marjorie Speight, worthy matron, at the annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall, Boston, Thursday, May 26.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16th, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O. E. S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Gazette (e)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 101,022

MAY 4 - 1955

Grand Chapter Pops Concert

The Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, Order of the Eastern Star will have its annual Pops Concert program May 26 in Symphony Hall, Boston.

Among worthy matrons who will be hostesses are Mrs. Olive M. West of Stella Chapter and Mrs. Jean S. Smith of Clement Chapter.

Proceeds will benefit lodge benevolences.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 10,315

MAY 5 1955

HISTADRUT "POPS"

The Board of Directors of the Greater Boston Israel Histadrut Committee has named Samuel D. Shapiro of Brookline, as Chairman of the 1955 Israel Night at Pops to be held on Thursday evening, June 16, at Symphony Hall.

Assisting Mr. Shapiro will be a Concert Committee headed by the honorary chairman, Oscar Sterman, who is also Honorary Chairman of the Campaign Committee.

The Concert, which has become a tradition since its establishment more than 15 years ago, features the music of the Boston Pops Orchestra under the direction of Arthur Fiedler and an outstanding guest artist.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

West Roxbury Transcript
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 5,751

KINNEAR INSURANCE AGENCY, INC.
You on insurance coverages to fit your needs. Call us, or stop in and see us for advice. No obligation.
Next time we have a fire it may be your home!

Independent
Circ. 27,538

MAY 3 - 1955

Pops Season Opening Minus Maestro Fiedler

BOSTON (UP)—The 70th anniversary season of the Boston Pops concerts begins tonight but the principal figure will be absent for the first time in 26 years.

Harry Ellis Dickson will conduct the orchestra in place of Arthur Fiedler who is recuperating from surgery. Fiedler never before has missed an opening night on the podium.

Dickson, a violinist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is a long-time friend of Fiedler and has guest-conducted the Pops in the past.

The initial program will feature the Boston debut of California pianist Ozan Marsh in Liszt's "Dance of Death."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Kennebec Journal (m)
AUGUSTA, Me.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 12,765

Augusta Girl Wins Award at Sargent

A week of traditional activities of seniors in Boston University's Sargent College of physical education, Cambridge, Mass., which opened earlier with a dinner, will be climaxed Sunday with a picnic and Boston Pops Concert. Among winners of awards was Miss Priscilla F. Wilkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Austin H. Wilkins, Blaine Ave.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

Regis Night at Pops

PLANS FOR THE 19TH ANNUAL Regis College Night tomorrow at the Pops concert are complete. The concert will be sponsored by the Regis College Guild: Mrs. William L. Graham of Milton, co-chairman (left) and chairman Mrs. Frank J. Dillon, also of Milton.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

West Roxbury Transcript
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 5,751

MAY 5 - 1955

Annual Simmons Night at Pops

The annual Simmons Night at Pops is being held on Tuesday, May 17, under the sponsorship of the Simmons Club of Boston. Simmons was one of the first colleges to hold "nights" at Pops, and the proceeds go to benefit the scholarship program.

The Glee Club, under the able direction of Burton Cleaves will sing. The Senior Flower Vendors with their trays of gardenias and carnations will add a colorful note.

Ilmi Saari Jones, a director of the club, is in charge and is assisted by Mary Massa. Reservations must be in by May 7.

Mrs. Richard P. Bonney of West Roxbury, president of the Boston Simmons Club, reports that many local graduates have already taken tables, and are anticipating an evening of delightful music in the company of their classmates.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Transcript
DEDHAM, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 4,294

MAY 6 - 1955

To Attend Eastern Star Pops Night

Members and friends of Con[tentment] Chapter No. 184, Order of the Eastern Star, will be welcomed by Mrs. Marjorie Speight, worthy matron, at the annual Eastern Star night at the Pops, Symphony Hall, Boston, on Thursday, May 26.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening of May 26. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-0068

Telegram
WOBURN, Mass.
Weekly

MAY 6 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At "Pops"

Members and friends of Aletheon Chapter No. 154 Order of the Eastern Star will be welcomed by Mrs. Jean Tait, W.M. at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, Thursday, May 26, 1955.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

Buffelle's
ESTABLISHED 1888
BArclay 7-5371
PRESS CLIPPING BUREAU
165 Church Street - New York

BALTIMORE, MD.
EVENING SUN
Cir. D. 200,795

MAY 6 1955

Books In Review

A Great Conductor's Reflections

I Am a Conductor. By Charles Munch. Translated by Leonard Burkat. Oxford University Press. $2.75.

ANYONE, whether he be layman, student or professional musician, will be richly rewarded by reading Charles Munch's little book.

In reality it is a series of essays, delicately written and filled with a sensitive awareness of what great music really means to people. The title itself might be misleading to some, for there are scores of conductors who would not hesitate to dwell fully on the I Am. Not Mr. Munch, for his one idea is to shed light on his profession, and he constantly avoids the personal element in what he has to say. For this reason, the book is, of course, all the better and, indeed, far more personal.

For generations the Munch family have been ministers, teachers or organists in the Protestant Alsatian churches.

—o—

Charles's father, Ernest Munch, was a teacher and organist, and his uncle, Eugene, was the teacher of Albert Schweitzer.

Both elder Munches studied in Berlin under the great August Haupt, and Eugene returned to Alsace to become the organist of the Temple Protestant in Mulhausen and the leader of the chief choral society. Ernest Munch became the organist of St. William's Church in Strasbourg, where, after 1884, all of the important choral literature from Bach on was performed.

It was in this rarified atmosphere that young Charles first caught the spirit and vision which only the finest music can give. Through his city passed the great of the day—Von Bülow, Nikisch, Strauss, Mahler, Weingartner, Massenet and Walter.

Charles became an excellent violinist, and with another brother, Fritz, a cellist, appeared frequently in public. Organ recitals by Widor were frequent; the violinists were legion, and their very names have become legendary — Kreisler, Sarasate, Ysaye and Enesco. Inspired by this rich musical fare, Charles went to Paris to study with Lucien Capet and, after the first World War, to Leipzig, where, under Wilhelm Furtwängler, he played violin at the first desk in the Gewandhaus Orchestra, whose marvelous hall was the model for our own Lyric Theater.

By 1932, Munch knew that he must conduct and, hating the new German nationalism, he decided to regain his identity as a Frenchman by going to Paris.

The rest is musical history, for Munch's fame soon spread throughout Europe and ultimately his reputation was world-wide. He dared to play Brahms and Bruckner in Paris and he soon became a champion of the latest contemporary music. Today, he and Monteux are the two greatest French conductors, respected and admired by all.

He believes that conducting "is not a profession at all, but a sacred calling, sometimes a priesthood, and often a disease—a disease from which the only escape is death."

—o—

Taking over the Boston Symphony in 1949 after Koussevitsky's long and illustrious tenure, Munch brought his simple ideals to America.

His respect for his audiences is boundless, for "we should never forget that it is for us to please those who listen. There is no bad public . . . the total responsibility is the conductor's," he says. The audience "comes to be enriched, instructed, fortified."

Munch also gives his reader an insight into both the mind and daily life of the conductor.

The reader gets some idea of the years that go into an apprenticeship; of how a rehearsal should be conducted and programs planned; of the virtual slavery of a dedicated musician, whether he be in the pit or on the podium.

In the end [he concludes] it is the public who writes our history, who names the masterpieces and the great interpreters—and it is hard to please. There is only one valid, certain, effective way to keep its favor: to practice our art with frankness and joy and to love music more than anything else in the world.

George Kent Bellows.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

West Roxbury Transcript
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 5,751

MAY 5 - 1955

Eastern Star Night At Boston Pops

Members and friesds of Roslindale Chapter, No. 104, and Contentment Chapter, No. 184, Order of Eastern Star, will be welcomed by Mrs. Laura Olsen, worthy matron, and Mrs. Marjorie Speight, worthy matron, at the annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall, Boston, Thursday, May 26.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16th, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O. E. S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 10,315

HISTADRUT "POPS"

The Board of Directors of the Greater Boston Israel Histadrut Committee has named Samuel D. Shapiro of Brookline, as Chairman of the 1955 Israel Night at Pops, to be held on Thursday evening, June 16, at Symphony Hall.

Assisting Mr. Shapiro will be a Concert Committee headed by the honorary chairman, Oscar Sterman, who is also Honorary Chairman of the Campaign Com...

KINNEAR INSURANCE AGENCY, INC.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
VARIETY

MAY 4 1955

70th Boston Pops Year

Boston, May 3.

Tonight (Tues.) starts 70th Boston Pops season at Symphony Hall and the 26th successive one under the direction of Arthur Fiedler. A Boston tradition, with refreshments served at tables covering the floor of the hall, and to balcony patrons during intermissions, concerts will be given nightly through May, continuing through June with Sundays excepted, to July 1.

Programs will emcompass pop to standards, with Boston Symphony Orch players as group's mainstay. Fiedler, however, won't be conducting, as he's convalescing from a recent operation at New England Medical Center. First concerts of the season are to be led by Harry Ellis Dickson, a member of the orch's first violin section.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Gazette (e)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 101,022

MAY 4 - 1955

Grand Chapter Pops Concert

The Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, Order of the Eastern Star will have its annual Pops Concert program May 26 in Symphony Hall, Boston.

Among worthy matrons who will be hostesses are Mrs. Olive M. West of Stella Chapter and Mrs. Jean S. Smith of Clement Chapter.

Proceeds will benefit lodge benevolences.

Sunday Register
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 91,501

MAY 1 - 1955

Jazz Will Vie With Symphony At Berkshire

LENOX, Mass. (AP) — The Berkshire Music Barn and what's known as the shed are "just down the road apiece" from each other—but the music that will emanate from each this summer will be a apart.

The shed houses the Boston Symphony Orchestra, where each year it performs the musical works of such composers as Brahms, Beethoven and Bach.

From the Berkshire Music Barn will come the notes reflecting boogie-woogie, bop and backroom jazz.

Stephanie and Philip Barber said in New York yesterday they will open the Music Barn for jazz this summer and already have lined up such performers as Count Basie, Dizzy Gillespie, Coleman Hawkins, Thelonius Monk, Art Farmer, Teddy Charles, Richard Dyer-Bennett and others.

The jazzmen will give Sunday night concerts and hold work shops, give lectures and indulge in just plain jam sessions during the week.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Ind. Democrat
Circ. 226,942

MAY 1 - 1955

A gay and novel program is promised for the Women's City Club Night at Pops Wednesday at Symphony Hall. Supper parties at the club, 40 Beacon st., before the concert will add to the evening's pleasure. Members of the special projects committee of the club are sponsors for the evening.

News (e)
SALEM, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 23,044

MAY 3 - 1955

Men's Singing Club of Beverly To Give Concert

Celebrating National Music week and the 45th anniversary of the Beverly Men's Singing club, the annual spring concert in the new Beverly Memorial Junior High school auditorium Thursday at 8.15 will feature a program designed to appeal to all classes of music lovers.

The pioneer Male Glee club that has brought musical entertainment to the devotees of "better music, better sung," for nearly half a century, will feature Roger Voisin, trumpet soloist of Boston Symphony orchestra, as guest artist. Voisin at 16, was the youngest musician ever to become a member of the world famous organization. He is a member of the faculty at New England Conservatory of Music, Boston University college of music and Berkshire Music center.

Also on the program will be the Choristers, a teen-age mixed choral group; an ensemble of the Men's Singing club, Andover Male choir, The Choristers and the Andover Woman's Choral society.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.
Democrat & Chronicle
Circ. D. 117,818 - S. 172,719
MAY 11 1955

Fred Fennell to Conduct Boston Pops Series

FREDERICK Fennell, member of the conducting faculty of the Eastman School of Music, has been invited to conduct a series of seven concerts with the Boston Pops Orchestra, beginning Tuesday evening, May 17, in Symphony Hall.

Arthur Fiedler, regular conductor of the Boston Pops, has been host to Fennell for many seasons, but this year's invitation is the most extensive yet offered.

In the seven programs, Fennell will conduct approximately 75 pieces of music ranging from light classics and novelties to standard symphonic works.

The Boston Pops are in their 70th season of presenting popular music in an informal atmosphere. Light food and drink are served during the concerts, which are played to sold-out houses for ten consecutive weeks in May and June.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Leader-Herald
EVERETT, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 12,900

MAY 12 1955

POPS COMMITTEE

The Boston Pops Orchestra will be the highlight May 16 at Symphony Hall for Emmanuel College Alumnae and the local committee includes Miss Roselmina Indrisano, Miss Delores Zizza and Mrs. Peter Gravalese.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Transcript
WINTHROP, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 3,960

MAY 12 1955

Eastern Star Will Sponsor "Pops" Night

Members and friends of the Colonial Chapter No. 96 Order of the Eastern Star will be welcomed by Mrs. Grace Westman, W. M. at the annual Eastern Star Night at the "Pops" in Symphony Hall, Baston, Thursday evening May 26.

The floor and first balconv have been reserved until May 1(by the Grand Chapter of Massa chusett, O.E.S., for the evening This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Item (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 20,701

MAY 4 - 1955

SWAMPSCOTT PARENTS TO SPONSOR POPS CONCERT—Members of St. John's Parent Association of Swampscott will sponsor a pops concert Friday evening, May 20, at the Lynn Classical High School auditorium. Active committee workers include: Seated, left to right, Mrs. Thomas Greely, Mrs. Francis Delano, Mrs. Joseph MacDuff, Mrs. James H. Pedrick, Jr., general chairman; Mrs. Thomas Gandolfo and Mrs. Laurence D'Angelo. Standing, Mrs. John Healy, Mrs. Edward Hendrickson, Mrs. Carl Pagano, Mrs. John P. Drislane, Mrs. Ernest Sullivan, Mrs. Carl Olson, Mrs. Walter Boyden, Mrs. Joseph Peters, Mrs. Stanley Napierski and Mrs. Charles Quinn, musical director.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

The Pilot
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Catholic
Circ. 85,432

MAY 14 1955

YOUTH SPEAKS

Try the Pops Concert; It's as Boston as Beans

By JOHN F. RYAN

The audience hushed; the Boston Pops Orchestra poised itself and as Conductor Arthur Fiedler lowered his baton the rumble of the kettle drum introduced the "gonest" Dixieland version of "Alexander's Ragtime Band" this writer has ever heard. Was it a shocking mistake? No, just a normal part of the musical show which is as Bostonian as baked beans—the Boston Pops.

RYAN

You've probably seen advertisements about the Pops in the newspapers or on billboards, but like myself the words "Symphony Orchestra" scared you away. "Long-hair stuff" was probably your disinterested comment, and yet the Boston Symphony is really a guarantee that every song will be performed perfectly.

A sample program would include such familiar selections as "Clair de Lune," Rachmaninoff's "Piano Concerto No. 2," better known as the ballad "Full Moon and Empty Arms," "The Toreador Song" from Carmen, a Strauss waltz, "Rhapsody in Blue" played by the guest soloist, and closing with either "Look Sharp, Be Sharp" or a medley from "South Pacific."

One of Leroy Anderson's hits or a novelty is also a must on any program. These novelties are really great. Two years ago it was a parody on Johnny Ray's "Cry." Last year a take off on a hit parade number called, "Low Tide" and this year it's "The Glow Worm Turns."

Whether you sit in the second balcony or at the tables on the floor where refreshments are served (from which the Pops derived its name), you can see and hear perfectly. And the price range is from 50c to $2.50.

For visitors to Boston the Pops is a must. It is unique and famous all over the world and luckily for us Bostonians it is here in our city. So fellow teen-agers, if you're looking for a date that's different with a low tariff and a guaranteed good time; if you can tap your foot in beat, hum or whistle, ...

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 185,401

Juke Box
I love the

News (e)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Democratic
Circ. 91,975

MAY 4 - 1955

Miss Ellen Benner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Benner of Craiwell Ave., West Springfield, a freshman at Lasell Junior College, has been chosen by Dean Ruth Rothenberger to sell gardenias at Lasell Night pops concert, Friday, the 13th, in Boston Symphony Hall. Miss Benner was the guest of Swift Warren at the spring festival held by Colgate University.

* * *

Mrs. Leota B. Chandler of Kenwood Ter., will leave Monday for a visit with friends in Minneapolis, Minn., Cheyenne and Denver, Col.

MAY 13 1955

Leo Litwin plays Weber's "Concertstuck" for piano and orchestra next Wednesday evening at the Pops.

Sunday Register
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 91,501

MAY 1 - 1955

Jazz Will Vie With Symphony At Berkshire

LENOX, Mass. (AP) — The Berkshire Music Barn and what's known as the shed are "just down the road apiece" from each other—but the music that will emanate from each this summer will be a apart.

The shed houses the Boston Symphony Orchestra, where each year it performs the musical works of such composers as Brahms, Beethoven and Bach.

From the Berkshire Music Barn will come the notes reflecting boogie-woogie, bop and backroom jazz.

Stephanie and Philip Barber said in New York yesterday they will open the Music Barn for jazz this summer and already have lined up such performers as Count Basie, Dizzy Gillespie, Coleman Hawkins, Thelonius Monk, Art Farmer, Teddy Charles, Richard Dyer-Bennett and others.

The jazzmen will give Sunday night concerts and hold work shops, give lectures and indulge in just plain jam sessions during the week.

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Ind. Democrat
Circ. 226,942

MAY 1 - 1955

A gay and novel program is promised for the Women's City Club Night at Pops Wednesday at Symphony Hall. Supper parties at the club, 40 Beacon st., before the concert will add to the evening's pleasure. Members of the special projects committee of the club are sponsors for the evening.

News (e)
SALEM, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 23,044

MAY 3 - 1955

Men's Singing Club of Beverly To Give Concert

Celebrating National Music week and the 45th anniversary of the Beverly Men's Singing club, the annual spring concert in the new Beverly Memorial Junior High school auditorium Thursday at 8.15 will feature a program designed to appeal to all classes of music lovers.

The pioneer Male Glee club that has brought musical entertainment to the devotees of "better music, better sung," for nearly half a century, will feature Roger Voisin, trumpet soloist of Boston Symphony orchestra, as guest artist. Voisin at 16 was the youngest musician ever to become a member of the world famous organization. He is a member of the faculty at New England Conservatory of Music, Boston University college of music and Berkshire Music center.

Also on the program will be the Choristers, a teen-age mixed choral group; an ensemble of the Men's Singing club, Andover Male choir, The Choristers and the Andover Woman's Choral society.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.
Democrat & Chronicle
Circ. D. 117,818 - S. 172,719
MAY 11 1955

Fred Fennell to Conduct Boston Pops Series

FREDERICK Fennell, member of the conducting faculty of the Eastman School of Music, has been invited to conduct a series of seven concerts with the Boston Pops Orchestra, beginning Tuesday evening, May 17, in Symphony Hall.

Arthur Fiedler, regular conductor of the Boston Pops, has been host to Fennell for many seasons, but this year's invitation is the most extensive yet offered.

In the seven programs, Fennell will conduct approximately 75 pieces of music ranging from light classics and novelties to standard symphonic works.

The Boston Pops are in their 70th season of presenting popular music in an informal atmosphere. Light food and drink are served during the concerts, which are played to sold-out houses for ten consecutive weeks in May and June.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Leader-Herald
EVERETT, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 12,900

MAY 12 1955

POPS COMMITTEE

The Boston Pops Orchestra will be the highlight May 16 at Symphony Hall for Emmanuel College Alumnae and the local committee includes Miss Roselmina Indrisano, Miss Delores Zizza and Mrs. Peter Gravalese.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Transcript
WINTHROP, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 3,960

MAY 12 1955

Eastern Star Will Sponsor "Pops" Night

Members and friends of the Colonial Chapter No. 96 Order of the Eastern Star will be welcomed by Mrs. Grace Westman, W. M. at the annual Eastern Star Night at the "Pops" in Symphony Hall, Baston, Thursday evening May 26.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Item (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 20,701

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

The Pilot
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Catholic
Circ. 85,432

MAY 14 1955

YOUTH SPEAKS

Try the Pops Concert; It's as Boston as Beans

By JOHN F. RYAN

The audience hushed; the Boston Pops Orchestra poised itself and as Conductor Arthur Fiedler lowered his baton the rumble of the kettle drum introduced the "gonest" Dixieland version of "Alexander's Ragtime Band" this writer has ever heard. Was it a shocking mistake? No, just a normal part of the musical show which is as Bostonian as baked beans—the Boston Pops.

RYAN

You've probably seen advertisements about the Pops in the newspapers or on billboards, but like myself the words "Symphony Orchestra" scared you away. "Long-hair stuff" was probably your disinterested comment, and yet the Boston Symphony is really a guarantee that every song will be performed perfectly.

A sample program would include such familiar selections as "Clair de Lune," Rachmaninoff's "Piano Concerto No. 2," better known as the ballad "Full Moon and Empty Arms," "The Toreador Song" from Carmen, a Strauss waltz, "Rhapsody in Blue" played by the guest soloist, and closing with either "Look Sharp, Be Sharp" or a medley from "South Pacific."

One of Leroy Anderson's hits or a novelty is also a must on any program. These novelties are really great. Two years ago it was a parody on Johnny Ray's "Cry." Last year a take off on a hit parade number called, "Low Tide" and this year it's "The Glow Worm Turns."

Whether you sit in the second balcony or at the tables on the floor where refreshments are served (from which the Pops derived its name), you can see and hear perfectly. And the price range is from 50c to $2.50.

For visitors to Boston the Pops is a must. It is unique and famous all over the world and luckily for us Bostonians it is here in our city. So fellow teen-agers, if you're looking for a date that's different with a low tariff and a guaranteed good time; if you can tap your foot in beat, hum or whistle; if you enjoy Juke Box Saturday Night—you'll love the Boston Pops.

News (e)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Democratic
Circ. 91,975

MAY 4 - 1955

Miss Ellen Benner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Benner of Craiwell Ave., West Springfield, a freshman at Lasell Junior College, has been chosen by Dean Ruth Rothenberger to sell gardenias at Lasell Night pops concert, Friday, the 13th, in Boston Symphony Hall. Miss Benner was the guest of Swift Warren at the spring festival held by Colgate University.

* * *

Mrs. Leota B. Chandler of Kenwood Ter., will leave Monday for a visit with friends in Minneapolis, Minn., Cheyenne and Denver, Col.

Leo Litwin plays Weber's "Concertstuck" for piano and orchestra next Wednesday evening at the Pops.

MAY 4 - 1955

SWAMPSCOTT PARENTS TO SPONSOR POPS CONCERT—Members of St. John's Parent Association of Swampscott will sponsor a pops concert Friday evening, May 20, at the Lynn Classical High School auditorium. Active committee workers include: Seated, left to right, Mrs. Thomas Greely, Mrs. Francis Delano, Mrs. Joseph MacDuff, Mrs. James H. Pedrick, Jr., general chairman; Mrs. Thomas Gandolfo and Mrs. Laurence D'Angelo. Standing, Mrs. John Healy, Mrs. Edward Hendrickson, Mrs. Carl Pagano, Mrs. John P. Drislane, Mrs. Ernest Sullivan, Mrs. Carl Olson, Mrs. Walter Boyden, Mrs. Joseph Peters, Mrs. Stanley Napierski and Mrs. Charles Quinn, musical director.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 5 - 1955

(Herald Staff Photo by Calvin Campbell)

NO LOVE IN BLOOM—Violinist Jack Benny didn't play his favorite tune in his appearance with the Pops Orchestra at Symphony Hall last night but he showed the capacity crowd that there's nothing funny about his bow and fiddle when he wants to be serious.

Waukegan's Gift to Music

Crowd at Pops Thrilled by Violinist Jack Benny

By MARY CREMMEN

Jack Benny looked down from the window of his suite at the Ritz Carlton: "I haven't been here since the Tea Party—

—boy, things have changed." He waved a hand toward the buildings that stand between the hotel and the Charles River. "They must be new."

Jack is in town to receive one of three awards that will be given tonight by the Massachusetts Committee of Catholics, Protestants, and Jews. But last night he had quite a different experience — Waukegan's most famous violinist made his debut in Symphony Hall.

But that is getting too far ahead of the story. The evening began with dinner in Jack's suite. When Irving Fein, director of public relations for C. B. S. Radio in Hollywood, asked the waiter for a menu, the comedian let out a roar, "You mean you've come all the way to Boston and don't know you have to eat fish chowder?"

In case you think he was kidding, I should add here that Jack finished a whole tureen of it.

As dinner went on there was no doubt that there has probably never been a celebrity with a pleasanter, more attractive manner.

He admitted that the Tea Party really wasn't his last trip to Boston. "I used to work at Keith's, Boston and Philadelphia were my favorite stops. I like the audiences."

He thought a moment, "They had class."

Unlike many comedians who feel they must be funny off-camera, Jack speaks fluently on all kinds of subjects. In one of his more serious moments, he declared rather wistfully, "I go to all kinds of places and see all kinds of things, but I always feel bad about not having an education. It's so important in life."

Also at the dinner were Dorothy Sweeney, Boston, and Harvey Struthers, WEEI. We were all just about ready for a second French pastry when Michael Kelleher, one of Boston's most public spirited citizens, appeared to take us all to Symphony.

By the time we arrived there it must have been 9 o'clock. The concert had begun. Everyone was seated, intent on the music. Jack could slip in—almost unnoticed.

He never took his attention from guest soloist Mineko Sasahara as she played a piano concerto by Saint-Saens. He leaned over to whisper to me. "Don't you love the way she attacks the piano? Wonderful? Great?"

But although Jack's attention never wavered from the stage, word of his presence was making its way along the grapevine. You could almost see it travel. A head would turn, take a look to make sure, then lean toward whoever was next. It went down rows and across aisles, and soon as the

The listeners seemed to hold their breath, strain their ears listening for just one sour note. But the Waukegan master played without a flaw. Occasionally he beamed down at the photographers clustered by the stage and once he called out to the audience, "Here comes the hard part—if I don't go fast I'm dead."

What followed the finale was like an explosion. If anyone applauded more vigorously than the audience it was the musicians.

With just a suggestion of a smile, Jack strolled off stage. A few minutes later we were back in the car. He just sat there in the back seat beaming, laughing, slapping his knee.

The first thing he said was, "You must admit I've got guts walking out there and playing it straight when they expected 'Love in Bloom'." He shook his head.

"It was so much more fun than telling jokes—I can do that anytime."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 285,839

Benny Stars With Violin At the Pops

By HOWARD FITZPATRICK

If you happen to be one of those TV or movie fans who think that Jack Benny's violin is just another prop and that actually he can't play a single good note—forget it; you're wrong.

He wowed 'em at the season's second Pops concert at Symphony Hall last night. And we don't mean [illegible] of the audience which sat out front and paid. He just knocked those listeners into the aisles.

Special Warmup

It was back stage that he really went over the top—with about as tough an audience any musician ever found himself facing—members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

He didn't sit down to play. He shushed them. "They can hear you people out front," warned the shusher.

Continued on Page 18

Busy Day

"Thanks, pal," said Benny, obviously glad to have his rehearsal stint over, "that's the hardest work I've done in eight weeks."

It was like that from the moment yesterday afternoon when he clambered out of his train at South Station until he went to bed. First thing he wanted when he got off the train was a cold drink—a soft one. There was quite a delegation on hand to greet him, among them Lieutenant Governor Whittier, Ben G. Shapiro, Michael T. Kelleher and a host of others.

The soft drinks were set up at the soda fountain. Who paid? [illegible]'re wrong again if you are [illegible] of those ultra-Benny TV [illegible] movie fans. It was Benny [illegible] paid. And he waved aside [illegible] change for a $2 bill.

He wore a snappy gray fedora [illegible] horned-rimmed glasses gave [illegible] the look of a State st. broke[illegible] her than one of the nation's [illegible]-ranking comedians. His nic[illegible] tie was conservative and [illegible] if his shoes were loafers [illegible] had that comfortable look.

[illegible]aits Grandchild

[illegible]is plans? Well, he'll start a [illegible] TV show around Oct. 1. [illegible]ugh, between you and Benny, [illegible] sponsor would like to have [illegible] move it forward a few [illegible]ks. On his immediate agenda [illegible] go to the coast for some [illegible] shows which will be canned [illegible]m. He simply must be back [illegible] New York in July. That's [illegible]n his daughter, Mrs. Seth [illegible]ker, is anticipating a visit [illegible] the stork.

[illegible]ctually he was on the stage [illegible] minutes at the Symphony. [illegible]'t utter a word. It was all [illegible] omime. The piece was [illegible]das by Monty. Benny's [illegible]le face did the talking. His [illegible]e produced the music. And [illegible]ave a perfect imitation, the [illegible]cians said later, of about [illegible] top violinist of the last [illegible]ry.

[illegible] the audience missed the [illegible]tions, the musicians didn't. [illegible] he left the stage he got a [illegible]ndous ovation from the [illegible] Pops fans. Also the entire violin section rose as one man, holding their violins aloft in their own salute.

Then, soon as possible, led by violinist Victor Manusevitch they followed him backstage. They wanted more. "We want," said Manusevitch, "to find out how the guy does it. He's terrific."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 5 - 1955

Bows After Bow

(Traveler Staff Photo by Calvin Campbell)

FAMOUS VIOLINIST Jack Benny bows to the crowd at Symphony Hall after guest appearance with the Pops Orchestra. He holds pot of flowers presented for performance. Comedian showed audience he can play a serious fiddle when he wants to.

(Globe Photo by Gil Friedberg)

"LOVE IN BLOOM"—Jack Benny performs his famed interpretation of the old favorite with Rosario "Rosy" Mazzio, personnel manager of Boston Pops Orchestra. Michael J. Kelleher, center, listens closely. The comedian performed later with the Pops Orchestra.

Sweet Music by Jack Jack Benny's violin playing wins acclaim of experts. Left to right: Rosario Mazzeo, personnel manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Jack Benny, Michael T. Kelleher, trustee; and Thomas D. Perry, Jr., manager.

[50]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 5 - 1955

(Herald Staff Photo by Calvin Campbell)

NO LOVE IN BLOOM—Violinist Jack Benny didn't play his f[illegible] tune in his appearance with the Pops Orchestra at Symphony Hall last night but he showed the capacity crowd that there's nothing funny about his bow and fiddle when he wants to be serious.

Waukegan's Gift to Music

Crowd at Pops Thrilled by Violinist Jack Benny

By MARY CREMMEN

Jack Benny looked down from the window of his suite at the Ritz Carlton: "I haven't been here since the Tea Party—

—boy, things have changed." He waved a hand toward the buildings that stand between the hotel and the Charles River. "They must be new."

As dinner went on there was no doubt that there has probably never been a celebrity with a pleasanter, more attractive manner.

He admitted that the Tea Party really wasn't his last trip to Boston. "I used to work at Keith's, Boston and Philadelphia were my favorite stops. I like the audiences."

He thought a moment, "They [illegible]" many comedians who must be funny off- ack speaks fluently on of subjects. In one of serious moments, he rather wistfully, "I go nds of places and see of things, but I al- bad about not having tion. It's so important the dinner were Dorothy Boston, and Harvey WEEI. We were all t ready for a second astry when Michael Kel- of Boston's most public itizens, appeared to take Symphony.

time we arrived there it e been 9 o'clock. The ad begun. Everyone was tent on the music. Jack in—almost unnoticed. er took his attention from oist Mineko Sasahara as ed a piano concerto by ns. He leaned over to to me. "Don't you love the attacks the piano? Won- Great?"

lthough Jack's attention wavered from the stage, his presence was making along the grapevine. You could almost see it travel. A head would turn, take a look to make sure, then lean toward whoever was nearest. It went down rows and across aisles, and soon as the made 'em all laugh, however, from the newest trombonist in the organization to Conductor Harry Dickson himself when he announced he was going to play for them in a special warmup session.

They were all sitting around waiting their call to the stage. The perennial 39-year-older dug out his fiddle.

"You know," he said, "when I go out there I'm going to make them forget all about Jascha Heifetz."

And he did for the next 15 minutes. He had them—proved musicians all—calling for more.

Benny, in Boston for a citation from the Massachusetts Committee of Catholics, Protestants and Jews at the Hotel Statler tonight, can play that fiddle.

He has the admiration of the Boston Symphony members, every one of them. They heard that rehearsal before he went on stage at the Pops. They cheered him until someone came in and shushed them. "They can hear you people out front," warned the shusher.

Busy Day

"Thanks, pal," said Benny, obviously glad to have his rehearsal stint over, "that's the hardest work I've done in eight weeks."

It was like that from the moment yesterday afternoon when he clambered out of his train at South Station until he went to bed. First thing he wanted when he got off the train was a cold drink—a soft one. There was quite a delegation on hand to greet him, among them Lieutenant Governor Whittier, Ben G. Shapiro, Michael T. Kelleher and a host of others.

The soft drinks were set up at the soda fountain. Who paid? u're wrong again if you are of those ultra-Benny TV l movie fans. It was Benny o paid. And he waved aside change for a $2 bill.

He wore a snappy gray fedora e horned-rimmed glasses gave the look of a State st. broke her than one of the nation's -ranking comedians. His nic e tie was conservative an n if his shoes were loafers y had that comfortable look aits Grandchild

lis plans? Well, he'll start a TV show around Oct. 1. ugh, between you and Benny, sponsor would like to have move it forward a few ks. On his immediate agenda l go to the coast for some shows which will be panned lim. He simply must be back New York in July. That's n his daughter, Mrs. Seth ker, is anticipating a visit n the stork.

ctually he was on the stage minutes at the Symphony. n't utter a word. It was all tomime. The piece was rdas by Monty. Benny's le face did the talking. His le produced the music. And ave a perfect imitation, the icians said later, of about y top violinist of the last ury.

the audience missed the itions, the musicians didn't. n he left the stage he got a endous ovation from the Pops fans. Also the entire violin section rose as one man, holding their violins aloft in their own salute.

Then, soon as possible, led by violinist Victor Manusevitch they followed him backstage. They wanted more. "We want," said Manusevitch, "to find out how the guy does it. He's terrific."

The listeners seemer to hold their breath, strain their ears listening for just one sour note. But the Waukegan master played without a flaw. Occasionally he beamed down at the photographers clustered by the stage and once he called out to the audience, "Here comes the hard part—if I don't go fast I'm dead."

What followed the finale was like an explosion. If anyone applauded more vigorously than the audience it was the musicians.

With just a suggestion of a smile, Jack strolled off stage. A few minutes later we were back in the car. He just sat there in the back seat beaming, laughing, slapping his knee.

The first thing he said was, "You must admit I've got guts walking out there and playing it straight when they expected 'Love in Bloom'." He shook his head.

"It was so much more fun than telling jokes—I can do that anytime."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 5 - 1955

Bows After Bow

Sweet Music by Jack Jack Benny's violin playing wins acclaim of experts. Left to right: Rosario Mazzeo, personnel manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Jack Benny, Michael T. Kelleher, trustee; and Thomas D. Perry, Jr., manager.

(Traveler Staff Photo by Calvin Campbell)

FAMOUS VIOLINIST Jack Benny bows to the crowd at Symphony Hall after guest appearance with the Pops Orchestra. He holds pot of flowers presented for performance. Comedian showed audience he can play a serious fiddle when he wants to.

[50]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 5 - 1955

Waukegan's Gift to Music

Crowd at Pops Thrilled by Violinist Jack Benny

By MARY CREMMEN

Jack Benny [illegible]

(Herald Staff Photo by Calvin Campbell)

NO LOVE IN BLOOM—Violinist Jack Benny didn't play his f[illegible] tune in his appearance with the Pops Orchestra at Symphony Hall last night but he showed the capacity crowd that there's nothing funny about his bow and fiddle when he wants to be serious.

made 'em all laugh, however, from the newest trombonist in the organization to Conductor Harry Dickson himself when he announced he was going to play for them in a special warmup session.

They were all sitting around waiting their call to the stage. The perennial 39-year-older dug out his fiddle.

"You know," he said, "when I go out there I'm going to make them forget all about Jascha Heifetz."

And he did for the next 15 minutes. He had them—proved musicians all—calling for more.

Benny, in Boston for a citation from the Massachusetts Committee of Catholics, Protestants and Jews at the Hotel Statler tonight, can play that fiddle.

He has the admiration of the Boston Symphony members, every one of them. They heard that rehearsal before he went on stage at the Pops. They cheered him until someone came in and shushed them. "They can hear you people out front," warned the shusher.

Busy Day

"Thanks, pal," said Benny, obviously glad to have his rehearsal stint over, "that's the hardest work I've done in eight weeks."

It was like that from the moment yesterday afternoon when he clambered out of his train at South Station until he went to bed. First thing he wanted when he got off the train was a cold drink—a soft one. There was quite a delegation on hand to greet him, among them Lieutenant Governor Whittier, Ben G. Shapiro, Michael T. Kelleher and a host of others.

The soft drinks were set up at the soda fountain. Who paid? You're wrong again if you are one of those ultra-Benny TV and movie fans. It was Benny who paid. And he waved aside the change for a $2 bill.

He wore a snappy gray fedora. The horned-rimmed glasses gave him the look of a State st. broker rather than one of the nation's top-ranking comedians. His nice blue tie was conservative and even if his shoes were loafers they had that comfortable look.

Awaits Grandchild

His plans? Well, he'll start a live TV show around Oct. 1. Though, between you and Benny, the sponsor would like to have him move it forward a few weeks. On his immediate agenda he'll go to the coast for some TV shows which will be canned in film. He simply must be back in New York in July. That's when his daughter, Mrs. Seth Parker, is anticipating a visit from the stork.

Actually he was on the stage 20 minutes at the Symphony. Didn't utter a word. It was all pantomime. The piece was Czardas by Monty. Benny's mobile face did the talking. His fiddle produced the music. And he gave a perfect imitation, the musicians said later, of about every top violinist of the last century.

If the audience missed the imitations, the musicians didn't. When he left the stage he got a tremendous ovation from the 2500 Pops fans. Also the entire violin section rose as one man, holding their violins aloft in their own salute.

Then, soon as possible, led by violinist Victor Manusevitch they followed him backstage. They wanted more. "We want," said Manusevitch, "to find out how the guy does it. He's terrific."

60 Is ats our annual Filene's
ready Friday, 9:15 a.m. over 800 of them full-length in this amazing style by style
...35 styles
sizes ::: and
THAT DISTINCTIVE STORE ON WINTER STREET

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 5 - 1955

Bows After Bow Work

(Traveler Staff Photo by Calvin Campbell)

FAMOUS VIOLINIST Jack Benny bows to the crowd at Symphony Hall after guest appearance with the Pops Orchestra. He holds pot of flowers presented for performance. Comedian showed audience he can play a serious fiddle when he wants to.

[illegible] attention wavered from the stage, his presence was making along the grapevine. You could almost see it travel. A head would turn, take a look to make sure, then lean toward whoever was nearest. It went down rows and across aisles, and soon as the ovation for the soloist had died, the autograph crowd swarmed in. "Sign my program . . . this napkin . . . a matchcover."

The crowd got bigger, the aisles were blocked—and a worried look came over Jack's face. He stopped in the middle of an autograph, "Gee, this won't spoil the concert, will it?"

But Jack would never have bothered to ask if he'd known about that staunch crowd which goes to the Pops for only one reason—music. The second Conductor Harry Ellis Dickson appeared on stage a great SSSSssshh! filled the hall.

The autograph seekers rushed back to their tables and Jack turned to Fein, "Let's have some of that pink stuff that they're serving in pitchers."

'An Open Rehearsal'

It was not until after the selections from South Pacific that Maestro Dickson solemnly announced from the podium: "For the first time in the history of the Boston Pops we are going to have an open rehearsal." A knowing laughter filled the air. "I introduce to you now a man who needs no introduction—you will know him by his violin."

Out walked Jack through the rows of musicians. And the hallowed old walls of Symphony fairly rocked.

In that famous unsmiling way, he accepted the greeting, then nonchalantly reached in his pocket for a handkerchief to tuck under the violin. It looked like "Love in Bloom" for sure, but the orchestra began the "Chardis" by Monte.

At a signal from Maestro Dickson, Benny raised his bow. I can honestly say I have never heard the Pops audience more silent. The listeners seemer to hold their breath, strain their ears listening for just one sour note. But the Waukegan master played without a flaw. Occasionally he beamed down at the photographers clustered by the stage and once he called out to the audience, "Here comes the hard part—if I don't go fast I'm dead."

What followed the finale was like an explosion. If anyone applauded more vigorously than the audience it was the musicians.

With just a suggestion of a smile, Jack strolled off stage. A few minutes later we were back in the car. He just sat there in the back seat beaming, laughing, slapping his knee.

The first thing he said was, "You must admit I've got guts walking out there and playing it straight when they expected 'Love in Bloom'." He shook his head.

"It was so much more fun than telling jokes—I can do that anytime."

[50]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News (e)
NEWBURYPORT, Mass.
Ind. Republican
Circ. 5,842

MAY 7 1955

DAR MOUTH AT POPS

The annual Dartmouth night at the Boston Symphony Pops, will be on Wednesday, May 18.

Proceeds from the sale of tickets will be contributed to the Greater Boston Scholarship Fund which is sponsored by the Dartmouth Alumni Association.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sun (e)
HUDSON, Mass.
Indep. Republican
Circ. 2,038

MAY 7 1955

ALLISON BAILEY IS MEMBER OF SINGING GROUP

Appeared With Colby Glee Club At Pops Concert

Allison Bailey of this city was one of the fifty-nine members of the Colby Glee Club who traveled to Boston to appear with the Boston Pops Orchestra in Boston's Symphony Hall on the evening of May 8. "Colby Night at Pops" is an annual, traditional subscription performance sponsored by the Boston Colby Club, and Glee Club regularly presents a group of songs at intermission. This year's program includes: Selections from The Peasant Cantata by Bach, Selections from Liebeslieder Waltzes by Brahms, and folk songs by William Schuman, Bertok, Britten and Persichetti.

Miss Bailey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Bailey, Jr., 3 Ash street, has sung with the glee club for two years. She is also a Colby Key girl and a Senior Counselor this year.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News-Tribune (e)
WALTHAM, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 13,413

MAY 7 1955

2 Waltham Girls To Sing Sunday

Two Waltham girls are among the 59 members of the Colby Junior College Glee Club who will appear on May 8 with the Boston Pops Orchestra in Symphony Hall in Boston.

The girls are Miss Louise Bomengen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bomengen of 129 Brown street, Waltham, and Miss Lorraine Kirsch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Kirsch Jr., of 57 Cherry street. Both girls are juniors at Colby Junior College in New London, N. H.

"Colby Night at Pops" is an annual performance sponsored by the Boston Colby Club and Glee Club who regularly present a group of songs at intermission.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Times (e)
BEVERLY, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 6,619

MAY 7 1955

DARTMOUTH NIGHT AT POPS MAY 18

The annual Dartmouth Night at the Boston Symphony Pops, has been announced for Wednesday, May 18th. All net proceeds from the sale of tickets will be contributed to the Greater Boston Scholarship Fund, which is sponsored by the Dartmouth Alumni association.

John Williamson, of Wellesley, is general chairman of the "Pops" committee. He is assisted by the following: George B. Redding, of Winchester; Daniel B. Ruggles, Jr., Swampscott; Gordon K. Wentworth, Wellesley; Richard D. Hill, Marblehead; Wesley Beattie, Melrose; Robert C. Bankart, Wellesley; Roger B. Salinger, Newton; Edward A. Larner, Jr., Lexington; Fred F. Stockwell, 2nd, Winchester; Robert Y. Kimball, Lynnfield; Allan L. Priddy, Brookline; John B. Handrahan, North Weymouth; Esmond Crowley, Swampscott; Francis M. Austin, Melrose and Richard D. Muzzy of Wellesley.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News (e)
NAUGATUCK, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 4,840

MAY 7 1955

PATRICIA ANDERSON

MISS PATRICIA ANDERSON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Anderson, 55 Dunn avenue, Colby Junior College Glee Club member is shown above. She will appear with the Boston Pops Orchestra tomorrow in

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sun (m)
LEWISTON-AUBURN, Me.
Independent
Circ. 30,816

MAY 7 1955

PRESENT MUSIC PREVIEW AT BOWDOIN TOMORROW

A preview of Bowdoin College Night at the Boston Pops will be presented by Frederic E. T. Tillotson when he gives the Shostakovich Piano Concerts at 8 p.m. Sunday, at the Harvey Dow Gibson Hall of Music on the Bowdoin campus.

The concert is open to the public, free of charge, and the orchestra accompaniment will be provided by David W. Holmes '56, pianist.

The annual appearance of the Bowdoin Glee Club with the Boston "Pops" Orchestra in Symphony Hall will take place on Thursday, May 19, at 8:30 p.m. the Meddlebempsters will also be part of the program, as will the A Cappella choir.

Professor Tillotson, who will play the Shostakovich Piano Concerto with the "Pops" Orchestra, has been Professor of Music at Bowdoin since 1936. He made his debut as a concert pianist in Jordan Hall in Boston in 1921 and from that time until 1936 appeared as soloist with many symphony orchestras and also made extended concert tours.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News (e)
SOUTHBRIDGE, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 4,688

MAY 7 1955

College Girl To Sing With Boston Pops

Miss Sarah Clemence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert U. Clemence of 67 Dresser St. will be among the fifty nine members of the Colby Glee Club who will travel to Boston to appear with the Boston Pops Orchestra in Boston's Symphony Hall on the evening of May 8.

"Colby Night at Pops" is an annual, traditional subscription performance sponsored by the Boston Colby Club, and Glee Club regularly presents a group of songs at intermission.

This year's program will include selections from "The Peasant Cantata' by Bach and selections from Liebeslieder Waltzes by Brahms, and folk songs by William Schuman, Bartok, Britten, and Persichetti.

Miss Clemence is a graduate of Walnut Hill School in Natick, Mass. Miss Clemence is a member of the Music Club, Outing Club and the YMCA at Colby. She is also a Dean's List student.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 285,839

MAY 7 1955

A Hand for Jack Benny

During two days in Boston, Jack Benny made a great many new friends. As a celebrity with an international reputation, he had millions of fans and plenty of well-wishers. Now he has more.

He did nothing startling, nothing epochal. But he behaved under scrutiny so amiably, with such simple modesty and dignity, that he impressed Bostonians who are not impressed merely because a man has his name or picture in the paper a good deal.

At the Pops he delighted an audience by playing his violin for fun, and even impressed the musicians—who are among the world's best—when they discovered he can manage something better than the first four bars of "Can It Be the Breeze."

At the Goodwill Dinner of the Massachusetts Committee Catholics, Protestants and Jews, he conducted himself with easy graciousness. In such a public event, an entertainer is under special surveillance. Being a comedian, he is expected to be amusing. As the recipient of a serious public award, however, he dare not play the buffoon. Jack Benny struck a happy balance. His speech, which he wrote himself on the train to Boston, was simple and sincere, a modest man's plea for tolerance based on the conviction that all men are equally decent. It was delivered without bravado or pompousness.

In his own field, Jack Benny is a great professional. In person, he proved himself to be an amiable, modest gentleman.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Advertiser
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 542,972

MAY 8 1955

Pops Concerts At Symphony

The second week of the Pops Concerts gets under way Tuesday evening at Symphony Hall at 8:30, with Harry Dickson conducting for Arthur Fiedler, who is still recuperating from his recent illness.

Tonight's program will open with the Marche Militaire by Schubert, and will include excerpts from "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg," Wagner; a Tschaikowsky waltz and the Brahms Academic Festival Overture. Lighter works are selections from "The Pajama Game" and "Kiss Me Kate," and Gliere's "Sailors' Dance." An unusual item will be "The Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra," by Benjamin Britten, featuring the Colby Junior College Glee Club with Leonard Burkart as speaker

[51]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News (e)
NEWBURYPORT, Mass.
Ind. Republican
Circ. 5,842

MAY 7 1955

DAR' MOUTH AT POPS

The annual Dartmouth night at the Boston Symphony Pops, will be on Wednesday, May 18.

Proceeds from the sale of tickets will be contributed to the Greater Boston Scholarship Fund which is sponsored by the Dartmouth Alumni association.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sun (e)
HUDSON, Mass.
Indep. Republican
Circ. 2,038

MA 1955

ALLISON BAILEY IS MEMBER OF SINGING GROUP

Appeared With Colby Glee Club At Pops Concert

Allison Bailey of this city was one of the fifty-nine members of the Colby Glee Club who travelled to Boston to appear with the Boston Pops Orchestra in Boston's Symphony Hall on the evening of May 8. "Colby Night at Pops" is an annual, traditional subscription performance sponsored by the Boston Colby Club, and Glee Club regularly presents a group of songs at intermission. This year's program includes: Selections from The Peasant Cantata by Bach, Selections from Liebeslieder Waltzes by Brahms, and folk songs by William Schuman, Bertok, Britten and Persichetti.

Miss Bailey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Bailey, Jr., 3 Ash street, has sung with the glee club for two years. She is also a Colby Key girl and a Senior Counselor this year.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News-Tribune (e)
WALTHAM, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 13,413

MAY 7 1955

2 Waltham Girls To Sing Sunday

Two Waltham girls are among the 59 members of the Colby Junior College Glee Club who will appear on May 8 with the Boston Pops Orchestra in Symphony Hall in Boston.

The girls are Miss Louise Bomengen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bomengen of 129 Brown street, Waltham, and Miss Lorraine Kirsch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Kirsch Jr., of 57 Cherry street. Both girls are juniors at Colby Junior College in New London, N. H.

"Colby Night at Pops" is an annual performance sponsored by the Boston Colby Club and Glee Club who regularly present a group of songs at intermission.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Times (e)
BEVERLY, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 6,619

MAY 7 1955

DARTMOUTH NIGHT AT POPS MAY 18

The annual Dartmouth Night at the Boston Symphony Pops, has been announced for Wednesday, May 18th. All net proceeds from the sale of tickets will be contributed to the Greater Boston Scholarship Fund, which is sponsored by the Dartmouth Alumni association.

John Williamson, of Wellesley, is general chairman of the "Pops" committee. He is assisted by the following: George B. Redding, of Winchester; Daniel B. Ruggles, Jr., Swampscott; Gordon K. Wentworth, Wellesley; Richard D. Hill, Marblehead; Wesley Beattie, Melrose; Robert C. Bankart, Wellesley; Roger B. Salinger, Newton; Edward A. Larner, Jr., Lexington; Fred F. Stockwell, 2nd, Winchester; Robert Y. Kimball, Lynnfield; Allan L. Priddy, Brookline; John B. Handrahan, North Weymouth; Esmond Crowley, Swampscott; Francis M. Austin, Melrose and Richard D. Muzzy of Wellesley.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News (e)
NAUGATUCK, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 4,840

MAY 7 1955

PATRICIA ANDERSON

MISS PATRICIA ANDERSON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Anderson, 55 Dunn avenue, Colby Junior College Glee Club member is shown above. She will appear with the Boston Pops Orchestra tomorrow night in Symphony Hall, Boston. Fifty-nine members of Colby Glee Club will take part in the annual performance. Miss Anderson is vice-president of Abbey dormitory at the college.

AT BOWDOIN TOMORROW

A preview of Bowdoin College Night at the Boston Pops will be presented by Frederic E. T. Tillotson when he gives the Shostakovich Piano Concerts at 8 p.m. Sunday, at the Harvey Dow Gibson Hall of Music on the Bowdoin campus.

The concert is open to the public, free of charge, and the orchestra accompaniment will be provided by David W. Holmes '56, pianist.

The annual appearance of the Bowdoin Glee Club with the Boston "Pops" Orchestra in Symphony Hall will take place on Thursday, May 19, at 8:30 p.m. the Meddlebempsters will also be part of the program, as will the A Cappella choir.

Professor Tillotson, who will play the Shostakovich Piano Concerto with the "Pops" Orchestra, has been Professor of Music at Bowdoin since 1936. He made his debut as a concert pianist in Jordan Hall in Boston in 1921 and from that time until 1936 appeared as soloist with many symphony orchestras and also made extended concert tours.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News (e)
SOUTHBRIDGE, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 4,688

MAY 7 1955

College Girl To Sing With Boston Pops

Miss Sarah Clemence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert U. Clemence of 67 Dresser St. will be among the fifty nine members of the Colby Glee Club who will travel to Boston to appear with the Boston Pops Orchestra in Boston's Symphony Hall on the evening of May 8.

"Colby Night at Pops" is an annual, traditional subscription performance sponsored by the Boston Colby Club, and Glee Club regularly presents a group of songs at intermission.

This year's program will include selections from "The Peasant Cantata' by Bach and selections from Liebeslieder Waltzes by Brahms, and folk songs by William Schuman, Bartok, Britten, and Persichetti.

Miss Clemence is a graduate of Walnut Hill School in Natick, Mass. Miss Clemence is a member of the Music Club, Outing Club and the YMCA at Colby. She is also a Dean's List student.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 285,839

MAY 7 1955

A Hand for Jack Benny

During two days in Boston, Jack Benny made a great many new friends. As a celebrity with an international reputation, he had millions of fans and plenty of well-wishers. Now he has more.

He did nothing startling, nothing epochal. But he behaved under scrutiny so amiably, with such simple modesty and dignity, that he impressed Bostonians who are not impressed merely because a man has his name or picture in the paper a good deal.

At the Pops he delighted an audience by playing his violin for fun, and even impressed the musicians—who are among the world's best—when they discovered he can manage something better than the first four bars of "Can It Be the Breeze."

At the Goodwill Dinner of the Massachusetts Committee Catholics, Protestants and Jews, he conducted himself with easy graciousness. In such a public event, an entertainer is under special surveillance. Being a comedian, he is expected to be amusing. As the recipient of a serious public award, however, he dare not play the buffoon. Jack Benny struck a happy balance. His speech, which he wrote himself on the train to Boston, was simple and sincere, a modest man's plea for tolerance based on the conviction that all men are equally decent. It was delivered without bravado or pompousness.

In his own field, Jack Benny is a great professional. In person, he proved himself to be an amiable, modest gentleman.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Advertiser
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 542,972

MAY 8 1955

Pops Concerts At Symphony

The second week of the Pops Concerts gets under way Tuesday evening at Symphony Hall at 8:30, with Harry Dickson conducting for Arthur Fiedler, who is still recuperating from his recent illness.

Tonight's program will open with the Marche Militaire by Schubert, and will include excerpts from "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg," Wagner; a Tschaikowsky waltz and the Brahms Academic Festival Overture. Lighter works are selections from "The Pajama Game" and "Kiss Me Kate," and Gliere's "Sailors' Dance." An unusual item will be "The Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra," by Benjamin Britten, featuring the Colby Junior College Glee Club with Leonard Burkart as speaker

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 126,015
MAY 7 1955

PRELUDE TO BENNY'S BOW

Pops Debut Result of Backstage Fiddling

By MARY CREMMEN

In case you are one of the Bostonians who has been wondering how Jack Benny happened to play at "Pops," you will have to go backstage for the answer.

On arriving at Symphony Hall last Wednesday night, the comedian immediately went backstage to pay his respects to Conductor Harry Ellis Dickson. After they had greeted each other, Mr. Dickson asked if Benny wouldn't play something. "At least 'Love in Bloom,' or even the commercial theme song of your show, 'Be Happy, Go Lucky.'"

Jack's answer was a definite no to both melodies. On second thought he asked if there was an extra fiddle around. At that moment Victor E. Manusevitch, one of the 32 violinists in the "Pops" orchestra, joined the conversation. Mr. Manusevitch has been a member of the Boston Symphony since 1947 when it was under the leadership of the late Serge Koussevitsky. He promptly offered Benny a choice of his own two instruments.

He tried one, then the other and ended by going back to the first. "It had a bigger tone."

Jack fiddled a few bars, then turned to ask Mr. Dickson if he happened to know what he was playing. The conductor identified it as a Hungarian dance, the "Czardas" by Monti, and asked the Symphony librarian to find the music.

Later, commenting about "Czardas," Mr. Dickson spoke of it as a nice display piece to impress average people. He recalled that in the days when vaudeville flourished, a violinist could go onstage and play "Czardas" and really show off. He also reasoned that it must have been popular in the old days of "Pops" because parts for the entire orchestra were found stored away in Symphony's library annex.

As soon as the score was before him, Jack began to play again. After a minute or two, Mr. Dickson exclaimed, "Say, that's all right. I don't know why you're a comedian instead of a musician." But at that instant, Jack got tangled up. He turned straight-faced to the maestro: "That's why."

When Conductor Dickson returned to the stage for the next selection, a medley from the Broadway musical "South Pacific," Jack remained in Room A for 15 minutes of rehearsal.

★ ★ ★

During the next intermission Mr. Dickson explained to Benny, "I'm going to introduce you as a noted violinist who happens to be in Boston between engagements. I will also say it is the first open rehearsal in the history of 'Pops.'"

Mr. Dickson tried to be reassuring, "You play much better than people think."

"The trouble is," frowned Benny, "I can't keep time."

The conductor smiled, "Don't worry about that—the orchestra will follow you."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071
MAY 8 1955

(Photo by Dan Murphy)

JUNE 4 IS THE DATE set aside by members of the Junior League of Bos[illegible] for their Pops Night in Symphony Hall. Five hundred and ninety-three seats have been reserved and the profits will go to provide tuition for children to attend summer camps Dennison and Agassiz Village. Members of the Professional Group of the League, who are sponsoring the second annual Night at Pops, include (standing, left to right) Maureen Duane and Patricia Bright; and (seated, left to right) Elizabeth Anderson and Barbara Batchelder.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 126,015
MAY 7 1955

"What a Day It Will Be When Brotherhood Encompasses the World"

Mr. Benny Makes a Speech

(A radio and TV comedian startled Bostonians on two occasions this week. On Wednesday, he appeared unexpectedly on the stage of Symphony Hall and played a violin solo with the Pops Orchestra. He was good and not funny. On Thursday, he stood before the huge goodwill dinner of Catholics, Protestants and Jews, at the Statler, and made a speech that was both funny and good. People are still talking about it. Here it is:)

BENNY

I have only been in Boston two days, and have done so much. Last night I appeared as the concert violin soloist at the Boston Pops. This is about as much gall as I ever had at anything.

I will do anything. There isn't a violinist in that orchestra who can't play 20 times as good as I do and I was the soloist. . . I want you to know.

But if I didn't play well, I have an alibi, I didn't have my own violin. I used some strange Stradivarius. You see I am so used to playing on my own violin, it has been in our family for years and years. As a matter of fact, my great grandfather gave it to my grandfather. My grandfather gave it to my father and my father sold it to me.

★ ★ ★

And then today I played golf with Francis Ouimet, Joe Cronin, and a gentleman in the Palm Beach suit business, Elmer Ward, and the three of them beat me . . at golf today.

They had no reason to lose: I am sure Mr. Ouimet wasn't looking for a job. Mr. Cronin does not care if I ever play baseball. And it was too cold today for Mr. Ward to sell me a palm beach suit.

• • •

You have all been kidding me here about my age . . . 39. You see they seem to forget one thing, I live in California, and there is a difference in time . . . out there . . . but I, in this past year, ladies and gentlemen, have been travelling around the country so much making speeches all over the United States that I am now known as the Jewish Richard Nixon.

When they asked me to come here to speak I said that I couldn't on account of my radio and television commitments.

I said, "How about Bob Hope?" and they said: "We tried to get him."

A Boston critic reviewed my first TV show and said he had always listened to Jack Benny on radio and sort of accepted him, but now when you can see him on TV you get to feel that you know him and I don't particularly want to.

But this is a lot of fun even though I say I am busy. I like to find time for these things, I like to travel, get around to these different towns. People sometimes ask me why I don't taper off and retire. I couldn't retire. It isn't just the money, no really it isn't. I don't know, I like to work.

Oh, I may retire sometime, not like Winston Churchill, more like Betty Hutton.

★ ★ ★

I would say a few serious words. During the years of World War II was privileged to travel all over the world to entertain our troops, and when I say that it was a privilege I mean just that because this was not a big patriotic gesture on my part, but the privilege and duty of every entertainer who can produce a variety show to do this job and it was in these surroundings that I first realized what the word Brotherhood meant. No one hated each other and they certainly did not hate our allies because of the difference of nationality. And strangely enough they did not hate our enemy too much. I am not talking about the Hitlers, Goebbels, Goerings, but I refer to the kids fighting against us.

But the unfortunate part of the whole thing is that even though people do not hate their fellow man, they think they do and the reason that they think they do is because maybe mob psychology or the way they had been taught, or just because they think it's the thing to do.

Your organization has taken over where single hands have failed and individual or a lot of individuals talking the same truths and fighting the same fight seem to get nowhere. Their voices seem to be lost in the wind. It requires just what you have done, a purpose, an unflagging determination to bring these truths to all our people.

While men lie fighting and dying together color and creed become relegated to their proper place of unimportance. A soldier lying wounded on the battlefield doesn't care if the hands that lifted him out of the stretcher and carried him to safety were black or white. Nor in a hospital does he ask if the life saving blood he gets came from a Catholic, Protestant or Jew. A funny thing a bullet has no name on it, it merely says to whom it may concern.

★ ★ ★

These lessons that our millions of servicemen learned during the last war they brought home with them and they have become ambassadors in your cause.

But I think we and they should redouble our efforts at this time because there may be no one left to profit from the lessons of a next war. Therefore, we should look beyond the ocean that borders our land. We are living in a world in which tension and the threat of war seem to be the order of the day and yet we all know that the vast majority of people of the world do not, like us, want war, and that they, like us, long for peace and the pursuit of happiness.

What a day it will be when Brotherhood encompasses the world, when nations look upon each other with friendship and understanding that we are now attaining among our people in this country, when creed, distrust and suspicion are eradicated, and this organization of yours is disbanded because it has no further work to do.

What a day it will be when people of all nations, colors, and creeds grasp hands together in happiness, security and dignity.

That day we are all hoping will come.

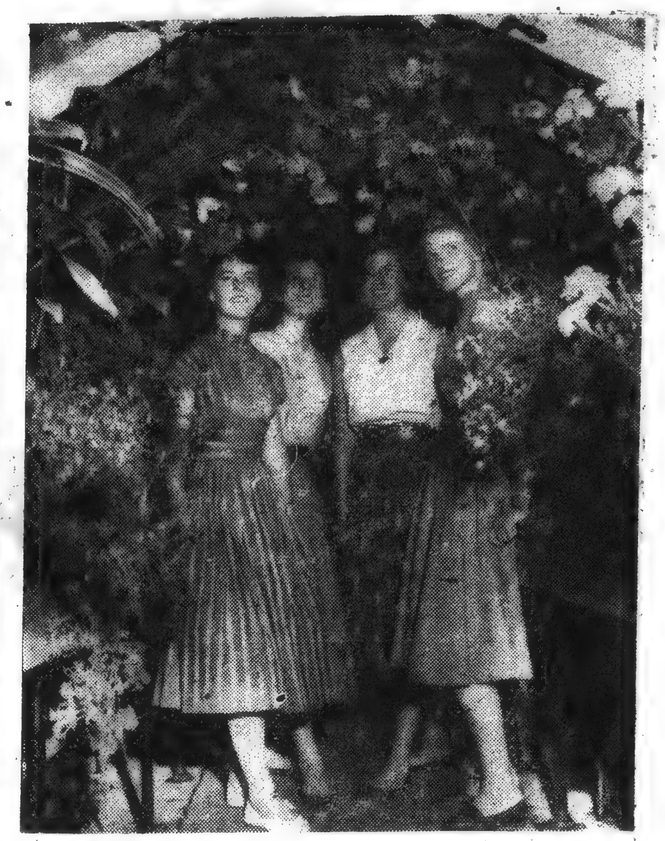
[52]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,241

MAY 8 - 1955

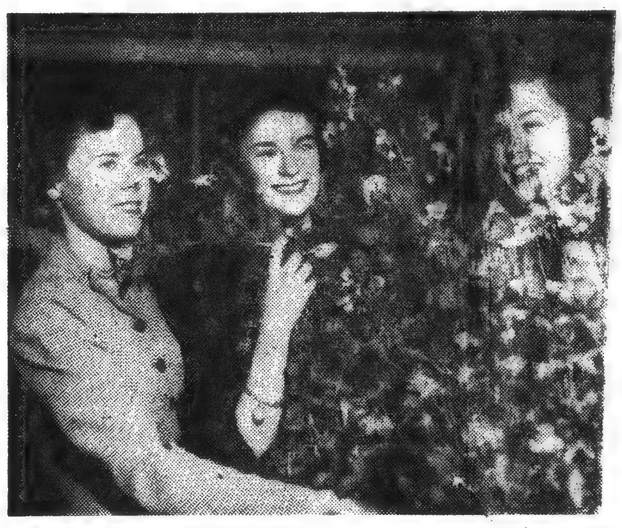
GENERATIONS OF WELLESLEY daughters have shared the good fun and hard work of college benefits. Flower sellers next Saturday night at Symphony Hall where the favorite blossom will be tiny Hawaiian orchids flown in especially for the occasion will include alumnae daughters Jun Uramatsu from Tokyo; Kathleen P. Krygier of Wilmington, Del., and Nancy Howe of Belmont.



BASKETS HEAPED HIGH with bright flowers will be carried by Adelaide Foisie of Milton, Nancy Turner, Austin, Tex.; Louise Stover, Ardsley-on-Hudson, New York; and Yvonne Laan of New Orleans, La.

CHECKING THE TABLE LIST for Saturday's benefit Wellesley Night at Pops are Sherley L. Goodwin of Louisville, Ky., Kathleen Krygier of Wilmington, Del., Nancy Ellen Moore of Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Catherine M. Smith of Montgomery, Ala.

047



A SPRINGTIME PREVIEW of handsome long stemmed pansies is given flower sellers Roxanne Jope of Winchester, Jean Richmond of Chestnut Hill, and Diane Beers of Melrose.

GETTING READY for Wellesley Pops which brings money to their Student Aid Funds are flower sellers Mette Oeseon of Norway, Louise Murray of Melrose, and Margot Peterson of Wellesley Hills.

These mothers and daughters, like so many others throughout the nation on this Mother's Day, are concerned not only with their own families and their place in the community, but with the ever-increasing need for the wonderful work done by the Girls' Clubs of America. Today marks the beginning of the annual Girls' Clubs Week, and in Boston the two fine clubs in Charlestown and South Boston will have a special program every day this week. There can't be too many cooks when they're getting ready the Mother's Day turkeys at the Girls' Clubs. Cooking classes are among the reasons for the biggest activity attendance in the 18-year-old history of the clubs, and there is a long waiting list of youngsters who would love to be able to learn how to cook and sew and type. Volunteer teachers are needed at both clubs. (See pictures on pages A-4 and A-5).

[53]

Society

MARJORIE WATTS SHERMAN Editor

TRADITIONAL AND PLEASANT to Bostonians and to visitors from all over the country are the Pops Concerts at Symphony Hall. This year, as in all others, benefits are scheduled for nearly every night of the season. Wellesley College Night at the Pops is to be next Saturday, May 14 and proceeds will be donated to the Student Aid Fund. Checking on the flower supply for the corps of pretty flower sellers are Mrs. Herbert V. Kibrick, president of the Boston Wellesley College Club which sponsors the benefit; Susan Martin, president of the freshman class and Mrs. John A. Baybutt, chairman of the Pops Committee.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071
MAY 8 - 1955

ARTHUR FIEDLER (left), conductor of Boston "Pops" Orchestra and George Wein (right), director of Newport Jazz Festival, present plaques to Lawrence Berk, head of Berklee School of Music in Boston, where the "Down Beat Hall of Fame Jazz Museum" was established. Plaques are awarded annually in national poll to outstanding musicians.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Ind. Democrat
Circ. 226,942
MAY 8 - 1955

GUILD'S POPS NIGHT

Guild of the Infant Saviour's Blossom Time at Pops is planned for Saturday, May 21, at Symphony Hall. Mrs. John H. Flynn, chairman, has as members of her committee, Mrs. William P. Carley, Mrs. Daniel J. Flood, Miss M. Frances Dillon, Mrs. Nicholas A. Gallagher, Mrs. Carl J. Gill, Mrs. Edward F. Goode, Mrs. James M. Graham, Miss R. Esther Keany, Mrs. Edward J. Kenney, Mrs. Francis H. McCabe, Mrs. John F. McManus, Mrs. Vincent P. Morton, Mrs. Thomas H. O'Connor, Mrs. John R. Povah, Mrs. William R. Reid and Mrs. J. Frederick Spence.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071
MAY 8 - 1955

'Dartmouth Night' At Pops Set May 18

The annual "Dartmouth Night" at the Boston Popes Concert will be held May 18, with the proceeds of the ticket sale going to the Greater Boston Scholarship Fund of the Dartmouth Alumni Association.

General chairman of the Pops committee is John Williamson of Wellesley.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Ind. Democrat
Circ. 226,942
MAY 8 - 1955

B. C. NIGHT AT POPS

Boston College Intown's "Night at Pops" is scheduled Sunday evening, May 29, at Symphony Hall. In charge of tickets is Francis X. Holland.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Ind. Democrat
Circ. 226,942
MAY 8 - 1955

Journeys Through New England

YOUR BOSTON POST INSPECTION TOUR — A.L.A.

By PHILIP C. WALLWORK
Director of Public Relations, A. L. A.

There are few recreational areas that are in such close proximity to metropolitan areas in the entire country as the Berkshire region in western Massachusetts and New England can well be proud to call it their own.

Consequently, it's not surprising to find almost more New York cars than Massachusetts ones as the area is only a two and a half hour drive from New York city and only about an hour from Albany. However, Bostonians can get to the Berkshires easily in four hours over excellent scenic roads.

For any of you who have never spent a day or week end in the Berkshire Hills, by all means don't miss it. Deep shaded valleys, soft rolling hills, majestic mountains, beautiful sparkling lakes and clear-running streams—in fact, everything the doctor ordered.

Start on Worcester Pike

Getting there and returning is almost as pleasant as the area itself. The Worcester pike to U. S. 20 and then No. 20 right through Springfield outskirts, where Highway 20A turns off to the right and later rejoins No. 20 after bypassing Springfield. At Woronoco follow Highway 23 to Great Barrington, Mass.

Route 23, although less well known than other scenic roads, is a truly beautiful trip—by pleasant farms, swift running streams, and field after field of wildflowers.

You'll notice a change in overnight accommodations in Berkshire area compared with other sections of the country. There are not many motels as such but many charming inns and resorts where travelers stay overnight and frequently remain to spend a week or two. Such a place is the Jug End Barn, about five miles past Great Barrington in South Egremont, Mass., where we made our headquarters. A truly outstanding spot for a night's rest—but there's something more. Saddle horses, a swimming pool, tennis courts, recreation hall with nightly dancing, easy-walking mountain trails, shuffle-board, badminton and really fine food served family style. Of special interest at Jug End is that Manager Lew Crafts has installed an honor system of payment for such extras as riding or renting bicycles, or cokes, cigarettes, etc. At the end of your stay, just tell the clerk what extras, if any, you've had or made use of.

Berkshire Music Festival

North of Great Barrington on U. S. 7 are the pleasant, quiet towns of Stockbridge and Lennox and the world-famous Berkshire Music Festival in Lennox. Even if you go when there are no concerts, (concert season July 6 to Aug. 14) be sure to visit the grounds of the music centre.

Just north of Lennox is Pittsfield and if you really want to get the most out of your Berkshire trip, stop in at the Berkshire Hills Conference managed by John Dowling. They'll tell you everything you'd ever want to know about the area and also recommend stopping places and restaurants.

U. S. 7 gets prettier as you go north and if you're a fishing bug there's no better place than the Green River and many other mountain streams and lakes along the road.

At Williamstown, we turn off onto the famous Mohawk Trail (route 2) for the trip back to Boston, but before you do, get out of the car and walk around this lovely town, the home of Williams College. New England colleges are famed for, among other things, for being picturesque. In fact pictures of ivy-covered college buildings have long been a New England trademark. Get the camera out here for sure.

The Mohawk Trail originally was just that—a path through the woods and over mountains used by the Indians—and later the settlers as they headed west, widened the trail for their wagons. Now it is a fine paved road—but an engineering marvel itself.

Describing the trail would require more space than we have here but let it suffice to say that the A.L.A., Travel Department probably gets more requests for a route along the trail than for any other single road in the country.

Highway 2 all the way back to Boston ends our Berkshire trip. Next week we're off to Maine and Lake Sebago.

[54]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Ind. Democrat
Circ. 226,942

MAY 8 - 1955

Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard (left) chairman for opening night at Pops which benefitted the Grenfell Mission, arrives at Symphony Hall with her dinner guests, Mrs. A. W. K. Billings and Mrs. Charles F. Toppan.

Arriving at Symphony Hall for Tuesday's opening of the Pops 70th season are (left to right) Mrs. Richard Finnegan, Mrs. Edward F. Barry, Mrs. Timothy Lyons and Mrs. Walter Timilty.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Ind. Democrat
Circ. 226,942

MAY 8 - 1955

Symphony Orchestra

Playing Better Now, But Sounds French

By TUCKER KEISER

Two factors guide the evaluation of the Boston Symphony season just concluded, the playing of the orchestra itself and the music programmed. Happily, both show a decided improvement over the previous year. Since the Boston Symphony is the very centre of the community's musical life, we must guard its standards jealously.

While the playing has been noticeably better this year in the techniques of performance, the orchestra is now a reflection of the conductor's tonal temperament. The hundred musicians, at his bidding, can deftly perform in that light, overly-bright texture with its characteristic nasal sound so beloved by the French, without consciously striving for it. There is no orchestra today which can perform with such glittering, diamond brilliance as the Boston Symphony. This has now been substituted for the full, rounded sonority, so internationally admired under the Koussevitzky regime.

The orchestra will undoubtedly continue to sound more and more French as long as Mr. Munch is its artistic mentor, though the acquired style is alien to most of the musicians in the band. Whenever Richard Burgin, Monteux, or Cantelli is leading, the players are given a loose tonal rein, and we once again hear gorgeous sound, familiar and stirring.

An example of this lightening up of the texture is Mr. Munch's decision not to replace two double basses, that instrumental line that gives great solidarity to the tonal body. Instead he is adding two lighter voiced cellos.

Less Exuberance

In spite of Beethoven's Fifth Symphony on the last program, the moments of loss of control have been rarer this year; the conductor has been swept away by the emotional impact of the score less, reacting rather than conducting. The weekly coast-to-coast broadcasts have undoubtedly put a brake on his exuberance. Broadcasting companies have a way of expecting a work clocked at 36 minutes to end at 36 minutes on the nose. Anything over or under poses no end of problems.

As might be expected, Beethoven leads the composer's list with 7 different works from a total of 87; Bach and Mozart are runners-up with 6 each, and Tchaikovsky and Wagner have 5 apiece. Of the 47 composers represented, only 8 were American. Though Boston was once the centre for premieres, there were only two last season, Barber's "Prayers of Kierkegaard" and Martinu's "Fantaisies Symphoniques." However, 15 works by standard composers received first performances at these concerts.

The controversy over the amount of contemporary music in Symphony Hall, which began in the newspapers but soon spilled over into radio forums, was curiously pointless. The amount of contemporary music has been relatively small.

The most exciting afternoon was Igor Markevitch's debut in March in which he did a breathtaking performance of Stravinsky's "The Rite of Spring." Indeed he was the most impressive conductor to make his debut here in the past 10 years, Cantelli included.

The soloist who created the deepest impression on the audience was Victoria de los Angeles, singing Berlioz' "Summer Nights," sensitively accompanied by Mr. Munch.

Mr. Munch's finest hour was his repeat performance of Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust." The conductor, less obviously jittery than before, added a breadth and relaxed expansiveness to the score, making it a truly memorable event.

However, there is one bit of advice concerning next year's programs; let's have less choral works. At the beginning of the past season it was predicted here that the subscribers would not fill the hall at those programs. This is precisely what happened.

Roughly a third of the concerts contained a major choral work. Despite the fact that Mr. Munch is best in this kind of music, the number of empty seats (all sold, it is true) was appallingly large. If the subscribers, who will take most anything without raising a fuss, have such little interest in choral works, why force it on them?

Concerts of The Week

TODAY

Gardner Museum. James de la Fuente, violinist. 2 p. m. Free.

Kresge Auditorium. Dedication concert of new M.I.T. Auditorium. M.I.T. Chorus and Orchestra presenting premiere of Aaron Copland's "Canticle of Freedom." 3:30 p. m.

Sanders Theatre. Harvard-Radcliffe Orchestra. 8:30 p. m.

* * *

MONDAY

Sanders Theatre. World premiere of Theodore Chandler's opera, "The Pot of Fat." 8:30 p. m.

* * *

TUESDAY

Gardner Museum. Charles Matheson, tenor; Norma-Lee Kalberg, pianist. 2:45 p. m. Free.

* * *

WEDNESDAY

Jordan Hall. N. E. Conservatory Chorus and Orchestra. Handel—"Alexander Balus," oratorio. First American performance. 8:30 p. m.

Boston University Theatre. B. U. Chorus and Orchestra. Alan Hovhaness—"The Easter Cantata," and Berlioz—"Te Deum." 8:30 p. m.

* * *

THURSDAY

Gardner Museum. Rodney Pierce, oboist; Louis Stephen, pianist. 2:45 p. m. Free.

Jordan Hall. Woodwind Quintet. Fernand Gillet directing. 8:30 p. m. Free.

* * *

FRIDAY

Boston University Theatre. Kurt Weill—"The Threepenny Opera." Performances Friday, Saturday and Sunday at 8:30 p. m.

* * *

SATURDAY

Gardner Museum. Phyllis Juster, soprano; Roland Nadeau, pianist; Dolores Rodriguez, accompanist. 2:45 p. m. Free.

* * *

SUNDAY

Gardner Museum. Catherine Bunn, soprano. 2 p. m. Free.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday News
BURLINGTON, Vt.
Independent
Circ. 12,391

MAY 8 - 1955

Nancy Meaker With Glee Club

NEW LONDON, N. H. — Miss Nancy Meaker of Waterbury was one of the 59 members of the Colby Glee Club who traveled to Boston to appear with the Boston Pops Orchestra in Boston's Symphony Hall on the evening of May 8.

Miss Meaker, a graduate of Waterbury High School, is the daughter of Atty. and Mrs. R. S. Meaker of 9 Union St., Waterbury

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,241

MAY 8 - 1955

LISTENING TO POPS recordings so they can enjoy these famous Boston concerts some day are Susan, Will, and Hank Keene, children of Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Keene of Dedham. Mrs. Keene is helping plan Beaver Country Day School's annual Night at Pops, May 20th.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

MAY 8 - 1955

HARRY ELLIS DICKSON, conductor of the Pops concerts now in the second week of their 70th season at Symphony Hall.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Sun
LOWELL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 25,907

MAY 8 - 1955

Janice Spurr and Beverly Rounds were among 59 members of the Colby glee club who traveled to Boston to appear with the Boston Pops orchestra in Symphony hall. "Colby Night at Pops" is an annual, traditional subscription performance sponsored by the Boston Colby club, and the Glee club presents a group of songs at intermission. Miss Spurr is the daughter of Mrs. Albert H. Spurr, and Miss Rounds the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles E. Rounds. Both are active in college affairs.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Register
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 91,501

Josef Orosz, tuba player with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, (left) plays an old instrument called a serpent, dating back to the 16th century, a forerunner of the present day bassoon, part of a collection of old time instruments on display in the Casadesus collection at Boston Symphony Hall. George Moleux of the Symphony accompanies him on the bass. Children from The Beethoven School in Newton, Mass., listening are: Carol Hersey, (seated) Kareny McGee and Jimmy Reuben.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,241

Programs for Second Week of Pops

The Pops concerts at Symphony Hall begin their second week of their 70th season. Pending the return of Arthur Fiedler, who is still a convalescent, Harry Dickson will conduct.

The programs for the week are here listed except for the concert of Sunday night, May 15, which will be taken over by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Sunday Evening—*Marche Militaire, Schubert; Excerpts from Act III, "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg," Wagner; Waltz from the Serenade for Strings, Tchaikovsky; Academic Festival Overture, Op. 80, Brahms; The Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra, Op. 34, Britten. (Speaker: Leonard Burkat.) Colby Junior College Glee Club. *Selection from "Kiss Me Kate," Porter. Hernando's Hideaway from "The Pajama Game," Adler and Ross; Sailors' Dance, Gliere.

Monday Evening — *Knightsbridge March, Coates; *Overture to "Orpheus in Hades," Offenbach; *Clair de Lune, Debussy; Polovetzian Dances from "Prince Igor," Borodin; Concerto for Two Pianos in E-flat, K. 365, Mozart. (Soloists: Zosia Jacynowicz, Leo Litwin); *Bolero, Ravel; *Selection fr "South Pacific," Rodgers; Sandpap Ballet, Anderson; Second Regiment Connecticut March, Reeves.

Tuesday Evening—Coronation March from "The Prophet", Meyerbeer; Suite from "The Water Music", Handel–Harty; Pavane, Faure; Prelude to "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg", Wagner; Tale from the Vienna Woods, Waltzes, Strauss; Gypsy Dance from "Carmen", Bizet; Rhapsody in Blue, Gershwin (Soloist: Leo Litwin); Selection from "Oklahoma!" Rodgers; The Glow Worm Turns, Lincke–Bodke; Saber Dance from "Gayne", Khachaturian.

Wednesday evening, Harvard Business School Night—Up the Street, March, Morse; Overture to "Beautiful Galatea," Suppe; Meditation from "Thais," Massenet (Solo Violin: Alfred Krips); Finale from Symphony No. 4, Tchaikovsky; Invitation to the Dance, Weber–Berlioz; Bacchanale from "Samson and Delilah," Saint-Saens. The Harvard Business School Tycoons. Many Happy Returns, arr. by Mason; The Typewriter, Anderson; Look Sharp—Be Sharp, Merrick–Bennett.

Thursday Evening—Rakoczy March, Berlioz; Suite from "The Nutcracker," Tchaikovsky; Ave Maria, Bach–Gounod (Solo Violin: Alfred Krips); Overture to "Tannhauser," Wagner; The Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra, Op. 34, Britten (Speaker: Leonard Burkat) University of New Hampshire Concert Choir—Karl H. Bratton, Director. Selection from "Can-Can," Porter; Tviana, Hayman; Procession of the Sardar from "Caucasian Sketches," Ippolitov–Ivanov.

Friday Evenings, Lasell Junior College Night—Polonaise from "Eugene Onegin," Tchaikovsky; Roman Carnival, Overture, Berlioz; Valse Triste, Sibelius; Aurora, H. M. Dunham; Suite from "Carmen," Bizet; Orpheus Club of Lasell Junior College, George Sawyer Dunham, director. Selection from "Guys and Dolls," Loesser; Butler's Holiday, Anderson; Hungarian Dance No. 5, Brahms.

Saturday evening—Wellesley College Night—Wedding March from "Le Coq d'Or," Rimsky–Korsakoff; Overture to "Mignon," Thomas; Pavane, Faure; Dance of the Hours from "La Gioconda," Ponchielli; Concerto for Two Pianos in E flat, K. 365 (First Movement), Mozart (soloists: Elsie Finkelstein Sears, '33, and Irene DuBois); Waltzes from "Der Rosenkavalier," Strauss; Suite from the Ballet "Gayne," Khachaturian; Selection from "Kiss Me Kate," Porter; The Typewriter, Anderson; Gypsy Dance from "Carmen," Bizet; Wellesley Alma Mater.

BOSTON TRAVELER, TUESDAY, MAY 10, 1955

Pops Soloist

LEO LITWIN will be piano soloist tonight with Boston Pops Orchestra in Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue."

BOSTON TRAVELER, MOND

Nabs

Conducts Pops

HARRY DICKSON will conduct the second week of the Boston Pops Orchestra concerts, during the convalescence of Arthur Fiedler.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 8 1955

[56]

Contributions to the Symphony Light a Beacon to the Future

THE BOSTON SYMPHONY—Industry contributes only little more than 3 percent of its support.

Why Good Music Is Good Business

By CYRUS DURGIN

"You Easterners are decadent. You're old-fashioned. You don't have nearly enough enterprise or imagination."

The big, ruddy, opinionated man from Oregon threw that at me some eight years ago, but the resulting deep burn kept it in memory. He was a big operator and wealthy, owning a lot of timber, and he was talking, of course, about Easterners in terms of their business methods.

Just the other day his remark churned up out of the past when I was reading some figures concerning support of symphony orchestras by business, in a report of the American Symphony Orchestra League, Inc. Samuel R. Rosenbaum, former vice president of the Philadelphia Orchestra Association, lawyer and financial man, was doing the reporting.

★ ★ ★

"In many cities business interests and industry are recognizing the plus-value in maintaining a symphony series in their cities. In Detroit nearly 70 percent of the maintenance fund (above concert revenue) is contributed by them (nearly $275,000 per annum). In Houston it is 67 percent ($120,000); in Minneapolis and Pittsburgh, over 60 percent ($170,000) each; Kansas City, 75 percent ($65,000); San Antonio, 58 percent ($88,000);; Atlanta, 61 percent «$36,000); Indianapolis, 55 percent ($72,000); and it is an average of over 50 percent in 15 cities which maintain symphony concerts outside New York, Boston and Philadelphia."

"Outside New York, Boston and Philadelphia." Perhaps my acquaintance from Oregon had something.

How much did business contribute to the support of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the last fiscal year?

The amount from business was $8322.29, quoted by Dr. Palfrey Perkins at the annual meeting last March of the Society of Friends of the Boston Symphony—$8322.29 out of a total of $252,104 contributed by 4303 Friends, or a little more than 3 percent!

★ ★ ★

Not an impressive showing, but let us not conclude that we are so far behind as the man from Oregon implied. We do things rather more slowly here in New England, but give us time and we usually do them well.

In little more than 35 years we have come, in support of our cultural treasure and international institution, from the private generosity of Henry Lee Higginson through the period of large gifts from a few wealthy citizens to the period of small but numerous gifts from individuals of less affluence, and now, in the most recent phase, to active contribution by business, private and corporate.

The thing is, that business has begun to recognize the worth of donating money to the Boston Symphony. It has begun to recognize that the Orchestra is one of our prime assets, as much as the college, museums, medical centers and certain other institutions which collectively make this city an important provincial capital.

* * *

A beginning, however, is but a beginning. Much more remains to be done, not exclusively in urging larger amounts from the 82 business firms alreaady registered as contributors, but in securing donations of comparable amounts from a much greater number of commercial and financial enterprises. It is the structure with a firm, broad base which endures.

The time has passed when it was necessary to explain why business should concern itself with support of an artistic institution. Anyone who has read the newspapers over the last two years has seen it all in cool, calm type.

As Rosenbaum phrased part of the case. . . "the Symphony . . . is an asset to the town that directly benefits business and industry by the attraction it offers to families of the better-type workers. They like to come to such a place and stay there when they come."

* * *

It will take time for business as a whole to form the view that annual contributions to the Boston Symphony Orchestra is as valuable a public service as contribution to the Red Cross, Community Fund and other such assistances to the common good.

But the habit will have to be formed, for concentration of the nation's wealth has been passing more and more from the individual to the larger forms of corporate business in this age of mergers.

Probably we may look forward to a time when business response to the Symphony's financial needs will be vastly quickened and enlarged.

But until that point is reached, we must all continue to think about it and talk about it. Every business that contributes, lights a beacon to the future of all of us.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Register
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 91,501

Josef Orosz, tuba player with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, (left) plays an old instrument called a serpent, dating back to the 16th century, a forerunner of the present day bassoon, part of a collection of old time instruments on display in the Casadesus collection at Boston Symphony Hall. George Moleux of the Symphony accompanies him on the bass. Children from The Beethoven School in Newton, Mass., listening are: Carol Hersey, (seated) Kareny McGee and Jimmy Reuben.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,241

MAY 8 - 1955

Programs for Second Week of Pops

The Pops concerts at Symphony Hall begin their second week of their 70th season. Pending the return of Arthur Fiedler, who is still a convalescent, Harry Dickson will conduct.

The programs for the week are here listed except for the concert of Sunday night, May 15, which will be taken over by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Sunday Evening—*Marche Militaire, Schubert; Excerpts from Act III, "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg," Wagner; Waltz from the Serenade for Strings, Tchaikovsky; Academic Festival Overture, Op. 80, Brahms; The Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra, Op. 34, Britten (Speaker: Leonard Burkat); Colby Junior College Glee Club, *Selection from "Kiss Me Kate," Porter; Hernando's Hideaway from "The Pajama Game," Adler and Ross; Sailors' Dance, Gliere.

Monday Evening — *Knightsbridge March, Coates; *Overture to "Orpheus in Hades," Offenbach; *Clair de Lune, Debussy; Polovetzian Dances from "Prince Igor," Borodin; Concert for Two Pianos in E-flat, K. 365, Mozart (Soloists: Zosia Jacynowicz, Leo Litwin); *Bolero, Ravel; *Selection from "South Pacific," Rodgers; Sandpaper Ballet, Anderson; Second Regiment Connecticut March, Reeves.

Tuesday Evening—Coronation March from "The Prophet", Meyerbeer; Suite from "The Water Music", Handel-Harty; Pavane, Faure; Prelude to "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg", Wagner; Tales from the Vienna Woods, Waltzes, Strauss; Gypsy Dance from "Carmen", Bizet; Rhapsody in Blue, Gershwin (Soloist: Leo Litwin); Selection from "Oklahoma!" Rodgers; The Glow Worm Turns, Lincke-Bodge; Sabre Dance from "Gayne", Khachaturian.

Wednesday evening, Harvard Business School Night—Up the Street, March, Monk; Overture to "Beautiful Galatea," Suppe; Meditation from "Thais," Massenet (Solo Violin: Alfred Krips); Finale from Symphony No. 4, Tchaikovsky; Invitation to the Dance, Weber-Berlioz; Bacchanale from "Samson and Delilah," Saint-Saens. The Harvard Business School Tycoons, Many Happy Returns, arr. by Mason; The Typewriter, Anderson; Look Sharp—Be Sharp, Merrick-Bennett.

Thursday Evening—Rakoczy March, Berlioz; Suite from "The Nutcracker," Tchaikovsky; Ave Maria, Bach-Gounod (Solo Violin: Alfred Krips); Overture to "Tannhauser," Wagner; The Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra, Op. 34, Britten (Speaker: Leonard Burkat); University of New Hampshire Concert Choir—Karl H. Bratton, Director. Selection from "Can-Can," Porter; TViana, Heyman; Procession of the Sardar from "Caucasian Sketches," Ippolitov-Ivanov.

Friday Evening, Lasell Junior College Night—Polonaise from "Eugene Onegin," Tchaikovsky; Roman Carnival, Overture, Berlioz; Valse Triste, Sibelius; Aurora, H. M. Dunham; Suite from "Carmen," Bizet. Orpheus Club of Lasell Junior College, George Sawyer Dunham, director. Selection from "Guys and Dolls," Loesser; Bugler's Holiday, Anderson; Hungarian Dance No. 5, Brahms.

Saturday evening—Wellesley College Night—Wedding March from "Le Coq d'Or," Rimsky-Korsakoff; Overture to "Mignon," Thomas; Pavane, Faure; Dance of the Hours from "La Gioconda," Ponchielli; Concerto for Two Pianos in E flat, K. 365 (First Movement), Mozart (soloists: Elsie Finkelstein Sears, '33, and Irene DuBois); Waltzes from "Der Rosenkavalier," Strauss; Suite from the Ballet "Gayne," Khachaturian; Selection from "Kiss Me Kate," Porter; The Typewriter, Anderson; Gypsy Dance from "Carmen," Bizet; Wellesley Alma Mater.

BOSTON TRAVELER, MOND

BOSTON TRAV

BOSTON TRAVEL

Nabs

Conducts Pops

HARRY DICKSON will conduct the second week of the Boston Pops Orchestra concerts, during the convalescence of Arthur Fiedler.

Pops Soloist

LEO LITWIN will be piano soloist tonight with Boston Pops Orchestra in Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 8 1955

[56]

Contributions to the Symphony Light a Beacon to the Future

THE BOSTON SYMPHONY Industry contributes only little more than 3 percent of its support.

Why Good Music Is Good Business

By CYRUS DURGIN

"You Easterners are decadent. You're old-fashioned. You don't have nearly enough enterprise or imagination."

The big, ruddy, opinionated man from Oregon threw that at me some eight years ago, but the resulting deep burn kept it in memory. He was a big operator and wealthy, owning a lot of timber, and he was talking, of course, about Easterners in terms of their business methods.

Just the other day his remark churned up out of the past when I was reading some figures concerning support of symphony orchestras by business, in a report of the American Symphony Orchestra League, Inc. Samuel R. Rosenbaum, former vice president of the Philadelphia Orchestra Association, lawyer and financial man, was doing the reporting.

★ ★ ★

"In many cities business interests and industry are recognizing the plus-value in maintaining a symphony series in their cities. In Detroit nearly 70 percent of the maintenance fund (above concert revenue) is contributed by them (nearly $275,000 per annum). In Houston it is 67 percent ($120,000); in Minneapolis and Pittsburgh, over 60 percent ($170,000) each; Kansas City, 75 percent ($65,000); San Antonio, 58 percent ($88,000); Atlanta, 61 percent ($36,000); Indianapolis, 55 percent ($72,000); and it is an average of over 50 percent in 15 cities which maintain symphony concerts outside New York, Boston and Philadelphia."

"Outside New York, Boston and Philadelphia." Perhaps my acquaintance from Oregon had something.

How much did business contribute to the support of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the last fiscal year?

The amount from business was $8322.29, quoted by Dr. Palfrey Perkins at the annual meeting last March of the Society of Friends of the Boston Symphony —$8322.29 out of a total of $252,104 contributed by 4303 Friends, or a little more than 3 percent!

★ ★ ★

Not an impressive showing, but let us not conclude that we are so far behind as the man from Oregon implied. We do things rather more slowly here in New England, but give us time and we usually do them well.

In little more than 35 years we have come, in support of our cultural treasure and international institution, from the private generosity of Henry Lee Higginson through the period of large gifts from a few wealthy citizens, to the period of small but numerous gifts from individuals of less affluence, and now, in the most recent phase, to active contribution by business, private and corporate.

The thing is, that business has begun to recognize the worth of donating money to the Boston Symphony. It has begun to recognize that the Orchestra is one of our prime assets, as much as the college, museums, medical centers and certain other institutions which collectively make this city an important provincial capital.

• • •

A beginning, however, is but a beginning. Much more remains to be done, not exclusively in urging larger amounts from the 82 business firms already registered as contributors, but in securing donations of comparable amounts from a much greater number of commercial and financial enterprises. It is the structure with a firm, broad base which endures.

The time has passed when it was necessary to explain why business should concern itself with support of an artistic institution. Anyone who has read the newspapers over the last two years has seen it all in cool, calm type.

As Rosenbaum phrased part of the case. . . "the Symphony . . . is an asset to the town that directly benefits business and industry by the attraction it offers to families of the better-type workers. They like to come to such a place and stay there when they come."

• • •

It will take time for business as a whole to form the view that annual contribution to the Boston Symphony Orchestra is as valuable a public service as contribution to the Red Cross, Community Fund and other such assistances to the common good.

But the habit will have to be formed, for concentration of the nation's wealth has been passing more and more from the individual to the larger forms of corporate business in this age of mergers.

Probably we may look forward to a time when business response to the Symphony's financial needs will be vastly quickened and enlarged.

But until that point is reached, we must all continue to think about it and talk about it. Every business that contributes, lights a beacon to the future of all of us.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 285,839

MAY 10 1955

Musician Has Worries

About People

By GRACE DAVIDSON

Musician Josef Zimbler of 1060 Beacon st., Brookline, who plays the cello in the Boston Symphony Orchestra and conducts a sinfonietta of 17 players, has some unusual worries.

He is deeply troubled because there are so few good string players. He says there is a tremendous need for men who can play the violin. The music market, he finds, is glutted with chaps who fool around with the clarinet, the trombone and saxophone but who are not musicians.

Grace Davidson

The public school system, he contends, is responsible for the lack of respect for "the strings." The boys who fail to make the football team are encouraged to find solace in the school band. They put on a gaudy uniform and learn to make noise with the wind and brass instruments.

"Some of these boys would become fine musicians if their talents were directed to the violin," said Mr. Zimbler. "But it requires time, good teaching and application to play the violin well. You can't fool around with the violin or the cello."

The Boston Symphony Orchestra will increase their cello players from four to six next year, he stated. Good orchestras everywhere are seeking able string players.

"Unfortunately, schoolboys think 'he-men' don't play string instruments," he said.

* * *

Another of Mr. Zimbler's worries concerns his wife's progress as a singer. He wants his wife to have a musical career but he does not want her career to become too important.

"It has already become too important," he said. "It's too much work for her to take care of me and her career."

Helen Zimbler

Said the blonde and good-looking Helen Zimbler, "I don't complain."

"That's true," Mr. Zimbler replied, "but to be an efficient wife and an ambitious singer is too much for a woman. I know because I've been through it before." He explained that his first wife, whom he married in his early youth, developed an ardent ambition for a singing career which ended their marriage. He does not want it to happen again.

Mrs. Zimbler said with smile, "My husband seems to be fated to have a wife with ambitions to sing."

Mr. Zimbler quickly interrupted, "I want you to sing because you sing well but don't let it become too important."

Unlike Josef Zimbler, stage and movie actor Arnold Moss, who was a Brooklyn school teacher, has no worries. Since he stopped worrying, some pretty wonderful things happened to him, he said the other day. He played last week with Katharine Cornell at the Colonial Theatre. He has also appeared with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, reading for music that called for words. Now he is to be seen in Warner Bros. picture, "Jump Into Hell," the story of the gallant stand at DienBienphu, in which he plays the general.

Joseph Zimbler

When he is at home at his Long Island house, he spends his time in wood-working. He has made all his furniture and a 20-foot outboard motor boat. Slim and sleek in appearance, this Brooklyn-born man is often mistaken for a Frenchman; he does not look like a former school teacher or a man with talents for cabinet-making.

He was asked if talent is discernible at once. He replied, "In 30 minutes you can tell if a person has or has not talent."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Parkway Transcript
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 6,382

1955

Beth Israel Junior Auxiliary Pops Night

The Beth Israel Hospital Junior Auxiliary will hold its 12th annual "Pops" evening on Tuesday, May 31, at Symphony Hall in Boston. This year's program book will be dedicated to Dr. Cecil G. Sheps, executive director of the hospital.

Ticket co-chairmen, Marilyn Schwartz and Beverly [illegible] announce that tickets may be purchased by contacting the Junior Auxiliary at the Beth Israel Hospital or any member of the organization.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 10 1955

SOCIETY: Boston Architects to Give Scholarships Tonight

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

A distinguished company of Bostonians will sit down together at dinner tonight at an annual meeting which dates back 88 years. Members of the Boston Society of Architects and their guests will gather at 6:30 at the Harvard Club.

For the first time, the Boston Society of Architects' Scholarship to the Boston Architectural Center, which was established this year by Mrs. John W. Ames in memory of her husband, a noted architect, will be awarded at the dinner.

Also to be announced are the Rotch Traveling Scholarship, for which Wallace K. Harrison will be the speaker, and the Harleston Parker Medal, to be awarded by James Ford Clapp Jr. The student winner of the new B. S. A. Scholarship will be announced by Edwin F. Goodell Jr., chairman of the scholarship committee.

The B. S. A. executive board includes Isidor Richmond, Joseph P. Richardson, Harry Gulesian, Edwin T. Steffian, and members of the executive committee, A. Osborne Willauer, Royal Barry Wills, James C. Hopkins, Neil A. Connor and Ernest Notz.

(Bachrach)

AN AUGUST 6TH wedding is planned by Miss Regina Daly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Oliver Daly of Auburndale, to Robert W. Lundstrom of Evanston, Ill., son of Mr. and Mrs. Axel H. Lundstrom of Madison, Wis. She was graduated from Wheelock College and her fiance studied at the University of Wisconsin.

SHARING A NIGHT AT POPS are Middlebury, Wells, Goucher, and Dartmouth Colleges. The concert on May 18 at Symphony Hall will be sponsored by the Boston Middlebury Alumnae Association for benefit of the Scholarship Fund.

Table reservations have been made by Mrs. T. J. Homer, Mrs. E. P. Adams, Mrs. Harlow Russell, Mrs. A. S. Hunter, Miss Paula Knight, Mrs. J. W. Boyd, Miss Dorothy Abel, and Mrs. T. R. Jackson. Chairman of the Middlebury Pops committee is Carolyn Wildegren, 19 Garfield st., Cambridge.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

Conducts Pops

HARRY DICKSON will conduct the second week of the Boston Pops Orchestra concerts, during the convalescence of Arthur Fiedler.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 9 1955

City Hospital Friends To Meet Wednesday

The Friends of the Boston City Hospital will hold their annual meeting Wednesday at 2 p.m. in Vose House at the hospital.

Dr. Maxwell Finland, associate professor at Harvard Medical School and associate director of the Thorndike Memorial Laboratory, will speak on "The Advances in the Management of Infectious Diseases."

Tickets for the Friends night at the Boston Pops concert June 1 may be obtained at this meeting.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 9 1955

Pops Still Tops

Second Week Of Season

By ROSAMOND WHEELER, Society Editor

The Pop concerts this year again are enjoying the popularity which gave them their name. They're now entering their second week of the season.

Tonight's benefits Connecticut College. Smith and Vassar alumnae are sponsoring tomorrow's for scholarship funds.

Lasell, at 104, one of the oldest junior colleges in the United States, will take over Friday. It has had a Night at Pops for more consecutive years than any other girls college.

High point of the evening will be the 208-voice Orphean Club's performance of the Scene and Prayer from Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana." George Sawyer Dunham, club director, will lead the group as he has done at all 25 previous Pops.

You can get tickets by telephoning Lasell Junior College, Auburndale.

At a small, family wedding, June 25, Laura C. Whiteside of Cochituate will be married to George T. Butts of Oklahoma City. It will be at the home of her parents, the Frederick S. Whitesides.

Rev. E. F. Chauncey of St. Peter's Church, Weston, will officiate at 3 o'clock. M. Kiplinger Hine Jr. of Bloomington, Ind., will be best man with the bride's brothers, Haven and Duncan, as ushers.

Henrietta Whiteside, a Windsor student, will be bridesmaid for her sister. Louise Harris of Brookline will be maid of honor for her college roommate. They'll be graduated from Oberlin June 12.

The future bridegroom assisted in the chemistry department at Oberlin a year ago, after his graduation from the University of Oklahoma. He'll take his bride, a '51-'52 [illegible], to Cleveland to make their home.

BOSTONIANS TO MONTREAL

Bostonians will be going to Montreal for the June 4 wed-

[57]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,211

MAY 1 1 1955

Boston Symphony 74th Season Notable for Zest and Variety

By CYRUS DURGIN

The 74th season of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, which conductor Charles Munch brought to a close a week ago last night was, I believe, notable for zest and variety. It was a lively, interesting season and one in which, most often, conductor and orchestra were at their most exceptional best. The comparatively few times when such was not the case only served to accentuate the rule.

Mr. Munch is a modest, sincere man and these qualities carry over into his music. He is also a man to whom dullness probably is abhorrent. I suspect that his brain and imagination frequently are kindled by the work in hand, and sometimes the flames leap too high in terms of speed and volume. The Beethoven Fifth Symphony, the actual closing work of the season, was an example, at least on Friday afternoon.

Mastery

Otherwise, however, Mr. Munch is a conductor of great mastery, both in the technical matters of handling the orchestra and in terms of expressive eloquence. Week after week in his sixth year among us, he brought us memorable accounts of great and lesser music. Very seldom, according to my books, was anything lackadaisical or short on verve.

It may be observed again that his ear is typically French. He likes a light, clear, sweet string tone and from woodwinds; he likes a bright timbre from the brass, and he is fond of robust percussion. I think he goes too far in bringing up the tympani, especially since he has placed the drums in a very resonant corner position. Why not, next season, try returning them to their classical place, at the rear of the orchestra in dead middle of the stage?

What, of all that Mr. Munch gave us in the seven months past, was most outstanding? To start, the complete score of the Ravel ballet, "Daphnis and Chloe," with the New England Conservatory Chorus and Alumni Chorus; second, Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust"; next, the Wagner music when Margaret Harshaw was soloist (and here Mr. Munch proved his exalted ability in the finale of "Goetterdaemmerung"). The abbreviated performance of the Bach B minor Mass, when the Harvard and Radcliffe choruses sang so well, was another high light; so were the repetition o Toch's Second Symphony, the revival of Debussy's "La Demoiselle Elue." Roussel's F major Suit and the Boston premiere of Menotti's candy-sweet Violin Concert with the incomparable Tossy Spivakovsky as soloist.

The new music? I much like Leonard Bernstein's Serenade (surely the best he has written. This estimate is an evaluation purely as music; whatever is its connection with Plato's "Symposium" is a secondary matter. Bohuslav Martinu's brisk, clever and refreshing Fantaisies Symphoniques was most engaging. The 12-tone Violin Concerto by Mario Peragallo was, to me, a solidly wrought and interesting piece, though not immediately popular with the public. Samuel Barber's "Prayers of Kierkegaard" was a sensitive and deeply-felt score and one written with high competence. I also was much impressed by the Hindemith Sinfonietta in E, which Mr. Burgin introduced. All of these deserve to be heard again. Carlos Chavez' mechanistic, coldly experimental Fifth Symphony you may have—if indeed, you want it!

Guest Conductors

We enjoyed a suitable number of guest conductors. In Pierre Monteux, whose 80th birthday "party" in the form of a special pension fund concert was an event of the season, we had an old friend, an elder statesman of thorough mastery and richly mellowed temperament.

Igor Markevitch, hitherto unknown as conductor in this country, proved a rare talent. He has brilliant technical command, sensitive feeling for style and a nature which responds to emotional music and yet is not overwhelmed by it. His performance of "La Sacre du Printemps" was really stupendous.

I continue to admire Guido Cantelli, although I hope, as he grows older, he will cast off some of that high tension which comes between him and full revealment of some music. His basic talent is enormous. Certainly his reading of the Verdi Requiem and the Respighi Roman sketches, the "Pines" and "Fountains," were vivid successes.

Mr. Burgin, ever increasing his flexibility and expressive powers, presented us with some of the most interesting works of the season. He is exceedingly valuable as associate conductor. Next year I hope he will manage to play some Mahler and Sibelius, two composers we need not expect from Mr. Munch because their music is alien to his artistic nature.

The list of soloists was unusually good. Claudio Arrau gave a truly splendid performance of Beethoven's C minor Piano Concerto; Vera Franceschi and Gary Graffman turned out to be most excellently equipped and promising young pianists; the abilities of pianist Leon Fleisher we already knew. To hear soprano Irmgard Seefried with this orchestra was a rewarding experience. So was the appearance of Joseph Fuchs in the Peragallo Concerto, and of Isaac Stern in Bernstein's music. Last, the B minor Mass quartet of soloists: Adele Addison, Florence Kopleff, John McCollum and Donald Gramm were as fine a group as one could have asked.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Parkway Transcript
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 6,382

MAY 1 1 1955

Annual Simmons Night at Pops

The annual Simmons Night at Pops is being held on Tuesday, May 17, under the sponsorship of the Simmons Club of Boston. Simmons was one of the first colleges to hold "nights" at Pops, and the proceeds go to benefit the scholarship program.

The Glee Club, under the able direction of Burton Cleaves will sing. The Senior Flower Vendors with their trays of gardenias and carnations will add a colorful note.

Ilmi Saari Jones, a director of the club, is in charge and is assisted by Mary Massa. Reservations must be in by May [illegible].

Mrs. Richard P. Bonney of West Roxbury, president of the Boston Simmons Club, reports that many local graduates have already taken tables, and are anticipating an evening of delightful music in the company of their classmates.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Parkway Transcript
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 6,382

1955

Eastern Star Night At Boston Pops

Members and friesds of Roslindale Chapter, No. 104, and Contentment Chapter, No. 184, Order of Eastern Star, will be welcomed by Mrs. Laura Olsen, worthy matron, and Mrs. Marjorie Speight, worthy matron, at the annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall, Boston, Thursday, May 26.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16th, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O. E. S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 11 1955

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Foster's Democrat (e)
DOVER, N. H.
Independent
Circ. 6,670

MAY 11 1955

UNH Night At Pops Thursday

DURHAM — University of New Hampshire Night at the Bostoh Pops will be presented Thursday night, May 12, at 8:30 p.m., Symphony Hall, Boston. The program will include the Boston Pops Orchestra under the direction of Arthur Fiedler and will feature, at intermission, the University of New Hampshire Concert Choir directed by Professor Karl H. Bratton.

This year marks the fifth annual appearance of the University Choir at Symphony Hall in a special musical program prepared for students, faculty, alumni, and friends of the University. The event is sponsored by the Boston UNH Alumni club in cooperation with the management of Symphony hall.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Citizen
BROOKLINE, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 16,250 free

MAY 1 2 1955

ELSIE SEARS of Brookline will play a Mozart concerto for two pianos with Irene Dubois at Wellesley College night at Pops next Saturday.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News-Tribune (e)
WALTHAM, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 13,413

MAY 11 1955

The Paideais League of Boston will be among those enjoying a night at Pops on May 17, at Syphony Hall. Miss Janice Cobb of 15 Alderwood road, Waltham, is chairman of the event.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Advocate
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,987

MAY 1 2 1955

Former Local Resident Solos With Boston Pops

Hazel Weems of Lexington, formerly of Arlington, made her debut as violin soloist with the Boston Pops orchestra on Friday evening, May 6, with Harry Ellis Dickson conducting.

Mrs. Weems, head of the string department at Dana Hall, played the Adagio and Finale movements of the Bruch Concerto.

A graduate of the Julliard school, she gives private instruction from her home.

UNH Concert Choir At Pops

SIXTY SELECTED VOICES of concert choir at the University of New Hampshire will be featured at university's night at Pops tomorrow. Choir is directed by Karl H. Bratton (first row, right).

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Union Leader (m)
MANCHESTER, N. H.
Independent
Circ. 43,546

MAY 12 1955

Boston Pops Features UNH Singers Tonight

DURHAM — University of New Hampshire Night at the Boston Pops will be presented tonight at 8:30 p. m., Symphony Hall, Boston. The program will include the Boston Pops Orchestra under the direction of Arthur Fiedler and will feature, at intermission, the University of New Hampshire Concert Choir directed by Prof. Karl H. Bratton.

This year marks the fifth annual appearance of the University Choir at Symphony Hall in a special musical program prepared for students, faculty, alumni, and friends of the university. The event is sponsored by the Boston UNH Alumni club in cooperation with the management of Symphony Hall.

[58]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,211

MAY 1955

Boston Symphony 74th Season Notable for Zest and Variety

By CYRUS DURGIN

The 74th season of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, which conductor Charles Munch brought to a close a week ago last night was, I believe, notable for zest and variety. It was a lively, interesting season and one in which, most often, conductor and orchestra were at their most exceptional best. The comparatively few times when such was not the case only served to accentuate the rule.

Mr. Munch is a modest, sincere man and these qualities carry over into his music. He is also a man to whom dullness probably is abhorrent. I suspect that his brain and imagination frequently are kindled by the work in hand, and sometimes the flames leap too high in terms of speed and volume. The Beethoven Fifth Symphony, the actual closing work of the season, was an example, at least on Friday afternoon.

Mastery

Otherwise, however, Mr. Munch is a conductor of great mastery, both in the technical matters of handling the orchestra and in terms of expressive eloquence. Week after week in his sixth year among us, he brought us memorable accounts of great and lesser music. Very seldom, according to my books, was anything lackadaisical or short on verve.

It may be observed again that his ear is typically French. He likes a light, clear, sweet string tone and from woodwinds; he likes a bright timbre from the brass, and he is fond of robust percussion. I think he goes too far in bringing up the tympani, especially since he has placed the drums in a very resonant corner position. Why not, next season, try returning them to their classical place, at the rear of the orchestra in dead middle of the stage?

What, of all that Mr. Munch gave us in the seven months past, was most outstanding? To start, the complete score of the Ravel ballet, "Daphnis and Chloe," with the New England Conservatory Chorus and Alumni Chorus; second, Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust"; next, the Wagner music when Margaret Harshaw was soloist (and here Mr. Munch proved his exalted ability in the finale of "Goetterdaemmerung"). The abbreviated performance of the Bach B minor Mass, when the Harvard and Radcliffe choruses sang so well, was another high light; so were the repetition o Toch's Second Symphony, the re vival of Debussy's "La Demoisell Elue." Roussel's F major Suit and the Boston premiere of Men otti's candy-sweet Violin Concert with the incomparable Toss Spivakovsky as soloist.

The new music? I much liked Leonard Bernstein's Serenade surely the best he has written This estimate is an evaluation purely as music; whatever is its connection with Plato's "Symposium" is a secondary matter. Bohuslav Martinu's brisk, clever and refreshing Fantaisies Symphoniques was most engaging. The 12-tone Violin Concerto by Mario Peragallo was, to me, a solidly-wrought and interesting piece though not immediately popular with the public. Samuel Barber's "Prayers of Kierkegaard" was a sensitive and deeply-felt score and one written with high competence. I also was much impressed by the Hindemith Sinfonietta in E, which Mr. Burgin introduced. All of these deserve to be heard again. Carlos Chavez' mechanistic, coldly experimental Fifth Symphony you may have—if indeed, you want it!

Guest Conductors

We enjoyed a suitable number of guest conductors. In Pierre Monteux, whose 80th birthday party" in the form of a special pension fund concert was an event of the season, we had an old friend, an elder statesman of thorough mastery and richly mellowed temperament.

Igor Markevitch, hitherto unknown as conductor in this country, proved a rare talent. He has brilliant technical command, sensitive feeling for style and a nature which responds to emotional music and yet is not overwhelmed by it. His performance of "La Sacre du Printemps" was really stupendous.

I continue to admire Guido Cantelli, although I hope, as he grow older, he will cast off some of th high tension which comes betwee him and full revealment of som music. His basic talent is enor mous. Certainly his reading o the Verdi Requiem and the Re spighi Roman sketches, the "Pines and "Fountains," were vivid suc cesses.

Mr. Burgin, ever increasing hi flexibility and expressive powers, presented us with some of the most interesting works of the season. He is exceedingly valuable as associate conductor. Next year I hope he will manage to play some Mahler and Sibelius, two composers we need not expect from Mr. Munch because their music is alien to his artistic nature.

The list of soloists was unusually good. Claudio Arrau gave a truly splendid performance of Beethoven's C minor Piano Concerto; Vera Franceschi and Gary Graffman turned out to be most excellently equipped and promising young pianists; the abilities of pianist Leon Fleisher we already knew. To hear soprano Irmgard Seefried with this orchestra was a rewarding experience. So was the appearance of Joseph Fuchs in the Peragallo Concerto, and of Isaac Stern in Bernstein's music. Last, the B minor Mass quartet of soloists: Adele Addison, Florence Kopleff, John McCollum and Donald Gramm were as fine a group as one could have asked.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Parkway Transcript
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 6,382

1955

Annual Simmons Night at Pops

The annual Simmons Night at Pops is being held on Tuesday, May 17, under the sponsorship of the Simmons Club of Boston. Simmons was one of the first colleges to hold "nights" at Pops, and the proceeds go to benefit the scholarship program.

The Glee Club, under the able direction of Burton Cleaves will sing. The Senior Flower Vendors with their trays of gardenias and carnations will add a colorful note.

Ilmi Saari Jones, a director of the club, is in charge and is assisted by Mary Massa. Reservations must be in by May

Mrs. Richard P. Bonney of West Roxbury, president of the Boston Simmons Club, reports that many local graduates have already taken tables, and are anticipating an evening of delightful music in the company of their classmates.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Parkway Transcript
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 6,382

1955

Eastern Star Night At Boston Pops

Members and friesds of Roslindale Chapter, No. 104, and Contentment Chapter, No. 184, Order of Eastern Star, will be welcomed by Mrs. Laura Olsen, worthy matron, and Mrs. Marjorie Speight, worthy matron, at the annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall, Boston, Thursday, May 26.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16th, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O. E. S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

11 1955

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Citizen
BROOKLINE, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 16,250 free

MAY 12 1955

ELSIE SEARS of Brookline will play a Mozart concerto for two pianos with Irene Dubois at Wellesley College night at Pops next Saturday.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Advocate
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,987

MAY 12 1955

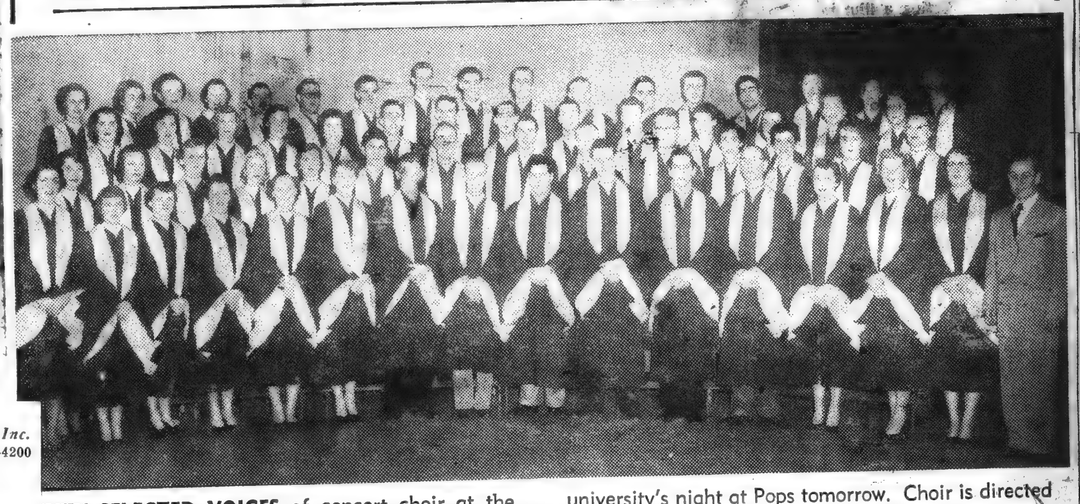
Former Local Resident Solos With Boston Pops

Hazel Weems of Lexington, formerly of Arlington, made her debut as violin soloist with the Boston Pops orchestra on Friday evening, May 6, with Harry Ellis Dickson conducting.

Mrs. Weems, head of the string department at Dana Hall, played the Adagio and Finale movements of the Bruch Concerto.

A graduate of the Julliard school, she gives private instruction from her home.

UNH Concert Choir At Pops



SIXTY SELECTED VOICES of concert choir at the University of New Hampshire will be featured at university's night at Pops tomorrow. Choir is directed by Karl H. Bratton (first row, right)

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Foster's Democrat (e)
DOVER, N. H.
Independent
Circ. 6,670

MAY 11 1955

UNH Night At Pops Thursday

DURHAM — University of New Hampshire Night at the Boston Pops will be presented Thursday night, May 12, at 8:30 p.m., Symphony Hall, Boston. The program will include the Boston Pops Orchestra under the direction of Arthur Fiedler and will feature, at intermission, the University of New Hampshire Concert Choir directed by Professor Karl H. Bratton.

This year marks the fifth annual appearance of the University Choir at Symphony Hall in a special musical program prepared for students, faculty, alumni, and friends of the University. The event is sponsored by the Boston UNH Alumni club in cooperation with the management of Symphony hall.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

News-Tribune (e)
WALTHAM, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 13,413

MAY 11 1955

The Paideais League of Boston will be among those enjoying a night at Pops on May 17, at Syphony Hall. Miss Janice Cobb of 15 Alderwood road, Waltham, is chairman of the event.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Union Leader (m)
MANCHESTER, N. H.
Independent
Circ. 43,546

MAY 12 1955

Boston Pops Features UNH Singers Tonight

DURHAM — University of New Hampshire Night at the Boston Pops will be presented tonight at 8:30 p. m., Symphony Hall, Boston. The program will include the Boston Pops Orchestra under the direction of Arthur Fiedler and will feature, at intermission, the University of New Hampshire Concert Choir directed by Prof. Karl H. Bratton.

This year marks the fifth annual appearance of the University Choir at Symphony Hall in a special musical program prepared for students, faculty, alumni, and friends of the university. The event is sponsored by the Boston UNH Alumni club in cooperation with the management of Symphony Hall.

[58]

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930
MAY 22 1955

B. U. Plans Week End For Alumni

Thousands of Boston University alumni will return to the B. U. campus for the alumni week end, June 2-5, climaxed by commencement exercises for 2400 seniors.

One of the biggest turnouts in the university's history is expected at the traditional "sunset supper" which brings the various classes together Alumni Day, Saturday, June 4.

The supper will be held in Commonwealth Armory at 6:30 p. m. Special guests will include Charles Farrell, business administration, '23, star of the TV show, "My Little Margie"; Miss Teresa Fallon, CSN, School of Nursing, '47, and Dr. Arthur R. Schuck, chief asst. executive of the Boy Scouts of America.

Dr. Frank E. Barton, Boston surgeon, completing a two-year term, of president of all Boston University Alumni, will preside throughout the day. Other dinner guests will be President and Mrs. Harold C. Case of the university; former Dean Everett W. Lord, long-time head of the college of business administration; and Randall W. Weeks, alumni executive secretary.

Farrell, a star of the silent movies, is currently Mayor of Palm Springs, Calif. Miss Fallon, a native of Lowell, maintains New York city headquarters as director of the Nursing advisory services for orthopedics and poliomyelitis of the National League for Nursing.

Other events Saturday are a one-act play at the Boston University Theatre, an alumni workshop, a salute to Boston University by Massachusetts Yacht clubs parading their craft in the Charles River opposite the campus, and a reception at the home of President and Mrs. Case.

The program will open Thursday, June 2, with registration for the alumni family reunion of the 25th and 50th year classes. On Friday, an outing and clambake for these classes will be held at B. U.'s Osgood Hill Centre, North Andover.

B. U. Pops Night

Friday's program also includes the 25th and 50th year class dinners at Shelton Hall at 6 p. m., the Century Club dinner for all donors of $100 or more to the Alumni Fund to be held in the Raleigh Room at Shelton Hall, and the 25th year reunion of the College of Business Administration at Hotel Somerset at 6 p. m.

A Boston University night at the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall, with Arthur Fiedler conducting, will climax Friday's program.

The senior class exercises of the School of Medicine will be held on Saturday in Marsh Chapel along with the Class of 1905 luncheon at the University Faculty Club. On the Saturday schedule also is an exhibition of Boston University's progress, in Hayden Memorial Hall, and a number of school and college reunion luncheons.

Highlight of the week end will be the commencement program which opens with baccalaureate services at 10:30 a. m., Sunday at University Field. Graduation ceremonies begin at 4 p. m. when 2400 students will be awarded degrees. In the event of rain, the baccalaureate and commencement ceremonies will be held in Boston.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

achusetts Real Estate Asso-
n. The organization has red one half the floor of Sym-y Hall for use of Realtors, families and friends on that e event is being handled by association's Realtor promo-committee, headed by Henry Palmer of Milton, and tickets available through the secre-es of the 24 real estate boards

he Commonwealth.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Tribune (e)
LAWRENCE, Mass.
Independent

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 102,016
MAY 22 1955

To Attend Concert

Realtors will have their night at the Boston Pops on June 20, it was announced today by Samuel P. Backman, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association. The organization has reserved one half the floor of Symphony Hall for use of realtors, their families and friends on that date.

E. S. Thyberg, president of the Springfield Board, announced that John L. Seyler is local representative of the realtor committee, and he and Wolcott W. Gumble, secretary of the board, will supervise local ticket distribution.

Arthur J. Dolben, president of the Boston Real Estate Board, announced that George R. Glendining, editor of Banker and Tradesman, is local representative of the Realtor Committee, and that local ticket distribution will be handled through the office of the Boston Real Estate Board.

"Realtors' Pops Night will have added significance for members of the real estate fraternity because one of its members will be guest piano soloist at the concert", said Mr. Backman.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
American (e)
WATERBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 39,951
MAY 23 1955

TWO FIEDLERS
Milwaukee—(UP)—Arthur Fiedler took his Boston Pops Orchestra to Wauwatosa for a concert recently and discovered he had a namesake. Arthur Fiedler is a teller in the First Wisconsin National Bank.

5-55

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 102,016
MAY 22 1955

DICKSON TO LEAD IN FIEDLER'S PLACE

The opening broadcast in the new series of presentations by the renowned Boston Pops Orchestra from Symphony Hall will be conducted by Harry Dickson tomorrow (NBC Radio, 8.15-9 p. m., EDT). Arthur Fiedler, regular conductor of the orchestra, will be absent from the podium for two weeks because of hospitalization for surgery.

Dickson has chosen four numbers for the broadcast portion of the program: "The Wedding Procession" from Rimsky-Korsakov's opera "Le Coq d'Or"; "Mignon Overture" by Thomas; Faure's "Pavane" and the "Dance of the Hours" from Ponchielli's opera "La Gioconda." In addition, several surprise selections will be played as encores, following the custom in these pops concerts.

This year marks the 70th anniversary of the orchestra, and 25 years under Fiedler's direction. The broadcasts are produced in Boston by Abner Rakov.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Standard-Times
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 50,451
MAY 22 1955

Dartmouth Choral Groups See Game

The Dartmouth High School Glee Clubs attended a Red Sox-Yankee game in Boston. Also part of the annual outing was a visit to Symphony Hall where all enjoyed the Pops concert.

The Glee Clubs also attended the Southeastern Massachusetts Music Festival held in Mansfield, where various musical organizations auditioned. Highlights of the day were the parade and the massed band concert.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241
MAY 23 1955

Social Workers Set May 30 Date at Pops

The first annual Pops night of the American Association of Medical Social Workers will be held Monday, May 30. Lucie Benedikt, social service department, Beth Israel Hospital, is ticket chairman.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068
Sunday Advertiser
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 542,972

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593
MAY 23 1955

Chairman Named For Israel Pops

Samuel D. Shapiro of Brookline has been named chairman of the Israel Night at Pops Committee. His appointment was made by the directors of the Greater Boston Israel Histadrut Committee.

The annual Israel concert will be held at Symphony Hall on June 16.

Shapiro is currently secretary of the Histadrut Committee. He is a past president of the Temple Kadimah Brotherhood and a member of many other communal organizations.

Proceeds of the concert will go to medical work conducted by the Histadrut.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Telegram
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 103,999
MAY 22 1955

Pops to Begin Air Series

The nationally famous Boston Pops Orchestra will return to the air with a series of broadcasts on the NBC Radio Network, Mondays beginning May 23, 8.15-9 p. m. Arthur Fiedler, regular conductor of the group, will be on the podium.

The concerts will take place in Boston's Symphony Hall before capacity audiences, sitting at the tables and enjoying refreshments along with their music.

The concerts started in Boston in 1885 and have since become an annual tradition for the Spring months. Other cities have tried to imitate them, but met with little success. The orchestra, which is made up of members of the great Boston Symphony, also is one of the top recording favorites in the nation.

Selections from popular songs to symphonic excerpts and concertos, with all the variety in between, make up the programs of this musical organization.

Arthur Fiedler became regular conductor of the Pops in 1930. His long tenure on the podium has endeared him not only to Boston audiences, but to music lovers all over the nation. In addition to many broadcast series and recordings, there also have been many tours of the orchestra.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,246
MAY 24 1955

About The City

The annual meeting of Congregation Sons of Zion will be held at the synagogue at 8 p. m. Wednesday. Members of the board of directors will be voted upon, and annual reports made. Cantor Pollack of Hartford will provide entertainment.

The Lowell State Teachers college choir, under the direction of Edward F. Gilday, former Holyoker, will perform at the Mass. State Teachers Colleges Alumni Federation "Pops" concert Friday night in Symphony hall, Boston. This is the first concert of this type to be presented by the federation. Mr. Gilday, who was formerly music supervisor in the Holyoke schools, is professor of vocal and choral music and chairman of the Music Dept. at Lowell.

The two-tone jacket of Tommy Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Johnson of 44 East Court St., reported stolen last Friday at the Trade High school was not stolen but was waiting for the owner at the school, where the boy mislaid it. Tommy's baseball glove was recently stolen from the lockers at Mackenzie Stadium, and his father reported the missing jacket as a theft prematurely.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Eagle (m)
LAWRENCE, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 3,056
MAY 24 1955

Realtors' Night At Boston Pops

Music-loving Realtors will have their night at the Boston Pops on June 20, it was announced Monday by Samuel P. Backman, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association. The organization has reserved one half the floor of Symphony Hall for use of Realtors, their families and friends on that date. Local realtors will participate under the leadership of their president, Henry J. Comptois.

[59]

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930
MAY 22 1955

B. U. Plans Week End For Alumni

Thousands of Boston University alumni will return to the B. U. campus for the alumni week end, June 2-5, climaxed by commencement exercises for 2400 seniors.

One of the biggest turnouts in the university's history is expected at the traditional "sunset supper" which brings the various classes together Alumni Day, Saturday, June 4.

The supper will be held in Commonwealth Armory at 6:30 p. m. Special guests will include Charles Farrell, business administration, '23, star of the TV show, "My Little Margie"; Miss Teresa Fallon, CON, School of Nursing, '47, and Dr. Arthur R. Schuck, chief [illegible] executive of the Boy [illegible] America.

Dr. Frank E. Barton, Boston surgeon, completing a two-year term of president of all Boston University Alumni, will preside throughout the day. Other dinner guests will be President and Mrs. Harold C. Case of the university; former Dean Everett W. Lord, long-time head of the college of business administration; and Randall W. Weeks, alumni executive secretary.

Farrell, a star of the silent movies, is currently Mayor of Palm Springs, Calif. Miss Fallon, a native of Lowell, maintains New York city headquarters as director of the Nursing advisory services for orthopedics and poliomyelitis of the National League for Nursing.

Other events Saturday are a one-act play at the Boston University Theatre, an alumni workshop, a salute to Boston University by Massachusetts Yacht clubs parading their craft in the Charles River opposite the campus, and a reception at the home of President and Mrs. Case.

The program will open Thursday, June 2, with registration for the alumni family reunion of the 25th and 50th year classes. On Friday, an outing and clambake for these classes will be held at B. U.'s Osgood Hill Centre, North Andover.

B. U. Pops Night

Friday's program also includes the 25th and 50th year class dinners at Shelton Hall at 6 p. m., the Century Club dinner for all donors of $100 or more to the Alumni Fund to be held in the Raleigh Room at Shelton Hall, and the 25th year reunion of the College of Business Administration at Hotel Somerset at 6 p. m.

A Boston University night at the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall, with Arthur Fiedler conducting, will climax Friday's program.

The senior class exercises of the School of Medicine will be held on Saturday in Marsh Chapel along with the Class of 1905 luncheon at the University Faculty Club. On the Saturday schedule also is an exhibition of Boston University's progress, in Hayden Memorial Hall, and a number of school and college reunion luncheons.

Highlight of the week end will be the commencement program which opens with baccalaureate services at 10:30 a. m., Sunday at University Field. Graduation ceremonies begin at 4 p. m. when 2400 students will be awarded degrees. In the event of rain, the baccalaureate and commencement ceremonies will be held in Boston.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.

[redacted]

Boston Board Plans "Pops" Night

Music-loving realtors will have their night at the Pops on June 20, it was announced by Samuel P. Backman, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association. The organization has reserved one half the floor of Symphony Hall for use of realtors, their families and friends on that date.

The event is being handled by the Association's Realtor Promotion Committee, headed by Henry W. Palmer of Milton, and tickets are available through the secretaries of the 24 real estate boards in the Commonwealth.

Arthur J. Dolben, president of the Boston Real Estate Board, announced that George R. Glendining, editor of Banker and Tradesman, is local representative of the Realtor Committee, and that local ticket distribution will be handled through the office of the Boston Real Estate Board.

"Realtors' Pops Night will have added significance for members of the real estate fraternity because one of its members will be guest piano soloist at the concert", said Mr. Backman.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
American (e)
WATERBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 39,951
MAY 23 1955

TWO FIEDLERS

Milwaukee—(UP)—Arthur Fiedler took his Boston Pops Orchestra to Wauwatosa for a concert recently and discovered he had a namesake. Arthur Fiedler is a teller in the First Wisconsin National Bank.

5-55

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 102,016
MAY 22 1955

DICKSON TO LEAD IN FIEDLER'S PLACE

The opening broadcast in the new series of presentations by the renowned Boston Pops Orchestra from Symphony Hall will be conducted by Harry Dickson tomorrow (NBC Radio, 8.15-9 p. m., EDT). Arthur Fiedler, regular conductor of the orchestra, will be absent from the podium for several weeks because of hospital action for surgery.

Dickson has chosen four numbers for the broadcast portion of the program: "The Wedding Procession" from Rimsky-Korsakov's opera "Le Coq d'Or," "Mignon Overture" by Thomas, Faure's "Pavane" and the "Dance of the Hours" from Ponchielli's opera "La Gioconda." In addition, several surprise selections will be played as encores, following the custom in these pops concerts.

This year marks the 70th anniversary of the orchestra, and 25 years under Fiedler's direction. The broadcasts are produced in Boston by Abner Rakov.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

[redacted]usetts Real Estate Asso- The organization has re- ne half the floor of Sym- all for use of Realtors, milies and friends on that vent is being handled by ociation's Realtor promo- mittee, headed by Henry er of Milton, and tickets lable through the secre- the 24 real estate boards ommonwealth.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Standard-Times
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 50,451
MAY 22 1955

Dartmouth Choral Groups See Game

The Dartmouth High School Glee Clubs attended a Red Sox-Yankee game in Boston. Also part of the annual outing was a visit to Symphony Hall where all enjoyed the Pops concert.

The Glee Clubs also attended the Southeastern Massachusetts Music Festival held in Mansfield, where various musical organizations auditioned. Highlights of the day were the parade and the massed band concert.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241
MAY 23 1955

Social Workers Set May 30 Date at Pops

The first annual Pops night of the American Association of Medical Social Workers will be held Monday, May 30. Lucie Benedikt, social service department, Beth Israel Hospital, is ticket chairman.

BETH ISRAEL POPS NIGHT

The Beth Israel Hospital Junior Auxiliary will hold its 12th annual "Pops" Night May 31 at Symphony Hall, with Estelle Levine as chairman.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Telegram
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 103,999
MAY 22 1955

Pops to Begin Air Series

The nationally famous Boston Pops Orchestra will return to the air with a series of broadcasts on the NBC Radio Network, Mondays beginning May 23, 8.15-9 p. m. Arthur Fiedler, regular conductor of the group, will be on the podium.

The concerts will take place in Boston's Symphony Hall before capacity audiences, sitting at the tables and enjoying refreshments along with their music.

The concerts started in Boston in 1885, and have since become an annual tradition for the Spring months. Other cities have tried to imitate them, but met with little success. The orchestra, which is made up of members of the great Boston Symphony, also is one of the top recording favorites in the nation.

Selections from popular songs to symphonic excerpts and concertos, with all the variety in between, make up the programs of this musical organization.

Arthur Fiedler became regular conductor of the Pops in 1930. His long tenure on the podium [illegible]red him not [illegible]diences, but [illegible]ll over the [illegible] to many [illegible] recordings, [illegible]een many [illegible]ca.

[redacted]
SLOTNICK MONUMENT WORKS
EVergreen 7-3980
242 Fulton St.
BROOKLINE AS 7-1700 — Chelsea CH 3-2300
TORF FUNERAL CHAPELS
420 Harvard St., Brookline, AS 7-8877
SOLOMON FUNERAL HOME
AS 7-3300 AS 7-3010 GE 6-1111 TA 5-2525
LEVINE CHAPELS (Estab. 1893)
Funeral Directors
NOTTONSON In Swampscott, Jan. 22, 1955, Jacob of 242 East 56th st., Brooklyn N. Y., beloved brother of Mrs. Sarah Cohins of Lynn. Funeral services will be held at the Hymanson Funeral Home, 117 North Common St., Lynn, Tues. May 24, at 10 A. M. Relatives and friends invited.
p, Inc.
-2-0068

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,246
MAY 24 1955

About The City

The annual meeting of Congregation Sons of Zion will be held at the synagogue at 8 p. m. Wednesday. Members of the board of directors will be voted upon, and annual reports made. Cantor Pollack of Hartford will provide entertainment.

The Lowell State Teachers college choir, under the direction of Edward F. Gilday, former Holyoker, will perform at the Mass. State Teachers Colleges Alumni Federation "Pops" concert Friday night in Symphony hall, Boston. This is the first concert of this type to be presented by the federation. Mr. Gilday, who was formerly music supervisor in the Holyoke schools, is professor of vocal and choral music and chairman of the Music Dept. at Lowell.

The two-tone jacket of Tommy Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Johnson of 44 East Court St., reported stolen last Friday at the Trade High school was not stolen but was waiting for the owner at the school, where the boy mislaid it. Tommy's baseball glove was recently stolen from the lockers at Mackenzie Stadium, and his father reported the missing jacket as a theft prematurely.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Eagle (m)
LAWRENCE, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 3,056
MAY 24 1955

Realtors' Night At Boston Pops

Music-loving Realtors will have their night at the Boston Pops on June 20, it was announced Monday by Samuel P. Backman, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association. The organization has reserved one half the floor of Symphony Hall for use of Realtors, their families and friends on that date. Local realtors will participate under the leadership of their president, Henry J. Comptois.

[59]

INFORMATION OBSCURED

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

MAY 22 1955

B. U. Plans Week End For Alumni

Thousands of Boston U sity alumni will return B. U. campus for the week end, June 2-5, c commencement exe 2400 seniors.

One of the bigg the unive- ty's pected a supper class Sa ng room with f. p., front and rear d hen with automatic washer, garage newly painted. A rustic surrounding of affords safe play area for children, pl at location. 30 year mortgage for vete pal and interest. Liberal non-veteran finan

ONE R. LOWRANCE
Realtors
170 NORTH STREET
Tel. Hingham 6-1431

ST CHELMSFORD
ACRE DEVELOPMENT
NCHES $12,600-$13,100 GARA
VED—NO CASH DOWN
ERN GAS HEATING

lot, 18,750 sq. ft., completely landscaped rea. Located only 3 minutes from Chelmsf 2 mile from the new proposed Route 3 ating, swimming, fishing, and golfing. See ection of colors throughout.

SUGDEN, BUILDER
Lowell—Glenview 2-4344
or 4 to Chelmsford Center, continue Rou take Route 40, Groton Rd., 1 mile to Trip to Bradford Rd.

$8600
NEW RANCH HOME

N. col- ation; lumni

e silent Mayor of Miss Fal- owell, main- ity headquar- of the Nursing for orthopedics is of the National ursing.

nts Saturday are a y at the Boston Uni- heatre, an alumni work- shop, salute to Boston University by Massachusetts Yacht clubs parading their craft in the Charles River opposite the campus, and a reception at the home of President and Mrs. Case.

The program will open Thursday, June 2, with registration for the alumni family reunion of the 25th and 50th year classes. On Friday, an outing and clambake for these classes will be held at B. U.'s Osgood Hill Centre, North Andover.

B. U. Pops Night

Friday's program also includes the 25th and 50th year class dinners at Shelton Hall at 6 p. m., the Century Club dinner for all donors of $100 or more to the Alumni Fund to be held in the Raleigh Room at Shelton Hall, and the 25th year reunion of the College of Business Administration at Hotel Somerset at 6 p. m.

A Boston University night at the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall, with Arthur Fiedler conducting, will climax Friday's program.

The senior class exercises of the School of Medicine will be held on Saturday in Marsh Chapel along with the Class of 1905 luncheon at the University Faculty Club. On the Saturday schedule also is an exhibition of Boston University's progress, in Hayden Memorial Hall, and a number of school and college reunion luncheons.

Highlight of the week end will be the commencement program which opens with baccalaureate services at 10:30 a. m., Sunday at University Field. Graduation ceremonies begin at 4 p. m. when 2400 students will be awarded degrees. In the event of rain, the baccalaureate and commencement ceremonies will be held in Boston.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Tribune (e)
VRENCE, Mass.
ependent
34,905

N 23 1955

achusetts Real Estate Asso- n. The organization has re- d one half the floor of Sym- y Hall for use of Realtors, families and friends on that e event is being handled by association's Realtor promo- committee, headed by Henry Palmer of Milton, and tickets available through the secre- es of the 24 real estate boards he Commonwealth.

rs' Night ston Pops oving Realtors will have ght at the Boston Pops e 20, it was announced by Samuel P. Backman, nt of the Massachusetts state Association. The or- ized one half floor of Symphony Hall for Realtors, their families and ds on that date. Local real- will participate under the dership of their president, nry J. Comptois.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Standard-Times
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 50,451

MAY 22 1955

Dartmouth Choral Groups See Game

The Dartmouth High School Glee Clubs attended a Red Sox-Yankee game in Boston. Also part of the annual outing was a visit to Symphony Hall where all enjoyed the Pops concert.

The Glee Clubs also attended the Southeastern Massachusetts Music Festival held in Mansfield, where various musical organizations auditioned. Highlights of the day were the parade and the massed band concert.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Telegram
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 103,999

MAY 22 1955

Pops to Begin Air Series

The nationally famous Boston Pops Orchestra will return to the air with a series of broadcasts on the NBC Radio Network, Mondays beginning May 23, 8.15-9 p. m. Arthur Fiedler, regular conductor of the group, will be on the podium.

The concerts will take place in Boston's Symphony Hall before capacity audiences, sitting at the tables and enjoying refreshments along with their music.

The concerts started in Boston in 1885 and have since become an annual tradition for the Spring months. Other cities have tried to imitate them, but met with little success. The orchestra, which is made up of members of the great Boston Symphony, also is one of the top recording favorites in the nation.

Selections from popular songs to symphonic excerpts and concertos, with all the variety in between, make up the programs of this musical organization.

Arthur Fiedler became regular conductor of the Pops in 1930. His long tenure on the podium has endeared him not only to Boston audiences, but to music lovers all over the nation. In addition to many broadcast series and recordings, there also have been many tours of the orchestra.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 23 1955

Social Workers Set May 30 Date at Pops

The first annual Pops the American Association cal Social Workers wil Monday, May 30. Lucie social service departm Israel Hospital, is ticket

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

American (e)
WATERBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 39,951

MAY 23 1955

TWO FIEDLERS

Milwaukee—(UP)—Arthur Fiedler took his Boston Pops Orchestra to Wauwatosa for a concert recently and discovered he namesake. Arthur Fiedl teller in the First Wisco tional Bank.

5-55

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068

Sunday Advertiser
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 542,972

MAY 22 1955

LOOKING AHEAD to their th annual "Pops" evening at ymphony Hall on Tuesday, ay 31, are members of the eth Israel Hospital Jr. Auxiliary. Chairman Estelle Levine as appointed Rene Wynn and Helen Vinocoor as co-chairmen of the evening, at which a corps of attractive flower girls will sell corsages, under the direction of Janice Komins and Marilyn Stern. Others on the committee are Marilyn Schwartz, Beverly Weiss, Ruth Rutman and Elaine Clayman.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 102,016

MAY 22 1955

DICKSON TO LEAD IN FIEDLER'S PLACE

The opening broadcast in the new series of presentations by the renowned Boston Pops Orchestra from Symphony Hall will be conducted by Harry Dickson tomorrow (NBC Radio, 8.15-9 p. m., EDT). Arthur Fiedler, regular conductor of the orchestra, will be absent from the podium for several weeks because of hospital action for surgery.

Dickson has chosen four numbers for the broadcast portion of the program: "The Wedding Procession" from Rimsky-Korsakov's opera "Le Coq d'Or"; "Mignon Overture" by Thomas, Faure's "Pavane" and the "Dance of the Hours" from Ponchielli's opera "La Gioconda." In addition, several surprise selections will be played, custom in

This year marks niversary of the orches years under Fiedler's direc The broadcasts are produced in Boston by Abner Rakov.

NOTTONSON in Swampscott, Jacob of 242 East 56th st, Brooklyn N. Y. beloved brother of Mrs. Sarah Comine of Lynn. Funeral services will be held at the Hymanson Funeral Home, 117 North Common st, Lynn, Tues May 24, at 10 A M. Relatives and friends invited.

Funeral Directors

LEVINE CHAPELS (Estab. 1892)
AS 7-8300 AS 7-3010 GE 6-1111 TA 3-5253

SOLOMON FUNERAL HOME
420 Harvard St., Brookline, AS 7-8877

TORF FUNERAL CHAPELS
BROOKLINE AS 7-1700 — Chelsea CH 3-2900

SLOTNICK MONUMENT WORKS
M. 642 Fuller St. Everett 7-3880

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Transcript-Telegram (e
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republica
Circ. 26,246

MAY 24 1955

About The City

The annual meeting of Co gregation Sons of Zion will held at the synagogue at 8 p. Wednesday. Members of board of directors will be vot upon, and annual reports ma Cantor Pollack of Hartford w provide entertainment.

The Lowell State Teache college choir, under the dire tion of Edward F. Gilday, for er Holyoker, will perform at t Mass. State Teachers Colleg Alumni Federation "Pops" co cert Friday night in Sy hall, Boston. This is the fir concert of this type to be pr sented by the federation. Mr Gilday, who was formerly musi supervisor in the Holyoke schools, is professor of vocal and choral music and chairman of the Music Dept. at Lowell.

The two-tone jacket of Tommy Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Johnson of 44 East Court St., reported stolen last Friday at the Trade High school was not stolen but was waiting for the owner at the school, where the boy mislaid it. Tommy's baseball glove was recently stolen from the lockers at Mackenzie Stadium, and his father reported the missing jacket as a theft prematurely.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Eagle (m)
LAWRENCE, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 3,056

MAY 24 1955

Realtors' Night At Boston Pops

Music-loving Realtors will have their night at the Boston Pops on June 20, it was announced Monday by Samuel P. Backman, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association. The organization has reserved the floor of Symphony Hall for use of Realtors, their families and friends on that date. Local realtors will participate under the leadership of their president, Henry J. Comptois.

[59]

INFORMATION OBSCURED

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930
MAY 22 1955

B. U. Plans Week End For Alumni

Thousands of Boston U sity alumni will return B. U. campus for th week end, June 2-5, c commencement exe 2400 seniors.

One of the bigg the unive- ty's pected a supper class Sat ng room with f. pr. front and rear c hen with automatic washer, garage newly painted. A rustic surrounding of affords safe play area for children, pl st location. 30 year mortgage for vete pal and interest. Liberal non-veteran finan

ONE R. LOWRANCE
Realtors
170 NORTH STREET
Tel. Hingham 6-1431

ST CHELMSFORD
ACRE DEVELOPMENT
NCHES $12,600-$13,100 GARA
OVED—NO CASH DOWN
ERN GAS HEATING

Int. 18,750 sq. ft., completely landscaped rea. Located only 3 minutes from Chelmsf mile from the new proposed Route 3 along swimming, fishing and golfing. Se ction of colors throughout.

SUGDEN, BUILDER
Lowell—Glenview 2-4344
or 4 to Chelmsford Center, continue Rou take Route 40, Groton Rd., 1 mile to Bradford Rd.

$8600
NEW RANCH HOME

N. col- tion; lumni

e silent Mayor of Miss Fal- owell, main- ity headquar- of the Nursing for orthopedics is of the National ursing.

nts Saturday are a y at the Boston Uni- heatre, an alumni work- shop, alute to Boston University by Massachusetts Yacht clubs parading their craft in the Charles River opposite the campus, and a reception at the home of President and Mrs. Case.

The program will open Thursday, June 2, with registration for the alumni family reunion of the 25th and 50th year classes. On Friday, an outing and clambake for these classes will be held at B. U.'s Osgood Hill Centre, North Andover.

B. U. Pops Night

Friday's program also includes the 25th and 50th year class dinners at Shelton Hall at 6 p. m., the Century Club dinner for all donors of $100 or more to the Alumni Fund to be held in the Raleigh Room at Shelton Hall, and the 25th year reunion of the College of Business Administration at Hotel Somerset at 6 p. m.

A Boston University night at the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall, with Arthur Fiedler conducting, will climax Friday's program.

The senior class exercises of the School of Medicine will be held on Saturday in Marsh Chapel along with the Class of 1905 luncheon at the University Faculty Club. On the Saturday schedule also is an exhibition of Boston University's progress in Hayden Memorial Hall, and a number of school and college reunion luncheons.

Highlight of the week end will be the commencement program which opens with baccalaureate services at 10:30 a. m., Sunday at University Field. Graduation ceremonies begin at 4 p. m. when 2400 students will be awarded degrees. In the event of rain, the baccalaureate and commencement ceremonies will be held in Boston.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071
MAY 22 1955

ate Night d at Pops ealtors will have e Boston Pops ounced by Sam- esident of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association. The organization has reserved one half the floor of Symphony Hall for use of Realtors, their families and friends on that date.

The event is being handled by the association's Realtor promotion committee, headed by Henry W. Palmer of Milton, and tickets are available through the secretaries of the 24 real estate boards in the Commonwealth.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Standard-Times
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 50,451
MAY 22 1955

Dartmouth Choral Groups See Game

The Dartmouth High School Glee Clubs attended a Red Sox-Yankee game in Boston. Also part of the annual outing was a visit to Symphony Hall where all enjoyed the Pops concert.

The Glee Clubs also attended the Southeastern Massachusetts Music Festival held in Mansfield, where various musical organizations auditioned. Highlights of the day were the parade and the massed band concert.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Telegram
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 103,999
MAY 22 1955

Pops to Begin Air Series

The nationally famous Boston Pops Orchestra will return to the air with a series of broadcasts on the NBC Radio Network, Mondays beginning May 23, 8.15-9 p. m. Arthur Fiedler, regular conductor of the group, will be on the podium.

The concerts will take place in Boston's Symphony Hall before capacity audiences, sitting at the tables and enjoying refreshments along with their music.

The concerts started in Boston in 1885 and have since become an annual tradition for the Spring months. Other cities have tried to imitate them, but met with little success. The orchestra, which is made up of members of the great Boston Symphony, also is one of the top recording favorites in the nation.

Selections from popular songs to symphonic excerpts and concertos, with all the variety in between, make up the programs of this musical organization.

Arthur Fiedler became regular conductor of the Pops in 1930. His long tenure on the podium has endeared him not only to Boston audiences, but to music lovers all over the nation. In addition to many broadcast series and recordings, there also have been many tours of the orchestra.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241
MAY 23 1955

Social Workers Set May 30 Date at Pops

The first annual Pops the American Association cal Social Workers wil Monday, May 30. Lucie social service departm Israel Hospital, is ticket

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
American (e)
WATERBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 39,951
MAY 23 1955

TWO FIEDLERS

Milwaukee—(UP)—Arthur Fiedler took his Boston Pops Orchestra to Wauwatosa for a concert recently and discovered namesake. Arthur Fiedler in the First Wisco tional Bank.

5-55

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068
Sunday Advertiser
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 542,972
MAY 22 1955

LOOKING AHEAD to their th annual "Pops" evening at ymphony Hall on Tuesday, ay 31, are members of the eth Israel Hospital Jr. Auxilary. Chairman Estelle Levine as appointed Rene Wynn and Helen Vinocoor as co-chairmen of the evening, at which a corps of attractive flower girls will sell corsages, under the direction of Janice Komins and Marilyn Stern. Others on the committee are Marilyn Schwartz, Beverly Weiss, Ruth Rutman and Elaine Clayman.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,246
MAY 24 1955

About The City

The annual meeting of Con gregation Sons of Zion will be held at the synagogue at 8 p. m. Wednesday. Members of the board of directors will be voted upon, and annual reports made. Cantor Pollack of Hartford will provide entertainment.

The Lowell State Teachers college choir, under the direction of Edward F. Gilday, former Holyoker, will perform at the Mass. State Teachers Colleges Alumni Federation "Pops" concert Friday night in Symphony hall, Boston. This is the first concert of this type to be presented by the federation. Mr. Gilday, who was formerly music supervisor in the Holyoke schools, is professor of vocal and choral music and chairman of the Music Dept. at Lowell.

The two-tone jacket of Tommy Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Johnson of 44 East Court St., reported stolen last Friday at the Trade High school was not stolen but was waiting for the owner at the school, where the boy mislaid it. Tommy's baseball glove was recently stolen from the lockers at Mackenzie Stadium, and his father reported the missing jacket as a theft prematurely.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 102,016
MAY 22 1955

DICKSON TO LEAD IN FIEDLER'S PLACE

The opening broadcast in the new series of presentations by the renowned Boston Pops Orchestra from Symphony Hall will be conducted by Harry Dickson tomorrow (NBC Radio, 8.15-9 p. m., EDT). Arthur Fiedler, regular conductor of the orchestra, will be absent from the podium for several weeks because of hospitalization for surgery.

Dickson has chosen four numbers for the broadcast portion of the program: "The Wedding Procession" from Rimsky-Korsakov's opera "Le Coq d'Or;" "Mignon Overture" by Thomas; Faure's "Pavane" and the "Dance of the Hours" from Ponchielli's opera "La Gioconda." In addition, several surprise selections will be played/ custom in th

This year ma niversary of the orches years under Fiedler's direc The broadcasts are produced in Boston by Abner Rakov.

NOTTONSON in Swampscott, Jacob of 242 East 56th st. Brooklyn N. Y. beloved brother of Mrs. Sarah Coming of Lynn. Funeral services will be held at the Hymanson Funeral Home, 117 North Common St. Lynn, Tues. May 24, at 10 A. M. Relatives and friends invited.

Funeral Directors

LEVINE CHAPELS (Estab. 1893)
AS 7-8300 AS 7-3010 GE 6-1111 TA 3-5233

SOLOMON FUNERAL HOME
420 Harvard St., Brookline, AS 7-8377

TORF FUNERAL CHAPELS
BROOKLINE AS 7-2700 — Chelsea CH 3-2900

SLOTNICK MONUMENT WORKS
232 Fuller St. EVerett 7-3980

[59]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Eagle (m)
LAWRENCE, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 3,056
MAY 24 1955

Realtors' Night At Boston Pops

Music-loving Realtors will have their night at the Boston Pops on June 20, it was announced Monday by Samuel P. Backman, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association. The organization has reserved one half the floor of Symphony Hall for use of Realtors, their families and friends on that date. Local Realtors will participate under the leadership of their president, Henry J. Comptois.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 24 1955

Notes of Irish Interest

Michael Bowles to Lead Eire Society Pops Night

By BERNARDINE TRUDEN

New Englanders will have an opportunity to hear the Boston Pops Orchestra under the baton of Ireland's foremost symphony conductor when Michael Bowles of Dublin directs the Eire Society Night at Pops on Friday, June [illegible]s 45-year-[illegible] native of [illegible] who has been visiting pro[illegible]ssor of music at Indiana [illegible]ersity the past year, came to prominence as bandmaster of the Irish Army. Just past 21, his superb talent was recognized and he was sent to the National University of Ireland for further study and training.

The Army thereupon lost him to Radio Eireann, where he shortly became musical director and later the founder and conductor of Dublin's first full-sized symphony orchestra under a native Irish Government.

In 1948, established as Ireland's top-ranking conductor, recognition came to Bowles from abroad and he served guest engagements as conductor of the B. B. C. Symphony Orchestra in London, of the Rome University Orchestra and of the national orchestra in Brussels and Stockholm.

From 1950 to 1953, he devoted his genius to perfecting and conducting the symphony orchestras in New Zealand and Australia.

He has recently completed engagements with the Canadian broadcasting service orchestra at Toronto. Between his foreign commitments, Bowles, in frequent trips to Ireland, has retained his active interest in the now flourishing symphonic music movement in Dublin and other Irish cities.

Martin A. O'Malley of Quincy is chairman of Eire Society Night at Pops and Mrs. James McElwee of Brookline is in charge of reservations.

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 24 1955

World's Greatest Orchestra?

Recordings

By Harold Rogers

The use of superlatives—where there are no provable facts—is dangerous. One can safely say, for instance, that the Golden Gate Bridge in San Francisco is the longest suspension bridge in the world, because no longer single span exists.

But to single out an orchestra as being "the world's greatest orchestra" is thoughtless and unwise. There is no way, of supporting such a statement. It is based on human opinion, the shakiest form of measurement. A jury of the world's most objective and informed critics would be at loggerheads if asked to determine the world's greatest orchestra. It is easy to select five or six orchestras that are at the top. From there on it is merely a matter of personal taste.

It is unfortunate that the Philadelphia Orchestra has occasionally been referred to as "the world's greatest orchestra." It is also unfortunate that Columbia Records has chosen to quote this statement on the jackets of the Philadelphia Orchestra's recordings. It indicates that both Columbia and the Philadelphians are not adverse to making capital out of a rash remark—something no intelligent musician, critic, or musicologist would say.

This statement actually renders the Philadelphians a disservice. The public has long since been skeptical of glib statements that this or that is "the greatest in the world." The statement also sets up a false standard that the Philadelphians may not always attain. It invites invidious comparisons with comparable organizations.

♪ ♪ ♪

There is no question that the Philadelphia Orchestra is one of the world's great orchestras. There is little doubt that it is one of the three top orchestras in the United States, the other two being the New York Philharmonic-Symphony and the Boston Symphony Orchestra. It is one of the six leading orchestras in the world—the other three being the Philharmonia in London, the Amsterdam Concertgebouw, and the Berlin Philharmonic.

Even this appraisal may be questioned by writers whose tastes differ from mine. Each of these orchestras is great, and each of them is different. Some are more adept in playing certain kinds of music than are others. Not one of them is equally adept under all musical circumstances. Not one of them can be called "the world's greatest orchestra."

This is not to deprive the Philadelphia Orchestra of the praise it deserves. Eugene Ormandy has molded it into a magnificent instrument that is suave, polished, and susceptible of the subtlest nuance. It is now winning many laurels and many new friends for the United States during its tour of Europe.

Its most recent disk for Columbia is a truly great performance of Bartók's Concerto for Orchestra (ML-4973). Since both Ormandy and Bartók came from Hungary, it is not surprising to find the conductor temperamentally attuned to the composer's music; and this disk captures the brilliance of this orchestral tour de force. Composed in 1943-44, the work has already won a solid place as a modern masterwork.

Two of Richard Strauss's tone poems — "Till Eulenspiegel' Merry Pranks" and "Don Juan" —together with two Webe[illegible] overtures—those to "Der Frei[illegible]schütz" and "Euryanthe"—ar[illegible] issued on a "His Master's Voice[illegible] disk that comes in the new lux[illegible]ury series (LHMV-19).

The orchestra is the Vienn[illegible] Philharmonic, and the conducto[illegible] the late Wilhelm Furtwängle[illegible] These are loving interpretations[illegible] done in authentic German vei[illegible] with rich blend and glow. Th[illegible] album is strikingly illustrate[illegible] with an original woodcut b[illegible] John Ross, suitable for framing.

Heitor Villa-Lobos of Braz[illegible] conducts two of his works on [illegible] new Angel disk — Bachianas Brasileiras No. 2, and "Momoprecoce," Fantasy for Piano and Orchestra — performed by the Orchestre National de la Radiodiffusion Française (ANG-35179). The first, found in the series of nine suites composed in homage to Bach (with a Brazilian inflection, of course), is often scholarly, at times very colorful, but lacking the immediate appeal of the No. 5, written for the unusual combination of soprano and eight cellos.

"Momoprecoce," however, is in Villa-Lobos's folksy vein, full of lavish colors, engaging rhythms, childlike joy. Composed in 1929 in Paris for Magda Tagliaferro, it is a fantasy that employs themes from his "Carnival of Brazilian Children," a piano suite. Mme Tagliaferro, the soloist in this recording, strikes off the pianistic witticisms with zest.

♪ ♪ ♪

Volume 13 of the American Music Festival Series, offered by Mercury, features music by two of America's finest composers of an earlier period. Charles Griffes (1884-1920) was an American impressionist of unusual talent. On this disk (MG-40012) Howard Hanson conducts the Eastman-Rochester Symphony Orchestra in Griffes' "The Pleasure Dome of Kubla Khan," "The White Peacock," "Clouds," and Bacchanale.

The other composer, Charles Martin Loeffler, composed in the earlier romantic style. A native of Alsace, he made the United States his adopted home and for 21 years was a member of the violin section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. On this disk we hear superior performances of his "Memories of My Childhood — Life in a Russian Village" and Poem for Orchestra.

Arthur Winograd, formerly the cellist of the Juilliard String Quartet, is now devoting his time to conducting. For M-G-M he has recorded his own new edition of Tchaikovsky's Souvenir de Florence, conducting his own small string orchestra (E-3173). It is ingratiating chamber music, but the recorded sound is very bright and often glaring. The current yearning for "high fidelity" often gains in higher frequencies what it loses in just plain good music.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

MAY 25 1955

Eire Society at Pops

New Englanders will have an opportunity the evening of June 10 to hear the Boston Symphony Orchestra play under the baton of Michael Bowles, Ireland's foremost symphony conductor, as he makes a guest appearance at the Boston Eire Society's night at Pops. Martin A. O'Malley of Quincy is the chairman of the Eire Society Pops Night. The society will take over the main floor of Symphony Hall for the evening.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Telegram
PORTLAND, Me.
Indep. Republican
Circ. 86,046

APR 24 1955

Mr. and Mrs. Wellington H. Bingham of Tremont St. have been spending the weekend in Boston and attended the opera, "The Marriage Of Figaro", last evening.

1-55

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

MAY 25 1955

Eire Society at Pops

New Englanders will have an opportunity the evening of June 10 to hear the Boston Symphony Orchestra play under the baton of Michael Bowles, Ireland's foremost symphony conductor, as he makes a guest appearance at the Boston Eire Society's night at Pops. Martin A. O'Malley of Quincy is the chairman of the Eire Society Pops Night. The society will take over the main floor of Symphony Hall for the evening.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0063

La Notizia (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 29,725

MAY 25 1955

IL GRANDE PIANISTA SALVATORE SULLO NEL CONCERTO DELLA "NIGHT AT POPS"

SALVATORE SULLO

Nella serata del primo giugno prossimo, alle ore 8.30, il Women's Italian Club darà una serata "Night at Pops" con la presentazione del solista Salvatore Sullo, pianista di fama internazionale.

La signorina Armida Formichelli, presidentessa, Madame Emilia Ippolito e Mrs. Louis Metafora, aiutanti direttrici, sono a capo del grande comitato che sta lavorando per la riuscita del concerto.

Salvatore Sullo, un meraviglioso pianista sotto tutti gli aspetti, ha da tempo riscosso il plauso del mondo musicale, per l'acclamazione del pubblico e dei critici, che hanno riconosciuto in lui uno dei più eminenti pianisti delle piattaforme orchestrali.

Sullo fu uno dei più brillanti allievi di Rosomanti della sua classe al Conservatorio di Musica di Napoli, dove, all'età di 15 anni, vinse il Premio Scarlatti.

I suoi studi proseguirono poi a Parigi sotto la guida di Cortot.

Dopo i successi riportati in Italia, dove suonò nelle maggiori città e con le migliori orchestre, egli fece un giro artistico in Belgio, Olanda, Polonia, Ungheria e Germania.

Sin dal 1948 egli ha suonato nella Town Hall di New York ed ha fatto le sue apparizioni da solista con Arthur Fiedler alla Boston Symphony Pops ed ai Concerti locali dell'Esplanade.

La tecnica e l'eloquenza comunicativa delle esecuzioni di Salvatore Sullo non mancheranno anche in questa occasione di dare un'impronta indimenticabile alla serata per tutti gli appassionati di musica.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 25 1955

Newton Soloist

ROBERT SHAFFER will be soloist for Grieg Piano Concerto in A minor tomorrow for Newton High School night at the Pops. He's an honor student.

[60]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News-Tribune (e)
WALTHAM, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 13,413

MAY 12 1955

Newton HS Night At Pops May 27

Friday, May 27, is the date of the 11th annual Newton High School Night at Pops in Symphony Hall, Boston. Newton High is the only high school to enjoy this privilege.

Tickets may be obtained by telephoning either of these student co-ordinators: Carroll Olton, DE 2-2040, or June Chactan, LA 7-7813. They will mail tickets to anyone requesting them.

—o—

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 13 1955

MIT Night at Pops Scheduled Sunday

MIT Night At The Pops will be held Sunday, it was announced yesterday.

The event is open to the public, with tickets on sale at the box office. The MIT Glee Club and Choral Society will perform during the intermission.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Citizen
BROOKLINE, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 16,250 free

MAY 12 1955

NIGHT AT POPS

The alumnae of the St. Elizabeth's Hospital School of Nursing is sponsoring a "Night at the Pops" on May 25. Chairman of the committee is Miss Joanne O'Brien, assisted by the Misses Margaret Walsh, Helen Fagan and Barbara Eagle.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sun (e)
HUDSON, Mass.
Indep. Republican
Circ. 2,038

MAY 1 2 1955

Concord Members May Attend O.E.S. Pops On May 26

Concord — Members and friends of Hawthorne Chapter No. 40 Order of the Eastern Star will be welcomed by Mrs. Violet Irwin, worthy master at the annual Eastern Star night at pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, Thursday, May 26.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16 by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O. E. S., for that evening. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News (e)
FRAMINGHAM, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 10,441

MAY 12 1955

Director at Tanglewood

Anthony Zarba, former voice supervisor in Marlboro public schools, winner of several scholarships, received his most recent one earlier in the week to the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood this summer. He will be active choral conductor, which includes preparing and conducting two concerts during the summer season.

In the fall Mr. Zarba will begin his new duties at Rockville Center, Long Island, N.Y., as head of the instrumental program at the South Side High school. His Ford Foundation Fellowship award included full tuition at the Conservatory the past year, salary equivalent to that of the previous year and cost of moving his family to their present residence in Southboro, Upland road. Mrs. Zarba is the former Miss Mary Howes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Howes of Southboro.

Send your news items to Edith Murray, Southboro correspondent Tel. Marl. 151-W-2.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Enterprise (e)
MARLBORO, Mass.
Indep. Republican
Circ. 5,285

MAY 12 1955

Concord Members May Attend O.E.S. Pops On May 26

Concord — Members and friends of Hawthorne Chapter No. 40 Order of the Eastern Star will be welcomed by Mrs. Violet Irwin, worthy master at the annual Eastern Star night at pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, Thursday, May 26.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16 by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O. E. S., for that evening. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 12 1955

Pops Soloist

ELSIE SEARS, award-winning radio artist, will appear with Irene Dubois in Mozart Concert ofor two pianos tomorrow at Wellesley Pops night.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box-2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Allston Citizen
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 7,750

MAY 12 1955

... the corps in February 1954 he attended Lincoln Junior High School. . . . Mrs. Ida Briggs and Mrs. Eleanor Hale, worthy matrons respectively of Bay State Chapter 160 and Evangeline Chapter 93 of the Order of the Eastern Star, will welcome local members and friends at the annual Eastern Star night at Pops in Symphony Hall, Thursday evening, May 26. The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16 for members of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 19 1955

School of Nursing Plans Pops Night

Add another to the list of benefits: May 25, alumnae of St. Elizabeth's Hospital School of Nursing will be in the audience at Symphony Hall. Joanne O'Brien is chairman.

Margaret Walsh, Helen Fagan and Barbara Eagle are on the committee.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 10,315

MAY 12 1955

B. I. Juniors To Attend 'Pops'

The 12th annual Pops Evening of the Beth Israel Hospital Junior Auxiliary, on Tuesday, May 31, at Symphony Hall, will be dedicated to Dr. Cecil G. Sheps, executive director of the hospital.

Ticket co-chairmen, Marilyn Schwartz and Beverly Weiss, announce that tickets may be purchased by contacting the Junior Auxiliary at the Beth Israel Hospital or any member Flower corsages will be sold on May 31 by the members of the Junior Auxiliary under the chairmanship of Janice Komins and Marilyn Stern.

"Pops" chairman, Estelle Levine, recently announced the appointment of Rene Wynn and Helen Vinocoor as her co-chairmen, and Elaine Clayman, publicity.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 13 1955

Senior Week Set At Clerical School

Senior Week at Boston Clerical School will get underway with a senior prom at the Sheraton Plaza tomorrow night. Other events will be Boston Clerical School night at the Pops Monday and a theater party Tuesday night. The senior banquet will be held at Hotel Beaconsfield, Brookline, Wednesday. Graduation will take place in the school auditorium Friday night.

Seniors in charge are Patricia Panico of West Roxbury, Ann Levins of Dorchester, Eleanor Heffron of Mattapan, Sophie Kazantzi of Roslindale and Margaret Colley of Mattapan.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Back Bay Ledger &
Beacon Hill Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,000 Free

MAY 12 1955

Programs Listed

Continued from Page One

versity of New Hampshire Concert Choir; Selections from "Can Can" by Cole Porter; Tviana by Hayman and the Procession of the Sardar from "Caucasian Sketches" by Ippolitov-Ivanov.

Friday evening, May 13, Lasell Junior College Night: Polonaise from "Eugene Onegin" by Tschaikowsky; Roman Carnival, Overture, by Berlioz; Valse Triste by Sibelius; Aurora by H.M. Dunham; Suite from "Carmen" by Bizet; Orphean Club of Lasell Junior College; Selections from "Guys and Dolls" by Loesser; Bugler's Holiday by Anderson and Hungarian Dance No. 5 by Brahms.

Saturday evening, May 14, Wellesley College Night: Wedding March from "Coq D'Or" by Rimsky-Korsakoff; Overture to "Mignon" by Thomas; Pavane by Faure; Dance of the Hours from "La Gioconda" by Ponchielli; Concerto for two pianos in E flat, K. 365 by Mozart; Waltzes from "Der Rosenkavalier" by Strauss; Suite from the Ballet, "Gayne," by Khachaturian; Selection from "Kiss Me, Kate" by Porter; The Typewriter Song by Anderson; Gypsy Dance from "Carmen" by Bizet; Wellesley Alma Mater.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

Hub Clerical School Holds Senior Prom

The senior prom at Hotel Sheraton Plaza tomorrow night will inaugurate Senior Week at Boston Clerical School.

The school will have a night at Pops Monday, a theater party Tuesday night and the senior banquet at the Hotel Beaconsfield Wednesday.

Graduation will be Friday night.

Programs Listed For Pops Concerts In Symphony Hall

The Pops Concerts in Symphony Hall, now in their second week of the 1955 season will be conducted by Harry Dickson pending the return of Arthur Fiedler who is still convalescent. The programs for the week-end are listed with the exception of Sunday evening which will be taken over by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Thursday evening, May 12: Rakoczy March by Berlioz; Suite from "The Nutcracker" by Tschaikowsky; Ave Maria by Bach-Gounod, solo violin, Alfred Krips; Overture to "Tannhauser" by Wagner;" The young person's guide to the orchestra," Op. 34, by Britten, speaker, Leonard Burkat; Un-

Continued on Page Ten

[61]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

THE ROVING EYE

By RUDOLPH ELIE

The State Comes up With a Handsome Film

I went over to Loew's Orpheum the other afternoon to see "A Massachusetts Holiday," and I must say I didn't think we had it in us.

By "we" I mean Massachusetts, whose lack of imagination, not to say aggression in matters pertaining to what is known as public relations is pretty keen. It may be, of course, that I just don't see the things the old Commonwealth does get out in terms of pamphlets, brochures, maps and things like that, but it certainly has nothing that corresponds to the superb state magazines issued by New Hampshire, Vermont, Arizona and a good many others.

In "A Massachusetts Holiday," however, a 30-minute film in color showing the highlights of the state's natural beauties and its vacation facilities, it has come up with one of the finest little travelogues I've ever seen, one filled with variety without jumping frantically from scene to scene but on the other hand never dwelling on anything too long.

The film, made by The Bay State Film Co. for the Massachusetts Department of Commerce, begins with a montage of scenes showing all the vacation doings: stream fishing, mountain climbing, surf fishing, skiing and so on as somebody sings a hill-billy ballad extolling the virtues of the Commonwealth. (These ballads are recurrent, there being three or four, and to me they ring the only false note in the thing as they are too reminiscent of the singing commercial).

Settles Down

After a while the film settles down on the Berkshires, working its way east as it goes along. There are scenes of Tanglewood during the Berkshire Festival of the Boston Symphony orchestra, of Springfield from the air; of the Pioneer Valley, a patchwork quilt of color from the top of Mt. Holyoke and of charming houses and villages and inns in Worcester county.

One of the striking shots is an aerial view of Quabbin, which, but little seen from the short road that enters it from Route 9, presents an enormous panorama of wooded islands and vast expanses of deep blue water. I had no idea save vaguely from maps, that Quabbin is so immense or that the countryside about it is so virgin in its wilderness. Indeed, it seems like a scene from the Far West.

Pausing for a glimpse of the goings-on at Sturbridge Village, the film moves on to the North Shore in an abrupt contrast of inland scenery to maritime. There are lovely scenes of surf breaking on rocks, of lighthouses, of historic mansions (The House of Seven Gables, of course) and then of summer activities. We see a bit of Marblehead's race week, of the beaches of Ipswich, of the fishing fleet of Gloucester, and of the industry itself in the quaint seaport surroundings.

There follows a sequence of the historical sites of Lexington and Concord. At Lexington, to my surprise, the camera failed to pick up one of the most stirring quotations in American history, that of Warren on the base of the Minute Man statue: "Don't fire unless fired upon, but if they mean to have a war let it begin here."

Boston itself is presented in a series of swift, familiar scenes: The Public Garden glowing in the golden sea of tulips, the swan boats, Faneuil Hall, the steeple of the Old North Church, the balcony of the Old State House, the neon canyons of Washington street after dark, the races at Suffolk Downs, Fenway Park in full cry with Ted Williams smacking a towering home run, Harvard Stadium during a Harvard-Yale game and so on. Curiously enough, the script writer appeared to think that Williams' No. 9 and Harvard's Crimson needed no identification: both episodes are without narration.

Talk Restrained

The rest of the film is devoted to the South Shore, the Cape, the Vineyard and Nantucket with scenes well-known and well-loved by all Massachusettsians. They are so well presented and their beauties so concentrated they ought to make a very considerable impression on one from, say, Missouri as well. But this concentration of beauty and glamor and idyllic charm and exotic sport activity might be one of the film's little defects.

For the narrator, whose talk is restrained and tasteful (I thought it might have had a little more flair), fails to mention, when we hear of our superhighways, such little monstrosities as Route 20 from Sturbridge to Shrewsbury a veritable terror for the staunchest driver. Or that the tourist coming south to Boston on Route 1 isn't informed that the road marked C-1 avoids the appalling frustrations of Route 1 through Everett. Or that route 3-A is the one to take at Neponset going to Plymouth, thus avoiding the dreary procession through Quincy. Or that, on the way anywhere, save in that enlightened county of counties, Berkshire, he will see an appalling jungle of billboards and lurid signs.

But it is to be assumed that the tourist attracted by the film is well aware of the fact the not-nice things have been omitted, as they are in all propaganda. In the meantime, however, if you have a chance to see "A Massachusetts Holiday" (and the film is available to groups and clubs) by all means do so. It is a beautiful film of a beautiful state.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 1

Frederick Fennell will be guest conductor at the Pops concerts from Tuesday through Sunday, May 22.

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,241

MAY 15 1955

Boston Musicians Going to Iceland on Cultural Mission

Eight members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will leave Iceland within a month to undertake a cultural mission on that strategic North Atlantic island.

It is reported that Iceland, which exports fish to Russia, has been subjected to a lot of Communist propaganda, much of it cultural.

Boston's musicians have volunteered under the International Exchange Program of the American National Theatre and Academy to present some culture, Americano.

Those going include organist E. Power Biggs; George Humphrey, viola player; Emil Kornsand, violinist; Rocario Mazzeo, clarinetist; Louis Speyer, English horn and oboist; Roger Voisin, trumpet; Alfred Zeghera, 'cellist, and Robert Brink, violinist.

Biggs will leave first and will give a series of recitals before the arrival of the main group.

Their concerts, to be given both in the capital of Reykjavik and in the provinces will present music by not only the classical masters but by contemporary American composers such as Walter Piston, Leo Sowerby and Randall Thompson.

BOSTON SUNDAY HERALD, MAY 15, 195

The Music Season 1954-55: Lots of Opera, Lots of Business

By RUDOLPH ELIE

It may safely be said, I think, that the musical season of 1954-55, which ended theoretically with the final concert of the Boston Symphony, was one of the most unusual in a good many years. It was unusual not for the large number of events (there were about the same number last year as this) but for the fact that for the first time in many years the number of operas presented in Boston by far exceeded every other form of musical event save, of course, orchestral concerts. The total was 33, nine of them produced by local auspices, seven by the New York City Center, seven by the San Carlo, eight by the Metropolitan and two, in semi-concert form, by the American Opera Society with the Zimbler Sinfonietta.

Of the Metropolitan little need be said; its repertoire was the same old thing except for the brilliant "Andrea Chenier." The real surprise lay in the revived San Carlo which not only mounted exceedingly creditable performances of the conventional things but found a near-capacity audience for the entire week, and in Boris Goldovsky's New England Opera Theater which not only came up with one of the most stunning single performances of the season in Berlioz' "The Trojans" but showed, in a week's run at the Majestic, that it can compete with the Metropolitan itself almost on its own terms. Its "Marriage of Figaro" was indisputably superior in ever way to the Met's production later in the season, while "The Trojans" lacked only the bigger voices. Stylistically and visually it was as stunning as anything the Met ever did.

The Boston Symphony, of course, dominated the city's musical life as always. It's season was not less than brilliant, too, though there are those who seem to feel that Mr. Munch rather over-did choral music. I could hardly agree with this view less, recalling the performance of Verdi's Requiem (by Cantelli), the full score of Ravel's "Daphnis and Chloe", Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust" and Bach's B minor Mass as the high points in a season in which nearly every concert was of exceptional interest.

Of the music new to Boston, I was particularly impressed by Menotti's easily assimilable Violin Concerto in a superb performance by Spivakovsky, Bernstein's lovely Serenade for Violin, Strings and Percussion in an equally superb performance by Isaac Stern, Honegger's exquisite Christmas Cantata and Martinu's Fantaisies Symphoniques. Barber's "Prayers of Kierkegaard" was also a notable premiere, but the others, in particular Peragallo's aggressive Violin Concerto and Harris' Seventh Symphony, were considerably less appealing.

The outstanding guest conductor was certainly Igor Markevitch although I had the regrettable misfortune of having missed him due to a journey to Havana, but again Richard Burgin, Pierre Monteux and Guido Cantelli proved their immense command of the orchestra. The orchestra itself in the sixth season of Mr. Munch's direction, remains an instrument of incredible technical attainment though not always in the great tonal tradition of Koussevitsky.

After orchestral concerts, which also included notable visits by the Berlin Philharmonic, the Amsterdam Concertgebouw and the Philadelphia orchestra, choral affairs were most numerous with more than 20 given by 17 different groups. The most striking, perhaps, was the remarkable performance of "Carmina Burana" by Boston University's group under Stokowski, who took it to New York and stunned the city with it. But there were splendid concerts by everyone from the Irish Festival Singers to the Chorus Pro Musica, from the Shaw Chorale to the Cecilia Society.

Chamber music was plentiful this season, too, with the Zimbler Sinfonietta firmly established (though now widening its base of operation in an appeal for further support) as the city's leading spokesmen in chamber music. The Farberman Percussion Group made an important debut this season and it is hoped that its concerts will be an annual event. The Cambridge Earl Music Society continued with its popular series while the Fanny Mason Foundation continued to present its stimuating series, offering, among other events the incomparable "Societa Corelli" Other fine visiters were I Musici, the Budapest Quartet, the Trieste Trio, the Quartetto Italiano and the Paganini Quartet.

a popular experiment in Buffalo—but a financially successful one as well.

Back in his accustomed place last fall on the stage at Symphony Hall, he continued with the Boston Symphony until Christmas. Then he accepted the position of associate conductorship with the Buffalo Philharmonic permanently.

Once in Buffalo he became a veritable dynamo of musical activity. In addition to 18 programs including several premieres, he frequently spoke for the orchestra before civic and cultural organiztions about the advantages of supporting the orchestra, presented children's programs, and arranged a series of broadcasts over a local radio network in which he did his own commentary.

As if this were not enough, the ambitious associate conductor started a weekly series of classical "disc jockey" programs over station WERR. Called the "Willis Page Portfolio," the broadcasts were the first of their type offered by the station in over 10 years; they won a big response from the radio audience.

Hi-Fi, Too

He has not hesitated to experiment with all sorts of programming. He scheduled a Hi-Fi Night which sent both ticket and electronic equipment sales soaring. He invited the well-known trumpet player, Bobby Hackett, and his All-Stars for a joint concert with the Philharmonic on his Jazz and Classics Night. A surprise feature of the concert was a vigorous performance by conductor Page on the slap bass during a rendition of "Honeysuckle Rose."

This uninhibited enthusiasm may seem a trifle brash from the lofty position of the orchestral Big Three, Boston, Philadelphia, and New York, but in other sections of the country where the musical approach is less sophisticated, such a showman-like activity on the part of the conductor is a very healthy factor, keeping the local symphony constantly before the public in an atmosphere anything but stuffy.

Mr. Page has been hailed by the [illegible] for his "smooth performances" and "skilled conducting." Boston's loss has been Buffalo's gain.

more concerts. This, of course, is but a small fraction of the musical events free, and otherwise offered in the city in a season.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

MAY 15 1955

PAIDEIAS LEAGUE— Communion breakfast today at Hotel Kenmore following 9 a.m. Mass at St. Clements Shrine, 1101 Boylston St. also for Our Lady of Good Counsel Guild and Don Michael Counsellors. League members to attend Pops Concert at Symphony Hall Tuesday.

PHILOMATHEIA CLUB — Thursday, 9 a.m. Mass at St. Marys Chapel of B. C. followed by breakfast at Club House. Father James Gillis of The Paulist to speak.

[62]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

MAY 15 1955

In Music

Will Page Success in Buffalo

By TUCKER KEISER

Every "name" conductor I can think of has come up through the orchestral ranks. Playing in an orchestra familiarizes the budding maestro with repertory, the characteristics and limitations of the many instruments, and the technique of molding 100 virtuosos into a precision-built team.

Conducting is the dream of many orchestral players; many take fliers on the podium. But only a few achieve any genuine distinction in the field, for really great conductors are born not made.

For several years a young double-bass player could be observed intently concentrating on the conductor while he played at the Boston Symphony concerts. Like many of his fellow musicians, his ambitions were directed toward the day when he would himself stand in front of 100 musicians with baton poised. This was Willis Page, an excellent musician.

Mr. Page organized small orchestras for concerts in outlying cities. He became director of a local choral organization with chorus and orchestra [illegible] pioneered the bi-aural record field. Eventually he was asked by Arthur Fiedler to make his big-time debut with the "Pops" Orchestra, which is actually the Boston Symphony under another name.

Last summer he commuted to Buffalo from Boston and Tanglewood to direct the Buffalo Philharmonic in its newly inaugurated "Pops" series, patterned naturally, as all are, on our own. This turned out to be not only

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

THE ROVING EYE

By RUDOLPH ELIE

The State Comes up With a Handsome Film

I went over to Loew's Orpheum the other afternoon to see "A Massachusetts Holiday," and I must say I didn't think we had it in us.

By "we" I mean Massachusetts, whose lack of imagination, not to say aggression in matters pertaining to what is known as public relations is pretty keen. It may be, of course, that I just don't see the things the old Commonwealth does get out in terms of pamphlets, brochures, maps and things like that, but it certainly has nothing that corresponds to the superb state magazines issued by New Hampshire, Vermont, Arizona and a good many others.

In "A Massachusetts Holiday," however, a 30-minute film in color showing the highlights of the state's natural beauties and its vacation facilities, it has come up with one of the finest little travelogues I've ever seen, one filled with variety without jumping frantically from scene to scene but on the other hand never dwelling on anything too long.

The film, made by The Bay State Film Co. for the Massachusetts Department of Commerce, begins with a montage of scenes showing all the vacation doings: stream fishing, mountain climbing, surf fishing, skiing and so on as somebody sings a hill-billy ballad extolling the virtues of the Commonwealth. (These ballads are recurrent, there being three or four, and to me they ring the only false note in the thing as they are too reminiscent of the singing commercial).

Settles Down

After a while the film settles down on the Berkshires, working its way east as it goes along. There are scenes of Tanglewood during the Berkshire Festival of the Boston Symphony orchestra, of Springfield from the air; of the Pioneer Valley, a patchwork quilt of color from the top of Mt. Holyoke and of charming houses and villages and inns in Worcester county.

One of the striking shots is an aerial view of Quabbin, which, but little seen from the short road that enters it from Route 9, presents an enormous panorama of wooded islands and vast expanses of deep blue water. I had no idea save vaguely from maps, that Quabbin is so immense or that the countryside about it is so virgin in its wilderness. Indeed, it seems like a scene from the Far West.

Pausing for a glimpse of the goings-on at Sturbridge Village, the film moves on to the North Shore in an abrupt contrast of inland scenery to maritime. There are lovely scenes of surf breaking on rocks, of lighthouses, of historic mansions (The House of Seven Gables, of course) and then of summer activities. We see a bit of Marblehead's race week, of the beaches of Ipswich, of the fishing fleet of Gloucester, and of the industry itself in the quaint seaport surroundings.

There follows a sequence of the historical sites of Lexington and Concord. At Lexington, to my surprise, the camera failed to pick up one of the most stirring quotations in American history, that of Warren on the base of the Minute Man statue: "Don't fire unless fired upon, but if they mean to have a war let it begin here."

Boston itself is presented in a series of swift, familiar scenes: The Public Garden glowing in the golden sea of tulips, the swan boats, Faneuil Hall, the steeple of the Old North Church, the balcony of the Old State House, the neon canyons of Washington street after dark, the races at Suffolk Downs, Fenway Park in full cry with Ted Williams smacking a towering home run, Harvard Stadium during a Harvard-Yale game and so on. Curiously enough, the script writer appeared to think that Williams' No. 9 and Harvard's Crimson needed no identification: both episodes are without narration.

Talk Restrained

The rest of the film is devoted to the South Shore, the Cape, the Vineyard and Nantucket with scenes well-known and well-loved by all Massachusettsians. They are so well presented and their beauties so concentrated they ought to make a very considerable impression on one from, say, Missouri as well. But this concentration of beauty and glamor and idyllic charm and exotic sport activity might be one of the film's little defects.

For the narrator, whose talk is restrained and tasteful (I thought it might have had a little more flair), fails to mention, when we hear of our superhighways, such little monstrosities as Route 20 from Sturbridge to Shrewsbury a veritable terror for the staunchest driver. Or that the tourist coming south to Boston on Route 1 isn't informed that the road marked C-1 avoids the appalling frustrations of Route 1 through Everett. Or that route 3-A is the one to take at Neponset going to Plymouth, thus avoiding the dreary procession through Quincy. Or that, on the way anywhere, save in that enlightened county of counties, Berkshire, he will see an appalling jungle of billboards and lurid signs.

But it is to be assumed that the tourist attracted by the film is well aware of the fact the not-nice things have been omitted, as they are in all propaganda. In the meantime, however, if you have a chance to see "A Massachusetts Holiday" (and the film is available to groups and clubs) by all means do so. It is a beautiful film of a beautiful state.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 1

Frederick Fennell will be guest conductor at the Pops concerts from Tuesday through Sunday, May 22.

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,241

MAY 15 1955

Boston Musicians Going to Iceland on Cultural Mission

Eight members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will leave Iceland within a month to undertake a cultural mission on that strategic North Atlantic island.

It is reported that Iceland, which exports fish to Russia, has been subjected to a lot of Communist propaganda, much of it cultural.

Boston's musicians have volunteered under the International Exchange Program of the American National Theatre and Academy to present some culture, Americano.

Those going include organist E. Power Biggs; Georges Humphrey, viola player; Emil Kornsand, violinist; Rosario Mazzeo, clarinetist; Louis Speyer, English horn, and oboist; Roger Voisin, trumpet; Alfred Zeghera, 'cellist, and Robert Brink, violinist.

Biggs will leave first, and will give a series of recitals before the arrival of the main group.

Their concerts, to be given both in the capital of Reykjavik and in the provinces will present music by not only the classical masters but by contemporary American composers such as Walter Piston, Leo Sowerby and Randall Thompson.

BOSTON SUNDAY HERALD, MAY 15, 1955

The Music Season 1954-55: Lots of Opera, Lots of Business

By RUDOLPH ELIE

It may safely be said, I think, that the musical season of 1954-55, which ended theoretically with the final concert of the Boston Symphony, was one of the most unusual in a good many years. It was unusual not for the large number of events (there were about the same number last year as this) but for the fact that for the first time in many years the number of operas presented in Boston by far exceeded every other form of musical event save, of course, orchestral concerts. The total was 33, nine of them produced by local auspices, seven by the New York City Center, seven by the San Carlo, eight by the Metropolitan and two, in semi-concert form, by the American Opera Society with the Zimbler Sinfonietta.

Of the Metropolitan little need be said; its repertoire was the same old thing except for the brilliant "Andrea Chenier." The real surprise lay in the revived San Carlo which not only mounted exceedingly creditable performances of the conventional things but found a near-capacity audience for the entire week, and in Boris Goldovsky's New England Opera Theater which not only came up with one of the most stunning single performances of the season in Berlioz' "The Trojans" but showed, in a week's run at the Majestic, that it can compete with the Metropolitan itself almost on its own terms. Its "Marriage of Figaro" was indisputably superior in ever way to the Met's production later in the season, while "The Trojans" lacked only the bigger voices. Stylistically and visually it was as stunning as anything the Met ever did.

The Boston Symphony, of course, dominated the city's musical life as always. It's season was not less than brilliant, too, though there are those who seem to feel that Mr. Munch rather over-did choral music. I could hardly agree with this view less, recalling the performance of Verdi's Requiem (by Cantelli), the full score of Ravel's "Daphnis and Chloe", Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust" and Bach's B minor Mass as the high points in a season in which nearly every concert was of exceptional interest.

Of the music new to Boston, I was particularly impressed by Menotti's easily assimilable Violin Concerto in a superb performance by Spivakovsky, Bernstein's lovely Serenade for Violin, Strings and Percussion in an equally superb performance by Isaac Stern, Honegger's exquisite Christmas Cantata and Martinu's Fantaisies Symphoniques. Barber's "Prayers of Kierkegaard" was also a notable premiere, but the others, in particular Peragallo's aggressive Violin Concerto and Harris' Seventh Symphony, were considerably less appealing.

The outstanding guest conductor was certainly Igor Markevitch although I had the regrettable misfortune of having missed him due to a journey to Havana, but again Richard Burgin, Pierre Monteux and Guido Cantelli proved their immense command of the orchestra. The orchestra itself in the sixth season of Mr. Munch's direction, remains an instrument of incredible technical attainment though not always in the great tonal tradition of Koussevitsky.

After orchestral concerts, which also included notable visits by the Berlin Philharmonic, the Amsterdam Concertgebouw and the Philadelphia orchestra, choral affairs were most numerous with more than 20 given by 17 different groups. The most striking, perhaps, was the remarkable performance of "Carmina Burana" by Boston University's group under Stokowski, who took it to New York and stunned the city with it. But there were splendid concerts by everyone from the Irish Festival Singers to the Chorus Pro Musica, from the Shaw Chorale to the Cecilia Society.

Chamber music was plentiful this season, too, with the Zimbler Sinfonietta firmly established (though now widening its base of operation in an appeal for further support) as the city's leading spokesman in chamber music. The Farberman Percussion Group made an important debut this season and it is hoped that its concerts will be an annual event. The Cambridge Earl Music Society continued with its popular series while the Fanny Mason Foundation continued to present its stimuating series, offering, among other events the incomparable "Societa Corelli". Other fine visitors were I Musici, the Budapest Quartet, the Trieste Trio, the Quartetto Italiano and the Paganini Quartet.

Pianists, usually so numerous, were down to 12 this year, while singers were down to 11. The most stunning single recital was that of Elizabeth Schwarzkopf, though Irmgaard Seefried was all but equally stuning, too. Virtually nil this season, as is the very regrettable case almost everywhere, were the debut recitals. No young artists were heard at all outside those appearing under conservatory auspices, which is a sad and disheartening thing.

All in all The Herald noticed something like 121 musical event in addition to about 30 concerts of the Boston Symphony in its regular and extra series of 70 or more concerts. This, of course, is but a small fraction of the musical events free, and otherwise offered in the city in a season.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

MAY 15 1955

PAIDEIAS LEAGUE— Communion breakfast today at Hotel Kenmore following 9 a.m. Mass at St. Clements Shrine, 1101 Boylston St. also for Our Lady of Good Counsel Guild and Don Michael Counsellors. League members to attend Pops Concert at Symphony Hall Tuesday.

PHILOMATHEIA CLUB — Thursday, 9 a.m. Mass at St. Marys Chapel of B. C. followed by breakfast at Club House. Father James Gillis of The Paulist to speak.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

MAY 15 1955

In Music

Will Page Success in Buffalo

By TUCKER KEISER

Every "name" conductor I can think of has come up through the orchestral ranks. Playing in an orchestra familiarizes the budding maestro with repertory, the characteristics and limitations of the many instruments, and the technique of molding 100 virtuosos into a precision-built team.

Conducting is the dream of many orchestral players; many take fliers on the podium. But only a few achieve any genuine distinction in the field, for really great conductors are born not made.

For several years a young double-bass player could be observed intently concentrating on the conductor while he played at the Boston Symphony concerts. Like many of his fellow musicians, his ambitions were directed toward the day when he would himself stand in front of 100 musicians with baton poised. This was Willis Page, an excellent musician.

Mr. Page organized small orchestras for concerts in outlying cities. He became director of a local choral organization, chorus and orchestra pioneered the bi-aural record field. Eventually he was asked by Arthur Fiedler to make his big-time debut with the "Pops" Orchestra, which is actually the Boston Symphony under another name.

Last summer he commuted to Buffalo from Boston and Tanglewood to conduct the Buffalo Philharmonic in its newly inaugurated "Pops" series, patterned naturally, as all are, on our own. This turned out to be not only

PASTE OVER

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 357,463

MAY 15 1955

IN ALUMNAE HALL at Simmons College, plans are completed for Simmons Night at Pops May 17 by Mrs. Arthur Carlson, Miss Eleanor Webb, and Miss Helen Deacon. Proceeds from the Pops Night program going to the College by the Boston Simmons Club which will sponsor the occasion.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Back Bay Ledger &
Beacon Hill Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,000 Free

MAY 19 1955

Eire Society Night Planned At Boston Pops

A special program of Irish music will feature the Eire Society's night at the Pops on Friday evening, June 10. The society will take over the main floor at Symphony Hall for its members and guests.

A committee, headed by Martin O'Malley, has been appointed by Eire Society President Paul Tierney to arrange the details.

Negotiations are underway for at least one outstanding soloist for that evening and possibly a guest conductor. Pops conductor Arthur Fiedler promises an interesting and varied program of classical, semi-classical and popular music with a pronounced Irish flavor. The Pops orchestra has in its library an Eire Society suite arranged, on special commission, by LeRoy Anderson. This selection is played each year on Eire Society night.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Village & Transcript
NEWTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,087

MAY 19 1955

Robert Shaffer Pops Soloist For NHS Night

Robert Shaffer will be the soloist at Newton High School night at the "Pops", in Symphony Hall Friday evening, May 27. He will be heard in The Grieg Piano Concerto in A minor, with the Boston "Pops" Orchestra, under the direction of Harry Ellis Dickson.

A member of the class of 1955, Robert was admitted to the National Honor Society at the recent induction ceremony.

At the age of 6 he began his piano study with Mrs. Elsie Foss, of Newtonville, and soon showed unusual musical talent. While still in junior high school, he made his first professional appearance, and has since played for several Greater Boston Women's Clubs. Two years ago he was engaged as guest artist at the Spring Concert of the Newton Community Chorus.

At Newton High, he has demonstrated advanced creative ability in the Theory of Music classes, under Henry Lasker. Among his extra-curricular activities are the Music Club, the marching and concert bands, where he plays the baritone and sousaphone; the 1954 Cleveland Exchange, and various committees. He is a member of the Kenvon Plan physics an Po

Burrelle's
ESTABLISHED 1888
BArclay 7-5371
PRESS CLIPPING BUREAU
165 Church Street - New York

SAGINAW, MICH., NEWS

MAY 21 1955

Boston Pops Orchestra Returning

The nationally famous Boston Pops Orchestra will return to the air with a series of broadcasts on the NBC Radio Network starting at 8:15 p. m. Monday, May 23. Arthur Fiedler, regular conductor of the group, will be on the podium for the weekly series.

The concerts will take place in Boston's Symphony Hall before capacity audiences, sitting at the tables and enjoying refreshments along with their music.

The concerts started in Boston in 1885 and since have become an annual tradition for the spring months. Other cities have tried to imitate them, but met with little success. The orchestra, made up of members of the great Boston Symphony, also is one of the nation's top recording favorites. Selections from popular songs to symphonic excerpts and concertos, with all the variety in between, make up the programs of this musical organization.

Fiedler became conductor of the "Pops" in 1930. His long tenure on the podium has endeared him not only to Boston audiences, but to music lovers all over the nation. In addition to many broadcast series and recordings, there also have been many tours of the orchestra.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 16 1955

Beth Israel Aid May 31 at Pops

Songs, jewels and sponsors on the night of May 31, will make possible more research at Beth Israel Hospital's tumor and cancer clinic.

The Junior Auxiliary will sponsor its 12th annual night at Pops in Symphony Hall. Added revenue will be raised by jewels and sponsors chairmen, Rena Hyman and Ru Rutman.

The program book will b dedicated to the executive director, Dr. Cecil G. Sheps.

All auxiliary members have tickets for sale. Co-chairmen are Marilyn Schwartz and Beverly Weiss. Janice Kolmins and Marilyn Stern will head a corps of flower girls at the concert.

Chairman Estelle Levine has on her committee: Rene Wynn, Helen Winocour and Elaine Clayman.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-0068

Reporter
SPRINGFIELD, Vt.
Weekly Ind. Rep.
Circ. 3,395

1955

"Miss Rose Pecor was one of the girls from the Charlestown School Orchestra who made the trip to Boston Friday night to attend the Pop's Concert, conducted by Arthur Fieldler at Symphony Hall. She reports a very enjoyable evening.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-0068

Reporter
SPRINGFIELD, Vt.
Weekly Ind. Rep.
Circ. 3,395

8 1955

Boston Trip

Twelve students left with students from Vilas and Stevens high school last Friday to attend the Boston "Pops" Concert in Boston. Many thanks for the people that helped drive cars. Students that went to Boston are: Elaine Ahern, Judy Cuthbert, Clinton Howard, Joanne Moquin, Jean Ward, Patty Reese, Izola Schroder, Janyce Hoskinson, Martha Hazen, Nancy Hogancamp, Rose Pecor and Nancy Smith. Mr. Hogancamp, Mr. McHaffy, Mr. Robbins and Mr. Miner drove the cars.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Back Bay Ledger &
Beacon Hill Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,000 Free

MAY 19 1955

Programs Listed For Pops Concerts In Symphony Hall

The Pops Concerts at Symphony Hall on continuing in their 70th season this week with Frederick Fennell as guest conductor for the remainder of this week, pending the return of Arthur Fiedler, regular Pops conductor.

Mr. Fennell, a native of Cleveland, attended the Eastman School at Rochester where he now teaches. He has conducted many orchestras including the Pops on previous occasions.

Piano soloists will include Frederic Tillotson this evening and the two-piano team, Beth

Continued on Page Three

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Journal
REVERE, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 7950

MAY 19 1955

MISS MARILYN LANZO

MISS ROSALIE RIZZO

Choral Club Group Is Again Featured Attraction At Pops

Sunday Concert Is Sell-out

Enthusiastic support by Revere citizens has made "Revere Night At The Pops" a complete sell-out. The purchase of 590 tickets allocated to Revere for the Sunday evening performance of the Revere High School Choral club has once again demonstrated the generosity and civic pride of residents. The affair will start at 8:30 o'clock at Symphony Hall.

Revere residents will fill the front half of the lower floor to hear the program by the singers, under the direction of William O. Goss.

The club, which will be giving a repeat performance, is the only high school choral group ever invited to sing with the Pops. Revere singers were so well received and so well mannered last year that the management extended an invitation for them to appear

(Continued on Page Three)

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

NEW YORK, N. Y.
VARIETY

MAY 18 1955

Inside Stuff—Concerts

Recent impressive U. S. debut of Igor Markevitch as guest-conductor with the Boston Symphony has stirred up trade gossipmongers, who see him as a prospect for the post of regular music director. BSO conductor Charles Munch is reported anxious to give up the job and return to his native France. Insiders are also curious about the amount of conducting chores given to Guido Cantelli on the current U. S. tour and forthcoming European visit of the N. Y. Philharmonic. He's to split the concerts almost 50-50 with regular maestro Dimitri Mitropoulos, leading to conjectures that he's being groomed for the regular spot if or when Mitropoulos retires.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

West Roxbury Transcript
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 6324

MAY 19 1955

Planning Irish Night at 'Pops'

Three West Roxbury residents are active in making plans for the annual Eire Society night at Pops scheduled Friday evening, June 10.

John Devlin is a member of the publicity committee for the yearly event, while Dr. James J. Monahan and Dr. F. J. Fleming are serving in the general committee.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

[63]

PASTE OVER

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 357,463

MAY 15 1955

IN ALUMNAE HALL at Simmons College, plans are completed for Simmons Night at Pops May 17 by Mrs. Arthur Carlson, Miss E[illegible], and Miss Helen Deacon. Proceeds from the Pops Night will be given to the College by the Boston Simmons Club which will sponsor the occasion.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON. Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

MAY 16 1955

Beth Israel Aid May 31 at Pops

Songs, jewels and sponsors on the night of May 31, will make possible more research at Beth Israel Hospital's tumor and cancer clinic.

The Junior Auxiliary will sponsor its 12th annual night at Pops in Symphony Hall. Added revenue will be raised by jewels and sponsors chairmen, Rena Hyman and Ru[illegible] Rutman.

The program book will b[illegible] dedicated to the executive director, Dr. Cecil G. Sheps.

All auxiliary members have tickets for sale. Co-chairmen are Marilyn Schwartz and Beverly Wells. Janice Ko[illegible]mins and Marilyn Stern will head a corps of flower girls at the concert.

Chairman Estelle Levine has on her committee: Rene Wynn, Helen [illegible]nocour and Elaine Clayman.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
VARIETY

MAY 18 1955

Inside Stuff—Concerts

Recent impressive U. S. debut of Igor Markevitch as guest-conductor with the Boston Symphony has stirred up trade gossipmongers, who see him as a prospect for the post of regular music director. BSO conductor Charles Munch is reported anxious to give up the job and return to his native France. Insiders are also curious about the amount of conducting chores given to Guido Cantelli on the current U. S. tour and forthcoming European visit of the N. Y. Philharmonic. He's to split the concerts almost 50-50 with regular maestro Dimitri Mitropoulos, leading to conjectures that he's being groomed for the regular spot if or when Mitropoulos retires.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

West Roxbury Transcript
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 6324

MAY 19 1955

Planning Irish Night at 'Pops'

Three West Roxbury residents are active in making plans for the annual Eire Society night at Pops scheduled Friday evening, June 10.

John Devlin is a member of the publicity committee for the yearly event, while Dr. James J. Monahan and Dr. F. J. Fleming are serving in the general committee.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Back Bay Ledger & Beacon Hill Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,000 Free

MAY 19 1955

Eire Society Night Planned At Boston Pops

A special program of Irish music will feature the Eire Society's night at the Pops on Friday evening, June 10. The society will take over the main floor at Symphony Hall for its members and guests.

A committee, headed by Martin O'Malley, has been appointed by Eire Society President Paul Tierney to arrange the details.

Negotiations are underway for at least one outstanding soloist for that evening and possibly a guest conductor. Pops conductor Arthur Fiedler promises an interesting and varied program of classical, semi-classical and popular music with a pronounced Irish flavor.

Pops orchestra has in its [illegible] an Eire Society suite arranged on special commission, by Leroy Anderson. This selection will be played each year on [illegible] night.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068

Reporter
SPRINGFIELD, Vt.
Weekly Ind. Rep.
Circ. 3,395

MAY 18 1955

Miss Rose Pecor was one of the girls from the Charlestown School Orchestra who made the trip to Boston Friday night to attend the Pop's Concert, conducted by Arthur Fiedler at Symphony Hall. She reports a very enjoyable evening.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068

Reporter
SPRINGFIELD, Vt.
Weekly Ind. Rep.
Circ. 3,395

MAY 18 1955

Boston Trip

Twelve students left with students from Vilas and Stevens high school last Friday to attend the Boston "Pops" Concert in Boston. Many thanks for the people that helped drive cars. Students that went to Boston are: Elaine Ahern, Judy Cuthbert, Clinton Howard, Joanne Moquin, Jean Ward, Patty Reese, Izola Schroder, Janyce Hoskinson, Martha Hazen, Nancy Hogancamp, Rose Pecor and Nancy Smith. Mr. Hogancamp, Mr. McHaffy, Mr. Robbins and Mr. Miner drove the cars.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Back Bay Ledger & Beacon Hill Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,000 Free

MAY 19 1955

Programs Listed For Pops Concerts In Symphony Hall

PAGE 1

The Pops Concerts at Symphony Hall on continuing in their 70th season this week with Frederick Fennell as guest conductor for the remainder of this week, pending the return of Arthur Fiedler, regular Pops conductor.

Mr. Fennell, a native of Cleveland, attended the Eastman School at Rochester where he now teaches. He has conducted many orchestras including the Pops on previous occasions.

Piano soloists will include Frederic Tillotson this evening and the two-piano team, Beth

Continued on Page Three

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Village & Transcript
NEWTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,087

MAY 19 1955

Robert Shaffer Pops Soloist For NHS Night

Robert Shaffer will be the soloist at Newton High School night at the "Pops", in Symphony Hall Friday evening, May 27. He will be heard in The Grieg Piano Concerto in A minor, with the Boston "Pops" Orchestra, under the direction of Harry Ellis Dickson.

A member of the class of 1955, Robert was admitted to the National Honor Society at the recent induction ceremony.

At the age of 6 he began his piano study with Mrs. Elsie Foss, of Newtonville, and soon showed unusual musical talent. While still in junior high school, he made his first professional appearance, and has since played for several Greater Boston Women's Clubs. Two years ago he was engaged as guest artist at the Spring Concert of the Newton Community Chorus.

At Newton High, he has demonstrated advanced creative ability in the Theory of Music classes, under Henry Lasker. Among his extra-curricular activities are the Music Club, the marching and concert bands, where he plays the baritone and sousaphone; the 1954 Cleveland Exchange, and various committees. He is a member of the Kenyon Plan physics course and plans to attend Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute next year.

Burrelle's
ESTABLISHED 1888
BArclay 7-5371
PRESS CLIPPING BUREAU
165 Church Street - New York

SAGINAW, MICH., NEWS

MAY 21 1955

Boston Pops Orchestra Returning

The nationally famous Boston Pops Orchestra will return to the air with a series of broadcasts on the NBC Radio Network starting at 8:15 p. m. Monday, May 23. Arthur Fiedler, regular conductor of the group, will be on the podium for the weekly series.

The concerts will take place in Boston's Symphony Hall before capacity audiences, sitting at the tables and enjoying refreshments along with their music.

The concerts started in Boston in 1885 and since have become an annual tradition for the spring months. Other cities have tried to imitate them, but met with little success. The orchestra, made up of members of the great Boston Symphony, also is one of the nation's top recording favorites. Selections from popular songs to symphonic excerpts and concertos, with all the variety in between, make up the programs of this musical organization.

Fiedler became conductor of the "Pops" in 1930. His long tenure on the podium has endeared him not only to Boston audiences, but to music lovers all over the nation. In addition to many broadcast series and recordings, there also have been many tours of the orchestra.

MAY 19 1955

MISS MARILYN LANZO

MISS ROSALIE RIZZO

Choral Club Group Is Again Featured Attraction At Pops

Sunday Concert Is Sell-out

Enthusiastic support by Revere citizens has made "Revere Night At The Pops" a complete sell-out. The purchase of 590 tickets allocated to Revere for the Sunday evening performance of the Revere High School Choral club has once again demonstrated the generosity and civic pride of residents. The affair will start at 8:30 o'clock at Symphony Hall.

Revere residents will fill the front half of the lower floor to hear the program by the singers, under the direction of William O. Goss.

The club, which will be giving a repeat performance, is the only high school choral group ever invited to sing with the Pops. Revere singers were so well received and so well mannered last year that the management extended an invitation for them to appear

(Continued on Page Three)

[63]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

West Roxbury Transcript
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 6321

Pops Concert Patrons

Among the friends of Boston City Hospital who are patrons for the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall on June first are Dr. and Mrs. Albert M. Moloney, and Dr. and Mrs. M. Winthrop O'Connell of West Roxbury.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Transcript
CHELSEA, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 3,700

MAY 1 9 1955

BETH ISRAEL JUNIOR AUXILIARY

The Beth Israel Hospital Junior Auxiliary will hold its 12th annual "Pops" night, Tuesday, May 31, at Symphony Hall.

Ticket co-chairman, Beverly Weiss and Marilyn Schwartz, announce that tickets may be purchased by contacting the Junior Auxiliary at the Beth Israel hospital or any member of the organization.

Estelle Levine, chairman of the "Pops" committee, recently appointed Rene Wynn and Helen Vinacoor as her co-chairmen and Elaine Clayman, publicity chairman.

* * *

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Allston Citizen
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 7,750

Eire Society Will Have Night At Pops

A special program of Irish music will feature the Eire Society's night at Pops on Friday evening, June 10. The Society will take over the main floor at Symphony Hall for its members and guests.

A committee, headed by Martin A. O'Malley of Quincy, has been appointed by Eire Society President Paul Tierney to arrange the details.

Negotiations are underway for at least one outstanding soloist for that evening, and possibly a guest conductor. Pops conductor Arthur Fiedler promises an interesting and varied program of classical, semi-classical and popular music, with a pronounced Irish flavor. The Pops orchestra has in its library an Eire Society suite arranged, on special commission, by Leroy Anderson. This selection is played each year on Eire Society night.

Members from this vicinity serving on committees for the concert are John P. Cavanagh of Brighton, music committee; Mrs. James P. McElwee and Miss Mary Lincoln, both of Brookline, reservations committee; Joseph Cannon of Brookline, program committee; Miss Bernadine Truden of Brookline, publicity committee; and Mrs. William F. A. Graham of Brighton, general committee.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Mattapan Tribune
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 8,500

MAY 1 9 1955

CO-CHAIRMEN of annual Pops Night of Junior Auxiliary of Jewish Memorial Hospital on Saturday evening, June 4, are left to right, Mrs. Israel Garnick, Mattapan, and Mrs. Burton Livingston, Jamaica Plain.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

South Boston Tribune
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,500 Free

MAY 1 9 1955

Program Of Irish Music To Feature Eire Society Night At Pops, June 10

A special program of Irish music will feature the Eire Society's night at Pops on Friday evening, June 10. The Society will take over the main floor at Symphony Hall for its members and guests.

A committee, headed by Martin A. O'Malley of Quincy, has been appointed by Eire Society President Paul Tierney to arrange the details.

Negotiations are underway for at least one outstanding soloist for that evening, and possibly a guest conductor. Pops conductor Arthur Fiedler promises an interesting and varied program of classical, semi-classical and popular music, with a pronounced Irish flavor. The Pops orchestra has in its library an Eire Society suite arranged, on special commission, by Leroy Anderson. This selection is played each year on Eire Society night.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Item (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 21,384

MAY 2 0 1955

Boston Pops 'Night' Set For Realtors

Music-loving realtors will have their night at the Boston Pops on June 20, it was announced today by Samuel P. Backman, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association. The organization has reserved one-half the floor of Symphony Hall for use of realtors, their families and friends on that date.

Russell H. Craig, president of the Lynn Board, announced that Omer LeBlanc is local representative of the realtor committee, and he and Clarence Lundgren, secretary of the board, will take care of local ticket distribution.

"Realtors' Pops Night will have added significance for members of the real estate fraternity because one of its members will be guest piano soloist at the concert", said Mr. Backman. "Realtor" Monte Nelson of Lynn will have the distinction of being the only Realtor ever to be guest soloist with the famous Boston Pops.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Hyde Park Tribune
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 9500 Free

MAY 1 9 1955

Ann Curran To Graduate From Clerical School

Graduation exercises for the Boston Clerical School will be held in the school auditorium, 220 Warren street, Roxbury, on Friday, May 20, at eight o'clock. This culminates the Senior Week activities which consisted of a Senior Prom held at the Sheraton Plaza, an evening at Pops, a theatre party and a Senior Banquet held at the Hotel Beaconsfield.

Among the year's graduates is Ann Curran of 12 Reddy avenue, Hyde Park.

The sessions of the school will continue for under-graduates and day-adult students until June 23. The school will reopen on September 8. Applications for the fall term may now be made. The Boston Clerical School is the city of Boston Public Business School, free to qualified Boston residents.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Town Crier
NANTUCKET, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 2,769

MAY 2 0 1955

Boston Pops

On Friday evening, May 13, the Dramatics Class went to Symphony Hall to hear the Boston Pops orchestra.

It was Lasell Junior College night.

The orchestra played selections from "Guys and Dolls," "Fiddle-Faddle," "Hungarian Dance No. 5," "Bugler's Holiday," and many other delightful pieces.

Lasell Junior College Glee Club consisted of approximately 170 girls, who wore evening gowns of various colors. They were directed by George Sawyer Dunham, and sang "Freedom's Land," "Arise, All Ye Servants of the Lord," "O My Lawd What Shall I Do," and "Cavalleria Rusticana."

The class enjoyed this musical evening immensely and hope to be able to attend again.

Gale Reichenberg and Betty Santos

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
BOSTON NEWS-CLIP
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068

STAR
WINCHESTER, MASS.
MAY 2 0 1955

Eastern Star Night At "Pops"

Members and friends of Aletheon Chapter No. 154 Order of the Eastern Star will be welcomed by Mrs. Jean Tait, W.M. at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, Thursday, May 26, 1955.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
BOSTON NEWS-CLIP
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068

STAR
WINCHESTER, MASS.
MAY 2 0 1955

TELEPHONE NITE AT THE POPS

The entire floor of Symphony Hall has been taken and a special program has been planned for telephone night at the Pops on May 24. All telephone people are welcome.

Tickets may be obtained through the service bureau, 185 Franklin street, or the Pioneer office, 50 Oliver street, Boston.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Beacon
DORCHESTER, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 9,287

MAY 2 0 1955

Clerical School Graduation May 20

Graduation Exercises for the Boston Clerical School will be held in the School Auditorium, 220 Warren Street, Roxbury, tonight, at eight o'clock. This culminates the Senior Week activities, which consisted of a Prom held at the Sheraton Plaza, an evening at Pops, a theatre party, and a Banquet held at the Hotel Beaconsfield.

Among the year's graduates are the following Dorchesterites: Ann C. Levins, 125 Draper Street; Dorothy Hesed, 26 Merrill Street; Sandra L. Lookner, 7 Vesta Road; Mary Marino, 62 Richfield Street; Mary MacLellan, 49 Dracut Street, and Margaret Finnegan, 475 Ashmont Street.

Two of the four merit awards presented by the Boston Clerical Home and School Association will be given to Miss Margaret Finnegan and Dorothy Hesed.

South Boston graduates are: Eleanor Barbaro, 16 O'Callaghan Way; Barbara A. Nelson, 415 K Street and Mary M. Shea, 289 East Ninth.

The sessions of the school will be continued for undergraduates and day-adult students until June 23. Applications for the fall term opening September 8, may now be made. The Boston Clerical School is the city of Boston Public Business School, free to qualified Boston residents.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Telegram
WOBURN, Mass.
Weekly

MAY 2 0 1955

Eastern Star Night At "Pops"

Members and friends of Aletheon Chapter No. 154 Order of the Eastern Star will be welcomed by Mrs. Jean Tait, W.M. at the Annual Eastern Star night at Pops at Symphony Hall in Boston, Thursday, May 26, 1955.

The floor and first balcony have been reserved until May 16, by the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, O.E.S., for the evening of May 26th. This concert will benefit the benevolences of the order.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

istian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 2 1 1955

...ur Pianists To Be Heard As Soloists

...ederick Fennell will com... his engagement as guest ...uctor at the Pops on Mon... night. Harry Dickson will ... conduct for the remainder ...e week pending the return ...rthur Fiedler.

...onday evening's program has ... taken over by Temple ...iban Tefila and will not be ... to the public.

...turday evening, May 28, ... be Barber Shop Night. The ...cester Chapter Chorus of the ...ety for the Preservation and ...uragement of Barber Shop ...rtet Singing in America will ...under its director, Robert E. ...rter.

...eo Litwin and Robert Shaf..., pianists, are scheduled for ...t week. Mr. Litwin will be ...rd in Addinsell's "Warsaw" ...ncerto for Piano and Orches... on Monday evening; in Rach...ninov's Variations on a ...eme of Paganini on Tuesday ...ning; and in Gershwin's ...apsody in Blue" on Wednes... evening. Mr. Shaffer will ... the first movement of ...eg's Concerto for Piano and ...hestra in A minor, Op. 16, on ...day evening.

...aint-Saëns "The Animals' ...nival" will be played by Beth ...agan and Arthur Macken... duo-pianists, on Sunday ...t, May 29.

...he programs:

Sunday Evening, May 22

...ng Cotton, March ..... Sousa
...erture to "Die Fledermaus" Strauss
...ebestraum ..... Liszt-Herbert
...tillon, A Suite of Dance Tunes ..... Benjamin
...e Skaters, Waltzes ..... Waldteufel
...ilovetzian Dances from "Prince Igor" ..... Borodin
...e Revere High School Choral Club
William O. Goss, Jr., Director
...lections from "Oklahoma!" ..... Rodgers
...ndpaper Ballet ..... Anderson
...ok Sharp—Be Sharp ..... Merrick-Bennett
Frederick Fennell conducting

...nday Evening, May 23, 1955

Entire House taken by Temple Mish...n Tefila. Not open to the public.
Frederick Fennell conducting

Tuesday Evening, May 24

...p the Street, March ..... Morse
...verture to "Die Fledermaus" ..... Strauss
...alse Triste ..... Sibelius
...omanian Rhapsody No. 1 ..... Enesco
...xcerpts from "The Damnation of Faust" ..... Berlioz
...ariations on a Theme of Paganini ..... Rachmaninov
Solo Piano: Leo Litwin
...ite from "Gaîté Parisienne" ..... Offenbach
...lections from "Guys and Dolls" ..... Loesser
...Viana ..... Hayman
...ook Sharp—Be Sharp ..... Merrick-Bennett
Harry Dickson conducting

Wednesday Evening, May 25

...le to Act III from "Meistersinger" ..... Wagner
...re to "Mignon" ..... Thomas
...Anacleus ..... Franck
...Music from "Aida" ..... Verdi
...from "The Water ...ic" ..... Handel-Harty
...a ..... Chabrier
...ody in Blue ..... Gershwin
Soloist: Leo Litwin
...Herbert ...ories ..... Arr. by Sanford
...ndo's Hideaway from "The ...ma Game" ..... Adler and Ross
...Thunderer, March ..... Sousa
Harry Dickson conducting

...rsday Evening, May 26

...phal March from "Aida" ..... Verdi
Overture to "Poet and Peasant" .. Suppé
Solo Violoncello: Jacobus Langendoen
Prelude to "The Deluge" .. Saint-Saëns
Solo Violin: Alfred Krips
Dance of the Hours from "La Gioconda" ..... Ponchielli
The Skaters, Waltzes ..... Waldteufel
Largo from the "New World" Symphony ..... Dvořák
Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2 ..... Liszt
Many Happy Returns .. Arr. by Mason
TViana ..... Hayman
American Patrol ..... Meacham
Harry Dickson conducting

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Boston Pops
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 9500 Free

MAY 1 9 1955

Ann Curran To Graduate From Clerical School

Graduation exercises for the Boston Clerical School will be held in the school auditorium, 220 Warren street, Roxbury, on Friday, May 20, at eight o'clock. This culminates the Senior Week activities which consisted of a Senior Prom held at the Sheraton Plaza, an evening at Pops, a theatre party and a Senior Banquet held at the Hotel Beaconsfield.

Among the year's graduates is Ann Curran of 12 Reddy avenue, Hyde Park.

The sessions of the school will continue for under-graduates and day-adult students until June 23. The school will reopen on September 8. Applications for the fall term may now be made. The Boston Clerical School is the city of Boston Public Business School, free to qualified Boston residents.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Item (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 21,384

MAY 2 0 1955

Boston Pops 'Night' Set For Realtors

Music-loving realtors will have their night at the Boston Pops on June 20, it was announced today by Samuel P. Backman, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association. The organization has reserved one-half the floor of Symphony Hall for use of realtors, their families and friends on that date.

Russell H. Craig, president of the Lynn Board, announced that Omer LeBlanc is local representative of the realtor committee, and he and Clarence Lundgren, secretary of the board, will take care of local ticket distribution.

"Realtors' Pops Night will have added significance for members of the real estate fraternity because one of its members will be guest piano soloist at the concert", said Mr. Backman. "Realtor" Monte Nelson of Lynn will have the distinction of being the only Realtor ever to be guest soloist with the famous Boston Pops.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

West Roxbury Transcript
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 6321

MAY 19 1955

Pops Concert Patrons

Among the friends of Boston City Hospital who are patrons for the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall on June 1st are Dr. and Mrs. Albert M. Mohoney, and Dr. and Mrs. M. Winthrop O'Connell of West Roxbury.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Transcript
CHELSEA, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 3,700

MAY 19

BETH ISRAEL JUNIOR AUXILIARY

The Beth Israel Hospital Junior Auxiliary will hold its 12th annual "Pops" night, Tuesday, May 31, at Symphony Hall.

Ticket co-chairman, Beverly Weiss and Marilyn Schwartz, announce that tickets may be purchased by contacting the Junior Auxiliary at the Beth Israel hospital or any member of the organization.

Estelle Levine, chairman of the "Pops" committee, recently appointed Rene Wynn and Helen Vinacoor as her co-chairmen and Elaine Clayman, publicity chairman.

* * *

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Allston Citizen
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 7,750

Eire Society Will Have Night At Pops

A special program of Irish music will feature the Eire Society's night at Pops on Friday evening, June 10. The Society will take over the main floor at Symphony Hall for its members and guests.

A committee, headed by Martin A. O'Malley of Quincy, has been appointed by Eire Society President Paul Tierney to arrange the details.

Negotiations are underway for at least one outstanding soloist for that evening, and possibly a guest conductor. Pops conductor Arthur Fiedler promises an interesting and varied program of classical, semi-classical and popular music, with a pronounced Irish flavor. The Pops orchestra has in its library an Eire Society suite arranged, on special commission, by Leroy Anderson. This selection is played each year on Eire Society night.

Members from this vicinity serving on committees for the concert are John P. Cavanagh of Brighton, music committee; Mrs. James P. McElwee and Miss Mary Lincoln, both of Brookline, reservations committee; Joseph Gannon of Brookline, program committee; Miss Bernadine Trudeau of Brookline, publicity committee; and Mrs. William F. A. Graham of Brighton, general committee.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Mattapan Tribune
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 8,500

MAY 19 1955

CO-CHAIRMEN of annual Pops Night of Junior Auxiliary of Jewish Memorial Hospital on Saturday evening, June 4, are left to right, Mrs. Israel Garnick, Mattapan, and Mrs. Burton Livingston, Jamaica Plain.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

South Boston Tribune
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,500 Free

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Hyde Park Tribune
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 9500 Free

MAY 19 1955

MAY 19 1955

Program Of Irish Music To Feature Eire Society Night At Pops, June 10

A special program of Irish music will feature the Eire Society's night at Pops on Friday evening, June 10. The Society will take over the main floor at Symphony Hall for its members and guests.

A committee, headed by Martin A. O'Malley of Quincy, has been appointed by Eire Society President Paul Tierney to arrange the details.

Negotiations are underway for at least one outstanding soloist for that evening, and possibly a guest conductor. Pops conductor Arthur Fiedler promises an interesting and varied program of classical, semi-classical and popular music, with a pronounced Irish flavor. The Pops orchestra has in its library an Eire Society suite arranged, on special commission, by Leroy Anderson. This selection is played each year on Eire Society night.

Ann Curran To Graduate From Clerical School

Graduation exercises for the Boston Clerical School will be held in the school auditorium, 220 Warren street, Roxbury, on Friday, May 20, at eight o'clock. This culminates the Senior Week activities which consisted of a Senior Prom held at the Sheraton Plaza, an evening at Pops, a theatre party and a Senior Banquet held at the Hotel Beaconsfield.

Among the year's graduates is Ann Curran of 12 Reddy avenue, Hyde Park.

The sessions of the school will continue for under-graduates and day-adult students until June 23 The school will reopen on September 8. Applications for the fall term may now be made. The Boston Clerical School is the city of Boston Public Business School, free to qualified Boston residents.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Item (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 21,384

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Town Crier
NANTUCKET, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 2,769

MAY 20 1955

MAY 20 1955

Boston Pops 'Night' Set For Realtors

Music-loving realtors will have their night at the Boston Pops on June 20, it was announced today by Samuel P. Backman, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association. The organization has reserved one-half the floor of Symphony Hall for use of realtors, their families and friends on that date.

Russell H. Craig, president of the Lynn Board, announced that Omer LeBlanc is local representative of the realtor committee, and he and Clarence Lundgren, secretary of the board, will take care of local ticket distribution.

"Realtors' Pops Night will have added significance for members of the real estate fraternity because one of its members will be guest piano soloist at the concert", said Mr. Backman. "Realtor" Monte Nelson of Lynn will have the distinction of being the only Realtor ever to be guest soloist with the famous Boston Pops.

Boston Pops

On Friday evening, May 13, the Dramatics Class went to Symphony Hall to hear the Boston Pops orchestra.

It was Lasell Junior College night.

The orchestra played selections from "Guys and Dolls," "Fiddle-Faddle," "Hungarian Dance No. 5," "Bugler's Holiday," and many other delightful pieces.

Lasell Junior College Glee Club consisted of approximately 170 girls, who wore evening gowns of various colors. They were directed by George Sawyer Dunham, and sang "Freedom's Land," "Arise, All Ye Servants of the Lord," "O My Lawd What Shall I Do," and "Cavalleria Rusticana."

The class enjoyed this musical evening immensely and hope to be able to attend again.

Gale Reichenberg and Betty Santos

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
BOSTON NEWS-CLIP
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068

STAR
WINCHESTER, MASS.
MAY 20 1955

Have you d... with Trig... at Bob Ellis ... ices! for a new ... Dr. and ... ken, Dr. an... Dr. and Mr... and Mr. and ... are among th... ton City Hos... for the Pops ... Hall June 1.

If you want ... ed shoes at ba... the Reading ... street, Readin... END ALS

1/Lt. Koren... of Mr. and Mrs ... 71 Wedgemere ... stationed at M... Base, Sacramen... the 8th Air Div... RDAY a graduate of ... Southboro, class... as a co-pilot w...

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 •

Telegra...
WOBURN, ...
Weekly

MAY 20 195

Eastern Star Nig... At "Pops"

Members and friend... theon Chapter No. 154 ... the Eastern Star will ... comed by Mrs. Jean ... at the Annual Eastern ... at Pops at Symphony ... Boston, Thursday, May ...

The floor and firs... have been reserved unt... by the Grand Chapter ... chusetts, O.E.S., for th... of May 26th. This co... benefit the benevolenc... order.

New England N...
BOSTO...
Box 2078, Boston ...

ST...
WINCHE...

MAY 2...

TELEPHO...

The e... hes ... Hall has ... program ... phone ... 24. All ... come.

Ticke... the se... street, ... ver st... Time

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068

Beacon
DORCHESTER, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 9,287

MAY 20 1955

Clerical School Graduation May 20

Graduation Exercises for the Boston Clerical School will be held in the School Auditorium. 220 Warren Street, Roxbury, tonight, at eight o'clock. This culminates the Senior Week activities, which consisted of a Prom held at the Sheraton Plaza, an evening at Pops, a theatre party, and a Banquet held at the Hotel Beaconsfield.

Among the year's graduates are the following Dorch... Ann C. Lew... ins, 125 Draper ... Dorothy Hesed, 26 Merrill Str... L. Lookner, 7 Vesta Road ... Marino, 62 Richfield ... MacLellan, 49 Dracut Street and Margaret Finnegan, 475 Ashmont Street.

Two of the four merit awards presented by the Boston Clerical Home and School Association will be given to Miss Margaret Finnegan and Dorothy Hesed.

South Boston graduates are: Eleanor Barbaro, 16 O'Callaghan Way; Barbara A. Nelson, 415 K Street and Mary M. Shea, 289 East Ninth.

The sessions of the school will be continued for undergraduates and day-adult students until June 23. Applications for the fall term opening September 8, may now be made. The Boston Clerical School is the city of Boston Public Business School, free to qualified Boston residents.

...England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

...istian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 21 1955

Four Pianists To Be Heard As Soloists

Frederick Fennell will complete his engagement as guest conductor at the Pops on Monday night. Harry Dickson will then conduct for the remainder of the week pending the return of Arthur Fiedler.

Monday evening's program has been taken over by Temple Mishban Tefila and will not be open to the public.

Saturday evening, May 28, will be Barber Shop Night. The Worcester Chapter Chorus of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America will be under its director, Robert E. Carter.

Leo Litwin and Robert Shaffer, pianists, are scheduled for next week. Mr. Litwin will be heard in Addinsell's "Warsaw" Concerto for Piano and Orchestra on Monday evening; in Rachmaninov's Variations on a Theme of Paganini on Tuesday evening; and in Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" on Wednesday evening. Mr. Shaffer will play the first movement of Grieg's Concerto for Piano and Orchestra in A minor, Op. 16, on Friday evening.

Saint-Saëns "The Animals' Carnival" will be played by Beth Flanagan and Arthur Mackenzie, duo-pianists, on Sunday night, May 29.

The programs:

Sunday Evening, May 22

King Cotton, March ..... Sousa
Overture to "Die Fledermaus" ..... Strauss
Liebestraum ..... Liszt-Herbert
Cotillion, A Suite of Dance Tunes ..... Benjamin
The Skaters, Waltzes ..... Waldteufel
Polovetzian Dances from "Prince Igor" ..... Borodin
The Revere High School Choral Club
William O. Goss, Jr., Director
Selections from "Oklahoma!" ..... Rodgers
Sandpaper Ballet ..... Anderson
Look Sharp—Be Sharp ..... Merrick-Bennett
Frederick Fennell conducting

Monday Evening, May 23, 1955

Entire House taken by Temple Mishkan Tefila. Not open to the public.
Frederick Fennell conducting

Tuesday Evening, May 24

Up the Street, March ..... Morse
Overture to "Die Fledermaus" ..... Strauss
Valse Triste ..... Sibelius
Romanian Rhapsody No. 1 ..... Enesco
Excerpts from "The Damnation of Faust" ..... Berlioz
Variations on a Theme of Paganini ..... Rachmaninov
Solo Piano: Leo Litwin
Suite from "Gaité Parisienne" ..... Offenbach
Selections from "Guys and Dolls" ..... Loesser
TViana ..... Hayman
Look Sharp—Be Sharp ..... Merrick-Bennett
Harry Dickson conducting

Wednesday Evening, May 25

Prelude to Act III from "Lohengrin" ..... Wagner
Overture to "Mignon" ..... Thomas
Panis Angelicus ..... Franck
Ballet Music from "Aïda" ..... Verdi
Suite from "The Water Music" ..... Handel-Harty
España ..... Chabrier
Rhapsody in Blue ..... Gershwin
Soloist: Leo Litwin
Victor Herbert Favorites ..... Arr. by Sanford
Hernando's Hideaway from "The Pajama Game" ..... Adler and Ross
The Thunderer, March ..... Sousa
Harry Dickson conducting

Thursday Evening, May 26

Triumphal March from "Aïda" ..... Verdi
Overture to "Poet and Peasant" ..... Suppé
Solo Violoncello: Jacobus Langendoen
Prelude to "The Deluge" ..... Saint-Saëns
Solo Violin: Alfred Krips
Dance of the Hours from "La Gioconda" ..... Ponchielli
The Skaters, Waltzes ..... Waldteufel
Largo from the "New World" Symphony ..... Dvořák
Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2 ..... Liszt
Many Happy Returns ..... Arr. by Mason
TViana ..... Hayman
American Patrol ..... Meacham
Harry Dickson conducting

[64]

WASHINGTON, D. C.
AIR FORCE TIMES
W.
MAY 21 1955

CLASSICAL RECORDS

By E. KAHN

Schubert, Symphony No. 9. The Halle Orchestra conducted by Sir John Barbirolli. (12" RCA Bluebird LBC-1085) $2.98.

For many years, it has been fashionable to make fun of John Barbirolli. This is not justified. Sir John may not be the most imaginative interpreter of music, but he's solid and steady. This record brings both his virtues and vices into sharp focus. It is competently read and performed, but it lacks life and spirit. The sound quality is not of the best—thin and reedy in the highs in some passages.

Still, it's a satisfactory low-priced recording which is not to be scorned because it has some imperfections.

* * *

Chopin, Concerto No. 2 in F minor; Saint-Saens, Concerto No. 4 in C minor. Alexander Brailowsky, piano, with the Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Charles Munch. (12" RCA Victor LM-1871) $3.98.

Brailowsky is probably best known as an interpreter of Chopin. He's played these works many times in concert and does so very well indeed. Munch and the Boston Symphony Orchestra work with him to give an excellent performance.

The sound is not always as good as I'd like it to be. For example, the balance between piano and orchestra is bad in the second movement. As a result, a long tremolo passage by the strings is little more than a buzzing in the background, and the bass pizzicato can barely be heard.

The two concerti on this disc present a study in contrast. One reason is that this is Chopin's first (but always called No. 2) piano concerto and Saint-Saens' next to last. Another is that Chopin's strongest point was writing for piano. His orchestration is often nothing more than vague accompaniment. All this is true here.

Saint-Saens, on the other hand, was a master craftsman, giving full partnerships to both piano and orchestra. Although the Chopin is pleasant listening, I found on the other side more orchestral coloring and texture and sturdier melody.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Citizen
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-partisan
Circ. 4,048

MAY 20 19[illegible]

Among the Friends of the Boston City Hospital who are patrons for the pops concert in Symphony Hall on June 1 are the following residents of Belmont: Dr. and Mrs. Somers Fraser, Dr. and Mrs. Robert E. Ingersoll, Dr. and Mrs. Stanley J. Novak, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pappas.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Herald News (e)
FALL RIVER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 39,447

MAY 20 1955

—Burbank Hospital Alumnae Assn. is making plans to attend the Boston Pops concert on June 2. A bus will leave for Boston at 6 p. m. from Depot square on that date. Members are asked to make reservations with Mrs. Ralph P. Walsh, president 4-55

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

News-Tribune (e)
WALTHAM, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 13,413

MAY 20 1955

THREE-COLLEGE NIGHT AT THE POPS is being planned by several area residents, along with many others from Greater Boston. In the front row are left to right, Mrs. John W. Lawler of Waltham and Mrs. Paul McCarty of Newton Highlands; back row, Mrs. John Evans of Marblehead, Miss Nancy Carolan of New[illegible] Centre and Mrs. Vincent Pitts of Wellesley. Boston Chap[illegible] the Alumnae Associations of Mt. St. Vincent College, Riv[illegible] N.Y., Mt. St. Mary's College in Hooksett, N.H., and New Rochelle College are arranging ticket sales for the concert June 17 at Symphony Hall, Boston. Proceeds will go for scholarships and other college funds.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Union Leader (m)
MANCHESTER, N. H.
Independent
Circ. 43,546

MAY 25 1955

NEARLY 40 MEMBERS of the N. H. Council of Telephone Pioneers attended the "Pops" concert at Symphony Hall, Boston, Tuesday evening. Part of the group, headed by George Baker, president of the council, is pictured above as they prepared to board the bus. (Staff Photo).

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Journal
REVERE, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 7950

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-42[illegible]

Journal
REVERE, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 7950

MAY 26 1955

The Revere High Choral club singers again demonstrated their exceptional talent at the Pops concert last Sunday night. It was a repeat performance for the young singers and they were applauded long and loud. This group is probably the finest of its kind in the country and they deserve high commendation for their splendid work. As a result of their excellent performance at the Pops, the Boston Chamber of Commerce has extended the group an invitation to sing at an affair at which Senator Saltonstall will be the speaker.

[illegible] winter which has [illegible] more expenses than were anticipated in the salary account.

The committee voted to continue the Rerosier Plan for School Time Accident Insurance for another year. Students may purchase this accident policy for $1.25 a year.

Frank Roberto and Samuel Samuels were granted military leaves of absence to report for duty with the reserves.

A resolution was drawn up commending William O. Goss for the excellent performance of the high school choral club both at Pops concert in Boston and in Rhode Island where they captured the title of Best in Class A schools.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Chronicle & Sun
CAMBRIDGE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 22,830 Free

MAY 26 1955

Telephone Night — Mrs. Ida Michelin was chairman of the Cambridge committee for Telephone Night at the Pops which was a big success Tuesday evening.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Journal & Press
SOMERVILLE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 22,184

MAY 26 1955

Want Armed Forces To Recognize Eastern Orthodox Faith

Parishioners of the Greek Orthodox church, Central st., have written to Senators Saltonstall and [illegible] thanking them for their [illegible] of a bill to provide [illegible] the armed forces officially [illegible] the Eastern Orthodox Faith.

Gertrude Buckley, service representative at the telephone company business office on Highland ave., is a member of the committee sponsoring "Telephone Night" at the Pops Symphony Hall, next Tuesday evening, May 24.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Herald
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 4468

MAY 26 1955

Patrons for Pops

Among the Friends of the Boston City Hospital who are patrons for the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall on June 1 are the following residents of Belmont: Dr. and Mrs. Somers Fraser, Dr. and Mrs. Robert E. Ingersoll, Dr. and Mrs. Stanley J. Novak, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pappas.

[65]

WASHINGTON, D. C.
AIR FORCE TIMES
W.

MAY 21 1955

CLASSICAL RECORDS

By E. KAHN

Schubert, Symphony No. 9. The Halle Orchestra conducted by Sir John Barbirolli. (12" RCA Bluebird LBC-1085) $2.98.

For many years, it has been fashionable to make fun of John Barbirolli. This is not justified. Sir John may not be the most imaginative interpreter of music, but he's solid and steady. This record brings both his virtues and vices into sharp focus. It is competently read and performed, but it lacks life and spirit. The sound quality is not of the best—thin and reedy in the highs in some passages.

Still, it's a satisfactory low-priced recording which is not to be scorned because it has some imperfections.

* * *

Chopin, Concerto No. 2 in F minor; Saint-Saens, Concerto No. 2 in C minor. Alexander Brailowsky, piano, with the Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Charles Munch. (12" RCA Victor LM-1871) $3.98.

Brailowsky is probably best known as an interpreter of Chopin. He's played these works many times in concert and does so very well indeed. Munch and the Boston Symphony Orchestra work with him to give an excellent performance.

The sound is not always as good as I'd like it to be. For example, the balance between piano and orchestra is bad in the second movement. As a result, a long tremolo passage by the strings is little more than a buzzing in the background, and the harp pizzicato can barely be heard.

The two concerti on this disc present a study in contrast. One reason is that this is Chopin's first (but always called No. 2) piano concerto and Saint-Saens' next to last. Another is that Chopin's strongest point was writing for piano. His orchestration is often nothing more than vague accompaniment. All this is true here.

Saint-Saens, on the other hand, was a master craftsman, giving full partnership to both piano and orchestra. Although the Chopin is pleasant listening, I found on the other side more orchestral coloring and texture and sturdier melody.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Citizen
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-partisan
Circ. 4,048

MAY 20 1955

Among the Friends of the Boston City Hospital who are patrons for the pops concert in Symphony Hall on June 1 are the following residents of Belmont: Dr. and Mrs. Somers Fraser, Dr. and Mrs. Robert E. Ingersoll, Dr. and Mrs. Stanley J. Novak, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pappas.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Herald News (e)
FALL RIVER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 39,447

MAY 20 1955

—Burbank Hospital Alumnae Assn. is making plans to attend the Boston Pops concert on June 2. A bus will leave for Boston at 6 p. m. from Depot square on that date. Members are asked to make reservations with Mrs. Ralph P. Walsh, president 4-55

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

News-Tribune (e)
WALTHAM, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 13,413

MAY 20 1955

THREE-COLLEGE NIGHT AT THE POPS is being planned by several area residents, along with many others from Greater Boston. In the front row are left to right, Mrs. John W. Lawler of Waltham and Mrs. Paul McCarty of Newton Highlands; back row, Mrs. John Evans of Marblehead, Miss Nancy Carolan of Newt Centre and Mrs. Vincent Pitts of Wellesley. Boston Chap the Alumnae Associations of Mt. St. Vincent College, Riv N.Y., Mt. St. Mary's College in Hooksett, N.H., and New Roche College are arranging ticket sales for the concert June 17 at Sy phony Hall, Boston. Proceeds will go for scholarships and ot college funds.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Union Leader (m)
MANCHESTER, N. H.
Independent
Circ. 43,546

MAY 25 1955

NEARLY 40 MEMBERS of the N. H. Council of Telephone Pioneers attended the "Pops" concert at Symphony Hall, Boston, Tuesday evening. Part of the group, headed by George Baker, president of the council, is pictured above as they prepared to board the bus. (Staff Photo).

Committee Asks Added $147,018.54 In School Funds

A supplemental budget, totalling $147,018.54 was submitted by the school committee Tuesday evening to the city manager. This budget was voted on the advice of Superintendent of Schools Carl F. Lindstol.

The figures are actually what the committee requested in the budget sent to the manager last December and add what the manager cut from the school committee requested budget. There is one exception, however, Supt. Lindstol explained. The salary totals come to more than we previously requested because of the epidemic of illnesses this past winter which has resulted in more expenses than were anticipated in the salary account.

The committee voted to continue the Rerosier Plan for School Time Accident Insurance for another year. Students may purchase this accident policy for $1.25 a year.

Frank Roberto and Samuel Samuels were granted military leaves of absence to report for duty with the reserves.

A resolution was drawn up commending William O. Goss for the excellent performance of the high school choral club both at Pops concert in Boston and in Rhode Island where they captured the title of Best in Class A schools.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Chronicle & Sun
CAMBRIDGE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 22,830 Free

MAY 26 1955

Telephone Night — Mrs. Ida Michelin was chairman of the Cambridge committee for Telephone Night at the Pops which was a big success Tuesday evening.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Journal & Press
SOMERVILLE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 22,184

MAY 26 1955

Want Armed Forces To Recognize Eastern Orthodox Faith

Parishioners of the Greek Orthodox church, Central st., have written to Senators Saltonstall and Kennedy thanking them for their sponsorship of a bill to provide that the armed forces officially recognize the Eastern Orthodox Faith.

Gertrude Buckley, service representative at the telephone company business office on Highland ave., is a member of the committee sponsoring "Telephone Night" at the Pops Symphony Hall, next Tuesday evening, May 24.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Herald
BELMONT, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 4468

MAY 26 1955

Patrons for Pops

Among the Friends of the Boston City Hospital who are patrons for the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall on June 1 are the following residents of Belmont: Dr. and Mrs. Somers Fraser, Dr. and Mrs. Robert E. Ingersoll, Dr. and Mrs. Stanley J. Novak, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pappas.

[65]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Allston Citizen
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 7,750

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Citizen
BRIGHTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 9,550

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Messenger
NORWOOD, Mass.
Bi-Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,750

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Back Bay Ledger &
Beacon Hill Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,000 Free

MAY

PAGE 1

Irish Conductor Guest At "Pops" On Eire Night

New Englanders will have an opportunity on Friday evening June 10, to hear the celebrated musicians of the Boston Symphony Orchestra play under the baton of Michael Bowles, Ireland's foremost symphony conductor as he makes a guest appearance at the Eire Society's Night at the Pops.

This 45-year-old native of Sligo first came into prominence as bandmaster for the Irish Army. He had just then passed various periods as conductor for the BBC symphony orchestra in London, the Rome University Orchestra and the national orchestras of Brussels and Stockholm.

Continued on Page Ten

From 1950 to 1953, he devoted his genius to conducting and improving symphony orchestras in New Zealand and Australia. He has recently completed engagements with the Canadian Broadcasting Service orchestra in Toronto. Between his foreign commitments, Mr. Bowles, in frequent trips to Ireland, retained his active interest in the now flourishing symphonic movement in Dublin and other Irish cities.

Martin A. O'Malley is chairman of the Eire Society Night. The society will take over the main floor of Symphony Hall for the evening.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

South End Citizen
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 14,000

MAY 26 1955

City Hospital Friends Patrons For 'Pops'

Among the Friends of the Boston City Hospital who are patrons for the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall on June first are Dr. and Mrs. James J. Regan of South Boston, and Miss Ellen C. Daly, Dr. and Mrs. John A. Foley, and Dr. and Mrs. James V. Sacchetti, all of Dorchester.

To Lead n June 10

an opportunity Friday evening rated musicians of the Boston the baton of Michael Bowles, onductor as he makes a guest Society's night at Pops.

music director and later the founder and conductor of Dublin's first full-sizer symphony orchestra since Ireland became a nation.

In 1948, after establishing himself as Ireland's top ranking native symphony conductor, Bowles accepted guest engagements, for various periods, as conductor for the BBC symphony orchestra in London, the Rome University orchestra and the national orchestras at Brussels and Stockholm.

From 1950 to 1953 he devoted his genius to conducting and improving symphony orchestras in New Zealand and Australia. He has recently completed engagements with the Canadian Broadcasting Service orchestra in Toronto. Between his foreign commitments, Mr. Bowles, in frequent trips to Ireland, retained his active interest in the now-flourishing symphonic movement in Dublin and other Irish cities.

Martin A. O'Malley of Quincy is the chairman of the Eire Society Pops Night. The Society will take over the main floor of Symphony Hall for the evening.

COLUMBUS, OHIO
CITIZEN
Circ. D. 91,273 - S. 104,943
MAY 26 1955

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Free Press
MELROSE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,370

MAY 26 1955

It Is Said

That Wilford S. Cuthbertson, 3 Lincoln Street, was re-elected a vice president and treasurer of the Chelsea Savings Bank at the annual meeting last week. Ichabod F. Atwood, formerly of E. Emerson Street, was re-elected as president of the bank. A dinner followed at Bellevue Golf Club.

—o—

That Mayor and Mrs. Lawrence W. Lloyd were among the head table guests at the dinner tendered William J. Lee, town counsel and moderator of Wakefield last week.

—o—

That Mr. and Mrs. William B. Alexander of Lovell Road will attend the golden anniversary convention of Rotary International in Chicago. Mr. Alexander will be the official delegate of the Melrose club.

—o—

That Dr. and Mrs. Russell F. Sullivan of Country Club Road are patrons for the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall on June 1, sponsored by the Friends of the Boston City Hospital.

—o—

That the Rev. Arthur W. Olsen, minister of the First Unitarian Church in Toledo, Ohio and formerly of the local Unitarian Church, occupied the pulpit of the Wellesley Unitarian Church last Sunday morning. He has been in Boston attending the annual meetings of the American Unitarian Association.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Journal
REVERE, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 7950

MAY 26 1955

Choral Singers Sparkle At Pops Concert Program

PAGE 1

Revere High Group In Repeat Appearance Given Loud Acclaim

Another sparkling performance by the Revere High School Choral club was rendered Sunday evening as it took part in the regular Pops Concert at Symphony Hall. It was definitely "Revere Night at the Pops" as residents filled the front half of the first floor to hear the singers perform and the large audience in attendance applauded long and loud as the group concluded its four renditions.

The club under the direction of William O. Goss, Jr., was playing a repeat performance and has the distinct honor of being the only high school singing group to be invited to take part in any Pops concerts. The singers appeared last year by invitation and were so well received and so well mannered that the management again this year extended the invitation.

Choral clubbers earned another honor as the result of their outstanding performance Sunday night. William J. Bird, managing director of the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce, who heard them sing, invited them to appear at the Chamber's annual meeting at 12:30 o'clock today (Thursday) at the Sheraton Plaza ballroom. Principal speaker will be Senator Leverett Saltonstall.

The club achieved a mark of excellent on a national rating scale at the New England Festival of Music Saturday at the University of Rhode Island in Kingston. Judges termed the organization the best choral group at the festival.

More than 600 tickets were sold in Revere alone for the Pops per-

(Continued on Page Fourteen)

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,246

MAY 26 1955

The Massachusetts Real Estate Association will enjoy a night at the Boston Pops on June 20th, the organization having reserved half the floor of Symphony Hall for use of Realtors, their families and friends. Stanford Celatka, president of the Chicopee Board, announces that Rudolph LeBel, Sr., of Trilby Ave., Aldenville, secretary of the board, will take care of the local ticket distribution.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Dorchester Citizen
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 12,300

MAY 26 1955

B.I. Junior Pops Program May 31st

The Beth Israel Hospital Junior Auxiliary will hold their 12th annual "Pops" Evening on Tuesday, May 31, at Symphony Hall.

Tickets may be purchased by contacting the Junior Auxiliary at the Beth Israel Hospital or any member of the organization.

A night at "Pops" is a tradition with the B. I. Juniors and enables the group to raise funds for the Tumor and Cancer Clinic of the Hospital through the sale of "Jewels" and "Spohsors."

Attractive flower corsages will be sold on the evening of May 31st by the members of the Junior Auxiliary.

The Beth Israel Hospital Junior Auxiliary consists of young women from the Greater Boston area who meet once a month at the Nurses Home on Brookline Avenue, Boston.

On The Aisle - - -

That Canoe Among The Pianos Points To New Record Dept.

By NORMAN NADEL

It seemed odd. Even for a store where you go upstairs to get to the basement.

There, in the piano department of Lazarus, on the Front-st level (under the basement floor) at the north, or State-st end, lay a canoe. To port were pianos—a whole row of spinets. To starboard, television sets. There was an outboard motor boat at the bow, another at the stern.

Joe Weisberg, who can sell you a piano, play a recital on it, or teach you to play it, wandered over.

"WHAT," I ASKED, "is a canoe doing in the piano department?"

He studied it thoughtfully. "We've wondered about it, too," he finally admitted. "I guess it spilled over from the sporting goods department."

We kicked this possibility around while I examined both canoe and keyboard. Finally, by sighting from stern to bow of the slender craft, I realized that it pointed directly at Lazarus' new record department, where I was supposed to be anyway. Joe carefully circumnavigated the canoe and went back to the heart of the piano country, where he couldn't see the boats. I trotted over to Records.

MRS. ROMA WYANT, who is Records, was beaming like a housewife in a new, all-automatic kitchen. "Isn't it attractive?" she asked tentatively—not wanting to sound boastful, but proud of her shop anyway. I admired the paint job, the displays, and took the Grand Tour of the listening booths.

And as I studied this tasteful merchandising layout, I thought of the change that only a few years had wrought. A decade ago, a store would shove its record department in a corner off the traffic lanes, if it had such a department at all. Now records—and record-playing equipment—are one of the nation's major industries.

Here Lazarus had moved records from a low-ceiling Hernando's Hideaway on a corridor, (turning it over to Davy Crockett gear) and placed the musical dics in a large, open area, redesigned especially for that purpose.

THE SET-UP is interesting and practical. Classical and popular records have been separated, thus ending a friction that has cost classical customers in the past. Previously the teen-age crowd commandeered the listening posts, and the mild man who wanted to compare two versions of a Bach suite found he couldn't compete with rock 'n' roll.

Now the pop discs are to the south of center with 16 listening posts. These open booths are sound-insulated so that the racket, with all of them going at once, won't be as bad as you'd imagine. Also, volume is held to a reasonable level in the speakers in each booth.

CUSTOMERS who want to hear the long-playing records, classics, light classics, or those "music for" platters (music for sleeping, wishing, dreaming, worrying, romance, relaxation, etc.) can use the 10 booths north of center. These have high-fidelity equipment, with Garrard turntables, good pickups and speakers. They are enclosed and soundproofed, of course.

FORMAL OPENING of the record department will be Tuesday, May 31, though nobody will throw you out if you try to buy a musical pancake prior to that. However, on opening day, you'll be able to buy a 45 rpm extended play record for 19 cents—until the supply of 6000 is exhausted. RCA Victor and Columbia each made one up for the Lazarus opening. Four numbers on each, by good bands and soloists, such as Rosemary Clooney, Harry James, Les Elgart, The Three Suns and the Boston Pops.

And if you need a canoe, step over to the piano department.

[66]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

MAY 26 1955

B. I. Juniors To Hold "Pops" Program, May 31

The Beth Israel Hospital Junior Auxiliary will hold its 12th annual "Pops" evening Tuesday, May 31, at Symphony Hall in Boston. This year's program book will be dedicated to Dr. Cecil G. Sheps, executive director of the hospital.

Ticket co-chairmen, Marilyn Schwartz and Beverly Weiss, announce that tickets may be purchased by contacting the Junior Auxiliary at the hospital or any member of the organization.

A night at "Pops" enables the group to raise funds for the tumor and cancer clinic of the hospital through the sale of jewels and sponsors, and this year's jewels and sponsors chairmen are Rena Hyman and Ruth Rutman. Flower corsages will be sold by members under the chairmenship of Janice Komins and Marilyn Stern.

"Pops" chairman, Estelle Levine, recently announced the appointment of Rene Wynn and Helen Vinocoor as her co-chairmen and Elaine Clayman, publicity.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Allston Citizen
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 7,750

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Citizen
BRIGHTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 9,550

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Messenger (e)

Continued from Page One

his 21st birthday, Bowles' superior talent was quickly recognized and he was sent by the army to the National University of Ireland for further study and training. The army thereupon lost him to Radio Eireann where he shortly became the music director and later the founder and conductor of Dublin's first full-sized symphony orchestra since Ireland became a nation.

In 1948, after establishing himself as Ireland's top ranking native symphony conductor, Bowles accepted guest engagements for various periods as conductor for the BBC symphony orchestra in London, the Rome University Orchestra and the national orchestras of Brussels and Stockholm.

From 1950 to 1953, he devoted his genius to conducting and improving symphony orchestras in New Zealand and Australia. He has recently completed engagements with the Canadian Broadcasting Service orchestra in Toronto. Between his foreign commitments, Mr. Bowles, in frequent trips to Ireland, retained his active interest in the now flourishing symphonic movement in Dublin and other Irish cities.

Martin A. O'Malley is chairman of the Eire Society Night. The society will take over the main floor of Symphony Hall for the evening.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

South End Citizen
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 14,000

MAY 26 1955

City Hospital Friends Patrons For 'Pops'

Among the Friends of the Boston City Hospital who are patrons for the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall on June first are Dr. and Mrs. James J. Regan of South Boston, and Miss Ellen C. Daly, Dr. and Mrs. John A. Foley, and Dr. and Mrs. James V. Sacchetti, all of Dorchester.

To Lead n June 10

an opportunity Friday evebrated musicians of the Boston the baton of Michael Bowles, onductor as he makes a guest Society's night at Pops.

music director and later the founder and conductor of Dublin's first full-sizer symphony orchestra since Ireland became a nation.

In 1948, after establishing himself as Ireland's top ranking native symphony conductor, Bowles accepted guest engagements, for various periods, as conductor for the BBC symphony orchestra in London, the Rome University orchestra and the national orchestras at Brussels and Stockholm.

From 1950 to 1953 he devoted his genius to conducting and improving symphony orchestras in New Zealand and Australia. He has recently completed engagements with the Canadian Broadcasting Service orchestra in Toronto. Between his foreign commitments, Mr. Bowles, in frequent trips to Ireland, retained his active interest in the now-flourishing symphonic movement in Dublin and other Irish cities.

Martin A. O'Malley of Quincy is the chairman of the Eire Society Pops Night. The Society will take over the main floor of Symphony Hall for the evening.

COLUMBUS, OHIO
CITIZEN
Circ. D. 91,273 - S. 104,943
MAY 26 1955

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Free Press
MELROSE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,370

MAY 26 1955

It Is Said

That Wilford S. Cuthbertson, 3 Lincoln Street, was re-elected a vice president and treasurer of the Chelsea Savings Bank at the annual meeting last week. Ichabod F. Atwood, formerly of E. Emerson Street, was re-elected as president of the bank. A dinner followed at Bellevue Golf Club.

—o—

That Mayor and Mrs. Lawrence W. Lloyd were among the head table guests at the dinner tendered William J. Lee, town counsel and moderator of Wakefield last week.

—o—

That Mr. and Mrs. William B. Alexander of Lovell Road will attend the golden anniversary convention of Rotary International in Chicago. Mr. Alexander will be the official delegate of the Melrose club.

—o—

That Dr. and Mrs. Russell F. Sullivan of Country Club Road are patrons for the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall on June 1, sponsored by the Friends of the Boston City Hospital.

—o—

That the Rev. Arthur W. Olsen, minister of the First Unitarian Church in Toledo, Ohio and formerly of the local Unitarian Church, occupied the pulpit of the Wellesley Unitarian Church last Sunday morning. He has been in Boston attending the annual meeting of the American Unitarian Association.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Journal
REVERE, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisa
Circ. 7950

MAY 26 1955

Choral Singers Sparkle At Pops Concert Program

PAGE 1

Revere High Group In Repeat Appearance Given Loud Acclaim

Another sparkling performance by the Revere High School Choral club was rendered Sunday evening as it took part in the regular Pops Concert at Symphony Hall. It was definitely "Revere Night at the Pops", as residents filled the front half of the first floor to hear the singers perform and the large audience in attendance applauded long and loud as the group concluded its four renditions.

The club under the direction of William O. Goss, Jr., was playing a repeat performance and has the distinct honor of being the only high school singing group to be invited to take part in any Pops concerts. The singers appeared last year by invitation and were so well received and so well mannered that the management again this year extended the invitation.

Choral clubbers earned another honor as the result of their outstanding performance Sunday night. William J. Bird, managing director of the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce, who heard them sing, invited them to appear at the Chamber's annual meeting at 12:30 o'clock today (Thursday) at the Sheraton Plaza ballroom. Principal speaker will be Senator Leverett Saltonstall.

The club achieved a mark of excellent on a national rating scale at the New England Festival of Music Saturday at the University of Rhode Island in Kingston. Judges termed the organization the best choral group at the festival.

More than 600 tickets were sold in Revere alone for the Pops per-

(Continued on Page Fourteen)

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,246

MAY 26 1955

The Massachusetts Real Estate Association will enjoy a night at the Boston Pops on June 20th, the organization having reserved half the floor of Symphony Hall for use of Realtors, their families and friends. Stanford Celatka, president of the Chicopee Board, announces that Rudolph LeBel, Sr., of Trilby Ave., Aldenville, secretary of the board, will take care of the local ticket distribution.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Dorchester Citizen
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 12,300

MAY 26 1955

B.I. Junior Pops Program May 31st

The Beth Israel Hospital Junior Auxiliary will hold their 12th annual "Pops" Evening on Tuesday, May 31, at Symphony Hall.

Tickets may be purchased by contacting the Junior Auxiliary at the Beth Israel Hospital or any member of the organization.

A night at "Pops" is a tradition with the B. I. Juniors and enables the group to raise funds for the Tumor and Cancer Clinic of the Hospital through the sale of "Jewels" and "Spohsors."

Attractive flower corsages will be sold on the evening of May 31st by the members of the Junior Auxiliary.

The Beth Israel Hospital Junior Auxiliary consists of young women from the Greater Boston area who meet once a month at the Nurses Home on Brookline Avenue, Boston.

On The Aisle - - -

That Canoe Among The Pianos Points To New Record Dept.

By NORMAN NADEL

It seemed odd. Even for a store where you go upstairs to get to the basement.

There, in the piano department of Lazarus, on the Front-st level (under the basement floor) at the north, or State-st end, lay a canoe. To port were pianos—a whole row of spinets. To starboard, television sets. There was an outboard motor boat at the bow, another at the stern.

Joe Weisberg, who can sell you a piano, play a recital on it, or teach you to play it, wandered over.

"WHAT," I ASKED, "is a canoe doing in the piano department?"

He studied it thoughtfully. "We've wondered about it, too," he finally admitted. "I guess it spilled over from the sporting goods department."

We kicked this possibility around while I examined both canoe and keyboard. Finally, by sighting from stern to bow of the slender craft, I realized that it pointed directly at Lazarus' new record department, where I was supposed to be anyway. Joe carefully circumnavigated the canoe and went back to the heart of the piano country, where he couldn't see the boats. I trotted over to Records.

MRS. ROMA WYANT, who is Records, was beaming like a housewife in a new, all-automatic kitchen. "Isn't it attractive?" she asked tentatively—not wanting to sound boastful, but proud of her shop anyway. I admired the paint job, the displays, and took the Grand Tour of the listening booths.

And as I studied this tasteful merchandising layout, I thought of the change that only a few years had wrought. A decade ago, a store would shove its record department in a corner off the traffic lanes, if it had such a department at all. Now records—and record-playing equipment—are one of the nation's major industries.

Here Lazarus had moved records from a low-ceiling Hernando's Hideaway on a corridor, (turning it over to Davy Crockett gear) and placed the musical dics in a large, open area, redesigned especially for that purpose.

THE SET-UP is interesting and practical. Classical and popular records have been separated, thus ending a friction that has cost classical customers in the past. Previously the teen-age crowd commandeered the listening posts, and the mild man who wanted to compare two versions of a Bach suite found he couldn't compete with rock 'n' roll.

Now the pop discs are to the south of center with 16 listening posts. These open booths are sound-insulated so that the racket, with all of them going at once, won't be as bad as you'd imagine. Also, volume is held to a reasonable level in the speakers in each booth.

CUSTOMERS who want to hear the long-playing records, classics, light classics, or those "music for" platters (for sleeping, wishing, dreaming, worrying, romance, passion, etc.) can use the 10 booths north of center. These have high-fidelity equipment, with Garrard turntables, good pickups and speakers. They are enclosed and soundproofed, of course.

FORMAL OPENING of the record department will be Tuesday, May 31, though nobody will throw you out if you try to buy a musical pancake prior to that. However, on opening day, you'll be able to buy a 45 rpm extended play record for 19 cents until the supply of 6000 is exhausted. RCA Victor and Columbia each made one up for the Lazarus opening. Four numbers on each, by good bands and soloists, such as Rosemary Clooney, Harry James, Les Elgart, The Three Suns and the Boston Pops.

And if you need a canoe, step over to the piano department.

[66]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

MAY 26 1955

B. I. Juniors To Hold "Pops" Program, May 31

The Beth Israel Hospital Junior Auxiliary will hold its 12th annual "Pops" evening Tuesday, May 31, at Symphony Hall in Boston. This year's program book will be dedicated to Dr. Cecil G. Sheps, executive director of the hospital.

Ticket co-chairmen, Marilyn Schwartz and Beverly Weiss, announce that tickets may be purchased by contacting the Junior Auxiliary at the hospital or any member of the organization.

A night at "Pops" enables the group to raise funds for the tumor and cancer clinic of the hospital through the sale of jewels and sponsors, and this year's jewels and sponsors chairmen are Rena Hyman and Ruth Rutman. Flower corsages will be sold by members under the chairmenship of Janice Komins and Marilyn Stern.

"Pops" chairman, Estelle Levine, recently announced the appointment of Rene Wynn and Helen Vinocoor as her co-chairmen and Elaine Clayman, publicity.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

South End Citizen
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 14,000

MAY 26 1955

City Hospital Friends Patrons For 'Pops'

Among the Friends of the Boston City Hospital who are patrons for the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall on June first are Dr. and Mrs. James J. Regan of South Boston, and Miss Ellen C. Daly, Dr. and Mrs. John A. Foley, and Dr. and Mrs. James V. Sacchetti, all of Dorchester.

To Lead Pops Concert On June 10

New Englanders will have an opportunity Friday evening, June 10, to hear the celebrated musicians of the Boston Symphony orchestra play under the baton of Michael Bowles, Ireland's foremost symphony conductor as he makes a guest appearance at the Boston Eire Society's night at Pops.

This 45-year-old native of Sligo first came into prominence as a band master for the Irish Army. He had then just past his 21st birthday. Bowles' superb talent was quickly recognized and he was sent by the army to the National University of Ireland for further study and training. The army thereupon lost him to Radio Eireann where he shortly became the music director and later the founder and conductor of Dublin's first full-sizer symphony orchestra since Ireland became a nation.

In 1948, after establishing himself as Ireland's top ranking native symphony conductor, Bowles accepted guest engagements, for various periods, as conductor for the BBC symphony orchestra in London, the Rome University orchestra and the national orchestras at Brussels and Stockholm.

From 1950 to 1953 he devoted his genius to conducting and improving symphony orchestras in New Zealand and Australia. He has recently completed engagements with the Canadian Broadcasting Service orchestra in Toronto. Between his foreign commitments, Mr. Bowles, in frequent trips to Ireland, retained his active interest in the now-flourishing symphonic movement in Dublin and other Irish cities.

Martin A. O'Malley of Quincy is the chairman of the Eire Society Pops Night. The Society will take over the main floor of Symphony Hall for the evening.

COLUMBUS, OHIO
CITIZEN
Circ. D. 91,273 - S. 104,943
MAY 26 1955

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Free Press
MELROSE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,370

MAY 26 1955

It Is Said

That Wilford S. Cuthbertson, 3 Lincoln Street, was re-elected a vice president and treasurer of the Chelsea Savings Bank at the annual meeting last week. Ichabod F. Atwood, formerly of E. Emerson Street, was re-elected as president of the bank. A dinner followed at Bellevue Golf Club.

—o—

That Mayor and Mrs. Lawrence W. Lloyd were among the head table guests at the dinner tendered William J. Lee, town counsel and moderator of Wakefield last week.

—o—

That Mr. and Mrs. William B. Alexander of Lovell Road will attend the golden anniversary convention of Rotary International in Chicago. Mr. Alexander will be the official delegate of the Melrose club.

—o—

That Dr. and Mrs. Russell F. Sullivan of Country Club Road are patrons for the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall on June 1, sponsored by the Friends of the Boston City Hospital.

—o—

That the Rev. Arthur W. Olsen, minister of the First Unitarian Church in Toledo, Ohio and formerly of the local Unitarian Church, occupied the pulpit of the Wellesley Unitarian Church last Sunday morning. He has been in Boston attending the annual meeting of the American Unitarian Association.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Journal
REVERE, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisa
Circ. 7950

MAY 26 1955

Choral Singers Sparkle At Pops Concert Program

PAGE 1

Revere High Group In Repeat Appearance Given Loud Acclaim

Another sparkling performance by the Revere High School Choral club was rendered Sunday evening as it took part in the regular Pops Concert at Symphony Hall. It was definitely "Revere Night at the Pops" as residents filled the front half of the first floor to hear the singers perform and the large audience in attendance applauded long and loud as the group concluded its four renditions.

The club under the direction of William O. Goss, Jr., was playing a repeat performance and has the distinct honor of being the only high school singing group to be invited to take part in any Pops concerts. The singers appeared last year by invitation and were so well received and so well mannered that the management again this year extended the invitation.

Choral clubbers earned another honor as the result of their outstanding performance Sunday night. William J. Bird, managing director of the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce, who heard them sing, invited them to appear at the Chamber's annual meeting at 12:30 o'clock today (Thursday) at the Sheraton Plaza ballroom. Principal speaker will be Senator Leverett Saltonstall.

The club achieved a mark of excellent on a national rating scale at the New England Festival of Music Saturday at the University of Rhode Island in Kingston. Judges termed the organization the best choral group at the festival.

More than 600 tickets were sold in Revere alone for the Pops per-

(Continued on Page Fourteen)

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,246

MAY 26 1955

The Massachusetts Real Estate Association will enjoy a night at the Boston Pops on June 20th, the organization having reserved half the floor of Symphony Hall for use of Realtors, their families and friends. Stanford Celatka, president of the Chicopee Board, announces that Rudolph LeBel, Sr., of Trilby Ave., Aldenville, secretary of the board, will take care of the local ticket distribution.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Dorchester Citizen
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 12,300

MAY 26 1955

B.I. Junior Pops Program May 31st

The Beth Israel Hospital Junior Auxiliary will hold their 12th annual "Pops" Evening on Tuesday, May 31, at Symphony Hall.

Tickets may be purchased by contacting the Junior Auxiliary at the Beth Israel Hospital or any member of the organization.

A night at "Pops" is a tradition with the B. I. Juniors and enables the group to raise funds for the Tumor and Cancer Clinic of the Hospital through the sale of "Jewels" and "Spohsors."

Attractive flower corsages will be sold on the evening of May 31st by the members of the Junior Auxiliary.

The Beth Israel Hospital Junior Auxiliary consists of young women from the Greater Boston area who meet once a month at the Nurses Home on Brookline Avenue, Boston.

On The Aisle - - -

That Canoe Among The Pianos Points To New Record Dept.

By NORMAN NADEL

It seemed odd. Even for a store where you go upstairs to get to the basement.

There, in the piano department of Lazarus, on the Front-st level (under the basement floor) at the north, or State-st end, lay a canoe. To port were pianos—a whole row of spinets. To starboard, television sets. There was an outboard motor boat at the bow, another at the stern.

Joe Weisberg, who can sell you a piano, play a recital on it, or teach you to play it, wandered over.

"WHAT," I ASKED, "is a canoe doing in the piano department?"

He studied it thoughtfully. "We've wondered about it, too," he finally admitted. "I guess it spilled over from the sporting goods department."

We kicked this possibility around while I examined both canoe and keyboard. Finally, by sighting from stern to bow of the slender craft, I realized that it pointed directly at Lazarus' new record department, where I was supposed to be anyway. Joe carefully circumnavigated the canoe and went back to the heart of the piano country, where he couldn't see the boats. I trotted over to Records.

MRS. ROMA WYANT, who is Records, was beaming like a housewife in a new, all-automatic kitchen. "Isn't it attractive?" she asked tentatively—not wanting to sound boastful, but proud of her shop anyway. I admired the paint job, the displays, and took the Grand Tour of the listening booths.

And as I studied this tasteful merchandising layout, I thought of the change that only a few years had wrought. A decade ago, a store would shove its record department in a corner off the traffic lanes, if it had such a department at all. Now records—and record-playing equipment—are one of the nation's major industries.

Here Lazarus had moved records from a low-ceiling Hernando's Hideaway on a corridor, (turning it over to Davy Crockett gear) and placed the musical dics in a large, open area, redesigned especially for that purpose.

THE SET-UP is interesting and practical. Classical and popular records have been separated, thus ending a friction that has cost classical customers in the past. Previously the teen-age crowd commandeered the listening posts, and the mild man who wanted to compare two versions of a Bach suite found he couldn't compete with rock 'n' roll.

Now the pop discs are to the south of center with 16 listening posts. These open booths are sound-insulated so that the racket, with all of them going at once, won't be as bad as you'd imagine. Also, volume is held to a reasonable level in the speakers in each booth.

CUSTOMERS who want to hear the long-playing records, classics, light classics, or those "music for" platters (music for sleeping, wishing, dreaming, worrying, romance, relaxation, etc.) can use the 10 booths north of center. These have high-fidelity equipment, with Garrard turntables, good pickups and speakers. They are enclosed and soundproofed, of course.

FORMAL OPENING of the record department will be Tuesday, May 31, though nobody will throw you out if you try to buy a musical pancake prior to that. However, on opening day, you'll be able to buy a 45 rpm extended play record for 19 cents until the supply of 6000 is exhausted. RCA Victor and Columbia each made one up for the Lazarus opening. Four numbers on each, by good bands and soloists, such as Rosemary Clooney, Harry James, Les Elgart, The Three Suns and the Boston Pops.

And if you need a canoe, step over to the piano department.

[66]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

MAY 26 1955

B. I. Juniors To Hold "Pops" Program, May 31

The Beth Israel Hospital Junior Auxiliary will hold its 12th annual "Pops" evening Tuesday, May 31, at Symphony Hall in Boston. This year's program book will be dedicated to Dr. Cecil G. Sheps, executive director of the hospital.

Ticket co-chairmen, Marilyn Schwartz and Beverly Weiss, announce that tickets may be purchased by contacting the Junior Auxiliary at the hospital or any member of the organization.

A night at "Pops" enables the group to raise funds for the tumor and cancer clinic of the hospital through the sale of jewels and sponsors, and this year's jewels and sponsors chairmen are Rena Hyman and Ruth Rutman. Flower corsages will be sold by members under the chairmenship of Janice Komins and Marilyn Stern

"Pops" chairman, Estelle Levine, recently announced the appointment of Rene Wynn and Helen Vinocoor as her co-chairmen and Elaine Clayman, publicity.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Allston Citizen
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 7,750

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Citizen
BRIGHTON, Mass.
kly Independent
Circ. 9,550

Y 2 6 1955

h Conductor
uest At The Pops

New Englanders on Friday evening, June 10, will hear the celebrated musicians of the Boston Symphony Orchestra play under the baton of Michael Bowles, Ireland's foremost symphony conductor as he makes a guest appearance at the Boston Eire Society's night at Pops.

This 45-year-old native of Sligo first came into prominence as a band master for the Irish Army. He had then just past his 21st birthday. His talent was quickly recognized and he was sent to the National University of Ireland. The army thereupon lost him to Radio Eireann where he shortly became the music director and later the founder and conductor of Dublin's first full-sized symphony orchestra since Ireland became a nation.

In 1948, after establishing himself as Ireland's top ranking native symphony conductor, Bowles, accepted guest engagements, for various periods, as conductor for the BBC symphony orchestra in London, the Rome University orchestra and the national orchestras at Brussels and Stockholm.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

South End Citizen
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 14,000

MAY 2 6 1955

City Hospital Friends Patrons For 'Pops'

Among the Friends of the Boston City Hospital who are patrons for the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall on June first are Dr. and Mrs. James J. Regan of South Boston, and Miss Ellen C. Daly, Dr. and Mrs. John A. Foley, and Dr. and Mrs. James V. Sacchetti, all of Dorchester.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Free Press
MELROSE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,370

MAY 2 6 1955

It Is Said

That Wilford S. Cuthbertson, 3 Lincoln Street, was re-elected a vice president and treasurer of the Chelsea Savings Bank at the annual meeting last week. Ichabod F. Atwood, formerly of E. Emerson Street, was re-elected as president of the bank. A dinner followed at Bellevue Golf Club.

—o—

That Mayor and Mrs. Lawrence W. Lloyd were among the head table guests at the dinner tendered William J. Lee, town counsel and moderator of Wakefield last week.

—o—

That Mr. and Mrs. William B. Alexander of Lovell Road will attend the golden anniversary convention of Rotary International in Chicago. Mr. Alexander will be the official delegate of the Melrose club.

—o—

That Dr. and Mrs. Russell F. Sullivan of Country Club Road are patrons for the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall on June 1, sponsored by the Friends of the Boston City Hospital.

—o—

That the Rev. Arthur W. Olsen, minister of the First Unitarian Church in Toledo, Ohio and formerly of the local Unitarian Church, occupied the pulpit of the Wellesley Unitarian Church last Sunday morning. He has been in Boston attending the annual meeting of the American Unitarian Association.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Journal
REVERE, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisa
Circ. 7950

MAY 2 6 1955

Choral Singers Sparkle At Pops Concert Program

PAGE 8

Revere High Group In Repeat Appearance Given Loud Acclaim

Another sparkling performance by the Revere High School Choral club was rendered Sunday evening as it took part in the regular Pops Concert at Symphony Hall. It was definitely "Revere Night at the Pops" as residents filled the front half of the first floor to hear the singers perform and the large audience in attendance applauded long and loud as the group concluded its four renditions.

The club under the direction of William O. Goss, Jr., was playing a repeat performance and has the distinct honor of being the only high school singing group to be invited to take part in any Pops concerts. The singers appeared last year by invitation and were so well received and so well mannered that the management again this year extended the invitation.

Choral clubbers earned another honor as the result of their outstanding performance Sunday night. William J. Bird, managing director of the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce, who heard them sing, invited them to appear at the Chamber's annual meeting at 12:30 o'clock today (Thursday) at the Sheraton Plaza ballroom. Principal speaker will be Senator Leverett Saltonstall.

The club achieved a mark of excellent on a national rating scale at the New England Festival of Music Saturday at the University of Rhode Island in Kingston. Judges termed the organization the best choral group at the festival.

More than 600 tickets were sold in Revere alone for the Pops per-

(Continued on Page Fourteen)

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE. Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,246

MAY 2 6 1955

The Massachusetts Real Estate Association will enjoy a night at the Boston Pops on June 20th, the organization having reserved half the floor of Symphony Hall for use of Realtors, their families and friends. Stanford Celatka, president of the Chicopee Board, announces that Rudolph LeBel, Sr., of Trilby Ave., Aldenville, secretary of the board, will take care of the local ticket distribution.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Dorchester Citizen
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 12,300

MAY 2 6 1955

B.I. Junior Pops Program May 31st

The Beth Israel Hospital Junior Auxiliary will hold their 12th annual "Pops" Evening on Tuesday, May 31, at Symphony Hall.

Tickets may be purchased by contacting the Junior Auxiliary at the Beth Israel Hospital or any member of the organization.

A night at "Pops" is a tradition with the B. I. Juniors and enables the group to raise funds for the Tumor and Cancer Clinic of the Hospital through the sale of "Jewels" and "Spohsors."

Attractive flower corsages will be sold on the evening of May 31st by the members of the Junior Auxiliary.

The Beth Israel Hospital Junior Auxiliary consists of young women from the Greater Boston area who meet once a month at the Nurses Home on Brookline Avenue, Boston.

COLUMBUS, OHIO
CITIZEN
Circ. D. 91,273 - S. 104,943
MAY 2 6 1955

On The Aisle - - -

That Canoe Among The Pianos Points To New Record Dept.

By NORMAN NADEL

It seemed odd. Even for a store where you go upstairs to get to the basement.

There, in the piano department of Lazarus, on the Front-st level (under the basement floor) at the north, or State-st end, lay a canoe. To port were pianos—a whole row of spinets. To starboard, television sets. There was an outboard motor boat at the bow, another at the stern.

Joe Weisberg, who can sell you a piano, play a recital on it, or teach you to play it, wandered over.

"WHAT," I ASKED, "is a canoe doing in the piano department?"

He studied it thoughtfully. "We've wondered about it, too," he finally admitted. "I guess it spilled over from the sporting goods department."

We kicked this possibility around while I examined both canoe and keyboard. Finally, by sighting from stern to bow of the slender craft, I realized that it pointed directly at Lazarus' new record department, where I was supposed to be anyway. Joe carefully circumnavigated the canoe and went back to the heart of the piano country, where he couldn't see the boats. I trotted over to Records.

MRS. ROMA WYANT, who is Records, was beaming like a housewife in a new, all-automatic kitchen. "Isn't it attractive?" she asked tentatively—not wanting to sound boastful, but proud of her shop anyway. I admired the paint job, the displays, and took the Grand Tour of the listening booths.

And as I studied this tasteful merchandising layout, I thought of the change that only a few years had wrought. A decade ago, a store would shove its record department in a corner off the traffic lanes, if it had such a department at all. Now records—and record-playing equipment—are one of the nation's major industries.

Here Lazarus had moved records from a low-ceiling Hernando's Hideaway on a corridor, (turning it over to Davy Crockett gear) and placed the musical discs in a large, open area, redesigned especially for that purpose.

THE SET-UP is interesting and practical. Classical and popular records have been separated, thus ending a friction that has cost classical customers in the past. Previously the teen-age crowd commandeered the listening posts, and the mild man who wanted to compare two versions of a Bach suite found he couldn't compete with rock 'n' roll.

Now the pop discs are to the south of center with 16 listening posts. These open booths are sound-insulated so that the racket, with all of them going at once, won't be as bad as you'd imagine. Also, volume is held to a reasonable level in the speakers in each booth.

CUSTOMERS who want to hear the long-playing records, classics, light classics, or those "music for" platters (music for sleeping, wishing, dreaming, worrying, romance, relaxation, etc.) can use the 10 booths north of center. These have high-fidelity equipment, with Garrard turntables, good pickups and speakers. They are enclosed and soundproofed, of course.

FORMAL OPENING of the record department will be Tuesday, May 31, though nobody will throw you out if you try to buy a musical pancake prior to that. However, on opening day, you'll be able to buy a 45 rpm extended play record for 19 cents—until the supply of 6000 is exhausted. RCA Victor and Columbia each made one up for the Lazarus opening. Four numbers on each, by good bands and soloists, such as Rosemary Clooney, Harry James, Les Elgart, The Three Suns and the Boston Pops.

And if you need a canoe, step over to the piano department.

[66]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

MAY 2 6 1955

B. I. Juniors To Hold "Pops" Program, May 31

The Beth Israel Hospital Junior Auxiliary will hold its 12th annual "Pops" evening Tuesday, May 31, at Symphony Hall in Boston. This year's program book will be dedicated to Dr. Cecil G. Sheps, executive director of the hospital.

Ticket co-chairmen, Marilyn Schwartz and Beverly Weiss, announce that tickets may be purchased by contacting the Junior Auxiliary at the hospital or any member of the organization.

A night at "Pops" enables the group to raise funds for the tumor and cancer clinic of the hospital through the sale of jewels and sponsors, and this year's jewels and sponsors chairmen are Rena Hyman and Ruth Rutman. Flower corsages will be sold by members under the chairmenship of Janice Komins and Marilyn Stern.

"Pops" chairman, Estelle Levine, recently announced the appointment of Rene Wynn and Helen Vinocoor as her co-chairmen and Elaine Clayman, publicity.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Allston Citizen
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 7,750

MAY 26 1955

Irish Conductor Guest At The Pops

New Englanders on Friday evening, June 10, will hear the celebrated musicians of the Boston Symphony Orchestra play under the baton of Michael Bowles, Ireland's foremost symphony conductor as he makes a guest appearance at the Boston Eire Society's night at Pops.

This 45-year-old native of Sligo first came into prominence as a band master for the Irish Army. He had then just past his 21st birthday. His talent was quickly recognized and he was sent to the National University of Ireland. The army thereupon lost him to Radio Eireann where he shortly became the music director and later the founder and conductor of Dublin's first full-sized symphony orchestra since Ireland became a nation.

In 1948, after establishing himself as Ireland's top ranking native symphony conductor, Bowles, accepted guest engagements, for various periods, as conductor for the BBC symphony orchestra in London, the Rome University orchestra and the national orchestras at Brussels and Stockholm.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

South End Citizen
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 14,000

MAY 26 1955

City Hospital Friends Patrons For 'Pops'

Among the Friends of the Boston City Hospital who are patrons for the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall on June first are Dr. and Mrs. James J. Regan of South Boston, and Miss Ellen C. Daly, Dr. and Mrs. John A. Foley, and Dr. and Mrs. James V. Sacchetti, all of Dorchester.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Free Press
MELROSE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 5,370

MAY 26 1955

It Is Said

That Wilford S. Cuthbertson, 3 Lincoln Street, was re-elected a vice president and treasurer of the Chelsea Savings Bank at the annual meeting last week. Ichabod F. Atwood, formerly of E. Emerson Street, was re-elected as president of the bank. A dinner followed at Bellevue Golf Club.

—o—

That Mayor and Mrs. Lawrence W. Lloyd were among the head table guests at the dinner tendered William J. Lee, town counsel and moderator of Wakefield last week.

—o—

That Mr. and Mrs. William B. Alexander of Lovell Road will attend the golden anniversary convention of Rotary International in Chicago. Mr. Alexander will be the official delegate of the Melrose club.

—o—

That Dr. and Mrs. Russell F. Sullivan of Country Club Road are patrons for the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall on June 1, sponsored by the Friends of the Boston City Hospital.

—o—

That the Rev. Arthur W. Olsen, minister of the First Unitarian Church in Toledo, Ohio and formerly of the local Unitarian Church, occupied the pulpit of the Wellesley Unitarian Church last Sunday morning. He has been in Boston attending the annual meeting of the American Unitarian Association.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Journal
REVERE, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisa
Circ. 7950

MAY 26 1955

Choral Singers Sparkle At Pops Concert Program

PAGE 1

Revere High Group In Repeat Appearance Given Loud Acclaim

Another sparkling performance by the Revere High School Choral club was rendered Sunday evening as it took part in the regular Pops Concert at Symphony Hall. It was definitely "Revere Night at the Pops" as residents filled the front half of the first floor to hear the singers perform and the large audience in attendance applauded long and loud as the group concluded its four renditions.

The club under the direction of William O. Goss, Jr., was playing a repeat performance and has the distinct honor of being the only high school singing group to be invited to take part in any Pops concerts. The singers appeared last year by invitation and were so well received and so well mannered that the management again this year extended the invitation.

Choral clubbers earned another honor as the result of their outstanding performance Sunday night. William J. Bird, managing director of the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce, who heard them sing, invited them to appear at the Chamber's annual meeting at 12:30 o'clock today (Thursday) at the Sheraton Plaza ballroom. Principal speaker will be Senator Leverett Saltonstall.

The club achieved a mark of excellent on a national rating scale at the New England Festival of Music Saturday at the University of Rhode Island in Kingston. Judges termed the organization the best choral group at the festival.

More than 600 tickets were sold in Revere alone for the Pops per-

(Continued on Page Fourteen)

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,246

MAY 26 1955

The Massachusetts Real Estate Association will enjoy a night at the Boston Pops on June 20th, the organization having reserved half the floor of Symphony Hall for use of Realtors, their families and friends. Stanford Celatka, president of the Chicopee Board, announces that Rudolph LeBel, Sr., of Trilby Ave., Aldenville, secretary of the board, will take care of the local ticket distribution.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Dorchester Citizen
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 12,300

MAY 26 1955

B.I. Junior Pops Program May 31st

The Beth Israel Hospital Junior Auxiliary will hold their 12th annual "Pops" Evening on Tuesday, May 31, at Symphony Hall.

Tickets may be purchased by contacting the Junior Auxiliary at the Beth Israel Hospital or any member of the organization.

A night at "Pops" is a tradition with the B. I. Juniors and enables the group to raise funds for the Tumor and Cancer Clinic of the Hospital through the sale of "Jewels" and "Spohsors."

Attractive flower corsages will be sold on the evening of May 31st by the members of the Junior Auxiliary.

The Beth Israel Hospital Junior Auxiliary consists of young women from the Greater Boston area who meet once a month at the Nurses Home on Brookline Avenue, Boston.

COLUMBUS, OHIO
CITIZEN
Circ. D. 91,273 - S. 104,943
MAY 26 1955

On The Aisle - - -

That Canoe Among The Pianos Points To New Record Dept.

By NORMAN NADEL

It seemed odd. Even for a store where you go upstairs to get to the basement.

There, in the piano department of Lazarus, on the Front-st level (under the basement floor) at the north, or State-st end, lay a canoe. To port were pianos—a whole row of spinets. To starboard, television sets. There was an outboard motor boat at the bow, another at the stern.

Joe Weisberg, who can sell you a piano, play a recital on it, or teach you to play it, wandered over.

"WHAT," I ASKED, "is a canoe doing in the piano department?"

He studied it thoughtfully. "We've wondered about it, too," he finally admitted. "I guess it spilled over from the sporting goods department."

We kicked this possibility around while I examined both canoe and keyboard. Finally, by sighting from stern to bow of the slender craft, I realized that it pointed directly at Lazarus' new record department, where I was supposed to be anyway. Joe carefully circumnavigated the canoe and went back to the heart of the piano country, where he couldn't see the boats. I trotted over to Records.

MRS. ROMA WYANT, who is Records, was beaming like a housewife in a new, all-automatic kitchen. "Isn't it attractive?" she asked tentatively—not wanting to sound boastful, but proud of her shop anyway. I admired the paint job, the displays, and took the Grand Tour of the listening booths.

And as I studied this tasteful merchandising layout, I thought of the change that only a few years had wrought. A decade ago, a store would shove its record department in a corner off the traffic lanes, if it had such a department at all. Now records—and record-playing equipment—are one of the nation's major industries.

Here Lazarus had moved records from a low-ceiling Hernando's Hideaway on a corridor, (turning it over to Davy Crockett gear) and placed the musical discs in a large, open area, redesigned especially for that purpose.

THE SET-UP is interesting and practical. Classical and popular records have been separated, thus ending a friction that has cost classical customers in the past. Previously the teen-age crowd commandeered the listening posts, and the mild man who wanted to compare two versions of a Bach suite found he couldn't compete with rock 'n' roll.

Now the pop discs are to the south of center with 16 listening posts. These open booths are sound-insulated so that the racket, with all of them going at once, won't be as bad as you'd imagine. Also, volume is held to a reasonable level in the speakers in each booth.

CUSTOMERS who want to hear the long-playing records, classics, light classics, or those "music for" platters (music for sleeping, wishing, dreaming, worrying, romance, relaxation, etc.) can use the 10 booths north of center. These have high-fidelity equipment, with Garrard turntables, good pickups and speakers. They are enclosed and soundproofed, of course.

FORMAL OPENING of the record department will be Tuesday, May 31, though nobody will throw you out if you try to buy a musical pancake prior to that. However, on opening day, you'll be able to buy a 45 rpm extended play record for 19 cents—until the supply of 6000 is exhausted. RCA Victor and Columbia each made one up for the Lazarus opening. Four numbers on each, by good bands and soloists, such as Rosemary Clooney, Harry James, Les Elgart, The Three Suns and the Boston Pops.

And if you need a canoe, step over to the piano department.

[66]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

MAY 26 1955

B. I. Juniors To Hold "Pops" Program, May 31

The Beth Israel Hospital Junior Auxiliary will hold its 12th annual "Pops" evening Tuesday, May 31, at Symphony Hall in Boston. This year's program book will be dedicated to Dr. Cecil G. Sheps, executive director of the hospital.

Ticket co-chairmen, Marilyn Schwartz and Beverly Weiss, announce that tickets may be purchased by contacting the Junior Auxiliary at the hospital or any member of the organization.

A night at "Pops" enables the group to raise funds for the tumor and cancer clinic of the hospital through the sale of jewels and sponsors, and this year's jewels and sponsors chairmen are Rena Hyman and Ruth Rutman. Flower corsages will be sold by members under the chairmenship of Janice Komins and Marilyn Stern

"Pops" chairman, Estelle Levine, recently announced the appointment of Rene Wynn and Helen Vinocoor as her co-chairmen and Elaine Clayman, publicity.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

MAY 26 1955

Robert Merrill At Histadrut Night at Pops

The proceeds of the annual Histadrut Night at "Pops," featuring the Metropolitan baritone, Robert Merrill, which will be held Thursday evening, June 16, at Symphony Hall, will be used to further the program of Kupat Holim in caring for the health of Israel's new immigrant population.

Kupat Holim—the health system of the Histadrut, Israel's Federation of Labor, now serves more than one million of that nation's inhabitants. Since the establishment of the State, Kupat Holim has been providing free medical care for new immigrants during the first months of their stay in the Jewish State. The entire proceeds of the annual Pops Concert, according to Samuel Shapiro, chairman, will be used exclusively to further this program.

Robert Merrill, who will appear as guest soloist during this evening, has promised to include among his presentations works of famous Jewish artists. The entire musical program now being arranged under the direction of Oscar Sterman, honorary chairman of the program committee, and Alexander Shapiro, secretary-treasurer, with the Boston Pops Orchestra, will reflect the evening's title, "A Salute to Israel."

Mr. Merrill has already appeared as guest soloist at a Histadrut Pops Night five years ago. Since that time, he has risen in the operatic world to become not only leading baritone of the Metropolitan Opera, but also one of the most noted recording, television and radio stars in his field.

The entire floor of Symphony Hall has been reserved for this performance for sponsors of the evening. Those who purchased advertising in the annual program book are entitled to these floor tables.

The special concert committee is composed of committee officers mentioned above and the following: Frank Casty, Carl Cohen, Samuel Cohen, Jacob Dubb, Zelik Entin, Louis Faneuil, Harry Gerber, Aaron Glimcher, Al Goldis, Allan Gordon, Hyman Green, Frank Grossman, Joshua Guberman, Harold Katz, Max Landy, Max Lefkowitz, Aaron Moldaw, Israel Polansky, Daniel Shapiro, David Shapiro, Dr. Louis Silver, Max Sterman, Sam Sugarman, Edward Humaroff, Albert Zallen and Hyman Glass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sentinel (e)
FITCHBURG, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 15,164

MAY 26 1955

—Tickets for the Pops Concert to be given in Boston, June 2, are still available to members of the Burbank Hospital Alumnae Assn. and their friends. Reservations may be made with Mrs. Ralph P. Walsh. A bus will leave for the concert from Depot Square at 6 p. m. on that date. [illegible] D. Stymble, whose wife,

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Back Bay Ledger &
Beacon Hill Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,000 Free

MAY 26 1955

Pops Concerts Feature Piano Soloists Here

The annual Pops Concerts at Symphony Hall, now in their fourth week of the current season, are taking place every night. Frederick Fennell completed his engagement as guest conductor earlier this week and Harry E. Dickson has taken over for the remaining nights of the week pending the return of Arthur Fiedler.

The programs of the week follow: Thursday evening, May 26 at 8:30 o'clock, Triumphal March from "Aida" by Verdi, Overture to "Poet and Peasant" by Suppe, Prelude to "The Deluge" by Saint-Saens, Dance of the Hours by Ponchielli, The Flying Dutchman" by Wagner, Concerto for Piano and Orchestra in A minor by Grieg, Lowell State Teachers College Choir, Edward F. Gilday, director; selections from "Guys and Dolls" by Loesser, The Glowworm Turns by Lincke-Bodge and the National Emblem March by Bagley.

Continued on Page Eleven

Barber Shop Night at the Pops, Saturday evening, May 28 at 8:30 o'clock: Semper Fidelis March by Sousa; Overture to the Barber of Seville by Rossini, Dance of the Hours from "La Gioconda" by Ponchelli; the Ambassadors of Harmony from Reading, the Chord Combers from Gloversville, N. Y., and the Helmsmen from New Bedford; Jolly Fellows Waltzes by Vollstedt, Suite from "Gaite Parisienne" by Offenbach; the Worcester Chapter Chorus of the SPEBQSA, Many Happy Return, arranged by Mason, Old Timers' Night at the Pops arranged by Lake, Barber Shop Medley arranged by Hopkins.

Sunday evening, May 29, at 8:30 o'clock: Triumphal March from "Aida" by Verdi, Overture to "Euryanthe" by Weber, Largo al Factotum from "The Barber of Seville" by Rossini, Tales from the Vienna Woods by Sturause, "The Animals' Carnival," Grand Zoological Fantasia by Saint-Saens, Irish Suite by Anderson, Selections from "South Pacific" by Rodgers, The Glowworm Turns by Lincke-Bodge [illegible] Cheyenn.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (e)
CHELSEA, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,432

MAY 26 1955

Beth Israel Aux'y Plans Pops Night

The Beth Israel hospital junior auxiliary will hold their 12th annual "Pops' Evening, Tuesday, May 31, at Symphony Hall, Boston. This year's program book will be dedicated to Dr. Cecil G. Sheps, executive director of the hospital.

Ticket co-chairmen, Marilyn Schwartz and Beverly Weiss announce that tickets may be purchased by contacting the Junior Auxiliary at the Beth Israel hospital or any member of the organization.

A night at "Pops" is a tradition with the B.I. Juniors and enables the group to raise funds for the Tumor and Cancer Clinic of the hospital through the sale of jewels and sponsors, and this year's jewels and sponsors chairmen are Rena Hyman and Ruth Rutman.

Attractive flower corsages will be sold that evening by the members of the Junior Auxiliary under the chairmanship of Janice Komine and Marilyn Stern.

The Beth Israel Hospital Jr. Auxiliary consists of young women from the Greater Boston area who meet once a month at the Nurses Home on Brookline ave., Boston. Working meetings are held during the weeks for the express purpose of discussing and planning of current and future activities.

"Pops' chairman, Estelle Levin, recently announced the appointment of Rene Wynn and Helen Vinocoor as her co-chairmen, and Elaine Clayman, publicity.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 10,315

MAY 26 1955

Histadrut To Present Annual Pops Night Concert, June 16

All proceeds of the Annual Histadrut Night at "Pops", to be held Thursday evening, June 16 at Symphony Hall, will be used to further the program of Kupat Holim, the health system of the Histadrut, Israel's Federation of Labor, which serves more than one million people, according to Samuel Shapiro, concert chairman.

Robert Merrill, who will appear as guest soloist during this traditional evening, has promised to include works of famous Jewish artists in his presentations.

The entire musical program now being arranged under the direction of Oscar Sterman, honorary chairman of the program committee, and Alexander Shapiro, secretary-treasurer, with the Boston Pops Orchestra, will reflect the evening's title "A Salute to Israel."

Special Concert Committee also includes: Frank Casty, Carl Cohen, Samuel Cohen, Jacob Dubb, Zelik Entin, Louis Faneuil, Harry Gerber, Aaron Glimcher, Al Goldis, Allan Gordon, Hyman Green, Frank Grossman, Joshua Guberman, Harold Katz, Max Landy, Max Lefkowitz, Aaron Moldaw, Israel Polansky, Daniel Shapiro, David Shapiro, Dr. Louis Silver, Max Sterman, Sam Sugarman, Edward Tumaroff, Albert Zallen, Hyman Glass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Advocate
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,987

MAY 26 1955

Among the Friends of the Boston City Hospital who are patrons for the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall on June 1 are Mr. and Mrs. John F. Higgins of Arlington.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (e)
CHELSEA, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,432

MAY 26 1955

A group of members of Ruth chapter, OES, will attend Eastern Star Night at the "Pops" tonight at Symphony hall, Boston.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Courier
CAMBRIDGE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 11,000 Free

MAY 26 1955

Courier Hears

THAT — Tuesday, May 24, was Telephone Night at the Pops. Over a thousand members and friends of the Thomas Sherwin Chapter of Telephone Pioneers of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company sponsored this program.

Among the songs featured by the Boston Pops Orchestra was the Bell Waltz, played each week at the opening and closing of the Bell Telephone Hour.

A large delegation of employees from the Cambridge area were in attendance. Chairman of the local committee was Mrs. Ida Michelin of the Commercial Department.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Hyde Park Tribune
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 9100

MAY 26 1955

Eire Society Night At Pops Here June 10

A special program of Irish music will feature the Eire Society's night at Pops on Friday evening, June 10. The Society will take over the main floor at Symphony Hall for its members and guests.

A committee, headed by Martin A O'Malley of Quincy, has been appointed by Eire Society President Paul Tierney to arrange the details.

Negotiations are underway for at least one outstanding soloist for that evening, and possibly a guest conductor. Pops conductor Arthur Fiedler promises an interesting and varied program of classical, semi-classical and popular music, with a pronounced Irish flavor. The Pops orchestra has in its library an Eire Society suite arranged, on special commission, by Leroy Anderson. This selection is played each year on Eire Society night.

This concert is an important phase of the Eire Society's cultural activity.

Serving on the music committee are: John P. McGrail of Clinton, chairman, Catherine Madden of Hyde Park and John P. Cavanagh of Brighton.

Mrs. James P. McElwee and Mary Lincoln, both of Brookline, comprise the reservations committee. The program committee headed by Joseph Gannon of Brookline, publicity committee, Thomas F. O'Day of Mattapan, Chairman, John Devlin of West Roxbury, Mary Tierney of East Boston and Bernadine Truden of Brookline.

Serving on the general committee are: Dora Downey, Dorchester; Frances Fox, Boston; Mary Gethings, Cambridge; Margaret O'Connor, Belmont; Charles Lynch and William Stanton, Somerville; Catherine Egan, Belmont; Mrs. Wm. F. A. Graham, Brighton; Mrs. Henry Gomperts, Jamaica Plain; Marjorie Leonard, Belmont; Eugene Sheehan, Roxbury; F. Peter O'Flaherty, Arlington; Mary Featherstone, Dorchester; Mrs. Helen Bishop, Arlington; Dr. J. J. Monahan, West Roxbury, Dr. F. J. Fleming, West Roxbury.

[67]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

MAY 26 1955

Robert Merrill At Histadrut Night at Pops

The proceeds of the annual Histadrut Night at "Pops," featuring the Metropolitan baritone, Robert Merrill, which will be held Thursday evening, June 16, at Symphony Hall, will be used to further the program of Kupat Holim in caring for the health of Israel's new immigrant population.

Kupat Holim—the health system of the Histadrut, Israel's Federation of Labor, now serves more than one million of that nation's inhabitants. Since the establishment of the State, Kupat Holim has been providing free medical care for new immigrants during the first months of their stay in the Jewish State. The entire proceeds of the annual Pops Concert, according to Samuel Shapiro, chairman, will be used exclusively to further this program.

Robert Merrill, who will appear as guest soloist during this evening, has promised to include among his presentations works of famous Jewish artists. The entire musical program now being arranged under the direction of Oscar Sterman, honorary chairman of the program committee, and Alexander Shapiro, secretary-treasurer, with the Boston Pops Orchestra, will reflect the evening's title, "A Salute to Israel."

Mr. Merrill has already appeared as guest soloist at a Histadrut Pops Night five years ago. Since that time, he has risen in the operatic world to become not only leading baritone of the Metropolitan Opera, but also one of the most noted recording, television and radio stars in his field.

The entire floor of Symphony Hall has been reserved for this performance for sponsors of the evening. Those who purchased advertising in the annual program book are entitled to these floor tables.

The special concert committee is composed of committee officers mentioned above and the following: Frank Casty, Carl Cohen, Samuel Cohen, Jacob Dubb, Zelik Entin, Louis Faneuil, Harry Gerber, Aaron Glimcher, Al Goldis, Allan Gordon, Hyman Green, Frank Grossman, Joshua Guberman, Harold Katz, Max Landy, Max Lefkowitz, Aaron Moldaw, Israel Polansky, Daniel Shapiro, David Shapiro, Dr. Louis Silver, Max Sterman, Sam Sugarman, Edward Humaroff, Albert Zallen and Hyman Glass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sentinel (e)
FITCHBURG, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 15,164

MAY 26 1955

—Tickets for the Pops Concert to be given in Boston, June 2, are still available to members of the Burbank Hospital Alumnae Assn. and their friends. Reservations may be made with Mrs. Ralph P. Walsh. A bus will leave for the concert from Depot Square at 6 p. m. on that date. [illegible] Stimble, whose wife,

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 10,315

MAY 26 19[illegible]

ber of th[illegible] the Harvar[illegible]

Histadrut To Present Annual Pops Night Concert, June 16

All proceeds of the Annual Histadrut Night at "Pops", to be held Thursday evening, June 16 at Symphony Hall, will be used to further the program of Kupat Holim, the health system of the Histadrut, Israel's Federation of Labor, which serves more than one million people, according to Samuel Shapiro, concert chairman.

Robert Merrill, who will appear as guest soloist during this traditional evening, has promised to include works of famous Jewish artists in his presentations.

The entire musical program now being arranged under the direction of Oscar Sterman, honorary chairman of the program committee, and Alexander Shapiro, secretary-treasurer, with the Boston Pops Orchestra, will reflect the evening's title "A Salute to Israel."

Special Concert Committee also includes: Frank Casty, Carl Cohen, Samuel Cohen, Jacob Dubb, Zelik Entin, Louis Faneuil, Harry Gerber, Aaron Glimcher, Al Goldis, Allan Gordon, Hyman Green, Frank Grossman, Joshua Guberman, Harold Katz, Max Landy, Max Lefkowitz, Aaron Moldaw, Israel Polansky, Daniel Shapiro, David Shapiro, Dr. Louis Silver, Max Sterman, Sam Sugarman, Edward Tumaroff, Albert Zallen, Hyman Glass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Courier
CAMBRIDGE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 11,000 Free

MAY 26 1955

Courier Hears

THAT — Tuesday, May 24, was Telephone Night at the Pops. Over a thousand members and friends of the Thomas Sherwin Chapter of Telephone Pioneers of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company sponsored this program.

Among the songs featured by the Boston Pops Orchestra was the Bell Waltz, played each week at the opening and closing of the Bell Telephone Hour.

A large delegation of employees from the Cambridge area were in attendance. Chairman of the local committee was Mrs. Ida Michelin of the Commercial Department.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

BARBECUED or
We Will Roas
Your Turkey—Gra
For the BEST In Star Fresh Chicke
Oven Ready.

FRESH HAL
STEAKS Low
In Make Your Long We Cooked Food Sectio
Street Store!
BARBECUED CHICKE
ROASTED CHICKENS
BAKED SHOULDERS
BAKED HAMS ...

Pops Concerts

Continued from Page One

Skaters, waltzes by Waldteufel, Largo from the "New World" Symphony by Dvorak, Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2 by Lizst, Many Happy Returns arranged by Mason, Tviana by Hayman and American Patrol by Meacham.

Friday evening, May 27, at 8:30 oclock: French Military March by Saint-Saens, Overture to "Orpheus in Hades" by Offenbach, Romance from the Violin Concerto in D minor by Wieniawski, Tales from "The Vienna Woods," Waltzes by Strauss, Entrance into the Wartburg from "Tannhauser" by Wagner, Concerto for Piano and Orchestra in A minor by Grieg, Lowell State Teachers College Choir, Edward F. Gilday, director; selections from "Guys and Dolls" by Loesser, The Glowworm Turns by Lincke-Bodge and the National Emblem March by Bagley.

Barber Shop Night at the Pops, Saturday evening, May 28 at 8:30 o'clock: Semper Fidelis March by Sousa; Overture to the Barber of Seville by Rossini, Dance of the Hours from "La Gioconda" by Ponchelli; the Ambassadors of Harmony from Reading, the Chord Combers from Gloversville, N. Y., and the Helmsmen from New Bedford; Jolly Fellows Waltzes by Vollstedt, Suite from "Gaite Parisienne" by Offenbach; the Worcester Chapter Chorus of the SPEBQSA, Many Happy Return, arranged by Mason, Old Timers' Night at the Pops arranged by Lake, Barber Shop Medley arranged by Hopkins.

Sunday evening, May 29, at 8:30 o'clock: Triumphal March from "Aida" by Verdi, Overture to "Euryanthe" by Weber, Largo al Factotum from "The Barber of Seville" by Rossini, Tales from the Vienna Woods by Sturauss, "The Animals' Carnival," Grand Zoological Fantasia by Saint-Saens, Irish Suite by Anderson, Selections from "South Pacific" by Rodgers, The Glowworm Turns by Lincke-Bodge and the Cheyenne War Dance by Skilton.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (e)
CHELSEA, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,432

MAY 26 1955

Beth Israel Aux'y Plans Pops Night

The Beth Israel hospital junior auxiliary will hold their 12th annual "Pops' Evening, Tuesday, May 31, at Symphony Hall, Boston. This year's program book will be dedicated to Dr. Cecil G. Sheps, executive director of the hospital.

Ticket co-chairmen, Marilyn Schwartz and Beverly Weiss announce that tickets may be purchased by contacting the Junior Auxiliary at the Beth Israel hospital or any member of the organization.

A night at "Pops" is a tradition with the B.I. Juniors and enables the group to raise funds for the Tumor and Cancer Clinic of the hospital through the sale of jewels and sponsors, and this year's jewels and sponsors chairmen are Rena Hyman and Ruth Rutman.

Attractive flower corsages will be sold that evening by the members of the Junior Auxiliary under the chairmanship of Janice Komine and Marilyn Stern.

The Beth Israel Hospital Jr. Auxiliary consists of young women from the Greater Boston area who meet once a month at the Nurses Home on Brookline ave., Boston. Working meetings are held during the weeks for the express purpose of discussing and planning of current and future activities.

"Pops' chairman, Estelle Levin, recently announced the appointment of Rene Wynn and Helen Vinocoor as her co-chairmen, and Elaine Clayman, publicity.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Advocate
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,987

MAY 26 1955

Among the Friends of the Boston City Hospital who are patrons for the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall on June 1 are Mr. and Mrs. John F. Higgins of Arlington.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (e)
CHELSEA, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,432

MAY 26 1955

A group of members of Ruth chapter, OES, will attend Eastern Star Night at the "Pops" tonight at Symphony hall, Boston.

A Fine Arts course will be held

MAY 26 1955

Eire Society Night At Pops Here June 10.

A special program of Irish music will feature the Eire Society's night at Pops on Friday evening, June 10. The Society will take over the main floor at Symphony Hall for its members and guests.

A committee, headed by Martin A. O'Malley of Quincy, has been appointed by Eire Society President Paul Tierney to arrange the details.

Negotiations are underway for at least one outstanding soloist for that evening, and possibly a guest conductor. Pops conductor Arthur Fiedler promises an interesting and varied program of classical, semi-classical and popular music, with a pronounced Irish flavor. The Pops orchestra has in its library an Eire Society suite arranged, on special commission, by Leroy Anderson. This selection is played each year on Eire Society night.

This concert is an important phase of the Eire Society's cultural activity.

Serving on the music committee are: John P. McGrail of Clinton, chairman, Catherine Madden of Hyde Park and John P. Cavanagh of Brighton.

Mrs. James P. McElwee and Mary Lincoln, both of Brookline, comprise the reservations committee. The program committee headed by Joseph Gannon of Brookline, publicity committee, Thomas F. O'Day of Mattapan, Chairman, John Devlin of West Roxbury, Mary Tierney of East Boston and Bernadine Truden of Brookline.

Serving on the general committee are: Dora Downey, Dorchester; Frances Fox, Boston; Mary Gethings, Cambridge; Margaret O'Connor, Belmont; Charles Lynch and William Stanton, Somerville; Catherine Egan, Belmont; Mrs. Wm. F. A. Graham, Brighton; Mrs. Henry Gomperts, Jamaica Plain; Marjorie Leonard, Belmont; Eugene Sheehan, Roxbury; F. Peter O'Flaherty, Arlington; Mary Featherstone, Dorchester; Mrs. Helen Bishop, Arlington; Dr. J. J. Monahan, West Roxbury, Dr. F. J. Fleming, West Roxbury.

[67]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Italian News
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 11,205
MAY 27 1955

CONDUCTOR GREETS PIANIST — Arthur Fiedler (left) conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra, greets Salvatore Sullo, who will be piano soloist at the Women's Italian Club "Night at Pops" on Wednesday evening, June 1, at 8:30 P.M. Sullo, who has performed frequently under Fiedler at Pops Concerts in Symphony Hall and on the Boston Esplanade, is a native of Boston who studied under Rossomanti in Naples. He has given concerts throughout Europe and since 1948 has played in the United States.

Sullo to play at Night at Pops

Salvatore Sullo, who will be guest pianist at the Women's Italian Club "Night at Pops" on Wednesday, June 1, has performed with leading orchestras in Europe and America, and is known in both continents as an outstanding concert artist.

A brilliant pupil of Rossomanti at Naples Conservatory, Sullo won the "Primo Scarlatti" prize at the age of 15. He later studied in Paris with Cortot.

Following successful concerts in Italy, where he also played with the leading orchestras, Sullo toured Belgium, Holland, Poland, Hungary and Germany. Since 1948, he has played in Town Hall in New York, and has performed frequently as soloist with Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

He has been acclaimed by critics as "one of the most interesting pianists on the concert platform."

Co-chairman of the Women's Italian Club "Night at Pops" are Mrs. Louis Metafora and Mrs. Emilia Ippolito.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-0068
Dorchester-Roxbury Record
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 10,350 Free
MAY 27 1955

Histadrut "Pops" Night To Feature Robert Merrill

The proceeds of the Annual Histadrut Night at "Pops", featuring the Metropolitan baritone, Robert Merrill, which will be held on Thursday evening, June 16th at Symphony Hall, will be used to further the program of Kupat Holim, in caring for the health of Israel's new immigrant population. Kupat Holim — the health system of the Histadrut, Israel's Federation of Labor, now serves more than one million of that nation's inhabitants. Since the establishment of the State, Kupat Holim has been providing free medical care for new immigrants during the first vital months of their stay in the Jewish State. The entire proceeds of the Annual Pops Concert, according to Samuel Shapiro, Concert Chairman, will be used exclusively to further this program.

Robert Merrill, who will appear as guest soloist during this traditional evening, has promised to include among his presentations, works of famous Jewish artists. The entire musical program now being arranged under the direction of Oscar Sterman, Honorary Chairman of the Program Committee and Alexander Shapiro, its Secretary-Treasurer, with the Boston Pops Orchestra, will reflect the evening's title "A Salute to Israel".

Robert Merrill has already appeared as guest soloist at an Annual Histadrut Pops Night five years ago. Since that time, he has risen in the operatic world to become not only leading baritone of the Metropolitan Opera, but also one of the most recorded, recording, television and radio artists in his field. Mr. Merrill's choice as guest artist for this concert was dictated by the demand of the many who had heard him in his performances with the Metropolitan Opera here in Boston.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Telegram (m)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 55,423

Young GOP Group Going to Concert At Boston June 5

Plans for attending the 19th annual "Republican Night at the Pops" were discussed Thursday night at a meeting of the Young People's Republican Club of Worcester at the Aurora Hotel.

The concert will be held Sunday, June 5, at Symphony Hall in Boston.

Miss Shirley A. Frye presided. President of the local organization, Miss Frye is also co-chairman of the 33-unit Massachusetts Council of Young Republican Clubs "Pops" committee.

The local organization will meet again next Friday night. It also will be host to the Massachusetts Council next Saturday night.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Transcript
MILTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,375
MAY 27 1955

Among the Friends of the Boston City Hospital who are patrons for the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall on June first are Dr. and Mrs. Daniel J. McSweeney of Milton.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
News (e)
MALDEN, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 9,958
MAY 27 1955

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Mattapan Tribune
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 8,500
APR 28 1955

Hugh de Payens Has Third Meeting

Hugh de Payens Commandery, Knights Templars, held its third meeting (second special) of the month at the Masonic Temple, Thursday, with nine candidates who recently received their Order of Malta, receiving their Temple rites.

Nine more candidates received the Order of the Temple at another special meeting Tuesday. The completion of the work on the several classes of candidates has been hastened so that those who wish may join the large class being formed to enter Aleppo Temple of the Shrine on Friday afternoon and evening, June 3.

On Sunday 25 members of Hugh de Payens and their ladies attended the Henry Price Memorial service at Townsend Methodist Church at 10:30 a.m., which was followed by a catered dinner and a parade to the cemetery where the noted Mason is buried. The Melrose group was then invited to the old homestead of Sir Knight Myron Peters of Stoneham, a veteran active member, for a social time.

Members have responded well for Templar Night at the Boston Pops, Tuesday, June 7.

The annual outdoor church service for all commanderies in

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Gazzetta del Massachusetts
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 12,747
MAY 27 1955

WOMEN'S ITALIAN CLUB "NIGHT AT POPS" JUNE 1

The Women's Italian club of Boston will sponsor a "Night at the Pops," at Symphony hall, Boston, Wednesday, June 1 when Salvatore Sullo, brilliant pianist will be the soloist.

Mrs. Anthony Cota President of the club and Mrs. Emilia Ippolito and Mrs. Louis Metafora said the ladies committee intent upon filling the hall to capacity.

Salvatore Sullo was one of the most brilliant pupils of Rossomanin whose class at the Naples Conservatorio, he won the coveted "Premier Scarlatti" at the age of . After successes in Italy he ayed with outstanding orchestras Belgium, Holland, Poland, Hungy and Germany and since 1948 has been featured at Town ll, New York. He is no stranger Boston for he has frequently eared as soloist with Arthur dler at the Symphony Pops Esplanade concerts.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Record
MILTON, Mass.
Weekly
Circ. 4,960
MAY 27 19[illegible]

Mrs. William A. White Jr., of Milton is serving on the committee for the Pops Concert, June 22 at Symphony Hall under the sponsorship of the Friends of the New England Hospital.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Enterprise & Times (e)
BROCKTON, Mass.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 40,923
MAY 28 1955

TO ATTEND POPS

The Congo Couples Club of the Union Congregational church, East Bridgewater, will attend the Pops concert in Boston this evening. The group will meet at the church at 7 o'clock.

Emmanuel College Alumnae Plan Spring Plan

Emanuel [illegible] hirl

the [illegible] alumnae are caught in [illegible]ning [illegible]er of spring activities-planning with the annual Camellia Ball for April 29 at the Boston Club and the Pops Committee working towards May 16.

The Camellia Ball Committee, of [illegible] Miss Mary E. Howe to the Alumnae [illegible]out May five important spring social [illegible]ing the which will highlight Baron Hugo orchestra from 9-1 against a large pink camellia backdrop and a bottle of champagne as door prize.

The Boston Pops Orchestra will be the highlight May 16 at Symphony Hall for the alumnae, and the committee is stressing personal contacts to insure a truly "Emmanuel Night" at Pops. The committee is headed by Helen Stout of Milton and Julia C. Sullivan of Cambridge, and includes representatives from every class, among whom are the following local residents: Mrs. Edmund Cahill and Mrs. Charles Collins.

[68]

Neighborhood News

Dr. William G. Sutcliff of 46 Dover road, Dean of Boston University's College of Business Administration, is giving the address tonight at the graduation exercises of Lowell Institute School at 8:30 in M.I.T.

Elizabeth Wiley of 59 Washington street was the recipient of a $50 prize in the recent Know New England Game sponsored by the Boston Herald.

Dr. and Mrs. Walter Wegner of 44 Woodridge road are among the Friends of the Boston City Hospital who are patrons for the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall on June 1.

Mrs. Clarence A. Bunker of 46 Chestnut street flew to Columbus, Ohio, two weeks ago to attend the christening of a grandniece, Mary Lindsay White. The baby girl was named Mary in honor of Mrs. Bunker while her middle name was given for her mother's family. Mary is the daughter of Prof. and Mrs. Sidney White of the University of Ohio, where Prof. White teaches geology, and she is the granddaughter of Mrs. Bunker's brother, the late Edward N. White, formerly of Wellesley Hills and Natick. Mrs. Bunker was accompanied by her son, Col. Laurence E. Bunker, on the trip to Ohio. It was her first flight since he flew from London to Paris in 1928. Miss Miriam Bunker and Col. Bunker spent the past weekend in Miami, Fla., in connection with the settlement of the estate of their aunt, Mrs. George R. White, who died last August. Mrs. White, the former Irma Clapp, was the sister of Albion B. Clapp of 5 Cliff road and the widow of Dr. George R. White, late principal of Rock Ridge Hall School in Wellesley Hills.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Townsman
WELLESLEY, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. [illegible]

MAY 26[illegible]

Neighborhood News

Dr. William G. Sutcliff of 46 Dover road, Dean of Boston University's College of Business Administration, is giving the address tonight at the graduation exercises of Lowell Institute School at 8:30 in M.I.T.

Elizabeth Wiley of 59 Washington street was the recipient of a $50 prize in the recent Know New England Game sponsored by the Boston Herald.

Dr. and Mrs. Walter Wegner of 44 Woodridge road are among the Friends of the Boston City Hospital who are patrons for the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall on June 1.

Mrs. Clarence A. Bunker of 46 Chestnut street flew to Columbus, Ohio, two weeks ago to attend the christening of a grandniece, Mary Lindsay White. The baby girl was named Mary in honor of Mrs. Bunker while her middle name was given for her mother's family. Mary is the daughter of Prof. and Mrs. Sidney White of the University of Ohio, where Prof. White teaches geology, and she is the granddaughter of Mrs. Bunker's brother, the late Edward N. White, formerly of Wellesley Hills and Natick. Mrs. Bunker was accompanied by her son, Col. Laurence E. Bunker, on the trip to Ohio. It was her first flight since he flew from London to Paris in 1928. Miss Miriam Bunker and Col. Bunker spent the past weekend in Miami, Fla., in connection with the settlement of the estate of their aunt, Mrs. George R. White, who died last August. Mrs. White, the former Irma Clapp, was the sister of Albion B. Clapp of 5 Cliff road and the widow of Dr. George R. White, late principal of Rock Ridge Hall School in Wellesley Hills.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Italian News
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 11,205

MAY 27 1955

CONDUCTOR GREETS PIANIST — Arthur Fiedler (left) conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra, greets Salvatore Sullo, who will be piano soloist at the Women's Italian Club "Night at Pops" on Wednesday evening, June 1, at 8:30 P.M. Sullo, who has performed frequently under Fiedler at Pops Concerts in Symphony Hall and on the Boston Esplanade, is a native of Boston who studied under Rossomanti in Naples. He has given concerts throughout Europe and since 1948 has played in the United States.

Sullo to play at Night at Pops

Salvatore Sullo, who will be guest pianist at the Women's Italian Club "Night at Pops" on Wednesday, June 1, has performed with leading orchestras in Europe and America, and is known in both continents as an outstanding concert artist.

A brilliant pupil of Rossomanti at Naples Conservatory, Sullo won the "Primo Scarlatti" prize at the age of 15. He later studied in Paris with Cortot.

Following successful concerts in Italy, where he also played with the leading orchestras, Sullo toured Belgium, Holland, Poland, Hungary and Germany. Since 1948, he has played in Town Hall in New York, and has performed prequently as soloist with Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

He has been acclaimed by critics as "one of the most interesting pianists on the concert platform."

Co-chairman of the Women's Italian Club "Night at Pops" are Mrs. Louis Metafora and Mrs. Emilia Ippolito.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
RIchmond 2-0068

Roxbury Record
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 10,350 Free

MAY 27 1955

Histadrut "Pops" Night To Feature Robert Merrill

The proceeds of the Annual Histadrut Night at "Pops", featuring the Metropolitan baritone, Robert Merrill, which will be held on Thursday evening, June 16th at Symphony Hall, will be used to further the program of Kupat Holim, in caring for the health of Israel's new immigrant population. Kupat Holim — the health system of the Histadrut, Israel's Federation of Labor, now serves more than one million of that nation's inhabitants. Since the establishment of the State, Kupat Holim has been providing free medical care for new immigrants during the first vital months of their stay in the Jewish State. The entire proceeds of the Annual Pops Concert, according to Samuel Shapiro, Concert Chairman, will be used exclusively to further this program.

Robert Merrill, who will appear as guest soloist during this traditional evening, has promised to include among his presentations, works of famous Jewish artists. The entire musical program now being arranged under the direction of Oscar Sterman, Honorary Chairman of the Program Committee and Alexander Shapiro, its Secretary-Treasurer, with the Boston Pops Orchestra, will reflect the evening's title "A Salute to Israel".

Robert Merrill has already appeared as guest soloist at an Annual Histadrut Pops Night five years ago. Since that time, he has risen in the operatic world to become not only leading baritone of the Metropolitan Opera but also one of the most noted recording, television and radio stars in his field. Mr. Merrill's choice as guest artist for this concert was dictated by the demand of the many who had heard him in his performances with the Metropolitan Opera here in Boston.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Telegram (m)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 55,423

Young GOP Group Going to Concert At Boston June 5

Plans for attending the 19th annual "Republican Night at the Pops" were discussed Thursday night at a meeting of the Young People's Republican Club of Worcester at the Aurora Hotel.

The concert will be held Sunday, June 5, at Symphony Hall in Boston.

Miss Shirley A. Frye presided. President of the local organization, Miss Frye is also co-chairman of the 33-unit Massachusetts Council of Young Republican Clubs "Pops" committee.

The local organization will meet again next Friday night. It also will be host to the Massachusetts Council next Saturday night.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Transcript
MILTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,375

MAY 27 1955

Among the Friends of the Boston City Hospital who are patrons for the Pops Concert in Symphony Hall on June first are Dr. and Mrs. Daniel J. McSweeney of Milton.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

News (e)
MALDEN, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 9,958

MAY 27 1955

Hugh de Payens Has Third Meeting

Hugh de Payens Commandery, Knights Templars, held its third meeting (second special) of the month at the Masonic Temple, Thursday, with nine candidates who recently received their Order of Malta, receiving their Temple rites.

Nine more candidates received the Order of the Temple at another special meeting Tuesday. The completion of the work on the several classes of candidates has been hastened so th those who wish may join t large class being formed to enter Aleppo Temple of the Shrine on Friday afternoon and evening, June 3.

On Sunday 25 members of Hugh de Payens and their ladies attended the Henry Price Memorial service at Townsend Methodist Church at 10:30 a.m., which was followed by a catered dinner and a parade to the cemetery where the noted Mason is buried. The Melrose group was then invited to the old homestead of Sir Knight Myron Peters of Stoneham, a veteran active member, for a social time.

Members have responded well for Templar Night at the Boston Pops, Tuesday, June 7.

The annual outdoor church service for all commanderies in

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Mattapan Tribun
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Indep
Circ. 8,500

APR 28 1955

Emmanuel G[illegible] Alumnae [illegible] Spring P'lan

Emanuel [illegible]
the dev[illegible] alumnae are ning[illegible]er of spring activ
s[illegible] with the annual Ca[illegible] for April 29 at the Bo[illegible] and the Pops Committee towards May 16.

The Camellia Ball [illegible] of [illegible] Miss Mary [illegible] to the Alumnae [illegible]out portant spring social will highlight Baron tra from 9-1 agains camellia backdrop champagne as doo

The Boston Pop[illegible] be the highlight phony Hall for the committee is contacts to insur
ue. Night" at P is headed by H and Julia C. Su and includes every class, a following loca mund Cahill lins.

Bos to r wha else stat tiona show

To retrosp Centur is bein art con directio
Vose G
trate th
New En of the present ings, ch readily a will incl rites as Singer S
Marsden

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Gazzetta del Massachusetts
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 12,747

MAY 27 1955

WOMEN'S ITALIAN CLUB "NIGHT AT POPS" JUNE 1

The Women's Italian club of Boston will sponsor a "Night at the Pops," at Symphony hall, Boston, Wednesday, June 1 when Salvatore Sullo, brilliant pianist will be the soloist.

Mrs. Anthony Cota President of the club and Mrs. Emilia Ippolito and Mrs. Louis Metafora head the ticket committee intent upon filling the hall to capacity.

Salvatore Sullo was one of the most brilliant pupils of Rossomanti in whose class at the Naples Conservatorio, he won the coveted "Premier Scarlatti" at the age of 15. After successes in Italy he played with outstanding orchestras in Belgium, Holland, Poland, Hungary and Germany and since 1948 he has been featured at Town Hall, New York. He is no stranger to Boston for he has frequently appeared as soloist with Arthur Fiedler at the Symphony Pops and Esplanade concerts.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Record
MILTON, Mass.
Weekly
Circ. 4,9[illegible]

MAY 27 [illegible]

Mrs. William A. White Jr., of Milton is serving on the committee for the Pops Concert, June 22 at Symphony Hall under the sponsorship of the Friends of the New England Hospital.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● Richmond 2-4200

Enterprise & Times (e)
BROCKTON, Mass.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 40,923

MAY 28 1955

TO ATTEND POPS

The Congo Couples Club of the Union Congregational church, East Bridgewater, will attend the Pops concert in Boston this evening. The group will meet at the church at 7 o'clock.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 102,016

MAY 29 1955

Fennell Will Conduct Boston Pops Tomorrow

Frederick Fennell will be guest conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra tomorrow (NBC Radio, 8.15-9 p. m., EDT). The orchestra's regular conductor, Arthur Fiedler, is still absent because of illness.

For the broadcast concert Fennell has chosen four numbers: "Pomp and Circumstance No. 1" by Elgar, "Oberon Overture" by Weber, "Pavane for a Dead Princess" by Ravel and "Rumanian Rhapsody No. 1" by George Enescu. Encore numbers will be announced during the broadcast from Symphony Hall in Boston.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Ind. Democrat
Circ. 226,942

MAY 29 1955

Helping with committee duties for the first annual Pops Night of the American Association of Medical Social Workers tomorrow are (left to right) Miss Margaret Kelly, Mrs. Lucie Benedikt, Miss Mary Gray and Miss Margaret Zimmer.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Ind. Democrat
Circ. 226,942

MAY 29 1955

Helping with plans for Wednesday's Pops Night under the auspices of Friends of the Boston City Hospital are (left to right) Mrs. H. Kelvin Magill, Mrs. John F. Higgins, and Mrs. William E. Holdich.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

MAY 29 1955

PLANNING BENEFIT POPS. The Friends of the City Hospital have chosen Wednesday, June as their night at the Pops in Symphony Hall. Mrs. Kelvin Magill of Lexington (left) pours coffee for Mrs. John F. Higgins of Arlington, chairman of the committe Holdich of Winchester at a recent committee meeting.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

MAY 29 1955

ARTHUR FIEDLER, who return to conduct the Pop Symphony Hall on Sun evening, June 5.

PORTLAND, ORE.
OREGON JOURNAL
Circ. D. 186,902 - S. 207,459

MAY 29 1955

Boston Pops, Fiedler Due

One of the headliners on the Ellison-White bureau's 1955-56 series is the concert of Arthur Fiedler with the "Boston Pops Tour Orchestra" of 70 musicians.

Arthur Fiedler, popular and dynamic leader of the organization, has made the name "Pops" a national synonym for enjoyable, classical music. He has conducted several major symphony orchestras and has made numerous radio and television appearances.

RUTH SLENCZYNSKA, piano prodigy of the 1930s, will appear as soloist with the orchestra. She actually made her professional debut at the age of 4 and has studied with the world's great masters.

The complete [illegible] Marian Anderson, contralto; Jennie Tourel, soprano; Jussi Bjoerling, tenor; Arthur Fiedler with the Boston Pops tour orchestra; Virtuosi of Japan, the Azuma Kabuki dancers and musicians; and Artur Rubinstein, pianist who may be added as an optional attraction.

Reservations for the season may be made at the Ellison-White bureau.

PORTLAND, ORE.
OREGON JOURNAL
Circ. D. 186,902 - S. 207,459

MAY 29 1955

RUTH SLENCZYNSKA, pianist, touring with the Boston Pops tour orchestra, here next season.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

MAY 29 1955

Pops Programs

Harry Ellis Dickson will continue to conduct the Pops concerts at Symphony Hall this week until next Sunday, June 5, when Arthur Fiedler, who has missed the opening of the season, will return to the conductor's stand for the annual Pension Fund concert.

Piano soloists for the week are Beth Flanagan and Arthur MacKenzie tonight, Leo Litwin on Monday, Bertica Shulman on Tuesday, Salvatore Sullo on Wednesday, and Mineko Sasahara on Sunday. The concert on Friday night, June 3, has been taken over entirely by Boston University.

The programs:

TONIGHT

Triumphal March from "Aida" Verdi
Overture to "Euryanthe" Weber
Largo al Factotum from "The Barber of Seville" Rossini
Trumpet Solo: Armando Ghitalla
Tales from the Vienna Woods, Waltzes Strauss
"The Animals' Carnival." Grand Zoological Fantasia Saint-Saens
Soloists:
Beth Flanagan and Arthur MacKenzie
Irish Suite Anderson
Selection from "South Pacific" Rodgers
The Gloworm Turns Lincke-Bodge
Cheyenne Indian War Dance Skilton

MONDAY NIGHT

The Stars and Stripes Forever Sousa
Overture to "William Tell" Rossini
Largo from "Xerxes" Handel
Solo Violin: Alfred Krips
Bolero Ravel
Finlandia, Tone Poem Sibelius
Suite from "Les Sylphides" Chopin
Rhapsody in Blue Gershwin
Soloist: Leo Litwin
Selection from "Oklahoma!" Rodgers
TViana Hayman
American Patrol Meacham

TUESDAY NIGHT

Prelude to "Carmen" Bizet
Overture to "Raymond" Thomas
Rachem, "Mercy" Mana-Zucca
Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2 Liszt
Suite from "Les Sylphides" Chopin
Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 2 in G minor, Op. 22 Saint-Saens
Soloist: Bertica Shulman
Selection from "Call Me Madam" Berlin
Chicken Reel Anderson
Washington Post, March Sousa

WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Wedding March, from "A Midsummer Night's Dream" Mendelssohn
Overture to "La Gazza Ladra" Rossini
Ave Maria Schubert-Wilhelm
Solo Violin: Alfred Krips
Ballet Music from "Aida" Verdi
Concerto for Piano and Orchestra, No. 1 in B minor, Op. 23 (First Movement) Tchaikovsky
Soloist: Salvatore Sullo
Intermezzo Sinfonico from "Cavalleria Rusticana" Mascagni
Bolero Ravel
Richard Rodgers Waltzes Anderson
Fiddle-Faddle Anderson
Pomp and Circumstance Elgar

THURSDAY NIGHT

Overture to "Russian and Ludmilla" Glinka
Suite from "The Water Music" Handel-Harty
Prelude to "The Deluge" Saint-Saens
Solo Violin: Alfred Krips
Marche Slave Tchaikovsky
Polovetzian Dances from "Prince Igor" Borodin
Emperor Waltzes Strauss
Suite from "Gaite Parisienne" Offenbach
Selection from "Call Me Madam" Berlin
The Glowworm Turns Lincke-Bodge
Sailor's Dance Gliere

SATURDAY NIGHT

Wedding March from "Le Coq d'Or" Rimsky-Korsakoff
Overture to "Die Fledermaus" Strauss
Largo al Factorum from "The Barber of Seville" Rossini
Trumpet Solo: Armando Ghitalla
Romanian Rhapsody No. 1 Enesco (1881-1955)
Suite from "Gaite Parisienne" Offenbach
Andante Cantabile from String Quartet, Op. 11 Tchaikovsky
Bolero Ravel
Selection from "Guys and Dolls" Loesser
Butler's Holiday Anderson
The Thunderer, March Sousa

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

MAY 29 1955

ARTHUR FIEDLER, who will return to conduct the Pops at Symphony Hall on Sunday evening, June 5.

[69]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 102,016

MAY 29 1955

Fennell Will Conduct Boston Pops Tomorrow

Frederick Fennell will be guest conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra tomorrow (NBC Radio, 8.15-9 p. m., EDT). The orchestra's regular conductor, Arthur Fiedler, is still absent because of illness.

For the broadcast concert Fennell has chosen four numbers: "Pomp and Circumstance No. 1" by Elgar, "Oberon Overture" by Weber, "Pavane for a Dead Princess" by Ravel and "Rumanian Rhapsody No. 1" by George Enesco. Encore numbers will be announced during the broadcast from Symphony Hall in Boston.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Ind. Democrat
Circ. 226,942

MAY 29 1955

Helping with committee duties for the first annual Pops Night of the American Association of Medical Social Workers tomorrow are (left to right) Miss Margaret Kelly, Miss Lucie Benedikt, Miss Mary Gray and Miss Margaret Zimmer.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Ind. Democrat
Circ. 226,942

MAY 29 1955

Helping with plans for Wednesday's Pops Night under the auspices of Friends of the Boston City Hospital are (left to right) Mrs. H. Kelvin Magill, Mrs. John F. Higgins, and Mrs. William E. Holdich.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

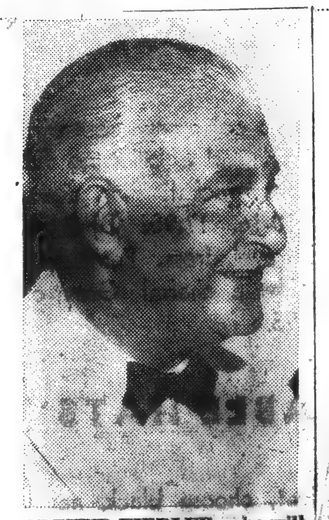
MAY 29 1955

PLANNING BENEFIT POPS. The Friends of the City Hospital have chosen Wednesday, June 1, as their night at the Pops in Symphony Hall. Mrs. Kelvin Magill of Lexington (left) pours coffee for Mrs. John F. Higgins of Arlington, chairman of the committee, and Mrs. William E. Holdich of Winchester at a recent committee meeting.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

MAY 29 1955



ARTHUR FIEDLER, who will return to conduct the Pops at Symphony Hall on Sunday evening, June 5.

PORTLAND, ORE.
OREGON JOURNAL
Circ. D. 186,902 - S. 207,459

MAY 29 1955

RUTH SLENCZYNSKA, pianist, touring with the Boston Pops tour orchestra, here next season.

AND, ORE.
N JOURNAL
86,902 - S. 207,459

MAY 29 1955

ston Pops, iedler Due

One of the headliners on the Ellison-White bureau's 1955-56 series is the concert of Arthur Fiedler with the "Boston Pops Tour Orchestra" of 70 musicians.

Arthur Fiedler, popular and dynamic leader of the organization, has made the name "Pops" a national synonym for enjoyable, classical music. He has conducted several major symphony orchestras and has made numerous radio and television appearances.

RUTH SLENCZYNSKA, piano prodigy of the 1930s, will appear as soloist with the orchestra. She actually made her professional debut at the age of 4 and has studied with the world's great masters.

The complete [illegible] Marian Anderson, [illegible]; Jennie Tourel, soprano; Jussi Bjoerling, tenor; Arthur Fiedler with the Boston Pops tour orchestra; Virtuosi of Rome; the Azuma Kabuki dancers and musicians; and Artur Rubinstein, pianist who may be added as an optional attraction.

Reservations for the season may be made at the Ellison-White bureau.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

MAY 29 1955

...navy, ...nk; in ...white, ...DLER, who will ...uct the Pops at ...MMED II on Sunday ...black.

Pops Programs

Harry Ellis Dickson will continue to conduct the Pops concerts at Symphony Hall this week until next Sunday, June 5, when Arthur Fiedler, who has missed the opening of the season, will return to the conductor's stand for the annual Pension Fund concert.

Piano soloists for the week are Beth Flanagan and Arthur MacKenzie tonight, Leo Litwin on Monday, Bertica Shulman on Tuesday, Salvatore Sullo on Wednesday, and Mineko Sasahara on Sunday. The concert on Friday night, June 3, has been taken over entirely by Boston University.

The programs:

TONIGHT

Triumphal March from "Aida" Verdi
Overture to "Euryanthe" Weber
Largo al Factotum from "The Barber of Seville" Rossini
Trumpet Solo: Armando Ghitalla
Tales from the Vienna Woods, Waltzes Strauss
"The Animals' Carnival." Grand Zoological Fantasia Saint-Saens
Soloists: Beth Flanagan and Arthur MacKenzie
Irish Suite Anderson
Selection from "South Pacific" Rodgers
The Gloworm Turns Lincke-Bodge
Cheyenne Indian War Dance Skilton

MONDAY NIGHT

The Stars and Stripes Forever Sousa
Overture to "William Tell" Rossini
Largo from "Xerxes" Handel
Solo Violin: Alfred Krips
Bolero Ravel
Finlandia, Tone Poem Sibelius
Suite from "Les Sylphides" Chopin
Rhapsody in Blue Gershwin
Soloist: Leo Litwin
Selection from "Oklahoma!" Rodgers
TViana Hayman
American Patrol Meacham

TUESDAY NIGHT

Prelude to "Carmen" Bizet
Overture to "Raymond" Thomas
Rachem (Mercy) Mana-Zucca
Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2 Liszt
Suite from "Les Sylphides" Chopin
Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 2 in G minor, Op. 22 Saint-Saens
Soloist: Bertica Shulman
Selection from "Call Me Madam" Berlin
Chicken Reel Anderson
Washington Post March Sousa

WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Wedding March, from "A Midsummer Night's Dream" Mendelssohn
Overture to "La Gazza Ladra" Rossini
Ave Maria Schubert-Wilhelm
Solo Violin: Alfred Krips
Ballet Music from "Aida" Verdi
Concerto for Piano and Orchestra, No. 1 in B minor, Op. 23 (First Movement) Tchaikovsky
Soloist: Salvatore Sullo
Intermezzo Sinfonico from "Cavalleria Rusticana" Mascagni
Bolero Ravel
Richard Rodgers Waltzes Anderson
Fiddle-Faddle Anderson
Pomp and Circumstance Elgar

THURSDAY NIGHT

Overture to "Russian and Ludmilla" Glinka
Suite from "The Water Music" Handel-Harty
Prelude to "The Deluge" Saint-Saens
Solo Violin: Alfred Krips
Marche Slave Tchaikovsky
Polovetzian Dances from "Prince Igor" Borodin
Emperor Waltzes Strauss
Suite from "Gaite Parisienne" Offenbach
Selection from "Call Me Madam" Berlin
The Glowworm Turns Lincke-Bodge
Sailor's Dance Gillere

SATURDAY NIGHT

Wedding March from "Le Coq d'Or" Rimsky-Korsakoff
Overture to "Die Fledermaus" Strauss
Largo al Factorum from "The Barber of Seville" Rossini
Trumpet Solo: Armando Ghitalla
Romanian Rhapsody No. 1 Enesco (1881-1955)
Suite from "Gaite Parisienne" Offenbach
Andante Cantabile from String Quartet, Op. 11 Tchaikovsky
Bolero Ravel
Selection from "Guys and Dolls" Loesser
Bugler's Holiday Anderson
The Thunderer, March Sousa

[69]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Herald
HARTFORD, Conn.
Republican
Circ. 248,071
MAY 29 1955

...who will ...the Pops at ...on Sunday

Noted Conductor To Lead Buffalo Orchestra Here

Few conductors in the world are more noted for the recorded works produced under their batons than Josef Krips, who is to conduct the Buffalo Philharmonic Orchestra in the Bushnell Memorial next season. Many of the most prized recordings on the London label were made by Krips conducting the London Symphony Orchestra, the Concertgebouw Orchestra of Amsterdam and the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra, prior to his coming to this country two years ago.

Krips is now making plans to conduct the Vienna State Opera during June in an entire production of "Don Giovanni" for recording. His summer schedule also calls for conducting duties at the Holland Festival in July and then a tour of Australia where he will conduct an orchestra until late October.

A native of Vienna, Krips began his career there as a choirboy in St. Stephan's Cathedral, where his father was a tenor in the choir. Before he was seven he could accompany his father on the piano, and at 15 he played first violin as substitute in a Vienna orchestra. He conducted the Vienna State Opera for many years, and after World War II toured all of Europe conducting the world - famed Vienna Philharmonic. In Holland he was director of the Royal Opera and moved to Britain to become conductor-in-chief of the London Symphony, a post which he left to accept the conductorship of the Buffalo Philharmonic.

In addition to this orchestra, the 1955-56 Bushnell Symphony Series will bring to Hartford the New York Philharmonic - Symphony, the Philadelphia, the Cleveland the Boston Symphony orchestras. Series seats are now available at the Bushnell Memorial, which has a free illustrated booklet for distribution.

FORT WORTH, TEX.
STAR TELEGRAM
Circ. D. 114,857 - S. 216,735
MAY 29 1955

NEWS ON THE TURNTABLE

"THE MASKED BALL," complete Verdi opera, 1951 recording by Arturo Toscanini, NBC Symphony Orchestra, Robert Shaw Chorale and a cast including Eleanor Steber, Robert Merrill, Herva Nelli, Catrimne Turner, Virginia Haskins, George Cehanovsky, Nicola Moscona, Norman Scott and John Carmen Rossi. Complete libretto enclosed. Album of three RCA Victor records.

The opera, produced in 1859, has the characteristics of the middle period Verdi operas, rich melody, strongly individual characters and tragic plot. This performance is tightly organized, and is thrillingly sung. (In the cast is Norman Scott, who sang with the Fort Worth Opera in April.)

SIBELIUS: "Symphony No. 2 in D Major, Op. 43." Halle Orchestra, Sir John Barbirolli, conductor. RCA Victor.
SIBELIUS: "Symphony No. 2 in D Major, Op. 43." Leopold Stokowski conducting members of NBC Symphony Orchestra. RCA Victor.

Though issued almost simultaneously by the same catalog, the Barbirolli recording was made in England.

If a comparison is expected, this column prefers the Halle playing, which is superb in sound, in clarity and authenticity of instrumental individualities and a sensitive, though integrated interpretation.

BRUCKNER: "Symphony in D Minor." NBC Symphony Orchestra, Guido Cantelli conducting. RCA Victor.

Several companies have made recent recording of this long standard work. This one, with the advantage of contemporary hi-fi sound, and of the virtuosic performance of this orchestra and a gifted conductor, is exceptionally satisfying, especially in the exultant last movement.

SCHUMAN: "Carnaval, Op. 9" and CHOPIN: "Sonata in B-flat Minor, Op. 35." Alfred Corto, pianist. RCA Victor.

An English recording by the eminent French pianist, long one of the great figures of the concert stage. The playing is intellectually conservative and technically outstanding.

BEETHOVEN: "Concerto No. 2 in B-flat Major, Op. 19" and MOZART: "Concerto No. 15 in B-flat Major" (K. 450). Solomon, pianist, with Philharmonia Orchestra, Andre Cluytens, and Otto Ackermann, conductors. RCA Victor.

The finely equipped English pianist, who played recently in Fort Worth with the Dallas Symphony, gives lucid, bright and well balanced readings of concertos rather closely related—Mozart as he began to forego the merely display piece, and Beethoven as he moved forward from inherited traditions.

LIEBERMANN: "Concerto for Jazz Band and Symphony Orchestra" and STRAUSS: "Don Juan." Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Sauter-Finegan Orchestra and Fritz Reiner, conductor. RCA Victor.

Strange company is kept in the Liebermann work, a noisy, largely atonal work in which jazz has adopted the 12-tone row, to utter confusion.

A delightfully informal collection of familiar orchestral pieces is aptly called "The Family All Together," made by the Boston Pops Orchestra, Arthur Fiedler, conductor, for the RCA Victor label. The contents are "Porgy and Bess Synthesis" (Gershwin-Bennett), "Pop Goes the Weasel," "Clair de lune" (Debussy), "Prelude in C-sharp Minor" (Rachmaninoff), "In the Clock Store" (Orth), "Bolero" (Ravel), "The Glow Worm Turns" (after Lincke), "A Hunt in the Black Forest" (Voelcker), "Intermezzo" (from the film) and "warsaw Concerto" (Adinsell).—E. C. W.

ST. LOUIS, MO.
GLOBE-DEMOCRAT
Circ. D. 296,991 - S. 352,103
MAY 29 1955

Concert Notes

By FRANCIS A. KLEIN

MERCURY continues its invaluable service to American music by recording a great deal of it on two new discs. Howard Hanson, himself a towering composer, conducts the Eastman-Rochester Orchestra in superb traversals of four works by Charles Griffes: "The Pleasure Dome of Kubla Khan," "The White Peacock," "Clouds" and "Bacchanale"; two by Charles Loeffler: "Memories of My Childhood" and "Poem for Orchestra"; Quincy Porter's "Poem and Dance"; Richard Donovan's "New England Chronicle," and Wells Hively's "Three Hymns."

This is the recorded premiere for most of these works, which are as varied in content as the talents and personalities of the composers differ from one another. Griffes, of the "old school" (he died in 1920), shows, perhaps, more "influences" than do the others, but all, down to Hively, the newest "voice," exhibit an originality that delights in working with native ingredients. This is a splendid opportunity, that comes our way all too seldom in the concert hall, to become acquainted with our own music. The reproduction is splendid.

Leave it to Emory Cook; he always comes up with something well off the beaten track musically. The latest in his "Sounds of Our Times" records is the Japanese koto, and a virtuoso to play it. The koto, it should be understood, is a sort of outsize mandolin or zither; this particular one is 5 feet long, has 13 silken strings and is tuned by movable ivory bridges beneath each string. The range is somewhat limited but the koto is capable of astonishing effects by plucking and sliding of the pickwormed fingers. A master such as Sizuchi Yuize bewilders with the wizardry in tonal colors and shadings as he plays imperial court music from the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, based on tales of the Genji, and then turns as easily to modern music of his own composition, a dance suite and three etudes. The reproduction is extraordinarily clean, clear and bright.

The Hollywood String Quartet, which has some roots in St. Louis, plays with peerless perfection for Capitol Records works by Ravel, Dubussy, Schoenberg, Dohnanyi and Dvorak. With Ravel's "Introduction and Allegro," the quartet has the assistance of Ann Mason Stockton, harp; Arthur Gleghorn, flute, and Mitchell Lurie, clarinet. Miss Stockton again joins the strings, with Felix Slatkin, leader of the quartet, conducting, in Dubussy's "Danses Sacree et Profane." The Schoenberg is the familiar "Transfigured Night," but in the original version, and with Alvin Dunkin, viola, and Kurt Reher, cello, reinforcing the strings and giving the ensemble great depth and richness. The Dohnanyi is the Quartet No. 3 in A minor, and the Dvorak is the "American" quartet, 6 in F Major. These are cha ber music gems to delight devotee, and the Hollywood d full justice to them.

A notable record-debut made on an M-G-M disc by Maurice Levine String S fonietta playing an unusu work, Hindemith's "Educatio Music for Instrumental Ense bles." Hindemith, serious co poser mostly, is practical, t and provides here a fascinati series of progressively more di ficult "studies" for strin players. In the process, despi the deceiving simplicity of for and structure, he also manag to make real music of them, an the "Five Pieces in First Pos tion for String Orchestra" coul be a movement from a violi concerto.

Alexander Brailowsky, th frail giant of the keyboard, an Charles Munch, master of th baton, team with the Boston Symphony Orchestra to produce for RCA Victor a memorable performance of Chopin's Second Concerto and Saint-Saen's Fourth. Chopin was not entirely at home in the big works; this one was written entirely for a purpose and only in flashes reveals the real Chopin. Nevertheless, Brailowsky and Munch make the most of it. They are at their peak, perhaps, in the Saint-Saens, with its unorthodox two movements and its surface brilliance.

The famed Concertgebow Orchestra of Amsterdam, with Carlo Zecchi conducting, lives up to its world-wide reputation with a glowing performance, for Epic Records, of Brahms' Serenade in A Major. The sonorities are rich and full, the detail clearly etched, the blend and balance rightly adjusted, the cohesion complete. Reproduction is first-rate...

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Ind. Democrat
Circ. 226,942
MAY 29 1955

A joint Pops Night sponsored by alumnae of New Rochelle, Mount St. Vincent and Mount St. Mary Colleges on June 17 is discussed by committee members (left to right) Miss Nancy Carolan, Mrs. Vincent L. Pitts and Mrs. John W. Lawler.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,241
MAY 29 1955

Programs for Fifth Week of Pops

Harry Ellis Dickson will continue to conduct the Pops concerts at Symphony Hall this week until next Sunday, June 5, when Arthur Fiedler, who has missed the opening of the season, will return to the conductor's stand for part of the annual pension fund concert.

ARTHUR FIEDLER will return to The Pops to conduct part of the pension fund concert at Symphony Hall Sunday Evening, June 5.

Piano soloists for the week are Beth Flanagan and Arthur MacKenzie tonight, Leo Litwin on Monday, Bertica Shulman on Tuesday, Salvatore Sullo on Wednesday, and Mineko Sasahara on Sunday. The concert Friday night, June 3, has been taken over entirely by Boston University.

The programs of the week, beginning at 8:30 p.m., follow:

Tonight, Triumphal March from "Aida," Verdi; Overture to "Euryanthe," Weber; Largo al Factotum from "The Barber of Seville" (trumpet solo, Armando Ghitalla), Rossini; Tales from the Vienna Woods, Waltzes, Strauss; "The Animals' Carnival" Grand Zoological Fantasia (soloists: Beth Flanagan and Arthur MacKenzie), Saint-Saens; Irish Suite, Anderson; Selection from "South Pacific," Rodgers; The Glow-worm Turns, Lincke-Bodge; Cheyenne Indian War Dance, Skilton.

Monday, The Stars and Stripes Forever, Sousa; Overture to "William Tell," Rossini; Largo from "Xerxes" (solo violin, Alfred Krips), Handel; Bolero, Ravel; Finlandia, Tone Poem, Sibelius; Suite from "Les Sylphides," Chopin; Rhapsody in Blue (soloist, Leo Litwin), Gershwin; Selection from "Oklahoma!", Rodgers; Viana, Hayman; American Patrol, Meacham.

Tuesday, Prelude to "Carmen," Bizet; Overture to "Raymond," Thomas; Rachem Mercy, Mana-Zucca; Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2, Liszt; Suite from "Les Sylphides," Chopin; Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 2 in G minor, Op. 22, Saint-Saens, soloist: Bertica Shulman; Selection from "Call Me Madam," Berlin; Chicken Reel, Anderson; Washington Post, March, Sousa.

Wednesday, Wedding March, from "A Midsummer Night's Dream," Mendelssohn; Overture to "La Gazza Ladra," Rossini; Ave Maria, Schubert; Wilhelmj, solo violin; Alfred K. Ballet Music from "Aida," Ve Concerto for Piano and Orchestra I 1 in B minor, Op. 23 (First Movement), Tchaikovsky, soloist: Salvatore Sullo; Intermezzo Sinfonico from "Cavalleria Rusticana," Mascagni; Bolero, Ravel; Richard Rodgers Waltzes, Anderson; Fiddle-Faddle, Anderson; Pomp and Circumstance, Elgar.

Thursday, Overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla," Glinka; Suite from "The Water Music," Handel-Harty; Prelude to "The Deluge," Saint-Saens, solo violin: Alfred Krips; Marche Slave, Tchaikovsky; Polovetzian Dances from "Prince Igor," Borodin; Emperor Waltzes, Strauss; Suite from "Gaite Parisienne," Offenbach; Selection from "Call Me Madam," Berlin; The Glow-worm Turns, Lincke-Bodge; Sailor's Dance, Gliere.

Saturday, Wedding March from "Le Coq d'Or," Rimsky-Korsakoff; Overture to "Die Fledermaus," Strauss; Largo al Factotum from "The Barber of Seville," Rossini, trumpet solo: Armando Ghitalla; Rumanian Rhapsody No. 1, Enesco; Suite from "Gaite Parisienne," Offenbach; Andante Cantabile from String Quartet, Op. 11, Tchaikovsky; Bolero, Ravel; Selection from "Sweet and Dells," Loesser; Fugue a, Holiday, Anderson; The Thunderer, March, Sousa.

Sunday, June 5, Arthur Fiedler conducting: The Princess Elizabeth March, Coates; Suite from "Les Sylphides," Chopin; Overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla," Glinka; Marche Slave, Tchaikovsky; Harry Ellis Dickson conducting; Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 2 in C minor, Op. 18, Rachmaninoff, soloist: Mineko Sasahara; Massachusetts First Lady's Waltz, Hon. Vincent Mottola; Potpourama, Arranged by Mason; Let'er Go, Lover, Carson-Hayman; Davy Crockett, Bruns-Hayman.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Herald
HARTFORD, Conn.
Republican
Circ. [illegible]

Noted Conductor To Lead Buffalo Orchestra Here

For [illegible] are [illegible] for the recorded works produced under their batons than Josef Krips, who is to conduct the Buffalo Philharmonic Orchestra in the Bushnell Memorial next season. Many of the most prized recordings on the London label were made by Krips conducting the London Symphony Orchestra, the Concertgebouw Orchestra of Amsterdam and the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra, prior to his coming to this country two years ago.

Krips is now making plans to conduct the Vienna State Opera during June in an entire production of "Don Giovanni" for recording. His summer schedule also calls for conducting duties at the Holland Festival in July and then a tour of Australia where he will conduct an orchestra until late October.

A native of Vienna, Krips began his career there as a choirboy in St. Stephan's Cathedral, where his father was a tenor in the choir. Before he was seven he could accompany his father on the piano, and at 15 he played first violin as substitute in a Vienna orchestra. He conducted the Vienna State Opera for many years, and after World War II toured all of Europe conducting the world - famed Vienna Philharmonic. In Holland he was director of the Royal Opera and moped to Britain to become conductor-in-chief of the London Symphony, a post which he left to accept the conductorship of the Buffalo Philharmonic.

In addition to this orchestra, the 1955-56 Bushnell Symphony Series will bring to Hartford the New York Philharmonic - Symphony, the Philadelphia, the Cleveland the Boston Symphony orchestras. Series seats are now available at the Bushnell Memorial, which has a free illustrated booklet for distribution.

FORT WORTH, TEX.
STAR TELEGRAM
Circ. D. 114,857 - S. 216,735
MAY 29 1955

NEWS ON THE TURNTABLE

"THE MASKED BALL," complete Verdi opera, hi-fi recording by Arturo Toscanini, NBC Symphony Orchestra, Robert Shaw Chorale and a cast including Jan Pearce, Robert Merrill, Herva Nelli, Claramae Turner, Virginia Haskins, George Cehanovsky, Nicola Moscona, Norman Scott and John Carmen Rossi. Complete libretto enclosed. Album of three RCA Victor records.

The opera, produced in 1859, has the characteristics of the middle period Verdi operas, rich melody, strongly individual characters and tragic plot. This performance is tightly organized, and is thrillingly sung. (In the cast is Norman Scott, who sang with the Fort Worth Opera in April.)

SIBELIUS: "Symphony No. 2 in D Major, Op. 43." Halle Orchestra, Sir John Barbirolli, conductor. RCA Victor.
SIBELIUS: "Symphony No. 2 in D Major, Op. 43." Leopold Stokowski conducting members of NBC Symphony Orchestra. RCA Victor.

Though issued almost simultaneously by the same catalog, the Barbirolli recording was made in England.

If a comparison is expected, this column prefers the Halle playing, which is superb in sound, in clarity and authenticity of instrumental individualities and a sensitive, though integrated interpretation.

FRANCK: "Symphony in D Minor." NBC Symphony Orchestra, Guido Cantelli conducting. RCA Victor.

Several companies have made recent recording of this long standard work. This one, with the advantage of contemporary hi-fi sound, and of the virtuosic performance of this orchestra and a gifted conductor, is exceptionally satisfying, especially in the exultant last movement.

SCHUMAN: "Carnaval, Op. 9" and CHOPIN: "Sonata in B-flat Minor, Op. 35." Alfred Corto, pianist. RCA Victor.

An English recording by the eminent French pianist, long one of the great figures of the concert stage. The playing is intellectually conservative and technically outstanding.

BEETHOVEN: "Concerto No. 2 in B-flat Major, Op. 19" and MOZART: "Concerto No. 15 in B-flat Major" (K. 450). Solomon, pianist, with Philharmonia Orchestra, Andre Cluytens and Otto Ackermann, conductors. RCA Victor.

The finely equipped English pianist, who played recently in Fort Worth with the Dallas Symphony, gives lucid, bright and well balanced readings of concertos rather closely related—Mozart as he began to forego the merely display piece, and Beethoven as he moved forward from inherited traditions.

LIEBERMANN: "Concerto for Jazz Band and Symphony Orchestra" and STRAUSS: "Don Juan." Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Sauter-Finegan Orchestra and Fritz Reiner, conductor. RCA Victor.

Strange company is kept in the Liebermann work, a noisy, largely atonal work in which jazz has adopted the 12-tone row, to utter confusion.

A delightfully informal collection of familiar orchestral pieces is aptly called "The Family All Together," made by the Boston Pops Orchestra, Arthur Fiedler, conductor, for the RCA Victor label. The contents are "Porgy and Bess Synthesis" (Gershwin-Bennett), "Pop Goes the Weasel," "Clair de lune" (Debussy), "Prelude in C-sharp Minor" (Rachmaninoff), "In the Clock Store" (Orth), "Bolero" (Ravel), "The Glow Worm Turns" (after Lincke), "A Hunt in the Black Forest" (Voelcker), "Intermezzo" (from the film) and "warsaw Concerto" (Adinsell).—E. C. W.

ST. LOUIS, MO.
GLOBE-DEMOCRAT
Circ. D. 296,991 - S. 352,103
MAY 29 1955

Concert Notes

By FRANCIS A. KLEIN

MERCURY continues its invaluable service to American music by recording a great deal of it on two new discs. Howard Hanson, himself a towering composer, conducts the Eastman-Rochester Orchestra in superb traversals of four works by Charles Griffes: "The Pleasure Dome of Kubla Khan," "The White Peacock," "Clouds" and "Bacchanale"; two by Charles Loeffler: "Memories of My Childhood" and "Poem for Orchestra"; Quincy Porter's "Poem and Dance"; Richard Donovan's "New England Chronicle," and Wells Hively's "Three Hymns."

This is the recorded premiere for most of these works, which are as varied in content as the talents and personalities of the composers differ from one another. Griffes, of the "old school" (he died in 1920), shows, perhaps, more "influences" than do the others, but all, down to Hively, the newest "voice," exhibit an originality that delights in working with native ingredients. This is a splendid opportunity, that comes our way all too seldom in the concert hall, to become acquainted with our own music. The reproduction is splendid.

Leave it to Emory Cook; he always comes up with something well off the beaten track musically. The latest in his "Sounds of Our Times" records is the Japanese koto, and a virtuoso to play it. The koto, it should be understood, is a sort of outsize mandolin or zither; this particular one is 5 feet long, has 13 silken strings and is tuned by movable ivory bridges beneath each string. The range is somewhat limited but the koto is capable of astonishing effects by plucking and sliding of the playwrapped fingers. A master such as Shinichi Yuize bewilders with his wizardy in tonal colors and shadings as he plays imperial court music from the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, based on tales of the Genji, and then turns as easily to modern music of his own composition, a dance suite and three etudes. The reproduction is extraordinarily clean, clear and bright.

The Hollywood String Quartet, which has some roots in St. Louis, plays with peerless perfection for Capitol Records works by Ravel, Dubussy, Schoenberg, Dohnanyi and Dvorak. With Ravel's "Introduction and Allegro," the quartet has the assistance of Ann Mason Stockton, harp; Arthur Gleghorn, flute, and Mitchell Lurie, clarinet. Miss Stockton again joins the strings, with Felix Slatkin, leader of the quartet, conducting, in Dubussy's "Danses Sacree et Profane." The Schoenberg is the familiar "Transfigured Night," but in the original version, and with Alvin Dunkin, viola, and Kurt Reher, cello, reinforcing the strings and giving the ensemble great depth and richness. The Dohnanyi is the Quartet No. 3 in A minor, and the Dvorak is the "American" quartet, No. 6 in F Major. These are chamber music gems to delight any devotee, and the Hollywood does full justice to them.

A notable record-debut is made on an M-G-M disc by the Maurice Levine String Sinfonietta playing an unusual work, Hindemith's "Educational Music for Instrumental Ensembles." Hindemith, serious composer mostly, is practical, too, and provides here a fascinating series of progressively more difficult "studies" for string players. In the process, despite the deceiving simplicity of form and structure, he also manages to make real music of them, and the "Five Pieces in First Position for String Orchestra" could be a movement from a violin concerto.

Alexander Brailowsky, the frail giant of the keyboard, and Charles Munch, master of the baton, team with the Boston Symphony Orchestra to produce for RCA Victor a memorable performance of Chopin's Second Concerto and Saint-Saen's Fourth. Chopin was not entirely at home in the big works; this one was written entirely for a purpose and only in flashes reveals the real Chopin. Nevertheless, Brailowsky and Munch make the most of it. They are at their peak, perhaps, in the Saint-Saens, with its unorthodox two movements and its surface brilliance.

The famed Concertgebow Orchestra of Amsterdam, with Carlo Zecchi conducting, lives up to its world-wide reputation with a glowing performance, for Epic Records, of Brahms' Serenade in A Major. The sonorities are rich and full, the detail clearly etched, the blend and balance rightly adjusted, the cohesion complete. Reproduction is first-rate.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Ind. Democrat
Circ. 226,942
MAY 29 1955

A joint Pops Night sponsored by alumnae of New Rochelle, Mount St. Vincent and Mount St. Mary Colleges on June 17 is discussed by committee members (left to right) Miss Nancy Carolan, Mrs. Vincent L. Pitts and Mrs. John W. Lawler.

gland Newsclip Agency, Inc.
, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,241
MAY 29 1955

rograms for Fifth Week of Pops

Harry Ellis Dickson will conue to conduct the Pops conrts at Symphony Hall this week til next Sunday, June 5, when thur Fiedler, who has missed e opening of the season, will return to the conductor's stand for part of the annual pension fund concert.

ARTHUR FIEDLER will return to The Pops to conduct part of the pension fund concert at Symphony Hall Sunday Evening, June 5.

Piano soloists for the week are Beth Flanagan and Arthur MacKenzie tonight, Leo Litwin on Monday, Bertica Shulman on Tuesday, Salvatore Sullo on Wednesday, and Mineko Sasahara on Sunday. The concert Friday night, June 3, has been taken over entirely by Boston University.

The programs of the week, beginning at 8:30 p.m., follow:

Tonight, Triumphal March from "Aida," Verdi; Overture to "Euryanthe," Weber; Largo al Factotum from "The Barber of Seville" (trumpet solo, Armando Ghitalla), Rossini; Tales from the Vienna Woods, Waltzes, Strauss; "The Animals' Carnival," Grand Zoological Fantasia (soloists: Beth Flanagan and Arthur MacKenzie), Saint-Saens; Irish Suite, Anderson; Selection from "South Pacific," Rodgers; The Glow-worm Turns, Lincke-Bodge; Cheyenne Indian War Dance, Skilton.

Monday, The Stars and Stripes Forever, Sousa; Overture to "William Tell," Rossini; Largo from "Xerxes" (solo violin, Alfred Krips), Handel; Bolero, Ravel; Finlandia, Tone Poem, Sibelius; Suite from "Les Sylphides," Chopin; Rhapsody in Blue (soloist, Leo Litwin), Gershwin; Selection from "Oklahoma!", Rodgers; TViana, Hayman; American Patrol, Meacham.

Tuesday, Prelude to "Carmen," Bizet; Overture to "Raymond," Thomas; Rachem (Mercy), Mana-Zucca; Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2, Liszt; Suite from "Les Sylphides," Chopin; Concerto for Piano and Orchestra, No. 2 in G minor, Op. 22, Saint-Saens, soloist: Bertica Shulman; Selection from "Call Me Madam," Berlin; Chicken Reel, Anderson; Washington Post, March, Sousa.

Wednesday, Wedding March, from "A Midsummer Night's Dream," Mendelssohn; Overture to "La Gazza Ladra," Rossini; Ave Maria, Schubert; Wilhelmj, solo violin; Alfred Krips; Ballet Music from "Aida," Verdi; Concerto for Piano and Orchestra, No. 1 in B minor, Op. 23 (First Movement), Tchaikovsky, soloist: Salvatore Sullo; Intermezzo Sinfonico from "Cavalleria Rusticana," Mascagni; Bolero, Ravel; Richard Rodgers Waltzes, Anderson; Fiddle-Faddle, Anderson; Pomp and Circumstance, Elgar.

Thursday, Overture to "Russian and Ludmilla," Glinka; Suite from "The Water Music," Handel-Harty; Prelude to "The Deluge," Saint-Saens, solo violin: Alfred Krips; Marche Slave, Tchaikovsky; Polovetzian Dances from "Prince Igor," Borodin; Emperor Waltzes, Strauss; Suite from "Gaite Parisienne," Offenbach; Selection from "Call Me Madam," Berlin; The Glow-worm Turns, Lincke-Bodge; Sailor's Dance, Gliere.

Saturday, Wedding March from "Le Coq d'Or," Rimsky-Korsakoff; Overture to "Die Fledermaus," Strauss; Largo al Factotum from "The Barber of Seville," Rossini, trumpet solo: Armando Ghitalla; Romanian Rhapsody No. 1, Enesco; Suite from "Gaite Parisienne," Offenbach; Andante Cantabile from String Quartet, Op. 11, Tchaikovsky; Bolero, Ravel; Selection from "Guys and Dolls," Loesser; Ballet Music, Anderson; The Thunderer, March, Sousa.

Sunday, June 5, Arthur Fiedler conducting: The Princess Elizabeth, March, Coates; Suite from "Les Sylphides," Chopin; Overture to "Russian and Ludmilla," Glinka; Marche Slave, Tchaikovsky; Harry Ellis Dickson conducting: Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 2 in C minor, Op. 18, Rachmaninoff, soloist: Mineko Sasahara; Massachusetts First Lady's Waltz, Hon. Vincent Mottola; Popsorama, Arranged by Mason; Let'er Go, Lover, Carson-Hayman; Davy Crockett, Bruns-Hayman.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 28 1955

Fiedler To Return On June 5

Arthur Fiedler's many friends will welcome his return to the Pops podium in Symphony Hall on Sunday, June 5, when he will conduct the first half of the annual Pension Fund concert. Until Mr. Fiedler's return, Harry Ellis Dickson will continue as guest conductor. Mr. Dickson will also lead the final portion of the Pension Fund concert.

Six piano soloists and one trumpet soloist are scheduled for next week. Beth Flanagan and Arthur Mackenzie, duo-pianists, will play Saint-Saëns' "The Animals' Carnival" on Sunday evening. Leo Litwin will be heard in Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" on Monday evening. Bertica Shulman will perform Saint-Saëns' Concerto for Piano and Orchestra, No. 2, in G minor, Op. 22, on Tuesday evening.

The first movement of Tchaikovsky's Concerto for Piano and Orchestra, No. 1, in B minor, Op. 23, will be played by Salvatore Sullo on Wednesday evening. Armando Ghitalla will be trumpet soloist in the Largo al Factotum from Rossini's "Barber of Seville" on Sunday evening and again on Saturday, June 4.

Mineko Sasahara will be soloist in Rachmaninov's Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 2 in C minor, Op. 18, on Sunday evening, June 5.

The programs:

Sunday Evening, May 29

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 28 1955

Lenscraft

Arthur Fiedler will return to the podium for the Pension Fund Concert at the Pops Sunday night, June 5.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.
STATES
Circ. D. 92,316
MAY 28 1955

Ballet Stars Coming Here

Igor Youskevitch and Alicia Alonso, two of the world's greatest ballet dancers, will appear here with the Ballet Russe De Monte Carlo early next year.

The New Orleans Opera Guild announced today the ballet troupe has been scheduled on the New Orleans Community Concert series.

Eight other concerts, spread over a seven-month season, will include:

The Boston Symphony Orchestra under Charles Munch.

Menotti's double-bill operas "The Telephone" and "The Medium" starring Marie Powers.

Jussi Bjoerling.

Artur Rubinstein.

Zino Francescatti.

The Robert Shaw chorale.

Walter Gieseking.

An opera performance of Mozart's Cosi Fan Tutte by the Cincinnati Symphony under Thor Johnson with soloists.

Season subscriptions are now being sold at the N. O. Opera Guild, fourth floor, D. H. Holmes, 819 Canal. The telephone number is RAymond 7672.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

NEW ORLEANS, LA.
Times-Picayune-States
Circ. S. 273,711
MAY 29 1955

ALONSO AND YOUSKEVITCH DANCE HERE

Two of the world's greatest ballet stars—Igor Youskevitch and Alicia Alonso — have been added to the roster of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo for next season's tour. The group is scheduled for a performance here early next year on the Community Concert Series sponsored by the New Orleans Opera Guild, Inc.

Both dancers have been members of Ballet Theatre for the past several seasons and have become local favorites through these appearances and at other performances locally.

Youskevitch has been termed as "the greatest male dancer before the public today." Few critics will dispute this.

Ballerina Alicia Alonso, Cuban-born and American-trained, was termed last season as "the First Lady of Ballet" in a review of "Giselle" in the N. Y. World Telegram and Sun.

Eight other conectrs, spread over a seven-month season will comprise next year's series: The Boston Symphony Orchestra under Charles Munch, Menotti's double-bill operas "The Telephone" and "The Medium" starring Marie Powers, Jussi Bjoerling, Artur Rubenstein, Zino Francescatti, The Robert Shaw Chorale, a concert opera performance of Mozart's "Cosi Fan Tutte," by the Cincinnati Symphony under Thor Johnson with soloists, and Walter Gieseking.

Though tickets are not sold to individual performances, season subscriptions are now being accepted at the offices of the Guild, 819 Canal. The series is already nearly sold out.

ALICIA ALONSO

IGOR YOUSKEVITCH

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Press
WESTWOOD, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,100

MAY 28 1955

Irish Conductor To Lead Pops Concert On June 10

New Englanders will have an opportunity Friday evening, June 10, to hear the celebrated musicians of the Boston Symphony orchestra play under the baton of Michael Bowles, Ireland's foremost symphony conductor as he makes a guest appearance at the Boston Eire Society's night at Pops.

This 45-year-old native of Sligo first came into prominence as a band master for the Irish Army. He had then just past his 21st birthday. Bowles' superb talent was quickly recognized and he was sent by the army to the National University of Ireland for further study and training. The army thereupon lost him to Radio Eireann where he shortly became the music director and later the founder and conductor of Dublin's first full-sizer symphony orchestra since Ireland became a nation.

In 1948, after establishing himself as Ireland's top ranking native symphony conductor, Bowles accepted guest engagements, for various periods, as conductor for the BBC symphony orchestra in London, the Rome University orchestra and the national orchestras at Brussels and Stockholm.

From 1950 to 1953 he devoted his genius to conducting and improving symphony orchestras in New Zealand and Australia. He has recently completed engagements with the Canadian Broadcasting Service orchestra in Toronto. Between his foreign commitments, Mr. Bowles, in frequent trips to Ireland, retained his active interest in the now-flourishing symphonic movement in Dublin and other Irish cities.

Martin A. O'Malley of Quincy is the chairman of the Eire Society Pops Night. The Society will take over the main floor of Symphony Hall for the evening.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.
SENTINEL
Circ. D. 184,155 - S. 227,930

MAY 31 1955

Boston Fund's Assets Gain

BOSTON, May 30—(Special)—Total net assets of Boston Fund increased by $8,199,176 in the first quarter of the present fiscal year to reach a new high of $129,657,021 on April 30.

Adjusting for the two-for-one split of the shares effective on that date, net asset value per share was $15.37 compared with $14.67 on Jan. 31, 1955.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 31 1955

...pital Group ...ttend Pops

...the groups selecting as one of their major ...events, the Friends of ...e Boston City Hospital have chosen tomorrow as their Pops evening. Mrs. John F. Higgins of Arlington heads the committee, assisted by Mrs. William E. Holdich of Winchester, Mrs. Russell Sullivan of Melrose, Mrs. Harry P. Cahill of Brookline, Mrs. William P. Mavraides of Jamaica Plain, Miss Margaret Tracey of Boston, Mrs. William E. Hickey, Jr., of Winchester, Mrs. Daniel J. McSweeney of Milton, Mrs. H. Kelvin Magill of Lexington, and Mrs. Stuart C. Rand of Cambridge.

Already many patrons have lent their support to this, the only fund-raising event for the Friends this year. The proceeds will be used to provide extra comforts for the patients and nurses at the Boston City Hospital. In addition to the committee, the patron list includes Mr. and Mrs. Henry Berlin, Dr. and Mrs. John Conlin, Dr. Martin English, Mrs. James Phelan, Mrs. Theresa Ratshesky, Dr. Thomas W. Wickham, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Ingersoll, Dr. and Mrs. Somers Fraser, Dr. and Mrs. Otto Hermann, Dr. E. Everett O'Neil, Dr. and Mrs. Charles C. Lund, and Dr. and Mrs. John A. Foley. Also Dr. and Mrs. Walter Wegner, Dr. Eleanor Pavenstedt, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hamlen, Dr. and Mrs. Henry Nigro and Mrs. Harry P. Cahill.

[71]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 28 1955

Fiedler To Return On June 5

Arthur Fiedler's many friends will welcome his return to the Pops podium in Symphony Hall on Sunday, June 5, when he will conduct the first half of the annual Pension Fund concert. Until Mr. Fiedler's return, Harry Ellis Dickson will continue as guest conductor. Mr. Dickson will also lead the final portion of the Pension Fund concert.

Six piano soloists and one trumpet soloist are scheduled for next week. Beth Flanagan and Arthur Mackenzie, duo-pianists, will play Saint-Saëns' "The Animals' Carnival" on Sunday evening. Leo Litwin will be heard in Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" on Monday evening. Bertica Shulman will perform Saint-Saëns' Concerto for Piano and Orchestra, No. 2, in G minor, Op. 22, on Tuesday evening.

The first movement of Tchaikovsky's Concerto for Piano and Orchestra, No. 1, in B minor, Op. 23, will be played by Salvatore Sullo on Wednesday evening. Armando Ghitalla will be trumpet soloist in the Largo al Factotum from Rossini's "Barber of Seville" on Sunday evening and again on Saturday, June 4.

Mineko Sasahara will be soloist in Rachmaninov's Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 2 in C minor, Op. 18, on Sunday evening, June 5.

The programs:

Sunday Evening, May 29

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

MAY 28 1955

Fiedler will return to the podium for the Pension Fund ... Pops Sunday night, June 5.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.
STATES
Circ. D. 92,316

MAY 28 1955

Ballet Stars Coming Here

Igor Youskevitch and Alicia Alonso, two of the world's greatest ballet dancers, will appear here with the Ballet Russe De Monte Carlo early next year.

The New Orleans Opera Guild announced today the ballet troupe has been scheduled on the New Orleans Community Concert series.

Eight other concerts, spread over a seven-month season, will include:

The Boston Symphony Orchestra under Charles Munch.

Menotti's double-bill operas "The Telephone" and "The Medium" starring Marie Powers.

Jussi Bjoerling.

Artur Rubinstein.

Zino Francescatti.

The Robert Shaw Chorale.

Walter Gieseking.

An opera performance of Mozart's Cosi Fan-Tutte by the Cincinnati Symphony under Thor Johnson with soloists.

Season subscriptions are now being sold at the N. O. Opera Guild, fourth floor, D. H. Holmes, 819 Canal. The telephone number is RAymond 7672.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.
Times-Picayune-States
Circ. S. 273,711

MAY 29 1955

ALONSO AND YOUSKEVITCH DANCE HERE

Two of the world's greatest ballet stars—Igor Youskevitch and Alicia Alonso — have been added to the roster of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo for next season's tour. The group is scheduled for a performance here early next year on the Community Concert Series sponsored by the New Orleans Opera Guild, Inc.

Both dancers have been members of Ballet Theatre for the past several seasons and have become local favorites through these appearances and at other performances locally.

Youskevitch has been termed as "the greatest male dancer before the public today." Few critics will dispute this.

Ballerina Alicia Alonso, Cuban-born and American-trained, was termed last season as "the First Lady of Ballet" in a review of "Giselle" in the N. Y. World Telegram and Sun.

Eight other conectrs, spread over a seven-month season will comprise next year's series: The Boston Symphony Orchestra under Charles Munch, Menotti's double-bill operas "The Telephone" and "The Medium" starring Marie Powers, Jussi Bjoerling, Artur Rubenstein, Zino Francescatti, The Robert Shaw Chorale, a concert opera performance of Mozart's "Cosi Fan Tutte," by the Cincinnati Symphony under Thor Johnson with soloists, and Walter Gieseking.

Though tickets are not sold to individual performances, season subscriptions are now being accepfed at the offices of the Guild, 819 Canal. The series is already nearly sold out.

ALICIA ALONSO

IGOR YOUSKEVITCH

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Press
WESTWOOD, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,100

MAY 28 1955

Irish Conductor To Lead Pops Concert On June 10

New Englanders will have an opportunity Friday evening, June 10, to hear the celebrated musicians of the Boston Symphony orchestra play under the baton of Michael Bowles, Ireland's foremost symphony conductor as he makes a guest appearance at the Boston Eire Society's night at Pops.

This 45-year-old native of Sligo first came into prominence as a band master for the Irish Army. He had then just past his 21st birthday. Bowles' superb talent was quickly recognized and he was sent by the army to the National University of Ireland for further study and training. The army thereupon lost him to Radio Eireann where he shortly became the music director and later the founder and conductor of Dublin's first full-sizer symphony orchestra since Ireland became a nation.

In 1948, after establishing himself as Ireland's top ranking native symphony conductor, Bowles accepted guest engagements, for various periods, as conductor for the BBC symphony orchestra in London, the Rome University orchestra and the national orchestras at Brussels and Stockholm.

From 1950 to 1953 he devoted his genius to conducting and improving symphony orchestras in New Zealand and Australia. He has recently completed engagements with the Canadian Broadcasting Service orchestra in Toronto. Between his foreign commitments, Mr. Bowles, in frequent trips to Ireland, retained his active interest in the now-flourishing symphonic movement in Dublin and other Irish cities.

Martin A. O'Malley of Quincy is the chairman of the Eire Society Pops Night. The Society will take over the main floor of Symphony Hall for the evening.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.
SENTINEL
Circ. D. 184,155 - S. 227,930

MAY 31 1955

Boston Fund's Assets Gain

BOSTON, May 30—(Special)—Total net assets of Boston Fund increased by $8,199,176 in the first quarter of the present fiscal year to reach a new high of $129,657,021 on April 30.

Adjusting for the two-for-one split of the shares effective on that date, net asset value per share was $15.37 compared with $14.67 on Jan. 31, 1955.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

MAY 31 1955

...bital Group ...ttend Pops

... the groups selecting as one of their major ... events, the Friends of ... Boston City Hospital have chosen tomorrow as their Pops evening. Mrs. John F. Higgins of Arlington heads the committee, assisted by Mrs. William E. Holdich of Winchester, Mrs. Russell Sullivan of Melrose, Mrs. Harry P. Cahill of Brookline, Mrs. William P. Mavraides of Jamaica Plain, Miss Margaret Tracey of Boston, Mrs. William E. Hickey, Jr., of Winchester, Mrs. Daniel J. McSweeney of Milton, Mrs. H. Kelvin Magill of Lexington, and Mrs. Stuart C. Rand of Cambridge.

Already many patrons have lent their support to this, the only fund-raising event for the Friends this year. The proceeds will be used to provide extra comforts for the patients and nurses at the Boston City Hospital. In addition to the committee, the patron list includes Mr. and Mrs. Henry Berlin, Dr. and Mrs. John Conlin, Dr. Martin English, Mrs. James Phelan, Mrs. Theresa Ratshesky, Dr. Thomas W. Wickham, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Ingersoll, Dr. and Mrs. Somers Fraser, Dr. and Mrs. Otto Hermann, Dr. E. Everett O'Neil, Dr. and Mrs. Charles C. Lund, and Dr. and Mrs. John A. Foley. Also Dr. and Mrs. Walter Wegner, Dr. Eleanor Pavenstedt, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hamlen, Dr. and Mrs. Henry Nigro and Mrs. Harry P. Cahill.

[71]

Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 275,850

Music Review

BY TUCKER KEISER

Into the life of most capable but minor league composers there usually falls one masterpiece. The work often held in little regard by the composer, who favors some of his more pretentious pieces, but it captures the imagination of the public and finds an affectionate spot in their hearts.

Such a work is Saint-Saens' "Le Carnival des Animaux," the featured composition at "Pops" last night. For many years it has been a staple in the "Pops" repertory and one of the best selling recordings by our orchestra; yet "The Carnival" seems always fresh and entertaining.

The soloists in this latest performance were Beth Flanagan and Arthur Mackenzie, a very promising duo-piano team. They made light work of the bravura passages, their co-ordination was excellent, and they exhibited a commendable sense of style. What's more, and this is important at a "Pops" concert, they are not above a bit of discreet clowning.

Also featured during the evening was the superlative trumpet playing of Armando Ghitalla in Rossini's "Largo al Factotum" from "The Barber of Seville." Though Mr. Ghitalla enjoys a national reputation as a soloist because of his appearances on the "Band of America" radio program, he rarely has a chance to step into the spotlight during the regular symphony season. The rousing ovation he received was merited, for in addition to impressive musicianship and virtuoso skill, he has the most beautiful tone of any trumpeter I have ever heard.

Harry Ellis Dickson, still substituting for the recuperating Arthur Fiedler, conducted with authority. Other pieces performed were the Triumphal March from "Aida," the "Euryanthe" Overture, "Tales from the Vienna Woods," Anderson's "Irish Suite," a medley of popular tunes and novelties, and the usual abundance of encores.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

JUN 1955

Yale Harvard Perry Setting Harvard Reunion Precedent

By WILLIAM F. HOMER, JR.

Harvard's 25-year reunion

POPS NIGHT

For 1930's Pops Night at Symphony Hall, composer Elliott C. Carter will conduct a work of his own, and pianist Edwin J. Biltcliffe of Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra will play Hungarian Fantasy.

The Harvard classes of 1926, 1927, 1928 and 1929, for whom the memory of their "25th" still lingers on, keep the reunion spark alive. Some 3,500 of their members, plus families, have been invited to the first four-class spread in the university's history, at noontime of Commencement Day.

For other reunioning classes, the class of 1930 will supply the chief marshal for the Harvard Alumni Association's speeches and exercises on Commencement Day afternoon. He is Wallace R. Harper of Pittsburgh, one-time varsity fullback.

For the university, alumni secretary Peter Pratt has made changes in the traditional commencement week program. At a baccalaureate Sunday symposium in Sanders Theater, all reunion classes, not merely seniors and 25-year groups, will take part. Professors McGeorge Bundy, Seymour E. Harris, Louis Hartz, Perry G. E. Miller and Samuel A. Stouffer have the topic "The United States in Mid-Century."

On Monday, the second symposium, "The Undergraduate" will supplement rather than compete with the morning's Phi Beta Kappa parade and exercises. Taking part in this New Lecture Hall assembly will be Dean Delmar Leighton and Professors George A. Buttrick, Daniel S. Cheever, and David D. Henry. Distant graduate schools, such as the medical group, this year have a role in the yard's commencement activity.

That is the academic lineup. It still has scholastic miles to travel to match the cultural connotations of Yale Harvard Perry, the greatest ivy combination since two Harvard 1929ers went through the entire Yale 1929 reunion, undetected.

Perry is reconciled and amiable about the whole thing. Yale, he explains, is a family name. Harvard, he doesn't know—certainly his parents had no academic pretensions.

"Believe it or not," Perry says, "Yale Harvard, it is. And it's been written just once—'Believe It or Not,' by Ripley."

[5a]

BLANK PAGE

[73]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Citizen
BROOKLINE, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 16,000 Free

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston • RIchmond 2-4200
News-Tribune (e)
WALTHAM, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston • RIchmond 2-4200
South[illegible] Citizen
[illegible] Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, [illegible] • Richmond 2-0068 itizen
BRIGHTON, Mass.

[illegible] Agency, Inc.
[illegible] • Richmond 2-4200
Allston Citizen
[illegible]

[illegible] Agency, Inc.
[illegible] • Richmond 2-4200
Messenger (e)
NORWOOD, Mass.

[illegible] Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200
Press
WESTWOOD, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,100

Eire Society Night At Pops

Dublin born tenor, Hubert Valentine, will be the featured soloist with the Boston Pops Orchestra on Friday, June 10, when Michael Bowles, Ireland's foremost symphony conductor, as guest, takes over the baton on Eire Society night.

In the presentation of Faust this season by the LaScala Opera Company of Philadelphia, Hubert Valentine was the first native born Irishman in 35 years to sing a lead role in Grand Opera.

A student of Dr. Vincent O'Brien, noted teacher of the late John McCormack, Valentine was, prior to his coming to this country, the leading tenor of Radio Eireann. He is well known to concert goers in America and has made several appearances in Boston. He interrupted a concert tour in this country at the time of World War II to serve with our armed forces in the Pacific. Valentine is a Victor recording artist.

The musical program is being arranged for the Eire Society by John P. McGrail of Clinton, John P. Cavanagh of Brighton and Catherine Madden of Hyde Park in consultation with Pops Conductor Arthur Fiedler. Martin A. O'Malley of Quincy is general chairman of the committee. Joseph Gannon of Brookline heads the program committee. Mrs. James P. McElwee of Brookline heads the program comtions and a large committee from all over Greater Boston is active in the affair.

The Eire Society will take over the main floor of Symphony Hall that evening for its members and guests. Reservations are available to anyone who would enjoy a program of Pops with a distinctly Irish flavor.

MICHAEL BOWLES

of Quincy is general chairman of the committee. Joseph Gannon of Brookline heads the program committee, Mrs. James P. McElwee of Brookline is in charge of reservations and a large committee from all over Greater Boston is active in the affair.

The Eire Society will take over the main floor of Symphony Hall that evening for its members and guests. Reservations are available to anyone who would enjoy a program at Pops with a distinctly Irish flavor.

ROCKLAND, Mass.
Box 2078, Boston • RIchmond 2-4200
Duxbury Pilgrim
ROCKLAND, Mass.
Herald
SCITUATE, Mass.
Cohasset Cottager
ROCKLAND, Mass.
Pembroke Colonist
ROCKLAND, Mass.
Weekly
JUN 2 1955

Realtors' Boston Pops Scheduled for June 20

Music-loving realtors will have their night at the Boston Pops on June 20, it was announced today by Samuel P. Backman, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association. The organization has reserved one-half the floor of Symphony Hall for use of realtors, their families and friends on that date.

Ellis Rome, president of the Plymouth County Board, announced that he is local representative of the Realtor Committee, and he and Mrs. Elizabeth Burns, of Court Street, Plymouth, secretary of the board, will take care of local ticket distribution.

Rome said "We are pleased to support the Pops. It will give realtors an opportunity to enjoy an evening of this cultural attraction with a group of fellow members and associates."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Telegram (m)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 55,423
JUN 1 1955

CO-CHAIRMAN

Miss Doris A. Frye who is co-chairman for the Massachusetts Council of Young Republican Clubs' 19th annual "Republican Night at the Pops" Sunday at 8.30 at Symphony Hall, Boston. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra. Miss Frye is president of Young People's Republican Club of Worcester. Chairman for the program is [illegible]el M. Mahoney of Boston.

ADVERTISEMENT

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sun (e)
LOWELL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 40,726
JUN 2 1955

AND HAVE YOU HEARD

By JOAN L. TURNER

The Boston Pops concerts in Symphony hall an annual attraction for many Lowellians, was particularly well frequented on nights. In the Lowell part at last week-end's performances were Dr. Massachusetts State Teachers college and St. [illegible]beth's hospital and Mrs. Lavas Peloquin, Mrs. William Flynick and her daughter, Mary; Miss Elaine Gariepy, Miss Germa[illegible] Peloquin, Mrs. Lottie Rival and her daughter, Joan, Miss Mary [illegible] B. Lyons and Dr. William F. Stanton of New York, Prof. [illegible] Hastings of Staten Island, N. Y., Miss Mary Libbey and Edward Garland, Rev. Frederick Connors, SJ, of North Carolina, Dr. and Mrs. Francis Burns, Miss Elizabeth Coyne and Miss Estelle Maguire.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Back Bay Ledger &
Beacon Hill Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,000 Free
JUN 2 1955

Pops Concerts Programs Slated For Coming Weekrts

Harry Ellis Dickson is co[illegible]nage One tinuing to conduct the Pops[illegible]ne 3, at concerts at Symphony Hall this [illegible] Univerweek until next Sunday, June 5 when Arthur Fiedler, who ha[illegible]une 4, at missed the opening of the sea[illegible]g March son, will return to the conduc[illegible] Rimskytor's stand for the annual Pen[illegible] to "Die sion Fund concert.

Mineko Sasahara will be p[illegible]; Largo ano soloist on Sunday evening Barber The concert tomorrow evening Roma[illegible]y Eneswill be taken ove[illegible] from June 3, has been taken entirely by Boston University. Tchai[illegible]; Bugmainder of the week follow[illegible]n and

Thursday evening, June 2, a[illegible]y Sou-8:30 o'clock—Overture to "Rus[illegible]5, at slan and Ludmilla" by Glinka; Suite from "The Water Music" Eliby Handel-Harty; Prelude to Suite "The Deluge" by Saint-Saens (solo violin by Alfred Krips); Marche Slave by Tschaikowsky; Polovetzian Dances from "Prince Igor" by Borodin; Emperor Waltzes by Strauss; Suite from "Gaite Parisienne" by Offenbach; The Glowworm Turns by Lincke-Bodge, and the Sailor's Dance by Gliere.

from "Les Sylphides" by Chopin; Overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla" by Glinka; Marche Slave by Tschaikovsky; Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 2 in C minor, Op. 18 by Rachmaninoff; Massachusetts First Lady's Waltz by the Honorable Vincent Mottola; Popsorama arranged by Mason; Let 'r Go, Lover, by Carson-Hayman; Davy Crockett by Bruns-Hayman.

Continued on Page Ten

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Ware River News
WARE, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 2933
JUN 2 1955

Graduates

Miss Beverly Irving

Miss Beverly Irving, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Irving of 26 Chestnut street, will be graduated today from Walnut Hill School, Natick. She is a member of the French Club, the Glee Club, and the Footlighters, and is on the staff of the Blue Pencil. She was among those selected to sing with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Spring Music Festival Chorus of Preparatory Schools at Symphony Hall, Boston. She has also been active in all school sports.

Miss Irving will enter Lake Erie College, Ohio, in September.

SITUATIONS WANTED

(OPENING AVAILABLE for experienced office workers and bookkeeping machine operator. The Welch Company, Scituate Harbor.

ALNICO-JONES CONSOL-TONE SPEAKER

New styles! ☆ New colors!

—with a new powerized Zenith Portable Radio. New WaveMagnet® Antenna tunes in more stations where outdoors....5 color selections.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc. Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Telegram (m)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 55,423

JUN 1 1955

CO-CHAIRMAN

Miss Doris A. Frye who is co-chairman for the Massachusetts Council of Young Republican Clubs' 19th annual "Republican Night at the Pops" Sunday at 8.30 at Symphony Hall, Boston. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra. Miss Frye is president of Young People's Republican Club of Worcester. Chairman for the program is Joel M. Mahoney of Boston.

ADVERTISEMENT

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sun (e)
LOWELL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 40,726

JUN 2 1955

AND HAVE YOU HEARD

By JOAN L. TURNER

The Boston Pops concerts in Symphony hall, an annual attraction for many Lowellians, was particularly well frequented on nights. In the Lowell part at last week-end's performances were Dr. Massachusetts State Teachers college and St. Elizabeth's hospital and Mrs. Lavoie Peloquin, Mrs. William Flinnick and her daughter, Mary; Miss Elaine Gariepy, Miss Germaine Peloquin, Mrs. Lottie Rival and her daughter, Joan, Miss Marie B. Lyons and Dr. William F. Stanton of New York, Prof. [illegible] Hastings of Staten Island, N. Y., Miss Mary Libbey and Edward Garland, Rev. Frederick Connors, SJ, of North Carolina, Dr. and Mrs. Francis Burns, Miss Elizabeth Coyne and Miss Estelle Maguire.

ROCKLA[illegible]
Weekly
Combined Circ. 2,900

JUN 2 1955

Realtors' Boston Pops Scheduled for June 20

Music-loving realtors will have their night at the Boston Pops on June 20, it was announced today by Samuel P. Backman, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association. The organization has reserved one-half the floor of Symphony Hall for use of realtors, their families and friends on that date.

Ellis Rome, president of the Plymouth County Board, announced that he is local representative of the Realtor Committee, and he and Mrs. Elizabeth Burns, of Court Street, Plymouth, secretary of the board, will take care of local ticket distribution.

Rome said "We are pleased to support the Pops. It will give realtors an opportunity to enjoy an evening of this cultural attraction with a group of fellow members and associates."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Ware River News
WARE, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 2933

JUN 2 1955

Graduates

Miss Beverly Irving

Miss Beverly Irving, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Irving of 26 Chestnut street, will be graduated today from Walnut Hill School, Natick. She is a member of the French Club, the Glee Club, and the Footlighters, and is on the staff of the Blue Pencil. She was among those selected to sing with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Spring Music Festival Chorus of Preparatory Schools at Symphony Hall, Boston. She has also been active in all school sports.

Miss Irving will enter Lake Erie College, Ohio, in September.

Bi-Weekl[illegible]
[illegible]
1955

Eire Society Night At Pops

Dublin born tenor, Hubert Valentine, will be the featured soloist with the Boston Pops Orchestra on Friday, June 10, when Michael Bowles, Ireland's foremost symphony conductor, as guest takes over the baton on Eire Society night.

In the presentation of Faust this season by the LaScala Opera Company of Philadelphia, Hubert Valentine was the first native born Irishman in 35 years to sing a lead role in Grand Opera.

A student of Dr. Vincent O'Brien, noted teacher of the late John McCormack, Valentine was, prior to his coming to this country, the leading tenor of Radio Eireann. He is well known to concert goers in America and has made several appearances in Boston. He interrupted a concert tour in this country at the time of World War II to serve with our armed forces in the Pacific. Valentine is a Victor recording artist.

The musical program is being arranged for the Eire Society by John P. McGrail of Clinton, John P. Cavanagh of Brighton and Catherine Madden of Hyde Park in consultation with Pops Conductor Arthur Fiedler. Martin A. O'Malley of Quincy is general chairman of the committee. Joseph Gannon of Brookline heads the program committee. Mrs. James P. McElwee of Brookline heads the program committee. Mrs. James P. McElwee of Brookline heads the program committee. Mrs. James P. McElwee

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Telegram (m)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 55,423
JUN 1 1955

CO-CHAIRMAN

Miss Doris A. Frye who is co-chairman for the Massachusetts Council of Young Republican Clubs' 19th annual "Republican Night at the Pops" Sunday at 8.30 at Symphony Hall, Boston. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra. Miss Frye is president of Young People's Republican Club of Worcester. Chairman for the program is Joel M. Mahoney of Boston.

ADVERTISEMENT

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sun (e)
LOWELL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 40,726
JUN 2 1955

AND HAVE YOU HEARD

By JOAN L. TURNER

The Boston Pops concerts in Symphony Hall, an annual attraction for many Lowellians, was particularly well frequented on Massachusetts State Teachers college and St. Elizabeth's hospital nights. In the Lowell part at last week-end's performances were Dr. and Mrs. Leo Peloquin, Mrs. William Fitzpatrick and her daughter, Mary; Miss Elaine Gariepy, Miss Germaine Peloquin, Mrs. Lottie Rival and her daughter, Joan, Miss Margaret B. Lyons and Dr. William F. Stanton of New York, Prof. Peter Hastings of Staten Island, N. Y., Miss Mary Libbey and Edward Garland, Rev. Frederick Connors, SJ, of North Carolina, Dr. and Mrs. Francis Burns, Miss Elizabeth Coyne and Miss Estelle Maguire.

Weekly
Comb. Circ. 2,900
JUN 2 1955

Realtors' Boston Pops Scheduled for June 20

Music-loving realtors will have their night at the Boston Pops on June 20, it was announced today by Samuel P. Backman, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association. The organization has reserved one-half the floor of Symphony Hall for use of realtors, their families and friends on that date.

Ellis Rome, president of the Plymouth County Board, announced that he is local representative of the Realtor Committee, and he and Mrs. Elizabeth Burns, of Court Street, Plymouth, secretary of the board, will take care of local ticket distribution.

Rome said "We are pleased to support the Pops. It will give realtors an opportunity to enjoy an evening of this cultural attraction with a group of fellow members and associates."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Ware River News
WARE, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 2933
JUN 2 1955

Graduates

Miss Beverly Irving

Miss Beverly Irving, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Irving of 26 Chestnut street, will be graduated today from Walnut Hill School, Natick. She is a member of the French Club, the Glee Club, and the Footlighters, and is on the staff of the Blue Pencil. She was among those selected to sing with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Spring Music Festival Chorus of Preparatory Schools at Symphony Hall, Boston. She has also been active in all school sports.

Miss Irving will enter Lake Erie College, Ohio, in September.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Back Bay Ledger &
Beacon Hill Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,000 Free
JUN 2 1955

Pops Concerts Programs Slated For Coming Weekends

Harry Ellis Dickson is conage One tinuing to conduct the Pops me 3, at concerts at Symphony Hall this Univerweek until next Sunday, June 5 when Arthur Fiedler, who has une 4, at missed the opening of the sea g March son, will return to the conduc Rimsky- tor's stand for the annual Pen to "Die sion Fund concert. ; Largo

Mineko Sasahara will be p Barber ano soloist on Sunday evening Roma- The concert tomorrow evening Enes- June 3, has been taken ove from entirely by Boston University. Tchai- The programs for the re ; Bug- mainder of the week follow: n and Thursday evening, June 2, a y Sou- 8:30 o'clock—Overture to "Rus 5, at slan and Ludmilla" by Glinka; Suite from "The Water Music" Eli- by Handel-Harty; Prelude to Suite "The Deluge" by Saint-Saens (solo violin by Alfred Krips); Marche Slave by Tschaikowsky; Polovetzian Dances from "Prince Igor" by Borodin; Emperor Waltzes by Strauss; Suite from "Gaite Parisienne" by Offenbach; The Glowworm Turns by Lincke-Bodge, and the Sailor's Dance by Gliere.

Continued on Page Ten

from "Les Sylphides" by Chopin; Overture to "Russian and Ludmilla" by Glinka; Marche Slave by Tschaikovsky; Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 2 in C minor, Op. 18 by Rachmaninoff; Massachusetts First Lady's Waltz by the Honorable Vincent Mottola; Popsorama arranged by Mason; Let 'r Go, Lover, by Carson-Hayman; Davy Crockett by Bruns-Hayman.

Weekly Non-Partisan
JUN 1959

Noted Irish Tenor Soloist With Pops

Dublin born tenor, Hubert Valentine, will be the featured soloist with the Boston Pops Orchestra on Friday, June 10, when Michael Bowles, Ireland's foremost symphony conductor, as guest, takes over the baton on Eire Society night.

In the presentation of Faust this season by the LaScala Opera Company of Philadelphia, Hubert Valentine was the first native born Irishman in 35 years to sing a lead role in Grand Opera.

A student of Dr. Vincent O'Brien, noted teacher of the late John McCormack, Valentine was, prior to his coming to this country, the leading tenor of Radio Eireann. He is well known to concert goers in America and has made several appearances in Boston. He interrupted a concert tour in this country at the time of World War II to serve with our armed forces in the Pacific.

The musical program is being arranged for the Eire Society by John P. McGrail of Clinton, John P. Cavanaugh of Brighton and Catherine Madden of Hyde Park in consultation with Pops Conductor Arthur Fiedler. Martin A. O'Malley of Quincy is general chairan of the committee. Joseph Gannon of Brookline heads the program committee. Mrs. James P. McElwee of Brookline is in charge of reservations and a large committee from all over Greater Boston is active in the affair.

The Eire Society will take over the main floor of Symphony Hall that evening for its members and guests. Reservations are available to anyone who would enjoy a program of Pops with a distinctly Irish flavor.

MICHAEL BOWLES

of Quincy is general chairman of the committee. Joseph Gannon of Brookline heads the program committee, Mrs. James P. McElwee of Brookline is in charge of reservations and a large committee from all over Greater Boston is active in the affair.

The Eire Society will take over the main floor of Symphony Hall that evening for its members and guests. Reservations are available to anyone who would enjoy a program of Pops with a distinctly Irish flavor.

plays 18 local men including carpenters, painters, and paper hangers and has the latest in equipment and staging. He has recently completed the painting of the Wollaston Baptist Church and steeple.

ALNICO-5 "CONSOL-TONE" SPEAKER
New styles! ☆ New colors!
Wavemagnet® Antenna tunes in more stations every-where outdoors...6 color selections.

[74]

EXPERT
108 HARVARD ST., BROOKLINE

Vol. 20 No. 22

and

Weekly Independent
Circ. [illegible]
JUN 2 1955

Dublin born tenor, Hubert Valentine, will be the featured soloist with the Boston Pops Orchestra on Friday, June 10, when Michael Bowles, Ireland's foremost symphony conductor, as guest, takes over the baton on Eire Society night.

In the presentation of Faust this season by the LaScala Opera Company of Philadelphia, Hubert Valentine was the first native born Irishman in 35 years to sing a lead role in Grand Opera.

A student of Dr. Vincent O'Brien, noted teacher of the late John McCormack, Valentine was, prior to his coming to this country, the leading tenor of Radio Eireann. He is well known to concert goers in America and has made several appearances in Boston. He interrupted a concert tour in this country at the time of World War II to serve with our armed forces in the Pacific.

The musical program is being arranged for the Eire Society by John P. McGrail of Clinton, John P. Cavanaugh of Brighton and Catherine Madden of Hyde Park in consultation with Pops Conductor Arthur Fiedler. Martin A. O'Malley of Quincy is general chairan of the committee. Joseph Gannon of Brookline heads the program committee. Mrs. James P. McElwee of Brookline is in charge of reservations and a large committee from all over Greater Boston is active in the affair.

The Eire Society will take over the main floor of Symphony Hall that evening for its members and guests. Reservations are available to anyone who would enjoy a program of Pops with a distinctly Irish flavor.

—0—

P. Cavanagh of Brighton and Catherine Madden of Hyde Park in consultation with Pops Conductor Arthur Fiedler. Martin A. O'Malley of Quincy is general chairman of the committee. Joseph Gannon of Brookline heads the program committee, Mrs. James P. McElwee of Brookline is in charge of reservations and a large committee from all over Greater Boston is active in the affair.

MICHAEL BOWLES

The Eire Society will take over the main floor of Symphony Hall that evening for its members and guests. Reservations are available to anyone who would enjoy a program of Pops with a distinctly Irish flavor.

Mr. Dorr states that he employs 18 local men including carpenters, painters, and paper hangers and has the latest in equipment and staging. He has recently completed the painting

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Telegram (m)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 55,423
JUN 1 1955

CO-CHAIRMAN

Miss Doris A. Frye who is co-chairman for the Massachusetts Council of Young Republican Clubs' 19th annual "Republican Night at the Pops" Sunday at 8.30 at Symphony Hall, Boston. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra. Miss Frye is president of Young People's Republican Club of Worcester. Chairman for the program is Michael M. Mahoney of Boston.

ADVERTISEMENT

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sun (e)
LOWELL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 40,726
JUN 2 1955

AND HAVE YOU HEARD

By JOAN L. TURNER

The Boston Pops concerts in Symphony Hall, an annual attraction for many Lowellians, was particularly well frequented on nights in the Lowell part at last week-end's performances were Dr. Massachusetts State Teachers college and St. Elizabeth's hospital and Mrs. Leva Peloquin, Mrs. William Fitzpatrick and her daughter, Mary; Miss Elaine Gariepy, Miss Germaine Peloquin, Mrs. Lottie Rival and her daughter, Joan, Miss Margaret B. Lyons and Dr. William F. Stanton of New York, Prof. John Hastings of Staten Island, N. Y., Miss Mary Libbey and Edward Garland, Rev. Frederick Connors, SJ, of North Carolina, Dr. and Mrs. Francis Burns, Miss Elizabeth Coyne and Miss Estelle Maguire.

Weekly
Comb. Circ. 2900
JUN 2 1955

Realtors' Boston Pops Scheduled for June 20

Music-loving realtors will have their night at the Boston Pops on June 20, it was announced today by Samuel P. Backman, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association. The organization has reserved one-half the floor of Symphony Hall for use of realtors, their families and friends on that date.

Ellis Rome, president of the Plymouth County Board, announced that he is local representative of the Realtor Committee, and he and Mrs. Elizabeth Burns, of Court Street, Plymouth, secretary of the board, will take care of local ticket distribution.

Rome said "We are pleased to support the Pops. It will give realtors an opportunity to enjoy an evening of this cultural attraction with a group of fellow members and associates."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Ware River News
WARE, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 2933
JUN 2 1955

Graduates

Miss Beverly Irving

Miss Beverly Irving, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Irving of 26 Chestnut street, will be graduated today from Walnut Hill School, Natick. She is a member of the French Club, the Glee Club, and the Footlighters, and is on the staff of the Blue Pencil. She was among those selected to sing with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Spring Music Festival Chorus of Preparatory Schools at Symphony Hall, Boston. She has also been active in all school sports. 047

Miss Irving will enter Lake Erie College, Ohio, in September.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Back Bay Ledger &
Beacon Hill Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,000 Free
JUN 2 1955

Pops Concerts Programs Slated For Coming Weekends

Harry Ellis Dickson is conage One tinuing to conduct the Pops ne 3, at concerts at Symphony Hall this Univer-
week until next Sunday, June 5
when Arthur Fiedler, who ha une 4, at missed the opening of the sea g March
son, will return to the conduc Rimsky-tor's stand for the annual Pen to "Die
sion Fund concert.

Mineko Sasahara will be pi ; Largo ano soloist on Sunday evening Barber
The concert tomorrow evening Roma-
June 3, has been taken ove y Enes-entirely by Boston University. from The programs for the re Tchai-mainder of the week follow: ; Bug-
Thursday evening, June 2, a n and 8:30 o'clock—Overture to "Rus y Souslan and Ludmilla" by Glinka; 5, at Suite from "The Water Music" Eli-by Handel-Harty; Prelude to suite
"The Deluge" by Saint-Saens
(solo violin by Alfred Krips);
Marche Slave by Tschaikowsky; Polovetzian Dances from
"Prince Igor" by Borodin; Em-
peror Waltzes by Strauss;
Suite from "Gaite Parisienne"
by Offenbach; The Glowworm
Turns by Lincke-Bodge, and the Sailor's Dance by Gliere.

from "Les Sylphides" by Chopin; Overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla" by Glinka; Marche Slave by Tschaikovsky; Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 2 in C minor, Op. 18 by Rachmaninoff; Massachusetts First Lady's Waltz by the Honorable Vincent Mottola; Popsorama arranged by Mason; Let 'r Go, Lover, by Carson-Hayman; Davy Crockett by Bruns-Hayman.

Continued on Page Ten

Vol. 20 No. 22

108 HARVARD ST., BROOKLINE

...Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. ...,000

Bowles And Valentine At Irish "Pops"

Dublin born tenor, Hubert Valentine, will be the featured soloist with the Boston Pops Orchestra on Friday June 10 when Michael Bowles, Ireland's foremost symphony conductor, as guest, takes over the baton on Eire Society Night.

In the presentation of "Faust" this season by the LaScala Opera Company of Philadelphia, Hubert Valentine was the first native born

HUBERT VALENTINE

Irishman in 35 years to sing the leading role in Grand Opera.

A student of Dr. Vincent O'Brien, noted teacher of the late John McCormack. Valentine was, prior to his coming to this country, the leading tenor of Radio Eireann. He is well known to concert goers in America and has made several appearances in Boston. He interrupted a concert tour in this country in 1942 to serve with our armed forces in the Pacific. Valentine is a Victor recording artist.

The musical program is being arranged for the Eire Society by John P. McGrail of Clinton, John P. Cavanagh of Brighton and Catherine Madden of Hyde Park in consultation with Pops Conductor Arthur Fiedler. Martin A. O'Malley of Quincy is general chairman of the committee. Joseph Gannon of Brookline heads the program committee, Mrs. James P. McElwee of Brookline is in charge of reservations and a large committee from ...wer Greater Boston is active in ... Mair.

MICHAEL BOWLES

...Eire Society will take over ... floor of Symphony Hall ... evening for its members and ... reservations are available ... who would enjoy a pro... a ... with a distinctly ...

...Mass.
...Republican
...

Realtors' Boston Pops Scheduled for June 20

...ing realtors ... have ... night at the Boston Pops ... June 20, it was announced to... Samuel P. Backman, ... of the Massachusetts ... Estate Association. The or... has reserved ... re-half ... of Symphony Hall for ... tors, ... and ... that ... Board, ... cal repre... of the Realtor Commit... and Mrs. Elizabeth ... of Court Street, Plym... secretary of the board, will ... care of local ticket distribu...

...said "We are pleased to ... the Pops. It will give ... an opportunity to enjo... evening ... the ... at... ...tion with ... ...ship of fellow... ...bers of ...

Police To Issue Beach Stickers

...ploys 18 local men including carpenters, painters, and paper hangers and has the latest in equipment and staging. He has recently completed the painting of the Wollaston Baptist Church and steeple.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Telegram (m)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 55,423

JUN 1 1955

CO-CHAIRMAN

Miss Doris A. Frye who is co-chairman for the Massachusetts Council of Young Republican Clubs' 19th annual "Republican Night at the Pops" Sunday at 8.30 at Symphony Hall, Boston. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra. Miss Frye is president of Young People's Republican Club of Worcester. Chairman for the program is ...el M. Mahoney of Boston.

ADVERTISEMENT

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sun (e)
LOWELL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 40,726

JUN 2 1955

AND HAVE YOU HEARD

By JOAN L. TURNER

The Boston Pops concerts in Symphony Hall, an annual attraction for many Lowellians, was particularly well frequented on Massachusetts State Teachers college and St. ...beth's hospital nights. In the Lowell part at last week-end's performances were Dr. and Mrs. Lav... Peloquin, Mrs. William Finnick and her daughter, Mary; Miss Elaine Gariepy, Miss Germa... Peloquin, Mrs. Lottie Rival and her daughter, Joan, Miss Mar... B. Lyons and Dr. William F. Stanton of New York, Prof. ... Hastings of Staten Island, N. Y., Miss Mary Libbey and Edward Garland, Rev. Frederick Connors, SJ, of North Carolina, Dr. and Mrs. Francis Burns, Miss Elizabeth Coyne and Miss Estelle Maguire.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Ware River News
WARE, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 2933

JUN 2 1955

Graduates

Miss Beverly Irving

Miss Beverly Irving, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Irving of 26 Chestnut street, will be graduated today from Walnut Hill School, Natick. She is a member of the French Club, the Glee Club, and the Footlighters, and is on the staff of the Blue Pencil. She was among those selected to sing with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Spring Music Festival Chorus of Preparatory Schools at Symphony Hall, Boston. She has also been active in all school sports.

Miss Irving will enter Lake Erie College, Ohio, in September.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Back Bay Ledger & Beacon Hill Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,000 Free

JUN 2 1955

Pops Concerts Programs Slated For Coming Weekrts

Harry Ellis Dickson is con...age One tinuing to conduct the Pops...ne 3, at concerts at Symphony Hall this... Univer-
week until next Sunday, June 5
when Arthur Fiedler, who ha... une 4, at missed the opening of the sea... g March
son, will return to the conduc... Rimsky-
tor's stand for the annual Pen... to "Die
sion Fund concert. ...; Largo
Mineko Sasahara will be pl... Barber ano soloist on Sunday evening... Roma-
The concert tomorrow evening... Enes-
June 3, has been taken ove... from entirely by Boston University. Tchai-
The programs for the re... ; Bug-mainder of the week follow: ...n and Thursday evening, June 2, a... Sou-8:30 o'clock—Overture to "Rus... 5, at slan and Ludmilla" by Glinka; Eli-Suite from "The Water Music" ...Suite by Handel-Harty; Prelude to
"The Deluge" by Saint-Saens
(solo violin by Alfred Krips);
Marche Slave by Tschaikow-
sky; Polovetzian Dances from
"Prince Igor" by Borodin; Em-
peror Waltzes by Strauss;
Suite from "Gaite Parisienne"
by Offenbach; The Glowworm
Turns by Lincke-Bodge, and the Sailor's Dance by Gliere.

Continued on Page Ten

from "Les Sylphides" by Chopin; Overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla" by Glinka; Marche Slave by Tschaikovsky; Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 2 in C minor, Op. 18 by Rachmaninoff; Massachusetts First Lady's Waltz by the Honorable Vincent Mottola; Popsorama arranged by Mason; Let 'r Go, Lover, by Carson-Hayman; Davy Crockett by Bruns-Hayman.

[74]

Vol. 20 No. 22
108 HARVARD ST., BROOKLINE

Weekly Independent
Circ. 14,000

JUN 2 1955

Bowles And Valentine At Irish "Pops"

Dublin born tenor, Hubert Valentine, will be the featured soloist with the Boston Pops Orchestra on Friday June 10 when Michael Bowles, Ireland's foremost symphony conductor, as guest, takes over the baton on Eire Society Night.

In the presentation of "Faust" this season by the LaScala Opera Company of Philadelphia, Hubert Valentine was the first native born

HUBERT VALENTINE

Irishman in 35 years to sing the leading role in Grand Opera.

A student of Dr. Vincent O'Brien, noted teacher of the late John McCormack, Valentine was, prior to his coming to this country, the leading tenor of Radio Eireann. He is well known to concert goers in America and has made several appearances in Boston. He interrupted a concert tour in this country in 1942 to serve with our armed forces in the Pacific. Valentine is a Victor recording artist.

The musical program is being arranged for the Eire Society by John P. McGrail of Clinton, John P. Cavanagh of Brighton and Catherine Madden of Hyde Park in consultation with Pops Conductor Arthur Fiedler. Martin A. O'Malley of Quincy is general chairman of the committee. Joseph Gannon of Brookline heads the program committee, Mrs. James P. McElwee of Brookline is in charge of reservations and a large committee from Greater Greater Boston is active in the affair.

MICHAEL BOWLES

The Eire Society will take over the floor of Symphony Hall evening for its members and reservations are available who would enjoy a program with a distinctly plays 18 local men including carpenters, painters, and paper hangers and has the latest in equipment and staging. He has recently completed the painting of the Wollaston Baptist Church and steeple.

Police To Issue Beach Stickers

Weekly Republican
Circ. [illegible]

JUN 2 1955

Realtors' Boston Pops Scheduled for June 20

Music-loving realtors will have their night at the Boston Pops on June 20, it was announced today by Samuel P. Backman, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association. The organization has reserved one-half the [illegible] of Symphony Hall for [illegible] realtors, their families and friends in that date.

Elmo Rome, [illegible] president of the Plymouth County Board, announced that he is local representative of the Realtor Committee, and he and Mrs. Elizabeth Burns, of Court Street, Plymouth, secretary of the board, will take care of local ticket distribution.

Rome said "We are pleased to support the Pops. It will give realtors an opportunity to enjoy an evening of this cultural attraction with a group of fellow members and associates."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Telegram (m)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 55,423
JUN 1 1955

CO-CHAIRMAN

Miss Doris A. Frye who is co-chairman for the Massachusetts Council of Young Republican Clubs' 19th annual "Republican Night at the Pops" Sunday at 8:30 at Symphony Hall, Boston. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra. Miss Frye is president of Young Beacon's Republican Club of Worcester. Chairman for the program is [illegible]el M. Mahoney of Boston.

ADVERTISEMENT

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Sun (e)
LOWELL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 40,796
JUN 2 1955

AND HAVE YOU HEARD

By JOAN L. TURNER

The Boston Pops concerts in Symphony Hall, an annual attraction for many Lowellians, was particularly well frequented on nights. In the Lowell part at last week-end's performances were Dr. and Mrs. Lavoie Pelequin, Mrs. William [illegible] and her daughter, Mary; Miss Elzire Gariepy, Miss Germaine Pelequin, Mrs. Lottie Rival and her daughter, Joan, Miss Margaret B. Lyons and Dr. William F. Stanton of New York, Prof. [illegible] Hastings of Staten Island, N. Y., Miss Mary Libbey and Edward Garland, Rev. Frederick Connors, SJ, of North Carolina, Dr. and Mrs. Francis Burns, Miss Elizabeth Coyne and Miss Estelle Maguire.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Ware River News
WARE, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 2933
JUN 2 1955

Graduates

Miss Beverly Irving

Miss Beverly Irving, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Irving of 26 Chestnut street, will be graduated today from Walnut Hill School, Natick. She is a member of the French Club, the Glee Club, and the Footlighters, and is on the staff of the Blue Pencil. She was among those selected to sing with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Spring Music Festival Chorus of Preparatory Schools at Symphony Hall, Boston. She has also been active in all school sports.

Miss Irving will enter Lake Erie College, Ohio, in September.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Back Bay Ledger &
Beacon Hill Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,000 Free
JUN 2 1955

Pops Concerts Programs Slated For Coming Weekends

Harry Ellis Dickson is continuing to conduct the Pops concerts at Symphony Hall this week until next Sunday, June 5 when Arthur Fiedler, who has missed the opening of the season, will return to the conductor's stand for the annual Pension Fund concert.

Mineko Sasahara will be piano soloist on Sunday evening. The concert tomorrow evening, June 3, has been taken over entirely by Boston University.

The programs for the remainder of the week follow:

Thursday evening, June 2, at 8:30 o'clock—Overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla" by Glinka; Suite from "The Water Music" by Handel-Harty; Prelude to "The Deluge" by Saint-Saens; (solo violin by Alfred Krips); Marche Slave by Tschaikowsky; Polovetzian Dances from "Prince Igor" by Borodin; Emperor Waltzes by Strauss; Suite from "Gaite Parisienne" by Offenbach; The Glowworm Turns by Lincke-Lodge, and the Sailor's Dance by Gliere.

Continued on Page Ten

from "Les Sylphides" by Chopin; Overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla" by Glinka; Marche Slave by Tschaikovsky; Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 2 in C minor, Op. 18 by Rachmaninoff; Massachusetts First Lady's Waltz by the Honorable Vincent Mottola; Popsorama arranged by Mason; Let 'r Go, Lover, by Carson-Hayman; Davy Crockett by Bruns-Hayman.

297 HIGH STREET
DEDHAM, MASS.

WALTHAM, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 13,413

JUN 2 1955

Irish Pops Night Being Arranged By Eire Society

A Dublin-born tenor, Hubert Valentine, will be featured soloist with the Boston Pops Orchestra on Friday, June 10, when Michael Bowles, Ireland's foremost symphony conductor, as guest, takes over the baton on Eire Society night.

In the presentation of Faust this season by the LaScala Opera Company of Philadelphia, Hubert Valentine was the first native-born Irishman in 35 years to sing a lead role in grand opera.

Valentine was, prior to his coming to this country, the leading tenor of Radio Eireann. He has made several appearances in Boston.

The musical program is being arranged for the Eire Society in consultation with the Pops conductor, Arthur Fiedler. A large committee from all over Greater Boston is active in the affair. The Eire Society will take over the main floor at Symphony Hall that evening for its members and guests.

—o—

The Eire Society will take over the main floor of Symphony Hall that evening for its members and guests. Reservations are available to anyone who would enjoy a program of Pops with a distinctly Irish flavor.

ROCKLAND, Mass.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Republican
Duxbury Pilgrim
ROCKLAND, Mass.
Herald
SCITUATE, Mass.
Cohasset Cottager
ROCKLAND, Mass.
Pembroke Colonist
ROCKLAND, Mass.
Weekly

JUN 2 1955

Realtors' Boston Pops Scheduled for June 20

Music-loving realtors will have their night at the Boston Pops on June 20, it was announced today by Samuel P. Backman, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association. The organization has reserved one-half the floor of Symphony Hall for house of realtors, their families and friends on th...

Indian Grown Each 10¢
Fresh Beef T
Fresh Lobste
LIVE CHICK
$1.19 Pound
Well Trimmed
RUM
Swift's Pre
STEA
S.

Pops Concerts

Continued from Page One

Friday evening, June 3, at 8:30 o'clock — Boston University Night.

Saturday evening, June 4, at 8:30 o'clock — Wedding March from "Le Coq d'Or" by Rimsky-Korsakoff; Overture to "Die Fledermous" by Strauss; Largo al Factotum from "The Barber of Seville" by Rossini; Romanian Rhapsody no. 1 by Enesco; Andante Cantabile from String Quartet Op. 11 by Tchaikovsky; Bolero by Ravel; Bugler's Holiday by Anderson and The Thunderer, March, by Sousa.

Sunday evening, June 5, at 8:30 o'clock—The Princess Elizabeth March by Coates; Suite from "Les Sylphides" by Chopin; Overture to "Russian and Ludmilla" by Glinka; Marche Slave by Tschaikovsky; Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 2 in C minor, Op. 18 by Rachmaninoff; Massachusetts First Lady's Waltz by the Honorable Vincent Mottola; Popsorama arranged by Mason; Let 'r Go, Lover, by Carson-Hayman; Davy Crockett by Bruns-Hayman.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Telegram (m)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 55,423

JUN 1 1955

CO-CHAIRMAN

Miss Doris A. Frye who is co-chairman for the Massachusetts Council of Young Republican Clubs' 19th annual "Republican Night at the Pops" Sunday at 8.30 at Symphony Hall, Boston. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra. Miss Frye is president of Young People's Republican Club of Worcester. Chairman for the program is Joel M. Mahoney of Boston.

ADVERTISEMENT

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sun (e)
LOWELL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 40,726

JUN 2 1955

AND HAVE YOU HEARD

By JOAN L. TURNER

The Boston Pops concerts in Symphony Hall, an annual attraction for many Lowellians, was particularly well frequented on nights in the Lowell part at last week-end's performances were Dr. and Mrs. Leva Peloquin, Mrs. William Fenwick and her daughter, Mary; Miss Elaine Gariepy, Miss Germaine Peloquin, Mrs. Lottie Rival and her daughter, Joan, Miss Mary [illegible] B. Lyons and Dr. William F. Stanton of New York, Prof. [illegible] Hastings of Staten Island, N. Y., Miss Mary Libbey and Edward Garland, Rev. Frederick Connors, SJ, of North Carolina, Dr. and Mrs. Francis Burns, Miss Elizabeth Coyne and Miss Estelle Maguire.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Ware River News
WARE, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 2933

JUN 2 1955

Graduates

Miss Beverly Irving

Miss Beverly Irving, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Irving of 26 Chestnut street, will be graduated today from Walnut Hill School, Natick. She is a member of the French Club, the Glee Club, and the Footlighters, and is on the staff of the Blue Pencil. She was among those selected to sing with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Spring Music Festival Chorus of Preparatory Schools at Symphony Hall, Boston. She has also been active in all school sports.

Miss Irving will enter Lake Erie College, Ohio, in September.

Inc. nd 2-4200
, Mass.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 16,250 free
JUN 2

Noted Irish Tenor Soloist With Pops

Dublin born tenor, Hubert Valentine, will be the featured soloist with the Boston Pops Orchestra on Friday, June 10, when Michael Bowles, Ireland's foremost symphony conductor, as guest, takes over the baton on Eire Society night.

In the presentation of Faust this season by the LaScala Opera Company of Philadelphia, Hubert Valentine was the first native born Irishman in 35 years to sing a lead role in Grand Opera.

A student of Dr. Vincent O'Brien, noted teacher of the late John McCormack, Valentine was, prior to his coming to this country, the leading tenor of Radio Eireann. He is well known to concert goers in America and has made several appearances in Boston. He interrupted a concert tour in this country at the time of World War II to serve with our armed forces in the Pacific.

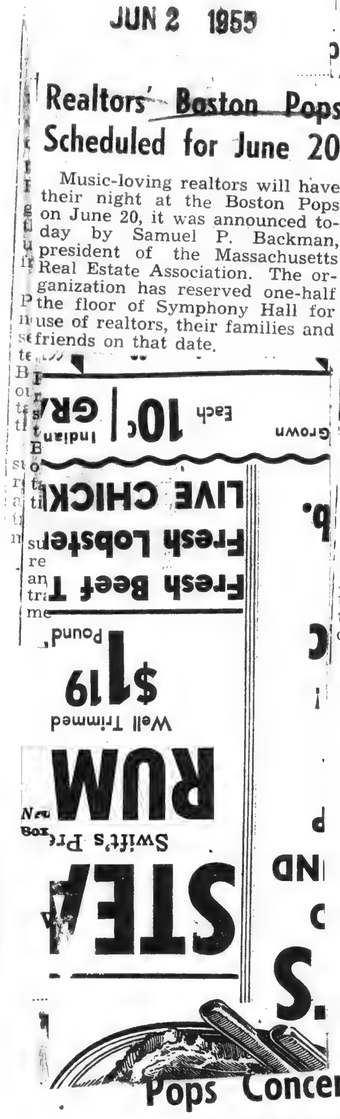
The musical program is being arranged for the Eire Society by John P. McGrail of Clinton, John P. Cavanaugh of Brighton and Catherine Madden of Hyde Park in consultation with Pops Conductor Arthur Fiedler. Martin A. O'Malley of Quincy is general chairan of the committee. Joseph Gannon of Brookline heads the program committee. Mrs. James P. McElwee of Brookline is in charge of reservations and a large committee from all over Greater Boston is active in the affair.

The Eire Society will take over the main floor of Symphony Hall that evening for its members and guests. Reservations are available to anyone who would enjoy a program of Pops with a distinctly Irish flavor.

ROCKLAND, Mass.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● Richmond
Republican
Duxbury Pilgrim
ROCKLAND, Mass.
Herald
SCITUATE, Mass.
Cohasset Cottager
ROCKLAND, Mass.
Pembroke Colonist
ROCKLAND, Mass.
Weekly
JUN 2 1955

Realtors' Boston Pops Scheduled for June 20

Music-loving realtors will have their night at the Boston Pops on June 20, it was announced today by Samuel P. Backman, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association. The organization has reserved one-half the floor of Symphony Hall for use of realtors, their families and friends on that date.



Pops Concerts

Continued from Page One

Friday evening, June 3, at 8:30 o'clock — Boston University Night.

Saturday evening, June 4, at 8:30 o'clock — Wedding March from "Le Coq d'Or" by Rimsky-Korsakoff; Overture to "Die Fledermous" by Strauss; Largo al Factotum from "The Barber of Seville" by Rossini; Romanian Rhapsody no. 1 by Enesco; Andante Cantabile from String Quartet Op. 11 by Tchaikovsky; Bolero by Ravel; Bugler's Holiday by Anderson and The Thunderer, March, by Sousa.

Sunday evening, June 5, at 8:30 o'clock—The Princess Elizabeth March by Coates; Suite from "Les Sylphides" by Chopin; Overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla" by Glinka; Marche Slave by Tschaikovsky; Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 2 in C minor, Op. 18 by Rachmaninoff; Massachusetts First Lady's Waltz by the Honorable Vincent Mottola; Popsorama arranged by Mason; Let 'r Go, Lover, by Carson-Hayman; Davy Crockett by Bruns-Hayman.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Telegram (m)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 55,423
JUN 1 1955

CO-CHAIRMAN

Miss Doris A. Frye who is co-chairman for the Massachusetts Council of Young Republican Clubs' 19th annual "Republican Night at the Pops" Sunday at 8.30 at Symphony Hall, Boston. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra. Miss Frye is president of Young People's Republican Club of Worcester. Chairman for the program is ael M. Mahoney of Boston.

ADVERTISE

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Sun (e)
LOWELL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 40,726
JUN 2 1955

AND HAVE YOU HEARD

By JOAN L. TURNER

The Boston Pops concerts in Symphony hall, an annual attraction for many Lowellians, was particularly well frequented on Massachusetts State Teachers college and St. Elizabeth's hospital nights. In the Lowell part at last week-end's performances were Dr. and Mrs. Leva Peloquin, Mrs. William Finnick and her daughter, Mary; Miss Elaine Gariepy, Miss Germaine Peloquin, Mrs. Lottie Rival and her daughter, Joan, Miss Marg[illegible] B. Lyons and Dr. William F. Stanton of New York, Prof. [illegible] Hastings of Staten Island, N. Y., Miss Mary Libbey and Edward Garland, Rev. Frederick Connors, SJ, of North Carolina, Dr. and Mrs. Francis Burns, Miss Elizabeth Coyne and Miss Estelle Maguire.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Ware River News
WARE, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 2933
JUN 2 1955

Graduates

Miss Beverly Irving

Miss Beverly Irving, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Irving of 26 Chestnut street, will be graduated today from Walnut Hill School, Natick. She is a member of the French Club, the Glee Club, and the Footlighters, and is on the staff of the Blue Pencil. She was among those selected to sing with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Spring Music Festival Chorus of Preparatory Schools at Symphony Hall, Boston. She has also been active in all school sports. 047

Miss Irving will enter Lake Erie College, Ohio, in September.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

JUN 2 1955

POPS COMMITTEE—Shown above are members of the Histadrut "Pops" Concert Committee who will make final plans for the annual salute to Israel Night to be held Thursday evening, June 16, at Symphony Hall. All proceeds will again apply to the health program of the Histadrut, Kupat Holim, a medical service which provides free medical attention for all the new immigrants during their first few months in Israel. Left to right: (seated) Frank Casty, Alexander Shapiro, secretary-treasurer; Sam Shapiro, chairman; Aaron Moldow, Abe Hamlin, director, and Daniel Shapiro; (standing) Abe Shapiro, Max Sterman, Zelik Entin, Max Landy, Frank Grossman, Hyman Green, Joshua Guberman, Saul Cohen, Harold Katz, Irving Heisler and Edward Tumaroff.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 2 1955

Mineko Sasahara rehearses for her appearance at the Pops Sunday night, when she will play Rachmaninov's Piano Concerto No. 2.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Patriot-Ledger (e)
QUINCY, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Gazette (e)
WORCESTER, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Patriot (e)
BANGOR, Me.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Standard-Times (e)
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068

News (e)
BURLINGTON, Vt.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Post (e)
BRIDGEPORT, Conn.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 27,538

JUN 3 1955

Et Tu, Pops

BOSTON (UP)—A Symphony Hall audience will hear a world premiere Sunday night. The Boston Pops Orchestra will introduce a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy [illegible]."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

JUN 2 1955

POPS COMMITTEE—Shown above are members of the Histadrut "Pops" Concert Committee who will make final plans for the annual salute to Israel Night to be held Thursday evening, June 16, at Symphony Hall. All proceeds will again apply to the health program of the Histadrut, Kupat Holim, a medical service which provides free medical attention for all the new immigrants during their first few months in Israel. Left to right: (seated) Frank Casty, Alexander Shapiro, secretary-treasurer; Sam Shapiro, chairman; Aaron Moldow, Abe Hamlin, director, and Daniel Shapiro; (standing) Abe Shapiro, Max Sterman, Zelik Entin, Max Landy, Frank Grossman, Hyman Green, Joshua Guberman, Saul Cohen, Harold Katz, Irving Heather and Edward Tumaroff.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 2 1955

Mineko Sasahara rehearses for her appearance at the Pops Sunday night, when she will play Rachmaninov's Piano Concerto No. 2.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Patriot-Ledger (e)
QUINCY, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Gazette (e)
WORCESTER, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Patriot (e)

before a big [illegible] audience anyway—and pitched a no-hitter, striking out 11 batters and pacing

BRIDGEPORT, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 76,589

JUN 3 1955

A DAVY SYMPHONY

BOSTON, June 3—(UP) A Symphony hall audience will hear a world premiere Sunday night. The Boston Pops orchestra will introduce a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

JUN 2 1955

POPS COMMITTEE—Shown above are members of the Histadrut "Pops" Concert Committee who will make final plans for the annual salute to Israel Night to be held Thursday evening, June 16, at Symphony Hall. All proceeds will again apply to the health program of the Histadrut, Kupat Holim, a medical service which provides free medical attention for all the new immigrants during their first few months in Israel. Left to right: (seated) Frank Casty, Alexander Shapiro, secretary-treasurer; Sam Shapiro, chairman; Aaron Moldow, Abe Hanlin, director, and Daniel Shapiro; (standing) Abe Shapiro, Max Sterman, Zelik Entin, Max Landy, Frank Grossman, Hyman Green, Joshua Guberman, Saul Cohen, Harold Katz, Irving Kessler and Edward Tumaroff.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 2 1955

Mineko Sasahara rehearses for her appearance at the Pops Sunday night, when she will play Rachmaninov's Piano Concerto No. 2.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Patriot-Ledger (e)
QUINCY, Mass.

Independent
Circ. 6,584

JUN 3 1955

Creeping Crockettism

BOSTON — (UP) — A symphony hall audience will hear a world premier Sunday night.

The Boston Pops Orchestra will introduce a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

JUN 2 1955

POPS COMMITTEE—Shown above are members of the Histadrut "Pops" Concert Committee who will make final plans for the annual salute to Israel Night to be held Thursday evening, June 16, at Symphony Hall. All proceeds will again apply to the health program of the Histadrut, Kupat Holim, a medical service which provides free medical attention for all the new immigrants during their first few months in Israel. Left to right: (seated) Frank Casty, Alexander Shapiro, secretary-treasurer; Sam Shapiro, chairman; Aaron Moldow, Abe Hamlin, director, and Daniel Shapiro; (standing) Abe Shapiro, Max Sterman, Zelik Entin, Max Lahdy, Frank Grossman, Hyman Green, Joshua Guberman, Saul Cohen, Harold Katz, Irving Hendler and Edward Tumaroff.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 2 1955

Mineko Sasahara rehearses for her appearance at the Pops Sunday night, when she will play Rachmaninov's Piano Concerto No. 2.

Independent
Circ. 58,894

JUN 3 1955

Pops to Play 'Davy Crockett'

BOSTON, June 3 (UP)—A Symphony Hall audience will hear a world premiere Sunday night. The Boston Pops Orchestra will introduce a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

JUN 2 1955

POPS COMMITTEE—Shown above are members of the Histadrut "Pops" Conce
who will make final plans for the annual salute to Israel Night to be held Thur
June 16, at Symphony Hall. All proceeds will again apply to the health pr Histadrut, Kupat Holim, a medical service which provides free medical attenti new immigrants during their first few months in Israel. Left to right: (seated Alexander Shapiro, secretary-treasurer; Sam Shapiro, chairman; Aaron Moldow director, and Daniel Shapiro; (standing) Abe Shapiro, Max Sterman, Zelik Enti Frank Grossman, Hyman Green, Joshua Guberman, Saul Cohen, Harold Katz, and Edward Tumaroff.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 2 1955

Mineko Sasahara rehearses for her appearance at the Pops Sunday 'night, when she will play Rachmaninov's Piano Concerto No. 2.

New Box

Ne
Bo

Ne
Box

Ne
Box

N
B

Independent
Circ. 26,246

JUN 3 1955

Symphony To Play Davy Crockett Number

BOSTON (U.P.)—A Symphony Hall audience will hear a world premiere Sunday night.

The Boston Pops Orchestra will introduce a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

Potpourri."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

JUN 2 1955

POPS COMMITTEE—Shown above are members of the Histadrut "Po who will make final plans for the annual salute to Israel Night to be June 16, at Symphony Hall. All proceeds will again apply to the Histadrut, Kupat Holim, a medical service which provides free medic new immigrants during their first few months in Israel. Left to right:
Alexander Shapiro, secretary-treasurer; Sam Shapiro, chairman; Aaron
director, and Daniel Shapiro; (standing) Abe Shapiro, Max Sterman, Ze
Frank Grossman, Hyman Green, Joshua Guberman, Saul Cohen, Harol
and Edward Tumaroff.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 2 1955

Mineko Sasahara rehearses for her appearance at the Pops Sunday night, when she will play Rachmaninov's Piano Concerto No. 2.

BANGOR, ME.
Independent
Circ. 20,000

JUN 4 1955

Shorey, chairmen.

Boston Pops to Play Ballad of Davy Crockett

BOSTON (UP)—A Symphony Hall audience will hear a world premiere Sunday night.

The Boston Pops Orchestra will introduce a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

FIRESIDE GROUP MEETS

The Lincoln Library Fireside [illegible] at Symphony Hall Sunday evening. The songs are: "Davy Grockett," "Let-er Go, Lover" and "TV Potpourri."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

JUN 2 1955

POPS COMMITTEE—Shown above are members of the Histadrut " who will make final plans for the annual salute to Israel Night to b
June 16, at Symphony Hall. All proceeds will again apply to th Histadrut, Kupat Holim, a medical service which provides free med new immigrants during their first few months in Israel. Left to rig Alexander Shapiro, secretary-treasurer; Sam Shapiro, chairman; Aar director, and Daniel Shapiro; (standing) Abe Shapiro, Max Sterman, Frank Grossman, Hyman Green, Joshua Guberman, Saul Cohen, Har
and Edward Tumaroff.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 2 1955

Mineko Sasahara rehearses for her appearance at the Pops Sunday night, when she will play Rachmaninov's Piano Concerto No. 2.

WORCESTER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 101,022

JUN 3 1955

Pops to Play "Davy"

BOSTON, June 3 (UP) — A Symphony Hall audience will hear a world premiere Sunday night.

The Boston Pops Orchestra will introduce a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

should go on tour and meet his many fans. His newest record, "High Tide Boogie," is certain to keep his name before the public.

Winthrop's Dick Hayman is in Boston this week and Richard reports that he has arranged three songs that will be presented by Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra at Symphony Hall Sunday evening. The songs are: "Davy Crockett," "Let-er Go, Lover" and "TV Potpourri."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

JUN 2 1959

POPS COMMITTEE—Shown above are members of the Histadrut "P who will make final plans for the annual salute to Israel Night to be June 16, at Symphony Hall. All proceeds will again apply to the Histadrut, Kupat Holim, a medical service which provides free medi
new immigrants during their first few months in Israel. Left to right Alexander Shapiro, secretary-treasurer; Sam Shapiro, chairman; Aaro director, and Daniel Shapiro; (standing) Abe Shapiro, Max Sterman, Z
Frank Grossman, Hyman Green, Joshua Guberman, Saul Cohen, Harol
and Edward Tumaroff.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 2 1955

Mineko Sasahara rehearses for her appearance at the Pops Sunday night, when she will play Rachmaninov's Piano Concerto No. 2.

[illegible], Mass.
Independent
Circ. 37,681

JUN 3 1955

Davy Crockett To Get Symphonic Treatment At Pops

BOSTON, June 3 (UP)—A Symphony Hall audience will hear a world premiere Sunday night.

The Boston Pops Orchestra will introduce a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

Richard Maltby is a real big gun at Label X records and during the past year his work has become so popular and his records so well known that the outfit decided Richard should go on tour and meet his many fans. His newest record, "High Tide Boogie," is certain to keep his name before the public.

Winthrop's Dick Hayman is in Boston this week and Richard reports that he has arranged three songs that will be presented by Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra at Symphony Hall Sunday evening. The songs are: "Davy Crockett," "Let-er Go, Lover" and "TV Potpourri."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

JUN 2 1955

POPS COMMITTEE—Shown above are members of the Histadrut "Po
who will make final plans for the annual salute to Israel Night to be June 16, at Symphony Hall. All proceeds will again apply to the Histadrut, Kupat Holim, a medical service which provides free medica
new immigrants during their first few months in Israel. Left to right:
Alexander Shapiro, secretary-treasurer; Sam Shapiro, chairman; Aaron
director, and Daniel Shapiro; (standing) Abe Shapiro, Max Sterman, Ze
Frank Grossman, Hyman Green, Joshua Guberman, Saul Cohen, Harol
and Edward Tumaroff.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 2 1955

Mineko Sasahara rehearses for her appearance at the Pops Sunday night, when she will play Rachmaninov's Piano Concerto No. 2.

Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

JUN 3 1955

Off Records

By JOHNNY MACK

"Prize of Gold" is a movie that's currently making the rounds at the local theaters and it's also the title of a very pretty song. We've heard Joan Regan's London recording of "Prize of Gold" and think it's a fine record. Other well known artists have recorded the song but if you don't buy records, you'll hear it played in the movie.

Richard Maltby is a real big gun at Label X records and during the past year his work has become so popular and his records so well known that the outfit decided Richard should go on tour and meet his many fans. His newest record, "High Tide Boogie," is certain to keep his name before the public.

Winthrop's Dick Hayman is in Boston this week and Richard reports that he has arranged three songs that will be presented by Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra at Symphony Hall Sunday evening. The songs are: "Davy Crockett," "Let-er Go, Lover" and "TV Potpourri."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
East Boston Leader
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

Irish Conductor for Pops; Jazz Night for the Festival

Michael Bowles, one of Ireland's foremost conductors, will make a guest appearance at the Boston Eire Society's night at the Pops on Friday evening, June 10.

A native of Sligo, he first gained prominence as a band master for the Irish Army. He had then just passed his 21st birthday. His talent was quickly recognized and he was sent by the Army to the National University of Ireland for further study and training. He shortly became the music director of Radio Eireann and later the founder and conductor of Dublin's first full-sized symphony orchestra since Ireland became a nation.

In 1948 he accepted guest engagements as conductor for the BBC Symphony Orchestra in London, the Rome University Orchestra, and the national orchestras at Brussels and Stockholm.

From 1950 to 1953 he devoted his time to conducting and improving symphony orchestras in New Zealand and Australia. He has recently completed engagements with the Canadian Broadcasting Orchestra in Toronto.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872
JUN 3 1955

Willis Page, assistant conductor of the Buffalo Philharmonic, will be guest conductor at the Pops Monday night.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593
JUN 3 1955

Piano Soloist

MINEKO SASAHARA, California Japanese pianist, will appear Sunday night at the Boston Pops for the Pension Fund in Rachmaninoff Second Concerto.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Recorder-Gazette (e)
GREENFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 12,390
JUN 3 1955

Symphonic Triumph

A symphony orchestra with money in the bank is a curiosity. Our own Pioneer Valley Symphony, Inc., not only becomes a rarity in the land of economic plenty, but is envied by organizations far greater in size and scope which would consider $1,111 in the till a bonanza.

Sixteen rough-and-tumble years have left the local group this sum in checking and savings accounts after a season which yielded a profit of $121. Since this followed one with a net loss of $700, the sudden recovery demands a bit of explanation.

Balancing budgets is a matter of business. Unfortunately those generally associated with music and the arts are not materialistic. It is also difficult to wed the two ideals into a union in which both will flourish. This is one reason why the living drama has withdrawn from all except the largest cities and strategic country areas in the form of summer theater.

A profit in music, especially that commonly described as "long hair," is as elusive as a cool breeze on a hot summer day. Survival requires a shrewd business enterprise which even 16 years' experience cannot guarantee. Nevertheless, the organization here has learned through a system of trial and error that it can be done and certainly must be, if the ideal is to live.

The way to make money with music is through cooperation. Everyone associated with the project must work a little harder than he expects. Everyone must give a little more, take a little less, and try a little harder. For instance, a lot of money here has been saved by a group of women donating food and service for the dress rehearsal supper prior to each symphony concert. Another interested woman has contributed doughnuts for each of the weekly rehearsal "break" periods.

Some money has been made by raising the price of admission. Players who have given their time have helped. Holding even essential expenses to the minimum has reduced the debits.

There is, however, a limit to cutting. The future rests on the ability of the organization to increase receipts. There must be more sales of season tickets, more contributions from "friends", business sponsors, and sustaining members. It is through the interest of these latter that the symphony has lived. The generosity of the community has been phenomenal in the light of what has been done in others. Even Springfield, a city many times greater than ours, has been unable to get out of the "red." And Boston's renowned symphony faces each year with doubt in one eye and financial blindness in the other.

It must be the duty of the handful of symphony workers henceforth to interest more people in the value of the organization, in the opportunity of hearing good music as presented by symphony and soloists, and in the need for financial support through ticket sales and gifts. It can be assumed from the record that the community already understands. If we are to have another 16 years of remarkable home-grown concerts, however, no one must be allowed to forget.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Dorchester-Roxbury Record
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 10,350 Free
JUN 3 1955

Histadrut "Pops" Concert Committee planning Annual salute to Israel Night, Thursday evening, June 16 at Symphony Hall, Boston. Sitting left to right: Frank Casty; Alexander Shapiro, Secretary-Treasurer; Sam Shapiro, Chairman; Aaron Moldaw; Abe Hamlin, Director; Daniel Shapiro. Standing left to right: Abe Shapiro, Max Sterman, Zelik Entin, Max Landy, Frank Grossman, Hyman Green, Joshua Guberman, Saul Cohen, Harold Katz, Irving Kessler, Edward Tumaroff. In addition to those shown above, the Committee includes Mr. Carl Cohen, Harry Gerber, Hyman Glass, Alfred Goldis, Max Lefkovitz, Morris Lichter, Israel Polansky, Oscar Sterman and Jobi Wigon.

PASTE OVER

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 2,985

JUN 3 1955

Featured Soloist On Eire Soc. Ngiht At Boston Pops

Dublin born tenor, Hubert Valentine, will be the featured soloist with the Boston Pops Orchestra on Friday, June 10, when Michael Bowles, Ireland's foremost symphony conductor, as guest, takes over the baton on Eire Society night.

In the presentation of Faust this season by the LaScala Opera Company of Philadelphia, Hubert Valentine was the first native born Irishman in 35 years to sing a lead role in Grand Opera.

A student of Dr. Vincent O'Brien, noted teacher of the late John McCormack, Valentine was, prior to his coming to this country, the leading tenor of Radio Sireann. He is well known to concert goers in America and has made several appearances

POPS CONCERT

(Continued to Page 4)

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 3 1955

Willis Page, assistant conductor of the Buffalo Philharmonic, will be guest conductor at the Pops Monday night.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Recorder-Gazette (e)
GREENFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 12,390

JUN 3 1955

Symphonic Triumph

A symphony orchestra with money in the bank is a curiosity. Our own Pioneer Valley Symphony, Inc., not only becomes a rarity in the land of economic plenty, but is envied by organizations far greater in size and scope which would consider $1,111 in the till a bonanza.

Sixteen rough-and-tumble years have left the local group this sum in checking and savings accounts after a season which yielded a profit of $121. Since this followed one with a net loss of $700, the sudden recovery demands a bit of explanation.

Balancing budgets is a matter of business. Unately those generally associated with music arts are not materialistic. It is also diffithe two ideals into a union in which This is one reason why the livrawn from all except the largountry areas in the form hat commonly de- ive as a cool requires a years' , the or- system of nd certainly usic is through with the project ne expects. Every- ke a little less, and ance, a lot of money here has been saved by a group of women donating food and service for the dress rehearsal supper prior to each symphony concert. Another interested woman has contributed doughnuts for each of the weekly rehearsal "break" periods.

Some money has been made by raising the price of admission. Players who have given their time have helped. Holding even essential expenses to the minimum has reduced the debits.

There is, however, a limit to cutting. The future rests on the ability of the organization to increase receipts. There must be more sales of season tickets, more contributions from "friends", business sponsors, and sustaining members. It is through the interest of these latter that the symphony has lived. The generosity of the community has been phenomenal in the light of what has been done in others. Even Springfield, a city many times greater than ours, has been unable to get out of the "red." And Boston's renowned symphony faces each year with doubt in one eye and financial blindness in the other.

It must be the duty of the handful of symphony workers henceforth to interest more people in the value of the organization, in the opportunity of hearing good music as presented by symphony and soloists, and in the need for financial support through ticket sales and gifts. It can be assumed from the record that the community already understands. If we are to have another 16 years of remarkable home-grown concerts, however, no one must be allowed to forget.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

JUN 3 1955

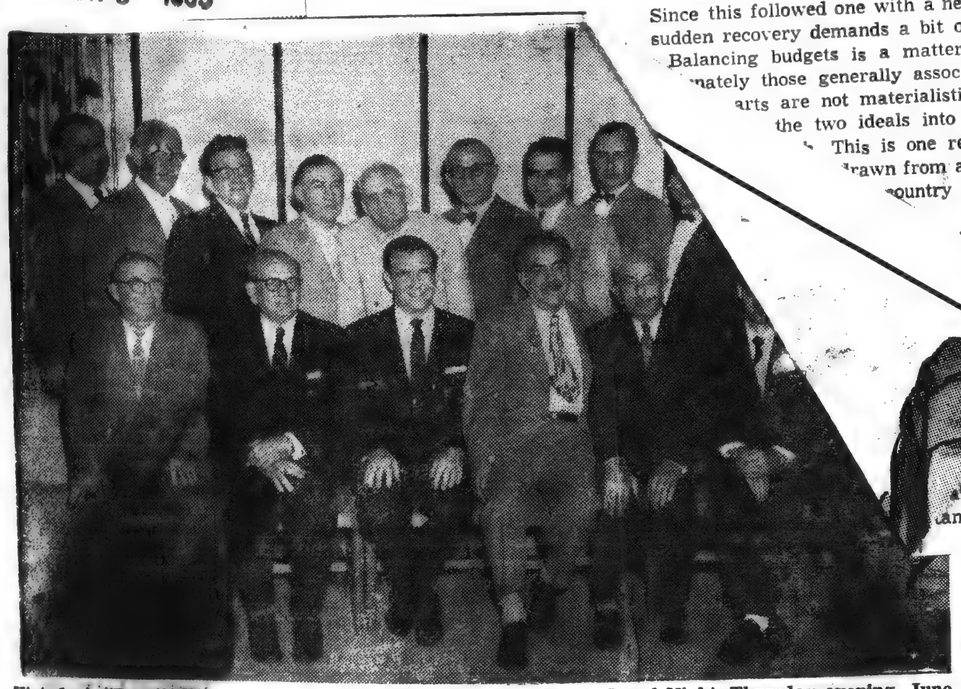
Piano Soloist

MINEKO SASAHARA, California Japanese pianist, will appear Sunday night at the Boston Pops for the Pension Fund in Rachmaninoff Second Concerto.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Dorchester-Roxbury Record
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 10,350 Free

JUN 3 1955



Histadrut "Pops" Concert Committee planning Annual salute to Israel Night, Thursday evening, June 16 at Symphony Hall, Boston. Sitting left to right: Frank Casty; Alexander Shapiro, Secretary-Treasurer; Sam Shapiro, Chairman; Aaron Moldaw; Abe Hamlin, Director; Daniel Shapiro. Standing left to right: Abe Shapiro, Max Sterman, Zelik Entin, Max Landy, Frank Grossman, Hyman Green, Joshua Guberman, Saul Cohen, Harold Katz, Irving Kessler, Edward Tumaroff. In addition to those shown above, the Committee includes Mr. Carl Cohen, Harry Gerber, Hyman Glass, Alfred Goldis, Max Lefkovitz, Morris Lichter, Israel Polansky, Oscar Sterman and Joba Wigon.

PASTE OVER

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 3 1955

Willis Page, assistant conductor of the Buffalo Philharmonic, will be guest conductor at the Pops Monday night.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

JUN 3 1955

Piano Soloist

MINEKO SASAHARA, California Japanese pianist, will appear Sunday night at the Boston Pops for the Pension Fund in Rachmaninoff Second Concerto.

POPS CONCERT
(Continued from Page One)

in Boston. He interrupted a concert tour in this country at the time of World War II to serve with our armed forces in the Pacific. Valentine is a Victor recording artist.

The Eire Society will take over the main floor of Symphony Hall that evening for its members and guests. Reservations are available to anyone who would enjoy a program of Pops with a distinctly Irish flavor.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Recorder-~~Gazette~~ (e)
GREENFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 12,390

JUN 3 1965

Symphonic Triumph

A symphony orchestra with money in the bank is a curiosity. Our own Pioneer Valley Symphony, Inc., not only becomes a rarity in the land of economic plenty, but is envied by organizations far greater in size and scope which would consider $1,111 in the till a bonanza.

Sixteen rough-and-tumble years have left the local group this sum in checking and savings accounts after a season which yielded a profit of $121. Since this followed one with a net loss of $700, the sudden recovery demands a bit of explanation.

Balancing budgets is a matter of business. Unnately those generally associated with music arts are not materialistic. It is also difficthe two ideals into a union in which This is one reason why the livdrawn from all except the largcountry areas in the form hat commonly de- ive as a cool requires a years' , the or- system of nd certainly usic is through with the project ne expects. Every- ake a little less, and tance, a lot of money here has been saved by a group of women donating food and service for the dress rehearsal supper prior to each symphony concert. Another interested woman has contributed doughnuts for each of the weekly rehearsal "break" periods.

Some money has been made by raising the price of admission. Players who have given their time have helped. Holding even essential expenses to the minimum has reduced the debits.

There is, however, a limit to cutting. The future rests on the ability of the organization to increase receipts. There must be more sales of season tickets, more contributions from "friends", business sponsors, and sustaining members. It is through the interest of these latter that the symphony has lived. The generosity of the community has been phenomenal in the light of what has been done in others. Even Springfield, a city many times greater than ours, has been unable to get out of the "red." And Boston's renowned symphony faces each year with doubt in one eye and financial blindness in the other.

It must be the duty of the handful of symphony workers henceforth to interest more people in the value of the organization, in the opportunity of hearing good music as presented by symphony and soloists, and in the need for financial support through ticket sales and gifts. It can be assumed from the record that the community already understands. If we are to have another 16 years of remarkable home-grown concerts, however, no one must be allowed to forget.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Dorchester-Roxbury Record
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 10,350 Free

JUN 3 1965

Histadrut "Pops" Concert Committee planning Annual salute to Israel Night, Thursday evening, June 16 at Symphony Hall, Boston. Sitting left to right: Frank Casty; Alexander Shapiro, Secretary-Treasurer; Sam Shapiro, Chairman; Aaron Moldaw; Abe Hamlin, Director; Daniel Shapiro. Standing left to right: Abe Shapiro, Max Sterman, Zelik Entin, Max Landy, Frank Grossman, Hyman Green, Joshua Guberman, Saul Cohen, Harold Katz, Irving Kessler, Edward Tumaroff. In addition to those shown above, the Committee includes Mr. Carl Cohen, Harry Gerber, Hyman Glass, Alfred Goldis, Max Lefkovitz, Morris Lichter, Israel Polansky, Oscar Sterman and Joba Wigon.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 391,167

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

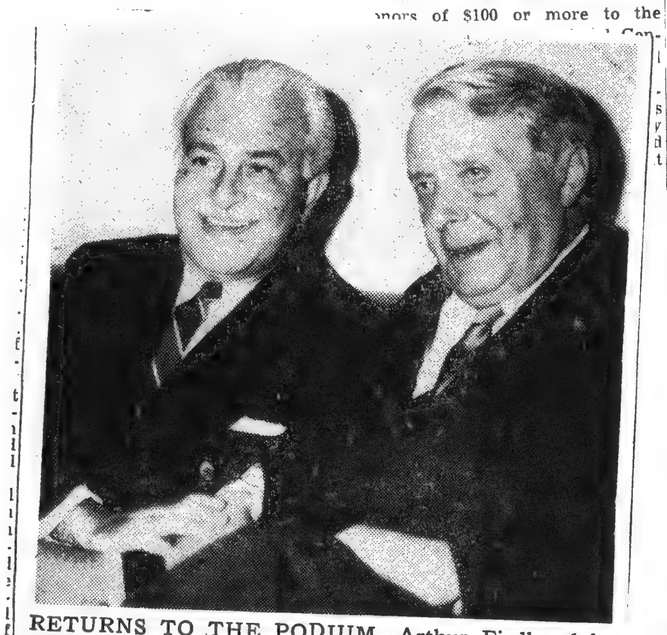
New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

JUN 4 1955

prise Debut
t at Pops

Pres. and Mrs. Case entertained ...nors of $100 or more to the ...



RETURNS TO THE PODIUM—Arthur Fiedler, left, who conducted Boston Pops for first time this season last night, with Charles Munch, Boston Symphony conductor, who flew here from Europe in time for the concert.

...at Osgood Hill, dinner at Shelton Hall and the Pops.

Speakers at the concert were Dr. Frank E. Barton, retiring alumni president and Harold C. Case, university president. Community singing was led by Dr. James R. Houghton and piano soloist was Eleanor Ho, Hawaiian student who will graduate tomorrow.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 4 1955

Marginal Note On Stravinsky

By W. Pierce Sheppard
Frankfurt

"They didn't recognize even the notes," said Igor Stravinsky in a slightly injured tone, but there was a twinkle in his eye. Then he asked mischievously, "What can I think about the writers?"

He and his wife were stopping briefly at Frankfurt's handsome new Rhein-Main airport while on his way home to California from a seven-week visit in Europe. He was speaking about his "Greeting Prelude for the 80th Birthday of Pierre Monteux," first performed in Boston in April by the Boston Symphony Orchestra on the occasion of the eminent conductor's anniversary, and rather enjoying the fact that critics missed the point of his little musical tribute.

"They didn't know I made a piece of 'Happy Birthday to You,'" he explained, singing the tune in his husky bass-baritone.

Stravinsky appeared at concerts in Madrid, Rome, Lugano, Baden-Baden, and Mannheim, and Mrs. Stravinsky had the first European exhibition of her paintings in Rome.

Asked about his composing, Mr. Stravinsky confided that he is already at work on the score of an abstract ballet for the New York City Center, with choreography to be done by his old friend George Balanchine. It will employ only 12 dancers and a chamber orchestra. "It is called 'Agon,' which means contest," he said.

He had in his pocket an unsigned contract for a new work for next year's Biennale in Venice. It will be on a religious subject with a Biblical text in Latin, using soloists, chorus, and orchestra. The composer spent two days in Venice on this trip and tried out the acoustics of churches there as a preliminary to his composing.

KANSAS CITY MO. STAR
JUN 4 1955

CHARLES MUNCH OF THE BOSTON SYMPHONY TO DEFENSE OF ORCHESTRA CONDUCTORS

CONDUCTING A SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA INVOLVES TOIL AND SELF-DISCIPLINE, REFLECTED HERE IN THE WORN AND SOMBER EXPRESSION OF CONDUCTOR CHARLES MUNCH.

I AM A CONDUCTOR, by Charles Munch (104 pages; Oxford University Press, New York; $2.75).

THE maestros at last have a spokesman to put into words, with the eloquence they try to put into symphonic music, a defense of the profession of conducting.

Charles Munch, the French-born conductor of the great Boston orchestra, writing with the authority he bears as a proven man of music, says we shouldn't call conducting a profession. In his recent book, neatly translated from the French by Leonard Burkat, Munch says:

"It is not a profession at all but a sacred calling, sometimes a priesthood, and often even a disease, a disease from which the only escape is death."

The attributes necessary, he says, are "an inner exaltation, an all-consuming flame, and a magnetism that can bewitch both the musicians of his orchestra and the audience come to hear his music-making."

So it would seem that even the Symphony of the Air, formerly Toscanini's N. B. C. orchestra, cannot hope to continue indefinitely without a permanent conductor up there on the podium. As a matter of fact, on its present tour of Japan and the Far East, there are two or three guest maestros trading turns.

Munch observes: "The public cannot imagine the conductor's ant-like labors, the obligations he accepts and the discipline he imposes on himself . . . This unremitting toil to which I have bound myself has taught me a lesson in compassion."

The book is a personal view of a difficult art, of interest both to music lover and musician. There are many excellent suggestions within its pages for any individual who feels an urge to become a conductor. The chances are, having read the book, he'll seek an easier and more thankful calling.

C. B. N.

SCARSDALE, N. Y.
INQUIRER
Circ. W. 4,681

JUN 3 1955

Class Leader

Miss Charlotte Pomeroy of Fox Meadow Rd., a freshman at Wheelock College, was chosen leader and director of her class in the all-class competitions for the May Day celebration for parents. She also appeared in the special choir presentations and with the Glee Club which performed during the Boston Pops Symphony program.

[77]

JUN 4 1955

Fiedler in Surprise Debut for B. U. Night at Pops

Boston University alumni last night shouted their approval as conducter Arthur Fiedler made a surprise 1955 Boston Pops debut at Symphony Hall.

Fiedler's first public appearance since his illness in March, and the presence of Boston Symphony conductor Charles Munch who flew here from Europe, highlighted B. U. Night at the Pops.

The celebrated Pops conductor, starting his 26th season with the orchestra, was not expected to resume his duties until tomorrow.

Some 1000 B. U. alumni will throng Commonwealth Armory tonight for the Sunset Supper, climactic event of three days of reunions, meetings and receptions.

Arthur Schuck, Chief Scout Executive of the National Council of Boy Scouts; Charles Farrell, motion picture and television star, and Teresa Fallon, executive of the National League for Nursing, will address the gathering.

Elections Tonight

Awards will be made to outstanding alumni and officers of the Alumni Association will be announced.

Among the guests of honor will be Dean-emeritus Everett W. Lord, first dean of the school's College of Business Administration, who is coming here from his Maine home.

Classes of 1930 and 1905 were honored yesterday at a clambake at Osgood Hill, dinner at Shelton Hall and the Pops.

Speakers at the concert were Dr. Frank E. Barton, retiring alumni president and Harold C. Case, university president. Community singing was led by Dr. James R. Houghton and piano soloist was Eleanor Ho, Hawaiian student who will graduate tomorrow.

Pres. and Mrs. Case entertained donors of $100 or more to the university at the traditional Century Club dinner at Shelton Hall before the concert.

Other activities yesterday included the College of Business Administration 25th anniversary dinner at the Hotel Somerset and an informal family reunion at Shelton Hall.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 5 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 4 1955

Marginal Note On Stravinsky

By W. Pierce Sheppard
Frankfurt

"They didn't recognize even the notes," said Igor Stravinsky in a slightly injured tone, but there was a twinkle in his eye. Then he asked mischievously, "What can I think about the writers?"

He and his wife were stopping briefly at Frankfurt's handsome new Rhein-Main airport while on his way home to California from a seven-week visit in Europe. He was speaking about his "Greeting Prelude for the 80th Birthday of Pierre Monteux," first performed in Boston in April by the Boston Symphony Orchestra on the occasion of the eminent conductor's anniversary, and rather enjoying the fact that critics missed the point of his little musical tribute.

"They didn't know I made a piece of 'Happy Birthday to You,'" he explained, singing the tune in his husky bass-baritone.

Stravinsky appeared at concerts in Madrid, Rome, Lugano, Baden-Baden, and Mannheim, and Mrs. Stravinsky had the first European exhibition of her paintings in Rome.

Asked about his composing, Mr. Stravinsky confided that he is already at work on the score of an abstract ballet for the New York City Center, with choreography to be done by his old friend George Balanchine. It will employ only 12 dancers and a chamber orchestra. "It is called 'Agon,' which means contest," he said.

He had in his pocket an unsigned contract for a new work for next year's Biennale in Venice. It will be on a religious subject with a Biblical text in Latin, using soloists, chorus, and orchestra. The composer spent two days in Venice on this trip and tried out the acoustics of churches there as a preliminary to his composing.

KANSAS CITY MO. STAR
JUN 4 1955

CHARLES MUNCH OF THE BOSTON SYMPHONY TO DEFENSE OF ORCHESTRA CONDUCTORS

CONDUCTING A SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA INVOLVES TOIL AND SELF-DISCIPLINE, REFLECTED HERE IN THE WORN AND SOMBER EXPRESSION OF CONDUCTOR CHARLES MUNCH.

I AM A CONDUCTOR, by Charles Munch (104 pages; Oxford University Press, New York; $2.75).

THE maestros at last have a spokesman to put into words, with the eloquence they try to put into symphonic music, a defense of the profession of conducting.

Charles Munch, the French-born conductor of the great Boston orchestra, writing with the authority he bears as a proven man of music, says we shouldn't call conducting a profession. In his recent book, neatly translated from the French by Leonard Burkat, Munch says:

"It is not a profession at all but a sacred calling, sometimes a priesthood, and often even a disease, a disease from which the only escape is death."

The attributes necessary, he says, are "an inner exaltation, an all-consuming flame, and a magnetism that can bewitch both the musicians of his orchestra and the audience come to hear his music-making."

So it would seem that even the Symphony of the Air, formerly Toscanini's N. B. C. orchestra, cannot hope to continue indefinitely without a permanent conductor up there on the podium. As a matter of fact, on its present tour of Japan and the Far East, there are two or three guest maestros trading turns.

Munch observes: "The public cannot imagine the conductor's ant-like labors, the obligations he accepts and the discipline he imposes on himself . . . This unremitting toil to which I have bound myself has taught me a lesson in compassion."

The book is a personal view of a difficult art, of interest both to music lover and musician. There are many excellent suggestions within its pages for any individual who feels an urge to become a conductor. The chances are, having read the book, he'll seek an easier and more thankful calling.

C. B. N.

SCARSDALE, N. Y.
INQUIRER
Circ. W. 4,681
JUN 3 1955

Class Leader

Miss Charlotte Pomeroy of Fox Meadow Rd., a freshman at Wheelock College, was chosen leader and director of her class in the all-class competitions for the May Day celebration for parents. She also appeared in the special choir presentations and with the Glee Club which performed during the Boston Pops Symphony program.

JUN 4 1955

ARTHUR FIEDLER
Conducts Sunday at Pops

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 5 • RIchmond 2-4200
Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872
JUN 4 1955

Marginal Note On Stravinsky

By W. Pierce Sheppard
Frankfurt

"They didn't recognize even the notes," said Igor Stravinsky in a slightly injured tone, but there was a twinkle in his eye. Then he asked mischievously, "What can I think about the writers?"

He and his wife were stopping briefly at Frankfurt's handsome new Rhein-Main airport while on his way home to California from a seven-week visit in Europe. He was speaking about his "Greeting Prelude for the 80th Birthday of Pierre Monteux," first performed in Boston in April by the Boston Symphony Orchestra on the occasion of the eminent conductor's anniversary, and rather enjoying the fact that critics missed the point of his little musical tribute.

"They didn't know I made a piece of 'Happy Birthday to You,'" he explained, singing the tune in his husky bass-baritone.

Stravinsky appeared at concerts in Madrid, Rome, Lugano, Baden-Baden, and Mannheim, and Mrs. Stravinsky had the first European exhibition of her paintings in Rome.

Asked about his composing, Mr. Stravinsky confided that he is already at work on the score of an abstract ballet for the New York City Center, with choreography to be done by his old friend George Balanchine. It will employ only 12 dancers and a chamber orchestra. "It is called 'Agon,' which means contest," he said.

He had in his pocket an unsigned contract for a new work for next year's Biennale in Venice. It will be on a religious subject with a Biblical text in Latin, using soloists, chorus, and orchestra. The composer spent two days in Venice on this trip and tried out the acoustics of churches there as a preliminary to his composing.

KANSAS CITY MO. STAR
JUN 4 1955

CHARLES MUNCH OF THE BOSTON SYMPHONY TO DEFENSE OF ORCHESTRA CONDUCTORS

CONDUCTING A SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA INVOLVES TOIL AND SELF-DISCIPLINE, REFLECTED HERE IN THE WORN AND SOMBER EXPRESSION OF CONDUCTOR CHARLES MUNCH.

I AM A CONDUCTOR, by Charles Munch (104 pages; Oxford University Press, New York; $2.75).

THE maestros at last have a spokesman to put into words, with the eloquence they try to put into symphonic music, a defense of the profession of conducting.

Charles Munch, the French-born conductor of the great Boston orchestra, writing with the authority he bears as a proven man of music, says we shouldn't call conducting a profession. In his recent book, neatly translated from the French by Leonard Burkat, Munch says:

"It is not a profession at all but a sacred calling, sometimes a priesthood, and often even a disease, a disease from which the only escape is death."

The attributes necessary, he says, are "an inner exaltation, an all-consuming flame, and a magnetism that can bewitch both the musicians of his orchestra and the audience come to hear his music-making."

So it would seem that even the Symphony of the Air, formerly Toscanini's N. B. C. orchestra, cannot hope to continue indefinitely without a permanent conductor up there on the podium. As a matter of fact, on its present tour of Japan and the Far East, there are two or three guest maestros trading turns.

Munch observes: "The public cannot imagine the conductor's ant-like labors, the obligations he accepts and the discipline he imposes on himself . . . This unremitting toil to which I have bound myself has taught me a lesson in compassion."

The book is a personal view of a difficult art, of interest both to music lover and musician. There are many excellent suggestions within its pages for any individual who feels an urge to become a conductor. The chances are, having read the book, he'll seek an easier and more thankful calling.

C. B. N.

SCARSDALE, N. Y.
INQUIRER
Circ. W. 4,681
JUN 3 1955

Class Leader

Miss Charlotte Pomeroy of Fox Meadow Rd., a freshman at Wheelock College, was chosen leader and director of her class in the all-class competitions for the May Day celebration for parents. She also appeared in the special choir presentations and with the Glee Club which performed during the Boston Pops Symphony program.

[77]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 357,463

JUN 5 1955

WILLIS PAGE, former Boston Symphony double-bass player and now conductor of the Buffalo, N. Y., Pops concerts, who will be guest conductor of the Boston Pops at Symphony Hall tomorrow night.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

JUN 5 1955

s Programs to Pops Tonight to his d last t the will rt with three he first soloist

the of the visit omor-s also guest rsday been each ublic.

abeth
Sylsslan lave.
con-
Or-achra);
ton.
by day-
h.

ure hin;
La

Korsakoff; Rhapsody in Blue, Gershwin (soloist: Leo Litwin); George M. Cohan Medley, Arr by Bodge; The Typewriter, Anderson; Fast Track, E. Strauss.

Tuesday, Knights Templars Night—Boston Commandery March, Carter; Overture to "Oberon," Weber; On the Trail from "Grand Canyon Suite," Grofe; Feriana, Rhapsody, Chabrier;

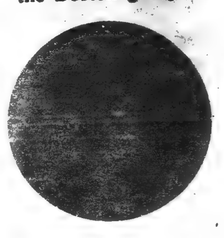
WILLIS PAGE, former Boston Symphony bass player, now conductor of the Buffalo, N. Y., Pops, returns as guest conductor of the Boston Pops tomorrow evening.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

JUN 5 1955

SOLOIST with the Boston Pops on June 7 [illegible] Arthur MacKenzie, pianist. It is a repeat performance for the concert artist with the Boston group.



New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Advertiser
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 542,972

JUN 5 1955

Among Those Present

THE BOSTON ALUMNAE of Mt. St. Vincent, Mt. St. Mary and the College of New Rochelle will have a combined Night at Pops, at Symphony Hall, Friday evening, June 17. Committee members who met recently at Ursuline Academy to discuss plans for the affair include, (standing, l. to r.): Mrs. John Evans, Nancy Carolan and Mrs. Vincent Pitts. (Seated, l. to r.): Mrs. John Lawler, Mrs. Paul McCarthy.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

JUN 5 1955

Modern Best Forgotten

To the Editor of The Herald:

This year we subscribed to the Sunday Symphony series, hoping that the concerts would more closely adhere to the sort of music we enjoyed . . .

Granted that someone has to give the newcomer to the field of musical composition a trial or he will never become known to the public, why do the patrons and friends of the Boston Symphony Orchestra have to be the "guinea pigs" all the time? I've listened to every broadcast of the orchestra and listened to the modern compositions with an open and sympathetic mind on Fridays. Most of it was distinctly unpleasant to take and if it is a picture of our troubled and chaotic era, it had better be buried and forgotten.

As my young son says, "Any orchestra can play that modern stuff", but it takes a really great orchestra with a really great conductor to play and interpret the Old Masters." Let's keep the Boston Symphony Orchestra a great orchestra.

MRS. LESLIE S. WILKINS.
Marblehead.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 357,463

JUN 5 1955

Realtor to Be "Pops" Soloist

Music-loving realtors will have their night at the Boston Pops on June 20, it was announced yesterday by Samuel P. Backman, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association. The organization has reserved [illegible] of Symphony Hall [illegible] their families and friends on that date. Tickets are available through secretaries of the [illegible] boards in Massachusetts.

Realtors' Pops Night will have added significance for members of the real estate fraternity because one of its members will be guest piano soloist at the concert; Monte Nelson of Lynn will have the distinction of being the only realtor ever to be guest soloist with the famous Boston Pops.

NURSES VOLUNTEER WORKERS

Week's Pops Programs

Fiedler Returns to Pops Tonight

Arthur Fiedler will return to his place to conduct the first and last parts of tonight's program at the Pops in Symphony Hall. This will be a Pension Fund concert with special features, the last three numbers to be heard for the first time. The distinguished soloist will be Mineko Sasahara, the Japanese pianist.

Willis Page, conductor of the Buffalo Pops Orchestra, will visit Boston to conduct as guest tomorrow night and Michael Bowles also will make his appearance as guest conductor on Friday. Thursday and Saturday nights have been completely engaged, but each other night is open to the public.

Tonight—The Princess Elizabeth March, Coates; Suite from "Les Sylphides," Chopin; Overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla," Glinka; March Slave, Tchaikovsky. Harry Ellis Dickson conducting. Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 2 in C minor, Op. 18, Rachmaninoff (soloist: Mineko Sasahara); Massachusetts First Lady's Waltz, Hon. Vincent Mottola; Popsorama, Arr. by Mason; Let'er Go, Lover, Carson-Hayman; Davy Crockett, Bruns-Hayman.

Monday, Willis Page conducting—Semper Fidelis, March, Sousa; Overture to "La Gazza Ladra," Rossinin; Hungarian Dance No. 6, Brahms; La Valse, Ravel; Pomp and Circumstance, Elgar; Scheherazade (Finale), Rimsky-Korsakoff; Rhapsody in Blue, Gershwin (soloist: Lee Litwin); George M. Cohan Medley, Arr by Bodge; The Typewriter, Anderson; Fast Track, E. Strauss.

Tuesday, Knights Templars Night—Boston Commandery March, Carter; Overture to "Oberon," Weber; On the Trail from "Grand Canyon Suite," Grofe; Escana, Rhapsody, Chabrier;

WILLIS PAGE, former Boston Symphony bass player, now conductor of the Buffalo, N. Y., Pops, returns as guest conductor of the Boston Pops tomorrow evening.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

JUN 5 1955

SOLOIST with the Boston Pops on June 7 [illegible] Mack[illegible] It is a repeat performance for the concert artist with the Boston group.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Advertiser
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 542,972

JUN 5 1955

Among Those Present

THE BOSTON ALUMNAE of Mt. St. Vincent, Mt. St. Mary and the College of New Rochelle will have a combined Night at Pops, at Symphony Hall, Friday evening, June 17. Committee members who met recently at Ursuline Academy to discuss plans for the affair include, (standing, l. to r.): Mrs. John Evans, Nancy Carolan and Mrs. Vincent Pitts. (Seated, l. to r.): Mrs. John Lawler, Mrs. Paul McCarthy.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

JUN 5 1955

Modern Best Forgotten

To the Editor of The Herald:

This year we subscribed to the Sunday Symphony series, hoping that the concerts would more closely adhere to the sort of music we enjoyed . . .

Granted that someone has to give the newcomer to the field of musical composition a trial or he will never become known to the public, why do the patrons and friends of the Boston Symphony Orchestra have to be the "guinea pigs" all the time? I've listened to every broadcast of the orchestra and listened to the modern compositions with an open and a sympathetic mind on Fridays. Most of it was distinctly unpleasant to take and if it is a picture of our troubled and chaotic era, it had better be buried and forgotten.

As my young son says, "Any orchestra can play that modern stuff", but it takes a really great orchestra with a really great conductor to play and interpret the Old Masters." Let's keep the Boston Symphony Orchestra a great orchestra.

MRS. LESLIE S. WILKINS.
Marblehead.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 357,463

JUN 5 1955

Realtor to Be "Pops" Soloist

Music-loving realtors will have their night at the Boston Pops on June 20, it was announced yesterday by Samuel P. Backman, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association. The organization has reserved [illegible] of Symphony Hall [illegible] Realtors, their families and friends on that date. Tickets are available through secretaries of the [illegible] real estate boards in Massachusetts.

Realtors' Pops Night will have added significance for members of the real estate fraternity because one of its members will be guest piano soloist at the concert; Monte Nelson of Lynn will have the distinction of being the only realtor ever to be guest soloist with the famous Boston Pops.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.

TULSA, OKLA. WORLD
JUN 5 1955

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Post
BRIDGEPORT, Conn.
Independent

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

JUN 5 1955

...n the Air

...all-
...will
...for
The
...In
...ver
...ith
...ng
...in
...ent
...the ...ie;
...tan
...uo-
...and
...ea-
The
the

Hour of Music heard at 7 p.m. daily over KOME.

The voice of Roberta Peters is featured Monday, as she sings famous arias. Tuesday Rodzinsky conducts the Philharmonic Symphony orchestra of New York in Brahms' Symphony No. 1 in C. Wednesday Alice Ehlers will be the featured artist in music for the Harpsichord.

Thursday the Suite in F, opus 33, by Roussel is featured with George Tzipine conducting the Lamoureux orchestra of Paris. Friday Virgil Fox will play organ Chorale preludes by Brahms.

Saturday Sir Thomas Beecham conducts the Royal Philharmonic orchestra, with William Primrose, in Berlioz' "Harold in Italy."

Music Hall of Fame

At 11 p.m. Sunday on KVOO, Music Hall of Fame will present Purcell's opera "Dido and ...neas," with Kirsten Flagstad ...le of Queen Dido, ...arthage. ...ings the ...n's lady- ...Helmsley ...and or- ...Theater, ...ucted by

...Mozart's ...layed by ..., with the ...hestra un- ...Malcolm ...heard is ...the NBC ...nterpreting ...nd William ...of Liszt's "11th Hun- ...minor.

RESTORED TO HEALTH, Arthur Fiedler, left, conducted the Boston Pops B. U. Night for his first public appearance since his illness last March. He was congratulated by Charles Munch, Boston Symphony conductor.

...ks, presented ... Sunday fea- ...lounod, Schu-

...am conducts ...honic orches- ...ymphony No. ...ria de Los An- ...da and Boris ...atured singers ...t."

... is soloist with ...orchestra, Her- ...n conducting, ...ic Variations.

Szigeti and Myra Hess.

Friday's "piano night" program will bring Artur Rubinstein as soloist in Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 4 in G, and Vladimir Horowitz as soloist in Schubert's Sonata in B flat.

Hour of Music

Sunday evening the Hollywood String Quartet will play Dohnanyi's Quartet No. 3 in A minor, also the Pittsburgh Symphony orchestra under the direction of William Steinberg, will play Beethoven's 5th Symphony, on the ..., distinguished ... Boston Pops or- ...o the podium at 7:15 p.m. Monday, on KVOO and NBC. Fiedler was absent from the first two concerts of the broadcast series because of illness.

For this broadcast, from Symphony Hall, Fiedler has planned a variety program of orchestral showpieces. Selections will include Berlioz' "Rakoczy March," Beethoven's "Egmont Overture," Grofe's "On the Trail" from the "Grant Canyon Suite" and a suite of selections from Offenbach's ballet "Gaiete Parisienne."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Standard-Times
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 50,451

JUN 5 1955

A Look At the Arts

By E. J. D.

Edmond H. DesRosiers, one of our community's busiest and most prominent-teacher-musicians, reports on June 13 at New England's newest theater-in-the-round, the North Shore Music Theater, which is located on Route 128, Exit 9, in Beverly.

E. J. Dias

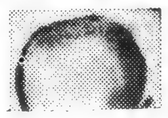
Mr. DesRosiers will serve as organist and assistant director. He brings to his new position a wealth of experience as church and theater organist, choral director, and, of course, as musical director for the past two seasons of the annual productions offered by The Standard-Times Charities, Inc.

The North Shore Music Theater has a seating capacity of 1,300, and its 10-week season will open on June 24. Managing director of the enterprise is Stephen Slane. The attractions will be the following: June 24, "Kiss Me Kate;" July 4, "New Moon;" July 11, "Call Me Madam;" July 18, "Carousel" (two weeks); Aug. 1, "Desert Song;" Aug. 8, "Wonderful Town;" Aug. 15, "Song of Norway," and Aug. 22, "Show Boat" (two weeks).

Results of Down Beat's Annual Classics Poll

The magazine Down Beat is generally regarded as the outstanding trade periodical in the field of popular music. However, Down Beat also conducts an annual Classics Poll among the nation's music critics, and the results of this poll are now at hand.

Voted top conductor of the year by the critics is Eugene Ormandy, of the Philadelphia Orchestra, with Dimitri Mitropoulos, of the New York Philharmonic, a close second. The critics also named Mr. Ormandy's Philadelphia Orchestra as "the world's greatest" for the third successive year, with the Boston Symphony finishing second and the New York Philharmonic



New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Advertiser
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 542,972

JUN 5 1955

Friday Is Eire Night at Pops

It will be "Eire Society Night" at the Pops concert in Symphony Hall Friday night, with Michael Bowles of Dublin, foremost symphony leader of Ireland, as guest conductor, and Dublin-born tenor Hubert Valentine as featured soloist.

Sponsors include Joseph F. Shields, Irish consul in Boston; Joseph Gannon of Brookline, president of the Eire Society; Rt. Rev. James Doyle of Roxbury; Cong. Philip JJ. Philbin of Clinton and Daniel J. Lynch of Brookline.

...den of Jamaica Plain, Congressman Philip J. Philbin of Clinton, and Daniel J. Lyne of Brookline.

PORTLAND, ORE.
OREGON JOURNAL
Circ. D. 186,902 - S. 207,459

JUN 5 1955

Italians To Return

13 Virtuosos Compose Group

After an absence of two years, the "Virtuosi di Roma," 13 of Italy's most distinguished virtuosi-instrumentalists, will return for their fourth American tour. This brings them to Portland for a concert on the 1955-56 series, presented by the Ellison-White bureau.

The ensemble's playing is distinguished by musical and artistic excellence. Featured soloist in the group are Ornella Santoliquido, Italy's foremost woman pianist, and Massimo Amfitheatrof, cellist, who now heads the ensemble.

IRVING KOLODIN, one of America's foremost musical authorities, referring to the "Virtuosi di Roma," wrote: "A rich experience is awaiting those who take advantage of their forthcoming nation-wide tour."

Next season's 7-number series includes three groups: The Virtuosi di Roma, Arthur Fiedler with the Boston Pops tour orchestra and the Azuma Kabuki dancers and musicians; and four soloists: Marian Anderson, contralto, Jennie Tourel, soprano, Jussi Bjoerling, tenor, and Ruggiero Ricci, violinist. Artur Rubinstein, pianist, may be added as an optional attraction, making an 8-number series.

Season tickets for the series may be reserved at the Ellison-White bureau, 410 Central building.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Standard-Times
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 50,451

JUN 5 1955

A Look At the Arts

By E. J. D.

Edmond H. DesRosiers, one of our community's busiest and most prominent-teacher-musicians, reports on June 13 at New England's newest theater-in-the-round, the North Shore Music Theater, which is located on Route 128, Exit 9, in Beverly.

E. J. Dias

Mr. DesRosiers will serve as organist and assistant director. He brings to his new position a wealth of experience as church and theater organist, choral director, and, of course, as musical director for the past two seasons of the annual productions offered by The Standard-Times Charities, Inc.

The North Shore Music Theater has a seating capacity of 1,300, and its 10-week season will open on June 24. Managing director of the enterprise is Stephen Slane. The attractions will be the following: June 24, "Kiss Me Kate;" July 4, "New Moon;" July 11, "Call Me Madam;" July 18, "Carousel" (two weeks); Aug. 1, "Desert Song;" Aug. 8, "Wonderful Town;" Aug. 15, "Song of Norway," and Aug. 22, "Show Boat" (two weeks).

Results of Down Beat's Annual Classics Poll

The magazine Down Beat is generally regarded as the outstanding trade periodical in the field of popular music. However, Down Beat also conducts an annual Classics Poll among the nation's music critics, and the results of this poll are now a[illegible]

[illegible]nductor of the year by the critics is Eugene [illegible] Orchestra, with Dimitri Mitro-

[illegible]onic, a [illegible]ed Mr. [illegible]as "the [illegible]ccessive [illegible]inishing [illegible]armonic

[illegible] Reviewers Bob Considine, Quentin Reynolds and John Chamberlain considered it the [illegible] of tricks—keeping the head down while at the same time keeping the chin up."

[illegible] tonical marvel at that neatest pants, each of them an ana- volving 23 sightless partici- Championship for the Blind in- For this was the U. S. Golf [illegible] None of the competitors did. [illegible] was souvenir to see.

PORTLAND, ORE.
OREGON JOURNAL
Circ. D. 186,902 - S. 207,459

JUN 5 1955

Italians To Return

13 Virtuosos Compose Group

After an absence of two years, the "Virtuosi di Roma," 13 of Italy's most distinguished virtuosi-instrumentalists, will return for their fourth American tour. This brings them to Portland for a concert on the 1955-56 series, presented by the Ellison-White bureau.

The ensemble's playing is distinguished by musical and artistic excellence. Featured soloist in the group are Ornella Santoliquido, Italy's foremost woman pianist, and Massimo Amfitheatrof, cellist, who now heads the ensemble.

IRVING KOLODIN, one of America's foremost musical authorities, referring to the "Virtuosi di Roma," wrote: "A rich experience is awaiting those who take advantage of their forthcoming nation-wide tour."

Next season's 7-number series includes three groups. The Virtuosi di Roma, Arthur Fiedler with the Boston Pops tour orchestra and the Azuma Kabuki dancers and musicians; and four soloists: Marian Anderson, contralto, Jennie Tourel, soprano, Jussi Bjoerling, tenor, and Ruggiero Ricci, violinist. Artur Rubinstein, pianist, may be added as an optional attraction, making an 8-number series.

Season tickets for the series may be reserved at the Ellison-White bureau, 410 Central building.

n the Air

Hour of Music heard at 7 p.m. daily over KOME.

The voice of Roberta Peters is featured Monday, as she sings famous arias. Tuesday Rodzinsky conducts the Philharmonic Symphony orchestra of New York in Brahms' Symphony No. 1 in C. Wednesday Alice Ehlers will be the featured artist in music for the Harpsichord.

Thursday the Suite in F, opus 33, by Roussel is featured with George Tzipine conducting the Lamoureux orchestra of Paris. Friday Virgil Fox will play organ Chorale preludes by Brahms.

Saturday Sir Thomas Beecham conducts the Royal Philharmonic orchestra, with William Primrose, in Berlioz' "Harold in Italy."

Music Hall of Fame

At 11 p.m. Sunday on KVOO, Music Hall of Fame will present Purcell's opera "Dido and Aeneas," with Kirsten Flagstad singing the role of Queen Dido, the ill-fated ruler of Carthage. Elizabeth Schwarzkopf sings the role of Belinda, the queen's lady-in-waiting, and Thomas Helmsley as Aeneas. The chorus and orchestra of the Mermaid Theater, London, will be conducted by Geraint Jones.

Tuesday will feature Mozart's "Turkish Concerto" played by violinist Jascha Heifetz, with the London Symphony orchestra under the baton of Sir Malcolm Sargent. Also to be heard is Arturo Toscanini and the NBC Symphony orchestra interpreting Verdi's "Te Deum," and William Kapell's recording of Liszt's "Mephisto Waltz" and "11th Hungarian Rhapsody, in A minor.

Masterworks

Sunday Masterworks, presented over KOME at 3 p.m. Sunday features the music of Gounod, Schubert and Franck.

Sir Thomas Beecham conducts the Royal Philharmonic orchestra in Schubert's Symphony No. 1 in D major. Victoria de Los Angeles, Nicolai Gedda and Boris Christoff are the featured singers in Gounod's "Faust."

Walter Gieseking is soloist with the Philharmonic orchestra, Herbert von Karajan conducting, Franck's Symphonic Variations.

Boston Pops

Arthur Fiedler, distinguished conductor of the Boston Pops orchestra returns to the podium at 7:15 p.m. Monday, on KVOO and NBC. Fiedler was absent from the first two concerts of the broadcast series because of illness.

For this broadcast, from Symphony Hall, Fiedler has planned a variety program of orchestral showpieces. Selections will include Berlioz' "Rakoczy March," Beethoven's "Egmont Overture," Grofe's "On the Trail" from the "Grant Canyon Suite" and a suite of selections from Offenbach's ballet "Gaiete Parisienne."

Arthur Fiedler Returns to Conduct Pops

Arthur Fiedler will return to his place to conduct the first and last parts of tonight's program at the "Pops" in Symphony Hall. This will be a Pension Fund concert featuring the Japanese pianist, Mineko Sasahara, and Symphonic three Fiedlerian novelties, "Pops-sorama," a medley of hit parade tunes, "Let 'er Go, Lover," and "Davy Crockett." These novelties will receive their first performance.

Willis Page, conductor of the Buffalo "Pops" Orchestra, will be guest conductor tomorrow night, and Michael Bowles, the Irish conductor, will conduct Friday night.

Hour of Music

Sunday evening the Hollywood String Quartet will play Dohnanyi's Quartet No. 3 in A minor, also the Pittsburgh Symphony orchestra under the direction of William Steinberg, will play Beethoven's 5th Symphony, on the concert, Bach's Suite [illegible] in B minor, Fritz Reiner conducting the Victor Symphony orchestra, and Mozart's Symphony No. 40 in G minor, Arturo Toscanini conducting the NBC orchestra.

Tuesday's "violin night" presentation will include Heifetz, as soloist, in Tchaikowsky's Violin Concerto in D. Wednesday, Eugene Ormandy will conduct the Philadelphia orchestra in Rachmaninoff's Symphony No. 2 in E minor. Thursday's concert will include Bach's Cello Sonata No. 3 in G minor, featuring Pablo Casals and Brahms' Quartet No. 3 in C minor featuring Joseph Szigeti and Myra Hess.

Friday's "piano night" program will bring Artur Rubinstein as soloist in Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 4 in G, and Vladimir Horowitz as soloist in Schubert's Sonata in B flat.

BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

JUN 5 [illegible]

Eire Society Night at Pops

Michael Bowles, foremost Irish symphony leader, will be guest conductor and Dublin-born tenor Hubert Valentine will be featured soloist at the Eire Society night Friday at the Pops at Symphony Hall.

Included on the list of more than 100 sponsors are Joseph F. Shields, Irish consul in Boston; the Right Rev. James H. Doyle, pastor of St. Patrick's Church, Roxbury; Joseph Cannon of Brookline, president of the Eire Society; Gerald E. Hayes, assistant vice president of the National Shawmut Bank; Dr. Regina Madden of Jamaica Plain, Congressman Philip J. Philbin of Clinton, and Daniel J. Lyne of Brookline.

[79]

Circ. 61,159

JUN 5 1955

...n the Air

Fiedler Returns

Arthur Fiedler, distinguished conductor of the Boston Pops orchestra returns to the podium for the broadcast concert of Monday night over NBC radio at 8:15 o'clock. Fiedler was absent from the first two concerts of the broadcast series because of illness.

For this broadcast, from Symphony Hall in Boston, Fiedler has planned a variety program of orchestral showpieces. Selections will include Berlioz' "Rakoczy March," Beethoven's "Egmont Overture," Grofe's "On the Trail" from the "Grand Canyon Suite" and a suite of selections from Offenbach's ballet "Gaiete Parisienne."

Hour of Music heard at 7 p.m. daily over KOME.

The voice of Roberta Peters is featured Monday, as she sings famous arias. Tuesday Rodzinsky conducts the Philharmonic Symphony orchestra of New York in Brahms' Symphony No. 1 in C. Wednesday Alice Ehlers will be the featured artist in music for the Harpsichord.

Thursday the Suite in F, opus 33, by Roussel is featured with George Tzipine conducting the Lamoureux orchestra of Paris. Friday Virgil Fox will play organ Chorale preludes by Brahms.

Saturday Sir Thomas Beecham conducts the Royal Philharmonic orchestra, with William Primrose, in Berlioz' "Harold in Italy."

Music Hall of Fame

At 11 p.m. Sunday on KVOO, Music Hall of Fame will present Purcell's opera "Dido and Aeneas," with Kirsten Flagstad singing the role of Queen Dido, the ill-fated ruler of Carthage. Elizabeth Schwarzkopf sings the role of Belinda, the queen's lady-in-waiting, and Thomas Helmsley as Aeneas. The chorus and orchestra of the Mermaid Theater, London, will be conducted by Geraint Jones.

Tuesday will feature Mozart's "Turkish Concerto" played by violinist Jascha Heifetz, with the London Symphony orchestra under the baton of Sir Malcolm Sargent. Also to be heard is Arturo Toscanini and the NBC Symphony orchestra interpreting Verdi's "Te Deum," and William Kapell's recording of Liszt's "Mephisto Waltz" and "11th Hungarian Rhapsody, in A minor.

Masterworks

Sunday Masterworks, presented over KOME at 3 p.m. Sunday features the music of Gounod, Schubert and Franck.

Sir Thomas Beecham conducts the Royal Philharmonic orchestra in Schubert's Symphony No. 1 in D major. Victoria de Los Angeles, Nicolai Gedda and Boris Christoff are the featured singers in Gounod's "Faust."

Walter Gieseking is soloist with the Philharmonic orchestra, Herbert von Karajan conducting, Franck's Symphonic Variations.

Boston Pops

Arthur Fiedler, distinguished conductor of the Boston Pops orchestra returns to the podium at 7:15 p.m. Monday, on KVOO and NBC. Fiedler was absent from the first two concerts of the broadcast series because of illness.

For this broadcast, from Symphony Hall, Fiedler has planned a variety program of orchestral showpieces. Selections will include Berlioz' "Rakoczy March," Beethoven's "Egmont Overture," Grofe's "On the Trail" from the "Grand Canyon Suite" and a suite of selections from Offenbach's ballet "Gaiete Parisienne."

Hour of Refreshment

George London will be featured in "Songs and Dances of Death" by Moussorsky on Sunday's Hour of Refreshment program, a presentation over KTUL from 10:15 to 11:30 p.m. daily. Two major works highlight Monday's concert, Bach's Suite No. 2 in B minor, Fritz Reiner conducting the Victor Symphony orchestra, and Mozart's Symphony No. 40 in G minor, Arturo Toscanini conducting the NBC orchestra.

Tuesday's "violin night" presentation will include Heifetz, as soloist, in Tchaikowsky's Violin Concerto in D. Wednesday, Eugene Ormandy will conduct the Philadelphia orchestra in Rachmaninoff's Symphony No. 2 in E minor. Thursday's concert will include Bach's Cello Sonata No. 3 in G minor, featuring Pablo Casals and Brahms' Quartet No. 3 in C minor featuring Joseph Szigeti and Myra Hess.

Friday's "piano night" program will bring Artur Rubinstein as soloist in Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 4 in G, and Vladimir Horowitz as soloist in Schubert's Sonata in B flat.

Hour of Music

Sunday evening the Hollywood String Quartet will play Dohnanyi's Quartet No. 3 in A minor, also the Pittsburgh Symphony orchestra under the direction of William Steinberg, will play Beethoven's 5th Symphony, on the

JUN 5 1955

Fiedler Returns

Arthur Fiedler, distinguished conductor of the Boston Pops orchestra returns to the podium for the broadcast concert of Monday night over NBC radio at 8:15 o'clock. Fiedler was absent from the first two concerts of the broadcast series because of illness.

For this broadcast, from Symphony Hall in Boston, Fiedler has planned a variety program of orchestral showpieces. Selections will include Berlioz' "Rakoczy March," Beethoven's "Egmont Overture," Grofe's "On the Trail" from the "Grand Canyon Suite" and a suite of selections from Offenbach's ballet "Gaiete Parisienne."

Sunday.

The program will include Symphony No. 2 in B flat, by Franz Schubert, and Richard Strauss' tone poem "Don Juan," a work which has given color to concert programs for more than half a century.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Standard-Times
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 50,451

JUN 5 1955

A Look At the Arts

By E. J. D.

Edmond H. DesRosiers, one of our community's busiest and most prominent-teacher-musicians, reports on June 13 at New England's newest theater-in-the-round, the North Shore Music Theater, which is located on Route 128, Exit 9, in Beverly.

Mr. DesRosiers will serve as organist and assistant director. He brings to his new position a wealth of experience as church and theater organist, choral director, and, of course, as musical director for the past two seasons of the annual productions of The Standard-Times Charities, Inc.

usic Theater has a and its 10-week 4. Managing di- s Stephen Slane. e following: June 4, "New Moon;" ;" July 18, "Carou- 1, "Desert Song;" g of Norway," and Aug.

Aug.

sics Poll regarded as the out- popular music. How- l Classics Poll among s of this poll are now the critics is Eugene a, with Dimitri Mitro- c, a Mr. "the assive shing onic

New
Box

PORTLAND, ORE.
OREGON JOURNAL
Circ. D. 186,902 - S. 207,459

JUN 5 1955

BOS...
Independent
Circ. 357,463

JUN 5 1955

Bowles to Conduct Pops on Eire Society Night

Many prominent Bostonians are listed among the sponsors of the Eire Society night at Pops Friday, at which Michael Bowles, Irish symphony leader, will be the guest conductor and Dublin-born tenor Jubert Valentine will be featured soloist.

On the list of about 100 sponsors are Joseph F. Shields, Irish consul; John J. Burns of Belmont, Rt. Rev. James Doyle of Roxbury, Joseph Gannon of Brookline, president of the Eire Society; and Gerard E. Hayes of Boston, Dr. Regina Madden of Jamaica Plain, Martin A. O'Malley of Quincy, John P. McGrail of Berlin, Philip J. Philbin of Clinton, Paul E. Tierney of Somerville, Joseph P. Graham of Brighton and Daniel J. Lyne of Brookline.

Italians To Return

13 Virtuosos Compose Group

After an absence of two years, the "Virtuosi di Roma," 13 of Italy's most distinguished virtuosi-instrumentalists, will return for their fourth American tour. This brings them to Portland for a concert on the 1955-56 series, presented by the Ellison-White bureau.

The ensemble's playing is distinguished by musical and artistic excellence. Featured soloist in the group are Ornella Santoliquido, Italy's foremost woman pianist, and Massimo Amfitheatrof, cellist, who now heads the ensemble.

IRVING KOLODIN, one of America's foremost musical authorities, referring to the "Virtuosi di Roma," wrote: "A rich experience is awaiting those who take advantage of their forthcoming nation-wide tour."

Next season's 7-number series includes three groups: The Virtuosi di Roma, Arthur Fiedler with the Boston Pops tour orchestra and the Azuma Kabuki dancers and musicians; and four soloists: Marian Anderson, contralto, Jennie Tourel, soprano, Jussi Bjoerling, tenor, and Ruggiero Ricci, violinist. Artur Rubinstein, pianist, may be added as an optional attraction, making an 8-number series.

Season tickets for the series may be reserved at the Ellison-White bureau, 410 Central building.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Standard-Times
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 50,451

JUN 5 1955

A Look at the Arts

By E. J. D.

one of our community's busiest musicians, reports on June 13 at ter-in-the-round, the North Shore ed on Route 128, Exit 9, in Beverly. DesRosiers will serve as organist tant director. He brings to his new wealth of experience as church ter organist, choral director, and, , as musical director for the past ons of the annual productions of The Standard-Times Charities, Inc.

North Shore Music Theater has a pacity of 1,300, and its 10-week open on June 24. Managing di- the enterprise is Stephen Slane. tions will be the following: June Me Kate;" July 4, "New Moon;" all Me Madam;" July 18, "Carou- weeks); Aug. 1, "Desert Song;" Aug. 15, "Song of Norway," and eeks).

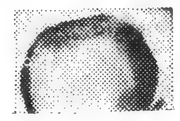
nnual Classics Poll s generally regarded as the out- e field of popular music. How- s an annual Classics Poll among the results of this poll are now year by the critics is Eugene rchestra, with Dimitri Mitro- armonic, a named Mr. ra as "the successive y finishing nharmonic



Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

JUN 5 1955

Eire Society Night At Pops Friday

Michael Bowles, symphony orchestra leader from Ireland, will be guest conductor at Eire Society night at the Boston Pops next Friday. Dublin-born Hubert Valentine will be featured soloist.

On the list of more than 100 sponsors are Joseph F. Shields, Irish Consul in Boston; John J. Burns of Belmont; the Rt. Rev. James Doyle of Roxbury, Joseph Gannon of Brookline, president of the Eire Society; Gerard E. Hayes of Boston, Dr. Regina Madden of Jamaica Plain, Martin A. O'Malley of Quincy, John P. McGrail of Berlin, Rep. Philip J. Philbin of Clinton, Paul E. Tierney of Somerville, State Rep. Joseph P. Graham of Boston and Daniel J. Lyne of Brookline.

PORTLAND, ORE.
OREGON JOURNAL
Circ. D. 186,902 - S. 207,459

JUN 5 1955

Italians To Return

13 Virtuosos Compose Group

After an absence of two years, the "Virtuosi di Roma," 13 of Italy's most distinguished virtuosi-instrumentalists, will return for their fourth American tour. This brings them to Portland for a concert on the 1955-56 series, presented by the Ellison-White bureau.

The ensemble's playing is distinguished by musical and artistic excellence. Featured soloist in the group are Ornella Santoliquido, Italy's foremost woman pianist, and Massimo Amfitheatrof, cellist, who now heads the ensemble.

IRVING KOLODIN, one of America's foremost musical authorities, referring to the "Virtuosi di Roma," wrote: "A rich experience is awaiting those who take advantage of their forthcoming nation-wide tour."

Next season's 7-number series includes three groups: The Virtuosi di Roma, Arthur Fiedler with the Boston Pops tour orchestra and the Azuma Kabuki dancers and musicians; and four soloists: Marian Anderson, contralto, Jennie Tourel, soprano, Jussi Bjoerling, tenor, and Ruggiero Ricci, violinist. Artur Rubinstein, pianist, may be added as an optional attraction, making an 8-number series.

Season tickets for the series may be reserved at the Ellison-White bureau, 410 Central building.

Music on the Air

Woolworth Hour

A dazzling array of personalities in the world of music will make up the roster of stars for the premiere broadcast of The Woolworth Hour "What's New In Music" at 12 noon Sunday, over KTUL.

Each week the program, with Donald Woods as host, will bring news before the microphone, in the form of previews into current musical attractions all over the nation.

Songstress Gisele MacKenzie; leading tenor in the Metropolitan Opera, Jan Peerce, and the duo-piano team of Ferrante and Teicher will be among the featured guests in the debut of The Woolworth Hour.

Percy Faith will conduct the orchestra and chorus.

Holland Symphony

The second of four programs by Holland's Concertgebouw orchestra will be conducted by its musical director, Eduard van Beinum at 1:30 p.m. on KTUL, Sunday.

The program will include Symphony No. 2 in B flat, by Franz Schubert, and Richard Strauss' tone poem "Don Juan," a work which has given color to concert programs for more than half a century.

Hour of Refreshment

George London will be featured in "Songs and Dances of Death" by Moussorsky on Sunday's Hour of Refreshment program, a presentation over KTUL from 10:15 to 11:30 p.m. daily. Two major works highlight Monday's concert, Bach's Suite No. 2 in B minor, Fritz Reiner conducting the Victor Symphony orchestra, and Mozart's Symphony No. 40 in G minor, Arturo Toscanini conducting the NBC orchestra.

Tuesday's "violin night" presentation will include Heifetz, as soloist, in Tchaikowsky's Violin Concerto in D. Wednesday, Eugene Ormandy will conduct the Philadelphia orchestra in Rachmaninoff's Symphony No. 2 in E minor. Thursday's concert will include Bach's Cello Sonata No. 3 in G minor, featuring Pablo Casals and Brahms' Quartet No. 3 in C minor featuring Joseph Szigeti and Myra Hess.

Friday's "piano night" program will bring Artur Rubinstein as soloist in Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 4 in G, and Vladimir Horowitz as soloist in Schubert's Sonata in B flat.

Hour of Music

Sunday evening the Hollywood String Quartet will play Dohnanyi's Quartet No. 3 in A minor, also the Pittsburgh Symphony orchestra under the direction of William Steinberg, will play Beethoven's 5th Symphony, on the Hour of Music heard at 7 p.m. daily over KOME.

The voice of Roberta Peters is featured Monday, as she sings famous arias. Tuesday Rodzinsky conducts the Philharmonic Symphony orchestra of New York in Brahms' Symphony No. 1 in C. Wednesday Alice Ehlers will be the featured artist in music for the Harpsichord.

Thursday the Suite in F, opus 33, by Roussel is featured with George Tzipine conducting the Lamoureux orchestra of Paris. Friday Virgil Fox will play organ Chorale preludes by Brahms.

Saturday Sir Thomas Beecham conducts the Royal Philharmonic orchestra, with William Primrose, in Berlioz' "Harold in Italy."

Music Hall of Fame

At 11 p.m. Sunday on KVOO, Music Hall of Fame will present Purcell's opera "Dido and Aeneas," with Kirsten Flagstad singing the role of Queen Dido, the ill-fated ruler of Carthage. Elizabeth Schwarzkopf sings the role of Belinda, the queen's lady-in-waiting, and Thomas Helmsley as Aeneas. The chorus and orchestra of the Mermaid Theater, London, will be conducted by Geraint Jones.

Tuesday will feature Mozart's "Turkish Concerto" played by violinist Jascha Heifetz, with the London Symphony orchestra under the baton of Sir Malcolm Sargent. Also to be heard is Arturo Toscanini and the NBC Symphony orchestra interpreting Verdi's "Te Deum," and William Kapell's recording of Liszt's "Mephisto Waltz" and "11th Hungarian Rhapsody, in A minor.

Masterworks

Sunday Masterworks, presented over KOME at 3 p.m. Sunday features the music of Gounod, Schubert and Franck.

Sir Thomas Beecham conducts the Royal Philharmonic orchestra in Schubert's Symphony No. 1 in D major. Victoria de Los Angeles, Nicolai Gedda and Boris Christoff are the featured singers in Gounod's "Faust."

Walter Gieseking is soloist with the Philharmonic orchestra, Herbert von Karajan conducting, Franck's Symphonic Variations.

Boston Pops

Arthur Fiedler, distinguished conductor of the Boston Pops orchestra returns to the podium at 7:15 p.m. Monday, on KVOO and NBC. Fiedler was absent from the first two concerts of the broadcast series because of illness.

For this broadcast, from Symphony Hall, Fiedler has planned a variety program of orchestral showpieces. Selections will include Berlioz' "Rakoczy March," Beethoven's "Egmont Overture," Grofe's "On the Trail" from the "Grant Canyon Suite" and a suite of selections from Offenbach's ballet "Gaiete Parisienne."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Standard-Times
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 50,451

JUN 5 1955

A Look at the Arts

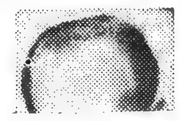
By E. J. D.

... one of our community's busiest ...-musicians, reports on June 13 at ...ter-in-the-round, the North Shore ...ted on Route 128, Exit 9, in Beverly. ...DesRosiers will serve as organist ...tant director. He brings to his new ...a wealth of experience as church ...ter organist, choral director, and, ..., as musical director for the past ...ons of the annual productions of- ... The Standard-Times Charities, Inc. ... North Shore Music Theater has a ...pacity of 1,300, and its 10-week ...ll open on June 24. Managing di- ... the enterprise is Stephen Slane. ...tions will be the following: June ...Me Kate;" July 4, "New Moon;" ...all Me Madam;" July 18, "Carou- ...weeks); Aug. 1, "Desert Song;" ... Aug. 15, "Song of Norway," and ...eeks).

...nual Classics Poll

... is generally regarded as the out- ...he field of popular music. How- ...s an annual Classics Poll among ... the results of this poll are now ...

... year by the critics is Eugene ...rchestra, with Dimitri Mitro- ...armonic, a ...named Mr. ...ra as "the ... successive ...y finishing ...ilharmonic



'52 PONTIAC
nylon upholstery. R&H.
CHIEFTAIN Deluxe 2-Dr. Sedan. ... green. Beautiful 2-tone gray $1415
'53 PONTIAC
CHIEFTAIN Deluxe Sedan. Brook- ... green: Beautiful 2-tone green ... nylon upholstery; heater; immaculate.
$1895
'54 PONTIAC

Independent
Circ. 106,753

JUN 5 1955

FIEDLER RETURNS FOR POPS PROGRAM

Arthur Fiedler, distinguished conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra, returns to the podium for the broadcast concert tomorrow (NBC Radio, 8.15 p. m., EDT). Fiedler was absent from the first two concerts of the broadcast series because of illness.

For this broadcast, from Symphony Hall, Fiedler has planned a variety progra of orchestral showpieces. Selections will include Berlioz' "Rakoczy March," Beethoven's "Egmont Overture," Grofe's "On the Trail" from the Grand Canyon Suite" and a suite of sections from Offenbach's ballet "Gaiete Parisienne."

Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

JUN 5 1955

Eire Society Night At Pops Friday

Michael Bowles, symphony orchestra leader from Ireland, will be guest conductor at Eire Society night at the Boston Pops next Friday. Dublin-born Hubert Valentine will be featured soloist.

On the list of more than 100 sponsors are Joseph F. Shields, Irish Consul in Boston; John J. Burns of Belmont; the Rt. Rev. James Doyle of Roxbury, Joseph Gannon of Brookline, president of the Eire Society; Gerard E. Hayes of Boston, Dr. Regina Madden of Jamaica Plain, Martin A. O'Malley of Quincy, John P. McGrail of Berlin, Rep. Philip J. Philbin of Clinton, Paul E. Tierney of Somerville, State Rep. Joseph P. Graham of Boston and Daniel J. Lyne of Brookline.

PORTLAND, ORE.
OREGON JOURNAL
Circ. D. 186,902 - S. 207,459
JUN 5 1955

Italians To Return

13 Virtuosos Compose Group

After an absence of two years, the "Virtuosi di Roma," 13 of Italy's most distinguished virtuosi-instrumentalists, will return for their fourth American tour. This brings them to Portland for a concert on the 1955-56 series, presented by the Ellison-White bureau.

The ensemble's playing is distinguished by musical and artistic excellence. Featured soloist in the group are Ornella Santoliquido, Italy's foremost woman pianist, and Massimo Amfitheatrof, cellist, who now heads the ensemble.

IRVING KOLODIN, one of America's foremost musical authorities, referring to the "Virtuosi di Roma," wrote: "A rich experience is awaiting those who take advantage of their forthcoming nation-wide tour."

Next season's 7-number series includes three groups: The Virtuosi di Roma, Arthur Fiedler with the Boston Pops tour orchestra and the Azuma Kabuki dancers and musicians; and four soloists: Marian Anderson, contralto, Jennie Tourel, soprano, Jussi Bjoerling, tenor, and Ruggiero Ricci, violinist. Artur Rubinstein, pianist, may be added as an optional attraction, making an 8-number series.

Season tickets for the series may be reserved at the Ellison-White bureau, 410 Central building.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning
BOSTON, Mass.
Indepe.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.
ITEM
Circ. D. 111,942 - S. 799

DES MOINES, IOWA
REGISTER

CINCINNATI, OHIO
POST

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Gazette (e)
WORCESTER, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News (e)
NAUGATUCK, Conn.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Times (e)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Independent Democ.
Circ. 100

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.

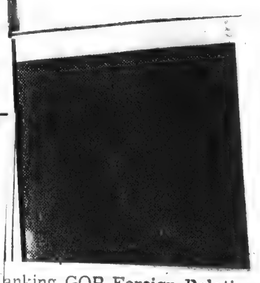
New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Bulletin (e)
PROVIDENCE, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 145,400

JUN 6 1955

GETS 'COON-SKIN CAP

Boston—(UP)—Arthur Fiedler was presented a 'coon-skin cap and a toy "shootin' arn" last night after conducting the Boston Pops Orchestra in the world premiere of a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."



anking GOP Foreign Relations
ement, Ill., audience the U. S. ny cost short of appeasement and disaster" of another war.

*

ved a coonskin cap and a toy Boston Pops Orchestra in a phonic arrangement of "The

*

RT WAGNER . . . reached beginning of a European tour.
lantic forced his plane crew el.

*

o by Laurence T. Welsh, Globe Staff)
Suitably attired, Arthur Fiedler
phonic arrangement of a certain

pped Fiedler Pops Concert

N WM. RILEY

en cent Mottola in honor of Mrs.
the Kerter, "The Massachusetts' a First Lady's Waltz."
all Altogether a slam-bang affair.
of
the

During Mr. Fiedler's enforced vacation Harry Ellis Dickson, a violinist in the Boston Symphony, bore the brunt of the conducting chores. Last evening he took the middle half of the program, leading both Rachmaninoff's Second Concerto, with the young Japanese pianist, Mineko Sasahara, as soloist, and Judge Mottola's engaging waltz.

Mr. Fiedler took the opening and closing sections of the bill ranging from pieces of Coates, Chopin, Glinka and others, including "Popsorama", a low-down arrangement of some popular tunes, a mish-mash of "Let Me Go Lover" with tears and sighs, and the aforementioned "Davy Crockett."

urn from during the Winter, Mr. Fiedler had recovered in fine style and made a surprise appearance in Symphony, Hall at B. U. Night at the Pops, Friday evening. But last night's concert was his first full dress program since the beginning of the season.

All around the clock it was a celebrative occasion. Mr. Fiedler's wife and daughters were in the audience. So were Gov. and Mrs. Herter. Davy Crockett "fit the B'ar" musically; some young ladies from Everett displayed a sign, "Welcome Back, Arthur"; and Mr. Fiedler and the Pops Orchestra played a waltz by Judge Vin-

FIEDLER
Page Five

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,598

JUN 6 1955

2,462 Receive B. U. Deg

Eban, Pusey, Kennedy and Munch Among 10 Cited in Garden Exercises

Israel's ambassador to the United States, the president of Harvard, a senator and the conductor of the Boston Symphony are among Boston University's new degree recipients.

They were honored in Boston Garden last night at the annual commencement. Degrees in course were conferred on 2,462 graduating students.

RAIN FORCES PROGRAM INDOORS

Rain forced the exercises indoors and they were combined with the baccalaureate which was to have been given at University Field.

Among 10 honorary degree recipients were Israeli Ambassador Abba S. Eban, President Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard, Sen. John F. Kennedy and Symphony conductor Charles Munch.

Eban delivered the commencement address and urged educators to "cease rushing blindly forward in physical science and catch up on social science."

"The lesson of the present genertion should teach us that the main chance for us to know abundanee rather than disaster lies in the development of ethical principles of social and international contacts."

METHODIST BISHOPS RECEIVE DEGREES

Other honorary degrees went to:

Met
W. Cl
Raym
Ore.

Also tor of of Me
R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court.

Also, Arthur A. Schuck, chief scout executive, Boy Scouts of America, and Dean Mark R. Shibles of the University of Maine School of Education.

[80]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Press-Herald (m)
PORTLAND, Me.
Independent Republican
Circ. 48,118

B. U. Awards Degree To U Of M Educator

BOSTON, June 5 (AP)—Ten honorary degrees were awarded today at commencement exercises of Boston University held at Boston Garden.

Doctorates in law were conferred on Abba Eban, Israel ambassador to the United States; Pres. Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard University; U. S. Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) and Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court.

Methodist Bishops Matthew W. Clair Jr. of St. Louis, Mo., and A. Raymond Grant of Portland, Ore., were awarded doctorates in divinity.

Dr. Joseph Garland, editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, received a doctorate in science; Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, a doctorate in music; Arthur A. Schuck of Short Hills, N. J., Chief Scout Executive, Boy Scouts of America, a doctorate in humanities, and Dean Mark R. Shibles of the University of Maine School of Education, a doctorate of science in education.

Degrees in course were given to 2,462 graduates.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

JUN 6 1955

(Herald Staff Photo by Harry Trask)

HELPING MOM GRADUATE, Richard Paul Hazlum, four months old, accompanied his mother, Mrs. Dorothy Maloney Hazlum, 21, of 50 Harrison St., Quincy, as she received a degree yesterday at the Boston University commencement.

Degrees Awarded 2462 at BU Rites

10 Cited, 15,000 Hear Abba Eban

(Other pictures on Page 22)

By WAYNE HANLEY

Ambassador Abba S. Eban of Israel yesterday urged that educators "cease rushing blindly forward in physical science and catch up in social science."

"Our triumph is in danger of turning into ashes in our mouths," the former lecturer at Cambridge University told the 2462 graduating students and their 15,000 friends and relatives at the Boston University commencement in Boston Garden.

Combined Exercises

Departing from tradition, the university combined its Baccalaureate service and commencement exercise into a single ceremony when inclement weather yesterday morning made an outdoor sermon at University Field inadvisable. The university also dispensed with the ceremony of handing diplomas from the platform to any graduate receiving less than a doctorate.

The university conferred hon-

(Continued on Page Five)

Case, B.U. president, warned graduates against "avoiding life's risks."

"If you feel that life always should be kind to you, you are bound to be disappointed," Dr. Case said. "But if you expect difficulty, you are bound to find many joyful surprises along the way.

"Choose goals worthy of your efforts and do not mind the risks."

HONORARY DEGREES

Dr. Case presented honorary degrees to:

Ambassador Eban, for service to freedom and understanding of critical world problems, doctor of laws.

Bishop Matthew W. Clair, Jr., St. Louis, Mo., Methodist

INFORMATION OBSCURED

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning
BOSTON, Mass.
Indepe.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.
ITEM
Circ. D. 111,942 - S. 799

DES MOINES, IO
REGISTER

CINCINNATI, OHIO
POST

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

ience has centered upon public nking GOP Foreign Relations

ment. Lil., audience the U. S. y cost short of appeasement
a disaster" of another war.

*

ed a coonskin cap and a toy oston Pops Orchestra in a onic arrangement of "The

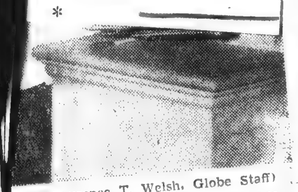
*

WAGNER . . . reached
ginning of a European tour.
ntic forced his plane crew

*



by Laurence T. Welsh, Globe Staff)

Suitably attired, Arthur Fiedler
phonic arrangement of a certain

Independent
Circ. 27,538

JUN

Fiedler Joins the Club

BOSTON (UP)— Arthur Fiedler was presented a 'coon-skin cap and a toy "shootin' arn" Sunday night after conducting the Boston Pops Orchestra in the world premiere of a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

...pped Fiedler ...Pops Concert

WM. RILEY

...cent Mottola in honor of Mrs. ...e Herter, "The Massachusetts' ...First Lady's Waltz."

Altogether a slam-bang affair.

During Mr. Fiedler's enforced vacation Harry Ellis Dickson, a violinist in the Boston Symphony, bore the brunt of the conducting chores. Last evening he took the middle half of the program, leading both Rachmaninoff's Second Concerto, with the young Japanese pianist, Mineko Sasahara, as soloist, and Judge Mottola's engaging waltz.

Mr. Fiedler took the opening and closing sections of the bill ranging from pieces of Coates, Chopin, Glinka and others, including "Popsorama", a low-down arrangement of some popular tunes, a mish-mash of "Let Me Go Lover" with tears and sighs, and the aforementioned "Davy Crockett."

...stand.

Ailing since his return from a long Pops Tour during the Winter, Mr. Fiedler had recovered in fine style and made a surprise appearance in Symphony Hall at B. U. Night at the Pops, Friday evening. But last night's concert was his first full dress program since the beginning of the season.

All around the clock it was a celebrative occasion. Mr. Fiedler's wife and daughters were in the audience. So were Gov. and Mrs. Herter. Davy Crockett "fit the B'ar" musically; some young ladies from Everett displayed a sign, "Welcome Back, Arthur"; and Mr. Fiedler and the Pops Orchestra played a waltz by Judge Vin-

FIEDLER
Page Five

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (•)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

JUN 6 1955

2,462 Receive B. U. Deg...

Eban, Pusey, Kennedy and Munch Among 10 Cited in Garden Exercises

Israel's ambassador to the United States, the president of Harvard, a senator and the conductor of the Boston Symphony are among Boston University's new degree recipients.

They were honored in Boston Garden last night at the annual commencement. Degrees in course were conferred on 2,462 graduating students.

RAIN FORCES PROGRAM INDOORS

Rain forced the exercises indoors and they were combined with the baccalaureate which was to have been given at University Field.

Among 10 honorary degree recipients were Israeli Ambassador Abba S. Eban, President Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard, Sen. John F. Kennedy and Symphony conductor Charles Munch.

Eban delivered the commencement address and urged educators to "cease rushing blindly forward in physical science and catch up on social science."

"The lesson of the present genertion should teach us that the main chance for us to know abundanee rather than disaster lies in the development of ethical principles of social and international contacts."

METHODIST BISHOPS RECEIVE DEGREES

Other honorary degrees went to:

Met... W. Cl... Rayme... Ore.

Also... tor of... of Me... R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court.

Also, Arthur A. Schuck, chief scout executive, Boy Scouts of America, and Dean Mark R. Shibles of the University of Maine School of Education.

leader, for contributions to world peace and service to Methodism, doctor of divinity.

Dr. Joseph Garland, distinguished pediatrician and editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, for outst... contributions to medic... and to medical edit... and science, doctor of scie...

Bishop A. Raymond Grant of the Portland, Ore., Methodist Church area, for distinguished service as administrator, area leader, preacher and churchman, doctor of divinity.

Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court, for services which have gained him national reputation as jurist, doctor of laws.

U. S. Sen. John F. Kennedy, for civic service and service to the country in war and peace, doctor of laws.

Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, for courageous leadership through music in years of crisis and of calm, doctor of music.

Dr. Nathan Marsh Pusey, president of Harvard, for his unique place of leadership in higher education, doctor of laws.

Arthur A. Schuck, chief Scout executive, Boy Scouts of America, for contributions to character development of boys and young men, doctor of humanities.

Dean Mark Richard Shibles of the University of Maine School of Education, for career devoted to training and efficient leadership of teachers, doctor of science in education.

[80]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Press-Herald (m)
PORTLAND, Me.
Independent Republican
Circ. 48,118

047

B. U. Awards Degree To...

BOSTON, June 5 (AP)—Ten honorary degrees were awarded today at commencement exercises of Boston University held at Boston Garden.

Doctorates in law were conferred on Abba Eban, Israel ambassador to the United States; Pres. Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard University; U. S. Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) and Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court.

Methodist Bishops Matthew W. Clair Jr., of St. Louis, Mo., and A. Raymond Grant of Portland, Ore., were awarded doctorates in divinity.

Dr. Joseph Garland, editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, received a doctorate

...Supe...

AT LES... 1/2 ...

Chandle...

Tremont and West Street, B...

BOSTON DEGREE DAY DATA

Degree days	8
Total degree days this month to date	33
Total degree days since July 1	6439
Total at corresponding date last yr.	5154
15-year normal, corresponding date	5764

BAROMETER AT SEA LEVEL

	Millibars	Inches
At 2:30 P. M.	1008.8	29.79
At 8:30 P. M.	1008.5	28.78

...oldest this year to date ... 1
...Warmest this year to date ... 89
...oldest this month to date ... 51
...Warmest this month to date ... 74
...ow RECORD FOR THIS MONTH
...ligh ... 100 in 1929 ... 46 in 1945

RUSSIA—INDIA PHONE

NEW DELHI, India, June 5 (AP) — Direct radio-telephone service between Russia and India was inaugurated today.

...ranges upon Ambassador Eban and nine distinguished Americans, including Dr. Nathan Pusey, Harvard president.

Ambassador Eban referred to our "...of all-pervading tension," and said that never in history has mankind held "such power, and less certainty and maturity in its control."

"We have penetrated deepest and unfolded the truth that the smallest matter contains the greatest source of power," he said. "Yet that power confronts us with an excessive sense of fear.

"The lesson of the present generation should teach us that the main chance for us to know abundance rather than disaster lies in the development of ethical principles of social and international contacts."

HOPE IN SCIENCE

Our recent philosophy has envisioned that physical science would produce the prosperity that would ease world tensions, he said.

"We have been told that abundance would solve problems of social and international pressures," he said. "We know now that we must find the spiritual brotherhood in which to share abundance."

Earlier, in a three-minute version of the 30-minute sermon he would have delivered at University Field, Dr. Harold C. Case, B.U. president, warned graduates against "avoiding life's risks."

"If you feel that life always should be kind to you, you are bound to be disappointed," Dr. Case said. "But if you expect difficulty, you are bound to find many joyful surprises along the way.

"Choose goals worthy of your efforts and do not mind the risks."

HONORARY DEGREES

Dr. Case presented honorary degrees to:

Ambassador Eban, for service to freedom and understanding of critical world problems, doctor of laws.

Bishop Matthew W. Clair, Jr., St. Louis, Mo., Methodist

...ed to get into the ...ack seat, that he was going t... me," she related. "He said h... was an escape from Chino (Cal...ifornia Institution for men) and ...that he was out to revenge ...man who had double-crosse... him."

Mrs. Lapworth opened the ca... door, slammed the movable ca... seat on his hand and ran to the ...home of Mr. and Mrs. Carlos ...Berry. Shortly afterwards the ...gunman punctured tires on five ...cars parked near the George ...Kelly home and robbed Kelly ...and a guest of $30.

Fifteen minutes later he ...sprang at Mr. and Mrs. George ...Bettinger as they were bidding ...good night to another couple at ...their home. Bettinger drew back ...to swing and the bandit fled.

Later Mrs. Malla Gordon, 35, ...saw him trying to steal into her ...house by a rear door. She slammed the door and he ran.

INFORMATION OBSCURED

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Morning [illegible]
[illegible], Mass.

fence has centered upon public

GOP Foreign Relations
Ill., audience the U. S. st short of appeasement
saster" of another war.

coonskin cap and a toy on Pops Orchestra in a arrangement of "The

WAGNER . . . reached
ginning of a European tour.
ntic forced his plane crew

by Laurence T. Welsh, Globe Staff)

uitably attired, Arthur Fiedler honic arrangement of a certain

Independent D[illegible]
Circ. 109,080
JUN 6 [illegible]

Fiedler Leads Pops In 'Davy Crockett'

Boston—(UP)—Arthur Fiedler was presented a 'coon-skin cap and a toy "shooting' arn" last night after conducting the Boston Pops Orchestra in the world premier of a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

pped Fiedler 'Breaks Up' Pops Concert

By JOHN WM. RILEY

Small explosions are an everynight occurence at the Boston Pops. But there was a big bustup in Symphony Hall last night with the return of maestro Arthur Fiedler to the stand.

Ailing since his return from a long Pops Tour during the Winter, Mr. Fiedler had recovered in fine style and made a surprise appearance in Symphony Hall at B. U. Night at the Pops, Friday evening. But last night's concert was his first full dress program since the beginning of the season.

All around the clock it was a celebrative occasion. Mr. Fiedler's wife and daughters were in the audience. So were Gov. and Mrs. Herter. Davy Crockett "fit the B'ar" musically; some young ladies from Everett displayed a sign, "Welcome Back, Arthur"; and Mr. Fiedler and the Pops Orchestra played a waltz by Judge Vincent Mottola in honor of Mrs. Herter, "The Massachusetts' First Lady's Waltz."

Altogether a slam-bang affair.

During Mr. Fiedler's enforced vacation Harry Ellis Dickson, a violinist in the Boston Symphony, bore the brunt of the conducting chores. Last evening he took the middle half of the program, leading both Rachmaninoff's Second Concerto, with the young Japanese pianist, Mineko Sasahara, 'as soloist, and Judge Mottola's engaging waltz.

Mr. Fiedler took the opening and closing sections of the bill ranging from pieces of Coates, Chopin, Glinka and others, including "Popsorama", a low-down arrangement of some popular tunes, a mish-mash of "Let Me Go Lover" with tears and sighs, and the aforementioned "Davy Crockett."

FIEDLER
Page Five

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593
JUN 6 1955

2,462 Receive B. U. Degrees

Eban, Pusey, Kennedy and Munch Among 10 Cited in Garden Exercises

Israel's ambassador to the United States, the president of Harvard, a senator and the conductor of the Boston Symphony are among Boston University's new degree recipients.

They were honored in Boston Garden last night at the annual commencement. Degrees in course were conferred on 2,462 graduating students.

RAIN FORCES PROGRAM INDOORS

Rain forced the exercises indoors and they were combined with the baccalaureate which was to have been given at University Field.

Among 10 honorary degree recipients were Israeli Ambassador Abba S. Eban, President Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard, Sen. John F. Kennedy and Symphony conductor Charles Munch.

Eban delivered the commencement address and urged educators to "cease rushing blindly forward in physical science and catch up on social science."

"The lesson of the present generation should teach us that the main chance for us to know abundance rather than disaster lies in the development of ethical principles of social and international contacts."

METHODIST BISHOPS RECEIVE DEGREES

Other honorary degrees went to:

Methodist Bishops Matthew W. Clair Jr. of St. Louis and A. Raymond Grant of Portland, Ore.

Also, Dr. Joseph Garland, editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court.

Also, Arthur A. Schuck, chief scout executive, Boy Scouts of America, and Dean Mark R. Shibles of the University of Maine School of Education.

[80]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Press-Herald (m)
PORTLAND, Me.
Independent Republican
Circ. 48,118

B. U. Awards Degree To

BOSTON, June 5 (AP)—Ten honorary degrees were awarded today at commencement exercises of Boston University held at Boston Garden. 047

Doctorates in law were conferred on Abba Eban, Israel ambassador to the United States; Pres. Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard University; U. S. Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) and Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court.

Methodist Bishops Matthew W. Clair Jr., of St. Louis, Mo., and A. Raymond Grant of Portland, Ore., were awarded doctorates in divinity.

Dr. Joseph Garland, editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, received a doctorate

Supe
AT LES 1/2
Chandle
Tremont and West Street, B

BOSTON DEGREE DAY DATA

Degree days this month to date	53
Total degree days since July 1	6438
Total at corresponding date last yr.	5136
5-year normal, corresponding date	5766

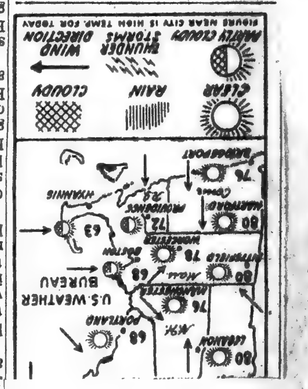
BAROMETER AT SEA LEVEL

	Millibars	Inches
At 2:30 P. M.	1006.8	29.73
At 8:30 P. M.	1008.8	29.79

Coldest this year to date	—1
Coldest this month to date	51
Warmest this year to date	89
Warmest this month to date	74
LOW RECORD FOR THIS MONTH
46 in 1949
HIGH	100 in 1923

RUSSIA—INDIA PHONE

NEW DELHI, India, June 5 (AP) — Direct radio-telephone service between Russia and India was inaugurated today.



Tremont and West Street, Boston

Chandler's Restaurant

Good night to another couple at their home. Bettinger drew back to swing and the bandit fled. Later Mrs. Malla Gordon, 35, saw him trying to steal into her house by a rear door. She slammed the door and he ran.

Fifteen minutes later he sprang at Mr. and Mrs. George Bettinger as they were bidding good night to another couple at their home. Bettinger drew back to swing and the bandit fled. Later Mrs. Malla Gordon, 35, saw him trying to steal into her house by a rear door. She slammed the door and he ran.

Fifteen minutes later he sprang at Mr. and Mrs. George Bettinger as they were bidding Kelly home and robbed Kelly and a guest of $30.

Mrs. Lapworth opened the car door, slammed the movable car seat on his hand and ran to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Berry. Shortly afterwards the Gunman punctured tires on five cars parked near the George

"He told me to get into the back seat, that he was going to [illegible] me," she related. "He said he was an escapee from Chino (California institution for men) and that he was out to revenge a man who had double-crossed him."

orary degrees upon Ambassador Eban and nine distinguished Americans, including Dr. Nathan Pusey, Harvard president.

Ambassador Eban referred to our times as "an era of all-pervading tension," and said that never in history has mankind held "more power, and less certainty and maturity in its control [illegible]

"We have penetrated deepest and unlocked the truth that the smallest matter contains the greatest source of power," he said. "Yet that power confronts us with an excessive sense of fear.

"The lesson of the present generation should teach us that the main chance for us to know abundance rather than disaster lies in the development of ethical principles of social and international contacts."

HOPE IN SCIENCE

Our recent philosophy has envisioned that physical science would produce the prosperity that would ease world tensions, he said.

"We have been told that abundance would solve problems of social and international pressures," he said. "We know now that we must find the spiritual brotherhood in which to share abundance."

Earlier, in a three-minute version of the 30-minute sermon he would have delivered at University Field, Dr. Harold C. Case, B.U. president, warned graduates against "avoiding life's risks."

[illegible] that life always [illegible] are leader, for contributions to world peace and service to Methodism, doctor of divinity.

Dr. Joseph Garland, distinguished pedistrician and editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, for outstanding contributions to medicine [illegible] and, to medical [illegible] and sciences, doctor of science.

Bishop A. Raymond Grant of the Portland, Ore., Methodist Church area, for distinguished service as administrator, area leader, preacher and churchman, doctor of divinity.

Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court, for services which have gained [illegible] national reputation [illegible] laws.

[illegible]en. John F. Kennedy, [illegible] service and service to [illegible]ntry in war and peace, [illegible] of laws.

[illegible]les Munch, conductor of [illegible]ston Symphony Orches[illegible]r courageous leadership [illegible]h music in years of crisis [illegible] calm, doctor of music.

[illegible] Nathan Marsh Pusey, [illegible]dent of Harvard, for his [illegible]ue place of leadership in [illegible]er education, doctor of [illegible]

[illegible]rthur A. Schuck, chief Scout executive, Boy Scouts of America, for contributions to character development of boys and young men, doctor of humanities.

Dean Mark Richard Shibles of the University of Maine School of Education, for career devoted to training and efficient leadership of teachers, doctor of science in education.

A bracing "outdoor-scented" [illegible]on with a definitely worldly air!

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Press-Herald (m)
PORTLAND, Me.
Independent Republican
Circ. 48,118

B. U. Awards Degree To

BOSTON, June 5 (AP)—Ten honorary degrees were awarded today at commencement exercises of Boston University held at Boston Garden.

Doctorates in law were conferred on Abba Eban, Israel ambassador to the United States; Pres. Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard University; U. S. Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) and Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court.

Methodist Bishops Matthew W. Clair Jr., of St. Louis, Mo., and A. Raymond Grant of Portland, Ore., were awarded doctorates in divinity.

Dr. Joseph Garland, editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, received a doctorate

Chandle
Tremont and West Street, B

BOSTON DEGREE DAY DATA

Degree days
Total degree days this month to date 33
Total degree days since July 1 8438
Total at corresponding date last yr. 8134
Total degree days since July 1 8438
(5-year normal, corresponding date 5764

BAROMETER AT SEA LEVEL.

	Millibars	Inches
At 8:30 P. M.	1008.8	29.78
At 5:30 P. M.	1008.8	29.78

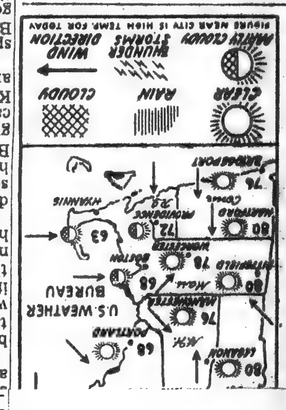
Highest this year to date ..... —1
Highest this month to date 89
Warmest this month to date 51
Warmest this month to date 74

RECORD FOR THIS MONTH

Low ..... 46 in 1945
High ..... 100 in 1925

RUSSIA—INDIA PHONE

NEW DELHI, India, June 5 (AP) — Direct radio-telephone service between Russia and India was inaugurated today.



...rates upon Ambassador Eban and nine distinguished Americans, including Dr. Nathan Pusey, Harvard president.

Ambassador Eban referred to our times as an era of all-pervading tension, and said that never in history has mankind held "more power, and less certainty and maturity in its control of it to assure

"We have penetrated deepest and unlocked the truth that the smallest matter contains the greatest source of power," he said. "Yet that power confronts us with an excessive sense of fear.

"The lesson of the present generation should teach us that the main chance for us to know abundance rather than disaster lies in the development of ethical principles of social and international contacts."

HOPE IN SCIENCE

Our recent philosophy has envisioned that physical science would produce the prosperity that would ease world tensions, he said.

"We have been told that abundance would solve problems of social and international pressures," he said. "We know now that we must find the spiritual brotherhood in which to share abundance."

Earlier, in a three-minute version of the 30-minute sermon he would have delivered at University Field, Dr. Harold C. Case, B.U. president, warned graduates against "avoiding life's risks."

...at life always ...arc

leader, for contributions to world peace and service to Methodism, doctor of divinity.

Dr. Joseph Garland, distinguished pedistrician and editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, for outst... contributions to medic... and to medical edit... and science, doctor of science.

Bishop A. Raymond Grant of the Portland, Ore., Methodist Church area, for distinguished service as administrator, area leader, preacher and churchman, doctor of divinity.

Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court, for services which have gained ... national reputation ... laws.

...en. John F. Kennedy, ... service and service to ...ntry in war and peace, ... of laws.

...les Munch, conductor of ...ston Symphony Orches... ...r courageous leadership ...h music in years of crisis ...f calm, doctor of music.

... Nathan Marsh Pusey, ...dent of Harvard, for his ...he place of leadership in ...er education, doctor of ...

Arthur A. Schuck, chief Scout executive, Boy Scouts of America, for contributions to character development of boys and young men, doctor of humanities.

Dean Mark Richard Shibles of the University of Maine School of Education, for career devoted to training and efficient leadership of teachers, doctor of science in education.

A bracing "outdoor-scented" lotion with a definitely worldly air!

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

JUN 6 1955

2,462 Receive B. U. Degrees

Eban, Pusey, Kennedy and Munch Among 10 Cited in Garden Exercises

Israel's ambassador to the United States, the president of Harvard, a senator and the conductor of the Boston Symphony are among Boston University's new degree recipients.

They were honored in Boston Garden last night at the annual commencement. Degrees in course were conferred on 2,462 graduating students.

RAIN FORCES PROGRAM INDOORS

Rain forced the exercises indoors and they were somewhat shortened with the baccalaureate, which was to have been given at University Field.

Among 10 honorary degree recipients were Israeli Ambassador Abba S. Eban, President Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard, Sen. John F. Kennedy and Symphony conductor Charles Munch.

Eban delivered the commencement address and urged educators to "cease rushing blindly forward in physical science and catch up on social science."

"The lesson of the present genertion should teach us that the main chance for us to know abundanee rather than disaster lies in the development of ethical principles of social and international contacts."

METHODIST BISHOPS RECEIVE DEGREES

Other honorary degrees went to:

Methodist Bishops Matthew W. Clair Jr. of St. Louis and A. Raymond Grant of Portland, Ore.

Also, Dr. Joseph Garland, editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court.

Also, Arthur A. Schuck, chief scout executive, Boy Scouts of America, and Dean Mark R. Shibles of the University of Maine School of Education.

[80]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

JUN 6 1955

...lence has centered upon public

...anking GOP Foreign Relations ...ment. Ill., audience the U. S. ...any cost short of appeasement ...and disaster" of another war.

*

...ved a coonskin cap and a toy ... Boston Pops Orchestra in a ...phonic arrangement of "The

*

RT WAGNER . . . reached ...beginning of a European tour. ...lantic forced his plane crew ...el.

*

A Boston Symphony Hall audience heard a world premiere last night...The Boston Pops Orchestra introduced a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

...tola. ...ncent Mot-

(Photo by Laurence T. Welsh, Globe Staff)

NAME THAT TUNE—Suitably attired, Arthur Fiedler directs with gusto a symphonic arrangement of a certain popular tune at the Pops.

Coonskin-Capped Fiedler 'Breaks Up' Pops Concert

By JOHN WM. RILEY

Small explosions are an everynight occurence at the Boston Pops. But there was a big bustup in Symphony Hall last night with the return of maestro Arthur Fiedler to the stand.

Ailing since his return from a long Pops Tour during the Winter, Mr. Fiedler had recovered in fine style and made a surprise appearance in Symphony Hall at B. U. Night at the Pops, Friday evening. But last night's concert was his first full dress program since the beginning of the season.

All around the clock it was a celebrative occasion. Mr. Fiedler's wife and daughters were in the audience. So were Gov. and Mrs. Herter. Davy Crockett "fit the B'ar" musically; some young ladies from Everett displayed a sign, "Welcome Back, Arthur"; and Mr. Fiedler and the Pops Orchestra played a waltz by Judge Vincent Mottola in honor of Mrs. Herter, "The Massachusetts' First Lady's Waltz."

Altogether a slam-bang affair.

During Mr. Fiedler's enforced vacation Harry Ellis Dickson, a violinist in the Boston Symphony, bore the brunt of the conducting chores. Last evening he took the middle half of the program, leading both Rachmaninoff's Second Concerto, with the young Japanese pianist, Mineko Sasahara, as soloist, and Judge Mottola's engaging waltz.

Mr. Fiedler took the opening and closing sections of the bill ranging from pieces of Coates, Chopin, Glinka and others, including "Popsorama", a low-down arrangement of some popular tunes, a mish-mash of "Let Me Go Lover" with tears and sighs, and the aforementioned "Davy Crockett."

FIEDLER
Page Five

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

Press-Herald (m)
PORTLAND, Me.
Independent Republican
Circ. 48,118

B. U. Awards Degree To

BOSTON, June 5 (AP)—Ten honorary degrees were awarded today at commencement exercises of Boston University held at Boston Garden. 047

Doctorates in law were conferred on Abba Eban, Israel ambassador to the United States; Pres. Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard University; U. S. Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) and Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court.

Methodist Bishops Matthew W. Clair Jr., of St. Louis, Mo., and A. Raymond Grant of Portland, Ore., were awarded doctorates in divinity.

Dr. Joseph Garland, editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, received a doctorate

Chandle
Tremont and West Street, B
AT LE
1/2

BOSTON DEGREE DAY DATA

Degree days	8
Total degree days this month to date	33
Total degree days since July 1	8439
Total at corresponding date last yr.	8134
18-year normal, corresponding date	8764

BAROMETER AT SEA LEVEL.

	Millibars	Inches
At 1:30 P. M.	1006.8	29.73
At 8:30 P. M.	1008.5	29.79

Highest this year to date	—1
Warmest this year to date	89
Coldest this month to date	51
Warmest this month to date	74

RECORD FOR THIS MONTH

Low	46 in 1945
High	100 in 1925

RUSSIA—INDIA PHONE

NEW DELHI, India, June 5 (AP) — Direct radio-telephone service between Russia and India was inaugurated today.

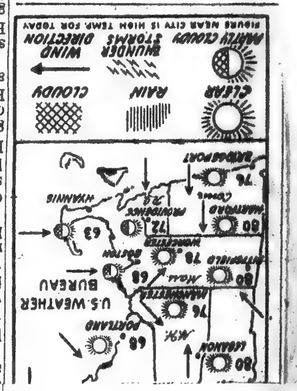
Good night to another couple at their home. Bettinger drew back to swing and the bandit fled. Later Mrs. Malla Gordon, 35, saw him trying to steal into her house by a rear door. She slammed the door and he ran.

Sprang at Mr. and Mrs. George Bettinger as they were bidding Fifteen minutes later he and a guest of $30.

Kelly home and robbed Kelly cars parked near the George gunman punctured tires on five Berry. Shortly afterwards the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carlo seat on his hand and ran to the door, slammed the movable ca Mrs. Lapworth opened the ca

"He told me to get into th back seat, that he was going t me," she related. "He said h was an escapee from Chino (Cal ifornia institution for men) an that he was out to revenge himself on the man who had double-crosse him."

a knife.



HIGHER NEAR CITY IS HIGH TEMP. FOR TODAY

orary degrees upon Ambassador Eban and nine distinguished Americans, including Dr. Nathan Pusey, Harvard president.

Ambassador Eban referred to our [illegible] of all-pervading tension, and said that never in history has mankind held "more power, and less certainty and maturity in its control."

"We have penetrated deepest and unlocked the truth that the smallest particle contains the greatest source of power," he said. "Yet that power confronts us with an excessive sense of fear.

"The lesson of the present generation should teach us that the main chance for us to know abundance rather than disaster lies in the development of ethical principles of social and international contacts."

HOPE IN SCIENCE

Our recent philosophy has envisioned that physical science would produce the prosperity that would ease world tensions, he said.

"We have been told that abundance would solve problems of social and international pressures," he said. "We know now that we must find the spiritual brotherhood in which to share abundance."

Earlier, in a three-minute version of the 30-minute sermon he would have delivered at University Field, Dr. Harold C. Case, B.U. president, warned graduates against "avoiding life's risks."

[illegible] that life always [illegible] arc

leader, for contributions to world peace and service to Methodism, doctor of divinity.

Dr. Joseph Garland, distinguished pediatrician and editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, for outstanding contributions to medicine [illegible] and, to medical [illegible] and science, doctor of science.

Bishop A. Raymond Grant of the Portland, Ore., Methodist Church area, for distinguished service as administrator, area leader, preacher and churchman, doctor of divinity.

Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court, for services which have gained [illegible] national reputation [illegible] laws.

[illegible]en. John F. Kennedy, [illegible] service and service to [illegible]ntry in war and peace, [illegible] of laws.

[illegible]les Munch, conductor of [illegible]ston Symphony Orches[illegible]r courageous leadership [illegible]h music in years of crisis [illegible]f calm, doctor of music.

[illegible] Nathan Marsh Pusey, [illegible]dent of Harvard, for his [illegible]ue place of leadership in [illegible]r education, doctor of [illegible]

Arthur A. Schuck, chief Scout executive, Boy Scouts of America, for contributions to character development of boys and young men, doctor of humanities.

Dean Mark Richard Shibles of the University of Maine School of Education, for career devoted to training and efficient leadership of teachers, doctor of science in education.

A bracing "outdoor-scented" [illegible]ion with a definitely worldly air!

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,598

JUN 6 1955

2,462 Receive B. U. Degrees

Eban, Pusey, Kennedy and Munch Among 10 Cited in Garden Exercises

Israel's ambassador to the United States, the president of Harvard, a senator and the conductor of the Boston Symphony are among Boston University's new degree recipients.

They were honored in Boston Garden last night at the annual commencement. Degrees in course were conferred on 2,462 graduating students.

RAIN FORCES PROGRAM INDOORS

Rain forced the exercises indoors and they were completed with the baccalaureate which was to have been given at University Field.

Among 10 honorary degree recipients were Israeli Ambassador Abba S. Eban, President Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard, Sen. John F. Kennedy and Symphony conductor Charles Munch.

Eban delivered the commencement address and urged educators to "cease rushing blindly forward in physical science and catch up on social science."

"The lesson of the present generation should teach us that the main chance for us to know abundance rather than disaster lies in the development of ethical principles of social and international contacts."

METHODIST BISHOPS RECEIVE DEGREES

Other honorary degrees went to:

Methodist Bishops Matthew W. Clair Jr. of St. Louis and A. Raymond Grant of Portland, Ore.

Also, Dr. Joseph Garland, editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court.

Also, Arthur A. Schuck, chief scout executive, Boy Scouts of America, and Dean Mark R. Shibles of the University of Maine School of Education.

[80]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

Independent
Circ. 101,022

JUN

Premier for "Davey"

BOSTON, June 6 (UP)—Arthur Fiedler was presented a 'coon-skin cap and toy "shootin' arn" Sunday night after conducting the Boston Pops Orchestra in the world premier of a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davey Crockett."

Mrs. Chritian A. Herter was dedicated a number by the orchestra.

The governor's wife was honored with the first playing of "Massachusetts First Lady's Waltz," by Judge Vincent Mottola.

anking GOP Foreign Relations ement. Ill., audience the U. S. ny cost short of appeasement nd disaster" of another war.

*

ved a coonskin cap and a toy Boston Pops Orchestra in a honic arrangement of "The

*

RT WAGNER . . . reached beginning of a European tour. lantic forced his plane crew d.

*

(Photo by Laurence T. Welsh, Globe Staff)

NAME THAT TUNE—Suitably attired, Arthur Fiedler directs with gusto a symphonic arrangement of a certain popular tune at the Pops.

Coonskin-Capped Fiedler 'Breaks Up' Pops Concert

By JOHN WM. RILEY

Small explosions are an everynight occurence at the Boston Pops. But there was a big bustup in Symphony Hall last night with the return of maestro Arthur Fiedler to the stand.

Ailing since his return from a long Pops Tour during the Winter, Mr. Fiedler had recovered in fine style and made a surprise appearance in Symphony Hall at B. U. Night at the Pops, Friday evening. But last night's concert was his first full dress program since the beginning of the season.

All around the clock it was a celebrative occasion. Mr. Fiedler's wife and daughters were in the audience. So were Gov. and Mrs. Herter. Davy Crockett "fit the B'ar" musically; some young ladies from Everett displayed a sign, "Welcome Back, Arthur"; and Mr. Fiedler and the Pops Orchestra played a waltz by Judge Vincent Mottola in honor of Mrs. Herter, "The Massachusetts' First Lady's Waltz."

Altogether a slam-bang affair.

During Mr. Fiedler's enforced vacation Harry Ellis Dickson, a violinist in the Boston Symphony, bore the brunt of the conducting chores. Last evening he took the middle half of the program, leading both Rachmaninoff's Second Concerto, with the young Japanese pianist, Mineko Sasahara, as soloist, and Judge Mottola's engaging waltz.

Mr. Fiedler took the opening and closing sections of the bill ranging from pieces of Coates, Chopin, Glinka and others, including "Popsorama", a low-down arrangement of some popular tunes, a mish-mash of "Let Me Go Lover" with tears and sighs, and the aforementioned "Davy Crockett."

FIEDLER
Page Five

New Box

CINCINNA[illegible]
POST
Circ. D. 155,426

JUN 6 1955

SEN. ALEXANDER WILEY, ranking GOP Foreign Relations Committee member . . . told a Bement, Ill., audience the U. S. must "endure" Russia at almost any cost short of appeasement in an effort to avoid the "chaos and disaster" of another war.

* * *

ARTHUR FIEDLER . . . received a coonskin cap and a toy "shootin' 'arn" after leading his Boston Pops Orchestra in a premier performance of a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

* * *

NEW YORK MAYOR ROBERT WAGNER . . . reached London several hours late for the beginning of a European tour because heavy winds over the Atlantic forced his plane crew to land in Labrador for extra fuel.

* * *

(Photo by Laurence T. Welsh, Globe Staff)

NAME THAT TUNE—Suitably attired, Arthur Fiedler directs with gusto a symphonic arrangement of a certain popular tune at the Pops.

Coonskin-Capped Fiedler 'Breaks Up' Pops Concert

By JOHN WM. RILEY

Small explosions are an everynight occurence at the Boston Pops. But there was a big bustup in Symphony Hall last night with the return of maestro Arthur Fiedler to the stand.

Ailing since his return from a long Pops Tour during the Winter, Mr. Fiedler had recovered in fine style and made a surprise appearance in Symphony Hall at B. U. Night at the Pops, Friday evening. But last night's concert was his first full dress program since the beginning of the season.

All around the clock it was a celebrative occasion. Mr. Fiedler's wife and daughters were in the audience. So were Gov. and Mrs. Herter. Davy Crockett "fit the B'ar" musically; some young ladies from Everett displayed a sign, "Welcome Back, Arthur"; and Mr. Fiedler and the Pops Orchestra played a waltz by Judge Vincent Mottola in honor of Mrs. Herter, "The Massachusetts' First Lady's Waltz."

Altogether a slam-bang affair.

During Mr. Fiedler's enforced vacation Harry Ellis Dickson, a violinist in the Boston Symphony, bore the brunt of the conducting chores. Last evening he took the middle half of the program, leading both Rachmaninoff's Second Concerto, with the young Japanese pianist, Mineko Sasahara, as soloist, and Judge Mottola's engaging waltz.

Mr. Fiedler took the opening and closing sections of the bill ranging from pieces of Coates, Chopin, Glinka and others, including "Popsorama", a low-down arrangement of some popular tunes, a mish-mash of "Let Me Go Lover" with tears and sighs, and the aforementioned "Davy Crockett."

FIEDLER
Page Five

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

JUN 6 1955

2,462 Receive B. U. Degrees

Eban, Pusey, Kennedy and Munch Among 10 Cited in Garden Exercises

Israel's ambassador to the United States, the president of Harvard, a senator and the conductor of the Boston Symphony are among Boston University's new degree recipients.

They were honored in Boston Garden last night at the annual commencement. Degrees in course were conferred on 2,462 graduating students.

RAIN FORCES PROGRAM INDOORS

Rain forced the exercises indoors and they were combined with the baccalaureate service which was to have been given at University Field.

Among 10 honorary degree recipients were Israeli Ambassador Abba S. Eban, President Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard, Sen. John F. Kennedy and Symphony conductor Charles Munch.

Eban delivered the commencement address and urged educators to "cease rushing blindly forward in physical science and catch up on social science."

"The lesson of the present generation should teach us that the main chance for us to know abundance rather than disaster lies in the development of ethical principles of social and international contacts."

METHODIST BISHOPS RECEIVE DEGREES

Other honorary degrees went to:

Methodist Bishops Matthew W. Clair Jr. of St. Louis and A. Raymond Grant of Portland, Ore.

Also, Dr. Joseph Garland, editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court.

Also, Arthur A. Schuck, chief scout executive, Boy Scouts of America, and Dean Mark R. Shibles of the University of Maine School of Education.

[80]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Press-Herald (m)
PORTLAND, Me.
Independent Republican
Circ. 48,118

B. U. Awards Degree To

BOSTON, June 5 (AP)—Ten honorary degrees were awarded today at commencement exercises of Boston University held at Boston Garden. 047

Doctorates in law were conferred on Abba Eban, Israel ambassador to the United States; Pres. Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard University; U. S. Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) and Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court.

Methodist Bishops Matthew W. Clair Jr., of St. Louis, Mo., and A. Raymond Grant of Portland, Ore., were awarded doctorates in divinity.

Dr. Joseph Garland, editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, received a doctorate

[illegible] Supe[illegible]

AT LE[illegible] 1/2

Chandle
Tremont and West Street, B[illegible]

BOSTON DEGREE DAY DATA

Degree days	8
Total degree days this month to date	33
Total degree days since July 1	6439
Total at corresponding date last yr.	5164
5-year normal, corresponding date	5766

BAROMETER AT SEA LEVEL

	Millibars Inches
At 2:30 P. M.	1008.8 29.79
At 8:30 P. M.	1008.5 29.78

Coldest this year to date	—1
Warmest this year to date	89
Coldest this month to date	51
Warmest this month to date	74

RECORD FOR THIS MONTH

Low	46 in 1945
High	100 in 1925

RUSSIA—INDIA PHONE

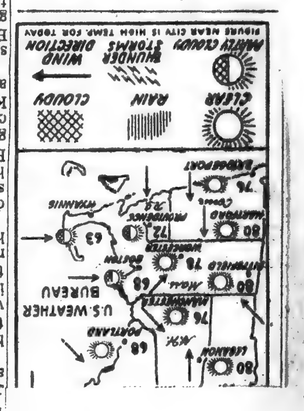
NEW DELHI, India, June 5 (AP) — Direct radio-telephone service between Russia and India was inaugurated today.

Good night to another couple at their home. Bettinger drew back to swing and the bandit fled. Later Mrs. Malla Gordon, 35, saw him trying to steal into her house by a rear door. She slammed the door and he ran.

Fifteen minutes later he sprang at Mr. and Mrs. George Bettinger as they were bidding good night to another couple at their home. Bettinger drew back to swing and the bandit fled. Later Mrs. Malla Gordon, 35, saw him trying to steal into her house by a rear door. She slammed the door and he ran.

Mrs. Lapworth opened the car door, slammed the movable car seat on his hand and ran to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Berry. Shortly afterwards the gunman punctured tires on five cars parked near the George Kelly home and robbed Kelly and a guest of $30.

"He told me to get into the back seat, that he was going to take me," she related. "He said he was an escape from Chino (California institution for men) and that he was out to revenge a man who had double-crossed him."



orary degrees upon Ambassador Eban and nine distinguished Americans, including Dr. Nathan Pusey, Harvard president.

Ambassador Eban referred to our [illegible] era of all-pervading tension, and said that never in history has mankind held "more power, and less certainty and maturity in its control.

"We have penetrated deepest and unlocked the truth that the smallest particle contains the greatest source of power," he said. "Yet that power confronts us with an excessive sense of fear.

"The lesson of the present generation should teach us that the main chance for us to know abundance rather than disaster lies in the development of ethical principles of social and international contacts."

HOPE IN SCIENCE

Our recent philosophy has envisioned that physical science would produce the prosperity that would ease world tensions, he said.

"We have been told that abundance would solve problems of social and international pressures," he said. "We know now that we must find the spiritual brotherhood in which to share abundance."

Earlier, in a three-minute version of the 30-minute sermon he would have delivered at University Field, Dr. Harold C. Case, B.U. president, warned graduates against "avoiding life's risks."

[illegible] that life always [illegible] are leader, for contributions to world peace and service to Methodism, doctor of divinity.

Dr. Joseph Garland, distinguished pediatrician and editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, for outstanding contributions to medicine [illegible] and, to medical education and science, doctor of science.

Bishop A. Raymond Grant of the Portland, Ore., Methodist Church area, for distinguished service as administrator, area leader, preacher and churchman, doctor of divinity.

Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court, for services which have gained him national reputation [illegible] laws.

Sen. John F. Kennedy, [illegible] service and service to country in war and peace, doctor of laws.

Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, for courageous leadership through music in years of crisis and of calm, doctor of music.

Dr. Nathan Marsh Pusey, president of Harvard, for his [illegible] place of leadership in higher education, doctor of [illegible]

Arthur A. Schuck, chief Scout executive, Boy Scouts of America, for contributions to character development of boys and young men, doctor of humanities.

Dean Mark Richard Shibles of the University of Maine School of Education, for career devoted to training and efficient leadership of teachers, doctor of science in education.

A bracing "outdoor-scented" lotion with a definitely worldly air!

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Press-Herald (m)
PORTLAND, Me.
Independent Republican
Circ. 18,118

B. U. Awards Degree To

BOSTON, June 5 (AP)—Ten honorary degrees were awarded today at commencement exercises of Boston University held at Boston Garden.

Doctorates in law were conferred on Abba Eban, Israel ambassador to the United States; Pres. Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard University; U. S. Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) and Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court.

Methodist Bishops Matthew W. Clair Jr., of St. Louis, Mo., and A. Raymond Grant of Portland, Ore., were awarded doctorates in divinity.

Dr. Joseph Garland, editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, received a doctorate

Chandle
Tremont and West Street, B

BOSTON DEGREE DAY DATA

Degree days	33
Total degree days this month to date	33
Total degree days since July 1	8439
Total at corresponding date last yr.	8134
5-year normal, corresponding date	8764

BAROMETER AT SEA LEVEL.

	Millibars	Inches
At 2:30 P. M.	1008.8	29.79
At 5:30 P. M.	1008.8	29.79

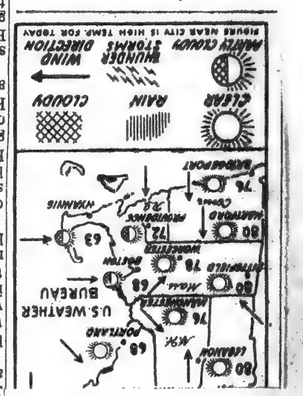
Coldest this year to date ..... —1
Warmest this year to date 89
Coldest this month to date 51
Warmest this month to date 74

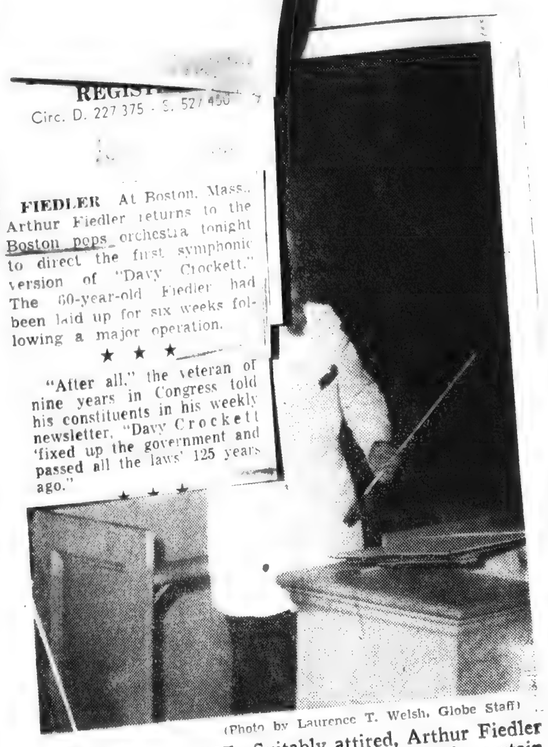
RECORD FOR THIS MONTH

High	100 in 1923
Low	40 in 1925

RUSSIA—INDIA PHONE

NEW DELHI, India, June 5 (AP) — Direct radio-telephone service between Russia and India was inaugurated today.





(Photo by Laurence T. Welsh, Globe Staff)

NAME THAT TUNE—Suitably attired, Arthur Fiedler directs with gusto a symphonic arrangement of a certain popular tune at the Pops.

Coonskin-Capped Fiedler 'Breaks Up' Pops Concert

By JOHN WM. RILEY

Small explosions are an everynight occurence at the Boston Pops. But there was a big bustup in Symphony Hall last night with the return of maestro Arthur Fiedler to the stand.

Ailing since his return from a long Pops Tour during the Winter, Mr. Fiedler had recovered in fine style and made a surprise appearance in Symphony Hall at B. U. Night at the Pops, Friday evening. But last night's concert was his first full dress program since the beginning of the season.

All around the clock it was a celebrative occasion. Mr. Fiedler's wife and daughters were in the audience. So were Gov. and Mrs. Herter. Davy Crockett "fit the B'ar" musically; some young ladies from Everett displayed a sign, "Welcome Back, Arthur"; and Mr. Fiedler and the Pops Orchestra played a waltz by Judge Vincent Mottola in honor of Mrs. Herter, "The Massachusetts' First Lady's Waltz."

Altogether a slam-bang affair.

During Mr. Fiedler's enforced vacation Harry Ellis Dickson, a violinist in the Boston Symphony, bore the brunt of the conducting chores. Last evening he took the middle half of the program, leading both Rachmaninoff's Second Concerto, with the young Japanese pianist, Mineko Sasahara, 'as soloist, and Judge Mottola's engaging waltz.

Mr. Fiedler took the opening and closing sections of the bill ranging from pieces of Coates, Chopin, Glinka and others, including "Popsorama", a low-down arrangement of some popular tunes, a mish-mash of "Let Me Go Lover" with tears and sighs, and the aforementioned "Davy Crockett."

FIEDLER
Page Five

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

JUN 6 1955

2,462 Receive B. U. Degrees

Eban, Pusey, Kennedy and Munch Among 10 Cited in Garden Exercises

Israel's ambassador to the United States, the president of Harvard, a senator and the conductor of the Boston Symphony are among Boston University's new degree recipients.

They were honored in Boston Garden last night at the annual commencement. Degrees in course were conferred on 2,462 graduating students.

RAIN FORCES PROGRAM INDOORS

Rain forced the exercises indoors and they were combined with the baccalaureate, which was to have been given at University Field.

Among 10 honorary degree recipients were Israeli Ambassador Abba S. Eban, President Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard, Sen. John F. Kennedy and Symphony conductor Charles Munch.

Eban delivered the commencement address and urged educators to "cease rushing blindly forward in physical science and catch up on social science."

"The lesson of the present generation should teach us that the main chance for us to know abundance rather than disaster lies in the development of ethical principles of social and international contacts."

METHODIST BISHOPS RECEIVE DEGREES

Other honorary degrees went to:

Methodist Bishops Matthew W. Clair Jr. of St. Louis and A. Raymond Grant of Portland, Ore.

Also, Dr. Joseph Garland, editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court.

Also, Arthur A. Schuck, chief scout executive, Boy Scouts of America, and Dean Mark R. Shibles of the University of Maine School of Education.

[80]

good night to another couple at their home. Bettinger drew back to swing and the bandit fled. Later Mrs. Malla Gordon, 35, saw him trying to steal into her house by a rear door. She slammed the door and he ran.

ambassador Eban referred to our [illegible] as an era of all-pervading tension," and said that never in history has mankind held "more power, and less certainty and maturity in its control."

"We have penetrated deepest and unlocked the truth that the smallest matter contains the greatest source of power," he said. "Yet that power confronts us with an excessive sense of fear.

"The lesson of the present generation should teach us that the main chance for us to know abundance rather than disaster lies in the development of ethical principles of social and international contacts."

HOPE IN SCIENCE

Our recent philosophy has envisioned that physical science would produce the prosperity that would ease world tensions, he said.

"We have been told that abundance would solve problems of social and international pressures," he said. "We know now that we must find the spiritual brotherhood in which to share abundance."

Earlier, in a three-minute version of the 30-minute sermon he would have delivered at University Field, Dr. Harold C. Case, B.U. president, warned graduates against "avoiding life's risks."

[illegible] that life always [illegible] are leader, for contributions to world peace and service to Methodism, doctor of divinity.

Dr. Joseph Garland, distinguished pediatrician and editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, for outstanding contributions to medicine [illegible] and, to medical [illegible] and sciences, doctor of science.

Bishop A. Raymond Grant of the Portland, Ore., Methodist Church area, for distinguished service as administrator, area leader, preacher and churchman, doctor of divinity.

Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court, for services which have gained [illegible] national reputation as a jurist, laws.

[illegible]en. John F. Kennedy, service and service to [illegible]ntry in war and peace, of laws.

[illegible]es Munch, conductor of [illegible]ston Symphony Orches- [illegible]r courageous leadership [illegible]h music in years of crisis [illegible]f calm, doctor of music.

[illegible] Nathan Marsh Pusey, [illegible]dent of Harvard, for his [illegible]ue place of leadership in [illegible]er education, doctor of [illegible]rthur A. Schuck, chief Scout executive, Boy Scouts of America, for contributions to character development of boys and young men, doctor of humanities.

Dean Mark Richard Shibles of the University of Maine School of Education, for career devoted to training and efficient leadership of teachers, doctor of science in education.

A bracing "outdoor-scented" [illegible]on with a definitely woodsy air!

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Press-Herald (m)
PORTLAND, Me.
Independent Republican
Circ. 48,118

ARTHUR FIEDLER conducted the Boston Pops Orchestra last night in the world premier of a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

Fiedler was then presented with a 'coon-skin cap and a toy "shootin' 'arn."

★ ★ ★

Rep. GLENN DAVIS, (R-Wis) complains that he's no longer a hero in his children's eyes because he can't match DAVY CROCKETT."

"After all," the veteran of nine years in Congress told his constituents in his weekly newsletter, "Davy Crockett 'fixed up the government and passed all the laws' 125 years ago."

(Photo by Laurence T. Welsh, Globe Staff)

NAME THAT TUNE—Suitably attired, Arthur Fiedler directs with gusto a symphonic arrangement of a certain popular tune at the Pops.

Coonskin-Capped Fiedler 'Breaks Up' Pops Concert

By JOHN WM. RILEY

Small explosions are an everynight occurence at the Boston Pops. But there was a big bustup in Symphony Hall last night with the return of maestro Arthur Fiedler to the stand.

Ailing since his return from a long Pops Tour during the Winter, Mr. Fiedler had recovered in fine style and made a surprise appearance in Symphony, Hall at B. U. Night at the Pops, Friday evening. But last night's concert was his first full dress program since the beginning of the season.

All around the clock it was a celebrative occasion. Mr. Fiedler's wife and daughters were in the audience. So were Gov. and Mrs. Herter. Davy Crockett "fit the B'ar" musically; some young ladies from Everett displayed a sign, "Welcome Back, Arthur"; and Mr. Fiedler and the Pops Orchestra played a waltz by Judge Vincent Mottola in honor of Mrs. Herter, "The Massachusetts' First Lady's Waltz."

Altogether a slam-bang affair.

During Mr. Fiedler's enforced vacation Harry Ellis Dickson, a violinist in the Boston Symphony, bore the brunt of the conducting chores. Last evening he took the middle half of the program, leading both Rachmaninoff's Second Concerto, with the young Japanese pianist, Mineko Sasahara, 'as soloist, and Judge Mottola's engaging waltz.

Mr. Fiedler took the opening and closing sections of the bill ranging from pieces of Coates, Chopin, Glinka and others, including "Popsorama", a low-down arrangement of some popular tunes, a mish-mash of "Let Me Go Lover" with tears and sighs, and the aforementioned "Davy Crockett."

FIEDLER
Page Five

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

JUN 6 1955

2,462 Receive B. U. Degrees

Eban, Pusey, Kennedy and Munch Among 10 Cited in Garden Exercises

Israel's ambassador to the United States, the president of Harvard, a senator and the conductor of the Boston Symphony are among Boston University's new degree recipients.

They were honored in Boston Garden last night at the annual commencement. Degrees in course were conferred on 2,462 graduating students.

RAIN FORCES PROGRAM INDOORS

Rain forced the exercises indoors and they were combined with the baccalaureate which was to have been given at University Field.

Among 10 honorary degree recipients were Israeli Ambassador Abba S. Eban, President Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard, Sen. John F. Kennedy and Symphony conductor Charles Munch.

Eban delivered the commencement address and urged educators to "cease rushing blindly forward in physical science and catch up on social science."

"The lesson of the present genertion should teach us that the main chance for us to know abundanee rather than disaster lies in the development of ethical principles of social and international contacts."

METHODIST BISHOPS RECEIVE DEGREES

Other honorary degrees went to:

Methodist Bishops Matthew W. Clair Jr. of St. Louis and A. Raymond Grant of Portland, Ore.

Also, Dr. Joseph Garland, editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court.

Also, Arthur A. Schuck, chief scout executive, Boy Scouts of America, and Dean Mark R. Shibles of the University of Maine School of Education.

[80]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Press-Herald (m)
PORTLAND, Me.
Independent Republican
Circ. 48,118

B. U. Awards Degree To

BOSTON, June 5 (AP)—Ten honorary degrees were awarded today at commencement exercises of Boston University held at Boston Garden. 047

Doctorates in law were conferred on Abba Eban, Israel ambassador to the United States; Pres. Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard University; U. S. Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) and Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court.

Methodist Bishops Matthew W. Clair Jr., of St. Louis, Mo., and A. Raymond Grant of Portland, Ore., were awarded doctorates in divinity.

Dr. Joseph Garland, editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, received a doctorate in s... duc... Ord... sic... Hil... tiv... dod... Des... Uni... Edi... in ... to ...

Chandle
Tremont and West Streets, B...

RUSSIA—INDIA PHONE

NEW DELHI, India, June 5 (AP) — Direct radio-telephone service between Russia and India was inaugurated today.

BAROMETER AT SEA LEVEL.

	Millibars	Inches
At 8:30 P. M.	1008.5	29.78
At 2:30 P. M.	1008.8	29.79

Warmest this month to date	74
Coldest this month to date	51
Warmest this year to date	89
Coldest this year to date	—1

RECORD FOR THIS MONTH

High	100 in 1925
Low	46 in 1945

BOSTON DEGREE DAY DATA

Degree days	8
Total degree days this month to date	33
Total degree days since July 1	6538
Total at corresponding date last yr.	5134
5-year normal, corresponding date	5164

orary ... trates upon Ambassador Eban and nine distinguished Americans, including Dr. Nathan Pusey, Harvard president.

Ambassador Eban referred to our ... an era of all-pervading tension, and said that never ... history has mankind held "more power, and less certainty and maturity in its control."

"We have penetrated deepest and unlocked the truth that the smallest matter contains the greatest source of power," he said. "Yet that power confronts us with an excessive sense of fear.

"The lesson of the present generation should teach us that the main chance for us to know abundance rather than disaster lies in the development of ethical principles of social and international contacts."

HOPE IN SCIENCE

Our recent philosophy has envisioned that physical science would produce the prosperity that would ease world tensions, he said.

"We have been told that abundance would solve problems of social and international pressures," he said. "We know now that we must find the spiritual brotherhood in which to share abundance."

Earlier, in a three-minute version of the 30-minute sermon he would have delivered at University Field, Dr. Harold C. Case, B.U. president, warned graduates against "avoiding life's risks.' ... that life always ... are leader, for contributions to world peace and service to Methodism, doctor of divinity.

Dr. Joseph Garland, distinguished pediatrician and editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, for outst... contributions to medic... and to medical edit... and science, doctor of sci... e.

Bishop A. Raymond Grant of the Portland, Ore., Methodist Church area, for distinguished service as administrator, area leader, preacher and churchman, doctor of divinity.

Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court, for services which have gained ... national reputation as ... jurist, ... laws.

...en. John F. Kennedy, ... service and service to ...ntry in war and peace, ... of laws.

...les Munch, conductor of ...ston Symphony Orches... for courageous leadership ...h music in years of crisis ... calm, doctor of music.

... Nathan Marsh Pusey, ...dent of Harvard, for his ...e place of leadership in ...er education, doctor of ...

...Arthur A. Schuck, chief Scout executive, Boy Scouts of America, for contributions to character development of boys and young men, doctor of humanities.

Dean Mark Richard Shibles of the University of Maine School of Education, for career devoted to training and efficient leadership of teachers, doctor of science in education.

A bracing "outdoor-scented" ion with a definitely worldly air!

Circ. 122,000

JUN

(Photo by Laurence T. Welsh, Globe Staff)

NAME THAT TUNE—Suitably attired, Arthur Fiedler directs with gusto a symphonic arrangement of a certain popular tune at the Pops.

Coonskin-Capped Fiedler 'Breaks Up' Pops Concert

By JOHN WM. RILEY

Small explosions are an everynight occurence at the Boston Pops. But there was a big bustup in Symphony Hall last night with the return of maestro Arthur Fiedler to the stand.

Ailing since his return from a long Pops Tour during the Winter, Mr. Fiedler had recovered in fine style and made a surprise appearance in Symphony Hall at B. U. Night at the Pops, Friday evening. But last night's concert was his first full dress program since the beginning of the season.

All around the clock it was a celebrative occasion. Mr. Fiedler's wife and daughters were in the audience. So were Gov. and Mrs. Herter. Davy Crockett "fit the B'ar" musically; some young ladies from Everett displayed a sign, "Welcome Back, Arthur"; and Mr. Fiedler and the Pops Orchestra played a waltz by Judge Vincent Mottola in honor of Mrs. Herter, "The Massachusetts' First Lady's Waltz."

Altogether a slam-bang affair.

During Mr. Fiedler's enforced vacation Harry Ellis Dickson, a violinist in the Boston Symphony, bore the brunt of the conducting chores. Last evening he took the middle half of the program, leading both Rachmaninoff's Second Concerto, with the young Japanese pianist, Mineko Sasahara, as soloist, and Judge Mottola's engaging waltz.

Mr. Fiedler took the opening and closing sections of the bill ranging from pieces of Coates, Chopin, Glinka and others, including "Popsorama", a low-down arrangement of some popular tunes, a mish-mash of "Let Me Go Lover" with tears and sighs, and the aforementioned "Davy Crockett."

FIEDLER

Page Five

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

JUN 6 1955

2,462 Receive B. U. Degrees

Eban, Pusey, Kennedy and Munch Among 10 Cited in Garden Exercises

Israel's ambassador to the United States, the president of Harvard, a senator and the conductor of the Boston Symphony are among Boston University's new degree recipients.

They were honored in Boston Garden last night at the annual commencement. Degrees in course were conferred on 2,462 graduating students.

RAIN FORCES PROGRAM INDOORS

Rain forced the exercises indoors and they were combined with the baccalaureate, which was to have been given at University Field.

Among 10 honorary degree recipients were Israeli Ambassador Abba S. Eban, President Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard, Sen. John F. Kennedy and Symphony conductor Charles Munch.

Eban delivered the commencement address and urged educators to "cease rushing blindly forward in physical science and catch up on social science."

"The lesson of the present genertion should teach us that the main chance for us to know abundanee rather than disaster lies in the development of ethical principles of social and international contacts."

METHODIST BISHOPS RECEIVE DEGREES

Other honorary degrees went to:

Methodist Bishops Matthew W. Clair Jr. of St. Louis and A. Raymond Grant of Portland, Ore.

Also, Dr. Joseph Garland, editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court.

Also, Arthur A. Schuck, chief scout executive, Boy Scouts of America, and Dean Mark R. Shibles of the University of Maine School of Education.

[80]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Press-Herald (m)
PORTLAND, Me.
Independent Republican
Circ. 48,118

B. U. Awards Degree To

BOSTON, June 5 (AP)—Ten honorary degrees were awarded today at commencement exercises of Boston University held at Boston Garden. 047

Doctorates in law were conferred on Abba Eban, Israel ambassador to the United States; Pres. Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard University; U. S. Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) and Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court.

Methodist Bishops Matthew W. Clair Jr. of St. Louis, Mo., and A. Raymond Grant of Portland, Ore., were awarded doctorates in divinity.

Dr. Joseph Garland, editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, received a doctorate in s duc Ord sic
Hil tiv doc
Dea
Uni
Edu
in to

Chandle
Tremont and West Street, Bo

BOSTON DEGREE DAY DATA

Degree days	33
Total degree days this month to date	33
Total degree days since July 1	6438
Total at corresponding date last yr.	5134
5-year normal, corresponding date	5764

BAROMETER AT SEA LEVEL.

	Millibars	Inches
At 2:30 P. M.	1008.8	29.79
At 8:30 P. M.	1008.5	29.78
Coldest this year to date		—1
Warmest this year to date		89
Coldest this month to date		51
Warmest this month to date		74

RECORD FOR THIS MONTH

Low	46 in 1946
High	100 in 1925

RUSSIA—INDIA PHONE

NEW DELHI, India, June 5 (AP) — Direct radio-telephone service between Russia and India was inaugurated today.

Mrs. Lapworth opened the ca door, slammed the movable ca seat on his hand and ran to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carlo Berry. Shortly afterwards the Gunman punctured tires on five cars parked near the George Kelly home and robbed Kelly and a guest of $30.

Fifteen minutes later he sprang at Mr. and Mrs. George Bettinger as they were bidding good night to another couple at their home. Bettinger drew back to swing and the bandit fled. Later Mrs. Malla Gordon, 35, saw him trying to steal into her house by a rear door. She slammed the door and he ran.

"He told me to get into th back seat, that he was going t tie me," she related. "He said h was an escapee from Chino (Cal ifornia institution for men) an that he was out to revenge man who had double-crosse him."

a knife.

orary [illegible] rates upon Ambassador Eban and nine distinguished Americans, including Dr. Nathan Pusey, Harvard president.

Ambassador Eban referred to our [illegible] an era of all-pervading tension, and said that never in history has mankind held "such power, and less certainty and maturity in its control."

"We have penetrated deepest and unlocked the truth that the smallest matter contains the greatest source of power," he said. "Yet that power confronts us with an excessive sense of fear.

"The lesson of the present generation should teach us that the main chance for us to know abundance rather than disaster lies in the development of ethical principles of social and international contacts."

HOPE IN SCIENCE

Our recent philosophy has envisioned that physical science would produce the prosperity that would ease world tensions, he said.

"We have been told that abundance would solve problems of social and international pressures," he said. "We know now that we must find the spiritual brotherhood in which to share abundance."

Earlier, in a three-minute version of the 30-minute sermon he would have delivered at University Field, Dr. Harold C. Case, B.U. president, warned graduates against "avoiding life's risks."

[illegible] that life always [illegible] are

A bracing "outdoor-scented" lotion with a definitely worldly air!

leader, for contributions to world peace and service to Methodism, doctor of divinity.

Dr. Joseph Garland, distinguished pediatrician and editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, for outstanding contributions to medicine [illegible] and to medical [illegible] and science, doctor of science.

Bishop A. Raymond Grant of the Portland, Ore., Methodist Church area, for distinguished service as administrator, area leader, preacher and churchman, doctor of divinity.

Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court, for services which have gained [illegible] national reputation for [illegible] laws.

[illegible]en. John F. Kennedy, [illegible] service and service to [illegible]ntry in war and peace, [illegible] of laws.

[illegible]les Munch, conductor of [illegible]ston Symphony Orchestra, [illegible]r courageous leadership [illegible]gh music in years of crisis [illegible]f calm, doctor of music.

[illegible], Nathan Marsh Pusey, [illegible]dent of Harvard, for his [illegible]ne place of leadership in [illegible]er education, doctor of [illegible].

Arthur A. Schuck, chief Scout executive, Boy Scouts of America, for contributions to character development of boys and young men, doctor of humanities.

Dean Mark Richard Shibles of the University of Maine School of Education, for career devoted to training and efficient leadership of teachers, doctor of science in education.

INFORMATION OBSCURED

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

Press-Herald (m)
PORTLAND, Me.
Independent Republican
Circ. 48,118

B. U. Awards Degree To

BOSTON, June 5 (AP)—Ten honorary degrees were awarded today at commencement exercises of Boston University held at Boston Garden.

Doctorates in law were conferred on Abba Eban, Israel ambassador to the United States; Pres. Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard University; U. S. Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) and Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court.

Methodist Bishops Matthew W. Clair Jr., of St. Louis, Mo., and A. Raymond Grant of Portland, Ore., were awarded doctorates in divinity.

Dr. Joseph Garland, editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, received a doctorate

Chandle
Tremont and West Street, B

BOSTON DECREE DAY DATA

Degree days	8
Total degree days this month to date	33
Total degree days since July 1	5439
Total at corresponding date last yr.	5184
5-year normal, corresponding date	5764

BAROMETER AT SEA LEVEL

	Millibars	Inches
At 2:30 P. M.	1008.5	29.78
At 8:30 P. M.	1008.8	29.79

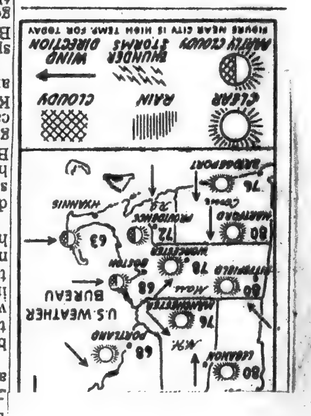
Warmest this year to date	89
Coldest this year to date	1
Coldest this month to date	51
Warmest this month to date	74

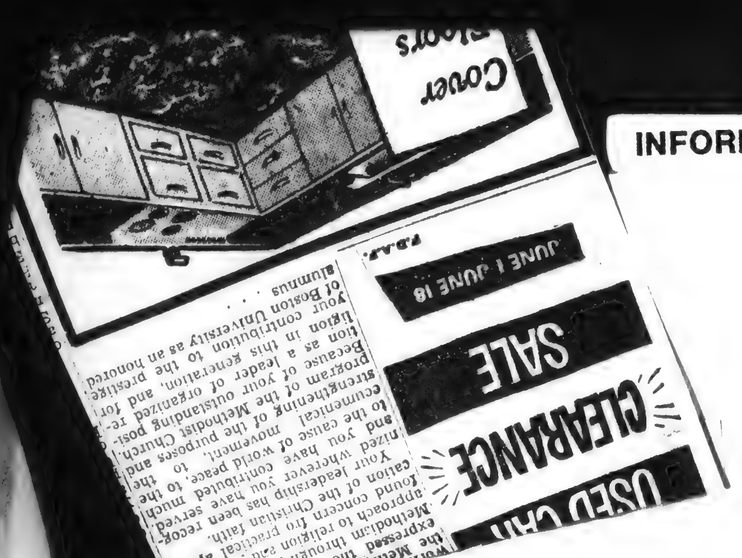
RECORD FOR THIS MONTH

Low	46 in 1945
High	100 in 1925

RUSSIA—INDIA PHONE

NEW DELHI, India, June 5 (AP) — Direct radio-telephone service between Russia and India was inaugurated today.





Mr. Fiedler is trim, tanned and spare after his "vacation." And the old Fiedler beat is always in evidence in his command of the orchestra.

Mottola's Waltz Hit Parade Calibre

Judge Mottola's waltz, shining with beneficient and sunny Italian warmth, is a Hit Parade candidate. It is a friendly, tuneful piece.

Mineko Sasahara gave a very good account of the Rachmaninoff Concerto. Among concertos, this is a real tear jerker. Yet Mr. Dickson and Miss Sasahara read it musically, with due regard for its sentiment, yet without indulging themselves.

The audience rose, standing in honor to Mr. Fiedler, on the conductor's entrance. The concert benefited the Pension Fund of the Boston Symphony.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • Richmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

JUN 6 1955

2,462 Receive B. U. Degrees

Eban, Pusey, Kennedy and Munch Among 10 Cited in Garden Exercises

Israel's ambassador to the United States, the president of Harvard, a senator and the conductor of the Boston Symphony are among Boston University's new degree recipients.

They were honored in Boston Garden last night at the annual commencement. Degrees in course were conferred on 2,462 graduating students.

RAIN FORCES PROGRAM INDOORS

Rain forced the exercises indoors and they were preceded with the baccalaureate, which was to have been given at University Field.

Among 10 honorary degree recipients were Israeli Ambassador Abba S. Eban, President Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard, Sen. John F. Kennedy and Symphony conductor Charles Munch.

Eban delivered the commencement address and urged educators to "cease rushing blindly forward in physical science and catch up on social science."

"The lesson of the present generation should teach us that the main chance for us to know abundance rather than disaster lies in the development of ethical principles of social and international contacts."

METHODIST BISHOPS RECEIVE DEGREES

Other honorary degrees went to:

Methodist Bishops Matthew W. Clair Jr. of St. Louis and A. Raymond Grant of Portland, Ore.

Also, Dr. Joseph Garland, editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court.

Also, Arthur A. Schuck, chief scout executive, Boy Scouts of America, and Dean Mark R. Shibles of the University of Maine School of Education.

HOPE IN SCIENCE

Our recent philosophy has envisioned that physical science would produce the prosperity that would ease world tensions, he said.

"We have been told that abundance would solve problems of social and international pressures," he said. "We know now that we must find the spiritual brotherhood in which to share abundance."

Earlier, in a three-minute version of the 30-minute sermon he would have delivered at University Field, Dr. Harold C. Case, B.U. president, warned graduates against "avoiding life's risks."

"... that life always ... are oral ... orates upon Ambassador Eban and nine distinguished Americans, including Dr. Nathan Pusey, Harvard president.

Ambassador Eban referred to our ... as an era of all-pervading tension, and said that never in history has mankind held "more power, and less certainty and maturity in its control ... to control ..."

"We have penetrated deepest and uncovered the truth that the smallest matter contains the greatest source of power," he said. "Yet that power confronts us with an excessive sense of fear.

"The lesson of the present generation should teach us that the main chance for us to know abundance rather than disaster lies in the development of ethical principles of social and international contacts."

HOPE IN SCIENCE

Our recent philosophy has envisioned that physical science would produce the prosperity that would ease world tensions, he said.

"We have been told that abundance would solve problems of social and international pressures," he said. "We know now that we must find the spiritual brotherhood in which to share abundance."

Earlier, in a three-minute version of the 30-minute sermon he would have delivered at University Field, Dr. Harold C. Case, B.U. president, warned graduates against "avoiding life's risks."

"... that life always ... are leader, for contributions to world peace and service to Methodism, doctor of divinity.

Dr. Joseph Garland, distinguished pediatrician and editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, for outstanding contributions to ... and to medical ... and science, doctor of science.

Bishop A. Raymond Grant of the Portland, Ore., Methodist Church area, for distinguished service as administrator, area leader, preacher and churchman, doctor of divinity.

Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court, for services which have gained ... national reputation ... laws.

... en. John F. Kennedy, ... service and service to ... country in war and peace, ... of laws.

... es Munch, conductor of ... ston Symphony Orches... ... r courageous leadership ... h music in years of crisis ... f calm, doctor of music.

... Nathan Marsh Pusey, ... dent of Harvard, for his ... ue place of leadership in ... er education, doctor of ...

... Arthur A. Schuck, chief Scout executive, Boy Scouts of America, for contributions to character development of boys and young men, doctor of humanities.

Dean Mark Richard Shibles of the University of Maine School of Education, for career devoted to training and efficient leadership of teachers, doctor of science in education.

A bracing "outdoor-scented" ... with a definitely worldly air!

[80]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

News (e)
NEWPORT, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 11,628

JUN 6 1955

Boston Univ. Confers 10 Honorary Degrees

BOSTON (AP) — Boston University yesterday conferred degrees on 2,462 graduates and awarded honorary degrees to 10 distinguished men.

Honorary degrees:

Doctor of laws — Ambassador Abba Eban of Israel, President Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard University, U.S. Sen. John F. Kennedy and Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court.

Doctorate in divinity—Methodist Bishops Matthew W. Clair Jr. of St. Louis, Mo., and A. Raymond Grant of Portland, Ore.

Doctor of science — Dr. Joseph Garland, editor of the New England Journal of Medicine.

Doctor of music—Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Doctor in humanities—Arthur A. Schuck of Short Hills, N.J.; chief executive, Boy Scouts of America.

Doctor of science in education—Dean Mark R. Shibles of the University of Maine school of education.

Ambassador Abba Eban told the graduates education needs to deemphasize the study of physical science and concentrate on the study of improving man himself if the world is to maintain peace.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

JUN 6 1955

Symphony Violinist Invited by Belgium

Herman Silberman, violinist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has received a second invitation to visit Liege, Belgium, to serve as a member of the jury in the international competition for performance by string quartets. The competition will be held in late September under the patronage of Her Majesty, Queen Elisabeth of Belgium, and the city of Liege. Mr. Silberman served in a similar capacity two years ago.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Enterprise & Times (e)
BROCKTON, Mass.
Non-Partisan
Circ. 40,923

JUN 6 1955

HONOR MRS. HERTER

BOSTON. — (UP) — Mrs. Christian A. Herter was dedicated a number last night by the Boston Pops Orchestra. The governor's wife was honored with the first playing of "Massachusetts First Lady's Waltz" by Judge Vincent Mottola.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 6 1955

Fiedler's Return at the Pops -

Four Novelties at Pension Fund Concert

By Harold Rogers

Arthur Fiedler officially returned to the podium at the Pops last night, but actually his first appearance was Friday evening, when Symphony Hall was taken by Boston University. There were several special things about last night's program, presented for the Boston Symphony Orchestra's pension fund. There were four novelties, and Mineko Sasahara, a diminutive Japanese pianist, played the Rachmaninov Piano Concerto No. 2.

Mr. Fiedler was greeted by a storm of applause and a rising ovation. He conducted the first group with his usual zip, but not always with that certain starch for which he is most noted. This will surely return as he gets into his stride. He gave us Coates's "The Princess Elizabeth" March, Chopin's "Les Sylphides," Johann Strauss's "On the Double Quick," Glinka's Overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla," Gade's "Jalousie," and Tchaikovsky's "Marche Slave."

* * *

After the first selection Mr. Fiedler played a bit of a march while Governor and Mrs. Christian A. Herter and their party entered and went to their table. They were accompanied by Judge Vincent Mottola, who had composed a trifle called the "Massachusetts' First Lady's Waltz," dedicated to Mrs. Herter.

The second portion of the concert, which included Miss Sasahara's performance, was conducted by Harry Ellis Dickson. Mr. Dickson, a member of the first violin section of the orchestra, is the man who has so capably guided the Pops during most of Mr. Fiedler's absence.

The Orientals, of course, are noted for schooling their emotions and for burying them so deep that they seldom come to the surface. Miss Sasahara will no become an authentic interprete of Western music until she learns to allow her emotions to flow freely through the music. One cannot be reticent with Rachmaninov.

It may be that at present she is too concerned with getting the notes (for some of them were not correct). Thus her traversal was somewhat labored. It wanted buoyancy, sweep, and a singing spirit. Her audience, however, was instant in showing enthusiastic approval and recalled her several times to acknowledge the applause.

* * *

Mr. Fiedler returned for the last portion which included three novelties. The first was "Popsorama," a medley made up of current hits — "Mister Sandman," "Melody of Love," "The Naughty Lady of Shady Lane," "Three Coins in the Fountain," and "Tweedle-Dee."

"Let'er Go, Lover," is one of those Fiedler satires which abundantly quote from songs amplifying a basic idea. Some of these were "Goin' Home," "The Prisoner's Song," "You Made Me Love You," "Aloha Oe," "Auld Lang Syne," "Dance of the Hours," "Goodbye Forever," and the signature of Paramount News.

The last was "Davy Crockett," a medley presenting the career of the latest hero to capture the fancy of the younger generation.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 285,839

JUN 6 1955

Music in Review

By TUCKER KEISER

Arthur Fiedler returned to his accustomed place on the Symphony Hall podium last night for the Pension Fund concert at "Pops" and added that Fiedlerian sparkle which has been missing so far this season. Not only did he look extremely well but he also conducted with that special verve which has been his trademark.

For this concert we heard three "Pops" premieres. "Popsorama' is a very slick arrangement of several current 'Hit-Parade' tunes which sound unusually "schmaltzy" decked out in such rich orchestral texture.

The big hit was the take-off of "Let Me Go, Lover." Called 'Let'er Go, Lover" for "Pops" purposes, the piece tells an hilarious love story, replete with a conglomeration of sound effects, through about 1 other familiar titles. Sandwiched between phrases of the original tune are such tunes as "Going Home," "Thinking Tonight of My Blue Eyes," "You Made Me Love You," "Auld Lang Syne," "Dance of the Hours," "Goodbye," and ending triumpantly with the Paramount Newsreel tagline.

"Davy Crockett,' the third of the new novelties, is a fairly straight-forward setting of the ballad. "His Career in Congress" has a kind of "America the Beautiful" majesty about it, and "His War with the Indians" relies rather heavily on pseudo-Indian effects.

Also on the same program was a pleasant little walz dedicated to Mrs. Christian A. Herter entitled "Massachusetts' First Lady's Waltz" composed by the Hon. Vincent Mottola. Spelling Mr. Fiedler for one group on the program was Harry Ellis Dickson.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 397,884

JUN 6 1955

WILLIS PAGE
Conducting Pops Tonight

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Caledonian Record (e)
ST. JOHNSBURY, Vt.
Independent Republican
Circ. 5,132

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,246

JUN 7 1955

Mrs. Herter Honored

BOSTON (UP)— Mrs. Christian A. Herter was dedicated a number Sunday night by the Boston Pops Orchestra.

The governor's wife was honored with the first playing of "Massachusetts First Lady's Waltz" by Judge Vincent Mottola.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News (e)
NEWPORT, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 11,628

JUN 6 1955

Boston Univ. Confers 10 Honorary Degrees

BOSTON (AP) — Boston University yesterday conferred degrees on 2,462 graduates and awarded honorary degrees to 10 distinguished men.

Honorary degrees:

Doctor of laws — Ambassador Abba Eban of Israel, President Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard University, U.S. Sen. John F. Kennedy and Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court.

Doctorate in divinity—Methodist Bishops Matthew W. Clair Jr. of St. Louis, Mo., and A. Raymond Grant of Portland, Ore.

Doctor of science — Dr. Joseph Garland, editor of the New England Journal of Medicine.

Doctor of music—Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Doctor in humanities—Arthur A. Schuck of Short Hills, N.J.; chief executive, Boy Scouts of America.

Doctor of science in education—Dean Mark R. Shibles of the University of Maine school of education.

Ambassador Abba Eban told the graduates education needs to deemphasize the study of physical science and concentrate on the study of improving man himself if the world is to maintain peace.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

JUN 6 1955

Symphony Violinist Invited by Belgium

Herman Silberman, violinist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra,

Independent
Circ. 27,538

JUN 6 1955

Pops Orchestra Honors Mrs. Herter

BOSTON (UP) —Mrs. Christian A. Herter was dedicated a number Sunday night by the Boston Pops Orchestra.

The governor's wife was honored with the first playing of "Massachusetts First Lady's Waltz" by Judge Vincent Mottola.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 6 1955

Fiedler's Return at the Pops -

Four Novelties at Pension Fund Concert

By Harold Rogers

Arthur Fiedler officially returned to the podium at the Pops last night, but actually his first appearance was Friday evening, when Symphony Hall was taken by Boston University. There were several special things about last night's program, presented for the Boston Symphony Orchestra's pension fund. There were four novelties, and Mineke Sasahara, a diminutive Japanese pianist, played the Rachmaninov Piano Concerto No. 2.

Mr. Fiedler was greeted by a storm of applause and a rising ovation. He conducted the first group with his usual zip, but not always with that certain starch for which he is most noted. This will surely return as he gets into his stride. He gave us Coates's "The Princess Elizabeth" March, Chopin's "Les Sylphides," Johann Strauss's "On the Double Quick," Glinka's Overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla," Gade's "Jalousie," and Tchaikovsky's "Marche Slave."

* * *

After the first selection Mr. Fiedler played a bit of a march while Governor and Mrs. Christian A. Herter and their party entered and went to their table. They were accompanied by Judge Vincent Mottola, who had composed a trifle called the "Massachusetts' First Lady's Waltz," dedicated to Mrs. Herter.

The second portion of the concert, which included Miss Sasahara's performance, was conducted by Harry Ellis Dickson. Mr. Dickson, a member of the first violin section of the orchestra, is the man who has so capably guided the Pops during most of Mr. Fiedler's absence.

The Orientals, of course, are noted for schooling their emotions and for burying them so deep that they seldom come to the surface. Miss Sasahara will no become an authentic interprete of Western music until she learns to allow her emotions to flow freely throug the music. One cannot be reticent with Rachmaninov.

It may be that at present she is too concerned with getting the notes (for some of them were not correct). Thus her traversal was somewhat labored. It wanted buoyancy, sweep, and a singing spirit. Her audience, however, was instant in showing enthusiastic approval and recalled her several times to acknowledge the applause.

* * *

Mr. Fiedler returned for the last portion which included three novelties. The first was "Popsorama," a medley made up of current hits — "Mister Sandman," "Melody of Love," "The Naughty Lady of Shady Lane, "Three Coins in the Fountain," and "Tweedle-Dee."

"Let'er Go, Lover," is one of those Fiedler satires which abundantly quote from songs amplifying a basic idea. Some of these were "Goin' Home," "The Prisoner's Song," "You Made Me Love You," "Aloha Oe," "Auld Lang Syne," "Dance of the Hours," "Goodbye Forever," and the signature of Paramount News.

The last was "Davy Crockett," a medley presenting the career of the latest hero to capture the fancy of the

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 285,839

JUN 6 1955

Music in Review

By TUCKER KEISER

Arthur Fiedler returned to his accustomed place on the Symphony Hall podium last night for the Pension Fund concert at "Pops" and added that Fiedlerian sparkle which has been missing so far this season. Not only did he look extremely well but he also conducted with that special verve which has been his trademark.

For this concert we heard three "Pops" premieres. "Popsorama' is a very slick arrangement of several current 'Hit-Parade' tunes which sound unusually "schmaltzy" decked out in such rich orchestral texture.

The big hit was the take-off of "Let Me Go, Lover." Called 'Let'er Go, Lover" for "Pops" purposes, the piece tells an hilarious love story, replete with a conglomeration of sound effects, through about 1 other familiar titles. Sandwiched between phrases of the original tune are such tunes as "Going Home," "Thinking Tonight of My Blue Eyes," "You Made Me Love You," "Auld Lang Syne," "Dance of the Hours," "Goodbye," and ending triumpantly with the Paramount Newsreel tagline.

"Davy Crockett,' the third of the new novelties, is a fairly straight-forward setting of the ballad. "His Career in Congress" has a kind of "America the Beautiful" majesty about it, and "His War with the Indians" relies rather heavily on pseudo-Indian effects.

Also on the same program was a pleasant little walz dedicated to Mrs. Christian A. Herter entitled "Massachusetts' First Lady's Waltz" composed by the Hon. Vincent Mottola. Spelling Mr. Fiedler for one group on the program was Harry Ellis Dickson.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 397,884

JUN 6 1955

WILLIS PAGE
Conducting Pops Tonight

Circ. 26,246

JUN 7 1955

Davy In Symphonic Form

BOSTON (UP)—Arthur Fiedler was presented a 'coon-skin cap and toy "shootin' arn" last night after conducting the Boston Pops Orchestra in the world premier of a symphonic arrangement of "the Ballad of Davey Crockett."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News (e)
NEWPORT, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 11,628

JUN 6 1955

Boston Univ. Confers 10 Honorary Degrees

BOSTON (AP) — Boston University yesterday conferred degrees on 2,462 graduates and awarded honorary degrees to 10 distinguished men.

Honorary degrees:

Doctor of laws — Ambassador Abba Eban of Israel, President Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard University, U.S. Sen. John F. Kennedy and Chief Justice Frank R. Kenison of the New Hampshire Supreme Court.

Doctorate in divinity—Methodist Bishops Matthew W. Clair Jr. of St. Louis, Mo., and A. Raymond Grant of Portland, Ore.

Doctor of science — Dr. Joseph Garland, editor of the New England Journal of Medicine.

Doctor of music—Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Doctor in humanities—Arthur A. Schuck of Short Hills, N.J.; chief executive, Boy Scouts of America.

Doctor of science in education—Dean Mark R. Shibles of the University of Maine school of education.

Ambassador Abba Eban told the graduates education needs to deemphasize the study of physical science and concentrate on the study of improving man himself if the world is to maintain peace.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

JUN 6 1955

Symphony Violinist Invited by Belgium

Herman Silberman, violinist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra,

Independent
Circ. 27,538

JUN 6 1955

Pops Orchestra Honors Mrs. Herter

BOSTON (UP) —Mrs. Christian A. Herter was dedicated a number Sunday night by the Boston Pops Orchestra.

The governor's wife was honored with the first playing of "Massachusetts First Lady's Waltz" by Judge Vincent Mottola.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 6 1955

Fiedler's Return at the Pops -

Four Novelties at Pension Fund Concert

By Harold Rogers

Arthur Fiedler officially returned to the podium at the Pops last night, but actually his first appearance was Friday evening, when Symphony Hall was taken by Boston University. There were several special things about last night's program, presented for the Boston Symphony Orchestra's pension fund. There were four novelties, and Mineko Sasahara, a diminutive Japanese pianist, played the Rachmaninov Piano Concerto No. 2.

Mr. Fiedler was greeted by a storm of applause and a rising ovation. He conducted the first group with his usual zip, but not always with that certain starch for which he is most noted. This will surely return as he gets into his stride. He gave us Coates's "The Princess Elizabeth" March, Chopin's "Les Sylphides," Johann Strauss's "On the Double Quick," Glinka's Overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla," Gade's "Jalousie," and Tchaikovsky's "Marche Slave."

* * *

After the first selection Mr. Fiedler played a bit of a march while Governor and Mrs. Christian A. Herter and their party entered and went to their table. They were accompanied by Judge Vincent Mottola, who had composed a trifle called the "Massachusetts' First Lady's Waltz," dedicated to Mrs. Herter.

The second portion of the concert, which included Miss Sasahara's performance, was conducted by Harry Ellis Dickson. Mr. Dickson, a member of the first violin section of the orchestra, is the man who has so capably guided the Pops during most of Mr. Fiedler's absence.

The Orientals, of course, are noted for schooling their emotions and for burying them so deep that they seldom come to the surface. Miss Sasahara will no become an authentic interprete of Western music until she learns to allow her emotions to flow freely throug the music. One cannot be reticent with Rachmaninov.

It may be that at present she is too concerned with getting the notes (for some of them were not correct). Thus her traversal was somewhat labored. It wanted buoyancy, sweep, and a singing spirit. Her audience, however, was instant in showing enthusiastic approval and recalled her several times to acknowledge the applause.

* * *

Mr. Fiedler returned for the last portion which included three novelties. The first was "Popsorama," a medley made up of current hits — "Mister Sandman," "Melody of Love," "The Na... Lady of Shady Lane, "... Fountain ... "Let's ... those ... abundan... amplifyi... of these ... "The P... Made ... Oe," "A... of the ... ever," ... Paramo... The l... a medl... of the l... fancy o...

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 285,839

JUN 6 1955

Music in Review

By TUCKER KEISER

Arthur Fiedler returned to his accustomed place on the Symphony Hall podium last night for the Pension Fund concert at "Pops" and added that Fiedlerian sparkle which has been missing so far this season. Not only did he look extremely well but he also conducted with that special verve which has been his trademark.

For this concert we heard three "Pops" premieres. 'Popsorama' is a very slick arrangement of several current 'Hit-Parade' tunes which sound unusually "schmaltzy" decked out in such rich orchestral texture.

The big hit was the take-off of "Let Me Go, Lover." Called 'Let'er Go, Lover" for "Pops" purposes, the piece tells an hilarious love story, replete with a conglomeration of sound effects, through about 1 other familiar titles. Sandwiched between phrases of the original tune are such tunes as "Going Home," "Thinking Tonight of My Blue Eyes," "You Made Me Love You," "Auld Lang Syne," "Dance of the Hours," "Goodbye," and ending triumpantly with the Paramount Newsreel tagline.

"Davy Crockett,' the third of the new novelties, is a fairly straight-forward setting of the ballad. "His Career in Congress" has a kind of "America the Beautiful" majesty about it, and "His War with the Indians" relies rather heavily on pseudo-Indian effects.

Also on the same program was a pleasant little walz dedicated to Mrs. Christian A. Herter entitled "Massachusetts' First Lady's Waltz" composed by the Hon. Vincent Mottola. Spelling Mr. Fiedler for one group on the program was Harry Ellis Dickson.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 397,884

JUN 6 1955

WILLIS PAGE
Conducting Pops Tonight

JUN 7 1955

Mr. and Mrs. John Corbett of Spring street left Friday for Boston to attend the graduation and commencement exercises of Boston University held on Sunday in Boston Gardens, in which their daughter, Elaine, received her Bachelor of Science Degree from the School of Education. They also attended Boston University night at the Pops Concert. They returned home yesterday.

New England News ...
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RI...
Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republi...
Circ. 179,559

THE OPERA

The Pops

By RUDOLPH LUHE

Arthur Fiedler, as sun tanned and as lucky-looking as handsome as ever, came back to the state of Symphony Hall a month late last night due to a recent operation and found one of the greatest tributes a conductor can ever hope to expect: a standing ovation on the part of his capacity audience.

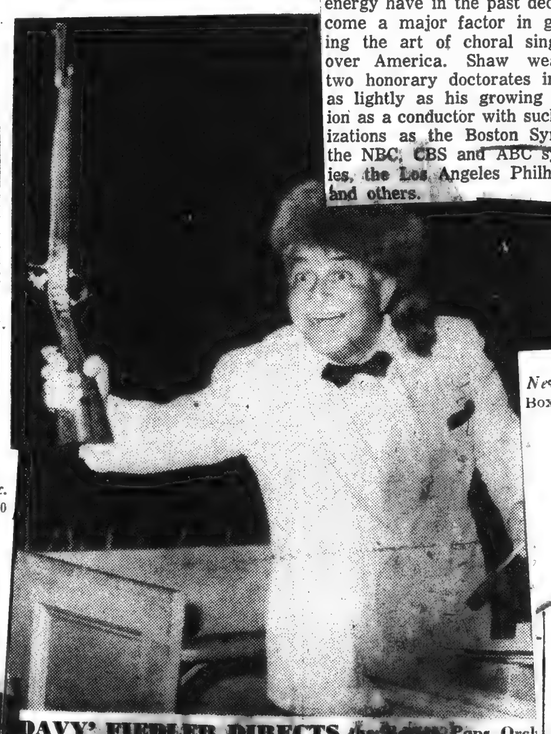
It is no slight to the man who has filled in for him this last month to say that Mr. Fiedler's reappearance gave the occasion a special significance; after all the tradition and personal identification of 26 years of a man's life in so intimate an affair as the Pops is a gripping thing indeed. For no matter how well and how suitably a substitute does, the previous association is the strongest tie. And there is nothing to do but own up to it: Arthur Fiedler, for a generation, has been The Pops—and he still is.

Last night's occasion, which found Governor and Mrs. Herter in the audience along with the Massachusetts Council of Young Republican Clubs, was especially notable for Mr. Fiedler's introduction of three of his unique musical concoctions known far and wide as Fiedler's Follies. These things, which are derived by the conductor and such of his arrangers as Anderson, Bodge, Mason and Hayman, are symphonic commentaries on the popular musical foibles of the day, though they also include such original novelties as well.

The three debutantes were a medley of the year's most endurable hits, ("Mister Sandman," "The Naughty Lady," "Melody of Love," "Tweedle-Dee," etc.), a marvelous parody of "Let Me Go, Lover" and a highly ingenious and very musical development of "Davy Crockett." Called "Let 'Er Go, Lover," the Hayman travesty of the popular tune made it very clear that it was about time the lover was dismissed with a kick in the pants—which he most certainly got. "Davy" on the other hand, found that king of the wild frontier battling the injuns and knocking off the b'ar with both hands tied behind his back to the vast enjoyment of the audience.

Another debutante was a lilting little waltz by Hon. Vincent Mottola, judge of the Boston Municipal Court, called "Massachusetts' First Lady's Waltz." It was dedicated to Mrs. Christian Herter and, as orchestrated by Peter Bodge, went off very well indeed. In the most serious part of the evening, conducted admirably by Harry Ellis Dickson, Mineko Sasahara, an attractive young Japanese pianist, did Rachmaninoff's minor Concerto. She was a little over her depth in it, but disclosed a good deal of talent nonetheless. Willis Paige conducts tonight, Mr. Fiedler appearing intermittently until his convalescence is complete.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 27,538
JUN 7 1955



DAVY' FIEDLER DIRECTS the ... Pops Orch... in a spirited performance of you-know-what song, while weari... Crockett coonskin cap and brandishing a 18? "shootin' arn." ... olorful maestro (whose real name is Arthur—honest), was pre... ed with the regalia at Symphony Hall Sunday. He promptly do... he get-up to direct "The Ballad of Davy Crockett." (UP Teleph...

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Standard-Times (e)
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 58,894
JUN 8 1955

10 in Area Attend Young GOP Concert

Ten members of the Greater New Bedford Young Republican Club attended the annual Republican Night concert of the Boston Pops Orchestra in Boston.

Miss Elinor Vander Pol of Fairhaven and William White of Worcester, co-chairman and chairman, respectively, of the Young Republican Club of Massachusetts, escorted Governor and Mrs. Herter into Symphony Hall.

Members of the local club attending were the Misses Denise Harbeck, ... S. Grace, Harriet Solotist, Maynard and Mrs. Edwin Terperry, Clarence Shaw, Hampton Duxbury, Attorney Malcolm Jones and Roy Farnsworth.

DOYLESTOWN, PA.
INTELLIGENCER
Circ. D. 6,066
JUN 8 1955

Robert Shaw Song Group Set to Appear

One of the awaited events in the musical history of Central New Jersey and the Delaware Valley will be the appearance next season of the Robert Shaw Chorale and Orchestra at the Trenton, N.J. War Memorial Building.

The concert will be one of five presented by the Trenton Community Concerts Assn. Mrs. Alex Budson, president of the local concert group, announced that the famous group featuring a company of 42 would appear in Trenton late in January, 1956.

The Trenton Community Concerts series will open in the first of November with another top flight star attraction to be announced soon.

The Robert Shaw Chorale and Orchestra is familiar to thousands via previous concert tours throughout the country. This will mark their first appearance in Trenton and the Delaware Valley area, repeated appearances with such top-flight symphony orchestras as the NBC Symphony under Arturo Toscanini, as well as the long list of recordings they have made for RCA Victor. Their recordings include everything from sacred works like Bach's "St. John Passion" and the "Mass in B Minor" to Christmas carols, art songs, operatic recordings, hymns and standard "pops" like four volumes of "Gems from Sigmund Romberg" and the newly released "With Love From a Chorus", an anthology of popular favorites.

Director of the singing ensemble and the orchestra which accompanies it is one of the brightest stars in America's musical firmament: 38 year old Robert Shaw, a California born dynamo whose widely recognized talent and unflagging energy have in the past decade become a major factor in galvanizing the art of choral singing all over America. Shaw wears his two honorary doctorates in music as lightly as his growing reputation as a conductor with such organizations as the Boston Symphony, the NBC, CBS and ABC symphonies, the Los Angeles Philharmonic and others.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Gazette (e)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 101,022
JUN 8 1955

KANSAS CITY MO. STAR
JUN 8 1955

By The Way

Time Turns Backward At College Reunions

By JANE MOORE HOWE

Returning to a college reunion is a sentimental journey. The years bring many changes but, during the reunion, time turns backward to carefree undergraduate days.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Biltcliffe are driving to Cambridge, Mass., for Ed's 25th Harvard University reunion Sunday, June 16.

Jane Moore Howe

As recognition of Ed's achievements in the world of music (he now is pianist with the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra) the University has asked him to perform with the Boston Pops Orchestra and Arthur Fiedler when the class takes over Symphony Hall Monday night for Harvard Night at the Boston Pops.

Ed has played with the Pops before and it is, of course, a great satisfaction to make a return engagement with such a reputable organization.

On the Biltcliffes' recent vacation to St. Petersburg, Fla., and Nassau, Ed's beach sunning was interrupted by hours of practice in preparation for his performance.

Dr. William Niles Wishard already has returned from his 30th reunion at the Harvard Medical School. It was May 27 and 28. His daughter, Susan, accompanied him and later they visited women's colleges in the East.

GEORGE L. DENNY leaves Friday for his 55th reunion at Princeton University. Last week end the Dennys' son, George H. Denny of Pasadena, Cal., visited them.

George H. said that his son, Midshipman George L. Denny II, who is attending United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., is off on his summer cruise aboard a converted aircraft carrier. The boys will stop in France, Spain and other European ports.

Young George's ukulele and guitar are aboard too, for the ship's commander is head of entertainment in the Academy and George is on his staff.

Mr. and Mrs. Fisk Landers leave Saturday for the graduation on Tuesday of their son, William Fisk Landers Jr. from Priceton University.

Dick Lugar, who is completing his first year in Oxford University in England, on a Rhoades scholarship in economics, philosophy and political science, will be meeting a trans-Atlantic plane that arrives June 20.

The plane's passengers will include his mother, Mrs. Marvin L. Lugar, his sister, Anne, and his fiancee, Miss Charlene Smeltzer of Detroit.

CHARLENE AND Dick met in Denison University, Granville, O., during undergraduate days when the two were co-presidents of student government.

After a visit at Oxford, the four will motor in a rented British Ford to Scotland, return to London for 10 days, then cross the channel for a motor trip on the continent.

Dick will return to Oxford for his last year and the others will sail for home August 20 aboard the Mauretania.

Vacation will begin for Mrs. Willis C. Adams, her children Wendy, Janie and Pete, and Nick Sinclair, June 13 when they drive off in their station wagon for a month's trip to Mexico.

They will stop at Little Rock and San Antonio before crossing the border for a thorough sightseeing tour. Mr. Adams may join them for part of the trip.

Married 42 Years

Pink peonies and red roses made a picture pretty centerpiece at the 42d wedding anniversary reception Saturday afternoon for Mr. and Mrs. Walter Myers in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Myers Jr.

The Myers' old friends were invited to the party which was given by their children, Judge and Mrs. Joseph N. Myers, Mr. and Mrs. James K. Northam and Mr. and Mrs. Myers Jr.

Ready Girls Arrive

Josephine and Helen Read arrived from Wickenburg, Ariz., last night in their pink station wagon for a visit with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Ready.

From today through June 30 the Indianapolis branch of their attractive shop at Wickenburg, the Bustle, will be open in the Marott Hotel. It will be filled with the clothes and accessories

YOUNG REPUBLICANS HONOR GOVERNOR'S LADY

BOSTON — Governor Herter and William W. White (left) of Worcester, chairman of the Massachusetts Council of Young Republican Clubs, look on while Miss Elinor Vanderpol of Fairhaven (second from right) presents Mrs. Christian A. Herter a corsage at Republican Night at the Boston Pops.

[82]

New England News... Box 2078, Boston 6 • Rich...
Herald (m)
BOSTON Mass.
Independent Republic...
Circ. ...59

THE OPERA

The Pops

By RUDOLPH ELIE

Arthur Fiedler, as sun tanned and as lucky as he has ever come of Symphony ... last night gave ... tion and found one of the great... fest tributes a conductor can ever hope to expect: a standing ova... tion on the part of his ... audience.

It is no slight to the man who has filled in for him the ... month to say that Mr. Fiedler's reappearance gave the occasion a special significance; after all the tradition and personal identification of 26 years of a man's life in so intimate an affair as the Pops is a gripping thing indeed. For no matter how well and how suitably, a substitute does, the previous association is the strongest tie. And there is nothing to do but own up to it: Arthur Fiedler, for a generation, has been The Pops—and he still is.

Last night's occasion, which found Governor and Mrs. Herter in the audience along with the Massachusetts Council of Young Republican Clubs, was especially notable for Mr. Fiedler's introduction of three of his unique musical concoctions known far and wide as Fiedler's Follies. These things, which are derived by the conductor and such of his arrangers as Anderson, Bodge, Mason and Hayman, are symphonic commentaries on the popular musical foibles of the day, though they also include such original novelties as well.

The three debutantes were a medley of the year's most endurable hits, ("Mister Sandman," "The Naughty Lady," "Melody of Love," "Tweedle-Dee," etc.), a marvelous parody of "Let Me Go, Lover" and a highly ingenious and very musical development of "Davy Crockett." Called "Let 'Er Go, Lover," the Hayman travesty of the popular tune made it very clear that it was about time the lover was dismissed with a kick in the pants—which he most certainly got. "Davy" on the other hand, found that king of the wild frontier battling the injuns and knocking off the b'ar with both hands tied behind his back to the vast enjoyment of the audience.

Another debutante was a lilting little waltz by Hon. Vincent Mottola, judge of the Boston Municipal Court, called "Massachusetts' First Lady's Waltz." It was dedicated to Mrs. Christian Herter and, as orchestrated by Peter Bodge, went off very well indeed. In the most serious part of the evening, conducted admirably by Harry Ellis Dickson, Mineko Sasahara, an attractive young Japanese pianist, did Rachmaninoff's minor Concerto. She was a little over her depth in it, but disclosed a good deal of talent nonetheless. Willis Paige conducts tonight, Mr. Fiedler appearing intermittently until his convalescence is complete.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Standard-Times (e)
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 58,894
JUN 8 1955

10 in Area Attend Young GOP Concert

Ten members of the Greater New Bedford Young Republican Club attended the annual Republican Night concert of the Boston Pops Orchestra in Boston.

Miss Elinor Vander Pol of Fairhaven and William White of Worcester, co-chairman and chairman, respectively, of the Young Republican Club of Massachusetts, escorted Governor and Mrs. Herter into Symphony Hall.

Members of the local club attending were the Misses Denise Harbeck, Joan S. Chace, Harriet Solotist, Maxine and Mrs. Edwin Terperry, Ch... Shaw, Hampton Duxbury, ... Attorney Malcolm Jones and Roy Farnsworth.

DOYLESTOWN, PA.
INTELLIGENCER
Circ. D. 6,066
JUN 8 1955

Robert Shaw Song Group Set to Appear

One of the awaited events in the musical history of Central New Jersey and the Delaware Valley will be the appearance next season of the Robert Shaw Chorale and Orchestra at the Trenton, N.J. War Memorial Building.

The concert will be one of five presented by the Trenton Community Concerts Assn. Mrs. Alex Budson, president of the local concert group, announced that the famous group featuring a company of 42 would appear in Trenton late in January, 1956.

The Trenton Community Concerts series will open in the first of November with another top flight star attraction to be announced soon.

The Robert Shaw Chorale and Orchestra is familiar to thousands via previous concert tours throughout the country. This will mark their first appearance in Trenton and the Delaware Valley area, repeated appearances with such top-flight symphony orchestras as the NBC Symphony under Arturo Toscanini, as well as the long list of recordings they have made for RCA Victor. Their recordings include everything from sacred works like Bach's "St. John Passion" and the "Mass in B Minor" to Christmas carols, art songs, operatic recordings, hymns and standard "pops" like four volumes of [illegible] from Sigmund Rom[illegible]

The return of the four[illegible] civilian prisoners as well ar[illegible] us 11 other fliers and a si[illegible] munists owed us these m[illegible] of gratitude to Red China[illegible]
But we as a nation cannot r[illegible]
...how free and reunited wit[illegible]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 27,538
JUN 7 1955

DAVY' FIEDLER DIRECTS the Boston Pops Orchestra in a spirited performance of you-know-what song, while wearing a Crockett coonskin cap and brandishing a 1[illegible] "shootin' arn." The colorful maestro (whose real name is Arthur—honest), was presented with the regalia at Symphony Hall Sunday. He promptly donned the get-up to direct "The Ballad of Davy Crockett." (UP Telephoto)

By The Way

Time Turns Backward At College Reunions

By JANE MOORE HOWE

Returning for a college reunion is a sentimental journey. The years bring many changes but, during the reunion, time turns backward to carefree undergraduate days.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Biltcliffe are driving to Cambridge, Mass., for Ed's 25th Harvard University reunion Sunday, June 16.

Jane Moore Howe

As recognition of Ed's achievements in the world of music (he now is pianist with the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra) the University has asked him to perform with the Boston Pops Orchestra and Arthur Fiedler when the class takes over Symphony Hall Monday night for Harvard Night at the Boston Pops.

Ed has played with the Pops before and it is, of course, a great satisfaction to make a return engagement with such a reputable organization.

On the Biltcliffes' recent vacation to St. Petersburg, Fla., and Nassau, Ed's beach sunning was interrupted by hours of practice in preparation for his performance.

Dr. William Niles Wishard already has returned from his 30th reunion at the Harvard Medical School. It was May 27 and 28. His daughter, Susan, accompanied him and later they visited women's colleges in the East.

GEORGE L. DENNY leaves Friday for his 55th reunion at Princeton University. Last week end the Dennys' son, George H. Denny of Pasadena, Cal., visited them.

George H. said that his son, Midshipman George L. Denny II, who is attending United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., is off on his summer cruise aboard a converted aircraft carrier. The boys will stop in France, Spain and other European ports.

Young George's ukulele and guitar are aboard too, for the ship's commander is head of entertainment in the Academy and George is on his staff.

Mr. and Mrs. Fisk Landers leave Saturday for the graduation on Tuesday of their son, William Fisk Landers Jr. from Priceton University.

Dick Lugar, who is completing his first year in Oxford University in England, on a Rhoades scholarship in economics, philosophy and political science, will be meeting a trans-Atlantic plane that arrives June 20.

The plane's passengers will include his mother, Mrs. Marvin L. Lugar, his sister, Anne, and his fiancee, Miss Charlene Smeltzer of Detroit.

CHARLENE AND Dick met in Denison University, Granville, O., during undergraduate days when the two were co-presidents of student government.

After a visit at Oxford, the four will motor in a rented British Ford to Scotland, return to London for 10 days, then cross the channel for a motor trip on the continent.

Dick will return to Oxford for his last year and the others will sail for home August 20 aboard the Mauretania.

Vacation will begin for Mrs. Willis C. Adams, her children Wendy, Janie and Pete, and Nick Sinclair, June 13 when they drive off in their station wagon for a month's trip to Mexico.

They will stop at Little Rock and San Antonio before crossing the border for a thorough sightseeing tour. Mr. Adams may join them for part of the trip.

Married 42 Years

Pink peonies and red roses made a picture pretty centerpiece at the 42d wedding anniversary reception Saturday afternoon for Mr. and Mrs. Walter Myers in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Myers Jr.

The Myers' old friends were invited to the party which was given by their children, Judge and Mrs. Joseph N. Myers, Mr. and Mrs. James K. Northam and Mr. and Mrs. Myers Jr.

Ready Girls Arrive

Josephine and Helen Read arrived from Wickenburg, Ariz., last night in their pink station wagon for a visit with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Ready.

From today through June 30 the Indianapolis branch of their attractive shop at Wickenburg, the Bustle, will be open in the Marott Hotel. It will be filled with the clothes and accessories

KANSAS CITY, MO. STAR
JUN 8 1955

...ncy, Inc.
...900

YOUNG REPUBLICANS HONOR GOVERNOR'S LADY

BOSTON — Governor Herter and William W. White (left) of Worcester, chairman of the Massachusetts Council of Young Republican Clubs, look on while Miss Elinor Vanderpol of Fairhaven (second from right) presents Mrs. Christian A. Herter a corsage at Republican Night at the Boston Pops.

[82]

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.
TIMES
Circ. D. 97,994 - S. 94,745
JUN 8 1955

Henry Butler

Mr. Butler

PARTIES always are fascinating. And when you see a smooth, professional shindy in a hotel or club, you may wonder how it's put together so efficiently.

Standing aside and watching it is almost as much fun as savoring the fancy food or guzzling the free drinks.

After a handsome cocktail party at the Marott recently, I thought I'd ask Charles Watson, the hotel's calm, unflurried director, just what went into the event.

How does a party like that happen? What's involved, and how much does it cost the party-giver?

Mention of names might prove embarrassing, since I'm introducing statistics.

THIS WAS something real smooth. The gal with me and I went into the Mirror Room still wearing our raincoats. A very courteous waiter said, "Can't I hang those up for you?" and took them to a hatrack across the hall.

We went through the usual greetings, and then were invited to case the bar and chow table. This latter was a 20-foot long deal, handsomely set with linen, chafing dishes, flowers, silver.

In the oldtime sense of a tired word, the food was elegant. Hot hors d'oeuvres consisted of meat balls simmering in tomato sauce, chicken livers wrapped in bacon, and fried shrimp.

Cold "horse doovers" consisted of sardines buckled with strips of pimiento to rectangles of bread, looking like pocket-size versions of the stuffed bass over a country club mantel. Also canapes of liver paste and other delectable goo.

Not to mention cold shrimp in a big punch bowl made of ice with elaborate ornamental clusters of carrot strips and whatnot frozen into the thick rim. This handsome gimmick comes from Polar Ice Co. and costs around $13.50.

I saw that detail on the work sheet Mr. Watson showed me. As soon as the party is booked and all arrangements decided (Miss Mildred Surber and Miss Emma Garwood help Mr. W. with such arrangements), a work sheet is made out in eight copies.

IT GOES to the chef, cook, pantry, purchasing, accounting and other departments concerned. No hurry, no fuss. This party was to be for 30 to 40, though actually I think a lot more turned up.

So the work sheet, which, Charley told me, normally allows about 10 per cent leeway for unexpected arrivals, specified 10 dozen cold hors d'oeuvres at $2.50 a dozen and ditto hot, at $3.50.

The World's a Stage

There's 60 bucks. Plus another $60 for "miscellaneous." Plus $65 for music (very attractive gal trio of fiddle, accordion and bass) and $20 for flowers. Plus $161 for bar.

As I figure, with a couple of other items on that work sheet, the total cost to the hosts ran close to $400.

For this particular party, Charley told me, they didn't charge rent for the Mirror Room. Usually that runs around $75, he said. For weddings and such.

You can build your own wedding party from then on up, with punch starting at $2.50 a gallon. "We can also mix a punch at $20 a gallon," Charley said. "That's the champagne type."

After talking with Charley last Friday, I had an appointment with Michael Bowles, the Indiana University band director I wrote about here May 24.

MR. BOWLES is conducting a benefit performance of the Boston Pops Orchestra Friday evening in Boston's Symphony Hall for an Irish fraternal organization.

"I managed to talk them out of 'Mother Machree' and 'Victor Herbert favorites," he said.

"But they still wanted variations on 'The Irish Washerwoman.' I looked it up in the books, and would you believe it, it's not an Irish tune originally. It's English.

"That fixed it, but good," he concluded.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000
JUN 8 1955

SOCIETY: Friday Night Pops Bought Out by Eire Society

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

Sold out is Friday's Pops at Symphony Hall, annual Night at Pops of the Eire Society, whose president is Paul E. Tierney. The society has the entire house of more than 1100 seats, and a special program of Irish music is in store, with Michael Bowles, former director of the New Zealand Symphony Orchestra, as guest conductor.

Irish Consul in Boston, Joseph Shields and Mayor Hynes are among the guests of honor, and the large committee working with Mr. Tierney includes Mrs. Tierney, Mrs. James McElwee, John McGrail, Martin O'Malley, Mrs. William A. Graham, Peter O'Flaherty, Joseph Gannon, Charles Lynch, Miss Frances Fox, Miss Rose Acton, Miss Catherine O'Dea, Miss Catherine Madden, Miss Ruth Paine, Miss Mary Hickey, Miss Mary Sullivan, Linehan O'Connell and John J. Devlin.

Other Pops nights on this season's calendar include the New England Conservatory of Music on Saturday, for which F. Otis Drayton is chairman, the Harvard Class of 1930, on Monday, for their 25th reunion, with Richard H. Barbour chairman, and the Harvard class of 1925, for its 30th reunion, on Tuesday.

A 4 O'CLOCK wedding in the Little Church of the First Parish in Milton is planned by Miss Helen Rodgers Burgin and David Charles Drummond Rogers for this Saturday. A reception will follow at the Milton home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Rodgers Burgin. After a wedding trip to Canada, Mr. Rogers, who is the son of Prof. and Mrs. Eric M. Rogers of Princeton, N. J., and his bride will live in Cambridge while he completes his studies at the Harvard School of Business Administration. A member of the Vincent Club, the bride-to-be is a graduate of Milton Academy and Bennington College. Mr. Rogers

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-0068
Free Press
PEPPERELL, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 1000
JUN 9 1955

Realtors Will Attend Boston Pop Concert

Pepperell — The Northern Worcester County Board of Realtors met on Monday evening at the Old Mill Tea Room, Westminster for its final meeting of the season.

After a social hour and dinner, a panel discussion was conducted by Roger Foster of Fitchburg, this being education month.

The Boston Pops concert June 20 will be Realtor's Pops night, with one half of the floor being reserved for realtors, their families and friends. Mrs. Sophie Tierney of Townsend street, secretary of the board, will take care of local ticket distribution.

The Realtor's convention is to be held at the Equinox House, Manchester, Vt., from June 22 to 25.

Friday Night Pops Bought Out by Eire Society

ARJORIE W. SHERMAN

Pops at Irish Consul in Boston, Joseph Night at Shields and Mayor Hynes are y, whose among the guests of honor, and the large committee working with Eleanora Sears, mounted on her horses.

Capt T. Fred Marsman, director of riding at Dana Hall Schools will give an exhibition of dressage riding in Ring 1 at 2:30 p. m.

hibitors are l T. Clark, " won the at the Ded- May 30, and Smith Jr., erlark" won 1954. Other Mrs. Stephen . H. R. Frue- fall Jr., Mrs. . and Mrs. Mr. and Mrs. rfield Acad- Miss Harriet rill be their Miss Elenora Gardner F. ie Winthrop, m Potter Jr., as, Miss Betty Cote, Mr. and iske, Mr. and aw, Mrs. Rus- ry S. Midden- R. H. Read, ll, Mrs. Fran- Joseph Welch Storey, Mr. Miss Honora er Felton and and Millwood

(Bachrach)

A JULY WEDDING is planned by Miss Dorothy G. Fraser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Lester Fraser of Wellesley, to Victor G. Pesek of New York, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pesek of Prague. She graduated from Mt. Trinity Academy and Regis College, and her fiance is a graduate of M. I. T.

dants. Ushers mphotheatrof of Africa, who is Monica, Calif., Francis Cahouet Lee of Wood- and McClintock Robert T. Paine

Ann Haywood, and Mrs. Donald ice Vose) of De- Grandparents are Charles Marsden Arthur Vose of 450 entries have ed for Milwood's Saturday at mingham, when how will bring all the New Eng-he afternoon will contest to demon- or Program ride Foltenyi and Capt riders for Miss [83]

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.
TIMES
Circ. D. 97,994 - S. 94,745
JUN 8 1955

Henry Butler

Mr. Butler

PARTIES always are fascinating. And when you see a smooth, professional shindy in a hotel or club, you may wonder how it's put together so efficiently.

Standing aside and watching it is almost as much fun as savoring the fancy food or guzzling the free drinks.

After a handsome cocktail party at the Marott recently, I thought I'd ask Charles Watson, the hotel's calm, unflurried director, just what went into the event.

How does a party like that happen? What's involved, and how much does it cost the party-giver?

Mention of names might prove embarrassing, since I'm introducing statistics.

THIS WAS something real smooth. The gal with me and I went into the Mirror Room still wearing our raincoats. A very courteous waiter said, "Can't I hang those up for you?" and took them to a hatrack across the hall.

We went through the usual greetings, and then were invited to case the bar and chow table. This latter was a 20-foot long deal, handsomely set with linen, chafing dishes, flowers, silver.

In the oldtime sense of a tired word, the food was elegant. Hot hors d'oeuvres consisted of meat balls simmering in tomato sauce, chicken livers wrapped in bacon, and fried shrimp.

Cold "horse doovers" consisted of sardines buckled with strips of pimiento to rectangles of bread, looking like pocket-size versions of the stuffed bass over a country club mantel. Also canapes of liver paste and other delectable goo.

Not to mention cold shrimp in a big punch bowl made of ice with elaborate ornamental clusters of carrot strips and whatnot frozen into the thick rim. This handsome gimmick comes from Polar Ice Co. and costs around $13.50.

I saw that detail on the work sheet Mr. Watson showed me. As soon as the party is booked and all arrangements decided (Miss Mildred Surber and Miss Emma Garwood help Mr. W. with such arrangements), a work sheet is made out in eight copies.

IT GOES to the chef, cook, pantry, purchasing, accounting and other departments oncerned. No hurry, no fuss. This party as to be for 30 to 40, though actually I ink a lot more turned up.

So the work sheet, which, Charley told me, normally allows about 10 per cent leeway for unexpected arrivals, specified 10 dozen cold hors d'oeuvres at $2.50 a dozen and ditto hot, at $3.50.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-0068
Free Press
PEPPERELL, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 1000
JUN 9 1955

Realtors Will Attend Boston Pop Concert

Pepperell — The Northern Worcester County Board of Realtors met on Monday evening at the Old Mill Tea Room, Westminster for its final meeting of the season.

After a social hour and dinner, a panel discussion was conducted by Roger Foster of Fitchburg, this being education month.

The Boston Pops concert June 20 will be Realtor's Pops night, with one half of the floor being reserved for realtors, their families and friends. Mrs. Sophie Tierney of Townsend street, secretary of the board, will take care of local ticket distribution.

The Realtor's convention is to be held at the Equinox House, Manchester, Vt., from June 22 to 25.

Bond Market

NEW YORK, June 7 (AP)—Following is a complete list of bond transactions on the New York Stock Exchange today:

CORPORATION BONDS

Sales In $1,000 | High | Low | Last | Chg.

...on The ...p in the
...s not an

...oncluded.

Circ. 154,241
JUN 8 1955

SOCIETY: Friday Night Pops Bought Out by Eire Society

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

Sold out is Friday's Pops at Symphony Hall, annual Night at Pops of the Eire Society, whose president is Paul E. Tierney. The society has the entire house of more than 1100 seats, and a special program of Irish music is in store, with Michael Bowles, former director of the New Zealand Symphony Orchestra, as guest conductor.

Irish Consul in Boston, Joseph Shields and Mayor Hynes are among the guests of honor, and the large committee working with Mr. Tierney includes Mrs. Tierney, Mrs. James McElwee, John McGrail, Martin O'Malley, Mrs. William A. Graham, Peter O'Flaherty, Joseph Gannon, Charles Lynch, Miss Frances Fox, Miss Rose Acton, Miss Catherine O'Dea, Miss Catherine Madden, Miss Ruth Paine, Miss Mary Hickey, Miss Mary Sullivan, Linehan O'Connell and John J. Devlin.

Other Pops nights on this season's calendar include the New England Conservatory of Music on Saturday, for which F. Otis Drayton is chairman, the Harvard Class of 1930, on Monday, for their 25th reunion, with Richard H. Barbour chairman, and the Harvard class of 1925, for its 30th reunion, on Tuesday.

A 4 O'CLOCK wedding in the Little Church of the First Parish in Milton is planned by Miss Helen Rodgers Burgin and David Charles Drummond Rogers for this Saturday. A reception will follow at the Milton home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Rodgers Burgin. After a wedding trip to Canada, Mr. Rogers, who is the son of Prof. and Mrs. Eric M. Rogers of Princeton, N. J., and his bride will live in Cambridge while he completes his studies at the Harvard School of Business Administration. A member of the Vincent Club, the bride-to-be is a graduate of Milton Academy and Bennington College. Mr. Rogers sister's only attendants. Ushers will be Lt Erik Amphotheatrof of the Union of South Africa, who is here from Santa Monica, Calif., for the wedding; Francis Cahouet of Milton, Elisha Lee of Woodstock, Vt., Copeland McClintock of Princeton and Robert T. Paine 3d of Cambridge.

A DAUGHTER, Ann Haywood, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Marsden (Constance Vose) of Detroit on May 28. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Marsden and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Vose of Milton.

MORE THAN 450 entries have already been listed for Milwood's annual Horse Show Saturday at Raceland in Framingham, when the big all-day show will bring competition from all the New England hunts.

A feature of the afternoon will be an exhibition contest to demonstrate the Senior Program ride between Gabor Foltenyi and Capt B de Nenethy, riders for Miss Eleanora Sears, mounted on her horses.

Capt T. Fred Marsman, director of riding at Dana Hall Schools will give an exhibition of dressage riding in Ring 1 at 2:30 p. m.

Among the many exhibitors are Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel T. Clark, whose horse "Hickory" won the Hunter Championship at the Dedham Horse Show on May 30, and Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Smith Jr., whose horse "Thunderlark" won the championship in 1954. Other senior exhibitors are: Mrs. Stephen R. Casey, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Fruehauf, Mrs. Henry S. Hall Jr., Mrs. Kenneth Howes, Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop Pyemont, Mr. and Mrs. graduated from Deerfield Academy and Harvard. Miss Harriet and Jane Burgin will be their Charles G. Rice, Miss Elenora Sears, Mr. and Mrs. Gardner F. Stone, Mrs. Frederic Winthrop. Mr. and Mrs. William Potter Jr., Mrs. E. Emerson Evans, Miss Betty Dumaine, Ralph E. Cote, Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner H. Fiske, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Greenlaw, Mrs. Russell Howell, Mr. Harry S. Middendorf, Mrs. Kenneth R. H. Read, Miss Susan Saltonstall, Mrs. Francis P. Sears, Mrs. Joseph Welch Jr., Mrs. Richard C. Storey, Mr. David J. Delaney Jr., Miss Honora Haynes, Miss Jennifer Felton and the Myopia, Norfolk and Millwood Hunt Teams.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Enterprise
MAYNARD, Mass.
Weekly
Comb. Circ.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Beacon
MAYNARD
Weekly
Circ. 1,887

JUN 9 1955

Students Go to "Pops"

MAYNARD — A group of Junior High School students attended the Boston Pops concert in Symphony Hall, on Friday evening, June 3.

Students attending were: Constance Lowell, Nancy Charpenteur, Barbara Littig, Karen Grandell, Karen Keto, Brenda Mariani, Alexandra Engelhardt, Leigh Robinson, Sally Boeske, Elizabeth Fouratt, Judith Manning, Elaine Joyal, Audrey Malcolm, Barbara Harrington, Joan Nyholm, Maryelln Nordberg, Judith Rutkowski, Judith Byrnes, Mary Connerney, Denise Murphy, Sally Chapman, Jesselyn Piecewicz, Sandra Koski, Joan Manning, Dennis Lombard, David Holt, Roger MacGlashing, John White, Thomas French, Walter Crowther, James Brooks, Edward Mullin, Leo Mullin, John Malcolm, John Gunn, Richard Iannitelli, Charles Wilson, and Stephen Carlton. Chaperones included: Mrs. Grace Tucker, Mrs. Walter Boeske, Mr. Stephen Clarke, and Mr. Charles Garabedian.

mittee, superintendent of schools, high school faculty and school personnel. After the dinner, which was catered by the Yankee Chef, the Class Night exercises took place, midst fun and jollity.

James Duggan as King Jackpot and Arlene Gunn as Queen Mucha Moola, presented the class gifts to their classmates. They were assisted by the humor of the court jesters, Edward Penniman and Betty Boeske, in surprising the receivers with appropriate gifts which ranged from the sublime to the ridiculous. The class will was legally rendered by Donald Torppa and Jacqueline Vincent, and the future of the seniors was predicted with solemnity in the class prophecy, by Mark Waldron and Marie DiGeronimo.

The junior class president, Robert Ferreira announced the senior superlatives, which were received with pleasure and applause.

Following these activities, the seniors and their invited partners danced to the music of the Cavaliers, a 7-piece orchestra from Nashua, N. H.

On Sunday, June 12, at 3 o'clock, in the George Washington Auditorium, the graduation exercises, a happy occasion for relatives and friends of the graduates, will be held.

Preceding graduation, on Sunday morning, two Communion breakfasts will be served to the seniors. The graduates have been invited by the Holy Name Society of St. Bridget's Parish to breakfast at Twin Trees Cafe, following mass, and to breakfast at the home of Philip Wilson, after services at the Methodist church.

Class Awards

At a Maynard high school assembly in the George Washington Auditorium on Tuesday, many awards were made.

Worsley Fardy, Manual Arts instructor, was presented a Certificate of Achievement by the Massachusetts Industrial Education Society. This award was given to him because his students had received Awards of Merit for Outstanding Craftsmanship in the Project Fair at the spring convention on May 14. Two cer-raduates vities On s Week

With Graduation 12th, In George um At 3 O'clock

ates of award were made to a Armbur in metalwork for die-stock, and in woodwork his cobbler's bench, and one Thomas Duggan in woodwork his TV chair. Since this an- competition is entered by ustrial arts classes from the re state, the Maynard boys deserving of praise for their accomplishment in crafts- nship.

aseball letters were present- o Donald Torppa, James Dug- , Peter Wilson, Lawrence oks, Raymond Melanson, Rob Kane, Philip Williams, David tty, Richard Martino, John levich, Richard Carleton, nes Luker, Richard Jones and ymond Weaving.

The members of the Girls' ld Hockey team have elected Mary Ann Matson and Kathleen Spratt as co-captains for next fall.

Pops Concert

On Friday evening, June 3, a group of Junior high school students attended the Boston Pops Concert in Symphony hall, Boston.

Students attending were: Consance Lowell, Nancy Charpenteur, Barbara Littig, Karen Grandell, Karen Keto, Brenda Mariani, Alexandra Engelhardt, Leigh Robinson, Sally Boeske, Elizabeth Fouratt, Judith Manning, Elaine Joyal, Audrey Malcolm, Barbara Harrington, Joan Nyholm, Maryellen Nordberg, Judith Rutkowski, Judith Byrnes, Mary Connerney, Denise Murphy Sally Chapman, Jesselyn Piecewicz, Sandra Koski, Joan Manning, Dennis Lombard, David Holt, Roger MacGlashing, John White, Thomas French, Walter Crowther, James Brooks, Edward Mullin, Leo Mullin, John Malcolm, John Gunn, Richard Iannitelli, Charles Wilson and Stephen Carlton. Chaperones included: Mrs. Grace Tucker, Mrs. Walter Boeske, Stephen Clarke and Charles Garabedian.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Telegram-News (e)
LYNN, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
News (e)
SALEM, Mass.
Independent

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Item (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 21,384

JUN 9 1955

Symphony Seat Given To Friend

His seat at the seasonal concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra is given to Helen Field Parker of Brookline, by the will of Fred M. Woodard of 17 Sachem Street, Lynn, which was recorded in the Registry of Probate in Salem yesterday. The value of the estate was not estimated.

The testament, signed Oct. 21, 1954, bequeathed $1000 to the First Universalist Church of Lynn, Household furniture and other tangible person property are bequeathed to Kenneth Robertson, Sr., and Mrs. Irene Robertson of Towson, Md.

Gifts of $5000 each are directed to Pearl Starbird of Boston, Virginia Whitney of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Kenneth Robertson, Jr., and Helen Field Parker. Knights Templar regalia is given to Olivet Commandary of Lynn.

Residue of the estate is divided among Marlene Robertson, Linda Robertson, Kenenth Robertson, Sr., Kenneth Robertson, Jr., and Irene Robertson.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

N. E. Conservatory Commencement Week

Saturday night at the Boston Pops has been set aside as New England Conservatory night. Richard Burgin of the faculty will conduct the concert, which is sponsored by the Conservatory Alumni Association as the opening event in the Conservatory's 85th Commencement festivities.

Buckner Gamby, a graduating senior from Back Bay, Boston, will be the soloist in the first movement of Rachmaninoff's C-minor piano concerto. The New England Conservatory Chorus will sing a number of popular choral selections under the direction of its acting conductor, Thomas A. Sokol.

Everyone is welcome to join in and tickets may be purchased in the Treasurer's Office at the Town Hall. Barbara Corbett and Shelia Curtin of the Assessor's Dept. are co-chairmen of the event.

Crocke... virtuoso trumpeter of the ...ston Pops, will be featured at Old Timers' Night Saturday, June 8.

...Davy Crockett" shoes. Coonskin hats have touched off the biggest run on raccoons since the giddy 1920's; coon tails once selling for 25 cents a pound have sky-rocketed to 5 bucks a pound. In some stores, Davy Crockett accounts for 10% of all children's wear (even little girls' underclothes are as worn by Crockett). In Beverly Hills, startled Furrier Al Teitelbaum told Time correspondent Ezra Goodman that a movie matron had handed him a mink stole and ordered it cut into "coonskin" caps for her two sons. Yessir, it looks like Davy Crockett is even bigger than Mickey Mouse.

Well, this is the big weekend for the kiddies and also for the grownups. Tomorrow night at Morton Field will be unveiled the greatest, the most stupendous, the most lavish carnival ever set up to fascinate and entertain the public. And on Saturday the festivities will be in full blast all afternoon and until close to midnight. There will be the usual midway with its opportunities for fun and frolic. There will be pony rides, ferris wheel, merry-go-round, games of fortune and hundreds of other exciting things to make the affair merry. It's the annual Legion Carnival so Hurry, Hurry, Hurry. Step down and see JoJo, the dog-faced boy. He walks, he talks, he rides a bicycle. He crawls upon his belly like a reptile. At the tender age of seven he devoured both his mother and his father, thereby rendering himself an orphan. Yessir, you can't afford to miss the great annual jamboree at Morton Field tomorrow night and Saturday afternoon and evening. A brand new Plymouth Sedan will be given away at the close of the shindig on Saturday.

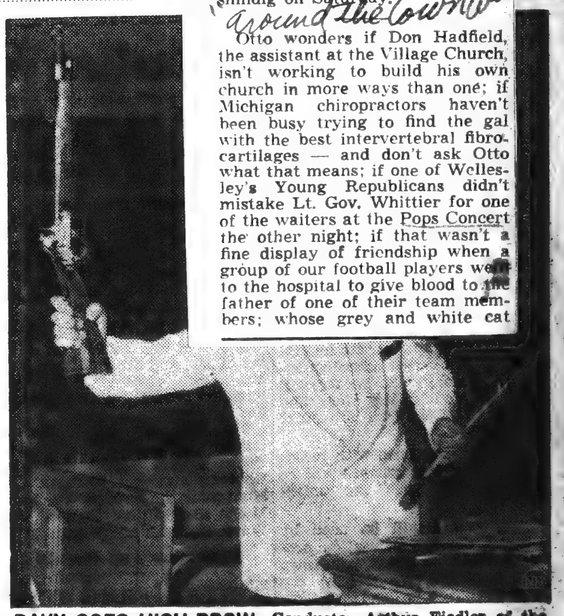
Around the Town

Otto wonders if Don Hadfield, the assistant at the Village Church, isn't working to build his own church in more ways than one; if Michigan chiropractors haven't been busy trying to find the gal with the best intervertebral fibrocartilages — and don't ask Otto what that means; if one of Wellesley's Young Republicans didn't mistake Lt. Gov. Whittier for one of the waiters at the Pops Concert the other night; if that wasn't a fine display of friendship when a group of our football players went to the hospital to give blood to the father of one of their team members; whose grey and white cat

New England Newsclip Ag...
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchm...
Sun (e)
ATTLEBORO, M...

New England Newsclip A...
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchm...
News-Times (...
DANBURY, Co...
Independent
Circ. 15,916

JUN 9 1955



DAVY GOES HIGH-BROW—Conductor Arthur Fiedler of the Boston Pops Orchestra goes Davy Crockett to amuse his audience at Boston's Symphony Hall. Suitably equipped with a coonskin cap and toy "shootin' arn," Fiedler is shown directing with gusto a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

[84]

Maynard Graduates Hold Festivities On Senior Class Week

Activities Conclude With Graduation Exercises On June 12th, In George Washington Auditorium At 3 O'clock

Maynard — This is Senior Week at Maynard high school. On Monday, the entire Senior class, accompanied by Miss O'Brien, Miss Farina, Mr. Mattioli and Mr. DeRosa of the high school faculty, enjoyed a day's outing at Nantasket Beach. The weather man cooperated in making this bus-boat trio a memorable event in the lives of the Seniors.

On Wednesday evening, the Senior banquet and Class Night festivities were held in the George Washington Auditorium, under the supervision of Albert Lerer, principal and Miss Elizabeth O'Brien, Senior class advisor. The Senior class president, Peter Wilson, gave the address of welcome to the students and invited guests—the school committee, superintendent of schools high school faculty and school personnel. After the dinner, which was catered by the Yankee Chef, the Class Night exercises took place, midst fun and jollity.

James Duggan as King Jackpot and Arlene Gunn as Queen Mucha Moola, presented the class gifts to their classmates. They were assisted by the humor of the court jesters, Edward Penniman and Betty Boeske, in surprising the receivers with appropriate gifts which ranged from the sublime to the ridiculous. The class will was legally rendered by Donald Torppa and Jacqueline Vincent, and the future of the seniors was predicted with solemnity in the class prophecy, by Mark Waldron and Marie DiGeronimo.

The junior class president, Robert Ferreira announced the senior superlatives, which were received with pleasure and applause.

Following these activities, the seniors and their invited partners danced to the music of the Cavaliers, a 7-piece orchestra from Nashua, N. H.

On Sunday, June 12, at 3 o'clock, in the George Washington Auditorium, the graduation exercises, a happy occasion for relatives and friends of the graduates, will be held.

Preceding graduation, on Sunday morning, two Communion breakfasts will be served to the seniors. The graduates have been invited by the Holy Name Society of St. Bridget's Parish to breakfast at Twin Trees Cafe, following mass, and to breakfast at the home of Philip Wilson, after services at the Methodist church.

Class Awards

At a Maynard high school assembly in the George Washington Auditorium on Tuesday, many awards were made.

Worsley Fardy, Manual Arts instructor, was presented a Certificate of Achievement by the Massachusetts Industrial Education Society. This award was given to him because his students had received Awards of Merit for Outstanding Craftsmanship in the Project Fair at the spring convention on May 14. Two certificates of award were made to Dana Armbur in metalwork for his die-stock, and in woodwork for his cobbler's bench, and one to Thomas Duggan in woodwork for his TV chair. Since this annual competition is entered by industrial arts classes from the entire state, the Maynard boys are deserving of praise for their fine accomplishment in craftsmanship.

Baseball letters were presented to Donald Torppa, James Duggan, Peter Wilson, Lawrence Brooks, Raymond Melanson, Robert Kane, Philip Williams, David Crotty, Richard Martino, John Kulevich, Richard Carleton, James Luker, Richard Jones and Raymond Weaving.

The members of the Girls' Field Hockey team have elected Mary Ann Matson and Kathleen Spratt as co-captains for next fall.

Pops Concert

On Friday evening, June 3, a group of Junior high school students attended the Boston Pops Concert in Symphony hall, Boston.

Students attending were: Consance Lowell, Nancy Charpenteur, Barbara Littig, Karen Grandell, Karen Keto, Brenda Mariani, Alexandra Engelhardt, Leigh Robinson, Sally Boeske, Elizabeth Fouratt, Judith Manning, Elaine Joyal, Audrey Malcolm, Barbara Harrington, Joan Nyholm, Maryellen Nordberg, Judith Rutkowski, Judith Byrnes, Mary Connerney, Denise Murphy Sally Chapman, Jesselyn Piecewicz, Sandra Koski, Joan Manning, Dennis Lombard, David Holt, Roger MacGlashing, John White, Thomas French, Walter Crowther, James Brooks, Edward Mullin, Leo Mullin, John Malcolm, John Gunn, Richard Iannitelli, Charles Wilson and Stephen Carlton. Chaperones included: Mrs. Grace Tucker, Mrs. Walter Boeske, Stephen Clarke and Charles Garabedian.

Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,665

JUN 9 1955

Town Hall Associates Will Sponsor Night At Boston "Pops"

047

The Town Hall Associates will sponsor the first Watertown night at the Boston "Pops" in Symphony Hall on Thursday evening, June 23 at 8:30 p.m.

Many of the town's personnel are interested in this affair and it looks as though the official town families will be well represented. With Arthur Fiedler back, a fine musical evening is promised.

Everyone is welcome to join in and tickets may be purchased in the Treasurer's Office at the Town Hall. Barbara Corbett and Shelia Curtin of the Assessor's Dept. are co-chairmen of the event.

ARMA... virtuoso trumpeter of the ...ton Pops, will be featured at Old Timers' Night Saturday, June 8.

Crocke... prover... of unwa... years, t... by calli...

Davy Crockett" shoes. Coonskin hats have touched off the biggest run on raccoons since the giddy 1920's; coon tails once selling for 25 cents a pound have sky-rocketed to 5 bucks a pound. In some stores, Davy Crockett accounts for 10% of all children's wear (even little girls' underclothes are as worn by Crockett). In Beverly Hills, startled Furrier Al Teitelbaum told Time correspondent Ezra Goodman that a movie matron had handed him a mink stole and ordered it cut into "coonskin" caps for her two sons. Yessir, it looks like Davy Crockett is even bigger than Mickey Mouse.

Well, this is the big weekend for the kiddies and also for the grown-ups. Tomorrow night at Morton Field will be unveiled the greatest, the most stupendous, the most lavish carnival ever set up to fascinate and entertain the public. And on Saturday the festivities will be in full blast all afternoon and until close to midnight. There will be the usual midway with its opportunities for fun and frolic. There will be pony rides, ferris wheel, merry-go-round, games of fortune and hundreds of other exciting things to make the affair merry. It's the annual Legion Carnival so Hurry, Hurry, Hurry. Step down and see JoJo, the dog-faced boy. He walks, he talks, he rides a bicycle. He crawls upon his belly like a reptile. At the tender age of seven he devoured both his mother and his father, thereby rendering himself an orphan. Yessir, you can't afford to miss the great annual jamboree at Morton Field tomorrow night and Saturday afternoon and evening. A brand new Plymouth Sedan will be given away at the close of the shindig on Saturday.

Woman Willed Symphony Seat

A Brookline widow is assured a seat at the seasonal concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra through the thoughtfulness of a Lynn shoe machinery expert who provided in his will that she be given the use of his chair on Saturday evenings, C-31, first balcony, right.

Mrs. Helen Field Parker was the beneficiary of the unusual bequest under terms of the will of Fred M. Woodward, 74, formerly of Sachem ter.

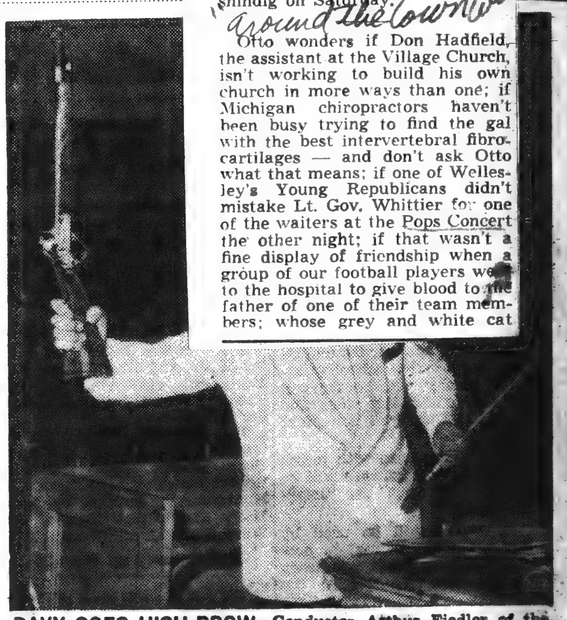
The will was recorded in Essex Probate Court.

Independent
Circ. 185,401

New England Newsclip Ag
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchm
Sun (e)
ATTLEBORO, M
New England Newsclip A
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchm
News-Times (
DANBURY, Co
Independent
Circ. 15,916
9 1955

around the towns

Otto wonders if Don Hadfield, the assistant at the Village Church, isn't working to build his own church in more ways than one; if Michigan chiropractors haven't been busy trying to find the gal with the best intervertebral fibrocartilages — and don't ask Otto what that means; if one of Wellesley's Young Republicans didn't mistake Lt. Gov. Whittier for one of the waiters at the Pops Concert the other night; if that wasn't a fine display of friendship when a group of our football players went to the hospital to give blood to the father of one of their team members; whose grey and white cat



DAVY GOES HIGH-BROW—Conductor Arthur Fiedler of the Boston Pops Orchestra goes Davy Crockett to amuse his audience at Boston's Symphony Hall. Suitably equipped with a coonskin cap and toy "shootin' arn," Fiedler is shown directing with gusto a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

[84]

New England Newsclip Agency Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● Richmond 2-7100

Enterprise
MAYNARD, Mass.
Weekly Ind. Rep
Comb. Circ. 7,5[illegible]

New England Newsclip Agency
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-7100

Beacon
MAYNARD
Weekly In
Circ. 1,887

Students Go to "Pops"

MAYNARD — A group of Junior High School students attended the Boston Pops concert in Symphony Hall, on Friday evening, June 3.

Students attending were: Constance Lowell, Nancy Charpenteur, Barbara Littig, Karen Grandell, Karen Keto, Brenda Mariani, Alexandra Engelhardt, Leigh Robinson, Sally Boeske, Elizabeth Fouratt, Judith Manning, Elaine Joyal, Audrey Malcolm, Barbara Harrington, Joan Nyholm, Maryelln Nordberg, Judith Rutkowski, Judith Byrnes, Mary Connerney, Denise Murphy, Sally Chapman, Jesselyn Piecewicz, Sandra Koski, Joan Manning, Dennis Lombard, David Holt, Roger MacGlashing, John White, Thomas French, Walter Crowther, James Brooks, Edward Mullin, Leo Mullin, John Malcolm, John Gunn, Richard Iannitelli, Charles Wilson, and Stephen Carlton. Chaperones included: Mrs. Grace Tucker, Mrs. Walter Boeske, Mr. Stephen Clarke, and Mr. Charles Garabedian.

Society

[illegible] committee, superintendent of [illegible] high school faculty and school personnel. After the dinner, which was catered by the Yankee Chef, the Class Night exercises took place, midst fun and jollity.

James Duggan as King Jackpot and Arlene Gunn as Queen Mucha Moola, presented the class gifts to their classmates. They were assisted by the humor of the court jesters, Edward Penniman and Betty Boeske, in surprising the receivers with appropriate gifts which ranged from the sublime to the ridiculous. The class will was legally rendered by Donald Torppa and Jacqueline Vincent, and the future of the seniors was predicted with solemnity in the class prophecy, by Mark Waldron and Marie DiGeronimo.

The junior class president, Robert Ferreira announced the senior superlatives, which were received with pleasure and applause.

Following these activities, the seniors and their invited partners danced to the music of the Cavaliers, a 7-piece orchestra from Nashua, N. H.

On Sunday, June 12, at 3 o'clock, in the George Washington Auditorium, the graduation exercises, a happy occasion for relatives and friends of the graduates, will be held.

Preceding graduation, on Sunday morning, two Communion breakfasts will be served to the seniors. The graduates have been invited by the Holy Name Society of St. Bridget's Parish to breakfast at Twin Trees Cafe, following mass, and to breakfast at the home of Philip Wilson, after services at the Methodist church.

Class Awards

At a Maynard high school assembly in the George Washington Auditorium on Tuesday, many awards were made.

Worsley Fardy, Manual Arts instructor, was presented a Certificate of Achievement by the Massachusetts Industrial Education Society. This award was given to him because his students had received Awards of Merit for Outstanding Craftsmanship in the Project Fair at the spring convention on May 14. Two certi[illegible]

raduates vities On s Week

With Graduation 12th, In George um At 3 O'clock

[illegible]ates of award were made to [illegible]a Armbur in metalwork for [illegible]die-stock, and in woodwork [illegible]his cobbler's bench, and one [illegible]homas Duggan in woodwork [illegible]his TV chair. Since this an[illegible] competition is entered by [illegible]istrial arts classes from the [illegible]re state, the Maynard boys [illegible] deserving of praise for their [illegible] accomplishment in crafts[illegible]ship.

[illegible]aseball letters were presented [illegible]o Donald Torppa, James Dug[illegible], Peter Wilson, Lawrence [illegible]oks, Raymond Melanson, Rob [illegible] Kane, Philip Williams, David [illegible]tty, Richard Martino, John [illegible]levich, Richard Carleton, [illegible]nes Luker, Richard Jones and [illegible]ymond Weaving.

The members of the Girls' [illegible]ld Hockey team have elected Mary Ann Matson and Kathleen Spratt as co-captains for next fall.

Pops Concert

On Friday evening, June 3, a group of Junior high school students attended the Boston Pops Concert in Symphony hall, Boston.

Students attending were: Consance Lowell, Nancy Charpenteur, Barbara Littig, Karen Grandell, Karen Keto, Brenda Mariani, Alexandra Engelhardt, Leigh Robinson, Sally Boeske, Elizabeth Fouratt, Judith Manning, Elaine Joyal, Audrey Malcolm, Barbara Harrington, Joan Nyholm, Maryellen Nordberg, Judith Rutkowski, Judith Byrnes, Mary Connerney, Denise Murphy Sally Chapman, Jesselyn Piecewicz, Sandra Koski, Joan Manning, Dennis Lombard, David Holt, Roger MacGlashing, John White, Thomas French, Walter Crowther, James Brooks, Edward Mullin, Leo Mullin, John Malcolm, John Gunn, Richard Iannitelli, Charles Wilson and Stephen Carlton. Chaperones included: Mrs. Grace Tucker, Mrs. Walter Boeske, Stephen Clarke and Charles Garabedian.

Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

JUN 1 0 1955

A Lynn shoe machinery expert has willed a seat at the Boston Symphony to a Brookline woman. The document was filed in SALEM Probate Court. Fred M. Woodard of Sachem Ter., directed that Mrs. Helen F. Parker, a widow, be given "my seat at the seasonal concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra . . . for Saturday evenings." He made more than $20,000 in bequests to relatives and friends in the will.

[illegible]31 in the first balcony, ure[illegible] Saturday evenings." Sup[illegible] More than $20,000 in bec[illegible]tra[illegible] relatives and friends a[illegible]and [illegible]ded in the will, which [illegible]Irish [illegible]ed last Oct. 21 and [illegible]Thre[illegible] [illegible]inates the National S[illegible]tered [illegible] Bank of Boston as exe[illegible]aria[illegible] estimate of the value [illegible]Mav[illegible] te was given, and the [illegible]Killa[illegible] after specific bequests [illegible]apoli[illegible] [illegible]d to Mr. and Mrs. Ke[illegible]cess[illegible] rtson,, Sr, and famil[illegible]Suite[illegible] on, Md. "Mar[illegible] on t[illegible] The [illegible] ever [illegible]isehold [illegible]enneth [illegible] wife, [illegible]both of Towson, Md.

The Lynn man, who resided at 17 Sachem terrace, ordered that his Knight Templar regalia be presented to the Olivet commandery of this city.

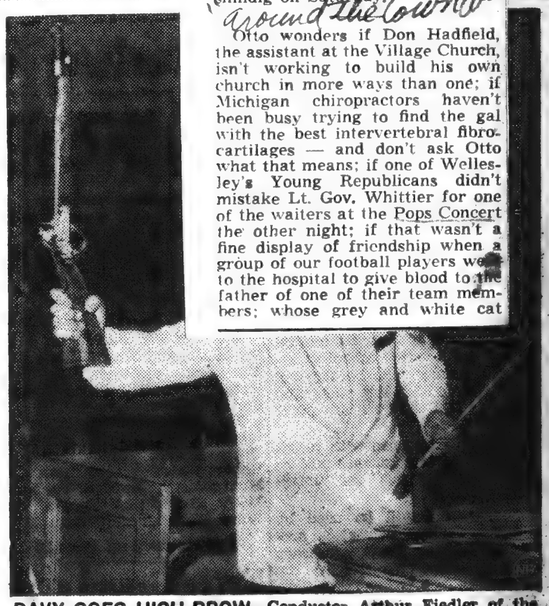
Residue of his property was bequeathed to Mr. and Mrs. Robertson, Kenneth Robertson, Jr., Marlene Robertson, and Linda Robertson, all of Towson.

New England Newsclip Agency
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-7100

Sun (e)
ATTLEBORO, M[illegible]

New England Newsclip Agency
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-7100

News-Times (e)
DANBURY, Co[illegible]
Independent
Circ. 15,916
[illegible] 9 1955



DAVY GOES HIGH-BROW—Conductor Arthur Fiedler of the Boston Pops Orchestra goes Davy Crockett to amuse his audience at Boston's Symphony Hall. Suitably equipped with a coonskin cap and toy "shootin' arn," Fiedler is shown directing with gusto a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593
JUN 9 1955

Next Week

ARMANDO GHITALLA, virtuoso trumpeter of the Boston Pops, will be featured at "Old Timers' Night Saturday, June 18.

[illegible]Davy Crockett" shoes. Coonskin hats have touched off the biggest run on raccoons since the giddy 1920's; coon tails once selling for 25 cents a pound have sky-rocketed to 5 bucks a pound. In some stores, Davy Crockett accounts for 10% of all children's wear (even little girls' underclothes are as worn by Crockett). In Beverly Hills, startled Furrier Al Teitelbaum told Time correspondent Ezra Goodman that a movie matron had handed him a mink stole and ordered it cut into "coonskin" caps for her two sons. Yessir, it looks like Davy Crockett is even bigger than Mickey Mouse.

Well, this is the big weekend for the kiddies and also for the grown-ups. Tomorrow night at Morton Field will be unveiled the greatest, the most stupendous, the most lavish carnival ever set up to fascinate and entertain the public. And on Saturday the festivities will be in full blast all afternoon and until close to midnight. There will be the usual midway with its opportunities for fun and frolic. There will be pony rides, ferris wheel, merry-go-round, games of fortune and hundreds of other exciting things to make the affair merry. It's the annual Legion Carnival so Hurry, Hurry, Hurry. Step down and see JoJo, the dog-faced boy. He walks, he talks, he rides a bicycle. He crawls upon his belly like a reptile. At the tender age of seven he devoured both his mother and his father, thereby rendering himself an orphan. Yessir, you can't afford to miss the great annual jamboree at Morton Field tomorrow night and Saturday afternoon and evening. A brand new Plymouth Sedan will be given away at the close of the shindig on Saturday.

Around the Town

Otto wonders if Don Hadfield, the assistant at the Village Church, isn't working to build his own church in more ways than one; if Michigan chiropractors haven't been busy trying to find the gal with the best intervertebral fibrocartilages — and don't ask Otto what that means; if one of Wellesley's Young Republicans didn't mistake Lt. Gov. Whittier for one of the waiters at the Pops Concert the other night; if that wasn't a fine display of friendship when a group of our football players we[illegible] to the hospital to give blood to the father of one of their team members; whose grey and white cat

[84]

New England Newsclip Agency Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● Richm
Enterpris
MAYNARD, Mass.
Weekly In. Rep
Comb. Circ. 7,28

New England Newsclip Ag
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● Richm
Beacon
MAYNARD
Weekly Ind
Circ. 1,887

Students Go to "Pops"

MAYNARD — A group of Junior High School students attended the Boston Pops concert in Symphony Hall, on Friday evening, June 3.

Students attending were: Constance Lowell, Nancy Charpenteur, Barbara Littig, Karen Grandell, Karen Keto, Brenda Mariani, Alexandra Engelhardt, Leigh Robinson, Sally Boeske, Elizabeth Fouratt, Judith Manning, Elaine Joyal, Audrey Malcolm, Barbara Harrington, Joan Nyholm, Maryelln Nordberg, Judith Rutkowski, Judith Byrnes, Mary Connerney, Denise Murphy, Sally Chapman, Jesselyn Piecewicz, Sandra Koski, Joan Manning, Dennis Lombard, David Holt, Roger MacGlashing, John White, Thomas French, Walter Crowther, James Brooks, Edward Mullin, Leo Mullin, John Malcolm, John Gunn, Richard Iannitelli, Charles Wilson, and Stephen Carlton. Chaperones included: Mrs. Grace Tucker, Mrs. Walter Boeske, Mr. Stephen Clarke, and Mr. Charles Garabedian.

mittee, superintendent of schools, high school faculty and school personnel. After the dinner, which was catered by the Yankee Chef, the Class Night exercises took place, midst fun and jollity.

James Duggan as King Jackpot and Arlene Gunn as Queen Mucha Moola, presented the class gifts to their classmates. They were assisted by the humor of the court jesters, Edward Penniman and Betty Boeske, in surprising the receivers with appropriate gifts which ranged from the sublime to the ridiculous. The class will was legally rendered by Donald Torppa and Jacqueline Vincent, and the future of the seniors was predicted with solemnity in the class prophecy, by Mark Waldron and Marie DiGeronimo.

The junior class president, Robert Ferreira announced the senior superlatives, which were received with pleasure and applause.

Following these activities, the seniors and their invited partners danced to the music of the Cavaliers, a 7-piece orchestra from Nashua, N. H.

On Sunday, June 12, at 3 o'clock, in the George Washington Auditorium, the graduation exercises, a happy occasion for relatives and friends of the graduates, will be held.

Preceding graduation, on Sunday morning, two Communion breakfasts will be served to the seniors. The graduates have been invited by the Holy Name Society of St. Bridget's Parish to breakfast at Twin Trees Cafe, following mass, and to breakfast at the home of Philip Wilson, after services at the Methodist church.

Class Awards

At a Maynard high school assembly in the George Washington Auditorium on Tuesday, many awards were made.

Worsley Fardy, Manual Arts instructor, was presented a Certificate of Achievement by the Massachusetts Industrial Education Society. This award was given to him because his students had received Awards of Merit for Outstanding Craftsmanship in the Project Fair at the spring convention on May 14. Two cer-

raduates vities On s Week

With Graduation 12th, In George um At 3 O'clock

ates of award were made to a Armbur in metalwork for die-stock, and in woodwork his cobbler's bench, and one homas Duggan in woodwork his TV chair. Since this an- competition is entered by istrial arts classes from the re state, the Maynard boys deserving of praise for their accomplishment in crafts- ship.

aseball letters were presento Donald Torppa, James Dug- Peter Wilson, Lawrence oks, Raymond Melanson, Rob Kane, Philip Williams, David tty, Richard Martino, John evich, Richard Carleton, hes Luker, Richard Jones and ymond Weaving.

The members of the Girls' ld Hockey team have elected Mary Ann Matson and Kathleen Spratt as co-captains for next fall.

Pops Concert

On Friday evening, June 3, a group of Junior high school students attended the Boston Pops Concert in Symphony hall, Boston.

Students attending were: Consance Lowell, Nancy Charpenteur, Barbara Littig, Karen Grandell, Karen Keto, Brenda Mariani, Alexandra Engelhardt, Leigh Robinson, Sally Boeske, Elizabeth Fouratt, Judith Manning, Elaine Joyal, Audrey Malcolm, Barbara Harrington, Joan Nyholm, Maryellen Nordberg, Judith Rutkowski, Judith Byrnes, Mary Connerney, Denise Murphy Sally Chapman, Jesselyn Piecewicz, Sandra Koski, Joan Manning, Dennis Lombard, David Holt, Roger MacGlashing, John White, Thomas French, Walter Crowther, James Brooks, Edward Mullin, Leo Mullin, John Malcolm, John Gunn, Richard Iannitelli, Charles Wilson and Stephen Carlton. Chaperones included: Mrs. Grace Tucker, Mrs. Walter Boeske, Stephen Clarke and Charles Garabedian.

FURNITURE COMPANY
90 Canal St., Boston

Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559
JUN 10 1955

Lynn Man Wills Symphony Seat to Brookline Woman

SALEM, June 9—A seat at the Boston Symphony is the gift of a Brookline woman in the will of a Lynn shoe machinery expert which was recorded in Essex County registry of probate today.

Fred M. Woodard, 74, Sachem Terrace, Lynn, directed that Mrs. Helen Field Parker, Brookline, a widow, be given "my seat at the seasonal concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, being seat C-31 in the first balcony, right, for Saturday evenings."

More than $20,000 in bequests to relatives and friends are included in the will, which was signed last Oct. 21 and which nominates the National Shawmut Bank of Boston as executor. No estimate of the value of the estate was given, and the residue after specific bequests is directed to Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Robertson, Sr, and family of Towson, Md.

Household to Kenneth his wife, on, both of Robertson, Mrs. Irene Robertson, Towson, Md.

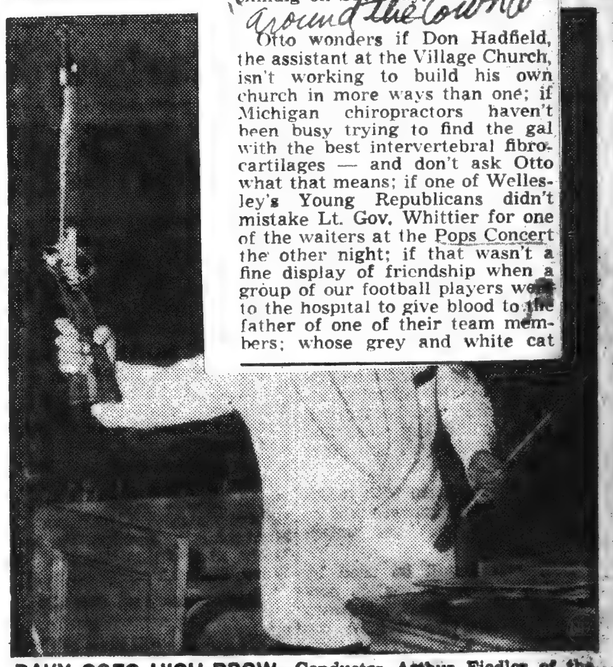
The Lynn man, who resided at 17 Sachem terrace, ordered that his Knight Templar regalia be presented to the Olivet commandery of this city.

Residue of his property was bequeathed to Mr. and Mrs. Robertson, Kenneth Robertson, Jr., Marlene Robertson, and Linda Robertson, all of Towson.

New England Newsclip Ag
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● Richm
Sun (e)
ATTLEBORO, M

New England Newsclip A
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchm
News-Times (
DANBURY, Co
Independent
Circ. 15,916
9 1955



DAVY GOES HIGH-BROW—Conductor Arthur Fiedler of the Boston Pops Orchestra goes Davy Crockett to amuse his audience at Boston's Symphony Hall. Suitably equipped with a coonskin cap and toy "shootin' arn," Fiedler is shown directing with gusto a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

Weekly Republican
Circ. 5614
JUN 9 1955

There's a lot of activity going on in the business areas these days.

Next to Howard Johnson's eating emporium on Central street a new business block is being built by Leo Madden. Rumor has it that across the street there will be a couple more stores in the Odd Fellows Block. Down in Newton Lower Falls square there's a deal in the making and a new building to go up. A big house is being denuded at the corner of Cedar street and the Worcester highway to make room for another business block. What with the bank moving out of its quarters next to the postoffice and going across the street in July, there will probably be some remodelling of the old bank quarters. Yessir, it's a busy building season.

The Davy Crockett craze has swept the country like a raging prairie fire. According to an article in Time magazine, the U.S. retailers haven't had a boom like this since Hopalong Cassidy clattered into the corral five years ago. Seems like anything and everything that bears the Davy Crockett insignia will sell like the proverbial hot cakes. A Boston shoe manufacturer had thousands of unwanted moccasins in stock for years, then promptly sold them all by calling them "Davy Crockett" shoes. Coonskin hats have touched off the biggest run on raccoons since the giddy 1920's; coon tails once selling for 25 cents a pound have sky-rocketed to 5 bucks a pound. In some stores, Davy Crockett accounts for 10% of all children's wear (even little girls' underclothes are as worn by Crockett). In Beverly Hills, startled Furrier Al Teitelbaum told Time correspondent Ezra Goodman that a movie matron had handed him a mink stole and ordered it cut into "coonskin" caps for her two sons. Yessir, it looks like Davy Crockett is even bigger than Mickey Mouse.

Well, this is the big weekend for the kiddies and also for the grownups. Tomorrow night at Morton Field will be unveiled the greatest, the most stupendous, the most lavish carnival ever set up to fascinate and entertain the public. And on Saturday the festivities will be in full blast all afternoon and until close to midnight. There will be the usual midway with its opportunities for fun and frolic. There will be pony rides, ferris wheel, merry-go-round, games of fortune and hundreds of other exciting things to make the affair merry. It's the annual Legion Carnival so Hurry, Hurry, Hurry. Step down and see JoJo, the dog-faced boy. He walks, he talks, he rides a bicycle. He crawls upon his belly like a reptile. At the tender age of seven he devoured both his mother and his father, thereby rendering himself an orphan. Yessir, you can't afford to miss the great annual jamboree at Morton Field tomorrow night and Saturday afternoon and evening. A brand new Plymouth Sedan will be given away at the close of the shindig on Saturday.

Around the Town with Otto

Otto wonders if Don Hadfield, the assistant at the Village Church, isn't working to build his own church in more ways than one; if Michigan chiropractors haven't been busy trying to find the gal with the best intervertebral fibrocartilages — and don't ask Otto what that means; if one of Wellesley's Young Republicans didn't mistake Lt. Gov. Whittier for one of the waiters at the Pops Concert the other night; if that wasn't a fine display of friendship when a group of our football players went to the hospital to give blood to the father of one of their team members; whose grey and white cat

[84]

New England Newsclip Agency Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6
Enterprise
MAYNARD, Mass.
Weekly
Comb. Circ.

New England Newsclip Agency
Box 2078, Boston 6
Beacon
MAYNARD
Weekly
Circ. 1,887

Students Go to "Pops"

MAYNARD — A group of Junior High School students attended the Boston Pops concert in Symphony Hall, on Friday evening, June 3.

Students attending were: Constance Lowell, Nancy Charpenteur, Barbara Littig, Karen Grandell, Karen Keto, Brenda Mariani, Alexandra Engelhardt, Leigh Robinson, Sally Boeske, Elizabeth Fouratt, Judith Manning, Elaine Joyal, Audrey Malcolm, Barbara Harrington, Joan Nyholm, Maryelln Nordberg, Judith Rutkowski, Judith Byrnes, Mary Connerney, Denise Murphy, Sally Chapman, Jesselyn Piecewicz, Sandra Koski, Joan Manning, Dennis Lombard, David Holt, Roger MacGlashing, John White, Thomas French, Walter Crowther, James Brooks, Edward Mullin, Leo Mullin, John Malcolm, John Gunn, Richard Iannitelli, Charles Wilson, and Stephen Carlton. Chaperones included: Mrs. Grace Tucker, Mrs. Walter Boeske, Mr. Stephen Clarke, and Mr. Charles Garabedian.

mittee, superintendent of schools, high school faculty and school personnel. After the dinner, which was catered by the Yankee Chef, the Class Night exercises took place, midst fun and jollity.

James Duggan as King Jackpot and Arlene Gunn as Queen Mucha Moola, presented the class gifts to their classmates. They were assisted by the humor of the court jesters, Edward Penniman and Betty Boeske, in surprising the receivers with appropriate gifts which ranged from the sublime to the ridiculous. The class will was legally rendered by Donald Torppa and Jacqueline Vincent, and the future of the seniors was predicted with solemnity in the class prophecy, by Mark Waldron and Marie DiGeronimo.

The junior class president, Robert Ferreira announced the senior superlatives, which were received with pleasure and applause.

Following these activities, the seniors and their invited partners danced to the music of the Cavaliers, a 7-piece orchestra from Nashua, N. H.

On Sunday, June 12, at 3 o'clock, in the George Washington Auditorium, the graduation exercises, a happy occasion for relatives and friends of the graduates, will be held.

Preceding graduation, on Sunday morning, two Communion breakfasts will be served to the seniors. The graduates have been invited by the Holy Name Society of St. Bridget's Parish to breakfast at Twin Trees Cafe, following mass, and to breakfast at the home of Philip Wilson, after services at the Methodist church.

Class Awards

At a Maynard high school assembly in the George Washington Auditorium on Tuesday, many awards were made.

Worsley Fardy, Manual Arts instructor, was presented a Certificate of Achievement by the Massachusetts Industrial Education Society. This award was given to him because his students had received Awards of Merit for Outstanding Craftsmanship in the Project Fair at the spring convention on May 14. Two cer-

raduates vities On s Week

With Graduation 12th, In George um At 3 O'clock

ates of Award were made to a Armour in metalwork for die-stock, and in woodwork his cobbler's bench, and one Thomas Duggan in woodwork his TV chair. Since this an- competition is entered by ustrial arts classes from the re state, the Maynard boys deserving of praise for their accomplishment in craftsnship.

aseball letters were presento Donald Torppa, James Dug-, Peter Wilson, Lawrence oks, Raymond Melanson, Rob Kane, Philip Williams, David tty, Richard Martino, John levich, Richard Carleton, nes Luker, Richard Jones and ymond Weaving.

The members of the Girls' ld Hockey team have elected Mary Ann Matson and Kathleen Spratt as co-captains for next fall.

Pops Concert

On Friday evening, June 3, a group of Junior high school students attended the Boston Pops Concert in Symphony hall, Boston.

Students attending were: Consance Lowell, Nancy Charpenteur, Barbara Littig, Karen Grandell, Karen Keto, Brenda Mariani, Alexandra Engelhardt, Leigh Robinson, Sally Boeske, Elizabeth Fouratt, Judith Manning, Elaine Joyal, Audrey Malcolm, Barbara Harrington, Joan Nyholm, Maryellen Nordberg, Judith Rutkowski, Judith Byrnes, Mary Connerney, Denise Murphy Sally Chapman, Jesselyn Piecewicz, Sandra Koski, Joan Manning, Dennis Lombard, David Holt, Roger MacGlashing, John White, Thomas French, Walter Crowther, James Brooks, Edward Mullin, Leo Mullin, John Malcolm, John Gunn, Richard Iannitelli, Charles Wilson and Stephen Carlton. Chaperones included: Mrs. Grace Tucker, Mrs. Walter Boeske, Stephen Clarke and Charles Garabedian.

Independent
Circ. 397,884
JUN 16 1955

Her Legacy: Concert Seat

A seat for concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra was the unusual gift to a Brookline widow, Mrs. Helen Field Parker under terms of a will filed yesterday in Salem court.

Fred M. Woodward, 74, a Lynn shoe machinery salesman, directed "my seat, C31, in the first balcony, right, be given my friend" Mrs. Parker.

He left $20,000 to friends and relatives and the residue of his estate to Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Robertson, Sr., and their family, of Towson, Md. The estate was not valued.

The residue is directed to be divided equally between Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Robertson, Sr., and family of Towson, Md.

All of Woodard's household furniture was given to Kenneth Robertson, Sr., and his wife, Mrs. Irene Robertson, both of Towson, Md.

The Lynn man, who resided at 17 Sachem terrace, ordered that his Knight Templar regalia be presented to the Olivet commandery of this city.

Residue of his property was bequeathed to Mr. and Mrs. Robertson, Kenneth Robertson, Jr., Marlene Robertson, and Linda Robertson, all of Towson.

New England Newsclip Agency
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchm
Sun (e)
ATTLEBORO, M
New England Newsclip A
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchm
News-Times (
DANBURY, Co
Independent
Circ. 15,916
9 1955

Weekly Republican
Circ. 5614
JUN 9 1955

There's a lot of activity going on in the business areas these days.

Next to Howard Johnson's eating emporium on Central street a new business block is being built by Leo Madden. Rumor has it that across the street there will be a couple more stores in the Odd Fellows Block. Down in Newton Lower Falls square there's a deal in the making and a new building to go up. A big house is being denuded at the corner of Cedar street and the Worcester highway to make room for another business block. What with the bank moving out of its quarters next to the postoffice and going across the street in July, there will probably be some remodelling of the old bank quarters. Yessir, it's a busy building season.

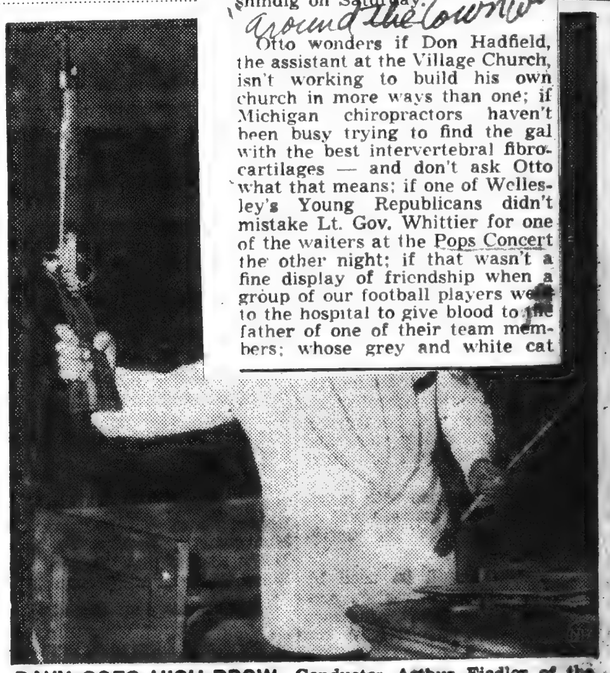
The Davy Crockett craze has swept the country like a raging prairie fire. According to an article in Time magazine, the U.S. retailers haven't had a boom like this since Hopalong Cassidy clattered into the corral five years ago. Seems like anything and everything that bears the Davy Crockett insignia will sell like the proverbial hot cakes. A Boston shoe manufacturer had thousands of unwanted moccasins in stock for years, then promptly sold them all by calling them "Davy Crockett" shoes. Coonskin hats have touched off the biggest run on raccoons since the giddy 1920's; coon tails once selling for 25 cents a pound have sky-rocketed to 5 bucks a pound. In some stores, Davy Crockett accounts for 10% of all children's wear (even little girls' underclothes are as worn by Crockett). In Beverly Hills, startled Furrier Al Teitelbaum told Time correspondent Ezra Goodman that a movie matron had handed him a mink stole and ordered it cut into "coonskin" caps for her two sons. Yessir, it looks like Davy Crockett is even bigger than Mickey Mouse.

Well, this is the big weekend for the kiddies and also for the grownups. Tomorrow night at Morton Field will be unveiled the greatest, the most stupendous, the most lavish carnival ever set up to fascinate and entertain the public. And on Saturday the festivities will be in full blast all afternoon and until close to midnight. There will be the usual midway with its opportunities for fun and frolic. There will be pony rides, ferris wheel, merry-go-round, games of fortune and hundreds of other exciting things to make the affair merry. It's the annual Legion Carnival so Hurry, Hurry, Hurry. Step down and see JoJo, the dog-faced boy. He walks, he talks, he rides a bicycle. He crawls upon his belly like a reptile. At the tender age of seven he devoured both his mother and his father, thereby rendering himself an orphan. Yessir, you can't afford to miss the great annual jamboree at Morton Field tomorrow night and Saturday afternoon and evening. A brand new Plymouth Sedan will be given away at the close of the shindig on Saturday.

around the town with Otto

Otto wonders if Don Hadfield, the assistant at the Village Church, isn't working to build his own church in more ways than one; if Michigan chiropractors haven't been busy trying to find the gal with the best intervertebral fibrocartilages — and don't ask Otto what that means; if one of Wellesley's Young Republicans didn't mistake Lt. Gov. Whittier for one of the waiters at the Pops Concert the other night; if that wasn't a fine display of friendship when a group of our football players went to the hospital to give blood to the father of one of their team members; whose grey and white cat has been camped on the old scribe's back doorstep for the past week; if there is anything that makes the younger generation seem so bad as having lost your membership in it; if the rap for drunken driving in South America isn't a $2,800 fine, 10 years in the clink, or both; if that guaranteed wage business isn't just another step toward Socialism; if it doesn't take a magician to get the rabbit out of the hat — but anyone can let the cat out of the bag; if the TV industry didn't turn out black and white sets at the rate of 11 million annually last year; if it isn't going to be very difficult if they ever get power steering in the back seat; if those aren't two lovely buildings that are going to be erected for Dana Hall and Pine Manor; if Richard wasn't muscle-bound after his first soft-ball game; if, the way some folks enter a business thinking they will make money by leaps and bounds, you wouldn't think they were going into the frog business; if some boy didn't ask his father if, in the old days, the Knights didn't fight with battle-axes and his father retorted that the married ones did; if all people don't smile in the same language; if the best job security a girl can have isn't her own filing system; if one advantage of being bald isn't that when you expect callers all you have to do is straighten your tie; if the music in one of the Boston joints wasn't so bad that when a waiter dropped a tray of dishes the patrons got up and started dancing; if Lorna wasn't just a wee bit nervous on Monday night; if an upstanding citizen makes no difference to a banana peel; if the person who found Jim Curran's No. 9 golf iron wouldn't like to return it to him, and if it isn't time for the old maestro to begin charting his August wanderings.

OTTO



DAVY GOES HIGH-BROW—Conductor Arthur Fiedler of the Boston Pops Orchestra goes Davy Crockett to amuse his audience at Boston's Symphony Hall. Suitably equipped with a coonskin cap and toy "shootin' arn," Fiedler is shown directing with gusto a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

New England Newsclip Agency Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● R[illegible]
Enterprise
MAYNARD, [illegible]
Weekly In[illegible] Rep
Comb. Circ [illegible]

New England Newsclip Ag[illegible]
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● Pl[illegible]
Beacon
MAYNARD
Weekly In[illegible]
Circ. 1,887
JUN 9 1955

Students Go to "Pops"

MAYNARD — A group of Junior High School students attended the Boston Pops concert in Symphony Hall, on Friday evening, June 3.

. Students attending were: Constance Lowell, Nancy Charpenteur, Barbara Littig, Karen Grandell, Karen Keto, Brenda Mariani, Alexandra Engelhardt, Leigh Robinson, Sally Boeske, Elizabeth Fouratt, Judith Manning, Elaine Joyal, Audrey Malcolm, Barbara Harrington, Joan Nyholm, Maryelln Nordberg, Judith Rutkowski, Judith Byrnes, Mary Connerney, Denise Murphy, Sally Chapman, Jesselyn Piecewicz, Sandra Koski, Joan Manning, Dennis Lombard, David Holt, Roger MacGlashing, John White, Thomas French, Walter Crowther, James Brooks, Edward Mullin, Leo Mullin, John Malcolm, John Gunn, Richard Iannitelli, Charles Wilson, and Stephen Carlton. Chaperones included: Mrs. Grace Tucker, Mrs. Walter Boeske, Mr. Stephen Clarke, and Mr. Charles Garabedian.

mittee, superintendent of schools, high school faculty and school personnel. After the dinner, which was catered by the Yankee Chef, the Class Night exercises took place, midst fun and jollity.

James Duggan as King Jackpot and Arlene Gunn as Queen Mucha Moola, presented the class gifts to their classmates. They were assisted by the humor of the court jesters, Edward Penniman and Betty Boeske, in surprising the receivers with appropriate gifts which ranged from the sublime to the ridiculous. The class will was legally rendered by Donald Torppa and Jacqueline Vincent, and the future of the seniors was predicted with solemnity in the class prophecy, by Mark Waldron and Marie DiGeronimo.

The junior class president, Robert Ferreira announced the senior superlatives, which were received with pleasure and applause.

Following these activities, the seniors and their invited partners danced to the music of the Cavaliers, a 7-piece orchestra from Nashua, N. H.

On Sunday, June 12, at 3 o'clock, in the George Washington Auditorium, the graduation exercises, a happy occasion for relatives and friends of the graduates, will be held.

Preceding graduation, on Sunday morning, two Communion breakfasts will be served to the seniors. The graduates have been invited by the Holy Name Society of St. Bridget's Parish to breakfast at Twin Trees Cafe, following mass, and to breakfast at the home of Philip Wilson, after services at the Methodist church.

Class Awards

At a Maynard high school assembly in the George Washington Auditorium on Tuesday, many awards were made.

Worsley Fardy, Manual Arts instructor, was presented a Certificate of Achievement by the Massachusetts Industrial Education Society. This award was given to him because his students had received Awards of Merit for Outstanding Craftsmanship in the Project Fair at the spring convention on May 14. Two cer-

raduates vities On s Week

With Graduation 12th, In George um At 3 O'clock

ates of award were made to a Armbur in metalwork for die-stock, and in woodwork his cobbler's bench, and one Thomas Duggan in woodwork his TV chair. Since this an- competition is entered by ustrial arts classes from the re state, the Maynard boys deserving of praise for their accomplishment in crafts- nship.

aseball letters were presento Donald Torppa, James Dug- Peter Wilson, Lawrence oks, Raymond Melanson, Rob Kane, Philip Williams, David tty, Richard Martino, John levich, Richard Carleton, es Luker, Richard Jones and ymond Weaving.

The members of the Girls' ld Hockey team have elected Mary Ann Matson and Kathleen Spratt as co-captains for next fall.

Pops Concert

On Friday evening, June 3, a group of Junior high school students attended the Boston Pops Concert in Symphony hall, Boston.

Students attending were: Consance Lowell, Nancy Charpenteur, Barbara Littig, Karen Grandell, Karen Keto, Brenda Mariani, Alexandra Engelhardt, Leigh Robinson, Sally Boeske, Elizabeth Fouratt, Judith Manning, Elaine Joyal, Audrey Malcolm, Barbara Harrington, Joan Nyholm, Maryellen Nordberg, Judith Rutkowski, Judith Byrnes, Mary Connerney, Denise Murphy Sally Chapman, Jesselyn Piecewicz, Sandra Koski, Joan Manning, Dennis Lombard, David Holt, Roger MacGlashing, John White, Thomas French, Walter Crowther, James Brooks, Edward Mullin, Leo Mullin, John Malcolm, John Gunn, Richard Iannitelli, Charles Wilson and Stephen Carlton. Chaperones included: Mrs. Grace Tucker, Mrs. Walter Boeske, Stephen Clarke and Charles Garabedian.

Independent
Circ. 23,044
JUN 10 1955

Symphony Concert Seat Among Gifts Included in Will

A seat at concerts of the Boston Symphony orchestra is a gift to a Brookline woman in the will of a Lynn shoe machinery expert, which was recorded in the registry of probate here yesterday.

Fred M. Woodard, 74, Sachem terrace, Lynn, who died May 27, directs that a friend, Mrs. Helen Field Parker, Brookline, a widow, be given "my seat at the seasonal concerts of the Boston Symphony orchestra, being Seat C-31 in the first balcony, right, for Saturday evenings."

More than $20,000 in bequests to relatives and friends are included in the testament, which was signed last Oct. 21 and which nominates the National Shawmut bank of Boston as executor. No estimate of the value of the estate was given. Residue is directed to Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Robertson, Sr., and family of Towson, Md.

[illegible] seat, right," [illegible]osition Wood- [illegible] $20,000 [illegible]nd relathe estate [illegible] Robertamily, of [illegible]ate of the [illegible] legacy was de[illegible]ker, and a like [illegible]d to Kenneth [illegible]f Towson, Md. Robe[illegible] All of Woodard's household furniture was given to Kenneth Robertson, Sr., and his wife, Mrs. Irene Robertson, both of Towson, Md.

The Lynn man, who resided at 17 Sachem terrace, ordered that his Knight Templar regalia be presented to the Olivet commandery of this city.

Residue of his property was bequeathed to Mr. and Mrs. Robertson, Kenneth Robertson, Jr., Marlene Robertson, and Linda Robertson, all of Towson.

[illegible]STON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,000 Free
JUN 9 1955

Pops Concerts Programs Slated For Week-end

Arthur Fiedler has returned to his place to conduct the current week's series of Pops Concerts in Symphony Hall.

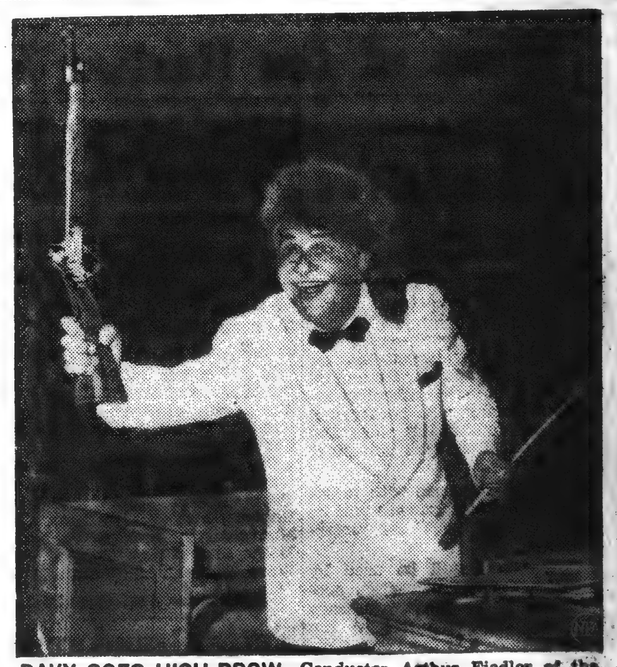
Michael Bowles will make his appearance as guest conductor on Friday evening. Thursday and Saturday nights have been completely engaged but Friday evening's program will be open to the public.

The program for Friday evening is as follows:

When Johnny Comes Marching Home Again (American Salute) by Gilmore-Gould; Overture to "Beautiful Galatea" by Suppe; Perpetuum Mobile by Strauss; In the Antrim Hills and Irish Fair Day from "An Irish Symphony" by Harty; Three Dances from "The Bartered Bride" by Smetana; Two arias with orchestra, Eileen Mavourneen from "The Lily of Killarney" by Benedict and Neapolitan Love Song from "Princess Pat" by Herbert; Eire Suite by Anderson; Overture to "Maritana" by Wallace; Molly on the Shore by Grainger and The Stars and Stripes Forever by Sousa.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Sun (e)
ATTLEBORO, Mass.
[illegible]Republican

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
News-Times (e)
DANBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 15,916
[illegible]9 1955



DAVY GOES HIGH-BROW—Conductor Arthur Fiedler of the Boston Pops Orchestra goes Davy Crockett to amuse his audience at Boston's Symphony Hall. Suitably equipped with a coonskin cap and toy "shootin' arn," Fiedler is shown directing with gusto a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

[84]

New England Newsclip Agency Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ... R...
Enterprise
MAYNARD, M...
Weekly In... Rep
Comb. Circ...

New England Newsclip Agency Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ... RI...
Beacon
MAYNARD
Weekly In...
Circ. 1,887

Students Go to "Pops"

MAYNARD — A group of Junior High School students attended the Boston Pops concert in Symphony Hall, on Friday evening, June 3.

Students attending were: Constance Lowell, Nancy Charpenteur, Barbara Littig, Karen Grandell, Karen Keto, Brenda Mariani, Alexandra Engelhardt, Leigh Robinson, Sally Boeske, Elizabeth Fouratt, Judith Manning, Elaine Joyal, Audrey Malcolm, Barbara Harrington, Joan Nyholm, Maryelln Nordberg, Judith Rutkowski, Judith Byrnes, Mary Connerney, Denise Murphy, Sally Chapman, Jesselyn Piecewicz, Sandra Koski, Joan Manning, Dennis Lombard, David Holt, Roger MacGlashing, John White, Thomas French, Walter Crowther, James Brooks, Edward Mullin, Leo Mullin, John Malcolm, John Gunn, Richard Iannitelli, Charles Wilson, and Stephen Carlton. Chaperones included: Mrs. Grace Tucker, Mrs. Walter Boeske, Mr. Stephen Clarke, and Mr. Charles Garabedian.

...mittee, ... high school faculty and school personnel. After the dinner, which was catered by the Yankee Chef, the Class Night exercises took place, midst fun and jollity.

James Duggan as King Jackpot and Arlene Gunn as Queen Mucha Moola, presented the class gifts to their classmates. They were assisted by the humor of the court jesters, Edward Penniman and Betty Boeske, in surprising the receivers with appropriate gifts which ranged from the sublime to the ridiculous. The class will was legally rendered by Donald Torppa and Jacqueline Vincent, and the future of the seniors was predicted with solemnity in the class prophecy, by Mark Waldron and Marie DiGeronimo.

The junior class president, Robert Ferreira announced the senior superlatives, which were received with pleasure and applause.

Following these activities, the seniors and their invited partners danced to the music of the Cavaliers, a 7-piece orchestra from Nashua, N. H.

On Sunday, June 12, at 3 o'clock, in the George Washington Auditorium, the graduation exercises, a happy occasion for relatives and friends of the graduates, will be held.

Preceding graduation, on Sunday morning, two Communion breakfasts will be served to the seniors. The graduates have been invited by the Holy Name Society of St. Bridget's Parish to breakfast at Twin Trees Cafe, following mass, and to breakfast at the home of Philip Wilson, after services at the Methodist church.

Class Awards

At a Maynard high school assembly in the George Washington Auditorium on Tuesday, many awards were made.

Worsley Fardy, Manual Arts instructor, was presented a Certificate of Achievement by the Massachusetts Industrial Education Society. This award was given to him because his students had received Awards of Merit for Outstanding Craftsmanship in the Project Fair at the spring convention on May 14. Two cer-

...raduates ...vities On ...s Week

...With Graduation ...12th, In George ...um At 3 O'clock

...ates of award were made to ...a Armbur in metalwork for ...die-stock, and in woodwork ...his cobbler's bench, and one ...Thomas Duggan in woodwork ...his TV chair. Since this an... competition is entered by ...ustrial arts classes from the ...re state, the Maynard boys ... deserving of praise for their ... accomplishment in crafts...nship.

...aseball letters were present...o Donald Torppa, James Dug..., Peter Wilson, Lawrence ...ooks, Raymond Melanson, Rob ...Kane, Philip Williams, David ...tty, Richard Martino, John ...levich, Richard Carleton, ...nes Luker, Richard Jones and ...ymond Weaving.

The members of the Girls' ...ld Hockey team have elected Mary Ann Matson and Kathleen Spratt as co-captains for next fall.

Pops Concert

On Friday evening, June 3, a group of Junior high school students attended the Boston Pops Concert in Symphony hall, Boston.

Students attending were: Consance Lowell, Nancy Charpenteur, Barbara Littig, Karen Grandell, Karen Keto, Brenda Mariani, Alexandra Engelhardt, Leigh Robinson, Sally Boeske, Elizabeth Fouratt, Judith Manning, Elaine Joyal, Audrey Malcolm, Barbara Harrington, Joan Nyholm, Maryellen Nordberg, Judith Rutkowski, Judith Byrnes, Mary Connerney, Denise Murphy Sally Chapman, Jesselyn Piecewicz, Sandra Koski, Joan Manning, Dennis Lombard, David Holt, Roger MacGlashing, John White, Thomas French, Walter Crowther, James Brooks, Edward Mullin, Leo Mullin, John Malcolm, John Gunn, Richard Iannitelli, Charles Wilson and Stephen Carlton. Chaperones included: Mrs. Grace Tucker, Mrs. Walter Boeske, Stephen Clarke and Charles Garabedian.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ... Richmond 2-4200
American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 185,401
JUN 9 1955

Symphony Seat Left To Widow

A Brookline widow receives a free seat to seasonal concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the terms of the will of a Lynn shoe machinery salesman, filed today in Salem Probate Court.

The will directs that "my seat, C31 in the first balcony, right," be given to my friend, Mrs. Helen Field Parker, in the disposition of the estate of Fred M. Woodard, 74, of Lynn.

The will left more than $20,000 in bequests to friends and relatives and the residue of the estate to Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Robertson, Sr., and their family, of Towson, Md. No estimate of the value of the estate was given.

...tain brass candlesticks.

Another $5000 legacy was devised to Mrs. Parker, and a like sum was allotted to Kenneth Robertson, Jr., of Towson, Md. All of Woodard's household furniture was given to Kenneth Robertson, Sr., and his wife, Mrs. Irene Robertson, both of Towson, Md.

The Lynn man, who resided at 17 Sachem terrace, ordered that his Knight Templar regalia be presented to the Olivet commandery of this city.

Residue of his property was bequeathed to Mr. and Mrs. Robertson, Kenneth Robertson, Jr., Marlene Robertson, and Linda Robertson, all of Towson.

...BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,000 Free
JUN 9 1955

Pops Concerts Programs Slated For Week-end

Arthur Fiedler has ... to his place to conduct the ... rent week's series of Pops Concerts in Symphony Hall.

Michael Bowles will make his appearance as guest conductor on ...day evening. Thursday and ... nights have been con... ev... to...

...Extra Grand and Trial Jurors Are Drawn for Court

...Continued on Page 24

Mr. Davies was presented a gift of money from the young people of the program, sponsored by the Patterson Recreation committee. The committee announced that it is hoped to repeat it again another year, as so successful that it was.

OBSERVES NINTH BIRTHDAY

Miss Patricia Bubenicek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Bubenicek, Sr., celebrated her ninth birthday recently with a party at her home.

The following school friends attended: Linda Gronke, Pamela and Robert Dolan, Kathy Bubenicek, Pauline Pehlck, Barbara Scaperotti, Molly and Kathy Dwyer, Janet Montgomery, Sandra Scaperotti, Ward, Deborah and Pamela Apple-

PATTERSON

The Patterson Parent-Teacher association will sponsor its annual Spring Fair at the school Saturday. The booths will open at noon and hay rides and pony rides for children will start at 1 o'clock.

There will be games with prizes for children. Refreshments will be available throughout the afternoon.

Money raised will be used by the P.T.A. for the recreation program and to purchase necessary items for children's use in the school.

MARRIED 50 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Harry T. Burgess of Main street recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary with "open house" arranged for them by their granddaughter, Miss

News of t... P.T.A. Fair Will Be Held On Saturday

ATTLE...
Independent Re...
Circ. 9,613
JUN 1 ... 1955

DAVY GOES HIGH-BROW—Conductor Arthur F... of the Boston Pops Orchestra goes Davy Crockett to amus... audience at Boston's Symphony Hall. ... equipped wi... coonskin cap and toy "shootin' arn," Fiedler is shown directing with gusto a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

[84]

New England Newspaper Agency Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6
Enterprise
MAYNARD, Mass.
Weekly
Comb. Circ.

New England Newspaper Agency
Box 2078, Boston 6
Beacon
MAYNARD
Weekly
Circ. 1,887

Students Go to "Pops"

MAYNARD — A group of Junior High School students attended the Boston Pops concert in Symphony Hall, on Friday evening, June 3.

Students attending were: Constance Lowell, Nancy Charpenteur, Barbara Littig, Karen Grandell, Karen Keto, Brenda Mariani, Alexandra Engelhardt, Leigh Robinson, Sally Boeske, Elizabeth Fouratt, Judith Manning, Elaine Joyal, Audrey Malcolm, Barbara Harrington, Joan Nyholm, Maryelln Nordberg, Judith Rutkowski, Judith Byrnes, Mary Connerney, Denise Murphy, Sally Chapman, Jesselyn Piecewicz, Sandra Koski, Joan Manning, Dennis Lombard, David Holt, Roger MacGlashing, John White, Thomas French, Walter Crowther, James Brooks, Edward Mullin, Leo Mullin, John Malcolm, John Gunn, Pichard Iannitelli, Charles Wilson, and Stephen Carlton. Chaperones included: Mrs. Grace Tucker, Mrs. Walter Boeske, Mr. Stephen Clarke, and Mr. Charles Garabedian.

...mittee, superintendent of ... high school faculty and school personnel. After the dinner, which was catered by the Yankee Chef, the Class Night exercises took place, midst fun and jollity.

James Duggan as King Jackpot and Arlene Gunn as Queen Mucha Moola, presented the class gifts to their classmates. They were assisted by the humor of the court jesters, Edward Penniman and Betty Boeske, in surprising the receivers with appropriate gifts which ranged from the sublime to the ridiculous. The class will was legally rendered by Donald Torppa and Jacqueline Vincent, and the future of the seniors was predicted with solemnity in the class prophecy, by Mark Waldron and Marie DiGeronimo.

The junior class president, Robert Ferreira announced the senior superlatives, which were received with pleasure and applause.

Following these activities, the seniors and their invited partners danced to the music of the Cavaliers, a 7-piece orchestra from Nashua, N. H.

On Sunday, June 12, at 3 o'clock, in the George Washington Auditorium, the graduation exercises, a happy occasion for relatives and friends of the graduates, will be held.

Preceding graduation, on Sunday morning, two Communion breakfasts will be served to the seniors. The graduates have been invited by the Holy Name Society of St. Bridget's Parish to breakfast at Twin Trees Cafe, following mass, and to breakfast at the home of Philip Wilson, after services at the Methodist church.

Class Awards

At a Maynard high school assembly in the George Washington Auditorium on Tuesday, many awards were made.

Worsley Fardy, Manual Arts instructor, was presented a Certificate of Achievement by the Massachusetts Industrial Education Society. This award was given to him because his students had received Awards of Merit for Outstanding Craftsmanship in the Project Fair at the spring convention on May 14. Two cer-

...raduates ...vities On ...s Week

...With Graduation ...12th, In George ...um At 3 O'clock

...ates of award were made to ...a Armbur in metalwork for ...die-stock, and in woodwork ...his cobbler's bench, and one ...Thomas Duggan in woodwork ...his TV chair. Since this an... competition is entered by ...ustrial arts classes from the ...re state, the Maynard boys ... deserving of praise for their ... accomplishment in crafts...nship.

...aseball letters were present...o Donald Torppa, James Dug..., Peter Wilson, Lawrence ...oks, Raymond Melanson, Rob ... Kane, Philip Williams, David ...tty, Richard Martino, John ...levich, Richard Carleton, ...nes Luker, Richard Jones and ...ymond Weaving.

The members of the Girls' ...ld Hockey team have elected ...ary Ann Matson and Kathleen ...Spratt as co-captains for next fall.

Pops Concert

On Friday evening, June 3, a group of Junior high school students attended the Boston Pops Concert in Symphony hall, Boston.

Students attending were: Consance Lowell, Nancy Charpenteur, Barbara Littig, Karen Grandell, Karen Keto, Brenda Mariani, Alexandra Engelhardt, Leigh Robinson, Sally Boeske, Elizabeth Fouratt, Judith Manning, Elaine Joyal, Audrey Malcolm, Barbara Harrington, Joan Nyholm, Maryellen Nordberg, Judith Rutkowski, Judith Byrnes, Mary Connerney, Denise Murphy Sally Chapman, Jesselyn Piecewicz, Sandra Koski, Joan Manning, Dennis Lombard, David Holt, Roger MacGlashing, John White, Thomas French, Walter Crowther, James Brooks, Edward Mullin, Leo Mullin, John Malcolm, John Gunn, Richard Iannitelli, Charles Wilson and Stephen Carlton. Chaperones included: Mrs. Grace Tucker, Mrs. Walter Boeske, Stephen Clarke and Charles Garabedian.

Democrat
Circ. 21,071
JUN 9 1955

Symphony Seat Becomes Legacy In Lynner's Will

A seat for the seasonal concerts of the Boston Symphony orchestra became a bequest today under terms of the will of 74-year-old Fred M. Woodard of Lynn, who also awarded $1000 to the First Universalist church of this city.

The testament and codicil, filed in the Registry of Probate at Salem, directed that his concert seat, "being Seat C-31 in the first balcony, right, for Saturday evenings," be left to Mrs. Helen Field Parker of Brookline, a widow.

Woodard, who died May 27, and who was affiliated with the United Shoe Machinery Corp., signed both the will and the codicil last Oct. 21. No estimate of the value of his estate was listed. He nominated the National Shawmut Bank of Boston as the executor.

Gifts of $5000 apiece were bequeathed to two cousins, Pearl Starbird of Boston and Virginia Whitney of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., who also are to have certain brass candlesticks.

Another $5000 legacy was devised to Mrs. Parker, and a like sum was allotted to Kenneth Robertson, Jr., of Towson, Md. All of Woodard's household furniture was given to Kenneth Robertson, Sr., and his wife, Mrs. Irene Robertson, both of Towson, Md.

The Lynn man, who resided at 17 Sachem terrace, ordered that his Knight Templar regalia be presented to the Olivet commandery of this city.

Residue of his property was bequeathed to Mr. and Mrs. Robertson, Kenneth Robertson, Jr., Marlene Robertson, and Linda Robertson, all of Towson.

...BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,000 Free
JUN 9 1955

Pops Concerts Programs Slated For Week-end

Arthur Fiedler has returned to his place to conduct the current week's series of Pops Concerts in Symphony Hall.

Michael Bowles will make his appearance as guest conductor on Friday evening. Thursday and ...ights have been ...

Extra Grand and Trial Jurors Are Drawn for Court

Continued on Page 24

Molly Montgomery, Sandra Scarpetotti, Robert Dolan, Kathy Dwyer, Janet Faule Pahlck, Barbara Scarpetotti, Molly and Kathy Dwyer, Janet Ward, Deborah and Pamela Apple-

The following school friends attended: Linda Gronke, Pamela and Mr. Davies was presented a gift of money from the young people. The program, sponsored by the Patterson Recreation committee, was so successful that it is hoped to repeat it again another year, the committee announced.

OBSERVES NINTH BIRTHDAY

Miss Patricia Buhenicek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Buhenicek, Sr., celebrated her ninth birthday recently with a party at her home.

The following school friends attended: Linda Gronke, Pamela and Mr. and Mrs. HARRY T. BURGESS

MARRIED 50 YEARS

...of Main street recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary with "open house" arranged for them by their granddaughter. Miss

...The P.T.A. for the recreation program and to purchase necessary items for children's use in the school.

...Money raised will be used by the P.T.A. for the recreation program and to purchase necessary items for children's use in the school.

...available throughout the afternoon.

...There will be games with prizes for children. Refreshments will be available throughout the afternoon.

...pony rides for children will start at 1 o'clock.

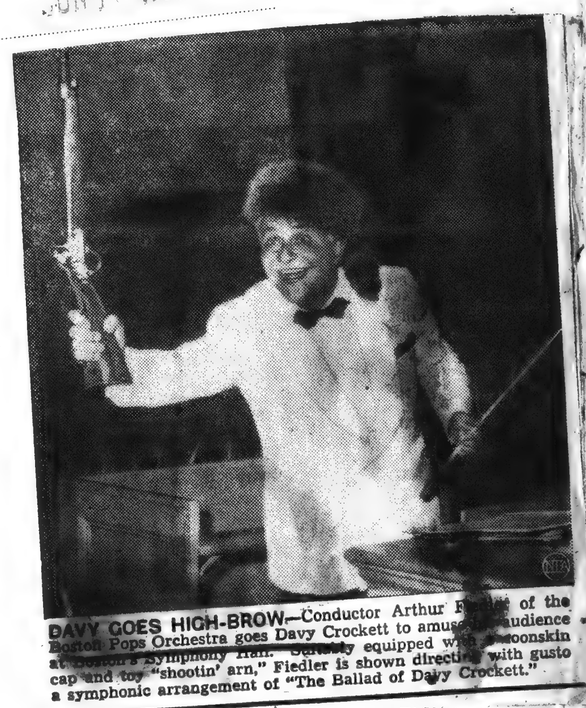
...open at noon and hay rides and Spring Fair at the school auditorium Saturday. The boothes will be open at noon and hay rides for children will start at 1 o'clock.

...association will sponsor its annual Parent-Teacher

PATTERSON

News of the P.T.A. Fair Will Be Held On Saturday

ATTLE...
Independent Rep...
Circ. 9,613
JUN 1 ... 1955



DAVY GOES HIGH-BROW.—Conductor Arthur F...dler of the Boston Pops Orchestra goes Davy Crockett to amuse the audience at Boston's Symphony Hall. Sartorially equipped with raccoonskin cap and toy "shootin' arn," Fiedler is shown directing with gusto a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

[84]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Times
BOSTON, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

JUN 9 1955

Announce Opera Star's Histadrut Pops Program

The forthcoming Israel Histadrut Night at Pops, which takes place this coming Thursday evening, June 16, at Symphony Hall, at 8:30 p.m., will feature Robert Merrill, famed baritone of the Metropolitan Opera. Mr. Merrill's program will include selections from Carmen, La Traviata and Largo Al Factotum. In addition, he will present a group of Hebrew, Yiddish and English folk songs. This is the second appearance of the baritone at the annual Histadrut night.

Now entering his tenth season at the Metropolitan, Mr. Merrill has sung leading roles in some two hundred and fifty performances for the diamond horseshoe and on tour with the opera, and is known to millions through appearances on Your Show of Shows, Toast of the Town, the Jackie Gleason Show and other radio and television programs. His recordings for RCA Victor range from operatic arias and albums to "Ol' Man River" and the famous Yale "Whiffenpoof Song."

The Pops committee, headed by Samuel D. Shapiro, chairman, and Oscar Sterman, honorary chairman, is busily engaged in a sponsor's drive, the proceeds of which will be dedicated to the institutions of the Histadrut. A limited number of floor tables are still available, as are balcony seats at the Histadrut Office. 185 Devonshire Street, Room 410, Boston.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (e)
CHELSEA, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,432

JUN 10 1955

A special program of Irish music will feature the Eire Society's night at Pops tonight. The society will take over the main floor at Symphony Hall for its members and guests.

New England Newsclip Agency,
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-1200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

JUN 10 1955

Conservatory Night At Pops, Tomorrow

Tomorrow night at the Boston Pops has been set aside as New England Conservatory night. Richard Burgin of the faculty will conduct the concert, which is sponsored by the Conservatory Alumni Association as the opening event in the Conservatory's 85th commencement festivities.

Buckner Gamby, a graduating senior from Back Bay, Boston, will be the soloist in the first movement of Rachmaninoff's C-minor piano concerto, and the New England Conservatory Chorus will sing a number of popular choral selections under the direction of its acting conductor, Thomas A. Sokol.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Mattapan Tribune

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Mattapan Tribune

W

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Hyde Park Tribune

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Hyde Park Tribune
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Mattapan Tribune
BOSTON, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jamaica Plain Citizen
BOSTON, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Hyde Park Tribune
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 9500 Free

JUN 9 1955

Symphony Conductor From Ireland Will Direct Boston Pops

New Englanders will have an opportunity Friday evening, June 10, to hear the celebrated musicians of the Boston Symphony orchestra play under the baton of Michael Bowles, Ireland's foremost symphony conductor as he makes a guest appearance at the Boston Eire Society's night at Pops.

This 45-year-old native of Sligo first came into prominence as a band master for the Irish Army. He had then just passed his 21st birthday. Bowles' superb talent was quickly recognized and he was sent by the army to the National University of Ireland for further study and training. The army thereupon lost him to Radio Eireann where he shortly became the music director and later the founder and conductor of Dublin's first full-sized symphony orchestra since Ireland became a nation.

From 1950 to 1953 he devoted his genius to conducting and improving symphony orchestras in New Zealand and Australia. He has recently completed engagements with the Canadian Broadcasting Service orchestra in Toronto. Between his foreign commitments, Mr. Bowles, in frequent trips to Ireland, retained his active interest in the now-flourishing symphonic movement in Dublin and other Irish cities.

Martin A. O'Malley of Quincy is the chairman of the Eire Society Pops Night. The Society will take over the main floor of Symphony Hall for the evening.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Times (e)
BEVERLY, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 6,754

JUN 10 1955

BHS ORCHESTRA, BAND AT "POPS"

Members of the Beverly High school band and orchestra will climax their "Music Festival Year" tonight by attending the Boston Symphony Pops Concert as guests of the Beverly Band-Orchestra Parents Association.

Accompanying the 60 young people in buses leaving the High school at 7 o'clock will be John A. Finnegan, school instrumental music director; Mrs. Finnegan; Miss Priscilla Goggin, school vocal music instructor; Miss Enid Tozier of the High school faculty, and Mr. and Mrs. Frey Meyer and Mr. and Mrs. Earle Herrick of the band parents' organization.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Transcript
WINTHROP, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,060

JUN 9 1955

RICHARD HAYMAN
Welcome Home

Hit Tune 'Ruby' Put Hayman On Music World Map

Page 1

Richard Hayman, the gifted harmonica soloist whose Mercury recording of "Ruby" skyrocketed him to fame two years ago, will extend his Boston stay until Tuesday night when he'll conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra in three of his arrangements.

The harmonica was his first love and has remained so since the days of 1932 and 1933 when he played with a Winthrop Junior High School harmonica band directed by Miss Beatrice Lord, a teacher in the school.

But since his early professional start with Borrah Minevitch's Harmonica Rascals, the former Winthrop resident, now a New Yorker, has branched out with amazing success into all phases of musical composition, arranging and conducting.

(Continued on Page Two)

His talents as composer, conductor-arranger and harmonicist took him to Hollywood where he played bit parts and arranged the music for such pictures as "Meet Me in St. Louis," "Girl Crazy," "As Thousands Cheer", and "State Fair."

He has made several television appearances on such shows as Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town," the Perry Como, Patti Page, Dave Garroway and Jack Paar shows.

Only last Sunday, he was featured at the annual Fitton Field festival at Holy Cross in Worcester with such stars as Perry Como, Carmel Quinn, the Ray Charles chorus and Mitchell Ayres orchestra.

Boston's beloved Arthur Fiedler has recognized Hayman's talents as an arranger and composer in the past, and next Tuesday night will bow to Hayman's prowess as a conductor when he hands his baton to a Winthrop

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Dorchester-Roxbury Record
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 10,350 Free

JUN 10 1955

The forthcoming Israel Histadrut Night at Pops, which takes place Thursday evening, June 16th, at Symphony Hall, at 8:30 P.M., will feature Robert Merrill, famed baritone of the Metropolitan Opera. Mr. Merrill's program will include selections from Carmen, La Traviatta, and Largo Al Factotum. In addition, he will present a group of Hebrew, Yiddish and English folk songs to mark the specific occasion of Israel Night at Pops. This is the second appearance of the Metropolitan Opera baritone at the Annual Histadrut Night.

94. Stores And Halls

STORES SUITABLE FOR LIGHT manufacturing in Dorchester & West End. Rents from $25 to $75 mo TA 5-0133

95. Garage for Rent

DORCHESTER: GARAGE FOR RENT, corner Geneva Avenue & Oakley Street. Call CO 5-5122.

GARAGE FOR RENT 30 BARRY ST., Dor. Call CO 5-3316.

DORCHESTER: DOUBLE, ALL CEment garage. Ideal for storage purposes. Call after 7 p.m. GE 6-3164.

97. Mortgages - Loans

WHEN BANKS STOP
WE START CONFIDENTIAL
1st and 2nd
MORTGAGE LOANS
Also Loans for Home Repairs
Easy Terms
Lowest Rates Dent Direct

$2.99

Vaca
Carn

for fun-filled vac
them shoes the
Leather and Fab
White & Multi C
$2.99

BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 10,815

JUN 9 1955

Histadrut Slates Night at Pops

Selections from Carmen, La Traviatta and Largo Al Factotum, will be offered by Metropolitan Opera baritone Robert Merrill, guest artist at the Israel Histadrut Night at Pops, on Thursday evening, June 16, at 8:30 p.m., at Symphony Hall.

In addition, Mr. Merrill will present a group of Hebrew, Yiddish and English folk songs to mark the specific occasion of Israel Night at Pops. This is the second appearance of the Metropolitan Opera baritone at the Annual Histadrut Night.

The Pops Committee headed by Samuel D. Shapiro, chairman, and Oscar Stagman, honorary chairman, is engaged in a sponsor's drive, the proceeds of which will be dedicated to the institutions of the Histadrut — Israel's pioneers. A limited number of floor tables and balcony seats are available at the Histadrut Office, 185 Devonshire street, Room 410, Boston.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (e)
CHELSEA, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,432

JUN 10 1955

A special program of Irish music will feature the Eire Society's night at Pops tonight. The society will take over the main floor at Symphony Hall for its members and guests.

New England Newsclip Agency,
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

JUN 10 1955

Conservatory Night At Pops, Tomorrow

Tomorrow night at the Boston Pops has been set aside as New England Conservatory night. Richard Burgin of the faculty will conduct the concert, which is sponsored by the Conservatory Alumni Association as the opening event in the Conservatory's 85th commencement festivities.

Buckner Gamby, a graduating senior from Back Bay, Boston, will be the soloist in the first movement of Rachmaninoff's C minor piano concerto, and the New England Conservatory Chorus will sing a number of popular choral selections under the direction of its acting conductor, Thomas A. Sokol.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jamaica Plain Citizen
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 11,800

JUN 9 1955

Irish Tenor Tops Eire Night At "Pops" Ball

Dublin-born tenor, Hubert Valentine, will be the featured soloist with the Boston Pops Orchestra tomorrow night when guest conductor Michael Bowles, Ireland's foremost symphony conductor takes over the baton on Eire Society night.

A student of Dr. Vincent O'Brien, noted teacher of the late John McCormack, Valentine, prior to his coming to this country was the leading tenor of Radio Eireann. He is well known to concert goers in America and has made several appearances in Boston.

The musical program was arranged for the Eire Society by John P. McGrail orf Clinton, John P. Cavanagh of Brighton, and Catherine Madden of Hyde Park in consultation with Pops Conductor Arthur Fiedler.

[illegible] of Quincy is the chairman of the Eire Society Pops Night. The Society will take over the main floor of Symphony Hall for the evening.

Hit Tune —

(Continued from Page One)

His original compositions, such as "No Strings Attached" and "TV-ana," are standards in the repertoire of such famous concert orchestras as the Boston Pops, the U. S. Navy Concert Orchestra and the N.B.C. Symphon of the Air.

Only last week, the Boston Pops featured his arrangements of "Davy Crockett," and TV Potpourri, made up of TV themes.

From his million-record selling "Ruby," Hayman stepped into the important post of Artist and Repertoire chief of Mercury Record's New York office, directing the recording activities of such top-name artists as Patti Page, Ralph Marterie, Georgia Gibbs, Sophie Tucker, Vic Damone and Rusty Draper.

He resigned from the position last year to concentrate solely on his personal career as a solo artist, but still acts as musical director and advisor for Mercury.

Last year, he conducted the orchestra and appeared as a soloist on Vaughn Monroe's television show, and at one time arranged for Monroe's orchestras as well as appearing with him for some four years.

His talents as composer, conductor-arranger and harmonicist took him to Hollywood where he played bit parts and arranged the music for such pictures as "Meet Me in St. Louis," "Girl Crazy," "As Thousands Cheer", and "State Fair."

He has made several television appearances on such shows as Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town," the Perry Como, Patti Page, Dave Garroway and Jack Paar shows.

Only last Sunday, he was featured at the annual Fitton Field festival at Holy Cross in Worcester with such stars as Perry Como, Carmel Quinn, the Ray Charles chorus and Mitchell Ayres orchestra.

Boston's beloved Arthur Fiedler has recognized Hayman's talents as an arranger and composer in the past, and next Tuesday night will bow to Hayman's prowess as a conductor when he hands his baton to a Winthrop

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Dorchester-Roxbury Record
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 10,350 Free

JUN 10 1955

The forthcoming Israel Histadrut Night at Pops, which takes place Thursday evening, June 16th, at Symphony Hall, at 8:30 P.M., will feature Robert Merrill, famed baritone of the Metropolitan Opera. Mr. Merrill's program will include selections from Carmen, La Traviatta, and Largo Al Factotum. In addition, he will present a group of Hebrew, Yiddish and English folk songs to mark the specific occasion of Israel Night at Pops. This is the second appearance of the Metropolitan Opera baritone at the Annual Histadrut Night.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Times (e)
BEVERLY, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 6,754

JUN 10 1955

BHS ORCHESTRA, BAND AT "POPS"

Members of the Beverly High school band and orchestra will climax their "Music Festival Year" tonight by attending the Boston Symphony Pops Concert as guests of the Beverly Band-Orchestra Parents Association.

Accompanying the 60 young people in buses leaving the High school at 7 o'clock will be John A. Finnegan, school instrumental music director; Mrs. Finnegan; Miss Priscilla Goggin, school vocal music instructor; Miss Enid Tozier of the High school faculty, and Mr. and Mrs. Frey Meyer and Mr. and Mrs. Earle Herrick of the band parents' organization.

BOSTON, [illegible]
Weekly Independent
Circ. 10,815

JUN 9 1955

Histadrut Slates Night at Pops

Selections from Carmen, La Traviatta and Largo Al Factotum, will be offered by Metropolitan Opera baritone Robert Merrill, guest artist at the Israel Histadrut Night at Pops, on Thursday evening, June 16, at 8:30 p.m., at Symphony Hall.

In addition, Mr. Merrill will present a group of Hebrew, Yiddish and English folk songs to mark the specific occasion of Israel Night at Pops. This is the second appearance of the Metropolitan Opera baritone at the Annual Histadrut Night.

The Pops Committee headed by Samuel D. Shapiro, chairman, and Oscar Stormin, honorary chairman, is engaged in a sponsor's drive, the proceeds of which will be dedicated to the institutions of the Histadrut — Israel's pioneers. A limited number of floor tables and balcony seats are available at the Histadrut Office, 185 Devonshire street, Room 410, Boston.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (e)
CHELSEA, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,432

JUN 10 1955

A special program of Irish music will feature the Eire Society's night at Pops tonight. The society will take over the main floor at Symphony Hall for its members and guests.

New England Newsclip Agency,
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

JUN 10 1955

Conservatory Night At Pops, Tomorrow

Tomorrow night at the Boston Pops has been set aside as New England Conservatory night. Richard Burgin of the faculty will conduct the concert, which is sponsored by the Conservatory Alumni Association as the opening event in the Conservatory's 85th commencement festivities.

Buckner Gamby, a graduating senior from Back Bay, Boston, will be the soloist in the first movement of Rachmaninoff's C-minor piano concerto, and the New England Conservatory Chorus will sing a number of popular choral selections under the direction of its acting conductor, Thomas A. Sokol.

BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 11,800

JUN 9 1955

Eire Society Pops Night

Michael Bowles, foremost Irish symphony leader, will be guest conductor and Dublin-born tenor Hubert Valentine will be featured soloist at the Eire Society night Friday at the Pops at Symphony Hall.

Included on the list of more than 100 sponsors are Joseph F. Shields, Irish consul in Boston; the Right Rev. James H. Doyle, pastor of St. Patrick's Church, Roxbury; Joseph Cannon of Brookline, president of the Eire Society; Gerald E. Hayes, assistant vice president of the National Shawmut Bank; Dr. Regina Madden of Jamaica Plain, Congressman Philip J. Philbin of Clinton, and Daniel J. Lyne of Brookline.

Zealand and Australia. He has recently completed engagements with the Canadian Broadcasting Service orchestra in Toronto. Between his foreign commitments, Mr. Bowles, in frequent trips to Ireland, retained his active interest in the now-flourishing symphonic movement in Dublin and other Irish cities.

Martin A. O'Malley of Quincy is the chairman of the Eire Society Pops Night. The Society will take over the main floor of Symphony Hall for the evening.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Times (e)
BEVERLY, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 6,754

JUN 10 1955

BHS ORCHESTRA, BAND AT "POPS"

Members of the Beverly High school band and orchestra will climax their "Music Festival Year" tonight by attending the Boston Symphony Pops Concert as guests of the Beverly Band-Orchestra Parents Association.

Accompanying the 80 young people in buses leaving the High school at 7 o'clock will be John A. Finnegan, school instrumental music director; Mrs. Finnegan; Miss Priscilla Goggin, school vocal music instructor; Miss Enid Tozier of the High school faculty, and Mr. and Mrs. Frey Meyer and Mr. and Mrs. Earle Herrick of the band parents' organization.

for fun-filled vac
them shoes the
Leather and Fab
White & Multi C
$2.99

$2.99
Vacat
Carn

Hit Tune —

(Continued from Page One)

His original compositions, such as "No Strings Attached" and "TV-ana," are standards in the repertoire of such famous concert orchestras as the Boston Pops, the U. S. Navy Concert Orchestra and the N.B.C. Symphon of the Air.

Only last week, the Boston Pops featured his arrangements of "Davy Crockett," and TV Potpourri, made up of TV themes.

From his million-record selling "Ruby," Hayman stepped into the important post of Artist and Repertoire chief of Mercury Record's New York office, directing the recording activities of such top-name artists as Patti Page, Ralph Marterie, Georgia Gibbs, Sophie Tucker, Vic Damone and Rusty Draper.

He resigned from the position last year to concentrate solely on his personal career as a solo artist, but still acts as musical director and advisor for Mercury.

Last year, he conducted the orchestra and appeared as a soloist on Vaughn Monroe's television show, and at one time arranged for Monroe's orchestras as well as appearing with him for some four years.

His talents as composer, conductor-arranger and harmonicist took him to Hollywood where he played bit parts and arranged the music for such pictures as "Meet Me in St. Louis," "Girl Crazy," "As Thousands Cheer", and "State Fair."

He has made several television appearances on such shows as Ed Sullivan's, "Toast of the Town," the Perry Como, Patti Page, Dave Garroway and Jack Paar shows.

Only last Sunday, he was featured at the annual Fitton Field festival at Holy Cross in Worcester with such stars as Perry Como, Carmel Quinn, the Ray Charles chorus and Mitchell Ayres orchestra.

Boston's beloved Arthur Fiedler has recognized Hayman's talents as an arranger and composer in the past, and next Tuesday night will bow to Hayman's prowess as a conductor when he hands his baton to a Winthrop

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Dorchester-Roxbury Record
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 10,350 Free

JUN 10 1955

The forthcoming Israel Histadrut Night at Pops, which takes place Thursday evening, June 16th, at Symphony Hall, at 8:30 P.M., will feature Robert Merrill, famed baritone of the Metropolitan Opera. Mr. Merrill's program will include selections from Carmen, La Traviatta, and Largo Al Factotum. In addition, he will present a group of Hebrew, Yiddish and English folk songs to mark the specific occasion of Israel Night at Pops. This is the second appearance of the Metropolitan Opera baritone at the Annual Histadrut Night.

97. Mortgages - Loans
Two reasons for curbing that impulse to drive faster than conditions warrant are given by the AAA: First, a speeding car travels Roxbury.

BOSTON, [illegible]
Weekly Independent
Circ. 10,815

JUN 9 1955

Histadrut Slates Night at Pops

Selections from Carmen, La Traviatta and Largo Al Factotum, will be offered by Metropolitan Opera baritone Robert Merrill, guest artist at the Israel Histadrut Night at Pops, on Thursday evening, June 16, at 8:30 p.m., at Symphony Hall.

In addition, Mr. Merrill will present a group of Hebrew, Yiddish and English folk songs to mark the specific occasion of Israel Night at Pops. This is the second appearance of the Metropolitan Opera baritone at the Annual Histadrut Night.

The Pops committee headed by Samuel D. Shapiro, chairman, and Oscar Sturman, honorary chairman, is engaged in a sponsor's drive, the proceeds of which will be dedicated to the institutions of the Histadrut — Israel's pioneers. A limited number of floor tables and balcony seats are available at the Histadrut Office, 185 Devonshire street, Room 410, Boston.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (e)
CHELSEA, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,432

JUN 10 1955

A special program of Irish music will feature the Eire Society's night at Pops tonight. The society will take over the main floor at Symphony Hall for its members and guests.

New England Newsclip Agency,
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-1200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

JUN 10 19[illegible]

Conservatory Night At Pops, Tomorrow

Tomorrow night at the Boston Pops has been set aside as New England Conservatory night. Richard Burgin of the faculty will conduct the concert, which is sponsored by the Conservatory Alumni Association as the opening event in the Conservatory's 85th commencement festivities.

Buckner Gamby, a graduating senior from Back Bay, Boston, will be the soloist in the first movement of Rachmaninoff's C-minor piano concerto, and the New England Conservatory Chorus will sing a number of popular choral selections under the direction of its acting conductor, Thomas A. Sokol.

9:00 P.M. Young Adult Prayer Meeting.

Thursday, 2:00 P.M. Women's Christian Temperance Union at the home of Mrs. Forsythe, Colorado street, Mattapan.

UPHAM MEMORIAL METHODIST CHURCH
Pastor William R. Nordos

Sunday, June 12, 9:30 A.M. Sunday School. Miss Elsie Hawkes superintendent.

10:45 A.M. Children's Day Service will be conducted by the Board of Education. Miss Hawkes in charge. Several of the teachers ments is headed by Herman Kosa.

W

BOSTON, [illegible]
Weekly Independent
Circ. 8,500

JUN 9 1955

Symphony Conductor From Ireland Will Direct Boston Pops

New Englanders will have an opportunity Friday evening, June 10, to hear the celebrated musicians of the Boston Symphony orchestra play under the baton of Michael Bowles, Ireland's foremost symphony conductor as he makes a guest appearance at the Boston Eire Society's night at Pops.

This 45-year-old native of Sligo first came into prominence as a band master for the Irish Army. He had then just passed his 21st birthday. Bowles' superb talent was quickly recognized and he was sent by the army to the National University of Ireland for further study and training. The army thereupon lent him to Radio Eireann where he shortly became the music director and later the founder and conductor of Dublin's first full-sized symphony orchestra since Ireland became a nation.

From 1950 to 1953 he devoted his genius to conducting and improving symphony orchestras in New Zealand and Australia. He has recently completed engagements with the Canadian Broadcasting Service orchestra in Toronto. Between his foreign commitments, Mr. Bowles, in frequent trips to Ireland, retained his active interest in the now-flourishing symphonic movement in Dublin and other Irish cities.

Martin A. O'Malley of Quincy is the chairman of the Eire Society Pops Night. The Society will take over the main floor of Symphony Hall for the evening.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Times (e)
BEVERLY, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 6,754

JUN 10 1955

BHS ORCHESTRA, BAND AT "POPS"

Members of the Beverly High school band and orchestra will climax their "Music Festival Year" tonight by attending the Boston Symphony Pops Concert as guests of the Beverly Band-Orchestra Parents Association.

Accompanying the 60 young people in buses leaving the High school at 7 o'clock will be John A. Finnegan, school instrumental music director; Mrs. Finnegan; Miss Priscilla Goggin, school vocal music instructor; Miss Enid Foster of the High school faculty, and Mr. and Mrs. Frey Meyer and Mr. and Mrs. Earle Herrick of the band parents' organization.

$2.99
Vaca
Carn
for fun-filled va
them shoes the
Leather and Fab
White & Multi C
$2.99

Hit Tune —

(Continued from Page One)

His original compositions, such as "No Strings Attached" and "TV-ana," are standards in the repertoire of such famous concert orchestras as the Boston Pops, the U. S. Navy Concert Orchestra and the N.B.C. Symphon of the Air.

Only last week, the Boston Pops featured his arrangements of "Davy Crockett," and TV Potpourri, made up of TV themes.

From his million-record selling "Ruby," Hayman stepped into the important post of Artist and Repertoire chief of Mercury Record's New York office, directing the recording activities of such top-name artists as Patti Page, Ralph Marterie, Georgia Gibbs, Sophie Tucker, Vic Damone and Rusty Draper.

He resigned from the position last year to concentrate solely on his personal career as a solo artist, but still acts as musical director and advisor for Mercury.

Last year, he conducted the orchestra and appeared as a soloist on Vaughn Monroe's television show, and at one time arranged for Monroe's orchestras as well as appearing with him for some four years.

His talents as composer, conductor-arranger and harmonicist took him to Hollywood where he played bit parts and arranged the music for such pictures as "Meet Me in St. Louis," "Girl Crazy," "As Thousands Cheer", and "State Fair."

He has made several television appearances on such shows as Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town," the Perry Como, Patti Page, Dave Garroway and Jack Paar shows.

Only last Sunday, he was featured at the annual Fitton Field festival at Holy Cross in Worcester with such stars as Perry Como, Carmel Quinn, the Ray Charles chorus and Mitchell Ayres orchestra.

Boston's beloved Arthur Fiedler has recognized Hayman's talents as an arranger and composer in the past, and next Tuesday night will bow to Hayman's prowess as a conductor when he hands his baton to a Winthrop

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Dorchester-Roxbury Record
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 10,350 Free

JUN 10 1955

The forthcoming Israel Histadrut Night at Pops, which takes place Thursday evening, June 16th, at Symphony Hall, at 8:30 P.M., will feature Robert Merrill, famed baritone of the Metropolitan Opera. Mr. Merrill's program will include selections from Carmen, La Traviatta, and Largo Al Factotum. In addition, he will present a group of Hebrew, Yiddish and English folk songs to mark the specific occasion of Israel Night at Pops. This is the second appearance of the Metropolitan Opera baritone at the Annual Histadrut Night.

BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 10,815

JUN 9 1955

Histadrut Slates Night at Pops

Selections from Carmen, La Traviatta and Largo Al Factotum, will be offered by Metropolitan Opera baritone Robert Merrill, guest artist at the Israel Histadrut Night at Pops, on Thursday evening, June 16, at 8:30 p.m., at Symphony Hall.

In addition, Mr. Merrill will present a group of Hebrew, Yiddish and English folk songs to mark the specific occasion of Israel Night at Pops. This is the second appearance of the Metropolitan Opera baritone at the Annual Histadrut Night.

The Pops committee headed by Samuel D. Shapiro, chairman, and Oscar Stermish, honorary chairman, is engaged in a sponsor's drive, the proceeds of which will be dedicated to the institutions of the Histadrut — Israel's pioneers. A limited number of floor tables and balcony seats are available at the Histadrut Office, 185 Devonshire street, Room 410, Boston.

Circ. 9500 Free
JUN 9 1955

Irish Tenor Tops Eire Night At "Pops" Ball

Dublin-born tenor, Hubert Valentine, will be the featured soloist with the Boston Pops Orchestra tomorrow night when guest conductor, Michael Bowles, Ireland's foremost symphony conductor takes over the baton on Eire Society night.

A student of Dr. Vincent O'Brien noted teacher of the late John Mc Cormack, Valentine, prior to his coming to this country was the leading tenor of Radio Eireann. He is well known to concert goers in America and has made several appearances in Boston.

The musical program was arranged for the Eire Society by John P. McGrail orf Clinton, John P. Cavanagh of Brighton, and Catherine Madden of Hyde Park in consultation with Pops Conductor Arthur Fiedler.

Hit Tune —

(Continued from Page One)

His original compositions, such as "No Strings Attached" and "TV-ana," are standards in the repertoire of such famous concert orchestras as the Boston Pops, the U. S. Navy Concert Orchestra and the N.B.C. Symphon of the Air.

Only last week, the Boston Pops featured his arrangements of "Davy Crockett," and TV Potpourri, made up of TV themes.

From his million-record selling "Ruby," Hayman stepped into the important post of Artist and Repertoire chief of Mercury Record's New York office, directing the recording activities of such top-name artists as Patti Page, Ralph Marterie, Georgia Gibbs, Sophie Tucker, Vic Damone and Rusty Draper.

He resigned from the position last year to concentrate solely on his personal career as a solo artist, but still acts as musical director and advisor for Mercury.

Last year, he conducted the orchestra and appeared as a soloist on Vaughn Monroe's television show, and at one time arranged for Monroe's orchestras as well as appearing with him for some four years.

His talents as composer, conductor-arranger and harmonicist took him to Hollywood where he played bit parts and arranged the music for such pictures as "Meet Me in St. Louis," "Girl Crazy," "As Thousands Cheer", and "State Fair."

He has made several television appearances on such shows as Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town," the Perry Como, Patti Page, Dave Garroway and Jack Paar shows.

Only last Sunday, he was featured at the annual Fitton Field festival at Holy Cross in Worcester with such stars as Perry Como, Carmel Quinn, the Ray Charles chorus and Mitchell Ayres orchestra.

Boston's beloved Arthur Fiedler has recognized Hayman's talents as an arranger and composer in the past, and next Tuesday night will bow to Hayman's prowess as a conductor when he hands his baton to a Winthrop

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Dorchester-Roxbury Record
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 10,350 Free

JUN 10 1955

The forthcoming Israel Histadrut Night at Pops, which takes place Thursday evening, June 16th, at Symphony Hall, at 8:30 P.M., will feature Robert Merrill, famed baritone of the Metropolitan Opera. Mr. Merrill's program will include selections from Carmen, La Traviatta, and Largo Al Factotum. In addition, he will present a group of Hebrew, Yiddish and English folk songs to mark the specific occasion of Israel Night at Pops. This is the second appearance of the Metropolitan Opera baritone at the Annual Histadrut Night.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Record (e)
CHELSEA, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,432

JUN 10 1955

A special program of Irish music will feature the Eire Society's night at Pops tonight. The society will take over the main floor at Symphony Hall for its members and guests.

New England Newsclip Agency,
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-1200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

JUN 10 1955

Conservatory Night At Pops, Tomorrow

Tomorrow night at the Boston Pops has been set aside as New England Conservatory night. Richard Burgin of the faculty will conduct the concert, which is sponsored by the Conservatory Alumni Association as the opening event in the Conservatory's 85th commencement festivities.

Buckner Gamby, a graduating senior from Back Bay, Boston, will be the soloist in the first movement of Rachmaninoff's C-minor piano concerto, and the New England Conservatory Chorus will sing a number of popular choral selections under the direction of its acting conductor, Thomas A. Sokol.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Times (e)
BEVERLY, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 6,754

JUN 10 1955

BHS ORCHESTRA, BAND AT "POPS"

Members of the Beverly High school band and orchestra will climax their "Music Festival Year" tonight by attending the Boston Symphony Pops Concert as guests of the Beverly Band-Orchestra Parents Association.

Accompanying the 60 young people in buses leaving the High school at 7 o'clock will be John A. Finnegan, school instrumental music director; Mrs. Finnegan; Miss Priscilla Goggin, school vocal music instructor; Miss Enid Tozier of the High school faculty, and Mr. and Mrs. Frey Meyer and Mr. and Mrs. Earle Herrick of the band parents' organization.

[85]

PASTE OVER

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Times
BOSTON, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

JUN 9 1955

Announce Opera Star's Histadrut Pops Program

The forthcoming Israel Histadrut Night at Pops, which takes place this coming Thursday evening, June 16, at Symphony Hall, at 8:30 p.m., will feature Robert Merrill, famed baritone of the Metropolitan Opera. Mr. Merrill's program will include selections from Carmen, La Traviata and Largo Al Factotum. In addition, he will present a group of Hebrew, Yiddish and English folk songs. This is the secong appearance of the baritone at the annual Histadrut night.

Now entering his tenth season at the Metropolitan, Mr. Merrill has sung leading roles in some two hundred and fifty performances for the diamond horseshoe and on tour with the opera, and is known to millions through appearances on Your Show of Shows, Toast of the Town, the Jackie Gleason Show and other radio and television programs. His recordings for RCA Victor range from operatic arias and albums to "Ol' Man River" and the famous Yale "Whiffenpoof Song."

The Pops committee, headed by Samuel D. Shapiro, chairman, and Oscar Sterman, honorary chairman, is busily engaged in a sponsor's drive, the proceeds of which will be dedicated to the institutions of the Histadrut. A limited number of floor tables are still available, as are balcony seats at the Histadrut Office. 185 Devonshire Street, Room 410, Boston.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (e)
CHELSEA, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,432

JUN 10 1955

A special program of Irish music will feature the Eire Society's night at Pops tonight. The society will take over the main floor at Symphony Hall for its members and guests.

New England Newsclip Agency,
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

JUN 10 1955

Conservatory Night At Pops, Tomorrow

Tomorrow night at the Boston Pops has been set aside as New England Conservatory night. Richard Burgin of the faculty will conduct the concert, which is sponsored by the Conservatory Alumni Association as the opening event in the Conservatory's 85th commencement festivities.

Buckner Gamby, a graduating senior from Back Bay, Boston, will be the soloist in the first movement of Rachmaninoff's C-minor piano concerto, and the New England Conservatory Chorus will sing a number of popular choral selections under the direction of its acting conductor, Thomas A. Sokol.

Liquor Store
M.T.A. STATION SQUARE
IVERY

...ents Harold W. Metevia, presid...

...nc.
...00

...t

Circ. 9500 Free
JUN 9 1955

Irish Tenor Tops Eire Night At "Pops" Ball

Dublin-born tenor, Hubert Valentine, will be the featured soloist with the Boston Pops Orchestra tomorrow night when guest conductor Michael Bowles, Ireland's foremost symphony conductor takes over the baton on Eire Society night.

A student of Dr. Vincent O'Brien noted teacher of the late John McCormack, Valentine, prior to his coming to this country was the leading tenor of Radio Eireann. He is well known to concert goers in America and has made several appearances in Boston.

The musical program was arranged for the Eire Society by John P. McGrail orf Clinton, John P. Cavanagh of Brighton, and Catherine Madden of Hyde Park in consultation with Pops Conductor Arthur Fiedler.

$2.99
Vaca...
Carn...
for fun-filled vac...
them shoes tha...
Leather and Fab...
White & Multi C...
$2.99

Hit Tune —

(Continued from Page One)

His original compositions, such as "No Strings Attached" and "TV-ana," are standards in the repertoire of such famous concert orchestras as the Boston Pops, the U. S. Navy Concert Orchestra and the N.B.C. Symphon of the Air.

Only last week, the Boston Pops featured his arrangements of "Davy Crockett," and TV Potpourri, made up of TV themes.

From his million-record selling "Ruby," Hayman stepped into the important post of Artist and Repertoire chief of Mercury Record's New York office, directing the recording activities of such top-name artists as Patti Page, Ralph Marterie, Georgia Gibbs, Sophie Tucker, Vic Damone and Rusty Draper.

He resigned from the position last year to concentrate solely on his personal career as a solo artist, but still acts as musical director and advisor for Mercury.

Last year, he conducted the orchestra and appeared as a soloist on Vaughn Monroe's television show, and at one time arranged for Monroe's orchestras as well as appearing with him for some four years.

His talents as composer, conductor-arranger and harmonicist took him to Hollywood where he played bit parts and arranged the music for such pictures as "Meet Me in St. Louis," "Girl Crazy," "As Thousands Cheer", and "State Fair."

He has made several television appearances on such shows as Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town," the Perry Como, Patti Page, Dave Garroway and Jack Paar shows.

Only last Sunday, he was featured at the annual Fitton Field festival at Holy Cross in Worcester with such stars as Perry Como, Carmel Quinn, the Ray Charles chorus and Mitchell Ayres orchestra.

Boston's beloved Arthur Fiedler has recognized Hayman's talents as an arranger and composer in the past, and next Tuesday night will bow to Hayman's prowess as a conductor when he hands his baton to a Winthrop

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Dorchester-Roxbury Record
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 10,350 Free

JUN 10 1955

The forthcoming Israel Histadrut Night at Pops, which takes place Thursday evening, June 16th, at Symphony Hall, at 8:30 P.M., will feature Robert Merrill, famed baritone of the Metropolitan Opera. Mr. Merrill's program will include selections from Carmen, La Traviatta, and Largo Al Factotum. In addition, he will present a group of Hebrew, Yiddish and English folk songs to mark the specific occasion of Israel Night at Pops. This is the second appearance of the Metropolitan Opera baritone at the Annual Histadrut Night.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Times (e)
BEVERLY, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 6,754

JUN 10 1955

BHS ORCHESTRA, BAND AT "POPS"

Members of the Beverly High school band and orchestra will climax their "Music Festival Year" tonight by attending the Boston Symphony Pops Concert as guests of the Beverly Band-Orchestra Parents Association.

Accompanying the 60 young people in buses leaving the High school at 7 o'clock will be John A. Finnegan, school instrumental music director; Mrs. Finnegan; Miss Priscilla Goggin, school vocal music instructor; Miss Enid Tozier of the High school faculty, and Mr. and Mrs. Frey Meyer and Mr. and Mrs. Earle Herrick of the band parents' organization.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 397,884
JUN 13 1955

ROLLAND TAPLEY
Conducts Old Timers Night
at Pops next week

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Ind. Democrat
Circ. 226,942
JUN 12 1955

Edwin Biltcliffe will play the piano tomorrow at Harvard night, at the Pops.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071
JUN 12 1955

ROLLAND TAPLEY, guest conductor of the Pops on Old Timers' Night, Saturday evening, at Symphony Hall.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

Progress of the Pops

American Première Scheduled

The first performance in America of Turina's "Rapsodia Sinfonica" for piano and string orchestra will be presented at the Pops Tuesday evening in the first concert of the week open to the public. Sunday evening concerts are to be omitted for the remainder of the season, beginning tomorrow. Monday evening has been reserved by the Harvard class of 1930. On that night Edwin Biltcliffe will be piano soloist in Liszt's Hungarian Fantasy. The next closed concert will be on Thursday which has been reserved by Israel Histadrut.

Arthur Fiedler will conduct the concerts next week with three exceptions. Richard Hayman will direct his own compositions, the last three numbers, on Tuesday evening's program. Harry John Brown will be guest conductor on Wednesday evening, and Rolland Tapley will lead the Old Timers' Night on Saturday evening, June 18, when the audience will be invited to join in the singing.

Leo Litwin will be piano soloist Tuesday evening in the "Rapsodia." Ivan Davis, Jr., will be heard in the first movement of Tchaikovsky's Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 1 on Friday evening. Armando Ghitalla will play the trumpet in "TheCarnival of Venice," at the Saturday evening concert. Mr. Davis, a native of Texas, is winner of the 1955 Young Artist Auditions award of the National Federation of Music Clubs.

The programs:

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872
JUN 11 1955

Edwin Biltcliffe will play Liszt's Hungarian Fantasy at Harvard Night at the Pops Monday evening.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 509,171 - S. 1,117,392
JUN 11 1955

Music: Brandeis Fete

Milhaud Is Top Figure at University Event

By HOWARD TAUBMAN
Special to The New York Times.

WALTHAM, Mass., June 10—No preachment or counsel for the college graduate in June was intended, but marriage got some attention last night at Brandeis University's third Festival of the Creative Arts.

The allusions came during an orchestral concert, an unexpected place to be concerned with marriage. But there it was. First it was called to the imagination in a spirit of golden-hued ecstacy by Darius Milhand's "Cantate Nuptiale." Then it was touched upon by Paul Hindemith in his Concerto for Woodwind, Harp and Orchestra in a humorous, if not satiric vein. In the final movement of this piece, Hindemith has the clarinet quoting Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" with a straight face, as it were, while all around it there is a busy, unfeeling, seemingly unrelated chatter by other instruments.

The concert could not have been planned to pronounce this sort of yes-and-no judgment on a sanctified institution. What were the young men and women, facing a brave new world, to make of it? Let us hope they were indulgent with the whims of composers and program makers.

This was, in fact, a lively, well made program, with the emphasis on unfamiliar music. It indicated that the Brandeis festival continues to be enterprising, and the week's events bear out this finding.

•

There is an art exhibition, involving three different collections. Several nights ago, Maurice Valency's play "The Thracian Horses" was performed by a professional cast. Sessions are being devoted to the art film, the modern novel and modern poetry. There was a concert this afternoon of compositions by student composers—Halim El-Dabh, Jack Gottlieb, Mary Sadovnikoff and Charles C. Jones. And tomorrow night there will be an opera, "Medea," and a ballet, "Salade," both by Milhaud.

The French composer, who conducted two of his works last night, is thus the star figure of the musical aspects of the festival. His Concerto for Percussion and Small Orchestra, performed last night, proved to be a charming piece. Written twenty-five years ago and using this combination of instruments, it would be, you might expect, something noisy and smart-alecky. Not at all: It employs folk-like material with skill and sensitivity, and the battery of percussion is used not for noise or shock effect but for subtle color and contrast.

•

Milhaud, who is obliged to sit while conducting because of ill health, gave the piece a sparkling performance. The festival orchestra, which has some solo players from the Boston Symphony, played with precision, and Everett Firth was an adroit percussionist. The slow section was particularly imaginative and rewarding.

Adele Addison was the soprano soloist in the "Cantate Nuptiale," which Milhaud wrote in 1937 for his parents' golden wedding anniversary. With a text from "The Song of Solomon," it is a free-flowing, affectionate tribute. It had its first United States performance last night, and it would bear further acquaintance. Miss Addison sang the high vocal line with accuracy and a touch of the ecstatic quality it needed.

Adele Addison

•

Izler Solomon conducted the rest of the program. It contained a divertimento based on the old English tune "Sellinger's Round," by Michael Tippett, an English composer enjoying a vogue in his own land these days. This piece, which also had its United States première, attempts to blend archaic forms with modern ideas. Though occasionally attractive, it ends by being unsatisfying.

Serenade Concertane, a one-movement piece by Arthur Berger of the Brandeis faculty, is sprightly, sure-handed in its modernism and instrumentation. It reminds one a little of Copland, but it has character of its own.

Mr. Solomon and his orchestra gave good performances of these works, the Hindemith piece and Mozart's "Haffner" Serenade, even though there was the handicap of having had to play the concert in the gym, whose acoustics are not ideal for concerts, instead of in the outdoor amphitheatre, because of threatening weather.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 397,884
JUN 13 1955

New Scores At the Pops

The Pop Concerts in Symphony Hall continue each night except Sundays, under the direction of Arthur Fiedler.

Tonight's concert has been taken over by the Harvard class of 1930. Israel Histadrut has taken the concert of Thursday, June 16.

Richard Hayman, composer of TViana, will conduct his own numbers on Tuesday, in which concert Leo Litwin will introduce to America a rhapsody by the Spanish composer Turina.

Harry John Brown will conduct as guest on Wednesday. Otherwise, Arthur Fiedler who has returned to his place, will conduct except on Saturday, when Rolland Tapley will lead in the Old Timers' Night and invite the audience to sing

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593
JUN 13 1955

Take It from Me

Says Mayor Hynes

(Batting for Neal O'Hara)

A WALK DOWN MEMORY LANE: What Americans are known for these appellations? 1. The Master Diplomat? 2. The Silver-Tongued Commoner? 3. The Great Trail Blazer? Answers below.

Six years ago, when Boston voters first elected me to my present post, and before the years began to fly by with such alarming rapidity, the once luxuriant, naturally-marcelled hair on the noble noggin of Neal O'Hara was as black as the heart of the top-boy in the Kremlin. Today, like the snows of yesteryear, Neal's shining, black locks have disappeared to be replaced by a capping of distinctive, iron-grey, which our novelists are wont to describe as symbolizing mental strength, mature acumen, and mundane perspicacity. Be that as it may. The truth, with which politicians have a bowing acquaintanceship, compels me to report that no longer does our Neal have that dashing, debonair, devil-may-care appearance as he strolls along Tremont St. on an early summer afternoon. No longer, sad to relate, do the fair and beautiful damsels cast discreet, though admiring glances at our Neal as he ambles along on his elevator heels, with a roguish twinkle in his eye. No longer can our Neal conceal the fact that his figure is a trifle portly, his eyes a little rheumy and his step slightly lacking in the jauntiness of youth.

HYNES

It is of no avail that his admirers join in the chorus of that old refrain, "Backward, turn backward, oh, time in thy flight. . . !" for time hears no master's voice. It marches on, and in its wake, it has not dealt mercilessly, but kindly with our Neal, who is still as convivial, still as zestful, still as blithe a spirit as he was when he was the proper Bostonian counterpart of Rudolph Valentino. Indeed, it is not unusual for sedate Beacon St. ladies who take their constitutional along the elm-lined walks of Boston Common to mistake our Neal for a visiting ambassador, a member of Parliament or a matinee idol going gently over the hill.

Yes, our Neal, despite the suggestion of a growing aldermanic paunch, is as buoyantly youthful today as he was in the days when the Traveler was one cent per copy and the Boston tax rate one-third of what it is today. He is still the happy, unpredictable combination of Peck's Bad Boy and Little Lord Fauntleroy, with a dash of Jimmy Cagney thrown in. Time, the villain who steals our vitality and dulls our perceptions, has been kind to Neal, for his humor, known far and wide, is just as quick and lusty, as keen and subtle, as clean and refreshing as it was when he was Master of the Laundry at Harvard many years ago, and where he coined that poignant and climactic phrase, "No checkee, no washee."

The ravages of time have yet to leave their mark on the O'Hara humor. It can be as giddy and as graceful as the swoop of the swan or as fearful and as frightening as the charge of the eagle. It can also be as capricious and distorted as it is once each year when he prevails upon an innocent admirer, like myself, to write this column. Were I possessed of less vanity and more judgment and wisdom, and had I recalled that old maxim, "Let the shoemaker stick to his last," I would not have undertaken the role of substitute for O'Hara.

But, like Izzy Ort, "I wuz t'inkin." Even the destructive nuclear power that makes up today's devastating bombs can be turned to good use. So can the odd sense of O'Hara humor, which brings me to these pages, and which has its intriguing possibilities and its boundless opportunities. Who knows, perhaps writing this column will open for me the long-shut door of other and more glorious adventures far removed from the political field, strewn as it is with the bones of guys who went into battle just once too often.

Who knows, perhaps the most interesting years of my life are unfolding. Perhaps, one day, in emulation of O'Hara, the genius of the baton, Arthur Fiedler, may invite me to take over the Pops; or Lloyd Brace may ask me to take charge of the money vaults at the First National; or Joe Cronin beg me to twirl against the Yankees; or Burt Stanbro present me with the keys to the Statler, including those to the wine cellar; or Pat McGinnis implore me to run his two railroads for 24 hours; or Joe Spang advise me to look, feel and be sharp by taking over his job at Gillette; or Dr. Roy Heffernan turn over his bag of tools and set me loose in the operating room at the Carney. The possibilities are limitless. The area for adventure infinite.

As a substitute for Fiedler, and the others, how fortified with varied experience would I be as I presented myself to the voters on this election year, and how such experience would strengthen my cause. Unwittingly and innocently, O'Hara has become the fifth wheel on the Hynes campaign coach. And even though my shortcomings and stupidities become grossly apparent on every substitute job I undertook, there would still be a bright side to the picture, for I suspect there would arise a general demand to keep Hynes at City Hall where he can do the least harm. It might well be that the cry of the hour would be, "Keep Hynes at City Hall!" Fond mothers might even seek to calm and comfort the little ones by the assurance that the big wind had passed, the Black Douglas had gone his way and Hynes was once again safely and securely ensconced at City Hall.

FIEDLER

Forgive me, Neal. This will teach you that a politician can also have an odd sense of humor in an election year.

Answers to above: 1. John Adams, first Ambassador to England, and second President of the United States. A Quincy boy and the first of the Adamses to make good. . . . 2. William Jennings Bryan. Twice a candidate for President. No luck. Remembered for fa[illegible] oration, "Cross of Gold." . . . 3. Daniel B[oone] With due apologies to memory of [Davy] Crockett, the real king of the wild frontie[r]

Neal O'Hara is on vacation. During this period "Take It from Me" will be writ[ten] by his guest columnists.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000
JUN 14 1955

HARVARD NIGHT AT THE POPS—Mrs. Richard Barbour of Canton, Charles Chase, whose wood carving is displayed at Fogg Museum, and Pres. and Mrs. Alan Brown of Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y., at last night's 25th reunion dinner and concert at Symphony Hall.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 397,884
JUN 14 1955

Famed Hub musician, Richard Hayman, musical director for Mercury Records, will be guest conductor Tuesday night at The Pops for Conductor Arthur Fiedler.

[87]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,241
JUN 12 1955

Pops Programs

The Pops Concerts in Symphony Hall continue each night except Sundays, under the direction of Arthur Fiedler. Tomorrow night's concert has been taken over by the Harvard class of 1930 and Israel Histadrut has taken the concert of Thursday, June 16. Richard Hayman, composer of TViana, will conduct his own numbers on Tuesday, in which concert pianist Leo Litwin will introduce to America a Rhapsody by the Spanish composer Turina.

Harry John Brown will conduct as guest on Wednesday. Otherwise, Arthur Fiedler, who has returned to his place, will conduct, except on Saturday when Rolland Tapley will lead in the Old Timers' Night and invite the audience to sing in the selections of old favorites.

The programs follow:

Tuesday — Up the Street, March, Morse; Overture to "Fingal's Cave," Mendelssohn; Sunrise, from "Grand Canyon Suite," Grofe; Prelude to "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg," Wagner; Suite from "Graduation Ball," Strauss; Rapsodia Sinfonica for Piano and String Orchestra, Turina (first performance in America), (soloist, Leo Litwin); Bolero, Ravel. Richard Hayman conducting. TV Potpourri, arranged by Hayman; Let 'er Go, Lover, Carson-Hayman; No Strings Attached, Hayman.

Wednesday (Harry John Brown conducting)—Procession of Bacchus from "Sylvia," Delibes; Overture to "The Merry Wives of Windsor," Nicolai; The Two Shepherds, Robinson; Suite from "Gaite Parisienne," Offenbach; The Moldau, Symphonic Poem, Smetana; Intermezzo, Sinfonico from "Cavalleria Rusticana," Mascagni; Polovetzian Dances from "Prince Igor," Borodin; Richard Rodgers Waltzes, Anderson; TViana, Hayman; Polka from "The Bartered Bride," Smetana.

Friday — American Salute, Gilmore-Gould; El Salon Mexico, Copland; Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No 1 in B-flat minor, Op. 23 (First Movement) Tchaikovsky (Soloist: Ivan Davis Jr.); Suite from "Graduation Ball," Strauss; On the Trail from "Grand Canyon Suite," Grofe; The Sorcerer's Apprentice, Dukas; Popsorama, Arr. by Mason; Let 'er Go, Lover, Carson-Hayman; Davy Crockett, Bruns-Hayman.

Saturday (Old Timers' Night, Rolland Tapley conducting) — Entrance of the Gladiators, Fucik; Overture to "Phedre," Massenet; Virginia, A Southern Rhapsody, Wood; The Carnival of Venice (Trumpet Solo: Armando Ghitalla), Arr. by Staigers; Overture Solennelle, 1812, Tchaikovsky; The Glowworm, Lincke; Old Timers' Night at the Pops, Arr. by Lake; Victor Herbert Favorites, Arr. by Sanford; St. Louis Blues, Handy-McBride; Song Fest Medley, Arr. by Bodge.

OLLAND TAPLEY guest conducts the Boston Pops in "Old Timer's Night" next Saturday evening.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

JUN 13 1955

Take It from Me

Says Mayor Hynes

(Batting for Neal O'Hara)

A WALK DOWN MEMORY LANE: What Americans are known for these appellations? 1. The Master Diplomat? 2. The Silver-Tongued Commoner? 3. The Great Trail Blazer? Answers below.

Six years ago, when Boston voters first elected me to my present post, and before the years began to fly by with such alarming rapidity, the once luxuriant, naturally-marcelled hair on the noble noggin of Neal O'Hara was as black as the heart of the top-boy in the Kremlin. Today, like the snows of yesteryear, Neal's shining, black locks have disappeared to be replaced by a capping of distinctive, iron-grey, which our novelists are wont to describe as symbolizing mental strength, mature acumen, and mundane perspicacity. Be that as it may. The truth, with which politicians have a bowing acquaintanceship, compels me to report that no longer does our Neal have that dashing, debonair, devil-may-care appearance as he strolls along Tremont St. on an early summer afternoon. No longer, sad to relate, do the fair and beautiful damsels cast discreet, though admiring glances at our Neal as he ambles along on his elevator heels, with a roguish twinkle in his eye. No longer can our Neal conceal the fact that his figure is a trifle portly, his eyes a little rheumy and his step slightly lacking in the jauntiness of youth.

HYNES

It is of no avail that his admirers join in the chorus of that old refrain, "Backward, turn backward, oh, time in thy flight. . . !" for time hears no master's voice. It marches on, and in its wake, it has not dealt mercilessly, but kindly with our Neal, who is still as convivial, still as zestful, still as blithe a spirit as he was when he was the proper Bostonian counterpart of Rudolph Valentino. Indeed, it is not unusual for sedate Beacon St. ladies who take their constitutional along the elm-lined walks of Boston Common to mistake our Neal for a visiting ambassador, a member of Parliament or a matinee idol going gently over the hill.

Yes, our Neal, despite the suggestion of a growing aldermanic paunch, is as buoyantly youthful today as he was in the days when the Traveler was one cent per copy and the Boston tax rate one-third of what it is today. He is still the happy, unpredictable combination of Peck's Bad Boy and Little Lord Fauntleroy, with a dash of Jimmy Cagney thrown in. Time, the villain who steals our vitality and dulls our perceptions, has been kind to Neal, for his humor, known far and wide, is just as quick and lusty, as keen and subtle, as clean and refreshing as it was when he was Master of the Laundry at Harvard many years ago, and where he coined that poignant and climactic phrase, "No checkee, no washee."

The ravages of time have yet to leave their mark on the O'Hara humor. It can be as giddy and as graceful as the swoop of the swan or as fearful and as frightening as the charge of the eagle. It can also be as capricious and distorted as it is once each year when he prevails upon an innocent admirer, like myself, to write this column. Were I possessed of less vanity and more judgment and wisdom, and had I recalled that old maxim, "Let the shoemaker stick to his last," I would not have undertaken the role of substitute for O'Hara.

But, like Izzy Ort, "I wuz t'inkin." Even the destructive nuclear power that makes up today's devastating bombs can be turned to good use. So can the odd sense of O'Hara humor, which brings me to these pages, and which has its intriguing possibilities and its boundless opportunities. Who knows, perhaps writing this column will open for me the long-shut door of other and more glorious adventures far removed from the political field, strewn as it is with the bones of guys who went into battle just once too often.

Who knows, perhaps the most interesting years of my life are unfolding. Perhaps, one day, in emulation of O'Hara, the genius of the baton, Arthur Fiedler, may invite me to take over the Pops; or Lloyd Brace may ask me to take charge of the money vaults at the First National; or Joe Cronin beg me to twirl against the Yankees; or Burt Stanbro present me with the keys to the Statler, including those to the wine cellar; or Pat McGinnis implore me to run his two railroads for 24 hours; or Joe Spang advise me to look, feel and be sharp by taking over his job at Gillette; or Dr. Roy Heffernan turn over his bag of tools and set me loose in the operating room at the Carney. The possibilities are limitless. The area for adventure infinite.

As a substitute for Fiedler, and the others, how fortified with varied experience would I be as I presented myself to the voters on this election year, and how such experience would strengthen my cause. Unwittingly and innocently, O'Hara has become the fifth wheel on the Hynes campaign coach. And even though my shortcomings and stupidities become grossly apparent on every substitute job I undertook, there would still be a bright side to the picture, for I suspect there would arise a general demand to keep Hynes at City Hall where he can do the least harm. It might well be that the cry of the hour would be, "Keep Hynes at City Hall!" Fond mothers might even seek to calm and comfort the little ones by the assurance that the big wind had passed, the Black Douglas had gone his way and Hynes was once again safely and securely ensconced at City Hall.

FIEDLER

Forgive me, Neal. This will teach you that a politician can also have an odd sense of humor in an election year.

Answers to above: 1. John Adams, first Ambassador to England, and second President of the United States. A Quincy boy and the first of the Adamses to make good. . . . 2. William Jennings Bryan. Twice a candidate for President. No luck. Remembered for famous oration, "Cross of Gold." . . . 3. Daniel Boone. With due apologies to memory of Davy Crockett, the real king of the wild frontier.

Neal O'Hara is on vacation. During this period "Take It from Me" will be written by his guest columnists.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

JUN 14 1955

HARVARD NIGHT AT THE POPS—Mrs. Richard Barbour of Canton, Charles Chase, whose wood carving is displayed at Fogg Museum, and Pres. and Mrs. Alan Brown of Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y., at last night's 25th reunion dinner and concert at Symphony Hall.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,241

JUN 12 1955

Pops Programs

The Pops Concerts in Symphony Hall continue each night except Sundays, under the direction of Arthur Fiedler. Tomorrow night's concert has been taken over by the Harvard class of 1930 and Israel Histadrut has taken the concert of Thursday, June 16. Richard Hayman, composer of TViana, will conduct his own numbers on Tuesday, in which concert pianist Leo Litwin will introduce to America a Rhapsody by the Spanish composer Turina.

Harry John Brown will conduct as guest on Wednesday. Otherwise, Arthur Fiedler, who has returned to his place, will conduct, except on Saturday when Rolland Tapley will lead in the Old Timers' Night and invite the audience to sing in the selections of old favorites.

The programs follow:

Tuesday — Up the Street, March, Morse; Overture to "Fingal's Cave," Mendelssohn; Sunrise, from "Grand Canyon Suite," Grofe; Prelude to "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg," Wagner; Suite from "Graduation Ball," Strauss; Rapsodia Sinfonica for Piano and String Orchestra, Turina (first performance in America), (soloist, Leo Litwin); Bolero, Ravel. Richard Hayman conducting. TV Potpourri, arranged by Hayman; Let 'er Go, Lover, Carson–Hayman; No Strings Attached, Hayman.

Wednesday (Harry John Brown conducting)—Procession of Bacchus from "Sylvia," Delibes; Overture to "The Merry Wives of Windsor," Nicolai; The Two Shepherds, Robinson. Suite from "Gaite Parisienne," Offenbach; The Moldau, Symphonic Poem, Smetana; Intermezzo, Sinfonico from "Cavalleria Rusticana," Mascagni; Polovetzian Dances from "Prince Igor," Borodin; Richard Rodgers Waltzes, Anderson; TViana, Hayman; Polka from "The Bartered Bride," Smetana.

Friday — American Salute, Gilmore-Gould; El Salon Mexico, Copland; Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No 1 in B-flat minor, Op. 23 (First Movement) Tchaikovsky (Soloist: Ivan Davis Jr.) Suite from "Graduation Ball," Strauss. On the Trail from "Grand Canyon Suite," Grofe; The Sorcerer's Apprentice, Dukas; Popsorama, Arr. by Mason; Let 'er Go, Lover, Carson–Hayman. Davy Crockett, Bruns–Hayman.

Saturday (Old Timers' Night, Rolland Tapley conducting) — Entrance of the Gladiators, Fucik; Overture to "Phedre," Massenet; Virginia, A Southern Rhapsody, Wood; The Carnival of Venice (Trumpet Solo: Armando Ghitalla), Arr. by Staigers; Overture Solennelle, 1812, Tchaikovsky; The Glowworm, Lincke; Old Timers' Night at the Pops, Arr. by Lake; Victor Herbert Favorites, Arr. by Sanford; St. Louis Blues, Handy–McBride; Song Fest Medley, Arr. by Bodge.

ROLLAND TAPLEY guest conducts the Boston Pops in "Old Timer's Night" next Saturday evening.

[87]

MIAMI BEACH, FLA.
SUN
Circ. D. 7,310 - S. 7,310
JUN 12 1955

JESUS SANROMA

DANNY DANIELS

JOHN BITTER

LEROY ANDERSON

Music Lovers Ready For Start Of Summer Symphony Concerts

The fifth season of summer Pops concerts by the University of Miami Summer Symphony, John Bitter, musical director, will begin on June 19 and continue for 10 consecutive Sunday evenings at the Miami Beach auditorium.

The first concert, June 19, will be conducted by Morton Gould with Danny Daniels, well known young dancer, as soloist performing Mr. Gould's "Tap Dance Concerto."

Arthur Fiedler, director of the famous Boston Pops Orchestra, will be guest conductor on Aug. 7 and 14 and Leroy Anderson, composer and conductor, will direct the July 3 and 10 programs.

John Bitter, permanent conductor of the University of Miami symphony orchestra, is planning an "Opera Night" for his first concert on July 17. He will introduce six young artists of the Miami Opera Guild: Shirley Ward, coloratura; Jenny Lou Corris, mezzo soprano; Fred Cushman, tenor; George Gibson, basso; Ted Morrill, tenor and Robert Medaris, baritone.

Mr. Bitter's second concert on July 24 will feature Joan Field, violinist, and the July 31 program will be a repeat of the popular "Gershwin Night." Sanroma, pianist, will appear as soloist as he has done in the past. The fourth and last concert conducted by John Bitter will take place on Aug. 21 and will be a "Viennese Night" with Robert Mueller, a young California pianist, as soloist.

As in the past, tables of eight are available as well as single seats at tables and, this year, there will be 300 unreserved seats in the back of the auditorium, the mezzanine will be reserved. Tickets may be ordered through the Symphony office or the auditorium.

ARTHUR FIEDLER

MORTON GOULD

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,711
JUN 12 1955

Rabbi Joseph B. Soloveitchik and Rabbi Max Kirshblum, president of the American Mizrachi organization, will address the jubilee convention of the New England Mizrachi Region next Sunday at the Sherry Biltmore Hotel.

It will be an all-day meeting, with a dinner in the evening.

The annual leadership conclave sponsored by the Greater Boston Council of B'nai B'rith next Sunday at Brandeis University, will be dedicated to Rabbi Maurice L. Zigmond, New England Hillel director, who is leaving later this month for Israel where he will become director of the Hillel Foundation at the Hebrew University, in Jerusalem.

There will be a group of workshops and an outdoor luncheon during which Clarence Berger, can of the university, will speak. A campus tour is scheduled.

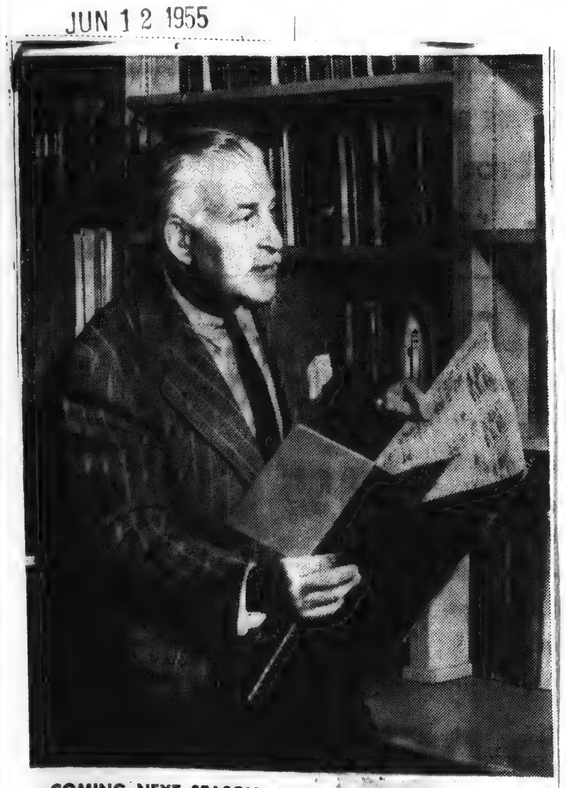
The Greater Boston Israel Hista Committee will hold its annual Pops Night at Symphony Hall Thursday evening.

Samuel D. Shapiro of Brookline is chairman and Oscar Sterman is honorary chairman of the event, proceeds of which will help to maintain the medical work conducted by the Histadrut, Israel's pioneering organization, through Kupat Cholim, its own health system.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559
JUN 14 1955

WINTHROP NATIVE Richard Hayman will lead the Boston Pops Orchestra in three of his own compositions at Symphony Hall tonight.

PASADENA, CALIF.
STAR-NEWS
Circ. D. 38,685 - S. 37,800
JUN 12 1955



COMING NEXT SEASON—As one of the leading events of Elmer Wilson's 22nd annual concert series at Civic Auditorium next season, Arthur Fiedler (above) will bring his famed Boston Pops Orchestra to Pasadena. Fiedler will be remembered here as guest conductor at the first concert of the Junior League Pasadena Pops at Santa Anita Race Track.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Courant
HARTFORD, Conn.
Republican
Circ. 130,826
JUN 12 1955

Maestro's Advice

I AM A CONDUCTOR — By Charles Munch; Oxford University Press; $2.75; 101 pp.

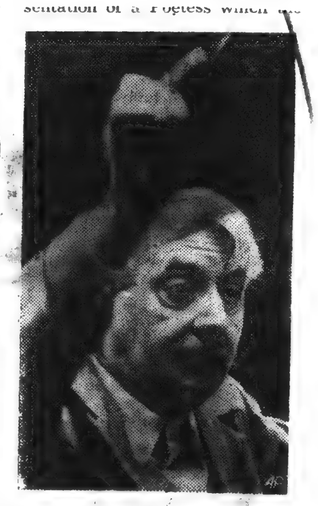
Reviewed by

ROBERT E. SMITH

The Conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra is often asked, he says in this book, "How do you become a conductor?' His answer is, 'It takes enthusiasm, love, patience and work." He also adds that luck had a great deal to do with it in his case, and further advises that anyone interested in becoming a conductor should not do it his way!

His years of apprenticeship, of conducting world renowned orchestras, his thoughts on putting together symphonic programs, and all the problems a conductor meets before facing an audience are discussed by Mr. Munch in a delightfully personal manner.

He speaks with authority and anyone interested in conducting as a profession or just interested in Mr. Munch and his work will enjoy this interesting little book.



Charles Munch is the author of "I Am A Conductor," published by Oxford University Press.

[88]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 14 19..

Ivan Davis, Jr., winner of the 1955 Young Artist Auditions award of the National Federation of Music Clubs, will be piano soloist in Tchaikovsky's Concerto No. 1 at the Pops on Friday evening.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-420(

News (e)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Democratic
Circ. 91,975

JUN 14 1955

THE DAILY NEWS MAILBOX

All communications for use in this column MUST carry the complete name and street address of the writer, though pen names will be permitted at the editor's discretion. To be acceptable, letters must be brief, legible and written on one side of the paper. Unsigned letters will be ignored.

ORCHESTRA ASSN. REPORT

To the Editor of The Daily News:

The Springfield Orchestra Association has served young and old alike in inviting them to participate in its activities as a performer, as a listener or as a supporter.

The first of these activities is the professional orchestra—the Springfield Symphony Orchestra. This past season was another very successful one musically and during our period of financial crisis, its members co-operated fully.

Another key activity is the Young People's Symphony. These youthful musicians completed their season again in a manner which has earned them the admiration and respect of the community.

The Symphony Chorus, an integral part of the association's activities, completed its season with high musical successes. At their annual banquet on May 16, Hugh Ross invited the chorus to sing Beethoven's Ninth Symphony with the Berkshire Festival Chorus and the Boston Symphony Orchestra this summer. This will be the second appearance for the chorus at Tanglewood.

During the first part of February, the New England Conservatory Scholarship given through the Springfield Symphony Orchestra was again awarded. This year it was given to a member of the clarinet section of the Young People's Symphony.

The value of such an organization like the Springfield Orchestra Association should not be questioned. The material things of life are necessary but in addition to these we need spiritual and cultural uplifting. The founder of this overall musical program felt these needs and did something about them. Dr. Alexander Leslie gave unselfishly and untiringly of his energies to his chosen profession. The accomplishments today of the association could not have been achieved by Dr. Leslie alone.

I would personally like to state my appreciation for the loyalty and generosity of each member of the following organizations: Board of Directors, Symphony Office staff, Women's Division, Springfield Symphony, Young People's Symphony, Symphony Chorus, Hampden County Musicians Union, Springfield Newspapers, City of Springfield, radio stations, Springfield Public School system, Friends of Symphony, season ticket holders and numerous other friends with whom I have come in contact each day.

ARPPIE CHARKOUDIAN
Executive Secretary,
Springfield Symphony Orchestra

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Chronicle (e)
NORTH ATTLEBORO, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 4,000

JUN 14 1955

Clean Up Drive Planned At Church

Annual Spring Work Party To Be Held Tonight

ATTLEBORO—"Spring Clean-Up' 'will take place at the First Baptist Church tonight as the house committee dons it overalls and starts the annual spring cleaning of the church at 6:30.

At 7:30, senior choir members will leave from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Brown, 119 Bank Street, to attend the Boston Pops Concert in Boston.

The Margaret Cameron Philathea Class will leave the church at 6 P.M. tomorrow for their annual banquet at the Village Blacksmith Shop restaurant in Whitman. The Diaconate Board meeting will be held at the home of Louis Beggs at 86 East Bacon Street in Plainville at 8 o'clock tomorrow night.

Thursday afternoon at 2, the Ladies' Home Circle will leave the church for their annual outing. Church school pupils and families will leave the church at 1:30 Saturday afternoon for the annual picnic.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

NEW YORK, N. Y.
VARIETY

JUN 15 1955

Longhair 'Davy'

Boston, June 14.

"Davy Crockett" finally made it—in Boston, that is. Veteran Boston Pops conductor Arthur Fiedler, returning after an illness for his first full-dress program with the Boston Symphony Orch players June 5 at Symphony Hall, broke up the distinguished gathering headed by Gov. and Mrs. Christian A. Herter, when he donned a coonskin cap, brandished a rifle in one hand and a baton in the other, and directed a symphonic arrangement of "Davy Crockett" for his bow-off.

Fiedler's official return to the podium at the Pops, which he has been conducting for 26 years, was greeted with a standing ovation. Ailing since his return from a long Pops tour during the winter, the vet conductor has recovered in fine style.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

JUN 15 1955

Saturday Pops

ROLLAND TAPLEY will be guest conductor Saturday for Old Timers' Night at the Pops.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Item (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 21,384

JUN 15 1955

Rolland Tapley To Conduct Two "Pops" Programs

Music lovers of Greater Lynn will be interested in two coming concerts of the Boston "Pops" Orchestra at Symphony Hall in Boston when Rolland Tapley will be the guest conductor.

Mr. Tapley, first violinist of Boston Symphony, has become well-known and beloved by a wide circle of musicians and friends on the North Shore through his conducting of the North Shore Philharmonic from its inception. A group of Philharmonic players plan to attend the concert on Saturday.

Mr. Tapley will conduct Boston Pops on this Saturday and on Thursday, June 30. At the program on Saturday "The Carnival of Venice," arranged by Staigers, will be played as a trumpet solo by Armando Ghitalla, who will be remembered as guest artist at the Philharmonic's Spring concert at Lynn City Hall just two months ago.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Back Bay Ledger &
Beacon Hill Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,000 Free

JUN 16 1955

Pops Concerts Program Planned For Current Week

The Pops Concerts in Symphony Hall continue each night except Sundays under the direction of Arthur Fiedler. Monday night's concert was taken over by the Harvard class of 1930 and Israel Histadrut will take over the concert this evening.

Otherwise, Arthur Fiedler, who has returned to his place, will conduct except on Saturday when Rolland Tapley will lead the Old Timers' Night and invite the audience to sing in the selections of old favorites.

Programs for the week follow:

Friday evening, June 17, at

Continued on Page Three

...erin Rhapsody, by Wood; The Carnival of Venice arranged Staigers with trumpet solo by Armando Ghittalla; Overture Solennelle, 1812, by Tchaikovsky; The Glowworm by Lincke; Old Timers' Night at the Pops arranged by Lake; Victor Herbert Favorites arranged by Sanford; St. Louis Blues by Handy-MacBride; and Song Fest Medley arranged by Bodge.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

JUN 16 1955

Night at Pops

BOSTON ALUMNAE of Mt. St. Vincent, Mt. St. Mary and the College of New Rochelle will have a combined Night at the Pops tomorrow. Planning the affair are (left to right) Mrs. John Evans, Mt. St. Vincent; Mrs. John Lawlor, Mt. St. Vincent; Miss Nancy Carolan, College of New Rochelle; Mrs. Paul McCarthy of New Rochelle; and Mrs. Vincent Pitts, Mt. St. Mary.

Circ. 101,022

JUN 16 1955

To Attend "Pops"

The YWCA will sponsor a chartered bus trip Friday to the "Pops" concert in Boston. The bus will leave the "Y" at 6.30 p. m.

[89]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 14 19..

Ivan Davis, Jr., winner of the 1955 Young Artist Auditions award of the National Federation of Music Clubs, will be piano soloist in Tchaikovsky's Concerto No. 1 at the Pops on Friday evening.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Chronicle (e)
NORTH ATTLEBORO, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 4,000

JUN 14 1955

Clean Up Drive Planned At Church

Annual Spring Work Party To Be Held Tonight

ATTLEBORO—"Spring Clean-Up' 'will take place at the First Baptist Church tonight as the house committee dons it overalls and starts the annual spring cleaning of the church at 6:30.

At 7:30, senior choir members will leave from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Brown, 119 Bank Street, to attend the Boston Pops Concert in Boston.

The Margaret Cameron Philathea Class will leave the church at 6 P.M. tomorrow for their annual banquet at the Village Blacksmith Shop restaurant in Whitman. The Diaconate Board meeting will be held at the home of Louis Beggs at 86 East Bacon Street in Plainville at 8 o'clock tomorrow night.

Thursday afternoon at 2, the Ladies' Home Circle will leave the church for their annual outing. Church school pupils and families will leave the church at 1:30 Saturday afternoon for the annual picnic.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News (e)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Democratic
Circ. 91,975

JUN 14 1955

THE DAILY NEWS MAILBOX

All communications for use in this column MUST carry the complete name and street address of the writer, though pen names will be permitted at the editor's discretion. To be acceptable, letters must be brief, legible and written on one side of the paper. Unsigned letters will be ignored.

ORCHESTRA ASSN. REPORT

To the Editor of The Daily News:

The Springfield Orchestra Association has served young and old alike in inviting them to participate in its activities as a performer, as a listener or as a supporter.

The first of these activities is the professional orchestra—the Springfield Symphony Orchestra. This past season was another very successful one musically and during our period of financial crisis, its members co-operated fully.

Another key activity is the Young People's Symphony. These youthful musicians completed their season again in a manner which has earned them the admiration and respect of the community.

The Symphony Chorus, an integral part of the association's activities, completed its season with high musical successes. At their annual banquet on May 16, Hugh Ross invited the chorus to sing Beethoven's Ninth Symphony with the Berkshire Festival Chorus and the Boston Symphony Orchestra this summer. This will be the second appearance for the chorus at Tanglewood.

During the first part of February, the New England Conservatory Scholarship given through the Springfield Symphony Orchestra was again awarded. This year it was given to a member of the clarinet section of the Young People's Symphony.

The value of such an organization like the Springfield Orchestra Association should not be questioned. The material things of life are necessary but in addition to these we need spiritual and cultural uplifting. The founder of this overall musical program felt these needs and did something about them. Dr. Alexander Leslie gave unselfishly and untiringly of his energies to his chosen profession. The accomplishments today of the association could not have been achieved by Dr. Leslie alone.

I would personally like to state my appreciation for the loyalty and generosity of each member of the following organizations: Board of Directors, Symphony Office staff, Women's Division, Springfield Symphony, Young People's Symphony, Symphony Chorus, Hampden County Musicians Union, Springfield Newspapers, City of Springfield, radio stations, Springfield Public School system, Friends of Symphony, season ticket holders and numerous other friends with whom I have come in contact each day.

ARPPIE CHARKOUDIAN
Executive Secretary,
Springfield Symphony Orchestra

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

NEW YORK, N. Y.
VARIETY

JUN 15 1955

Longhair 'Davy'

Boston, June 14.

"Davy Crockett" finally made it—in Boston, that is. Veteran Boston Pops conductor Arthur Fiedler, returning after an illness for his first full-dress program with the Boston Symphony Orch players June 5 at Symphony Hall, broke up the distinguished gathering headed by Gov. and Mrs. Christian A. Herter, when he donned a coonskin cap, brandished a rifle in one hand and a baton in the other, and directed a symphonic arrangement of "Davy Crockett" for his bow-off.

Fiedler's official return to the podium at the Pops, which he has been conducting for 26 years, was greeted with a standing ovation. Ailing since his return from a long Pops tour during the winter, the vet conductor has recovered in fine style.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

JUN 15 1955

Saturday Pops

ROLLAND TAPLEY will be guest conductor Saturday for Old Timers' Night at the Pops.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Item (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 21,384

JUN 15 1955

Rolland Tapley To Conduct Two "Pops" Programs

Music lovers of Greater Lynn will be interested in two coming concerts of the Boston "Pops" Orchestra at Symphony Hall in Boston when Rolland Tapley will be the guest conductor.

Mr. Tapley, first violinist of Boston Symphony, has become well-known and beloved by a wide circle of musicians and friends on the North Shore through his conducting of the North Shore Philharmonic from its inception. A group of Philharmonic players plan to attend the concert on Saturday.

Mr. Tapley will conduct Boston Pops on this Saturday and on Thursday, June 30. At the program on Saturday "The Carnival of Venice," arranged by Staigers, will be played as a trumpet solo by Armando Ghitalla, who will be remembered as guest artist at the Philharmonic's Spring concert at Lynn City Hall just two months ago.

[89]

Pops Concerts

Continued from Page One

8:30 o'clock: American Salute (When Johnny Comes Marching Home Again) by Gilmore-Gould; El Salon Mexico by Copland; Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 1 in B flat minor, Op. 23, (first movement) by Tchaikovsky, soloist, Ivan Davis, Jr.; Suite from "Graduation Ball" by Strauss; On the Trail from "Grand Canyon Suite" by Grofe; The Sorcerer's Apprentice by Dukas; Popsorama; Let 'er Go, Lover, by Carson-Hayman; Davy Crockett by Bruns-Hayman.

Saturday evening, June 18, at 8:30 o'clock, Old Timers' Night: Entrance of the Gladiators by Fucik; Overture to Phedre by Massanet; Virginia, A Southern Rhapsody, by Wood; The Carnival of Venice arranged Staigers with trumpet solo by Armando Ghittalla; Overture Solennelle, 1812, by Tchaikovsky; The Glowworm by Lincke; Old Timers' Night at the Pops arranged by Lake; Victor Herbert Favorites arranged by Sanford; St. Louis Blues by Handy-MacBride; and Song Fest Medley arranged by Bodge.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

JUN 16 195..

Night at Pops

...Box 2078, Bo...

Gazette (e)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 101,022

JUN 16 1955

...MNAE of Mt. St. Vincent, Mt. St. Mary ...New Rochelle will have a combined ...row. Planning the affair are ... Mt. St. Vincent; Mrs., ...iss Nancy Carolan, ...ul McCarthy of New ..., Mt. St. Mary.

To Attend "Pops"

The YWCA will sponsor a chartered bus trip Friday to the "Pops" concert in Boston. The bus will leave the "Y" at 6.30 p. m.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sun
WATERTOWN, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,665

JUN 1 6 1955

"Armenian Night" At Pops

BERJ ZAMKOCHIAN, on the left, will again appear as organ soloist with Rouben Gregorian of Watertown, on the right, who will be guest conductor at the Boston Pops on Symphony Hall on Saturday evening, June 25.

Rouben Gregorian of 176 Spruce St., will again appear as guest conductor at the Pops at the third annual "Armenian Night", which will be held on Saturday evening, June 25, in Symphony Hall. Mr. Gregorian was the former conductor of the Teheran Symphony Orchestra of Iran and is presently a faculty member of the Boston Conservatory of Music. He is also choir director of the St. James Armenian Church, Watertown.

Appearing on the same program as soloists will be Berj Zamkochian, well-known organist and choir director of St. Theresa's Church, West Roxbury. Mr. Zamkochian has been the recipient of a teaching fellowship at the New England Conservatory and he recently presented an organ recital in the Methuen Memorial Music Hall.

Miss Agnes Dadekian, the accomplished soprano soloist of the St. James Armenian Church, will make her debut at the Pops, singing and operatic area from one of the well-known operas. Miss Dadekian has appeared on the concert stage and on radio.

A large committee is working diligently to make the event a success. Tickets may be obtained from Bob Hagopian, 51 Garfield St., Watertown.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Townsman
WELLESLEY, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 5614

JUN 16 1955

Community Orchestra Members Enjoyed Sunday Outing

The sizzle of hamburgers and hot dogs cooking made pleasant music when about 35 members of the Wellesley Community Orchestra, their spouses and friends gathered for the annual outing at the William H. Vogler's picnic grove on Old Farm road last Sunday evening.

While the threat of showers hung over the skies, there was no let-up of fun and merry-making as the orchestra folk gathered around the long table decked with a red checked cloth, with a basket of Sweet William for a centerpiece, to partake of the great variety of home-made salads. Eleanor and Bill Vogler as genial hosts did not need to do any coaxing to get the folks to make quick work of the outdoor grille cookery.

Conductor Rolland Tapley was in a particularly affable mood, for he had no Pops concert that evening. Incidentally, this coming Saturday evening Conductor Tapley makes his first appearance as guest conductor of the Boston Pops in a particularly enjoyable program for "Old Timers' Night." There will be plenty of singing at this concert and the loudest voices will come from the large contingent of Wellesley Community Orchestra members who plan to attend in a body. Conductor Tapley will also preside over the podium at another Pops concert on June 30.

Members of the food committee for the picnic included: Mrs. Theodore Wegerdt, Mrs. William Kline, Mrs. Charles Williams, Mrs. Herbert Tabbut, Mrs. Melvin Morse, Miss Doris Volland, John Graham and Robert Birkenstock.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 106,508

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

JUN 17 1955

"POPS" SOLOIST — Winner of the 1955 award of the American Federation of Music Clubs, Ivan Davis Jr., flew in today from Albuquerque, N. M., to solo at the "Pops" tonight in Tchaikowsky's First Piano Concerto.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Independent
STONEHAM, Mass.

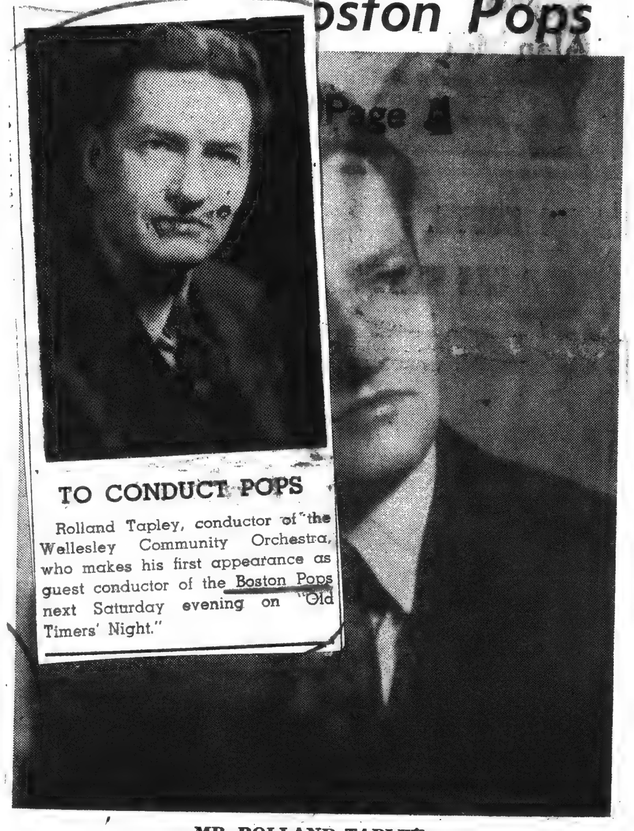
New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Townsman
WELLESLEY, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 5614

JUN 16

...pley To ...oston Pops

...Page A



TO CONDUCT POPS

Rolland Tapley, conductor of the Wellesley Community Orchestra, who makes his first appearance as guest conductor of the Boston Pops next Saturday evening on "Old Timers' Night."

MR. ROLLAND TAPLEY

Rolland Tapley, director of the Stoneham Junior and Senior High School orchestra, will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra at Symphony Hall Saturday night. The program will be broadcast on a national hookup over the National Broadcasting Co. and will be heard in Boston over Station WBZ.

Many Stonehamites are expected to attend and an Old Timers' Night program will be presented. Mr. Tapley will be guest conductor again on Thursday, June 30.

When sixteen, after intensive study of his instrument with the eminent Austrian, Felix Winternitz, Rolland (pronounced as in Holland) Tapley made his first tour as a soloist in the United States and in the following year through the Canadian provinces.

At eighteen he became a member of that brilliant and exacting organization — the Boston Symphony Orchestra, where he has since been made a first violinist under the baton of Serge Koussevitzky. He was soloist with the "Pops" orchestra at Symphony Hall in the Mendelssohn Concerto and Lalo's "Symphony Espagnole," was formerly a member of the Chardon String Quartet, and now directs various "Symphony Group" chamber-music ensembles.

Critics see Mr. Tapley not only as an authoritative musician but as "a man of youthful heart, unaffected by the enviable position he has attained, who is ever keeping his eyes toward the horizon."

In addition to his duties as one of the leading violinists of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Mr. Tapley is also first violinist of the Tanglewood Quartet, distinguished chamber music group, organized at Tanglewood in the Berkshires under the sponsorship of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, former conductor of the Boston Symphony.

On several other occasions, Mr. Tapley has been guest conductor of the "Pops" at Symphony Hall and the "Fiedler at 4:30" broadcast at the Opera House. He formerly directed the North Shore Philharmonic Orchestra in addition to his duties with the Boston Symphony. He has been director of the Stoneham High School Orchestra since October, 1940.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sun
WATERTOWN, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,565

JUN 16 1955

"Armenian Night" At Pops

BERJ ZAMKOCHIAN, on the left, will again appear as organ soloist with Rouben Gregorian of Watertown, on the right, who will be guest conductor at the Boston Pops on Symphony Hall on Saturday evening, June 25.

Rouben Gregorian of 176 Spruce St., will again appear as guest conductor at the Pops at the third annual "Armenian Night", which will be held on Saturday evening, June 25, in Symphony Hall. Mr. Gregorian was the former conductor of the Teheran Symphony Orchestra of Iran and is presently a faculty member of the Boston Conservatory of Music. He is also choir director of the St. James Armenian Church, Watertown.

Appearing on the same program as soloists will be Berj Zamkochian, well-known organist and choir director of St. Theresa's Church, West Roxbury. Mr. Zamkochian has been the recipient of a teaching fellowship at the New England Conservatory and he recently presented an organ recital in the Methuen Memorial Music Hall.

Miss Agnes Dadekian, the accomplished soprano soloist of the St. James Armenian Church, will make her debut at the Pops, singing and operatic area from one of the well-known operas. Miss Dadekian has appeared on the concert stage and on radio.

A large committee is working diligently to make the event a success. Tickets may be obtained from Bob Hagopian, 51 Garfield St., Watertown.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Townsman
WELLESLEY, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 5614

JUN 16 1955

Community Orchestra Members Enjoyed Sunday Outing

The sizzle of hamburgers and hot dogs cooking made pleasant music when about 35 members of the Wellesley Community Orchestra, their spouses and friends gathered for the annual outing at the William H. Vogler's picnic grove on Old Farm road last Sunday evening.

While the threat of showers hung over the skies, there was no let-up of fun and merry-making as the orchestra folk gathered around the long table decked with a red checked cloth, with a basket of Sweet William for a centerpiece, to partake of the great variety of home-made salads. Eleanor and Bill Vogler as genial hosts did not need to do any coaxing to get the folks to make quick work of the outdoor grille cookery.

Conductor Rolland Tapley was in a particularly affable mood, for he had no Pops concert that evening. Incidentally, this coming Saturday evening Conductor Tapley makes his first appearance as guest conductor of the Boston Pops in a particularly enjoyable program for "Old Timers' Night." There will be plenty of singing at this concert and the loudest voices will come from the large contingent of Wellesley Community Orchestra members who plan to attend in a body. Conductor Tapley will also preside over the podium at another Pops concert on June 30.

Members of the food committee for the picnic included: Mrs. Theodore Wegerdt, Mrs. William Kline, Mrs. Charles Williams, Mrs. Herbert Tabbut, Mrs. Melvin Morse, Miss Doris Volland, John Graham and Robert Birkenstock.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 108,508

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

JUN 17 1955

"POPS" SOLOIST — Winner of the 1955 award of the American Federation of Music Clubs, Ivan Davis Jr., flew in today from Albuquerque, N. M., to solo at the "Pops" tonight in Tchaikowsky's First Piano Concerto.

Weekly Republican
Circ. 2350

JUN 16 1955

Rolland Tapley To Conduct Boston Pops

MR. ROLLAND TAPLEY

Rolland Tapley, director of the Stoneham Junior and Senior High School orchestra, will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra at Symphony Hall Saturday night. The program will be broadcast on a national hookup over the National Broadcasting Co. and will be heard in Boston over Station WBZ.

Many Stonehamites are expected to attend and an Old Timers' Night program will be presented. Mr. Tapley will be guest conductor again on Thursday, June 30.

When sixteen, after intensive study of his instrument with the eminent Austrian, Felix Winternitz, Rolland (pronounced as in Holland) Tapley made his first tour as a soloist in the United States and in the following year through the Canadian provinces.

At eighteen he became a member of that brilliant and exacting organization — the Boston Symphony Orchestra, where he has since been made a first violinist under the baton of Serge Koussevitzky. He was soloist with the "Pops" orchestra at Symphony Hall in the Mendelssohn Concerto and Lalo's "Symphony Espagnole," was formerly a member of the Chardon String Quartet, and now directs various "Symphony Group" chamber-music ensembles.

Critics see Mr. Tapley not only as an authoritative musician but as "a man of youthful heart, unaffected by the enviable position he has attained, who is ever keeping his eyes toward the horizon."

In addition to his duties as one of the leading violinists of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Mr. Tapley is also first violinist of the Tanglewood Quartet, distinguished chamber music group, organized at Tanglewood in the Berkshires under the sponsorship of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, former conductor of the Boston Symphony.

On several other occasions, Mr. Tapley has been guest conductor of the "Pops" at Symphony Hall and the "Fiedler at 4:30" broadcast at the Opera House. He formerly directed the North Shore Philharmonic Orchestra in addition to his duties with the Boston Symphony. He has been director of the Stoneham High School Orchestra since October, 1940.

[90]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

JUN 16 1955

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Times (e)
PAWTUCKET - CENTRAL FALLS, R. I.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Telegram (m)
WORCESTER, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (m)

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Gazette (e)
HAVERHILL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 18,794
JUN 16 1955

Adenau

rd Honors

...of Arts

Confers 15 Honorary Degrees

"First Governor of his commonwealth, servant of freedom ... com-

"Brilliant investigator in the complex field of nutrition and metabolism; your keen mind and ...pus courage are a credit ... university and to medi-

...g Widmer Bailey, Harbotanist, doctor of science: ...day your university salutes ...r your direction of botanstudy and for your accomnent in searching, in the ...my of plants, for clues to ...iracle of growth."

cused his molecular beam upon the secrets of the atom."

Andrew Wyeth, painter, doctor of arts:

"A delicate and sensitive draftsman, the dramatic simplicity of whose precise brush strokes adds vision to our eyes."

George Elbert Judd, retired manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, master of arts:

U. S. To Prod ...ms Reductions

...ting generally, Ade... are

...s U.S. Only ...a Fears

for Arms Cuts

...auer Given ...ard Honors

...hancellor of the Federal Republic of Germany, ...e free world that his government will steadfastly ...ch it has concluded with the United States, Great ... Britain, France and the other NATO countries."

The 79-year-old chancellor made the pledge in an address before the annual meeting of the Harvard Alumni Association, a few hours after he was awarded an honorary degree of doctor of laws at traditional Harvard commencement exercises in Harvard Yard.

Another honorary degree went to Helen Keller, blind and deaf leader in work for the handicapped, who became the first woman in more than three centuries of Harvard history to receive an honorary doctorate.

The entire commencement throng rose in spontaneous tribute after Pres. Nathan M. Pusey completed reading the citation which said of Miss Keller: "From a still, dark world she has brought us light and sound; our lives are richer for her faith and her example."

13 OTHERS HONORED

Thirteen other leaders in the world of government, education, science and the arts were also awarded honorary degrees. They were:

Luis Munoz-Marin, governor of Puerto Rico; Dr. James Bryant Conant, former Harvard president and now U. S. ambassador to the West German Republic; Arthur Hays Sulzberger, publisher of the New York Times; Henry H. Hill, president of George Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn.; Laird Bell, Chicago attorney; Physicist I. I. Rabi, Columbia (University), and Chemist George B. Kistiakowsky, Harvard, both atomic scientists.

Also I. W. Bailey, Harvard botanist; Dr. Fuller Albright, noted Harvard researcher; Van Wyck Brooks, the literary historian; Archibald MacLeish, Harvard faculty; Andrew Wyeth, noted painter, and George E. Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

DIPLOMAS TO 3028

The conferring of honorary degrees preceded the award of diplomas to 3028 seniors and students of the 10 graduate schools at special ceremonies at the eight Houses of Harvard College and the various schools.

In addition to Adenauer, Gov. Munoz-Marin, Dr. Pusey, Dr. Conant, Gov. Herter and Alumni Pres. Devereux Josephs spoke before members of the alumni association.

Adenauer called on the United States to take the initiative in discussing with Soviet Russia the question of a universally controlled disarmament program.

"I believe that the decision in this matter lies with the two great world powers, the United States and the Soviet Union; in

Continued on Page 10

15 Are Honored At Harvard Rites

CAMBRIDGE (UP) — German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and blind and deaf leader Helen Keller were among 15 persons today awarded honorary degrees by Harvard University.

Miss Keller was the first woman ever awarded an honorary degree by Harvard since its founding 319 years ago. President Nathan M. Pusey awarded her an honorary doctorate of law.

Miss Kelles, who will be 75 June 27, was stricken deaf and blind at 19 months, but learned to talk, and can "read" and "hear" through her fingertips.

Others receiving honorary doctor of law degrees today were Louis Munoz-Marin, governor of Puerto Rico, and James B. Conant, former Harvard president and now U.S. Ambassador to the West German Republic.

Arthur Hays Sulzberger, publisher of the New York Times, Henry H. Hill, president of George Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville, Tenn., and Laird Bell, Chicago attorney, also received honorary doctorates of law.

Two atomic scientists were made honorary doctors of science. They were Nobel Prize-winning physicist I. I. Rabi of Columbia University and chemist George B. Kistiakowsky of Harvard.

Harvard botanist I. W. Bailey and Dr. Fuller Albright, research worker in bone diseases, received honorary doctor of science degrees.

Literary historian Van Wyck Brooks and poet Archibald MacLeish received honorary doctor of letters degrees.

Painter Andrew Wyeth was honored with a doctor of arts degree and George E. Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, received an honorary master of arts degree.

Page 1

...T WOMAN

...y. At left is Chancellor Konrad ... West Germany and at right, ...ryant Conant, former Harvard ...d now Ambassador to West ...h received honorary degrees.

...the New ...ll, presi... College ..., Tenn., ...lawyer, ...education leader. ...norary degrees of ...

...scientists—physi... of Columbia Uni... ...hemist George B. ... of Harvard — were ...ry doctors of sci... ...ith I. W. Bailey and ...bright, noted for his ... bone formation and ... Harvard Medical ... Massachusetts Gen... ...

...brary doctors of let... ...n Wyck Brooks, lit... ...an, and poet Archi... ...ish, Harvard profes... ...ric and oratory.

... of arts degree was ...on Andrew Wyeth, ...

...nager of the Boston ...

George E. ... honorary ... 128 degrees ... from Har... students in ... and other ...tion.

[91]

ONEY DOWN
5¢ WEEKLY
Federal Tax Included
950
YOU PAY ONLY
-IN ALLOWANCE 20.00
WHERE FOR $49.50
Jewel watches

Honors

pnfers 15 Honorary Degrees

rst Governor of his com- "Brilliant investigator in the complex field of nutrition and metabolism; your keen mind and ous courage are a credit university and to medi-

g Widmer Bailey, Har- botanist, doctor of science: day your university salutes r your direction of botan- tudy and for your accom- nent in searching, in the my of plants, for clues to iracle of growth."

cused his molecular beam upon the secrets of the atom."

Andrew Wyeth, painter, doctor of arts:

"A delicate and sensitive draftsman, the dramatic simplicity of whose precise brush strokes adds vision to our eyes."

George Elbert Judd, retired manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, master of arts:

s U. S. To Prod ms Reductions

generally, Ade- e are

/s U. S. Only a Fears

for Arms Cuts

Adenaue

BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 397,884
JUN 17 1955

Adenauer Given Harvard Honors

Konrad Adenauer, chancellor of the Federal Republic of Germany, yesterday pledged to the free world that his government will steadfastly "hold to the treaties which it has concluded with the United States, Great Britain, France and the other NATO countries."

The 79-year-old chancellor made the pledge in an address before the annual meeting of the Harvard Alumni Association, a few hours after he was awarded an honorary degree of doctor of laws at traditional Harvard commencement exercises in Harvard Yard.

Another honorary degree went to Helen Keller, blind and deaf leader in work for the handicapped, who became the first woman in more than three centuries of Harvard history to receive an honorary doctorate.

The entire commencement throng rose in spontaneous tribute after Pres. Nathan M. Pusey completed reading the citation which said of Miss Keller: "From a still, dark world she has brought us light and sound; our lives are richer for her faith and her example."

13 OTHERS HONORED

Thirteen other leaders in the world of government, education, science and the arts were also awarded honorary degrees. They were:

Luis Munoz-Marin, governor of Puerto Rico; Dr. James Bryant Conant, former Harvard president and now U. S. ambassador to the West German Republic; Arthur Hays Sulzberger, publisher of the New York Times; Henry H. Hill, president of George Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn.; Laird Bell, Chicago attorney; Physicist I. I. Rabi, Columbia (University), and Chemist George B. Kistiakowsky, Harvard, both atomic scientists.

Also I. W. Bailey, Harvard botanist; Dr. Fuller Albright, noted Harvard researcher; Van Wyck Brooks, the literary historian; Archibald MacLeish, Harvard faculty; Andrew Wyeth, noted painter, and George E. Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

DIPLOMAS TO 3028

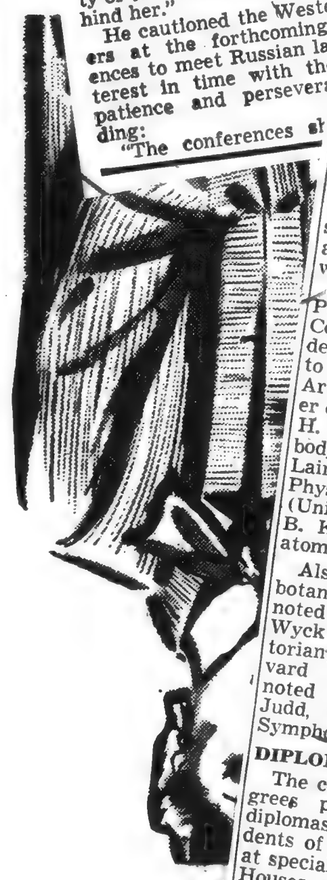
The conferring of honorary degrees preceded the award of diplomas to 3028 seniors and students of the 10 graduate schools at special ceremonies at the eight Houses of Harvard College and the various schools.

In addition to Adenauer, Gov. Munoz-Marin, Dr. Pusey, Dr. Conant, Gov. Herter and Alumni Pres. Devereux Josephs spoke before members of the alumni association.

Adenauer called on the United States to take the initiative in discussing with Soviet Russia the question of a universally controlled disarmament program.

"I believe that the decision in this matter lies with the two great world powers, the United States and the Soviet Union; in

Continued on Page 10



T WOMAN

y. At left is Chancellor Konrad West Germany and at right, ryant Conant, former Harvard d now Ambassador to West h received honorary degrees.

George E. honorary 128 degrees from Harstudents in and other tion.

the New ll, presiCollege , Tenn., lawyer, education leader, norary degrees of scientists—physiof Columbia Unichemist George B. of Harvard — were ry doctors of sciith I. W. Bailey and bright, noted for his bone formation and Harvard Medical Massachusetts Gen-brary doctors of letan Wyck Brooks, litan, and poet Archiish, Harvard professric and oratory.

of arts degree was on Andrew Wyeth, c nager of the Boston a

[91]

5¢ WEEKLY

ONEY DOWN!

federal Tax Included

Killed a Bandit

For the second time yesterday that Henry P. ... that he shot Atty. Merrill

Honors

onorary Degrees

investigator in the ld of nutrition and your keen mind and urage are a credit sity and to medi-

Bailey, Har- tor of science: ersity salutes on of botan- your accom- earching, in the plants, for clues to e of growth."

ky, ity ce: ce, ave of en- errize eral En- sci-

heo- ation s fo-

Adenauer Judges Family

...or Arms Cuts

...ht against such awards to ...men by similarly honoring

Helen Keller Cited

Continued From Page 4

their hands rests the fate of this world and of peace," he said.

"Unless these two great powers agree on an important step in the direction of controlled disarmament, the present state of conflicts short of major war will continue. There may be a minor relaxation, but the world will know no peace."

Stating that the U. S. is the strongest nation on earth, he said, "Soviet Russia fears her and her only and this fear certainly influences Soviet policy to a considerable degree.

He warned that unless such a disarmament program is brought into being that "no security system, however well thought out and well intended, will give peace to the world . . ."

In commenting on the approaching Big Four meeting, Adenauer said he believed the conferences just ahead are "finding a more favorable climate" than did the Geneva Conference of 1954.

He said the free peoples have grown stronger through the organization of the Western European Union, the entry of West Germany into NATO and because "it has become quite clear that the Soviet Union is in need of a lengthy pause for relaxation in order to meet the demands which are posed by her internal economic tasks."

COMMIES REPUDIATED

Moreover, he said, "at the Bandung Conference there was an unmistakable repudiation of Communism by the greater part of Asia; thus the Soviet Union can no longer reckon that the majority of the peoples of Asia stand behind her."

He cautioned the Western powers at the forthcoming conferences to meet Russian lack of interest in time with the utmost patience and perseverance, adding:

"The conferences should continue for a long time — if necessary, I would be prepared for even one or two years. For this fact alone, that is, the duration of such conferences represents a relaxation of tension."

Adenauer also urged the United States to keep up its pressures both in the Atlantic and Pacific areas—as a single front—lest the Soviet Union be able to increase its own pressure in one area or the other.

He said that Europe has begun to lay the foundation for her unity, but "without the reunification of Germany in peace and freedom . . . relaxation in Europe will not be possible, and if it is not possible in Europe, it will not be elsewhere in the world."

INTRODUCED BY CONANT

Adenauer was introduced to the alumni meeting by Dr. Conant, who described the chancellor as "the most distinguished statesman on the continent of Europe."

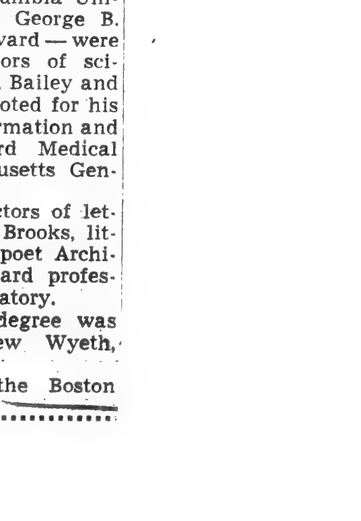
Gov. Munoz-Marin said the people of his country have entrusted to their leaders a three-fold task: "A fight to abolish poverty, a job of creating and making grow a dynamic form of political freedom, a dream of a good way of life . . ."

He said the West has wonderful productive powers which all under-developed areas would like to have. He added: "It is the wise policy of Democracy to help them to develop those powers and to share with them the know-how for their use."

Gov. Herter, who is a Harvard overseer, expressed the gratitude of the commonwealth to Harvard for continuing its tradition of contributing the services of its professors and deans to the state in making studies of problems.

Dr. Pusey dwelt at length in his remarks on the 10 new endowed professorships received in recent months.

Alumni Pres. Josephs said the university now has 110,000 living alumni, with 5500 of them living in 116 foreign countries.



T WOMAN

ory. At left is Chancellor Konrad of West Germany and at right, Bryant Conant, former Harvard and now Ambassador to West Both received honorary degrees.

b)

George E. honorary 128 degrees from Har- tudents in and other tion.

er of the New H. Hill, presi- abody College shville, Tenn., hicago lawyer, ucation leader, rary degrees of cientists—physi- Columbia Uni- emist George B. Harvard — were doctors of sci- I. W. Bailey and ght, noted for his one formation and Harvard Medical assachusetts Gen-ary doctors of let- Wyck Brooks, lit- n, and poet Archi- sh, Harvard profes- c and oratory.

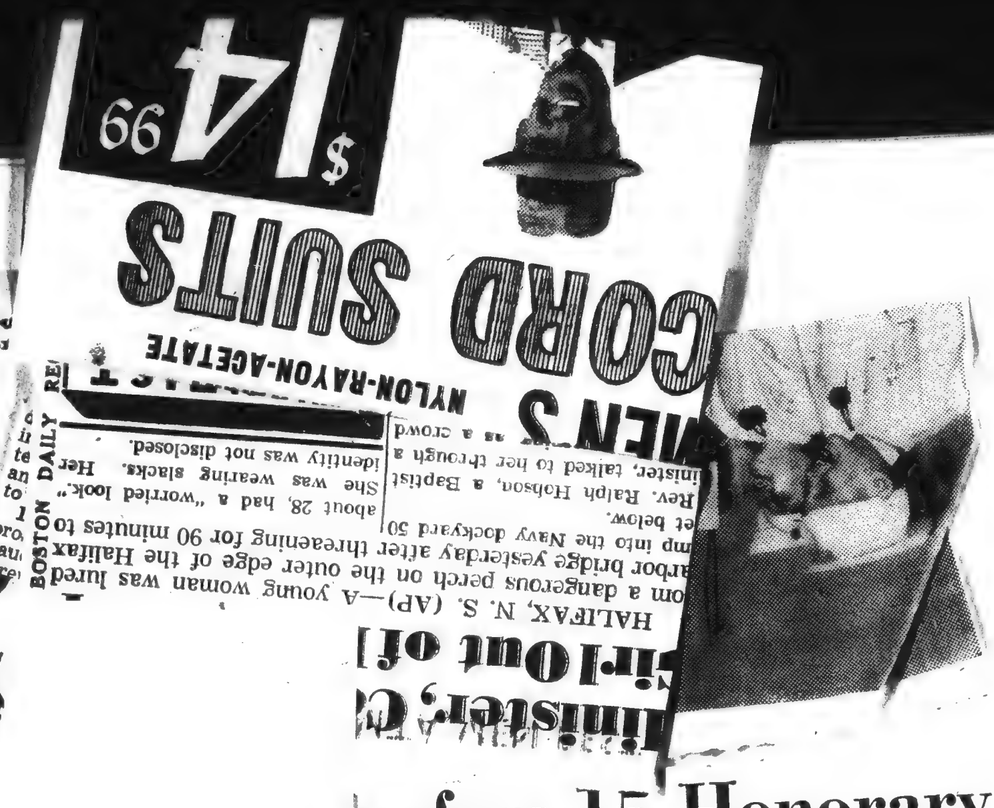
of arts degree was n Andrew Wyeth, ager of the Boston

[91]



onfers 15 Honorary Degrees

irst Governor of his com-wealth, servant of freedom

"Brilliant investigator in the complex field of nutrition and metabolism; your keen mind and pus courage are a credit university and to medi-

g Widmer Bailey, Har-botanist, doctor of science: day your university salutes r your direction of botan-tudy and for your accom-hent in searching, in the my of plants, for clues to iracle of growth."

cused his molecular beam upon the secrets of the atom."

Andrew Wyeth, painter, doctor of arts:

"A delicate and sensitive draftsman, the dramatic simplicity of whose precise brush strokes adds vision to our eyes."

George Elbert Judd, retired manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, master of arts:

U. S. To Prod
ns Reductions

generally, Adee are

BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 285,839

ays U.S. Only sia Fears 047

Adenauer Pleads for Arms Cuts

By CHARLES D. R... Page 1

German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer yesterday called on United States to carry proposals for world disarmament to Soviet Russia.

He told a huge commencement day gathering at Harvard that the road to peace is disarmament, that the United States and Russia are the only powers capable of effecting it, and that the United States should take the initiative in bringing it to be.

Harvard presented the 79-year-old German political leader an honorary doctor of laws degree and shattered a 300-year precedent against such awards to women by similarly honoring blind and deaf Helen Keller. Thirteen other honorary degrees were awarded.

Other Honorary Degrees

President Nathan M. Pusey presented other honorary doctor of laws degrees to Governor Luis Munoz-Marin of Puerto Rico; president-emeritus and U. S. ambassador to Germany James B. Conant; Arthur Hays Sulzberger, publisher of the New York Times; Henry H. Hill, president of George Peabody College were presented to painter Andrew Wyeth and Manager George E. Judd, of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Continued on Page 10

047

T WOMAN

ory. At left is Chancellor Konrad of West Germany and at right, Bryant Conant, former Harvard and now Ambassador to West Both received honorary degrees. o)

Soviet Policy

eems to me that further is is not possible along the way which negotiations have followed in the past," he said. "The United States is the strongest nation on earth; Soviet Russia fears her and her only and this fear certainly influences Soviet policy to a considerable degree."

The chancellor said the United States had taken up the leading role — in which she was placed by the outcome of the last war —in an admirable way, and he added:

"It would be the culmination of her historical mission if she succeeded in bringing about disarmament."

He said he believes the com-

Turn to ADENAUER, Page 24

er of the New
H. Hill, presiabody College
shville, Tenn.,
hicago lawyer,
ucation leader,
rary degrees of ientists—physi-

Columbia Uni-
mist George B.
Harvard — were doctors of sci-
I. W. Bailey and ght, noted for his ne formation and
Harvard Medical
ssachusetts General Hospital.

Made honorary doctors of letters were Van Wyck Brooks, literary historian, and poet Archibald MacLeish, Harvard professor of rhetoric and oratory.

A doctor of arts degree was conferred on Andrew Wyeth, painter.

The manager of the Boston

George E. honorary
047
28 degrees from Hartudents in and other tion.

Adenauer

[91]

rs 15 Honorary Degrees of his com-

of freedom

"Brilliant investigator in the complex field of nutrition and metabolism; your keen mind and us courage are a credit university and to medi-

g Widmer Bailey, Harbotanist, doctor of science:
day your university salutes
r your direction of botan-tudy and for your accoment in searching, in the my of plant
clues to

cused his molecular beam upon the secrets of the atom."

Andrew Wyeth, painter, doctor of arts:

"A delicate and sensitive draftsman, the dramatic simplicity of whose precise brush strokes adds vision to our eyes."

George Elbert Judd, retired manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, master of arts:

Adenau

Prod
ions

ader Pl

Continued from First Page

for Teachers in Nashville, and Laird Bell, Chicago lawyer, business and education leader.

Honorary doctorates in science went to two atomic scientists, I. I. Rabi, Columbia University physicist, and George B. Kistiakowsky, Harvard chemist, as well as to I. W. Bailey, Harvar botanist, and Dr. Fuller Albright of Harvard Medical School.

Archibald MacLeish, professor of rhetoric and oratory at Harvard, and Van Wyck Brooks, literary historian, were honored as doctors of letters.

Degrees of doctors of arts were presented to painter Andrew Wyeth and Manager George E. Judd, of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

047

United States and the their hands rests the fate s world and of peace," he would be especially gratif the United States would he initiative in this matter iscuss the question with Russia."

ncellor Adenauer spoke at rd University, where he ed an honorary degree of of laws. Another went to Ambassador to West Ger-
James B. Conant, a forarvard president.

auer suggested the Unites should use her posi-
"the strongest nation on in moving for disarma-

Soviet Policy

ems to me that further s is not possible along the way which negotiations have followed in the past," he said. "The United States is the strongest nation on earth; Soviet Russia fears her and her only and this fear certainly influences
Soviet policy to a considerable degree."

The chancellor said the United States had taken up the leading role — in which she was placed by the outcome of the last war —in an admirable way, and he added:

"It would be the culmination of her historical mission if she succeeded in bringing about disarmament."

He said he believes the com-

Turn to ADENAUER, Page 24

inspection.
the Soviet plan prorgan with
s. Western s proposal on by Rusleft much

the Big

Ministry; Peron Out of Argentina's Casa Rosada, Plaza De Mayo and Nearby

Antiaircraft Used

T WOMAN

ory. At left is Chancellor Konrad of West Germany and at right, s Bryant Conant, former Harvard and now Ambassador to West . Both received honorary degrees.

By fo[r]mer President Na[t] er the 304th Harvard mencement Thursday at became the first woman orary degree in the three

Adenauer

George E. honorary 28 degrees from Hartudents in and other tion.

er of the New
H. Hill, presieabody College
ashville, Tenn.,
hicago lawyer,
ucation leader,
rary degrees of

cientists—physi-
Columbia Uni-
emist George B.
Harvard — were doctors of sci-
I. W. Bailey and ght, noted for his one formation and
Harvard Medical
assachusetts General Hospital.

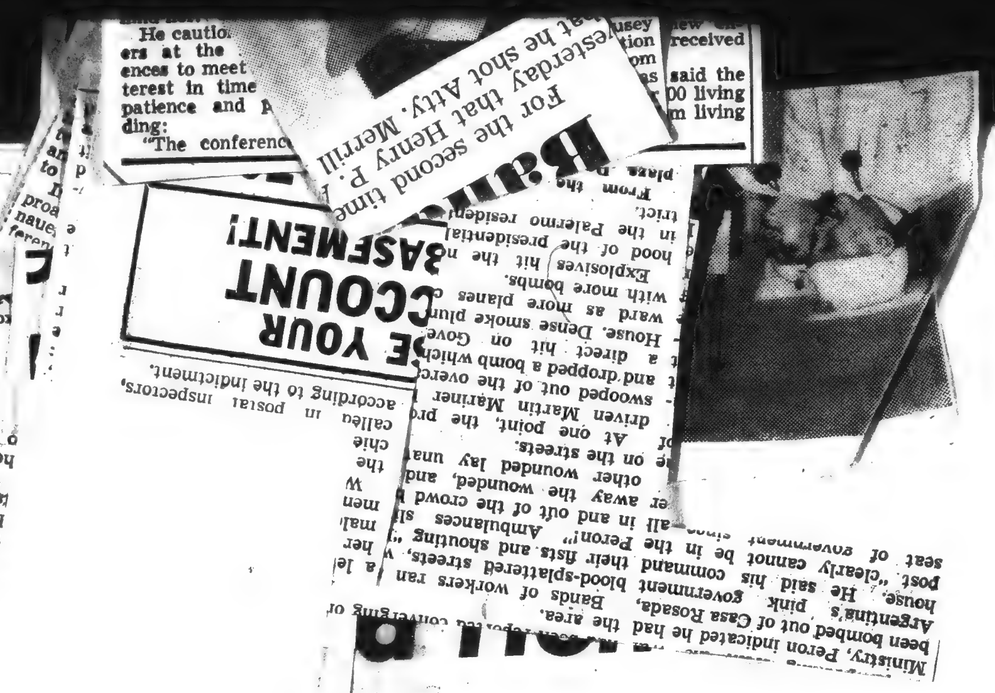
Made honorary doctors of letters were Van Wyck Brooks, literary historian, and poet Archibald MacLeish, Harvard professor of rhetoric and oratory.

A doctor of arts degree was conferred on Andrew Wyeth, painter.

The manager of the Boston

[91]



Confers 15 Honorary Degrees

"First Governor of his commonwealth, servant of freedom

"Brilliant investigator in the complex field of nutrition and metabolism; your keen mind and ...mous courage are a credit ...is university and to medi-

...ng Widmer Bailey, Har... botanist, doctor of science: ...day your university salutes ...r your direction of botan... ...tudy and for your accom... ...nent in searching, in the ...my of plants, for clues to ...iracle of growth."

...ity, ...ce: ...ce, ...ave ... of ...en... ...er... ...rize ...eral En... ...sci... ...heo... ...ation ...s fo...

...ler of the New ...H. Hill, presi... ...eabody College ...ashville, Tenn., ...Chicago lawyer, ...ucation leader, ...orary degrees of ...cientists—physi... ...f Columbia Uni... ...emist George B. ...t Harvard — were ... doctors of sci... ...n I. W. Bailey and ...ight, noted for his ...one formation and ... Harvard Medical ...assachusetts Gen...

Made honorary doctors of letters were Van Wyck Brooks, literary historian, and poet Archibald MacLeish, Harvard professor of rhetoric and oratory.

A doctor of arts degree was conferred on Andrew Wyeth, painter.

The manager of the Boston

Andrew Wyeth, painter, doctor of arts:

"A delicate and sensitive draftsman, the dramatic simplicity of whose precise brush strokes adds vision to our eyes."

George Elbert Judd, retired manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, master of arts:

cused his molecular beam upon the secrets of the atom."

...ng Widmer Bailey, Harvard botanist, doctor of science: "Today your university salutes you for your direction of botanical study and for your accomplishment in searching, in the army of plants, for clues to the miracle of growth."

...ity, ...ce: ...ce, ...ave ... of ...en... ...er... ...rize ...eral En... ...sci... ...heo... ...ation ...s fo...

...ler of the New ...H. Hill, presi... ...eabody College ...ashville, Tenn., ...Chicago lawyer, ...ucation leader, ...orary degrees of ...cientists—physi... ...f Columbia Uni... ...emist George B. ...t Harvard — were ... doctors of sci... ...n I. W. Bailey and ...ight, noted for his ...one formation and ... Harvard Medical ...assachusetts Gen...

Made honorary doctors of letters were Van Wyck Brooks, literary historian, and poet Archibald MacLeish, Harvard professor of rhetoric and oratory.

A doctor of arts degree was conferred on Andrew Wyeth, painter.

The manager of the Boston

...ity to ... way ... nor ...idate ...long ...reat ... the ...her ... ng ... n- ... n- ...of ... n

...inspection. ...the Soviet ... plan pro... ...rgan with ...s. Western ...s proposal ...on by Rus... left much ... the Big

...eral Hospital.

Made honorary doctors of letters were Van Wyck Brooks, literary historian, and poet Archibald MacLeish, Harvard professor of rhetoric and oratory.

A doctor of arts degree was conferred on Andrew Wyeth, painter.

The manager of the Boston

...ory. At left is Chancellor Konrad ... of West Germany and at right, ...s Bryant Conant, former Harvard ... and now Ambassador to West ... Both received honorary degrees.

...lo)

...US & E ... t ... "ESTE

WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 55,423

JUN 17 1955

Adenauer Says U. S. Only Nation Russia Fears

CAMBRIDGE (AP)—West Germany's Chancellor Konrad Adenauer said Thursday controlled disarmament is up to the two great world powers, the United States and the Soviet Union.

"In their hands rests the fate of this world and of peace," he said.

"I would be especially gratified if the United States would take the initiative in this matter and discuss the question with Soviet Russia."

Chancellor Adenauer spoke at Harvard University, where he received an honorary degree of doctor of laws. Another went to U. S. Ambassador to West Germany James B. Conant, a former Harvard president.

Adenauer suggested the United States should use her position as "the strongest nation on earth" in moving for disarmament.

Soviet Policy

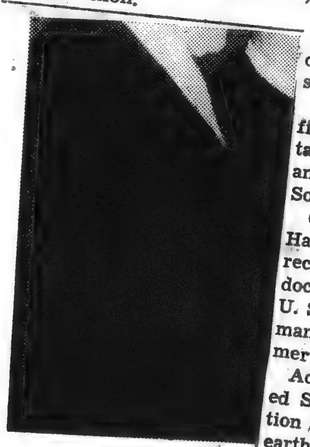
"It seems to me that further progress is not possible along the way which negotiations have followed in the past," he said. "The United States is the strongest nation on earth; Soviet Russia fears her and her only and this fear certainly influences Soviet policy to a considerable degree."

The chancellor said the United States had taken up the leading role — in which she was placed by the outcome of the last war —in an admirable way, and he added:

"It would be the culmination of her historical mission if she succeeded in bringing about disarmament."

He said he believes the com-

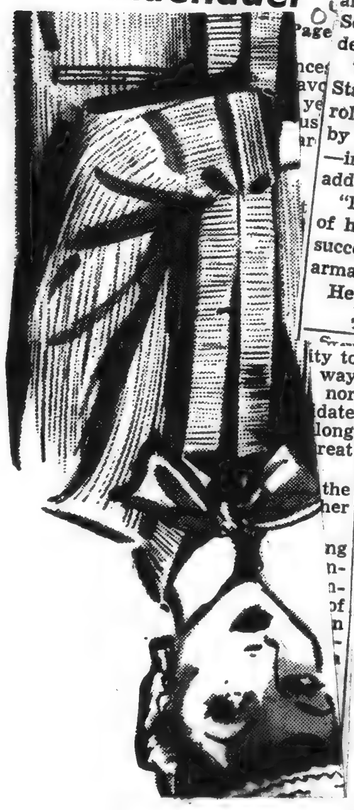
Turn to ADENAUER, Page 24



HARV... ...T WOMAN

Blind and deaf Helen ... by Harvard President Nat... er the 304th Harvard ... mencement Thursday at ... became the first woman ... orary degree in the three

Adenauer



Former City Man Held in Boston In Armed Robbery

Special to The Telegram

BOSTON — William F. McGrail who lived on Grail street in Worcester was ordered held in $25,000 for the Grand Jury by Judge Frank W. Tomasello. The court found probable cause to hold him on charges of armed robbery, armed assault and larceny.

McGrail was arrested in a Back Bay hotel May 27 after he had registered under a false name as a police official from Las Vegas, he was committed for observation and found sane.

Police officers who arrested him after a scuffle during which he pulled a gun on policemen, reported from two police officers. Police reported he was on his way to Framingham to kill his mother-in-law, and took pistols away from him and then was going to wife is also wanted by Worcester police on a charge of violation of probation.

He was convicted Nov. 12 in Worcester Court for larceny of $373 through passing 13 bogus checks in Worcester during August and September of 1953.

Conners 15 Honorary Degrees

"First Governor of his commonwealth, servant of freedom

"Brilliant investigator in the complex field of nutrition and metabolism; your keen mind and famous courage are a credit to this university and to medi-

...g Widmer Bailey, Harvard botanist, doctor of science: "Today your university salutes you for your direction of botanical study and for your accomplishment in searching, in the harmony of plants, for clues to the miracle of growth."

cused his molecular beam upon the secrets of the atom."

Andrew Wyeth, painter, doctor of arts:

"A delicate and sensitive draftsman, the dramatic simplicity of whose precise brush strokes adds vision to our eyes."

George Elbert Judd, retired manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, master of arts:

...s U. S. To Prod ...ms Reductions

Four meeting generally, Ade-

HARVARD HONORS FIRST WOMAN

Blind and deaf Helen Keller is greeted by Harvard President Nathan M. Pusey after the 304th Harvard University Commencement Thursday at which Miss Keller became the first woman to receive an honorary degree in the three centuries of Harvard's history. At left is Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany and at right, Dr. James Bryant Conant, former Harvard president and now Ambassador to West Germany. Both received honorary degrees. (AP Photo)

Adenauer

Continued from Page One

ing Big Four conferences are coming in a more favorable climate than that last year at Geneva and Berlin, because "the West, the free peoples, are now stronger . . ."

Economic Tasks

"On the other hand, I think it has become quite clear that the Soviet Union, in any case, is in need of a lengthy pause for relaxation in order to meet the demands which are posed by her internal economic tasks.

"During this period she will not be able in all probability to continue to arm in the way which she has until now, nor will she be able to consolidate her strength internally as long as her population suffers great want.

"And that is certainly the case. That is also true of her European satellite states.

"Moreover, at the Bandung conference, there was an unmistakable repudiation of Communism by the greater part of Asia; thus the Soviet Union can no longer reckon that the majority of the peoples of Asia stand behind her."

Chancellor Adenauer also called for re-establishment of a united Germany, which he said is "an absolute necessity for Europe and "thus for the peace of the world."

13 Other Degrees

Harvard awarded 13 other honorary degrees.

One of them went to blind and deaf Helen Keller, leader in work for the handicapped. She is the first woman ever to get an honorary doctorate from Harvard.

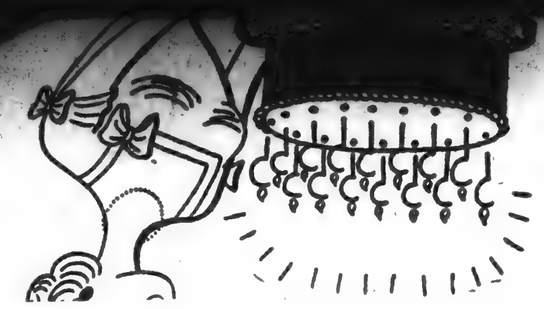
Others were awarded to Governor Luis Monoz-Marin of Puerto Rico, Arthur Hays Sulzberger, publisher of the New York Times; Henry H. Hill, president of George Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville, Tenn.; and Laird Bell, Chicago lawyer, business and education leader, all of whom received honorary degrees of doctors of laws.

Honorary degrees as doctors of science went to two atomic scientists, physicist I. I. Rabi of Columbia University and chemist George B. Kistiakowsky of Harvard; to I. W. Bailey, Harvard botanist and Dr. Fuller Albright of Harvard Medical School.

Van Wyck Brooks, literary historian and Archibald MacLeish, Harvard professor of rhetoric and oratory, were made honorary doctors of letters.

A doctor of arts went to painter Andrew Wyeth and George E. Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, was given an honorary master of arts.

[91]



CALENDAR

BUTTON CLUB, 10, picnic, Mrs. Rupert W. Robinson's camp, Webster Lake.

ASCENSION SCHOOL Mothers Club, 7.30, party, school.

JUNIOR LEAGUE, provisional course, 9.30, Daniels House; tour of Piedmont Center to follow.

WORCESTER CHAPTER, NATIONAL MOTHERS AND WIVES OF VETERANS INC. 8, GAR building.

DARTMOUTH ST. SCHOOL MOTHERS CLUB, 18, party for graduates, school.

HAND ST. SCHOOL

rd Honors

f Arts

Confers 15 Honorary Degrees

Independent
Circ. 38,858
JUN 16 1955

"First Governor of his commonwealth, servant of freedom

"Brilliant investigator in the complex field of nutrition and metabolism; your keen mind and ...mous courage are a credit ...is university and to medi-

...g Widmer Bailey, Har... botanist, doctor of science: ...day your university salutes ...r your direction of botan... ...tudy and for your accom... ...nent in searching, in the ...my of plants, for clues to ...iracle of growth."

...rge Bogdan Kistiakowsky, ...ard chemist and authority ...plosives, doctor of science: ...wift and explosive force, ... imaginative talents have ... widened our knowledge of ...ical structures and en... ...d the life of this Univer-

...dor Isaac Rabi, Noble Prize ...icist and chairman, general ...sory committee, Atomic En... ... Commission, doctor of sci...

...genious master of theo... ...al physics, an inspiration ...xperimentalists, he has focused his molecular beam upon the secrets of the atom."

Andrew Wyeth, painter, doctor of arts:

"A delicate and sensitive draftsman, the dramatic simplicity of whose precise brush strokes adds vision to our eyes."

George Elbert Judd, retired manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, master of arts:

Honored By Harvard

Adenauer Asks U. S. To Prod Soviets On Arms Reductions

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany asked the United States today to prod Russia again for an agreement on controlled arms reduction.

"The fate of this world and of peace" rests in the hands of "the two great world powers, the United States and the Soviet Union," the 79-year-old German leader said in a speech prepared for Harvard University commencement exercises. He continued:

"Unless these two great powers agree on an important step in the direction of controlled disarmament, the present state of conflicts short of a major war will continue. . . ."

To Meet In Geneva

President Eisenhower is scheduled to meet at Geneva July 18 with the premiers of Russia, Britain and France. Adenauer has just concluded talks in Washington with Mr. Eisenhower, Secretary of State Dulles and others.

Adenauer said:

"I would be especially gratified if the United States would take the initiative in this matter and discuss this question with Soviet Russia. The United States is the strongest nation on earth; Soviet Russia fears her and her only and this fear certainly influences Soviet policy to a considerable degree.

"By taking the initiative in this, the United States would carry forward the policy announced by President Eisenhower in his address in April 1953: That is, controlled disarmament and the use of some of the means thus saved for the benefit of underdeveloped nations."

Adenauer repeatedly spoke of controlled disarmament, and he emphasized that conferences on the subject "have up to now achieved no real success."

In the past, the United States and its Allies have insisted that any disarmament plan must be accompanied by an effective system for inspection in states agreeing to it. The Soviets long shied away from such inspection. However, last month the Soviet Union proposed a new plan providing for a control organ with some inspection rights. Western reaction was that this proposal represented a concession by Russia but that it still left much area for disagreement.

Looking forward to the Big Four meeting generally, Adenauer said "I believe that we are justified in saying that the conferences just ahead are finding a more favorable climate" than existed a year ago.

Adenauer said this is so because the West has grown stronger with organization of the Western European Union and the entry of West Germany into NATO and also because "it has become quite clear that the Soviet Union, in any case, is in need of a lengthy pause for relaxation in order to meet the demands which are posed by her internal economic tasks."

Finally, Adenauer said, the very frightfulness of the atomic and hydrogen bombs has improved prospects of agreement.

Adenauer came to Harvard to receive an honorary degree. "As a small token of gratitude" he offered Harvard two scholarships for a year's study by American students in Germany.

15 Honored

Bestowing honorary degrees upon 15 leaders in government, education, science and the arts, Harvard also gave to blind, deaf Helen Keller, leader in work for the handicapped, the first Harvard academic honor ever given to a woman.

She and Luis Munoz-Marin, Governor of Puerto Rico; James Bryant Conant, 23d president of Harvard and U. S. Ambassador to West Germany; Arthur Hays Sulzberger, publisher of the New York Times; Henry H. Hill, president of George Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville, Tenn., and Laird Bell, Chicago lawyer, business and education leader, all received honorary degrees of doctors of laws.

Two atomic scientists—physicist I. I. Rabi of Columbia University, and chemist George B. Kistiakowsky of Harvard — were made honorary doctors of science, along with I. W. Bailey and Dr. Fuller Albright, noted for his researches on bone formation and disease at Harvard Medical School and Massachusetts General Hospital.

Made honorary doctors of letters were Van Wyck Brooks, literary historian, and poet Archibald MacLeish, Harvard professor of rhetoric and oratory.

A doctor of arts degree was conferred on Andrew Wyeth, painter.

The manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, George E. Judd, was made an honorary master of arts.

Harvard awarded 3,028 degrees to seniors graduating from Harvard College and to students in its 10 graduate schools and other departments of instruction.

[91]

Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 16 1955

rd Honors

Harvard Confers 15 Honorary Degrees

Harvard University today conferred honorary degrees on 15 leaders in government, education, science and the arts.

Texts of the citations were:

Konrad Adenauer, Chancellor of the Federal Republic of West Germany, doctor of laws:

"Resolute statesman of German reconstruction, energetic champion of peace and unity in Europe, he has restored his country to a place among nations."

James Bryant Conant, 23d president of Harvard and now United States Ambassador to the West German Republic, doctor of laws:

"For 20 years in war and peace, Harvard's tireless and courageous leader, now this country's ambassador to a nation of universities; Harvard greets you this day as a worthy son steadfast in the love of liberty and learning."

Helen Keller, blind and deaf leader in work for the handicapped, doctor of laws. (Miss Keller is the first woman to receive an honorary degree from Harvard):

"From a still, dark world she has brought us light and sound; our lives are richer for her faith and her example."

Luis Munóz-Marin, Governor of Puerto Rico, doctor of laws:

"First Governor of his commonwealth, servant of freedom within the American community, he is calling into life the national capabilities of the Puerto Rican people."

Arthur Hays Sulzberger, publisher of the New York Times, doctor of laws:

"We honor the publisher of a great American newspaper who has continued with distinction its exemplary tradition of responsible journalism."

Henry Harrington Hill, president of George Peabody College for Teachers, Nashville, Tenn., doctor of laws:

"Wise and forthright advocate of quality in our public schools, his constructive influence is magnified by the many teachers whose careers he helps to shape."

Van Wyck Brooks, literary historian and critic, doctor of letters:

"A maker and a finder whose critical perception and skill with words have illuminated the pages of American letters."

Archibald MacLeish, Pulitzer Prize poet, Boylston professor of rhetoric and oratory at Harvard, doctor of letters:

"Poet and man, beloved teacher, in all your life a public voice speaking what you yourself have called 'the responsible language of acceptance and belief.'"

Laird Bell, Chicago lawyer and university trustee, doctor of laws:

"Devoted son of Harvard, your enlightened concern for higher education in America shines forth in a full life of conscientious citizenship."

Fuller Albright, Boston physician, doctor of science:

"Brilliant investigator in the complex field of nutrition and metabolism; your keen mind and enormous courage are a credit to this university and to medicine."

Irving Widmer Bailey, Harvard botanist, doctor of science:

"Today your university salutes you for your direction of botanical study and for your accomplishment in searching, in the anatomy of plants, for clues to the miracle of growth."

George Bogdan Kistiakowsky, Harvard chemist and authority on explosives, doctor of science:

"Swift and explosive force, your imaginative talents have both widened our knowledge of chemical structures and enriched the life of this University."

Isador Isaac Rabi, Noble Prize physicist and chairman, general advisory committee, Atomic Energy Commission, doctor of science:

"Ingenious master of theoretical physics, an inspiration to experimentalists, he has focused his molecular beam upon the secrets of the atom."

Andrew Wyeth, painter, doctor of arts:

"A delicate and sensitive draftsman, the dramatic simplicity of whose precise brush strokes adds vision to our eyes."

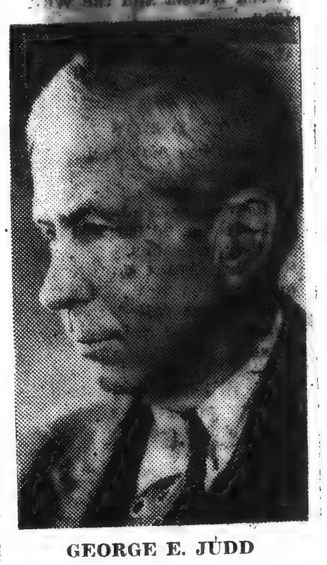
George Elbert Judd, retired manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, master of arts:

Harvard Honors

Master of Arts

GEORGE ELBERT JUDD, retired manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. "An imaginative impresario, with skill in management and good-humored patience in the face of genius, he has advanced the reputation of a great symphony orchestra."

DR. JAMES B. CONANT



GEORGE E. JUDD

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Enterprise
MAYNARD, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Enterprise
REDFORD, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Enterprise
SUDBURY, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Beacon
MAYNARD, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-0068
Enterprise
ACTON, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Enterprise
CONCORD, Mass.
Weekly Ind. Rep.
Comb. Circ. 4728
JUN 16 1955

25 EMPLOYES WILL ATTEND CELEBRATION

Co-Op Staff In Maynard Journevs To Boston Tuesday

Maynard — Next Tuesday, June 21st, a chartered bus will take 25 employees from the Maynard Co-op's supermarket and office staff to a gala celebration in Boston.

Leaving from the front of the Supermarket at 6 p. m.: the party will stop first at the Smith House in Cambridge where a private dining room has been reserved. After dinner the group will split up. Some will attend the Red Sox-Tigers night game at Fenway Park, while others will journey to Symphony hall to enjoy a concert by the Boston Pops orchestra.

The celebration was recommended by the Co-op's Board of Directors last month after reviewing the success of the New Look opening of the Supermarket in March. Sales already are more than 25% above those of last year. A poll of the employees revealed a split in preference for the entertainment, and so the trip described above was arranged.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Bulletin (e)
PROVIDENCE, R. I.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Gazette (e)
WORCESTER, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
News-Tribune (e)
WALTHAM, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 13,413
JUN 16 1955

irst Woman University

erto Rico, and James B. ant, former Harvard presi-
t and now U.S. ambassador
the West German Republic.
Arthur Hays Sulzberger, pub-winning physicist I. I. Rabi o

Columbia University and chemist George B. Kistiakowsky o
Harvard. Kistiakowsky was the man who put the first atom

Helen Keller, Adenauer Awarded Harvard Degrees

CAMBRIDGE (U.P.) — German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and blind and deaf leader Helen Keller were among 15 persons today awarded honorary degrees by Harvard University.

Miss Keller was the first woman ever awarded an honorary degree by Harvard since its founding 319 years ago. President Nathan M. Pusey awarded her an honorary doctorate of law.

Miss Keller, who will be 75 June 27, was stricken, deaf, dumb and blind at 19 months, but learned to talk, and can "read" and "hear" through her fingertips.

Others receiving honorary doctor of law degrees today were Louis-Munoz-Marin, governor of Puerto Rico, and James B. Con ant, former Harvard presiden and now U. S. Ambassador to th West German Republic.

Arthur Hays Sulzberger, pub lisher of the New York Times Henry H. Hill, president of George Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville, Tenn., and Laird Bell, Chicago attorney, also received honorary doctorates of law.

Two atomic scientists were made honorary doctors of science. They were Nobel prize-winning physicist I. I. Rabi of Columbia University and chemist George B. Kistiakowsky, of Harvard.

Harvard botanist I. W. Bailey and Dr. Fuller Albright, research worker in bone diseases, received honorary doctor of science degrees.

Literary historian Van Wyck Brooks and poet Archibald MacLeish received honorary doctor of letters degrees.

Painter Andrew Wyeth was honored with a doctor of arts degree and George E. Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, received an honorary master of arts degree.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Gazzetta del Massachusetts
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 13,029
JUN 17 1955

JUDGE VINCENT MOTTOLA proudly displayed a copy of his latest musical composition "The Massachusetts First Lady's Waltz" to Gov. and Mrs. Herter at the Pops Concert in Symphony hall, where it was played for the first time by an orchestra directed by Arthur Fiedler. The song is dedicated to Mrs. Herter.

Weekly Ind. Rep.
Comb. Circ. 4,728

JUN 15 1955

25 EMPLOYES WILL ATTEND CELEBRATION

Co-Op Staff In Maynard Journeys To Boston Tuesday

Maynard — Next Tuesday, June 21st, a chartered bus will take 25 employees from the Maynard Co-op's supermarket and office staff to a gala celebration in Boston.

Leaving from the front of the Supermarket at 6 p. m., the party will stop first at the Smith House in Cambridge where a private dining room has been reserved. After dinner the group Thomas Mansfield, Lyyli Nelson, Jack Shaw, Taimi Sofka and Roy Watjus.

ence for the ... so the trip described above was arranged.

Independent
Circ. 101,022

JUN 16 1955

Helen Keller Wins Degree At Harvard

CAMBRIDGE, June 16 (UP) —German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and blind and deaf leader Helen Keller were among 15 persons today awarded honorary degrees by Harvard University.

Miss Keller was the first woman ever awarded an honorary degree by Harvard since its founding 319 years ago. President Nathan M. Pusey awarded her an honorary doctorate of law saying: "From a still, dark world she has brought us light and sound; our lives are richer for her faith and her example."

Miss Keller, who will be 75 years old receiving honorary doctor of law degrees today were Louis Munoz-Marin, governor of Puerto Rico, and James B. ...ant, former Harvard president and now U.S. ambassador to the West German Republic. ...arthur Hays Sulzberger, pub-

...winning physicist I. I. Rabi of Columbia University and chemist George B. Kistiakowsky of Harvard. Kistiakowsky was the man who put the first atom bomb together "with these little hands."

Harvard botanist I. W. Bailey and Dr. Fuller Albright, research worker in bone diseases received honorary doctor of science degrees.

Literary historian Van Wyck Brooks and poet Archibald MacLeish received honorary doctor of letters degrees.

Painter Andrew Wyeth was honored with a doctor of arts degree and George E. Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony orchestra for 36 years, received an honorary master of arts degree.

Literary historian Van Wyck Brooks and poet Archibald MacLeish received honorary doctor of letters degrees.

Painter Andrew Wyeth was honored with a doctor of arts degree and George E. Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra for 36 years, received an honorary master of arts degree.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Gazzetta del Massachusetts
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 13,029

JUN 17 1955

JUDGE VINCENT MOTTOLA proudly displayed a copy of his latest musical composition "The Massachusetts First Lady's Waltz" to Gov. and Mrs. Herter at the Pops Concert in Symphony hall, where it was played for the first time by an orchestra directed by Arthur Fiedler. The song is dedicated to Mrs. Herter.

viewing the success of the New Look opening of the Supermarket in March. Sales already are more than 25% above those of last year. A poll of the employees revealed a split in preference for the entertainment, and so the trip described above was arranged.

WATER SAFETY

Weekly Independent
Circ. 1,021

JUN 16 1955

Co-op Employees To Celebrate

MAYNARD — A chartered bus will take 25 employees from the Maynard Co-op's supermarket and office staff to a celebration in Boston on June 21.

The party will stop first at the Smith House in Cambridge where a private dining room has been reserved. After dinner the group will split up. Some will attend the Red Sox-Tigers night game at Fenway Park, while others will journey to Symphony Hall for a concert by the Boston Pops orchestra.

The celebration was recommended by the Co-op's Board of Directors last month after receiving the success of the New Look opening of the Supermarket in March. Sales already are more than 25% above those of last year.

Those taking the trip includes: Rachel Aho, John Bandalwicz, Esther Cuddy, Al DeGrappo, Doug Eglinton, Anna Hamalainen, Roy Helander, Laida Jarvinen, Helen Klemola, Vinnie Korpi, Saimi Korsman, John Launola, Fay Lehto, Waino Linna, Lauri Manning, Thomas Mansfield, Lyyli Nelson, Jack Shaw, Taimi Sofka and Roy Watjus.

ence for the ... so the trip described above was arranged.

d To View

WAL

(Entered as Second Matter at Boston

Independent
Circ. 101,022

JUN 16 1955

Helen Keller Wins Degree At Harvard

CAMBRIDGE, June 16 (UP) —German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and blind and deaf leader Helen Keller were among 15 persons today awarded honorary degrees by Harvard University.

Miss Keller was the first woman ever awarded an honorary degree by Harvard since its founding 319 years ago. President Nathan M. Pusey awarded her an honorary doctorate of law saying: "From a still, dark world she has brought us light and sound; our lives are richer for her faith and her example."

Miss Keller, who will be 75 June 27, was stricken deaf, dumb and blind at 19 months, but learned to talk, and can "read" and "hear" through her fingertips.

Others receiving honorary doctor of law degrees today were Louis Munoz-Marin, governor of Puerto Rico, and James B. Conant, former Harvard president and now U. S. ambassador to the West German Republic.

N. Y. Times Publisher

Arthur Hays Sulzberger, publisher of the New York Times, Henry H. Hill, president of George Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville, Tenn., and Laird Bell, Chicago attorney also received honorary doctorates of law.

Two atomic scientists were made honorary doctors of science. They were Nobel Prize

irst Woman University

rto Rico, and James B. nant, former Harvard presit and now U.S. ambassador the West German Republic. rthur Hays Sulzberger, pub winning physicist I. I. Rabi o Columbia University and chemist George B. Kistiakowsky o Harvard. Kistiakowsky was th man who put the first atom bomb together "with these little hands."

Harvard botanist I. W. Bailey and Dr. Fuller Albright, research worker in bone diseases received honorary doctor of science degrees.

Literary historian Van Wyck Brooks and poet Archibald MacLeish received honorary doctor of letters degrees.

Painter Andrew Wyeth was honored with a doctor of arts degree and George E. Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony orchestra for 36 years, received an honorary master of arts degree.

Literary historian Van Wyck rooks and poet Archibald Mac eish received honorary doctor f letters degrees.

Painter Andrew Wyeth was onored with a doctor of arts egree and George E. Judd, manger of the Boston Symphony Orhestra for 36 years, received an onorary master of arts degree.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Gazzetta del Massachusetts
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 13,029

JUN 17 1955

JUDGE VINCENT MOTTOLA proudly displayed a copy of his latest musical compósition "The Massachusetts First Lady's Waltz" to Gov. and Mrs. Herter at the Pops Concert in Symphony hall, where it was played for the first time by an orchestra directed by Arthur Fiedler. The song is dedicated to Mrs. Herter.

SUDBURY, [illegible]
Weekly Ind. Rep.
Combined Circ. 4,728

JUN 16 1955

25 EMPLOYES WILL ATTEND CELEBRATION

Co-Op Staff In Maynard Journeys To Boston Tuesday

Maynard — Next Tuesday, June 21st, a chartered bus will take 25 employees from the Maynard Co-op's supermarket and office staff to a gala celebration in Boston.

Leaving from the front of the Supermarket at 6 p. m., the party will stop first at the Smith House in Cambridge where a private dining room has been reserved. After dinner the group will split up. Some will attend the Red Sox-Tigers night game at Fenway Park, while others will journey to Symphony hall to enjoy a concert by the Boston Pops orchestra.

The celebration was recommended by the Co-op's Board of Directors last month after reviewing the success of the New Look opening of the Supermarket in March. Sales already are more than 25% above those of last year. A poll of the employees revealed a split in preference for the entertainment, and so the trip described above was arranged.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 145,400

JUN 16 1955

Helen Keller One of 15 Cited At Harvard

Cambridge — (UP) — German Chancellor Adenauer and blind and deaf leader Helen Keller were among 15 persons today awarded honorary degrees by Harvard University.

Miss Keller was the first woman ever awarded an honorary degree by Harvard since its founding 319 years ago. President Nathan M. Pusey awarded her an honorary doctorate of law saying:

"From a still, dark world she has brought us light and sound; our lives are richer for her faith and her example."

Miss Keller, who will be 75 June 27, was stricken deaf, dumb and blind at 19 months, but learned to talk and can "read" and "hear" through her fingertips.

Others receiving honorary doctor of law degrees today were Louis Munoz-Marin, governor of Puerto Rico, and James B. Conant, former Harvard president and now U.S. ambassador to the West German Republic.

Arthur Hays Sulzberger, publisher of the New York Times; Henry H. Hill, president of George Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville, Tenn., and Laird Bell, Chicago attorney also received honorary doctorates of law.

Two atomic scientists were made honorary doctors of science. They were Nobel Prize winning physicist I. I. Rabi of Columbia University and chemist George B. Kistiakowsky of Harvard. Kistiakowsky was the man who put the first atom bomb together "with these little hands."

Harvard botanist I. W. Bailey and Dr. Fuller Albright, research worker in bone diseases, received honorary doctor of science degrees.

Literary historian Van Wyck Brooks and poet Archibald Mac Leish received honorary doctor of letters degrees.

Painter Andrew Wyeth was honored with a doctor of arts degree and George E. Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra for 36 years, received an honorary master of arts degree.

irst Woman University

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Gazzetta del Massachusetts
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 13,029

JUN 17 1955

JUDGE VINCENT MOTTOLA proudly displayed a copy of his latest musical compósition "The Massachusetts First Lady's Waltz" to Gov. and Mrs. Herter at the Pops Concert in Symphony hall, where it was played for the first time by an orchestra directed by Arthur Fiedler. The song is dedicated to Mrs. Herter.

Enterp[illegible]
BEDFORD, Mass.
Weekly Ind. Rep.
Comb. Circ. 4,728

JUN 16 1955

25 EMPLOYES WILL ATTEND CELEBRATION

Co-Op Staff In Maynard Journevs To Boston Tuesday

Maynard — Next Tuesday, June 21st, a chartered bus will take 25 employees from the Maynard Co-op's supermarket and office staff to a gala celebration in Boston.

Leaving from the front of the Supermarket at 6 p. m., the party will stop first at the Smith House in Cambridge where a private dining room has been reserved. After dinner the group will split up. Some will attend the Red Sox-Tigers night game at Fenway Park, while others will journey to Symphony hall to enjoy a concert by the Boston Pops orchestra.

The celebration was recommended by the Co-op's Board of Directors last month after reviewing the success of the New Look opening of the Supermarket in March. Sales already are more than 25% above those of last year. A poll of the employees revealed a split in prefence for the entertainment, and so the trip described above was arranged.

[illegible]
BOS[illegible]
Independent
Circ. 122,000

JUN 17 1955

Helen Keller First Woman Ever Cited by University

DOCTOR OF LAWS Commonwealth, servant of freedom within the American community, he is calling into life the national capabilities of the Puerto Rican people."

ARTHUR HAYS SULZBERGER, president and publisher of the New York Times (born Sept. 12, 1891, in New York; B. S. Columbia 1913; he entered the newspaper business in 1919, and became publisher of the New York Times in 1935; trustee, Columbia University, New York Foundation, Congregation Emanu-El, Rockefeller Foundation, Metropolitan Museum of Art):

"We honor the publisher of a great American newspaper who has continued with distinction its exemplary tradition of responsible journalism."

vision to our eyes."

MASTER OF ARTS

GEORGE ELBERT JUDD, retired manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra (born Jan. 6, 1887, in Stamford, N. Y.; A.B. Harvard, 1911; assistant manager and manager, Boston Symphony Orchestra, 1918-1954; supervising home concerts and road schedule as well as organizing Pops concerts, Esplanade concerts and Tanglewood Summer School of Music):

"An imaginative impresario, with skill in management and good-humored patience in the face of genius, he has advanced the reputation of a great symphony orchestra."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Gazzetta del Massachusetts
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 13,029

JUN 17 1955

JUDGE VINCENT MOTTOLA proudly displayed a copy of his latest musical compósition "The Massachusetts First Lady's Waltz" to Gov. and Mrs. Herter at the Pops Concert in Symphony hall, where it was played for the first time by an orchestra directed by Arthur Fiedler. The song is dedicated to Mrs. Herter.

25 EMPLOYES WILL ATTEND CELEBRATION

Co-Op Staff In Maynard Journeys To Boston Tuesday

Maynard — Next Tuesday, June 21st, a chartered bus will take 25 employees from the Maynard Co-op's supermarket and office staff to a gala celebration in Boston.

Leaving from the front of the Supermarket at 6 p. m., the party will stop first at the Smith House in Cambridge where a private dining room has been reserved. After dinner the group will split up. Some will attend the Red Sox-Tigers night game at Fenway Park, while others will journey to Symphony hall to enjoy a concert by the Boston Pops orchestra.

The celebration was recommended by the Co-op's Board of Directors last month after reviewing the success of the New Look opening of the Supermarket in March. Sales already are more than 25% above those of last year. A poll of the employees revealed a split in preference for the entertainment, and so the trip described above was arranged.

BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

JUN 17 1955

Helen Keller First Woman Ever Cited by University

DOCTOR OF LAWS

[illegible] Commonwealth, servant of freedom within the American community, he is calling into play the national capabilities of the Puerto Rican people."

ARTHUR HAYS SULZBERGER, president and publisher of the New York Times (born Sept. 12, 1891, in New York; B. S. Columbia 1913; he entered the newspaper business in 1919, and became publisher of the New York Times in 1935; trustee, Columbia University, New York Foundation, Congregation Emanu-El, Rockefeller Foundation, Metropolitan Museum of Art):

"We honor the publisher of a great American newspaper who has continued with distinction its exemplary tradition of responsible journalism."

vision to our eyes."

MASTER OF ARTS

GEORGE ELBERT JUDD, retired manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra (born Jan. 6, 1887, in Stamford, N. Y.; A.B. Harvard, 1911; assistant manager and manager, Boston Symphony Orchestra, 1918-1954; supervising home concerts and road schedule as well as organizing Pops concerts, Esplanade concerts and Tanglewood Summer School of Music):

"An imaginative impresario, with skill in management and good-humored patience in the face of genius, he has advanced the reputation of a great symphony orchestra."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Gazzetta del Massachusetts
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 13,029

JUN 17 1955

JUDGE VINCENT MOTTOLA proudly displayed a copy of his latest musical composition "The Massachusetts First Lady's Waltz" to Gov. and Mrs. Herter at the Pops Concert in Symphony hall, where it was played for the first time by an orchestra directed by Arthur Fiedler. The song is dedicated to Mrs. Herter.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

JUN 18 1955

Request Program to End Pops Season

In response to requests of Pops fans, Arthur Fiedler announces the first Request Night in several seasons, to be played at the Pops on July 1, the closing night of the 70th season.

Pops-goers already have been filling out ballots supplied in the program book. The returns so far show an interesting combination of old and new favorites. With the perennials are included the "William Tell" and the "1812" overtures; the "Marche Slave" and the "Stars and Stripes" and "Pomp and Circumstance" marches; and "Tales from the Vienna Woods." Of later and recent vintage are the "Warsaw Concerto"; Richard Rodgers Waltzes; the ballets "Les Slyphides" and "Gaite Parisienne"; and Dick Hayman's hilarious medley, TViana.

Balloting will close Wednesday, and the Request Night program will be announced on June 26.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 18 1955

Rolland Tapley will be guest conductor for Old Timers' Night at the Pops this evening.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 509,171 - S. 1,117,392

JUN 19 1956

BEQUEST

The regard that New Englanders have for their subscriptions to the Boston Symphony has become legendary. Further evidence came out with the recording of the will of Fred M. Woodard, a shoe machinery expert of Lynn, Mass., who died recently at the age of 74.

It contained this specific bequest to Mrs. Helen Field Parker, a Brookline widow: "My seat at the seasonal concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra being seat C-31 in the first balcony, right, for Saturday evenings."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

News (e)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Democratic

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

JUN 19

Realtors Hold "Pops Night"

Tomorrow night is Realtors' Pops Night at Symphony Hall. The feature of the evening will be the appearance of Monte Nelson, Lynn realtor, as guest soloist at the piano. He is well known for his performances throughout the east. Pops audiences have enjoyed his music on numerous occasions when he has appeared with Arthur Fiedler's orchestra.

Many realtors and their guests have made reservations to attend Pops tomorrow through the realtor promotion committee headed by Henry Palmer, Quincy, chairman.

WOLCOTT W. GUMBLE

sociation, has announced that the organization has reserved one half of the floor of Symphony Hall for the use of realtors, their families and friends, on that date.

Wolcott W. Gumble, secretary of the Springfield Board, and John L. Seyler, local representative of the Realtor Committee, are in charge of local ticket distribution.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 509,171 - S. 1,117,392

JUN 19 1956

ENGINEERS MEET IN JUBILEE TODAY

Link to World of Science Is Theme for U. S. Society's Convocation in Boston

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 18—More than 1,200 engineers, including several hundred from abroad, will attend the Diamond Jubilee semi-annual meeting of The American Society of Mechanical Engineers. It opens here tomorrow and continues through Friday.

The meeting is a major event of the society's celebration of its seventy-fifth anniversary this year. The theme of the meeting is "The Engineer and the World of Science."

The program includes forty-one technical sessions, with more than 100 papers to be read. Four of the principal addresses will be given by representatives from England, France, Canada and Sweden.

The sponsors of the technical sessions include these divisions of the society: Applied mechanics, aviation, fuels, gas turbine power, heat transfer, hydraulic instruments and regulators, machine design, management.

Also, materials handling, metals engineering, nuclear engineering, power, process industries, production engineering, railroad, rubber and plastics, safety, textile engineering and wood industries.

Dr. Detlev W. Bronk, president of the National Academy of Sciences and president of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, will give the highlight address at the society dinner Tuesday. His topic will be "Machines and Men."

Other speakers will be: Rear Admiral Hyman G. Rickover, United States Navy, a member of the Atomic Energy Commission; Dr. Frederick G. Keyes, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Dr. Bostwick H. Ketchum, Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, Woods Hole, Mass.; Sir Vincent de Ferranti, England, chairman of the World Power Conference.

Also, Ernest F. Mercier, France; Richard E. Hearts, president of the Engineering Institute of Canada; Hilding V. Turnebohm, Sweden, president of the International Organization for Standardization, and Dr. Carl W. Walter, Harvard Medical School.

The program includes inspection trips to the Quartermaster Research and Development Center, Natick, Mass.; the research laboratories of Arthur D. Little, Inc., West Cambridge, Mass.; the River Works Plant of General Electric Company, West Lynn, Mass., and a 35,000-ton press being operated at the Wyman-Gordon Company plant in Grafton, Mass.

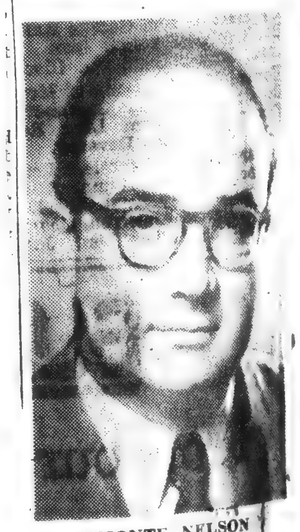
The social program will include a Boston Pops Orchestra concert, tours of the city and outlying areas and a clambake at Plymouth, Mass.

The society has issued an eighty-page brochure, "A Diamond Jubilee Book of Facts." It includes a short history of the society, material on the role of mechanical engineers in the world and biographical summaries of individuals prominent in the history of the organization.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Telegram-News
LYNN, Mass.
Democrat
Circ. 23,112

Lynn Man Soloist In Symphony Pops



MONTE NELSON

Monte Nelson, realtor and concert-pianist, will be featured as soloist with the Boston Symphony Pops Orchestra under Arthur Fiedler Monday for Realtors Pops Night. Mr. Nelson has a real estate and insurance office at 57 Silsbee street.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 509,171 - S. 1,117,392

JUN 19 1955

OFFER FROM BOSTON

To the Music Editor:

I read with astonishment in The Times of May 8 that the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra has no home. I was always under the impression that Carnegie Hall belongs to the orchestra just as Boston Symphony Hall is owned by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The hall was given to the orchestra a long time ago by the late financier, Henry Lee Higginson.

However, if the richest city in the world has no inclination to provide a permanent home for the oldest and one of the greatest symphony orchestras in the world, we of the radio audience will gladly give the orchestra the money. We owe this magnificent institution a great debt for the pleasure we have derived every Sunday afternoon for more than twenty-five years. I advise that the trustees get busy immediately!

JOSEPH WEINREBE, M. D.
Boston.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Telegram
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 103,999

JUN 19 1955

HANDEL'S 'WATER MUSIC'

Sir Edward Elgar's stately "Pomp and Circumstance March No. 1" will open the program of the Boston Pops Orchestra directed by Arthur Fiedler Monday on WBZ-NBC radio. Three movements—the allegro, air and allegro vivace — from Handel's "Water Music" will be played.

[93]

Independent
Circ. 154,241

JUN 18 1955

Request Program to End Pops Season

In response to requests of Pops fans, Arthur Fiedler announces the first Request Night in several seasons, to be played at the Pops on July 1, the closing night of the 70th season.

Pops-goers already have been filling out ballots supplied in the program book. The returns so far show an interesting combination of old and new favorites. With the perennials are included the

SOUTH BOSTON CITIZENS' ASSOC.

We regret to announce the death of Frederick E. Ordway. Members are requested to meet at the John F. O'Brien

DUNSTER LODGE #220, I.O.O.F.

Brothers are hereby notified of the death of William B. Edmands. Odd Fellows services in the chapel of the Watson Funeral Home, 11 Maxzine st., Cambridge, Sunday, June 19, at 7:30 p. m. Brothers please attend.

HAROLD C. WALKER, N. G.
CHESTER M. CARR, P. G., Rec. Sec.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 18 1955

Rolland Tapley will be guest conductor for Old Timers' Night at the Pops this evening.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 509,171 - S. 1,117,392

JUN 19 1955

BEQUEST

The regard that New Englanders have for their subscriptions to the Boston Symphony has become legendary. Further evidence came out with the recording of the will of Fred M. Woodard, a shoe machinery expert of Lynn, Mass., who died recently at the age of 74.

It contained this specific bequest to Mrs. Helen Field Parker, a Brookline widow: "My seat at the seasonal concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra being seat C-31 in the first balcony, right, for Saturday evenings."

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 509,171 - S. 1,117,392

JUN 19 1955

ENGINEERS MEET IN JUBILEE TODAY

Link to World of Science Is Theme for U. S. Society's Convocation in Boston

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 18—More than 1,200 engineers, including several hundred from abroad, will attend the Diamond Jubilee semiannual meeting of The American Society of Mechanical Engineers. It opens here tomorrow and continues through Friday.

The meeting is a major event of the society's celebration of its seventy-fifth anniversary this year. The theme of the meeting is "The Engineer and the World of Science."

The program includes forty-one technical sessions, with more than 100 papers to be read. Four of the principal addresses will be given by representatives from England, France, Canada and Sweden.

The sponsors of the technical sessions include these divisions of the society: Applied mechanics, aviation, fuels, gas turbine power, heat transfer, hydraulic instruments and regulators, machine design, management.

Also, materials handling, metals engineering, nuclear engineering, power, process industries, production engineering, railroad, rubber and plastics, safety, textile engineering and wood industries.

Dr. Detlev W. Bronk, president of the National Academy of Sciences and president of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, will give the highlight address at the society dinner Tuesday. His topic will be "Machines and Men."

Other speakers will be: Rear Admiral Hyman G. Rickover, United States Navy, a member of the Atomic Energy Commission; Dr. Frederick G. Keyes, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Dr. Bostwick H. Ketchum, Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, Woods Hole, Mass.; Sir Vincent de Ferranti, England, chairman of the World Power Conference.

Also, Ernest F. Mercier, France; Richard E. Hearts, president of the Engineering Institute of Canada; Hilding V. Tunnebohm, Sweden, president of the International Organization for Standardization, and Dr. Carl W. Walter, Harvard Medical School.

The program includes inspection trips to the Quartermaster Research and Development Center, Natick, Mass.; the research laboratories of Arthur D. Little, Inc., West Cambridge, Mass.; the River Works Plant of General Electric Company, West Lynn, Mass., and a 35,000-ton press being operated at the Wyman-Gordon Company plant in Grafton, Mass.

The social program will include a Boston Pops Orchestra concert, tours of the city and outlying areas and a clambake at Plymouth, Mass.

The society has issued an eighty-page brochure, "A Diamond Jubilee Book of Facts." It includes a short history of the society, material on the role of mechanical engineers in the world and biographical summaries of individuals prominent in the history of the organization.

Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

JUN 19 1955

REALTORS' POPS NIGHT

Tomorrow night is Realtors' Pops night at Symphony Hall. The feature of the evening will be the appearance of Monte Nelson, Lynn realtor, as guest soloist at the piano.

WOLCOTT W. GUMBLE

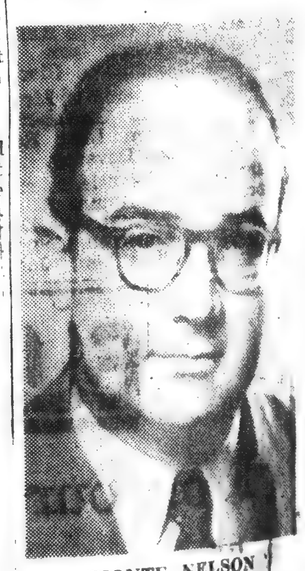
sociation, has announced that the organization has reserved one half of the floor of Symphony Hall for the use of realtors, their families and friends, on that date.

Wolcott W. Gumble, secretary of the Springfield Board, and John L. Seyler, local representative of the Realtor Committee, are in charge of local ticket distribution.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Telegram-News
LYNN, Mass.
Democrat
Circ. 23,112

Lynn Man Soloist In Symphony Pops



MONTE NELSON

Monte Nelson, realtor and concert-pianist, will be featured as soloist with the Boston Symphony Pops Orchestra under Arthur Fiedler Monday for Realtors Pops Night. Mr. Nelson has a real estate and insurance office at 57 Silsbee street.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 509,171 - S. 1,117,392

JUN 19 1955

OFFER FROM BOSTON

To the Music Editor:

I read with astonishment in The Times of May 8 that the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra has no home. I was always under the impression that Carnegie Hall belongs to the orchestra just as Boston Symphony Hall is owned by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The hall was given to the orchestra a long time ago by the late financier, Henry Lee Higginson.

However, if the richest city in the world has no inclination to provide a permanent home for the oldest and one of the greatest symphony orchestras in the world, we of the radio audience will gladly give the orchestra the money. We owe this magnificent institution a great debt for the pleasure we have derived every Sunday afternoon for more than twenty-five years. I advise that the trustees get busy immediately!

JOSEPH WEINREBE, M. D.
Boston.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Telegram
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 103,999

JUN 19 1955

HANDEL'S 'WATER MUSIC'

Sir Edward Elgar's stately "Pomp and Circumstance March No. 1" will open the program of the Boston Pops Orchestra directed by Arthur Fiedler Monday on WBZ-NBC radio. Three movements—the allegro, air and allegro vivace — from Handel's "Water Music" will be played.

[93]

Independent
Circ. 154,241

JUN 18 1955

Request Program to End Pops Season

In response to requests of Pops fans, Arthur Fiedler announces the first Request Night in several seasons, to be played at the Pops on July 1, the closing night of the 70th season.

Pops-goers already have been filling out ballots supplied in the program book. The returns so far show an interesting combination of old and new favorites. With the perennials are included the "William Tell" and the "1812" overtures; the "Marche Slave" and the "Stars and Stripes" and "Pomp and Circumstance" marches; and "Tales from the Vienna Woods." Of later and recent vintage are the "Warsaw Concerto"; Richard Rodgers Waltzes; the ballets "Les Slyphides" and "Gaite Parisienne"; and Dick Hayman's hilarious medley, TViana.

Balloting will close Wednesday, and the Request Night program will be announced on June 26.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 18 1955

Rolland Tapley will be guest conductor for Old Timers' Night at the Pops this evening.

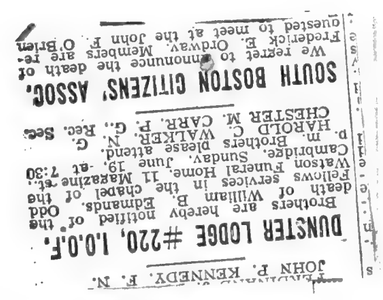
NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 509,171 - S. 1,117,392

JUN 19 1956

BEQUEST

The regard that New Englanders have for their subscriptions to the Boston Symphony has become legendary. Further evidence came out with the recording of the will of Fred M. Woodard, a shoe machinery expert of Lynn, Mass., who died recently at the age of 74.

It contained this specific bequest to Mrs. Helen Field Parker, a Brookline widow: "My seat at the seasonal concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra being seat C-31 in the first balcony, right, for Saturday evenings."



DUNSTER LODGE #220, I.O.O.F.
Brothers are hereby notified of the death of William B. Edmands, Odd Fellows Servicee in the chapel of the Watson Funeral Home, 11 Mazzine st., Cambridge, Sunday, June 19, at 7:30 p. m. Brothers please attend.
HAROLD C. WALKER, N. G.
CHESTER M. CARR, F. G., Rec. Sec.

We regret to announce the death of Frederick E. Ordway. Members are requested to meet at the John F. O'Brien

SOUTH BOSTON CITIZENS' ASSOC.

JOHN P. KENNEDY, F. N.

Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

JUN 19 195[illegible]

REALTORS' POPS NIGHT

Tomorrow night is Realtors' Pops night at Symphony Hall. The feature of the evening will be the appearance of Monte Nelson, Lynn realtor, as guest soloist at the piano.

WOLCOTT W. GUMBLE

sociation, has announced that the organization has reserved one half of the floor of Symphony Hall for the use of realtors, their families and friends, on that date.

Wolcott W. Gumble, secretary of the Springfield Board, and John L. Seyler, local representative of the Realtor Committee, are in charge of local ticket distribution.

ENGINEERS MEET IN JUBILEE TODAY

Link to World of Science Is Theme for U. S. Society's Convocation in Boston

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 18—More than 1,200 engineers, including several hundred from abroad, will attend the Diamond Jubilee semi-annual meeting of The American Society of Mechanical Engineers. It opens here tomorrow and continues through Friday.

The meeting is a major event of the society's celebration of its seventy-fifth anniversary this year. The theme of the meeting is "The Engineer and the World of Science."

The program includes forty-one technical sessions, with more than 100 papers to be read. Four of the principal addresses will be given by representatives from England, France, Canada and Sweden.

The sponsors of the technical sessions include these divisions of the society: Applied mechanics, aviation, fuels, gas turbine power, heat transfer, hydraulic instruments and regulators, machine design, management.

Also, materials handling, metals engineering, nuclear engineering, power, process industries, production engineering, railroad, rubber and plastics, safety, textile engineering and wood industries.

Dr. Detlev W. Bronk, president of the National Academy of Sciences and president of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, will give the highlight address at the society dinner Tuesday. His topic will be "Machines and Men."

Other speakers will be: Rear Admiral Hyman G. Rickover, United States Navy, a member of the Atomic Energy Commission; Dr. Frederick G. Keyes, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Dr. Bostwick H. Ketchum, Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, Woods Hole, Mass.; Sir Vincent de Ferranti, England, chairman of the World Power Conference.

Also, Ernest F. Mercier, France; Richard E. Hearts, president of the Engineering Institute of Canada; Hilding V. Turnebohm, Sweden, president of the International Organization for Standardization, and Dr. Carl W. Walter, Harvard Medical School.

The program includes inspection trips to the Quartermaster Research and Development Center, Natick, Mass.; the research laboratories of Arthur D. Little, Inc., West Cambridge, Mass.; the River Works Plant of General Electric Company, West Lynn, Mass., and a 35,000-ton press being operated at the Wyman-Gordon Company plant in Grafton, Mass.

The social program will include a Boston Pops Orchestra concert, tours of the city and outlying areas and a clambake at Plymouth, Mass.

The society has issued an eighty-page brochure, "A Diamond Jubilee Book of Facts." It includes a short history of the society, material on the role of mechanical engineers in the world and biographical summaries of individuals prominent in the history of the organization.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Telegram-News
LYNN, Mass.
Democrat
Circ. 23,112

Lynn Man Soloist In Symphony Pops

MONTE NELSON

Monte Nelson, realtor and concert-pianist, will be featured as soloist with the Boston Symphony Pops Orchestra, under Arthur Fiedler Monday for Realtors Pops Night. Mr. Nelson has a real estate and insurance office at 57 Silsbee street.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 509,171 - S. 1,117,392

JUN 19 1956

OFFER FROM BOSTON

To the Music Editor:

I read with astonishment in The Times of May 8 that the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra has no home. I was always under the impression that Carnegie Hall belongs to the orchestra just as Boston Symphony Hall is owned by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The hall was given to the orchestra a long time ago by the late financier, Henry Lee Higginson.

However, if the richest city in the world has no inclination to provide a permanent home for the oldest and one of the greatest symphony orchestras in the world, we of the radio audience will gladly give the orchestra the money. We owe this magnificent institution a great debt for the pleasure we have derived every Sunday afternoon for more than twenty-five years. I advise that the trustees get busy immediately!

JOSEPH WEINREBE, M. D.
Boston.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Telegram
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 103,999

JUN 19 1955

HANDEL'S 'WATER MUSIC'

Sir Edward Elgar's stately "Pomp and Circumstance March No. 1" will open the program of the Boston Pops Orchestra directed by Arthur Fiedler Monday on WBZ-NBC radio. Three movements—the allegro, air and allegro giusto — from Handel's "Water Music" will be played.

[93]

Independent
Circ. 154,241

JUN 18 1955

DUNSTER LODGE #220, I.O.O.F.
Brothers are hereby notified of the death of William B. Edmands. Funeral services in the chapel of the Fellows Funeral Home, 11 Magazine St., Watson Farm, Sunday, June 19, at 7:30 p.m. Brothers please attend.
HAROLD C. WALKER, N. G.
CHESTER M. CARR, F. G., Rec. Sec.

SOUTH BOSTON CITIZENS' ASSOC.
We regret to announce the death of Frederick E. Ordway. Members are requested to meet at the John F. Kennedy

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 18 1955

Rolland Tapley will be guest conductor for Old Timers' Night at the Pops this evening.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 509,171 - S. 1,117,392

JUN 19 1956

BEQUEST

The regard that New Englanders have for their subscriptions to the Boston Symphony has become legendary. Further evidence came out with the recording of the will of Fred M. Woodard, a shoe machinery expert of Lynn, Mass., who died recently at the age of 74.

It contained this specific bequest to Mrs. Helen Field Parker, a Brookline widow: "My seat at the seasonal concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, being seat C-31 in the first balcony, right, for Saturday evenings."

Democratic
Circ. 91,975

JUN 18 1955

Realtors Going To Hub Concert

Half Symphony Hall Floor Reserved by Assn.

Music-loving realtors will enjoy an evening of entertainment Monday at the Boston Pops Concert. Samuel P. Backman, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Association, has announced that the organization has reserved one half of the floor of Symphony Hall for the use of realtors, their families and friends, on that date.

WOLCOTT W. GUMBLE

Wolcott W. Gumble, secretary of the Springfield Board, and John L. Seyler, local representative of the Realtor Committee, are in charge of local ticket distribution.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 509,171 - S. 1,117,392

JUN 19 1956

ENGINEERS MEET IN JUBILEE TODAY

Link to World of Science Is Theme for U. S. Society's Convocation in Boston

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 18—More than 1,200 engineers, including several hundred from abroad, will attend the Diamond Jubilee semi-annual meeting of The American Society of Mechanical Engineers. It opens here tomorrow and continues through Friday.

The meeting is a major event of the society's celebration of its seventy-fifth anniversary this year. The theme of the meeting is "The Engineer and the World of Science."

The program includes forty-one technical sessions, with more than 100 papers to be read. Four of the principal addresses will be given by representatives from England, France, Canada and Sweden.

The sponsors of the technical sessions include these divisions of the society: Applied mechanics, aviation, fuels, gas turbine power, heat transfer, hydraulic instruments and regulators, machine design, management.

Also, materials handling, metals engineering, nuclear engineering, power, process industries, production engineering, railroad, rubber and plastics, safety, textile engineering and wood industries.

Dr. Detlev W. Bronk, president of the National Academy of Sciences and president of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, will give the highlight address at the society dinner Tuesday. His topic will be "Machines and Men."

Other speakers will be: Rear Admiral Hyman G. Rickover, United States Navy, a member of the Atomic Energy Commission; Dr. Frederick G. Keyes, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Dr. Bostwick H. Ketchum, Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, Woods Hole, Mass.; Sir Vincent de Ferranti, England, chairman of the World Power Conference.

Also, Ernest F. Mercier, France; Richard E. Hearts, president of the Engineering Institute of Canada; Hilding V. Tunnebohm, Sweden, president of the International Organization for Standardization, and Dr. Carl W. Walter, Harvard Medical School.

The program includes inspection trips to the Quartermaster Research and Development Center, Natick, Mass.; the research laboratories of Arthur D. Little, Inc., West Cambridge, Mass.; the River Works Plant of General Electric Company, West Lynn, Mass., and a 35,000-ton press being operated at the Wyman-Gordon Company plant in Grafton, Mass.

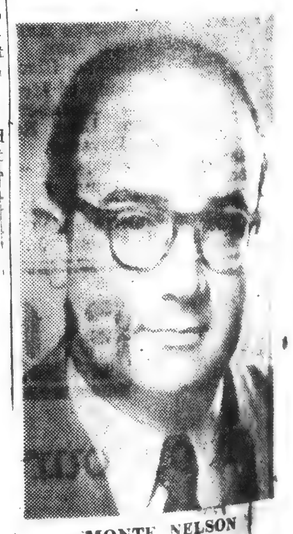
The social program will include a Boston Pops Orchestra concert, tours of the city and outlying areas and a clambake at Plymouth, Mass.

The society has issued an eighty-page brochure, "A Diamond Jubilee Book of Facts." It includes a short history of the society, material on the role of mechanical engineers in the world and biographical summaries of individuals prominent in the history of the organization.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Telegram-News
LYNN, Mass.
Democrat
Circ. 23,112

Lynn Man Soloist In Symphony Pops



MONTE NELSON

Monte Nelson, realtor and concert-pianist, will be featured as soloist with the Boston Symphony Pops Orchestra under Arthur Fiedler Monday for Realtors Pops Night. Mr. Nelson has a real estate and insurance office at 57 Silsbee street.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 509,171 - S. 1,117,392

JUN 19 1956

OFFER FROM BOSTON

To the Music Editor:

I read with astonishment in The Times of May 8 that the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra has no home. I was always under the impression that Carnegie Hall belongs to the orchestra just as Boston Symphony Hall is owned by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The hall was given to the orchestra a long time ago by the late financier, Henry Lee Higginson.

However, if the richest city in the world has no inclination to provide a permanent home for the oldest and one of the greatest symphony orchestras in the world, we of the radio audience will gladly give the orchestra the money. We owe this magnificent institution a great debt for the pleasure we have derived every Sunday afternoon for more than twenty-five years. I advise that the trustees get busy immediately!

JOSEPH WEINREBE, M. D.
Boston.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Telegram
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 103,999

JUN 19 1955

HANDEL'S 'WATER MUSIC'

Sir Edward Elgar's stately "Pomp and Circumstance March No. 1" will open the program of the Boston Pops Orchestra directed by Arthur Fiedler Monday on WBZ-NBC radio. Three movements—the allegro, air and allegro alla hornpipe — from Handel's "Water Music" will be played.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,241

JUN 19 1955

FORMER CONDUCTOR of the Iranian Symphony Orchestra, Rouben Gregorian, now a faculty member of the Boston Conservatory of Music, will be guest conductor at "Pops" Saturday evening, June 25. Here he meets with Arthur Fiedler to discuss plans for "Armenian Night." Left to right: Rouben Gregorian, Arthur Fiedler, Berj Zamkochian, organist of St. Theresa's Church, West Roxbury, soloist. Rear: Shahan Natalie, Belmont; Mrs. Virginia Markarian, Mrs. Alice Chutjian and Robert C. Hagopian, Watertown.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

JUN 19 1955

POPS SINGER—Agnes Dadekian, soloist at St. James Armenian Church in Watertown and well known on the concert stage, will sing at the third annual Armenian Night at the Pops, Saturday, June 25.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Post
BRIDGEPORT, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 61,159

BOSTON POPS BILL

Sir Edward Elgar's stately "Pomp and Circumstance March No. 1" will open the program of the Boston Pops Orchestra directed by Arthur Fiedler Monday (NBC radio, 8:15 p.m.). Three movements—the allegro, air and allegro deciso—from Handel's "Water Music" will be played next. The program will be completed with the Bach-Gounod "Ave Maria," with Alfred Krips as violin soloist, and Dvorak's "Carnaval Overture."

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 509,171 - S. 1,117,392

JUN 19 1956

SAVING A HALL

Group Starts Campaign To Keep Carnegie

By OLIN DOWNES

IT looks now as if everyone were waiting around to see what would be done by somebody else to keep Carnegie Hall as the famous concert auditorium that it is, and not to permit the sale of the building for real estate purposes.

Robert E. Simon Jr., head of the company that acquired the ownership of the hall from Mrs. Andrew Carnegie in 1925, has let it be known that a handsome offer to purchase the structure has been made by a real estate organization, with the objective of turning it into a large modern hotel or similar institution, a project that would bring in much larger financial returns than the auditorium now brings to its owners.

This does not mean that Carnegie Hall is run at a loss. It more than balances its budget through rentals for musical performances. It is a going concern that earns enough to meet all costs of operation, taxes, maintenance and repairs. But the returns are modest. There is no question of the much greater financial value of the hall if it were purchased and turned to what may be called profit purposes.

Traditions

On the other hand, Carnegie Hall, air-cooled, and with such renovations as the making of the two stories beneath the main floor into a foyer, a restaurant and a lounge, with a broad stairway leading up to the auditorium, as Mr. Simon has conceived, could be turned into a music center. With ample facilities for performance and public convenience, it would probably be able to increase materially its income as well as its attractiveness for public use. This could be done with no loss to the prestige of the hall or its noble traditions. And it is to be remembered that there is only one Cargenie Hall in the nation, and that that hall, once gone, could be neither duplicated nor replaced in the musical life of the city.

A public meeting was held last Tuesday by the Committee to Save Carnegie Hall, of which John J. Totten, house manager of the auditorium, is chairman.

The speakers dwelt on the indispensability of Carnegie Hall to the musical life of the city and indeed the nation, and explained the various reasons for its value, practical and artistic.

It goes without saying that if Carnegie disappeared other auditoriums would be erected. But this would not be an answer to its loss. The location of a new hall is also a matter for very serious deliberation. The city is certainly going uptown. The Metropolitan Opera Association, which, unlike Carnegie, is in imperative need of a new building, will probably go that way. The present ways of approach to Carnegie are not of the best from every part of the city. But a hall situated farther north than Fifty-ninth Street could not hope to have subway and surface routes as useful as those that now lead to Carnegie. Neither the location, the artistic values nor the reputation of Carnegie Hall are transferable.

Costs of New Hall

The figure at which Carnegie Hall could undoubtedly be secured is estimated at between three and five million dollars. What would a new concert hall, if erected, cost as compared with the figures as they stand for the purchase? Could comparable results be secured elsewhere even at the outside figure of five million? There is the consideration also of acoustics as they exist, and as they might or might not exist in a new auditorium. We ourselves listened for years in one of the finest, though not the largest, concert auditoriums in America—Symphony Hall, built for the Boston Symphony Orchestra in its city. Yet players of the Boston Symphony have more than once declared to us their preference for the acoustics of Carnegie as compared with those of their own headquarters. Carnegie has acoustics superior, on the whole, to most other concert halls of the nation. Many of the leading artists of the world have testified to this.

But the orchestra that has by far the greatest stake of all the symphony orchestras concerned in the operation of Carnegie Hall is the Philharmonic-Symphony, which up to the present time has remained studiously aloof from the problem.

Philharmonic Position

It has been proposed that the Philharmonic-Symphony Society purchase the hall, as would seem especially logical and desirable. The society's answer, thus far, is the deficits of the Philharmonic-Symphony concerts, the difficulty of meeting them annually, to say nothing of the large additional funds required for the purchase. We belive that a campaign conducted by newspaper, radio and [illegible] agents of publicity, [illegible] upon the historic associati[illegible] name Carnegie Hall, [illegible] ceive a nation-wide [illegible] similar to that which th[illegible] politan Opera Association has repeatedly evoked by such appeals.

By certain of the Philharmonic-Symphony's representatives the rather strange objection has been made that they would hardly deem it appropriate for the society to propagandize for the purchase of Carnegie Hall. One respectfully asks, why? Why should not a great orchestra have its own home, as the Boston Symphony, the Chicago Orchestra, and other leading American orchestras have today? Why should it not save taxes in the manner previously outlined? Why should it not be able, in all probability, to reduce its yearly deficits by such additional income as would accrue from the rentals of an air-cooled auditorium? Such an auditorium might well become, as Boston's Symphony Hall has become, not only a place for public functions when the winter has passed, but a place for semi-popular concerts on the order of the Boston "Pops" in the spring months prior to the season of the Lewisohn Stadium concerts. This should be especially possible if the renovations and the air-cooling of Carnegie Hall were perfected in the way that Mr. Simon has envisaged.

Now, aside from the hesitant and laissez-faire attitude, apparently, of the Philharmonic-Symphony, a plan has been worked out by Mr. Totten and his committee that, if it can be successfuly executed, will solve the financial question and make possible the purchase of the hall and its operation on non-profit making lines.

Plan

Carnegie Hall has sixty-three boxes. If individuals of the city, state and nation would buy a box at the price of $5,000 the name of the purchaser would be placed as a permanent memorial on the door of the box so secured. There are 2,247 seats. If other individuals, far or near, desired to contribute toward making Carnegie Hall the permanent institution desired, they could do so by paying $1,000 for a seat, upon which the name of the donor would be engraved, as such names are now engraved on the seats in Town Hall. These combined sums, if the sale were completed, would bring in a total of $2,570,000 and insure the purchase of the hall.

There is reason to believe that the pursuance of this plan would bring in a wide response. Letters urging the preservation of the hall have come in from all over the country. If a major part of the sum mentioned were thus secured, the future of Carnegie Hall would no longer be in question.

In whatever manner the preservation of New York's historic auditorium with all that it means to the city and the nation is accomplished, we cannot believe that Carnegie Hall will be disposed of for purposes of commercialism.

[94]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Telegram
PORTLAND, Me.
Indep. Republican
Circ. 86,046

JUN 19 1955

Personals

Miss Janet Grover of Marlowe St. left Friday to spend the weekend in Boston and Melrose, Mass., visiting her sister, Miss Margaret Ann Grover. She attended the Boston Pops.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 154,241

JUN 20 1955

GEORGE ZAZOFSKY will be soloist with the Boston Pops Orchestra tomorrow evening in Beethoven's Violin Concerto.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,241

JUN 19 1955

Pops Orchestra to Salute Miss Morgan

A good portion of Symphony Hall will be taken over by WNAC-TV Thursday night, June 30, for a triple musical toast at the Pops.

The station is celebrating the start of its 34th year on the air, the eighth anniversary of WNAC-TV and Louise Morgan's seventh year as Boston's First Lady of TV.

LOUISE MORGAN as she receives good handwriting award from Jerome Rosenfeld.

Only recently, Miss Morgan was honored by the Handwriting Foundation for her beautiful penmanship. Viewers see her exquisite writing as she begins and signs off her telecasts. Her legion of friends delight in getting her thoughtful greeting cards and notes. Her handwriting is her trademark . . . superb.

"I Love Louisa" will be played for Louise by the string section of the Boston Pops Orchestra, and Peter Bodge will be on hand to conduct the Pops Orchestra in a medley of old-time favorites which he has arranged himself.

Mr. Fiedler has promised to try to include "TViana" and "Davy Crockett" for the benefit of the WNAC staff members and their invited friends.

FORT WORTH, TEX.
STAR-TELEGRAM
Circ. D. 114,857 - S. 216,735

JUN 19 1955

Young Pianist Slated to Perform With Boston Pops

Ivan Davis, piano student of Silvio Scionti and Grace Ward Lankford who recently won the Young Artist Contest of the National Federation of Music Clubs, played the first movement of the Tschaikovsky piano concerto Friday night with the Boston Pops Orchestra under Arthur Fiedler's direction.

This same movement played by Davis will be heard on the Boston Pops radio program June 27 (WEAA-829).

Davis has a grant of $3,750 for a year's study in Italy, and will leave in September to enter a contest in Geneva sponsored by the Fulbright Foundation.

He is auditioning Tuesday for Horace Parmlee of Columbia Artists Management.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Standard-Times
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 50,234

JUN 19 1955

CHATTER

By ANNE ELIZABETH

Masculine fashion has for centuries "hung by a necktie." With Fathers Day and its necktie-buying custom, the International Silk Association of this country compiles some amusing facts about neckwear from Pearl Binder's "Muffs and Morals," published by William Morrow and Company.

"Until Victorian times, the silk necktie men wear today was unknown. Gentlemen wore bulky neckcloths of linen, cotton or lace, first for protection, later for decoration," Miss Binder says in her book.

"The neckcloth first came to England with the Roman soldiers, who were allotted a focale to protect their throats against the rheumatic English climate.

"Charles II liked French lace cravats so much that he wore them on all occasions, even with armor.

"The dandies of 1793 wore exaggerated pouter-pigeon bosoms contrived by a small pillow worn beneath the cravats, their heads resting as on a cushion and their chins buried so deep in masses of material that it was impossible for them to move their heads at all.

"Tom Moore, the poet, declared that fashionable young men tied their cravats as tightly as those used by people to sneak out of this world.

"For 40 years, it was the highest fashion for a gentleman to display every symptom of strangulation—a hectic color, popping eyes, head jerked backward.

"Lord Byron wrenched off his uncomfortable stock one day, causing his high shirt collar to collapse about his exposed throat. He had launched a new fashion.

"Balzac declared 'La cravate, c'est l'homme.' Manuals emerged, with careful diagrams, on the art of tying the cravat. Balzac was suspected of being the anonymous author of the most popular of these handbooks.

"Gentlemen's valets of 19th Century London made a tidy fortune in their spare time by instructing middle-class aspirants to smartness on how to tie a cravat—at a guinea a lesson. Each profession adopted its own distinctive cravat style. The cravate de bureaucrate which Daumier satirized in 1850 was high, tight, and black, stiffened with whalebone and well stuffed with horse-hair and pig's bristles.

"Books on etiquette advised a minimum of two hours' attention to be spent on the cravat when dressing. Beau Brummel required three. Brummel's cravats were 12 inches high and meticulously starched. At his three daily toilets he discarded them by the dozen until he had achieved the perfection of folds.

"It was considered proper for a gentleman to take six dozen cravats with him for a weekend."

047

Junior Treble Clef Club Members Attend Pops Concert

A cake sale made possible a trip to a Pops Concert at Symphony Hall in Boston for members of the Junior Treble Clef Club who were accompanied by their parents on the much-anticipated excursion.

Among those who attended the concert were Maureen Bartholo, Geraldine Campbell, Elaine Craven, Louise Dumont, Eileen Fournier, Patricia Grace, Antoinette Grace, Sally Hayman, Barbara Heyliger, Marilyn Jones, Mary Ellen Lassow, Gail Lipman, Joan Lipman, Joan Marshall, Marguerite Mundorf, Susan Narva, Patricia Poitras, Jane Shaw, Marie Walker, Leslie Walmsley, Janet Walmsley, Margaret Ward, Marjorie Ward.

Others in the group were Mr. and Mrs. Alipio Bartholo, Mrs. Walter Craven, Mrs. Louis Dumont, Mrs. Marguerite Heyliger, Louise Heyliger, Mrs. Robert Gunderson, Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Lassow, Mr. and Mrs. Irving A. Palmer, Miss Dawn Palmer, Miss Anne Poole, Mrs. James Sanderson, Mrs. Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. James Walmsley, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ward.

Mrs. Sanderson and Mrs. Lassow are counselors of the club.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

JUN 23 1955

IN THANKS

To the Editor:

Please accept the sincerest thanks of the Israel Histadrut Pops Concert Committee for the splendid coverage which your journal gave to our concert, held Thursday evening, June 16, at Symphony Hall. This event, which played to a capacity audience at Symphony Hall, did much to bring the message of Histadrut to the Boston community.

SAMUEL D. SHAPIRO
Concert Chairman

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

JUN 22 1955

MINEKO SASAHARA, Japanese pianist from California, will be soloist in the Rachmaninoff Second Concerto at the Pops in Symphony Hall tomorrow night.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

JUN 20 1955

GEORGE ZAZOFSKY will be soloist with the Boston Pops Orchestra tomorrow evening in Beethoven's Violin Concerto.

Peter Brook

George Zazofsky will be soloist in Beethoven's Violin Concerto at the Pops this evening.

[95]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,241

JUN 19 1955

Pops Orchestra to Salute Miss Morgan

A good portion of Symphony Hall will be taken over by WNAC-TV Thursday night, June 30, for a triple musical toast at the Pops.

The station is celebrating the start of its 34th year on the air, the eighth anniversary of WNAC-TV and Louise Morgan's seventh year as Boston's First Lady of TV.

LOUISE MORGAN as she receives good handwriting award from Jerome Rosenfeld.

Only recently, Miss Morgan was honored by the Handwriting Foundation for her beautiful penmanship. Viewers see her exquisite writing as she begins and signs off her telecasts. Her legion of friends delight in getting her thoughtful greeting cards and notes. Her handwriting is her trademark . . . superb.

"I Love Louisa" will be played for Louise by the string section of the Boston Pops Orchestra, and Peter Bodge will be on hand to conduct the Pops Orchestra in a medley of old-time favorites which he has arranged himself.

Mr. Fiedler has promised to try to include "TViana" and "Davy Crockett" for the benefit of the WNAC staff members and their invited friends.

FORT WORTH, TEX.
STAR-TELEGRAM
Circ. D. 114,857 - S. 216,735

JUN 19 1955

Young Pianist Slated to Perform With Boston Pops

Ivan Davis, piano student of Silvio Scionti and Grace Ward Lankford who recently won the Young Artist Contest of the National Federation of Music Clubs, played the first movement of the Tschaikovsky piano concerto Friday night with the Boston Pops Orchestra under Arthur Fiedler's direction.

This same movement played by Davis will be heard on the Boston Pops radio program June 27 (WEAA-320).

Davis has a grant of $3,750 for a year's study in Italy, and will leave in September to enter a contest in Geneva sponsored by the Fulbright Foundation.

He is auditioning Tuesday for Horace Parmlee of Columbia Artists Management.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Standard-Times
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 50,234

JUN 19 1955

CHATTER

By ANNE ELIZABETH

Masculine fashion has for centuries "hung by a necktie." With Fathers Day and its necktie-buying custom, the International Silk Association of this country compiles some amusing facts about neckwear from Pearl Binder's "Muffs and Morals," published by William Morrow and Company.

"Until Victorian times, the silk necktie men wear today was unknown. Gentlemen wore bulky neckcloths of linen, cotton or lace, first for protection, later for decoration," Miss Binder says in her book.

"The neckcloth first came to England with the Roman soldiers, who were allotted a focale to protect their throats against the rheumatic English climate.

"Charles II liked French lace cravats so much that he wore them on all occasions, even with armor.

"The dandies of 1793 wore exaggerated pouter-pigeon bosoms contrived by a small pillow worn beneath the cravats, their heads resting as on a cushion and their chins buried so deep in masses of material that it was impossible for them to move their heads at all.

"Tom Moore, the poet, declared that fashionable young men tied their cravats as tightly as those used by people to sneak out of this world.

"For 40 years, it was the highest fashion for a gentleman to display every symptom of strangulation—a hectic color, popping eyes, head jerked backward.

"Lord Byron wrenched off his uncomfortable stock one day, causing his high shirt collar to collapse about his exposed throat. He had launched a new fashion.

"Balzac declared 'La cravate, c'est l'homme.' Manuals emerged, with careful diagrams, on the art of tying the cravat. Balzac was suspected of being the anonymous author of the most popular of these handbooks.

"Gentlemen's valets of 19th Century London made a tidy fortune in their spare time by instructing middle-class aspirants to smartness on how to tie a cravat—at a guinea a lesson. Each profession adopted its own distinctive cravat style. The cravate de bureaucrate which Daumier satirized in 1850 was high, tight, and black, stiffened with whalebone and well stuffed with horse-hair and pig's bristles.

"Books on etiquette advised a minimum of two hours' attention to be spent on the cravat when dressing. Beau Brummel required three. Brummel's cravats were 12 inches high and meticulously starched. At his three daily toilets he discarded them by the dozen until he had achieved the perfection of folds.

"It was considered proper for a gentleman to take six dozen cravats with him for a weekend."

047

Junior Treble Clef Club Members Attend Pops Concert

A cake sale made possible a trip to a Pops Concert at Symphony Hall in Boston for members of the Junior Treble Clef Club who were accompanied by their parents on the much-anticipated excursion.

Among those who attended the concert were Maureen Bartholo, Geraldine Campbell, Elaine Craven, Louise Dumont, Eileen Fournier, Patricia Grace, Antoinette Grace, Sally Hayman, Barbara Heyliger, Marilyn Jones, Mary Ellen Lassow, Gail Lipman, Joan Lipman, Joan Marshall, Marguerite Mundorf, Susan Narva, Patricia Poitras, Jane Shaw, Marie Walker, Leslie Walmsley, Janet Walmsley, Margaret Ward, Marjorie Ward.

Others in the group were Mr. and Mrs. Alipio Bartholo, Mrs. Walter Craven, Mrs. Louis Dumont, Mrs. Marguerite Heyliger, Louise Heyliger, Mrs. Robert Gunderson, Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Lassow, Mr. and Mrs. Irving A. Palmer, Miss Dawn Palmer, Miss Anne Poole, Mrs. James Sanderson, Mrs. Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. James Walmsley, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ward.

Mrs. Sanderson and Mrs. Lassow are counselors of the club.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 20,000

JUN 23 1955

IN THANKS

To the Editor:

Please accept the sincerest thanks of the Israel Histadrut Pops Concert Committee for the splendid coverage which your journal gave to our concert, held Thursday evening, June 16, at Symphony Hall. This event, which played to a capacity audience at Symphony Hall, did much to bring the message of Histadrut to the Boston community.

SAMUEL D. SHAPIRO
Concert Chairman

[95]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

JUN 22 1955

MINEKO SASAHARA, Japanese

India, who arrived in Leningrad today in the course of an intensive 10-day tour of the Soviet Union, will have final talks with the Soviet leaders Wednesday.

He is expected then to ask for further concrete proof of the Kremlin's declared willingness to relax tension and to end the "Cold War."

Nehru, it was learned today, will certainly talk at length with Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin. And no one would be surprised if Nikita S. Khrush-

Peter Brook

George Zazofsky will be soloist in Beethoven's Violin Concerto at the Pops this evening.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

Margaret Moreland will be piano soloist in Gershwin's Concerto in F for Piano and Orchestra at the Pops Wednesday night.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593
JUN 20 1955

Pops Night Ballot Closes Wednesday

Wednesday is the final day to for "Request Night at the Pops," submit ballots to Arthur Fiedler to be held on July 1.

The top popular choices will be played at Symphony Hall. Ballots may be obtained there.

6-55

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Item (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 21,384
JUN 20 1955

POPS SOLOIST — Monte Nelson, Lynn concert pianist, will be featured as soloist with the Boston Symphony Pops Orchestra under Arthur Fiedler this evening for Realtors' Pops Night at Symphony Hall, Boston. Mr. Nelson has a downtown real estate and insurance office at 57 Silsbee Street.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-0068
Reporter
FOXBORO, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Advocate
SHARON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 1,100
JUN 23 1955

BERNARD KRITZMAN TO BE SOLOIST

Bernard Kritzman to be soloist at the Boston Symphony Pops Concert next Wednesday evening at Symphony Hall. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the "Concerto in G Major" by Maurice Ravel in which Mr. Kritzman will play the solo part.

The young pianist made his debut with the Boston Pops at the age of 15, and has been a regular soloist each year both at Symphony Hall and at the Hatch Memorial Shell, on the Esplanade.

A resident of Sharon for the past teaches, in addition to his many tains a studio at his home where he teaches, an addition to his many concert appearances throughout New England.

Bernard Kritzman of Sharon, well known here, will be the soloist at the Boston Pops concert next Wednesday evening June 29 at Symphony Hall.

Arthur Fiedler will conduct the concerto in G Major by Maurice Ravel in which Mr. Kritzman will play the piano solo part. He has appeared regularly as a Pops soloist since the age of 15, both at Symphony Hall and the Hatch Shell on the Esplanade. In addition to many appearances in and around Boston, he maintains a studio for teaching at his home in Sharon.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
New Era
DEEP RIVER, Conn.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 3995
JUN 23 1955

Westbrook

Mrs. John D Lang
Saybrook EVergreen 8-2969

A "Father's Day Special" was held at the Elks Lodge on Sunday at which time dinner was prepared on the charcoal grill by members of the fair sex. Wives of members took a turn as chefs and prepared a barbecued chicken dinner which the men enjoyed. Eddie Brockway entertained with organ selections.

In celebration of a long course of training in police procedures, which included judo and first aid emergency work, members of Westbrook's Auxiliary Police held a banquet at the Ivoryton Inn on Tuesday evening. Members were accompanied by their wives.

First selectman John A. Heissler returned to his home on Friday after being a patient at the Veteran's Hospital, Rocky Hill. He reported to his office at the Town Office Building at once and is reported to be in fine health and spirits.

Mrs. John D. Lang, her daughter Paula and John Ladone left for Boston, Mass., this morning to attend the Pops Concert at Symphony Hall tonight. The group will be house guests of Miss Virginia Egan for the week end. It is the first visit to the Hub for young Ladone who will be taken on a tour of the city by Cleveland Lang with whom he was graduated at the Westbrook Grammar School last year. Lang has completed his first year of high school as of yesterday and will return here for the summer on Monday.

BROWNSVILLE, TEX.
HERALD
JUNE 20, 1955

DAVY GOES HIGH-BROW—Conductor Arthur Fiedler of the Boston Pops Orchestra goes Davy Crockett to amuse his audience at Boston's Symphony Hall. Suitably equipped with a coonskin cap and toy "shootin' arn," Fiedler is shown directing with gusto a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

ALPENA, MICH.
NEWS
JUN 21 1955

TWO FIEDLERS

MILWAUKEE — Arthur Fiedler took his Boston Pops Orchestra to Waukesha for a concert recently and discovered he had a namesake. Arthur Fiedler is a teller in the First Wisconsin National Bank.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872
JUN 22 1955

Harvard Studio, Boston

Rouben Gregorian will appear as guest conductor at the Pops on Saturday evening.

[96]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 20 1955

Margaret Moreland will be piano soloist in Gershwin's Concerto in F for Piano and Orchestra at the Pops Wednesday night.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Item (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 21,384

JUN 20 1955

POPS SOLOIST — Monte Nelson, Lynn concert pianist, will be featured as soloist with the Boston Symphony Pops Orchestra under Arthur Fiedler this evening for Realtors' Pops Night at Symphony Hall, Boston. Mr. Nelson has a downtown real estate and insurance office at 57 Silsbee Street.

JUN 23 1955

Kritzman Pops Soloist June 29

PAGE

Bernard Kritzman of Sharon, well known here, will be the soloist at the Boston Pops concert next Wednesday evening June 29 at Symphony Hall.

Arthur Fiedler will conduct the concerto in G Major by Maurice Ravel in which Mr. Kritzman will play the piano solo part. He has appeared regularly as a Pops soloist since the age of 15, both at Symphony Hall and the Hatch Shell on the Esplanade. In addition to many appearances in and around Boston, he maintains a studio for teaching at his home in Sharon.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

JUN 20 1955

Pops Night Ballot Closes Wednesday

Wednesday is the final day to for "Request Night at the Pops," submit ballots to Arthur Fiedler to be held on July 1.

The top popular choices will be played at Symphony Hall. Ballots may be obtained there.

6-55

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

New Era
DEEP RIVER, Conn.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 3995

JUN 23 1955

Westbrook

Mrs. John D Lang
Saybrook EVergreen 8-2369

A "Father's Day Special" was held at the Elks Lodge on Sunday at which time dinner was prepared on the charcoal grill by members of the fair sex. Wives of members took a turn as chefs and prepared a barbecued chicken dinner which the men enjoyed. Eddie Brockway entertained with organ selections.

In celebration of a long course of training in police procedures, which included judo and first aid emergency work, members of Westbrook's Auxiliary Police held a banquet at the Ivoryton Inn on Tuesday evening. Members were accompanied by their wives.

First selectman John A. Heissler returned to his home on Friday after being a patient at the Veteran's Hospital, Rocky Hill. He reported to his office at the Town Office Building at once and is reported [illegible] in fine health and spirits.

Mrs. John D. Lang, her daughter Paula and John Ladone left for Boston, Mass., this morning to attend the Pops Concert at Symphony Hall tonight. The group will be house guests of Miss Virginia Egan for the week end. It is the first visit to the Hub for young Ladone who will be taken on a tour of the city by Cleveland Lang with whom he was graduated at the Westbrook Grammar School last year. Lang has completed his first year of high school as of yesterday and will return here for the summer on Monday.

ALPENA, MICH.
NEWS
Circ. D. 6,707

JUN 21 1955

TWO FIEDLERS

MILWAUKEE — Arthur Fiedler took his Boston Pops Orchestra to Waukesha for a concert recently and discovered he had a namesake. Arthur Fiedler is a teller in the First Wisconsin National Bank.

BROWNSVILLE, TEX.
HERALD
JUNE 20, 1955

DAVY GOES HIGH-BROW—Conductor Arthur Fiedler of the Boston Pops Orchestra goes Davy Crockett to amuse his audience at Boston's Symphony Hall. Suitably equipped with a coonskin cap and toy "shootin' arn," Fiedler is shown directing with gusto a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 22 1955

Harvard Studio, Boston

Rouben Gregorian will appear as guest conductor at the Pops on Saturday evening.

[96]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

West Roxbury Transcript
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 5,751

JUN 23 1955

Plays Saturday In Pops Concert

Berj Zamkochian, organist and choir director of St. Theresa's Church, West Roxbury, will be soloist with the Boston Pops Orchestra in Symphony Hall at 8:30 p.m., Saturday.

He will play the Handel concerto in B-flat, reviving an early practice of the Baroque period. Mr. Zamkochian will also improvise an original organ cadenza.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

News
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 9,700

JUN 23 1955

FEATURE SOLOIST

The third annual "Armenian Night" at pops will feature as soprano soloist Agnes Dadekian of Arlington, Saturday evening, June 25. Miss Dadekian is soloist for the St. James Armenian Church in Watertown and is well-known on the concert stage, operettas and radio. At pops she will be heard in the aria "Un Bel Di" (One Fine Day(from Puccini's opera, Madame Butterfly, and Rouben Gregorian's composition "Nocturne."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Advocate
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,987

Soloist At Pops

The Third Annual "Armenian Night" at Pops will feature as soprano soloist, Agnes Dadekian of Arlington, Saturday evening.

Miss Dadekian is soloist for the St. James Armenian church in Watertown and is well-known on the concert stage, operettas and radio.

At Pops she will be heard in the aria "Un Bel Di" (One Fine Day) from Puccini's opera, "Madame Butterfly", and Rouben Gregorian's composition "Nocturne".

Also appearing on the program will be Berj Zamkochian, organist and choir director of St. Theresa's church in West Roxbury. He will be heard in Handel's Concert in B Flat.

Guest conductor for the evening will be Rouben Gregorian, former director of the Teheran Symphony Orchestra in Iran and presently serving on the faculty of the Boston Conservatory of Music.

Agnes Dadekian

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Roxbury Citizen
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-0068

South End Citizen

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Hyde Park Tribune
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 9500 Free

JUN 23 1955

"Night At Pops" Aids N.E. Hospital

The "Friends of New England Hospital" acted as hostesses at a "Night at Pops" last evening at Symphony Hall. Co-Chairman for the concert, which was for the benefit of the New England Hospital, were Mrs. Lawrence M. Sibley and Mrs. Carleton Richmond, Jr.

Flower girls included Miss Malia Dean, Miss Dorothy Duncan, Miss Josephine Harding, Miss Betty Lou Hill, Miss Susan Howlett, Miss Carol Marvin, Miss Kitty Nash, Miss Betsy Perry, Miss Anne Sears, and Miss Claire MacWilliams.

Among the 130 sponsors for the concert were: Mrs. Talbot Aldrich, Miss Ellen E. Barbour, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Barron, Jr., Miss Marguerite M. Bourneuf, Mrs. George Allen Clapp, Mrs. Paul Dudley Dean, Miss Mary E. Driscoll, Mrs. George Richmond Fearing, Mrs. William Lloyd Garrison, Jr., Mr. Harry P. Harwich, Mrs. J. Philip Lane, Judge Frankland W. L. Miles, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Myers, Miss Amelia Peabody, Mr. and Mrs. Carleton R. Richmond, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John G. Rote, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence M. Sibley, Mrs. Guy Waring, and Miss Carolyn K. Winters.

...it N. E. Hospital

Miss Betsy Perry, Miss Anne Sears, and Miss Claire MacWilliams.

Among the 130 sponsors for the concert were: Mrs. Talbot Aldrich, Miss Ellen E. Barbour, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Barron, Jr., Miss Marguerite M. Bourneuf, Mrs. George Allen Clapp, Mrs. Paul Dudley Dean, Miss Mary E. Driscoll, Mrs. George Richmond Fearing, Mrs. William Lloyd Garrison, Jr., Mr. Harry P. Harwich, Mrs. J. Philip Lane, Judge Frankland W. L. Miles, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Myers, Miss Amelia Peabody, Mr. and Mrs. Carleton R. Richmond, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John G. Rote, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence M. Sibley, Mrs. Guy Waring, and Miss Carolyn K. Winters.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

'Family Night' at Pops

A new event at the Pops, "Family Night," is scheduled for Tuesday. Its aim is to present music appealing to both adults and children. The program will include Saint-Saëns "The Animal's Carnival" and the Pops version of the career of Davy Crockett. Those attending will receive a Disneyland Davy Crockett souvenir. Arthur Fiedler and Harry Ellis Dickson will conduct.

HIBBING, MINN.
TRIBUNE
Circ. 7,208
JUN

ALONG the IRON RANGE with George M. Fisher

ARTHUR FIEDLER, conductor of the Boston Pops orchestra, who directed the orchestra in Hibbing in the Winter series, amused his recent audience in Symphony Hall at Boston, Mass., by donning a coonskin cap and wielding a toy "shootin" iron as he directed a symphonic arrangements of "The Ballad of Davy Crokett." . . . A scrap book, covering the regime of Leo Mousseau while he served as exalted ruler was presened to him at the annual testimonial dinner at the Elks temple recently. Past State President Bill Spolar made the presentation. . . . The Star Motel of Hibbing now has a private telephone service to every one of its rooms, a convenience to the guests and the traveling public. . . . There are over 6,000 discount houses in the United States. These are places that sell merchandise below factory list prices. . . . Woolworth store in Hibbing is one of 2,065 stores in operation in the U. S., including 44 new ones, which is offering self-service. Some 53 stores have been converted to self-service and another 100 units will be added by the end of the year for a total of 400.

George Fisher

* * * *

[97]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

West Roxbury Transcript
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 5,751

JUN 23 1955

Plays Saturday In Pops Concert

Berj Zamkochian, organist and choir director of St. Theresa's Church, West Roxbury, will be soloist with the Boston Pops Orchestra in Symphony Hall at 8:30 p.m., Saturday.

He will play the Handel concerto in B-flat, reviving an early practice of the Baroque period. Mr. Zamkochian will also improvise an original organ cadenza.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

News
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 9,700

JUN 23 1955

FEATURE SOLOIST

The third annual "Armenian Night" at pops will feature as soprano soloist Agnes Dadekian of Arlington, Saturday evening, June 25. Miss Dadekian is soloist for the St. James Armenian Church in Watertown and is well-known on the concert stage, operettas and radio. At pops she will be heard in the aria "Un Bel Di" (One Fine Day) from Puccini's opera, Madame Butterfly, and Rouben Gregorian's composition "Nocturne."

South End Citizen
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 14,000

JUN 23 1955

"Night At Pops" Aids N.E. Hospital

The "Friends of New England Hospital" acted as hostesses at a "Night at Pops" last evening at Symphony Hall. Co-Chairman for the concert, which was for the benefit of the New England Hospital, were Mrs. Lawrence M. Sibley and Mrs. Carleton Richmond, Jr.

Flower girls included Miss Malia Dean, Miss Dorothy Duncan, Miss Josephine Harding, Miss Betty Lou Hill, Miss Susan Howlett, Miss Carol Marvin, Miss Kitty Nash, Miss Betsy Perry, Miss Anne Sears, and Miss Claire MacWilliams.

Among the 130 sponsors for the concert were: Mrs. Talbot Aldrich, Miss Ellen E. Barbour, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Barron, Jr., Miss Marguerite M. Bourneuf, Mrs. George Allen Clapp, Mrs. Paul Dudley Dean, Miss Mary E. Driscoll, Mrs. George Richmond Fearing, Mrs. William Lloyd Garrison, Jr., Mr. Harry P. Harwich, Mrs. J. Philip Lane, Judge Francis W. L. Miles, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Myers, Miss Amelia Peabody, Mr. and Mrs. Carleton R. Richmond, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John G. Rote, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence M. Sibley, Mrs. Guy Waring, and Miss Carolyn K. Winters.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Advocate
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,987

JUN 23 1955

Soloist At Pops

The Third Annual "Armenian Night" at Pops will feature as soprano soloist, Agnes Dadekian of Arlington, Saturday evening.

Miss Dadekian is soloist for the St. James Armenian church in Watertown and is well-known on the concert stage, operettas and radio.

At Pops she will be heard in the aria "Un Bel Di" (One Fine Day) from Puccini's opera, "Madame Butterfly", and Rouben Gregorian's composition "Nocturne".

Guest conductor for the evening will be Rouben Gregorian, former director of the Teheran Symphony Orchestra in Iran and presently serving on the faculty of the Boston Conservatory of Music.

Agnes Dadekian

JUN 25 1955

"Family Night" at The Pops on Tuesday

A new special event at the Pops, "Family Night," has just been announced by Arthur Fiedler for Tuesday night, June 28. The concert that evening will feature Pops favorites for all ages, and there will be a surprise official Disneyland Davy Crockett souvenir for every member of the audience. Th

HIBBING, MINN.
TRIBUNE
JUN

ARTHUR FIEDLER, conductor of the Boston Pops orchestra, who directed the orchestra in Hibbing in the Winter series, amused his recent audience in Symphony Hall at Boston, Mass., by donning a coonskin cap and wielding a toy "shootin" iron as he directed a symphonic arrangements of "The Ballad of Davy Crokett." . . . A scrap book, covering the regime of Leo Mousseau while he served as exalted ruler was presened to him at the annual testimonial dinner at the Elks temple recently. Past State President Bill Spolar made the presentation. . . . The Star Motel of Hibbing now has a private telephone service to every one of its rooms, a convenience to the guests and the traveling public. . . . There are over 6,000 discount houses in the United States. These are places that sell merchandise below factory list prices. . . . Woolworth store in Hibbing is one of 2,065 stores in operation in the U. S., including 44 new ones, which is offering self-service. Some 53 stores have been converted to self-service and another 100 units will be added by the end of the year for a total of 400.

George Fisher

* * * *

[97]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

West Roxbury Transcript
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 5,751

JUN 23 1955

Plays Saturday In Pops Concert

Berj Zamkochian, organist and choir director of St. Theresa's Church, West Roxbury, will be soloist with the Boston Pops Orchestra in Symphony Hall at 8:30 p.m., Saturday.

He will play the Handel concerto in B-flat, reviving an early practice of the Baroque period. Mr. Zamkochian will also improvise an original organ cadenza.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 9,700

JUN 23 1955

FEATURE SOLOIST

The third annual "Armenian Night" at pops will feature as soprano soloist Agnes Dadekian of Arlington, Saturday evening, June 25. Miss Dadekian is soloist for the St. James Armenian Church in Watertown and is well-known on the concert stage, operettas and radio. At pops she will be heard in the aria "Un Bel Di" (One Fine Day(from Puccini's opera Madame Butterfly, and Rouben Gregorian's composition "Nocturne."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Advocate
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,987

Soloist At Pops

The Third Annual "Armenian Night" at Pops will feature as soprano soloist, Agnes Dadekian of Arlington, Saturday evening.

Miss Dadekian is soloist for the St. James Armenian church in Watertown and is well-known on the concert stage, operettas and radio.

At Pops she will be heard in the aria "Un Bel Di" (One Fine Day) from Puccini's opera, "Madame Butterfly", and Rouben Gregorian's composition "Nocturne".

Also appearing on the program will be Berj Zamkochian, organist and choir director of St. Theresa's church in West Roxbury. He will be heard in Handel's Concert in B Flat.

Guest conductor for the evening will be Rouben Gregorian, former director of the Teheran Symphony Orchestra in Iran and presently serving on the faculty of the Boston Conservatory of Music.

Agnes Dadekian

Weekly
Circ. 19,000 Free

JUN 23 1955

Night At Pops" Benefit N. E. Hospital

The "Friends of New England Hospital" acted as hostesses at a "Night at Pops" last evening at Symphony Hall. Co-Chairmen for the concert, which was for the benefit of the New England Hospital, were Mrs. Lawrence M. Sibley and Mrs. Carleton Richmond, Jr.

Flower girls included Miss Malia Dean, Miss Dorothy Duncan, Miss Josephine Harding, Miss Betty Lou Hill, Miss Susan Howlett, Miss Carol Marvin, Miss Kitty Nash, Miss Betsy Perry, Miss Anne Sears, and Miss Claire MacWilliams.

Among the 130 sponsors for the concert were: Mrs. Talbot Aldrich, Miss Ellen E. Barbour, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Barron, Jr., Miss Marguerite M. Bourneuf, Mrs. George Allen Clapp, Mrs. Paul Dudley Dean, Miss Mary E. Driscoll, Mrs. George Richmond Fearing, Mrs. William Lloyd Garrison, Jr., Mr. Harry F. Harwich, Mrs. J. Philip Lane, Judge Frankland W. L. Miles, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Myers, Miss Amalia Peabody, Mr. and Mrs. Carleton R. Richmond, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John G. Rote, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence M. Sibley, Mrs. Guy Waring, and Miss Carolyn K. Winters.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 2[illegible]

'Family Night' at Pops

A new event at the Pops, "Family Night," is scheduled for Tuesday. Its aim is to present music appealing to both adults and children. The program will include Saint-Saens "The Animal's Carnival" and the Pops version of the career of Davy Crockett. Those attending will receive a Disneyland Davy Crockett souvenir. Arthur Fiedler and Harry Ellis Dickson will conduct.

HIBBING, MINN.
TRIBUNE
JUN

ARTHUR FIEDLER, conductor of the Boston Pops orchestra, who directed the orchestra in Hibbing in the Winter series, amused his recent audience in Symphony Hall at Boston, Mass., by donning a coonskin cap and wielding a toy "shootin" iron as he directed a symphonic arrangements of "The Ballad of Davy Crokett." . . . A scrap book, covering the regime of Leo Mousseau while he served as exalted ruler was presened to him at the annual testimonial dinner at the Elks temple recently. Past State President Bill Spolar made the presentation. . . . The Star Motel of Hibbing now has a private telephone service to every one of its rooms, a convenience to the guests and the traveling public. . . . There are over 6,000 discount houses in the United States. These are places that sell merchandise below factory list prices. . . . Woolworth store in Hibbing is one of 2,065 stores in operation in the U. S., including 44 new ones, which is offering self-service. Some 53 stores have been converted to self-service and another 100 units will be added by the end of the year for a total of 400.

George Fisher

Boston Traveler Features
THURSDAY, JUNE 23, 1955 A PAGE THIRTY-THREE

Twice Each Week

Dr. Goodman Gives Counsel to Parents

Take It from Me

Says Arthur Fiedler

(Batting for Neal O'Hara)

TODAY'S QUIZ for information "buffs": No. 1. What Boston building was a pioneer job of fireproof construction? . . . No. 2. What was the location of the old Music Hall, where the Boston Symphony and the Pops began? . . . No. 3. How long has A. Fiedler worn a moustache? . . . (The answers will be cued in a few measures before the finale.)

So now I have a brief engagement as guest conductor of a column instead of an orchestra. It's so different! Can't shake a stick at anyone but myself. Here's the "attack," and away I go. (Just where? That's the problem). . . . First, my belated congratulations to Mayor Hynes on being elected President of the United States Conference of Mayors. An abler or more likable man couldn't have been chosen. He puts in a really hard day's work at his job. Told me recently that it often leaves him pretty wilted. Then he gave me his secret method for "coming to" fresh as a daisy. He goes home, gets out of his shoes and into his lounge clothes, settles into his easy chair with a good book and reads it while he keeps his phonograph playing some of his favorite recordings. "And the fact is," he said, "I really follow and enjoy the music all the while I'm reading." . . . As for me, there's a lot of relaxation in finding out what I can do by way of cooking something tasty over my outdoor grill. . . . Because of owning a Dalmatian, "Sparky," I find myself often engaged in exchanging talk about dogs. Was considerably surprised to learn that Dalmatian puppies start life as spotless white as new-fallen snow. The characteristic Dalmatian spots come out by slow degrees. . . . Beginning to lose my first nervousness—and it was plenty—about this type of guest conducting. But I must confess to being still more nerved up while taking part in a concert a couple of months ago. . . . It was the special program at Symphony Hall, at which Pierre Monteux led the Boston Symphony on the exact date of his 80th birthday. He was our regular conductor from 1919 to 1924. During that time I was one of his viola players. For the anniversary concert, what does he do but insist that I resume playing the viola for the opening number, Beethoven's "Egmont" Overture. Did I get wrought up beforehand, wondering if my fingers would limber up! As to the performance, I was so anxious not to be caught late on cues—which in others annoy me as a conductor—that I was inclined to be a little too quick. . . . In filling engagements literally from Portland, Me., to Portland, Ore., I suppose I shouldn't be surprised at anything, but it happens. Imagine my coming face to face with Arthur Fiedler in Milwaukee last winter. Not that it was a case of traveling so fast that I met myself (although my trip with the Pops Tour Orchestra covered 10,000 miles in 53 days, presenting 58 concerts in 56 cities within 26 states). When I went to cash a check in a Milwaukee bank, my signature attracted attention. Arthur Fiedler happened to be the teller behind the window, as well as in front of it! The other fellow was my guest at the concert that night, and we had a snack together. Then we exchanged photos, each autographed, "To Arthur Fiedler, with best wishes from Arthur Fiedler." . . . Speaking of the family name, I am not, as sometimes reported, the son of a former conductor of the Boston Symphony. That was Max, who was of an entirely different family, and not even a distant cousin. My father was Emanuel, a violinist in the Symphony and the Pops between 1885 and 1910. . . . To straighten out another error, I was born in Boston, not Europe, and attended Public Latin School—although later I studied on a scholarship in the Royal Academy in Berlin. . . . To settle another argument, on the question of my children inheriting musical talent: My two daughters are just as balky about practicing on the piano as are any other little girls. And their dad, before conducting days, was in demand as a piano accompanist at recitals. . . . There's a heap of truth in the well-worn phrase, "It's a small world." Example: In my 'teens, some of my studies in Berlin were with Ernst von Dohnanyi, noted pianist and composer. When I led the Pops Tour Orchestra in his "Variations on a Nursery Song" in Tallahassee, who should be in the audience, and pay me a visit, but the composer, my old teacher, himself. How did it happen? He lives there. . . . Pretty obviously, a conductor needs good muscular development in his arms to start with, and gains more as he works at his job. But did you ever think that his legs need good staying powers? . . . Miles and miles of walking did it for me. Even walked up a pyramid—once. But never again. It was in Yucatan, where I was vacationing. Got sort of dared to go up a towering Mayan step-pyramid at Uxmal. To make the ascent, you stretch your legs, and at the same time heave yourself by grabbing a chain thoughtfully provided for tourists. Part way up, decided to come down, but didn't want to show how faint-hearted I felt. After getting to the top—fortunately it was flat and roomy—I was completely bushed and took a good rest. Then when I looked down, the distance to the ground was so far that I was too scared to think of it. Yelling for help from below brought me only an invitation to simply reverse my climb. Since I went up by myself, why not return by myself? The exercise had made me very hungry, and staying up until I starved wasn't appealing. Somehow, I got down. But I've never been so scared before or since, not on ships at sea nor on planes. . . . A much pleasanter experience in Yucatan was guest conducting a town band of Mayans. Long, oblong faces, no shoes. Some of the weirdest-looking instruments. No rehearsals—they didn't believe in 'em. And they turned in some excellent performances of Beethoven's "Egmont" Overture and a Hungarian Dance of Brahms. . . . ANSWER'S TO TODAY'S QUIZ: No. 1. Symphony Hall, opened in 1900. . . . 2. Where Loew's Orpheum now stands. . . . 3. From the time the whiskers were long enough. . . . Well, here comes the finale of this performance. Thank you, Neal, for the honor of this guest conducting engagement. I am placing it among the most unusual honors that have fallen to me—such as being appointed an Honorary Colonel in the Confederate Air Force and an Honorary Chief of the Otoe Indian Tribe in Oklahoma. The audience may go now, if they haven't left at the first intermission.

FIEDLER

O'Hara is on vacation. During this period "Take It from Me" will be written by guests.

MIDLAND, MICH.
NEWS
Circ. D. 8,968
JUN 25 1955

WMDN Concert Hour Programs

Sunday, 9 p.m. — Arthur Fiedler conducts the Boston Pops Orchestra in the Radetzky March by Strauss and the Peer Gynt Suite No. 2 by Grieg: The NBC Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Guido Cantelli, plays the Symphony In D Minor by Franck.

Monday, 9 p.m. — Leopold Stokowski and his Symphony Orchestra play Debussy's Prelude to The Afternoon Of A Faun: Arturo Toscanini leads the NBC Symphony Orchestra in Ponchielli's La Gioconda and The Dance Of The Hours: Jascha Heifetz, violinist, plays Bruch's Scottish Fantasy, with orchestral accompaniment: Sibelius' Finlandia is played by the NBC Symphony Orchestra with Arturo Toscanini conducting.

Tuesday, 9 p.m. — The Boston Pops Orchestra, with Arthur Fiedler conducting, play La Campanella by Paganini: Arturo Toscanini leads the NBC Symphony Orchestra in Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony and Elgar's "Enigma" Variations.

Wednesday, 9 p.m. — Mendelssohn's "Fingal's Cave" Overture played by the Boston Pops Orchestra with Arthur Fiedler conducting: Whittemore and Lowe, duo-pianists and Leopold Stokowski and Members of the NBC Symphony Orchestra play Sebastian-Ballet Suite by Menotti.

Thursday, 9 p.m. — The Boston Pops Orchestra with Arthur Fiedler conducting, play "Fiedler's 25th Anniversary" — Tschaikovsky's "None But The Lonely Heart" and "The Family All Together".

Friday, 9 p.m. — "Boston Pops Plays LeRoy Anderson Favorites" with Arthur Fiedler conducting the Boston Pops Orchestra: Byron Janis, pianist with Hugo Winterhalter and his Orchestra play excerpts from Gershwin's Rhapsody In Blue and Grofe's Grand Canyon Suite: Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra bring the concert to a close with the popular Sabre Dance from Khatchaturian's Gayne ballet suite.

[98]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Times (e)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 109,680
JUN 25 1955

Crockett Reign Over Air Waves Under Scrutiny

BY IRVING KOLODIN

GIVEN a sudden heat spell, it is quite possible that the Davy Crockett craze will collapse of its own weight, for there seems little likelihood that even the most avid enthusiast would wear his coonskin hat in a 90-degree blazer.

Short of that force majeure, there seems little in sight that can stem the spread of a tide that caught even the initiators unaware of what they had launched.

The learned observer of mercantile trends called Tide took up the subjects in a recent issue and reported, somewhat incredulously, that the number of records on which the tune itself has been "sung, twanged, thumped" has passed the 7,000,000 mark. Together with the novelties, oddities, wearables and eatables which have latched onto the mania, Tide forecasts that upwards of $300 million will be dredged up in the consumer market from exploitations of the lad who, according to the song, "kilt him a b'ar when he was only three."

* * *

IT ALL BEGAN, as most folks are more or less painfully aware, with a Walt Disney TV short series featuring lanky, likable Fess Parker. The response—keyed in part to the swingy tune, with its artfully repetitious "Davy! Davy Crockett, King of the Wild Frontier" refrain—was so inflammatory that plans were made forthwith to fashion the shorts into a full-length film for public presentation. Needless to say, sequels and follow-ups, including a Technicolor spectacular, are in the "urgent" category.

Researcher Alfred Politz solemnly refers to the tune as "a carrying device."

Dr. Ernest Dichter, head of an organization called the Institute for Research in Mass Motivation, declares, "Children are reaching for an opportunity to explain themselves in terms of the traditions of the country. Crockett gives them that opportunity."

Eugene Gilbert, of Gilbert Youth Research, opines that Davy is a successful fad because he makes a fine object lesson for moral values. Thus parents like, and encourage, the impulse. "Crockett helps at the A & P," says Gilbert succinctly, implying that any moppet worth his coonskin cap will help with the dishes, run down to the corner for an egg, or shoulder the unmanly burden of watching the kid sister because it is in the Crockett "tradition."

For that matter, numerous sermons have been preached from pulpits across the country in much the same vein.

* * *

IF THERE is a fly in this ointment — and what ointment would be worth its salve without the traditional fly?—it is that, like it or not, Disney Productions have created something of a Frankenstein's monster. That is to say, whereas such highly exploitable creations as Disney's Mickey Mouse, Bob Smith's "Howdy Doody," Roy Rogers and Trigger, Superman, etc., are pure inventions — hence copyrightable — Davy Crockett is, alas, what the "idea man" dreads even more than failure: a successful figure in the public domain.

To be sure, the likeness of Davy associated with Fess Parker is Disney property, and he can license its use (some 50 manufacturers are now using it), plus any references to "TV" or "the original;" but anybody can make a Davy Crockett bib, tucker or toothbrush and sell it, free of infringement charges or royalties.

Doubtless this has resulted in sleepless nights in some Hollywood haciendas, but, come the dawn, the red-eyed chief-in-charge-of-using-the-pig's squeal should console himself not alone with the giddy chart of successful merchandising, but also with the warm thought that for once a kid's fantasy is tied to decency, courage and a wholesome kind of exhibitionism. 'Tis not always, or often, thus.

* * *

ARTHUR FIEDLER, who is no man to miss an opportunity for adding to the gaiety of life, convulsed an audience recently at a Boston Pops concert with one of the better gags of his career. Returned to the podium after an illness that had prevented him from participating in the earlier concerts of the series, Fiedler was greeted by a standing ovation from the audience.

To show his appreciation, Fiedler, at an appropriate moment in the program, offered, as an unscheduled encore, a symphonic version of "Davy Crockett"—for which, to the delight of the audience, he donned the appropriate coonskin cap, meanwhile brandishing a rifle in his non-baton hand.

(Copyright SR)

047

Boston Traveler Features
THURSDAY, JUNE 23, 1955 A PAGE THIRTY-THREE

Twice Each Week

Dr. Goodman Gives Counsel to Parents

Take It from Me

Says Arthur Fiedler

(Batting for Neal O'Hara)

TODAY'S QUIZ for information "buffs": No. 1. What Boston building was a pioneer job of fireproof construction? . . . No. 2. What was the location of the old Music Hall, where the Boston Symphony and the Pops began? . . . No. 3. How long has A. Fiedler worn a moustache? . . . (The answers will be cued in a few measures before the finale.)

So now I have a brief engagement as guest conductor of a column instead of an orchestra. It's so different! Can't shake a stick at anyone but myself. Here's the "attack," and away I go. (Just where? That's the problem). . . . First, my belated congratulations to Mayor Hynes on being elected President of the United States Conference of Mayors. An abler or more likable man couldn't have been chosen. He puts in a really hard day's work at his job. Told me recently that it often leaves him pretty wilted. Then he gave me his secret method for "coming to" fresh as a daisy. He goes home, gets out of his shoes and into his lounge clothes, settles into his easy chair with a good book and reads it while he keeps his phonograph playing some of his favorite recordings. "And the fact is," he said, "I really follow and enjoy the music all the while I'm reading." . . . As for me, there's a lot of relaxation in finding out what I can do by way of cooking something tasty over my outdoor grill. . . . Because of owning a Dalmatian, "Sparky," I find myself often engaged in exchanging talk about dogs. Was considerably surprised to learn that Dalmatian puppies start life as spotless white as new-fallen snow. The characteristic Dalmatian spots come out by slow degrees. . . . Beginning to lose my first nervousness—and it was plenty—about this type of guest conducting. But I must confess to being still more nerved up while taking part in a concert a couple of months ago. . . . It was the special program at Symphony Hall, at which Pierre Monteux led the Boston Symphony on the exact date of his 80th birthday. He was our regular conductor from 1919 to 1924. During that time I was one of his viola players. For the anniversary concert, what does he do but insist that I resume playing the viola for the opening number, Beethoven's "Egmont" Overture. Did I get wrought up beforehand, wondering if my fingers would limber up! As to the performance, I was so anxious not to be caught late on cues—which in others annoy me as a conductor—that I was inclined to be a little too quick. . . . In filling engagements literally from Portland, Me., to Portland, Ore., I suppose I shouldn't be surprised at anything, but it happens. Imagine my coming face to face with Arthur Fiedler in Milwaukee last winter. Not that it was a case of traveling so fast that I met myself (although my trip with the Pops Tour Orchestra covered 10,000 miles in 53 days, presenting 58 concerts in 56 cities within 26 states). When I went to cash a check in a Milwaukee bank, my signature attracted attention. Arthur Fiedler happened to be the teller behind the window, as well as in front of it! The other fellow was my guest at the concert that night, and we had a snack together. Then we exchanged photos, each autographed, "To Arthur Fiedler, with best wishes from Arthur Fiedler." . . . Speaking of the family name, I am not, as sometimes reported, the son of a former conductor of the Boston Symphony. That was Max, who was of an entirely different family, and not even a distant cousin. My father was Emanuel, a violinist in the Symphony and the Pops between 1885 and 1910. . . . To straighten out another error, I was born in Boston, not Europe, and attended Public Latin School—although later I studied on a scholarship in the Royal Academy in Berlin. . . . To settle another argument, on the question of my children inheriting musical talent: My two daughters are just as balky about practicing on the piano as are any other little girls. And their dad, before conducting days, was in demand as a piano accompanist at recitals. . . . There's a heap of truth in the well-worn phrase, "It's a small world." Example: In my 'teens, some of my studies in Berlin were with Ernst von Dohnanyi, noted pianist and composer. When I led the Pops Tour Orchestra in his "Variations on a Nursery Song" in Tallahassee, who should be in the audience, and pay me a visit, but the composer, my old teacher, himself. How did it happen? He lives there. . . . Pretty obviously, a conductor needs good muscular development in his arms to start with, and gains more as he works at his job. But did you ever think that his legs need good staying powers? . . . Miles and miles of walking did it for me. Even walked up a pyramid—once. But never again. It was in Yucatan, where I was vacationing. Got sort of dared to go up a towering Mayan step-pyramid at Uxmal. To make the ascent, you stretch your legs, and at the same time heave yourself by grabbing a chain thoughtfully provided for tourists. Part way up, decided to come down, but didn't want to show how faint-hearted I felt. After getting to the top—fortunately it was flat and roomy—I was completely bushed and took a good rest. Then when I looked down, the distance to the ground was so far that I was too scared to think of it. Yelling for help from below brought me only an invitation to simply reverse my climb. Since I went up by myself, why not return by myself? The exercise had made me very hungry, and staying up until I starved wasn't appealing. Somehow, I got down. But I've never been so scared before or since, not on ships at sea nor on planes. . . . A much pleasanter experience in Yucatan was guest conducting a town band of Mayans. Long, oblong faces, no shoes. Some of the weirdest-looking instruments. No rehearsals—they didn't believe in 'em. And they turned in some excellent performances of Beethoven's "Egmont" Overture and a Hungarian Dance of Brahms. . . . ANSWER'S TO TODAY'S QUIZ: No. 1. Symphony Hall, opened in 1900. . . . 2. Where Loew's Orpheum now stands. . . . Concertgoers lined up in Hamilton Place, off Tremont St. . . . 3. From the time the whiskers were long enough. . . . Well, here comes the finale of this performance. Thank you, Neal, for the honor of this guest conducting engagement. I am placing it among the most unusual honors that have fallen to me—such as being appointed an Honorary Colonel in the Confederate Air Force and an Honorary Chief of the Otoe Indian Tribe in Oklahoma. The audience may go now, if they haven't left at the first intermission.

FIEDLER

Neal O'Hara is on vacation. During this period "Take It from Me" will be written by his guest columnists.

WMDN Concert Hour Programs

Sunday, 9 p.m. — Arthur Fiedler conducts the Boston Pops Orchestra in the Radetzky March by Strauss and the Peer Gynt Suite No. 2 by Grieg: The NBC Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Guido Cantelli, plays the Symphony In D Minor by Franck.

Monday, 9 p.m. — Leopold Stokowski and his Symphony Orchestra play Debussy's Prelude to The Afternoon Of A Faun: Arturo Toscanini leads the NBC Symphony Orchestra in Ponchielli's La Gioconda and The Dance Of The Hours: Jascha Heifetz, violinist, plays Bruch's Scottish Fantasy, with orchestral accompaniment: Sibelius' Finlandia is played by the NBC Symphony Orchestra with Arturo Toscanini conducting.

Tuesday, 9 p.m. — The Boston Pops Orchestra, with Arthur Fiedler conducting, play La Campanella by Paganini: Arturo Toscanini leads the NBC Symphony Orchestra in Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony and Elgar's "Enigma" Variations.

Wednesday, 9 p.m. — Mendelssohn's "Fingal's Cave" Overture played by the Boston Pops Orchestra with Arthur Fiedler conducting: Whittemore and Lowe, duo-pianists and Leopold Stokowski and Members of the NBC Symphony Orchestra play Sebastian-Ballet Suite by Menotti.

Thursday, 9 p.m. — The Boston Pops Orchestra with Arthur Fiedler conducting, play "Fiedler's 25th Anniversary" — Tschaikovsky's "None But The Lonely Heart" and "The Family All Together".

Friday, 9 p.m. — "Boston Pops Plays LeRoy Anderson Favorites" with Arthur Fiedler conducting the Boston Pops Orchestra: Byron Janis, pianist with Hugo Winterhalter and his Orchestra play excerpts from Gershwin's Rhapsody In Blue and Grofe's Grand Canyon Suite: Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra bring the concert to a close with the popular Sabre Dance from Khatchaturian's Gayne ballet suite.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200
Times (e)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 109,680
JUN 25 1955

Crockett Reign Over Air Waves Under Scrutiny

BY IRVING KOLODIN

GIVEN a sudden heat spell, it is quite possible that the Davy Crockett craze will collapse of its own weight, for there seems little likelihood that even the most avid enthusiast would wear his coonskin hat in a 90-degree blazer.

Short of that force majeure, there seems little in sight that can stem the spread of a tide that caught even the initiators unaware of what they had launched.

The learned observer of mercantile trends called Tide took up the subjects in a recent issue and reported, somewhat incredulously, that the number of records on which the tune itself has been "sung, twanged, thumped" has passed the 7,000,000 mark. Together with the novelties, oddities, wearables and eatables which have latched onto the mania, Tide forecasts that upwards of $300 million will be dredged up in the consumer market from exploitations of the lad who, according to the song, "kilt him a b'ar when he was only three."

* * *

IT ALL BEGAN, as most folks are more or less painfully aware, with a Walt Disney TV short series featuring lanky, likable Fess Parker. The response—keyed in part to the swingy tune, with its artfully repetitious "Davy! Davy Crockett, King of the Wild Frontier" refrain—was so inflammatory that plans were made forthwith to fashion the shorts into a full-length film for public presentation. Needless to say, sequels and follow-ups, including a Technicolor spectacular, are in the "urgent" category.

Researcher Alfred Politz solemnly refers to the tune as "a carrying device."

Dr. Ernest Dichter, head of an organization called the Institute for Research in Mass Motivation, declares, "Children are reaching for an opportunity to explain themselves in terms of the traditions of the country. Crockett gives them that opportunity."

Eugene Gilbert, of Gilbert Youth Research, opines that Davy is a successful fad because he makes a fine object lesson for moral values. Thus parents like, and encourage, the impulse. "Crockett helps at the A & P," says Gilbert succinctly, implying that any moppet worth his coonskin cap will help with the dishes, run down to the corner for an egg, or shoulder the unmanly burden of watching the kid sister because it is in the Crockett "tradition."

For that matter, numerous sermons have been preached from pulpits across the country, in much the same vein.

* * *

IF THERE is a fly in this ointment — and what ointment would be worth its salve without the traditional fly?—it is that, like it or not, Disney Productions have created something of a Frankenstein's monster. That is to say, whereas such highly exploitable creations as Disney's Mickey Mouse, Bob Smith's "Howdy Doody," Roy Rogers and Trigger, Superman, etc., are pure inventions — hence copyrightable — Davy Crockett is, alas, what the "idea man" dreads even more than failure: a successful figure in the public domain.

To be sure, the likeness of Davy associated with Fess Parker is Disney property, and he can license its use (some 50 manufacturers are now using it), plus any references to "TV" or "the original;" but anybody can make a Davy Crockett bib, tucker or toothbrush and sell it, free of infringement charges or royalties.

Doubtless this has resulted in sleepless nights in some Hollywood haciendas, but, come the dawn, the red-eyed chief-in-charge-of-using-the-pig's squeal should console himself not alone with the giddy chart of successful merchandising, but also with the warm thought that for once a kid's fantasy is tied to decency, courage and a wholesome kind of exhibitionism. 'Tis not always, or often, thus.

* * *

ARTHUR FIEDLER, who is no man to miss an opportunity for adding to the gaiety of life, convulsed an audience recently at a Boston Pops concert with one of the better gags of his career. Returned to the podium after an illness that had prevented him from participating in the earlier concerts of the series, Fiedler was greeted by a standing ovation from the audience.

To show his appreciation, Fiedler, at an appropriate moment in the program, offered, as an unscheduled encore, a symphonic version of "Davy Crockett"—for which, to the delight of the audience, he donned the appropriate coonskin cap, meanwhile brandishing a rifle in his non-baton hand.

(Copyright SR)

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 285,839

JUN 24 1955

Society

Nancy Boggs to Wed Naval Lieutenant

By ROSE WALSH

Among the many weddings scheduled for the last Saturday in June is that of Trinity alumna Miss Nancy Anne Boggs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Boggs of Newton Highlands, and Lieutenant (j.g.) Henry Stuart Palau USNR, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Paulau of Rawayton, Conn. A cousin of the bridegroom, the Rev. Lucien Donnelly, O.S.B., will perform the ceremony at an 11 o'clock nuptial mass in the Sacred Heart Church, Newton Center.

Miss Claire M. Reardon of Newton Highlands has the maid of honor role while Miss Evelyn S. Murphy of East Weymouth and Miss Ann Frankenberger of Newtonville, will share bridesmaid duties for their cousin.

William H. McMahon III of East Norwalk, Conn., is attending the bridegroom whose group of ushers headed by Paul R. Marte of Manchester, Conn., will include Lieutenant (j.g.) Thomas J. Sullivan of Yonkers, N. Y., Lieutenant (j.g.) Peter S. Mykrantz of Cleveland, O., and Ensign Edmund J. Dillworth of Detroit, Mich.

Miss Boggs received her degree from Trinity in 1952 and was graduated from Boston College Graduate School in 1955. The bridegroom, who is stationed on the USS Gatling, received his B. A. from Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., in 1950 and his LL. D from Boston University Law School.

* * *

Benefit At Joy Town

For the small fry, July 7 is being red-chceked as an important date at Joy Town on the Topsfield Fair Grounds where the third "Do-It-Again" party will benefit the North Shore Children's Friend Society. A single ticket will buy 12 rides on a choice of nine vehicles featuring the new miniature ferris wheel as well as the ever-plodding pony. Hours are from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Mrs. William Allen of Salem is in char[illegible] of tickets under the gener[illegible] Mrs. E. Ca[illegible] erly Farms Edwards of Topsfield. Austin E. Andrews, assistant treasurer of the society, will provide furnishings for the Magic by Miller Show.

The organization helps maintain modern child care services for counseling, foster home placement and adoption in North Shore communities.

* *

[illegible]nefit Night

the New England Hospital have taken a large section of the floor for tonight's Pops at Symphony Hall for the benefit of the hospital in Roxbury. Among the post-debutantes who are serving as flower vendors are Malia Dean, Dorothy Duncan, Josephine Harding, Betty Lou Hill, Susan Howlett, Carol Marvin, Kitty Nash, Betsy Perry, Ann Sears and Claire MacWilliams.

047

CLEVELAND, OHIO
PRESS
Circ. D. 300,880

JUN 25 1955

Sights and Sounds—
Milt Widder

AROUND THE TOWN: The W. F. Ryan Co., insurance (owned by Jack Johns and Karl Sebelin), is taking over the second floor of the Arena building at 3700 Euclid; the Arena offices will move to the Brush Development Bldg., bought recently on Chester, and possibly the Barons' office will move downstairs where the American Legion now holds forth. . . . After 35 years in Cleveland, McCrory's, the five & dime, is quitting business here—selling out at Euclid and E. Fourth. Rent is too high, was the comment. The corner, known as the Hirsch and Quimby properties, will be broken up into smaller stores.

SILVER LINING: Fred C. Kelly Jr., the writer's son, drove his 1930 Rolls Royce from Westchester, Conn., to Cleveland yesterday for the 25th reunion of his '30 Shaker High class at the Cleveland Skating Club. "My Rolls," said he, "probably is in better shape than most of my classmates."

MID-EUROPE FAIR: Three brightly colored leis—of Hawaiian origin—epitomized the spirit of the fair on the Cleveland Art Museum grounds (dedicated to Central European countries), they were hung around the neck of the solemn-looking naked "Thinker," by Rodin. . . . Nearby, at the steps of the gold and platinum "bricks" bought at $5 and $10 each by museum contributors, sat Museum Director William M. Milliken. He looked nearly as pensive and tired as the Rodin masterpiece, but he was fully garbed. Milliken wore a new summer suit, rust colored.

Among the first customers to get Mrs. Daphne McMillen Humphrey to analyze their handwritings were Mrs. Henry Rankin and Mrs. G. G. G. Peckham. . . . The David Ford Jrs. ran the Tiger Booth—for prizes. . . . Bob McGrath, who is on the staff of the National Machine Tool Builders Assn., realized a lifetime ambition: he was the magician who entertained at three full shows. Selling tickets for this attraction was Dr. Pete Bowerfind, a teaching fellow at Lakeside Hospital, son of Publicist Ed.

Newsy Notes Rounded Up for Your Week-End Perusal

Hub Harwood was the man with the Polaroid-Land camera snapping pictures at 60 cents per. . . . Ed Weisberg, Lakeside Courthouse custodian's aide, was head of the five-man volunteer auxiliary police platoon which helped to keep the crowd moving. . . . And the Avery Sterners (of Fairhill Rd.) listened with faraway looks in their eyes as Al Berardi's Italian accordion squeezed out some fine Hungarian tunes.

SHORTIES: Rudolph Ringwall, associate conductor of the Cleveland Orchestra, will conduct the famed Esplanade Concerts in Boston (that's the Boston Pops) July 6, 7 and 8.

Frank Reeser, pastel portrait artist, was along on the Chamber of Commerce Cruise last week, finished 10 pictures during the four days, got commissions for an additional 10. Among the 10 he painted aboard were Mrs. John A. Green; Mrs. William Smith (daughter-in-law of Kurt Smith); Dr. Bill Barkley, the psychologist; Mrs. Ollie A. Reynolds; Mrs. William A. Lanking, wife of the Georgian Bay Line owner. . . . Al Maharas, the steak house owner, is exhibiting 12 prize winners in the recent Artists and Craftsmen Contest.

When it was announced this week that Lada C. Sykora's extensive collection of advertising posters (15,000 in all) will be donated to the Art Museum, it occurred to this corner that it's high time this fine retired lady got the HALO OF THE WEEK. For 20 years Miss Sykora has encouraged students in art by sponsoring a poster contest annually which was helped along by her bosses who ran the Central Outdoor Ad firm. She has had periodic exhibits of important, as well as rare, posters from all over the world and many of these are in the collection she is giving to the Museum. For her zeal and widespread promotional pitch in the interest of commercial and fine art, Lada Sykora's name long will be embedded in the educational history of the city.

Halo of the week

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068

Press
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 397,884

JUN 25 1955

Armenians Spark Pops

It ought to be a big Saturday at the Pops—Armenian Night, in which Rouben Gregorian takes the lion's share of the conducting.

Berj Zamkochian, brilliant young organist of St. Theresa's Church in West Roxbury, is going to do Handel's Second Concerto with the orchestra.

Agnes Dadekian sings a Puccini aria and a Nocturne of Gregorian's; there are some musical firecrackers from Kachaturian, and interspersed with all these rich Armenian flavors—what do you suppose? — Anderson's arrangement of "The Wearing of the Green"! Celtic tunes are probably international. The Saturday program includes:

Procession of the Sardar Ippolitov-Ivanov
In the Village Ippolitov-Ivanov
Concerto for Organ and Orchestra Handel
Soloist: BERJ ZAMKOCHIAN
Wedding Dance Press
ROUBEN GREGORIAN Conducting
Hayre Mer (The Lord's Prayer) Traditional (To be sung by the audience)
A Night on Bald Mountain Mousserguky

BERJ ZAMKOCHIAN
Pops Organist Tonight

Arias with Orchestra
Un bel di vidremo, from "Madame Butterfly" Puccini
Nocturne Gregorian
Soprano: AGNES DADEKIAN
Suite from "Masquerade" Khachaturian
Hidjaz from "Erivan Studies" Spendarian
Scherzo Gregorian
The Wearing of the Green Anderson
Sabre Dance from "Gayne" Khachaturian

Films, although they stiffen competition for scene-painters, may overplay their hand and swamp the drama with scenery, as they did Shaw's "Cesar and Cleopatra." They do something worse in their close-ups of players' faces in moments of strong emotion. This is a violation of reality—bad art and worse manners. Imagine peering into the face of a girl who has just been told her mother is dead! Well-bred people close their eyes.

The stage art, dramatist's or composer's, may take for its subject matter the entire span of human experience, real or imaginary. Of course it spills over at both ends; the real surpasses reality, the imaginary falls short of imagination. We hold our cups gratefully under these living fountains of the fire-bright wine, and drink and drink and drink.

UNCLE DUDLEY.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

WINE OF IMAGINATION

Stage scenery is a question on which feeling can run high. How much, if any, do we want; and if any, what kind? One man's decor is another man's gyp. After decades of having farmed out its scene-painting, the Metropolitan Opera in New York will now for the first time build and paint its own. There is room for improvement, dear though some of the sets are through long association.

You may say that if the poet knows his trade, no scenery is needed. Shakespeare and his fellow-Elizabethans did with next to none, and better too:

"Night's candles are burnt out, and jocund day
Stands tiptoe on the misty mountain tops."

What a catch of breath that gives one in the theatre, and how much can a drop-scene painter's brush do after that? Composers can even do without words. For a century and more the voluminous literature of symphonic tone-poems has depicted scenery and drama in orchestration and instrumental color with resounding success. Who needs scenery for Hector Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust," especially since the work is now obtainable in that most magnificent recording by the Boston Symphony Orchestra with the Harvard choirs?

"No designer," says the news from the Met, "has yet been chosen for 'Parsifal.'" That music-drama is a test of this paradox as between scenery and imagination. Wagner began by making unheard of demands on scene-designers: mountain summits, giants, dragons, Rhine flood, magic fire, sea storm, sword-forging, rainbow bridge, Valhalla in flames; then put his scene-painters out of countenance by the splendor of his orchestral imagination. In "Parsifal" he demanded three amazing "transformation" scenes, one instantaneous from magic garden to desert, and two requiring "wagon-stage scenery" to depict a a mountain-climb, if you please, the canvas unrolling on vertical poles. All three were, as a matter of fact, very good. Then either the canvas wore out or was too expensive to keep up, and they simply darkened the stage and let the orchestra storm, punctuated by that thrilling clangor of chimes which ring to worship in the Temple of the Holy Grail on Good Friday morning, and who ever misses the wagon-stage?

Earthquake, the burning of Troy, Caucasus mountain crag, the River of Death, hell itself, and the carrying-off of a great soul to heaven, the ancient Greek dramatists experimented boldly, but always returned to their more vivid scene-painting by the brush of poetry on the canvas of human imagination. Yet we all remain utterly unreasonable in this issue as between imagination and reality, for an audience, when the curtain rises on some astoundingly brilliant scene-set, is capable of bursting into a storm of applause to the discomfiture of the poor players ("So what? Where do we come in?"), and who would want to have missed the fun of some illusion-shattering stage-defect, even in the supreme "Tristan and Isolde" itself, where the princess reposes in a tent pavillion on the forward deck of a sailing vessel careening from Ireland to Cornwall before a strong Sou'wester?

[99]

INFORMATION OBSCURED

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 285,839

JUN 24 1959

Society

Nancy Boggs to Wed Naval Lieutenant

By ROSE WALSH

Among the many weddings scheduled for the last Saturday in June is that of Trinity alumna Miss Nancy Anne Boggs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Boggs of Newton Highlands, and Lieutenant (j. g.) Henry Stuart Palau USNR, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Paulau of Rawayton, Conn. A cousin of the bride's groom, the Rev. Lucien Donnelly, O.S.B., will perform the ceremony at an 11 o'clock nuptial mass in the Sacred Heart Church, Newton Center.

Miss Claire M. Reardon of Newton Highlands has the maid of honor role while Miss Evelyn S. Murphy of East Weymouth and Miss Ann Frankenberger of Newtonville, will share bridesmaid duties for their cousin.

William H. McMahon III of East Norwalk, Conn., is attending the bridegroom whose group of ushers headed by Paul R. Marte of Manchester, Conn., will include Lieutenant (j. g.) Thomas J. Sullivan of Yonkers, N. Y., Lieutenant (j. g.) Peter S. Mykrantz of Cleveland, O., and Ensign Edmund J. Dillworth of Detroit, Mich.

Miss Boggs received her degree from Trinity in 1952 and was graduated from Boston College Graduate School in 1955. The bridegroom, who is stationed on the USS Gatling, received his B. A. from Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., in 1950 and his LL. D from Boston University Law School.

* * *

Benefit At Joy Town

For the small fry, July 7 is being red-chceked as an important date at Joy Town on the Topsfield Fair Grounds where the third "Do-It-Again" party will benefit the North Shore Children's Friend Society. A single ticket will buy 12 rides on a choice of nine vehicles featuring the new miniature ferris wheel as well as the ever-plodding pony. Hours are from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Mrs. William Allen of Salem is in charge of tickets under the general chairmanship of Mrs. E. Carle Shotwell of Beverly Farms and Mrs. Roger J. Edwards of Topsfield. Austin E. Andrews, assistant treasurer of the society, will provide furnishings for the Magic by Miller Show.

The organization helps maintain modern child care services for counseling, foster home placement and adoption in North Shore communities.

* * *

Pops Benefit Night

Friends of the New England Hospital have taken a large section of the floor for tonight's Pops at Symphony Hall for the benefit of the hospital in Roxbury. Among the post-debutantes who are serving as flower vendors are Malia Dean, Dorothy Duncan, Josephine Harding, Betty Lou Hill, Susan Howlett, Carol Marvin, Kitty Nash, Betsy Perry, Ann Sears and Claire MacWilliams.

Newsy Notes Rounded Up for Your Week-End Perusal

W. F. Ryan Co., insurance (owned by Jack Johns and Karl Sebelin), is taking over the second floor of the Arena building at 3700 Euclid; the Arena offices will move to the Brush Development Bldg., bought recently on Chester, and possibly the Barons' office will move downstairs where the American Legion now holds forth. . . . After 35 years in Cleveland, McCrory's, the five & dime, is quitting business here—selling out at Euclid and E. Fourth. Rent is too high, was the comment. The corner, known as the Hirsch and Quimby properties, will be broken up into smaller stores.

SILVER LINING: Fred C. Kelly Jr., the writer's son, drove his 1930 Rolls Royce from Westchester, Conn., to Cleveland yesterday for the 25th reunion of his '30 Shaker High class at the Cleveland Skating Club. "My Rolls," said he, "probably is in better shape than most of my classmates."

MID-EUROPE FAIR: Three brightly colored leis—of Hawaiian origin—epitomized the spirit of the fair on the Cleveland Art Museum grounds (dedicated to Central European countries), they were hung around the neck of the solemn-looking naked "Thinker," by Rodin. . . . Nearby, at the steps of the gold and platinum "bricks" bought at $5 and $10 each by museum contributors, sat Museum Director William M. Milliken. He looked nearly as pensive and tired as the Rodin masterpiece, but he was fully garbed. Milliken wore a new summer suit, rust colored.

Among the first customers to get Mrs. Daphne McMillen Humphrey to analyze their handwritings were Mrs. Henry Rankin and Mrs. G. G. G. Peckham. . . . The David Ford Jrs. ran the Tiger Booth—for prizes. . . . Bob McGrath, who is on the staff of the National Machine Tool Builders Assn., realized a lifetime ambition: he was the magician who entertained at three full shows. Selling tickets for this attraction was Dr. Pete Bowerfind, a teaching fellow at Lakeside Hospital, son of Publicist Ed.

Hub Harwood was the man with the Polaroid-Land camera snapping pictures at 60 cents per. . . . Ed Weisberg, Lakeside Courthouse custodian's aide, was head of the five-man volunteer auxiliary police platoon which helped to keep the crowd moving. . . . And the Avery Sterners (of Fairhill Rd.) listened with far-away looks in their eyes as Al Berardi's Italian accordion squeezed out some fine Hungarian tunes.

SHORTIES: Rudolph Ringwall, associate conductor of the Cleveland Orchestra, will conduct the famed Esplanade Concerts in Boston (that's the Boston Pops) July 6, 7 and 8.

Frank Reeser, pastel portrait artist, was along on the Chamber of Commerce Cruise last week. He finished 10 pictures during the four days, got commissions for an additional 10. Among the 10 he painted aboard were Mrs. John A. Greene; Mrs. William Smith (daughter-in-law of Kurt Smith); Dr. Bill Barkley, the psychologist; Mrs. Ollie A. Reynolds; Mrs. William A. Lessing, wife of the Georgian Bay Line owner. . . . Al Maharas, the steak house owner, is exhibiting 12 prize winners in the recent Artists and Craftsmen Contest.

When it was announced this week that Lada C. Sykora's extensive collection of advertising posters (15,000 in all) will be donated to the Art Museum, it occurred to this corner that it's high time this fine retired lady got the HALO OF THE WEEK. For 20 years Miss Sykora has encouraged students in art by sponsoring a poster contest annually which was helped along by her bosses who ran the Central Outdoor Ad firm. She has had periodic exhibits of important, as well as rare, posters from all over the world and many of these are in the collection she is giving to the Museum. For her zeal and widespread promotional pitch in the interest of commercial and fine art, La'a Sykora's name long will be embedded in the educational history of the city.

Halo of the week

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-0068

Press
ARLINGTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent

...p Agency, Inc.
...chmond 2-4200

The t... Night" a... soprano ... of Arling... June 25. M... for the ... Church in ... known on th... ettas and rad... heard in the a... Fine Day(f... Madame But... Gregorian's ... turne."

...IAN
...onight

...stra
...dremo, from "Madame ... Puccini
...sc. Gregorian
Soprano: AGNES DADEKIAN
...te from "Masquerade" Khachaturian
Hidjaz from "Erivan Studies" Spendarian
Scherzo. Gregorian
The Wearing of the Green Anderson
Sabre Dance from "Gayne" Khachaturian

Films, although they stiffen competition for scene-painters, may overplay their hand and swamp the drama with scenery, as they did Shaw's "Cesar and Cleopatra." They do something worse in their close-ups of players' faces in moments of strong emotion. This is a violation of reality—bad art and worse manners. Imagine peering into the face of a girl who has just been told her mother is dead! Well-bred people close their eyes.

The stage art, dramatist's or composer's, may take for its subject matter the entire span of human experience, real or imaginary. Of course it spills over at both ends; the real surpasses reality, the imaginary falls short of imagination. We hold our cups gratefully under these living fountains of the fire-bright wine, and drink and drink.

UNCLE DUDLEY.

[99]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

WINE OF IMAGINATION

Stage scenery is a question on which feeling can run high. How much, if any, do we want; and if any, what kind? One man's decor is another man's dirt. After decades of having farmed out its scene-painting, the Metropolitan Opera in New York will now for the first time build and paint its own. There is room for improvement, dear though some of the sets are through long association.

You may say that if the poet knows his trade, no scenery is needed. Shakespeare and his fellow-Elizabethans did with next to none, and better too:

"Night's candles are burnt out, and jocund day
Stands tiptoe on the misty mountain tops."

What a catch of breath that gives one in the theatre, and how much can a drop-scene painter's brush do after that? Composers can even do without words. For a century and more the voluminous literature of symphonic tone-poems has depicted scenery and drama in orchestration and instrumental color with resounding success. Who needs scenery for Hector Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust," especially since the work is now obtainable in that most magnificent recording by the Boston Symphony Orchestra with the Harvard choirs?

"No designer," says the news from the Met, "has yet been chosen for 'Parsifal.'" That music-drama is a test of this paradox as between scenery and imagination. Wagner began by making unheard of demands on scene-designers: mountain summits, giants, dragons, Rhine flood, magic fire, sea storm, sword-forging, rainbow bridge, Valhalla in flames; then put his scene-painters out of countenance by the splendor of his orchestral imagination. In "Parsifal" he demanded three amazing "transformation" scenes, one instantaneous from magic garden to desert, and two requiring "wagon-stage scenery" to depict a a mountain-climb, if you please, the canvas unrolling on vertical poles. All three were, as a matter of fact, very good. Then either the canvas wore out or was too expensive to keep up, and they simply darkened the stage and let the orchestra storm, punctuated by that thrilling clangor of chimes which ring to worship in the Temple of the Holy Grail on Good Friday morning, and who ever misses the wagon-stage?

Earthquake, the burning of Troy, Caucasus mountain crag, the River of Death, hell itself, and the carrying-off of a great soul to heaven, the ancient Greek dramatists experimented boldly, but always returned to their more vivid scene-painting by the brush of poetry on the canvas of human imagination. Yet we all remain utterly unreasonable in this issue as between imagination and reality, for an audience, when the curtain rises on some astoundingly brilliant scene-set, is capable of bursting into a storm of applause to the discomfiture of the poor players ("So what? Where do we come in?"), and who would want to have missed the fun of some illusion-shattering stage-defect, even in the supreme "Tristan and Isolde" itself, where the princess reposes in a tent pavillion on the forward deck of a sailing vessel careening from Ireland to Cornwall before a strong Sou'wester?

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 248,071

JUN 26 1955

FATHERLY PRIDE and professional interest are displayed at Symphony Hall as Mike Higgins, Red Sox manager, and Pops conductor Arthur Fiedler (right) watch Higgins' young daughter, Diane, at piano. Diane played for maestro at Pops' intermission Thursday night.

RICHMOND, VA.
TIMES-DISPATCH
Circ. D. 123,471 - S. 174,705

JUN 26 1955

Many Unaided

The North Carolina Symphony receives a $20,000 appropriation from the State Legislature. The city of Cincinnati contributes $25,000 annually to its orchestra. In Denver, the city and county have supplied $20,000 to their orchestra and have reduced by half the rent of the municipal auditorium. There are many more examples.

On the other hand, these organizations have notoriously operated without any municipal or State support at all: the New York Philharmonic, the Boston Symphony, the National Symphony of Washington, the Chicago Symphony. The Pittsburgh Symphony even pays about $15,000 a year in city amusement taxes.

The going is increasingly difficult for our existing institutions, and the creation of new ones is a risky venture. Where is the answer? It will probably be resolved in a much larger issue of our political philosophies.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 106,753

JUN 26 1955

PIANIST IVAN DAVIS BOSTON POPS SOLOIST

Ivan Davis Jr. 23-year old American pianist, will be soloist for the opening movement of the Piano Concerto No. 1 by Tchaikovsky, with the Boston Pops Orchestra under direction of Arthur Fiedler, tomorrow (NBC Radio, 8:15 p. m. EDT). Davis won the 21st biennial young artists auditions of the National Federation of Music Clubs last April. He also has been awarded a Fulbright scholarship for further study in Europe in the fall.

Fiedler will open the program with the "American Salute," an arrangement of "When Johnny Comes Marching Home" by Gilmore-Gould. This will be followed by the colorful "El Salon Mexico," by the noted American composer Aaron Copland. The program will be concluded with the first movement of the Tchaikovsky concerto.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,241

JUN 26 1955

Zimbler Sinfonietta

Lukas Foss, the brilliant young composer-pianist-conductor, now at the University of California where he is head of the music department, will come to Boston Nov. 2, to appear with the Zimbler Sinfonietta in Jordan Hall. He will play a Mozart concerto and participate in the performance of the 5th Brandenburg Concerto by Bach.

Charles Munch, the distinguished conductor of The Boston Symphony Orchestra again will conduct the ensemble next Feb. 29 in the world premiere of a work by the newly-discovered Greek composer Skalkottas.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 106,753

JUN 26 1955

Second Thoughts in Music

Rachmaninoff Symphony Heard in New Recording

Eugene Ormandy Conducts Philadelphia Orchestra In No. 3 and in Works by French Composers; Hollywood String Quartet Plays Schoenberg

By WILLARD M. CLARK

It is often said that the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra is the finest in the world. Such an opinion is a personal one, but there seems no doubt that it stands today as the finest recording orchestra. Under the long-time direction of Eugene Ormandy this orchestra puts out for Columbia some of the finest performances to be heard anywhere. The Columbia engineers have captured the opulence of the tone and the vitality of the conductor, a vitality which makes every performance an arresting listening experience.

Rachmaninoff's Third

A case in point is ML 4961 which brings us this orchestra in a stunning performance of Symphony No. 3 in A minor by Rachmaninoff. The symphony was dedicated to the members of the orchestra and Mr. Ormandy. Ormandy and Rachmaninoff spent many hours going over the details of the score. One has, then, on this record as authentic a performance as seems possible. It is magnificent in every way and superbly recorded.

Turning from Rachmaninoff to such French composers as Ravel, Ibert, Chabrier and Debussy, Mr. Ormandy provides fine readings of such works, all familiar, as Ravel's "Bolero," "La Valse," "Pavane"; Ibert's "Iscales"; Debussy's "Clair de Lune" and Chabrier's "Espana." These are works which have been recorded many times, but this latest recording with its magnificent tone, quiet surfaces and brilliant readings is quite the best buy. ML 4983.

Columbia and Andre Kostelanetz get along well together. This new disc ML 4993, carries a group of favorite Strauss Waltzes played in the incomparable Kostelanetz manner. The waltzes are "Blue Danube," "Tales From the Vienna Woods," "Emperor Waltz" and "Voices of Spring."

Capitol Records

Capitol Records continues to make discs of outstanding excellence. Their "full dimensional sound" is very fine. The Capitol catalogue is varied and growing, particularly in its Capitol-Cetra operatic department.

For example, Cetra A-1250 brings us a charming performance of "The Secret of Suzanne" by Wolf-Ferrari. Most of us know this opera through its often heard overture. The little story of how a wife tries to keep her husband from knowing that she smokes, matches in spirit the story of Bach's "Coffee Cantata." The two-member cast comprises the baritone Giuseppe Valdengo and soprano Elena Rizzieri. Valdengo is the better of the two. It's a delightful opera, well sung and recorded.

Devotees of the ballet, classic style, will enjoy the fine performance Anatole Fistoulari and the London Symphony Orchestra give to "Giselle" by Adam. This dance fantasy in two acts, first performed in Paris in 1841, is the oldest ballet in the active repertoire. P-8306.

Record Capitol P-8304 is chiefly remarkable in that it provides a splendid performance in Schoenberg's, "Transfigured Night" in its original string quartet form. One hears it most often in the later orchestral form. It is more effective as a work for string quartet. It is beautifully played by the Hollywood String Quartet. Also on this record are two fine works for harp and string quartet, Ravel's "Introduction and Allegro" and Debussy's "Danses Sacree et Profane." Ann Mason Stockton is the harpist.

Milstein Plays

Nathan Milstein, violinist and the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra provide brilliant performances of Prokofieff's concerto No. 1 in D major and Lalo's "Symphonie Espagnole" on Capitol P-8303. Milstein seems at the height of his career at the moment and his playing is not only brilliant technically, but his readings are searching and communicative. We believe the Prokofieff is recorded for the first time.

Finally, on Cetra A-50178 you can have your choice of a variety of Cetra opera stars in a series of duets. Duets from "La Boheme," "Gioconda," "Andrea Chenier," "Manon Lescaut," "Adriana Locuvrier" and "La Sonnambula" may be heard. Among the singers are Tagliavini, Pagliughi, Prandelli, Carteri, Tebaldi, Poggi and others. Good singing in spirited Italian style.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Post
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 230,930

JUN 26 1955

Studio Tattler

With Bob Hope signed to a five-year NBC-TV contract, the Chevrolet Division of General Motors and Chevrolet Dealers announce the sponsorship of a series of 13 variety shows in the 8 to 9 p. m., Tuesday period next season, with Hope starring in six and possibly eight, and Dinah Shore in two. Other outstanding stars of Broadway and Hollywood will be chosen for the remaining productions in the series.

Announcement will be made later about plans for the other programs, under different sponsorship, starring Milton Berle and Martha Raye in this Tuesday lineup.

* * *

Arthur Godfrey's final telecast of the summer with his Friends on Wednesday, July 13, will be a salute to his 10 years as a nighttime network star. The following week, Frankie Laine, well-known popular singer, will take over the spot for eight weeks under the title "Frankie Laine Show," featuring Laine in songs and guest stars. Although frequently heard as a guest on many TV airings, this will be Laine's first "live" TV series.

* * *

Steve Allen, emcee of NBC-TV's "Tonight" show, will figure in another 90-minute "Spectacular" on Saturday, July 2. "Allen in Movieland." Allen will be in Hollywood to star in the title role of Universal-International's "The Benny Goodman Story," and the "spectacular" is a joint project between NBC and U-I. Universal stars tentatively booked for this 90-minute telecast are: Jeff Chandler, Piper Laurie, Tony Curtis, Audie Murphy and Mamie Van Doren.

Kraft TV Theatre has supplied the stars for the forthcoming motion picture, "Phoenix City." Included in the cast are ex-Kraft players, Richard Kiley, Lenka Peterson, Biff McGuire and George Mitchell.

* * *

Pretty Lucy Marlowe, one of the Ford Theatre's favorite leading ladies, who will wed New York Yankee third baseman, Andy Carey, this summer, won't return to film-making until late in the fall.

* * *

Louise Morgan, conductor of the popular "Dear Homemaker" daily over Channel 7 at 1 p. m., will celebrate her sixth anniversary on TV tomorrow. In her honor there will be a big party at the "Pops" Tuesday, June 30, at which the string section of the orchestra will play her theme song, "I Love Louisa."

* * *

The last of the NBC-TV summer "Saturday Specials" will be the telecast of the Dallas State Fair's revival presentation of "One Touch of Venus," on Aug. 27, with Janet Blair and Russell Nype in the principal roles.

* * *

Honors as the best TV news commentators in the annual selections by the General Federation of Women's Clubs, were shared by John Cameron Swayze of the NBC-TV News Caravan and John Daly of ABC-TV.

* * *

For her fine support in Bob Cummings' telefilms as his widowed sister, Rosemary DeCamp has been given a featured role in a new movie, "Many Are Called," which Allied Artists will produce in August.

[100]

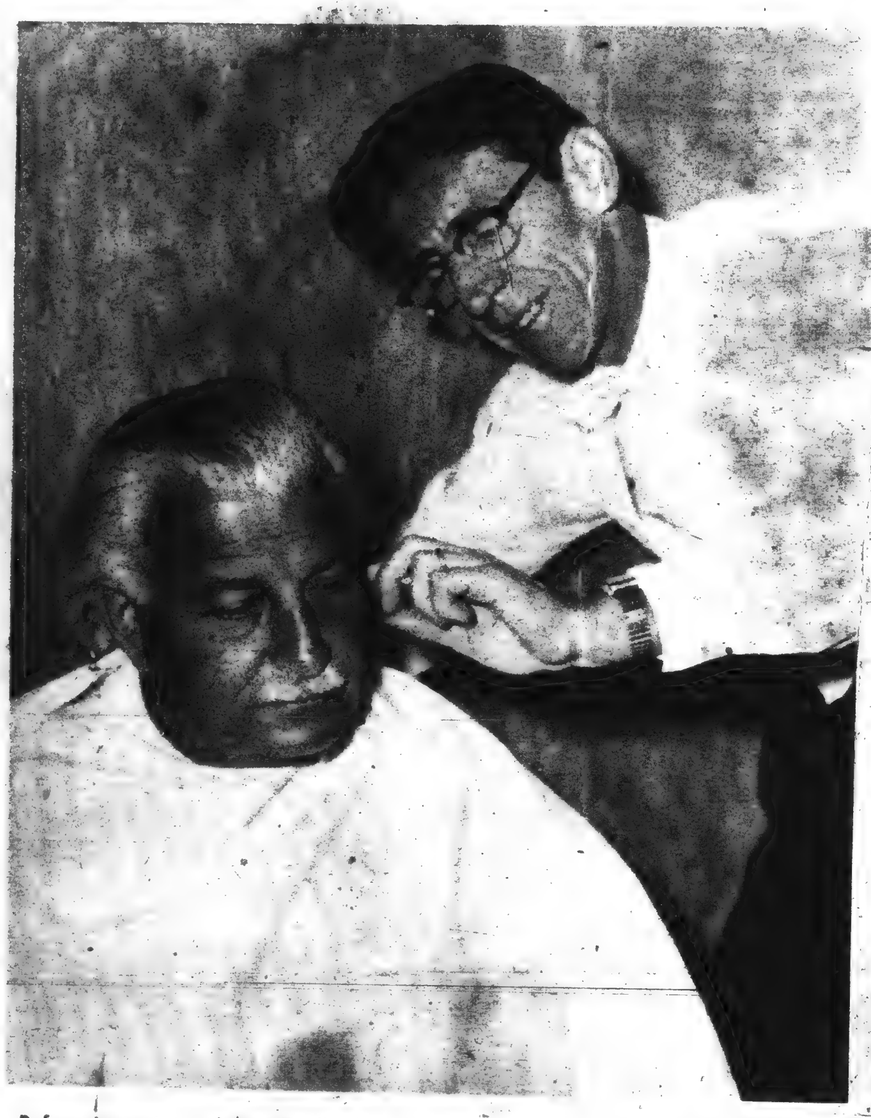
New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 369,241

JUN 26 1955

Symphonic Barber

Easily the most musical barber since the barber of Seville is Dante Di Nunzio. An expert at both his jobs, he is a full-time clipper during the day and a symphony orchestra tuba player by night. Besides playing with symphonies in Providence, R. I., his home town, and Springfield, Mass., Dante has traveled with the famed Boston Pops Tour Orchestra, where he not only doubles in brass but acts as barber extraordinary to orchestra members on tour. As a result the Pops probably has fewer long-haired musicians than any other orchestra.



Before concert, conductor Fiedler has his hair trimmed by Di Nunzio. During tours Dante cuts hair of all the players, except the few women in the orchestra.

Globe Metro Photos

Dante Di Nunzio plays musical barber chairs with one of his customers. A barber by day and musician by night, he also takes time out for traveling with Boston Pops Tour Orchestra.

Di Nunzio barbers a customer at his Providence, R. I., shop. Many of his customers are music lovers who enjoy gossiping about opera and concert events with him.

Donning dress suit in place of barber's coat, Dante is ready to pick up his tuba and go to a concert. Photographs bordering mirror show barber-tubaist at musical work.

Sitting in back row (third from bottom), Dante Di Nunzio tools his tuba, watching conductor Fiedler for cues.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Telegram-News
LYNN, Mass.
Democrat
Circ. 23,112

Frank Morrissey

BOSTON AFTER DARK

(Frank Morrissey Is A Veteran Bos[illegible] Newspaperman)

TOPICS OF CONVERSATION. The Eddie Fo[illegible] just-completed face-lifting, interior renovation [illegible] highlighted by the opening of the elegant new [illegible] lounge... Gisele McKenzie's so-easy-to-like recording of "Hard To Get". The bitter heartbreak of Marblehead cop Cliff Varrell, who, responding to an accident call, looked at the victim as he was turned face-up, and saw the face of his 13-year-old son, who died the next day. The arrival of Bob Hope at Logan Airport, tomorrow morning at 10:20, to help exploit the new film, "Eddie Foy and the Seven Little Foys"... T-N-T McManus's recent win at Salem Country Club over Hearst sports writer Arthur Sullivan... Gary Moore's daily TV show, recipient of rave encomiums from Bill, Esther and Bernadette Bambic, just from a personal appearance on the show, and quick to praise Gary Moore for his unique appeal and genuine sincerity... The local beach store which may soon be leased and transformed into a restaurant-delicatessen. The movie "Women's Prison" which graphically denounces the theory that Authority is synonomous with Right. That a student of philosophy, etc., the film's coldhearted, selfishly motivated head of the women's prison ends up with much treachery, a psycopath. Living up to the prison doctor's analysis of her!... The tremendous under-water disturbance created by spawning shrimp, now being studied off Woods Hole by M.I.T. and Naval research men in an effort to combat the sound's effect on radar, etc. The easy access to Varley's Diner, via the new Lynnway and Blossom Street. Diner there isn't any one finer... Lynn bluecoat Jim Patrick's favorite retreat. The Elms at Goff Falls, N.H., where retired Hub police captain Steve Flaherty resides. Take it easy, Go slow, Steve... The political maneuvering now plaguing any and all programs for correcting our chaotic prison system. The proud feature story on restaurateur Anthony Athanas, in Dielli E. Merkuré 15 Qershor, 1955. The oldest Albanian newspaper in America, uniquely printed in English and Albanian to please young and old generations. The news line of last Friday: "Visiting T-Men War On Bookies"—reminding us of our line here last Sunday "Treasury Agents will be the most active of all government investigators this year. Their scope is wide." The father of a 10-year-old near-drowning victim, at Myles Standish Reservation, abounding with gratitude and respect for the doctor who helped revive his son. Until he learned the doctor was a guest of the state at the nearby prison camp!... Herman Simard's little known gem of knowledge that a 220 volt air conditioner uses less current than a 110 volt model of the same size air conditioner. The new prison forestry camp being readied at Monroe, Mass. West Lynn Creamery's June Dairy Month reminder that consumption of fluid milk and cream during 1954 was 7 per cent above the pre-war rate. And per capita consumption of ice cream was more than twice as high in 1954 as in 1935... The one remaining week of the 70th Boston Pops season; Arthur Fiedler conducting. The good-food-for-any-mood-appeal of Varley's Diner, a veritable food palace with the accent on luxurious simplicity. No finer food served, anywhere... The music courses for children at Castle Hill, Ipswich, starting July 5, sponsored by the Castle Hill Foundation and N.E. Conservatory of Music... The fact that all complaints about gambling in any community which are sent to State Police, are relayed by registered mail to the community police head, with a return receipt requested.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,326
JUN 27 1955

Elsa Fiedler Is Guest Of Mr. & Mrs. Melcher

Miss Elsa Fieldler of New York city, operatic coach and sister of Arthur Fieldler, conductor of the Boston Pops orchestra, was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Melcher of 60 Marion avenue.

Accompanied by Mr. Melcher's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Melcher of New York, she came to the Berkshires to engage accommodations near Tanglewood, Lenox, where she will serve this season on the opera department staff of the Berkshire Music center.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 106,753
JUN 26 1955

MASS. SEASHORE IN BOSTON AREA IS ATTRACTIVE

Has Usual Ocean Features And Is Near Many Points Of Historic Interest

Boston—There are extra dividends of pleasure and profit when vacationing along the Massachusetts seacoast between Salisbury on the north and Plymouth on the south. In either area there is every type of active sport, entertainment or lazy relaxation to be found at the ideal seashore resort. One dividend derives from the fact that Boston lies right in the center, only a short drive distant, and here one may find the range of amusements only a big metropolis has to offer.

Near Historic Points

A further important factor is that within the boundaries stated are more important historic landmarks and literary shrines than in any comparable region in the country. Bunker Hill, Fanueil Hall, Concord, Lexington, Salem, Plymouth, Paul Revere House, House of Seven Gables, Longfellow House—those are names tied inextricably to America's tap roots. These are but a few of the long list of Americans that makes history come alive for the tourist in eastern Massachusetts.

Famous Port

Gloucester is not only famous as a resort, but one of the oldest and most colorful commercial fishing ports. Adjacent Rockport, and Gloucester maintain summer art colonies that are outstanding. Salem still carries the storied aura of wealthy and daring clipper ship nabobs whose vessels for years carried the American flag to far flung foreign ports.

At Saugus, a suburb of Lynn, is the unusual First Iron Works, a restoration of the birthplace of one of America's greatest industries—steel.

South of Boston there is Nantasket, a well known playground with a carnival atmosphere. From there one drives through the more residential towns of Cohasset, Scituate, Marshfield and thence to Plymouth, the very heart of our American freedoms. Residents of this thriving community have long maintained with pride the traditions and memorials of their neighbors north of Boston.

Plymouth also offers fine fishing both fresh and salt water; good beaches, and many other kinds of entertainment.

Wherever the vacationeer stays, North Shore or South Shore, for entertainment found only in the big metropolis, Boston is but a short drive either way. In the Massachusetts capital one finds big league baseball, horse and dog racing, the finest in theaters, nightclubs and restaurants, cultural pleasures, fine stores and shops of every description. One may take a stroll in the Public Gardens for a ride in the swan boats, attend a concert by the Boston Pops Orchestra at the Hatch Shell beside the Charles River, a sightseeing trip up the Charles River by boat; visit the top of the Customs House or John Hancock Building for panoramic views; Mrs. Jack Gardner's fabulous palace museum; picturesque T-Wharf with its artists' studios, seafood restaurants and colorful fishing fleet.

Plymouth is "America's Home Town." Just passing through, Americans feel a sense of pride in their heritage and are eager to explore all the historic town treasures.

DALLAS, TEX.
NEWS
JUN 27 1955

Ivan Davis Soloist for Boston Pops

Ivan Davis Jr., 23-year-old American pianist from Hobbs, N. Mex. who won the Civic Federation Young Artists Competition here in 1951 will be heard as guest soloist with the Boston Pops Orchestra on the broadcast Monday (WFAA-820, 7:15 p.m.) with Arthur Fiedler conducting.

Davis will play the First Movement of Tchaikovsky's Piano Concerto No. 1 in B Flat Minor.

A graduate of North Texas State College, Denton, where he taught piano and keyboard harmony for two years, Davis won the 21st biennial Young Artists competition of the National Federation of Music Clubs last April.

He also recently received a Fullbright scholarship for further study in Europe this fall.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Cape Cod Standard Times (e)
HYANNIS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 14,331
JUN 27 1955

Music Teacher Unit Organized

Association Forms On Cape Basis

DENNISPORT, June 25 — A newly-formed Capewide music teaching association which could be the seed from which a Cape Cod Conservatory eventually will grow, is developing along a modest scale.

Willem A. Valkenier of Dennisport, former french horn player in the Boston Symphony, is president of the group, named the Cape Cod Conservatory Association. The association is preparing a booklet of music teachers connected with it which will be available in Chamber of Commerce information booths.

Secretary of the association is LeRoy Madary of Eastham, whose home will be its central office. By contacting Mr. Madary, music students may be put in touch with teachers in their neighborhood.

Mr. Valkenier said teachers would meet high standards of musical competence. Rather than give lessons at a central plant, they will instruct in their own homes or studios. If the plan in this form meets with success, these teachers conceivably would form the nucleus of the Cape Cod Conservatory envisioned last year and still hoped for.

Many musicians on Cape Cod feel wide interest might be attracted to a conservatory-type institution, particularly in Summer, Mr. Valkenier said. A plan considered last year to organize such an institution at the outset was laid aside, he said, the musicians preferring to see first what success they have on a smaller scale. Once formed, a Cape God Conservatory would be along the lines, though modestly, of the Boston Conservatory of Music, with a full-fledged faculty and curriculum.

Mr. Valkenier said the association, and any future conservatory which might develop out of it would endeavor to use the services of retired Boston Symphony men who make their home on Cape Cod.

[102]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Telegram-News
LYNN, Mass.
Democrat
Circ. 23,112

Frank Morrissey
BOSTON AFTER DARK

047

(Frank Morrissey is a Telegram-N

TOPICS OF CONVERSATION

just-completed face-lift[ing] inter[view] highlighted by the open[ing] of [the] lounge. Gisele McKenzie's [song] "Hard To Get" The bitter heartbreak of Cliff Varrell, who, responding to an [ad] at the victim as he was turned face-up [in] of his 13-year-old son, who [left] the [sea] rival of Bob Hope at Logan Airpo[rt] 10:20, to help exploit the new film [Ed]... Seven Little Foys." T-N-T McMa[hon] lem Country Club over Hearst sport[s] Van Gary Moore's daily TV show [receives] endorsements from Bill Esther and Be[tty] from a personal appearance on [the] praise Gary Moore for his unique [per]sonality. The local beach store where [he] and transformed into a restaurant [for] movie "Women's Prison" which [graphic] theory that Austerity is synonomous [with] a student of philosophy, etc. the film's [highly] motivated head of the women's [prison] much treachery, a psychopath[ic] Lo[ng]for's analysis of he[r] The tremendous [dis]turbance created to spawning shrimp [in the] off Woods Hole by M.I.T and [Navy] effort to combat the sound's effect [on] easy access to Varley's Dine[r] Blossom Street. Dine the [old] any one finer. Lynn blueco[at] Patrick's favorite retreat [in] Elms at Goff Falls, N.H. where [re]tired Hub police captain Steve Flaherty resides. Take it easy, Go slow, Steve. The political [un]easiness now plaguing any and [all] programs for correcting our chaotic prison system. The proud feature story on restaurateur Anthony Athanas in Dolli E. Mes[kuris'] 15 Question 1955. The oldest All-Italian newspaper in America uniquely printed in English and Al[ba]nian to please young and old [gen]erations. The [de]line of last Friday: "Visiting T-Men [Wa]rn[ing] reminding us of our line here last Sunday. [The] Agents will be the most active of all [gov]ernment [in]gators this year. Their scope is wide. The [ten]-year-old boat-drowning victim of [the] Reservation abounding with gratitude and [re]spect doctor who helped revive his son. Until he [left] doctor was a guest of the state at the [Sea]mans' camp. Herman Simard's little known gem of [a new] that a 220 volt air conditioner uses less [current] 110 volt model of the same size air conditioner. [The] prison forestry camp being readied at Mount [Au]burn. West Lynn Creamery's June Dairy Month [reminder] consumption of fluid milk and cream during [1954 was] per cent above the pre-war rate. And per capita [consump]tion of ice cream was more than twice [that of] 1935. The one remaining week of the Boston [Symphony] Pops season; Arthur Fiedler conducting. The [combo] for-any-mood-appeal of Varley's Diner, a [Cambridge] palace with the accent on luxurious simplicity, [serves] food served, anywhere. The music courses [offered] at Castle Hill, Ipswich, starting July 5 sponsored [by the] Castle Hill Foundation and N.E. Conservatory. [Music] The fact that all complaints about gambling in [the com]munity which are sent to State Police are [turned] registered mail to the community police head with [a re]turn receipt requested.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 100,753
JUN 26 1955

MASS. SEASHORE IN BOSTON AREA IS ATTRACTIVE

Has Usual Ocean Features And Is Near Many Points Of Historic Interest

Boston—There are extra dividends of pleasure and profit when vacationing along the Massachusetts seacoast between Salisbury on the north and Plymouth on the south. In either area there is every type of active sport, entertainment or lazy relaxation to be found at the ideal seashore resort. One dividend derives from the fact that Boston lies right in the center, only a short drive distant, and here one may find the range of amusements only a big metropolis has to offer.

Near Historic Points

A further important factor is that within the boundaries stated are more important historic landmarks and literary shrines than in any comparable region in the country. Bunker Hill, Fanueil Hall, Concord, Lexington, Salem, Plymouth, Paul Revere House, House of Seven Gables, Longfellow House—those are names tied inextricably to America's tap roots. These are but a few of the long list of Americans that makes history come alive for the tourist in eastern Massachusetts.

Famous Port

Gloucester is not only famous as a resort, but one of the oldest and most colorful commercial fishing ports. Adjacent Rockport, and Gloucester maintain summer art colonies that are outstanding. Salem still carries the storied aura of wealthy and daring clipper ship nabobs whose vessels for years carried the American flag to far flung foreign ports.

At Saugus, a suburb of Lynn, is the unusual First Iron Works, a restoration of the birthplace of one of America's greatest industries—steel.

South of Boston there is Nantasket, a well known playground with a carnival atmosphere. From there one drives through the more residential towns of Cohasset, Scituate, Marshfield and thence to Plymouth, the very heart of our American freedoms. Residents of this thriving community have long maintained with pride the traditions and memories of their neighbors north of Boston.

Plymouth also offers fine fishing both fresh and salt water, good beaches, and many other kinds of entertainment.

Wherever the vacationeer stays, North Shore or South Shore, for entertainment found only in the big metropolis, Boston is but a short drive either way. In the Massachusetts capital one finds big league baseball, horse and dog racing, the finest in theaters, nightclubs and restaurants, cultural pleasures, fine stores and shops of every description. One may take a stroll in the Public Gardens for a ride in the swan boats; attend a concert by the Boston Pops Orchestra at the Hatch Shell beside the Charles River; a sightseeing trip up the Charles River by boat; visit the top of the Customs House or John Hancock Building for panoramic views; Mrs. Jack Gardner's fabulous palace museum; picturesque T-Wharf with its artists' studios, seafood restaurants and colorful fishing fleet.

Plymouth is "America's Home Town." Just passing through, Americans feel a sense of pride in their heritage and are eager to explore all the historic town treasures.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
DALLAS, TEX.
NEWS
M. 190,893 S. 197,563
JUN 27 1955

Ivan Davis Soloist for Boston Pops

Ivan Davis Jr., 23-year-old American pianist from Hobbs, N. Mex. who won the Civic Federation Young Artists Competition here in 1951 will be heard as guest soloist with the Boston Pops Orchestra on the broadcast Monday (WFAA-820, 7:15 p.m.) with Arthur Fiedler conducting.

Davis will play the First Movement of Tchaikovsky's Piano Concerto No. 1 in B Flat Minor.

A graduate of North Texas State College, Denton, where he taught piano and keyboard harmony for two years, Davis won the 21st biennial Young Artists competition of the National Federation of Music Clubs last April.

He also recently received a Fullbright scholarship for further study in Europe this fall.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,326
JUN 27 1955

Elsa Fiedler is Guest Of Mr. & Mrs. Melcher

Miss Elsa Fieldler of New York city, operatic coach and sister of Arthur Fieldler, conductor of the Boston Pops orchestra, was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Melcher of 60 Marion avenue.

Accompanied by Mr. Melcher's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Melcher of New York, she came to the Berkshires to engage accommodations near Tanglewood, Lenox, where she will serve this season on the opera department staff of the Berkshire Music center.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Cape Cod Standard Times (e)
HYANNIS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 14,331
JUN 27 1955

Music Teacher Unit Organized

Association Forms On Cape Basis

DENNISPORT, June 25 — A newly-formed Capewide music teaching association which could be the seed from which a Cape Cod Conservatory eventually will grow, is developing along a modest scale.

Willem A. Valkenier of Dennisport, former french horn player in the Boston Symphony, is president of the group, named the Cape Cod Conservatory Association. The association is preparing a booklet of music teachers connected with it which will be available in Chamber of Commerce information booths.

Secretary of the association is LeRoy Madary of Eastham, whose home will be its central office. By contacting Mr. Madary, music students may be put in touch with teachers in their neighborhood.

Mr. Valkenier said teachers would meet high standards of musical competence. Rather than give lessons at a central plant, they will instruct in their own homes or studios. If the plan in this form meets with success, these teachers conceivably would form the nucleus of the Cape Cod Conservatory envisioned last year and still hoped for.

Many musicians on Cape Cod feel wide interest might be attracted to a conservatory-type institution, particularly in Summer, Mr. Valkenier said. A plan considered last year to organize such an institution at the outset was laid aside, he said, the musicians preferring to see first what success they have on a smaller scale. Once formed, a Cape God Conservatory would be along the lines, though modestly, of the Boston Conservatory of Music, with a full-fledged faculty and curriculum.

Mr. Valkenier said the association, and any future conservatory which might develop out of it would endeavor to use the services of retired Boston Symphony men who make their home on Cape Cod.

[102]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 285,839

JUN 2 7 1955

"Mr. Boston" Named

About People

By GRACE DAVIDSON

At this season Bostonians start playing that pleasant game, "Who is Mr. Boston?"

Francis W. Hatch, the lean, tweedy general chairman of the 1956 Red Feather campaign, also poet, composer and advertising man, who has often been called "Mr. Boston" himself gave his list yesterday. They are all men he knows.

Grace Davidson

Here they are:—George Holden Tinkham, active bearded 85-year-old ex-United States Congressman.

Leslie B. Thompson, artist and raconteur of 150 Pleasant st., Newton.

Harry J. Blake, wool merchant and citizen active in community affairs, of 2 Brimmer st.

Joseph P. Spang, Jr., president of Gillette Safety Razor Co., Harvard '15, active in Boston's economic well-being.

Paul Bowser, wrestler and sports promoter, who lives in Lexington.

John B. Hynes, Mayor of Boston.

Stacy Holmes, business spokesman and worker, active in amateur sports.

General Robert Cutler of Beacon Hill, banker and former special assistant to President Eisenhower.

David McCord, poet, writer and teacher, familiar figure in the Harvard yard.

Edward A. Weeks, Jr., editor of The Atlantic Monthly.

Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Pops and the Esplanade concerts.

It would appear that Mr. Hatch's "Mr. Boston" list is highly individual. His idea of "Mr. Boston" is a man whose personality, work, and appearance suggest the character of the city. This authority believes in Boston's distinctive qualities.

Francis W. Hatch

His choices are men who bear the Boston imprint. They would be recognized as "Mr. Boston" anywhere in the world by those familiar with this subject. He thinks of his "Mr. Boston" as a representative citizen, though he may not be rich or well-known to the many.

Mr. Hatch of the Harvard 1919 class, sat back in his office lined with books at 462 Boylston st., looked into space before he said, "I can think of a vast number of 'Mr. Bostons'." He gave the names of seven candidates for the title. Yesterday from Maine he wired three more names. He favors men of striking originality, all doers even though they be poets, writers and musicians. He enjoys people who give a good performance. It is apparent that they are men after his own heart.

Successful as he is as the New England manager of Batton, Barton, Durstine and Osborn, Mr. Hatch talks of retirement as the ideal time in a man's life when he can work at the other things he likes to do. He wants to have more time for writing verse, musical plays, songs and prose about people and ideas. From the earnings of his typewriter, he bought himself a piece of beautiful land at his beloved Castine, Me. His summer home is there. Some day he hopes to do something interesting with the new piece of land. At that time he will be working only at his typewriter and at his piano.

Francis W. Hatch, Jr.

Through the years he has had many offers of big and glamorous jobs in New York. He says simply that he was never tempted to leave Boston; he has no interest in collecting ulcers for money or fame. He lives with his wife in Wayland. Week ends he does his writing in the Wayland library and he has collaborated with his son, Francis, Jr., on a musical comedy. His son began executive position with the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company. His son is also a man after his own heart who writes verse, sails, golfs and likes people and talk after business hours. Perhaps it did not occur to Mr. Hatch to name his son as a young "Mr. Boston." It is obvious that he enjoys the company of his son and his "Mr. Bostons."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 185,401

JUN 2 7 1955

RALEIGH, N. C.
NEWS & OBSERVER
Circ. D. 117,496 - S. 126,087

JUN 27 1955

What's Doing

TODAY'S TOP IN RADIO AND TV.

7:30 p. m.—Mimi Benzell and Robert Rounseville will be guest soloists on the Voice simulcast tonight over WBTV, WTVR, WCSC, WBTW and WTVD, at 8:30 o'clock over Radio WNAO.

8:15 p. m.—Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra in a concert over WPTF. Ivan Davis Jr., 23-year-old piano soloist will be featured in the first movement from Tchaikovsky's "Piano Concerto No. 1 in B-Flat Minor." "American Salute" by Gilmore-Gould and Copland's "El Salon Mexico" will be included on the program.

9 p. m.—"For the Defense," co-starring Mike Wallace and Hildy Parks, will be given on Studio One Summer Theater over WNCT, WFMY, WBTV, WTAR, WCSC and WLVA-TV.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Patriot-Ledger (e)
QUINCY, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 37,681

JUN 28 1955

Additional reservations for the Pops Concert by Quincy Symphony Orchestra tonight at Coral Gables, North Weymouth being sponsored by L'Eco of Quincy, have been received from: Dr. and Mrs. Fred P Costanza, Miss Mary Costanza, Mrs. Joel Dean, Mr. and Mrs Nicholas Papani, Miss Virginia Papani, Prof. and Mrs. Camillo P. Merlino, Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Guy, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Chimiello, Dr. and Mrs. William S. Atmen, Miss Alice Goodhue, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Wein, and Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Barton, Mrs. Joseph Tomasello, Mrs. Fred Cook, Domenic Longo.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Item (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 21,384

JUN 2 9 1955

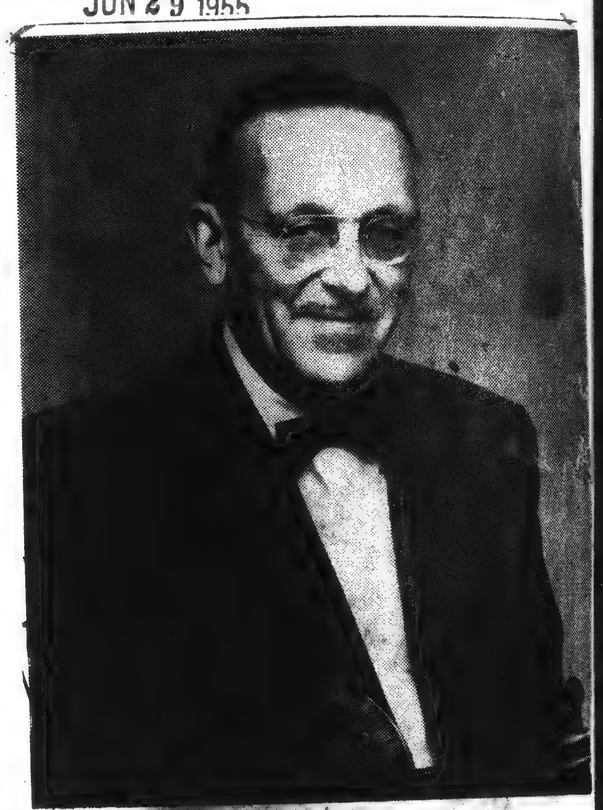
Tapley To Wield Baton At Pops

A delegation of 30 members of the North Shore Philharmonic Orchestra will attend the Boston Pops concert, in Symphony Hall, Boston, on Thursday evening, when their director, Rolland Tapley will be Arthur Fiedler's guest conductor. Mr. Tapley is the first violinist of the Boston Symphony.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 2 9 1955



John Brook

Peter Bodge will conduct a group of his arrangements at the Pops Thursday evening.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

JUN 2 9 1955

BERNARD KRITZMAN, young Boston pianist, will be soloist in Ravel's Concerto in G at the Pops in Symphony Hall tonight.

FINAL WEEK AT POPS

Harry Ellis Dickson, Conducting

Arthur Fiedler will bring an end to the 70th season of the Boston Pops at Symphony Hall next Friday night. He announces features of special interest this final week. Tomorrow night is to be family night. Thursday will bring the final Old Timers' Night and Friday, Request Night, for which the program has been determined by the vote of the Pops public.

Triumphal March from "Aida" Verdi
Roman Carnival, Overture Berlioz
Ave Maria Bach-Gounod

Solo Violin: Alfred Krips
On the Trail, from "Grand Canyon Suite." Grofe
Scherzo from "A Midsummer's Night's Dream" Mendelssohn
Concertstuck for Piano and Orchestra. Weber
Soloist: Leo Litwin
Irish Suite Anderson
Selection from "Kiss Me Kate" Porter
The Lost Chord Sullivan
Trumpet Solo: Armando Ghitalla
Davy Crockett Bruns-Hayman

[103]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 285,839

JUN 27 1955

"Mr. Boston" Named

About People

By GRACE DAVIDSON

At this season Bostonians start playing that pleasant game, "Who is Mr. Boston?"

Francis W. Hatch, the lean, tweedy general chairman of the 1956 Red Feather campaign, also poet, composer and advertising man, who has often been called "Mr. Boston" himself gave his list yesterday. They are all men he knows.

Grace Davidson

Here they are:—George Holden Tinkham, active bearded 85-year-old ex-United States Congressman.

Leslie B. Thompson, artist and raconteur of 150 Pleasant st., Newton.

Harry J. Blake, wool merchant and citizen active in community affairs, of 2 Brimmer st.

Joseph P. Spang, Jr., president of Gillette Safety Razor Co., Harvard '15, active in Boston's economic well-being.

Paul Bowser, wrestler and sports promoter, who lives in Lexington.

John B. Hynes, Mayor of Boston.

Stacy Holmes, business spokesman and worker, active in amateur sports.

General Robert Cutler of Beacon Hill, banker and former special assistant to President Eisenhower.

David McCord, poet, writer and teacher, familiar figure in the Harvard yard.

Edward A. Weeks, Jr., editor of The Atlantic Monthly.

Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Pops and the Esplanade concerts.

It would appear that Mr. Hatch's "Mr. Boston" list is highly individual. His idea of "Mr. Boston" is a man whose personality, work, and appearance suggest the character of the city. This authority believes in Boston's distinctive qualities.

Francis W. Hatch

His choices are men who bear the Boston imprint. They would be recognized as "Mr. Boston" anywhere in the world by those familiar with this subject. He thinks of his "Mr. Boston" as a representative citizen, though he may not be rich or well-known to the many.

Mr. Hatch of the Harvard 1919 class, sat back in his office lined with books at 462 Boylston st., looked into space before he said, "I can think of a vast number of 'Mr. Bostons'." He gave the names of seven candidates for the title. Yesterday from Maine he wired three more names. He favors men of striking originality, all doers even though they be poets, writers and musicians. He enjoys people who give a good performance. It is apparent that they are men after his own heart.

Successful as he is as the New England manager of Batton, Barton, Durstine and Osborn, Mr. Hatch talks of retirement as the ideal time in a man's life when he can work at the other things he likes to do. He wants to have more time for writing verse, musical plays, songs and prose about people and ideas. From the earnings of his typewriter, he bought himself a piece of beautiful land at his beloved Castine, Me. His summer home is there. Some day he hopes to do something interesting with the new piece of land. At that time he will be working only at his typewriter and at his piano.

Francis W. Hatch, Jr.

Through the years he has had many offers of big and glamorous jobs in New York. He says simply that he was never tempted to leave Boston; he has no interest in collecting ulcers for money or fame. He lives with his wife in Wayland. Week ends he does his writing in the Wayland library and he has collaborated with his son, Francis, Jr., on a musical comedy. His son holds an executive position with the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company. His son is also a man after his own heart who writes verse, sails, golfs and likes people and talk after business hours. Perhaps it did not occur to Mr. Hatch to name his son as a young "Mr. Boston." It is obvious that he enjoys the company of his son and his "Mr. Bostons."

RALEIGH, N. C.
NEWS & OBSERVER
Circ. D. 117,496 - S. 126,087
JUN 27 1955

What's Doing

TODAY'S TOP IN RADIO AND TV.

7:30 p. m.—Mimi Benzell and Robert Rounseville will be guest soloists on the Voice simulcast tonight over WBTV, WTVR, WCSC, WBTW and WTVD, at 8:30 o'clock over Radio WNAO.

8:15 p. m.—Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra in a concert over WPTF. Ivan Davis Jr., 23-year-old piano soloist will be featured in the first movement from Tchaikovsky's "Piano Concerto No. 1 in B-Flat Minor." "American Salute" by Gilmore-Gould and Copland's "El Salon Mexico" will be included on the program.

9 p. m.—"For the Defense," co-starring Mike Wallace and Hildy Parks, will be given on Studio One Summer Theater over WNCT, WFMY, WBTV, WTAR, WCSC and WLVA-TV.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Patriot-Ledger (e)
QUINCY, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 37,681

JUN 28 1955

Additional reservations for the Pops Concert by Quincy Symphony Orchestra tonight at Coral Gables, North Weymouth being sponsored by L'Eco of Quincy, have been received from: Dr. and Mrs. Fred P Costanza, Miss Mary Costanza Mrs. Joel Dean, Mr. and Mrs Nicholas Papani, Miss Virginia Papani, Prof. and Mrs. Camille P. Merlino, Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Guy, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Chimiello, Dr. and Mrs. William S. Altman, Miss Alice Goodhue, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Wein, and Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Barton, Mrs. Joseph Tomasello, Mrs. Fred Cook, Domenic Longo.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Item (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 21,384

JUN 29 1955

Tapley To Wield Baton At Pops

A delegation of 30 members of the North Shore Philharmonic Orchestra will attend the Boston Pops concert, in Symphony Hall, Boston, on Thursday evening, when their director, Rolland Tapley will be Arthur Fiedler's guest conductor. Mr. Tapley is the first violinist of the Boston Symphony.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 29 1955

...ap of his arrangements at the

Independent
Circ. 154,241

JUN 29 1955

BERNARD KRITZMAN, young Boston pianist, will be soloist in Ravel's Concerto in G at the Pops in Symphony Hall tonight.

JUN 27 1955

FINAL WEEK AT POPS

Harry Ellis Dickson, Conducting

Arthur Fiedler will bring an end to the 70th season of the Boston Pops at Symphony Hall next Friday night. He announces features of special interest this final week. Tomorrow night is to be family night. Thursday will bring the final Old Timers' Night and Friday, Request Night, for which the program has been determined by the vote of the Pops public.

Triumphal March from "Aida" Verdi
Roman Carnival, Overture Berlioz
Ave Maria Bach-Gounod

Solo Violist: Alfred Krips
On the Trail, from "Grand Canyon Suite," Grofe
Scherzo from "A Midsummer's Night's Dream" Mendelssohn
Concertstuck for Piano and Orchestra. Weber
Soloist: Leo Litwin
Irish Suite Anderson
Selection from "Kiss Me Kate" Porter
The Lost Chord Sullivan
Trumpet Solo: Armando Ghitalla
Davy Crockett Bruns-Hayman

[103]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Post (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 285,839

JUN 2 9 1955

"Mr. Boston" Named

About People

By GRACE DAVIDSON

At this season Bostonians start playing that pleasant game, "Who is Mr. Boston?"

Francis W. Hatch, the lean, tweedy general chairman of the 1956 Red Feather campaign, also poet, composer and advertising man, who has often been called "Mr. Boston" himself gave his list yesterday. They are all men he knows.

Grace Davidson

Here they are:—George Holden Tinkham, active bearded 85-year-old ex-United States Congressman.

Leslie B. Thompson, artist and raconteur of 150 Pleasant st., Newton.

Harry J. Blake, wool merchant and citizen active in community affairs, of 2 Brimmer st.

Joseph P. Spang, Jr., president of Gillette Safety Razor Co., Harvard '15, active in Boston's economic well-being.

Paul Bowser, wrestler and sports promoter, who lives in Lexington.

John B. Hynes, Mayor of Boston.

Stacy Holmes, business spokesman and worker, active in amateur sports.

General Robert Cutler of Beacon Hill, banker and former special assistant to President Eisenhower.

David McCord, poet, writer and teacher, familiar figure in the Harvard yard.

Edward A. Weeks, Jr., editor of The Atlantic Monthly.

Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Pops and the Esplanade concerts.

It would appear that Mr. Hatch's "Mr. Boston" list is highly individual. His idea of "Mr. Boston" is a man whose personality, work, and appearance suggest the character of the city. This authority believes in Boston's distinctive qualities.

Francis W. Hatch

His choices are men who bear the Boston imprint. They would be recognized as "Mr. Boston" anywhere in the world by those familiar with this subject. He thinks of his "Mr. Boston" as a representative citizen, though he may not be rich or well-known to the many.

Mr. Hatch of the Harvard 1919 class, sat back in his office lined with books at 462 Boylston st., looked into space before he said, "I can think of a vast number of 'Mr. Bostons'." He gave the names of seven candidates for the title. Yesterday from Maine he wired three more names. He favors men of striking originality, all doers even though they be poets, writers and musicians. He enjoys people who give a good performance. It is apparent that they are men after his own heart.

Successful as he is as the New England manager of Batton, Barton, Durstine and Osborn, Mr. Hatch talks of retirement as the ideal time in a man's life when he can work at the other things he likes to do. He wants to have more time for writing verse, musical plays, songs and prose about people and ideas. From the earnings of his typewriter, he bought himself a piece of beautiful land at his beloved Castine, Me. His summer home is there. Some day he hopes to do something interesting with the new piece of land. At that time he will be working only at his typewriter and at his piano.

Francis W. Hatch, Jr.

Through the years he has had many offers of big and glamorous jobs in New York. He says simply that he was never tempted to leave Boston; he has no interest in collecting ulcers for money or fame. He lives with his wife in Wayland. Week ends he does his writing in the Wayland library and he has collaborated with his son, Francis, Jr., on a musical comedy. His son has an executive position with the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company. His son is also a man after his own heart who writes verse, sails, golfs and likes people and talk after business hours. Perhaps it did not occur to Mr. Hatch to name his son as a young "Mr. Boston." It is obvious that he enjoys the company of his son and his "Mr. Bostons."

RALEIGH, N. C.
NEWS & OBSERVER
Circ. D. 117,496 - S. 126,087
JUN 27 1955

What's Doing

TODAY'S TOP IN RADIO AND TV.

7:30 p. m.—Mimi Benzell and Robert Rounseville will be guest soloists on the Voice simulcast tonight over WBTV, WTVR, WCSC, WBTW and WTVD, at 8:30 o'clock over Radio WNAO.

8:15 p. m.—Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra in a concert over WPTF. Ivan Davis Jr., 23-year-old piano soloist will be featured in the first movement from Tchaikovsky's "Piano Concerto No. 1 in B-Flat Minor." "American Salute" by Gilmore-Gould and Copland's "El Salon Mexico" will be included on the program.

9 p. m.—"For the Defense," co-starring Mike Wallace and Hildy Parks, will be given on Studio One Summer Theater over WNCT, WFMY, WBTV, WTAR, WCSC and WLVA-TV.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Patriot-Ledger (e)
QUINCY, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 37,681

JUN 28 1955

Additional reservations for the Pops Concert by Quincy Symphony Orchestra tonight at Coral Gables, North Weymouth being sponsored by L'Eco of Quincy, have been received from: Dr. and Mrs. Fred P Costanza, Miss Mary Costanza Mrs. Joel Dean, Mr. and Mrs Nicholas Papani, Miss Virginia Papani, Prof. and Mrs. Camille P. Merlino, Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Guy, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Chimiello, Dr. and Mrs. William S. Altman, Miss Alice Goodhue, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Wein, and Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Barton, Mrs. Joseph Tomasello, Mrs. Fred Cook, Domenic Longo.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Item (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 21,384

JUN 29 1955

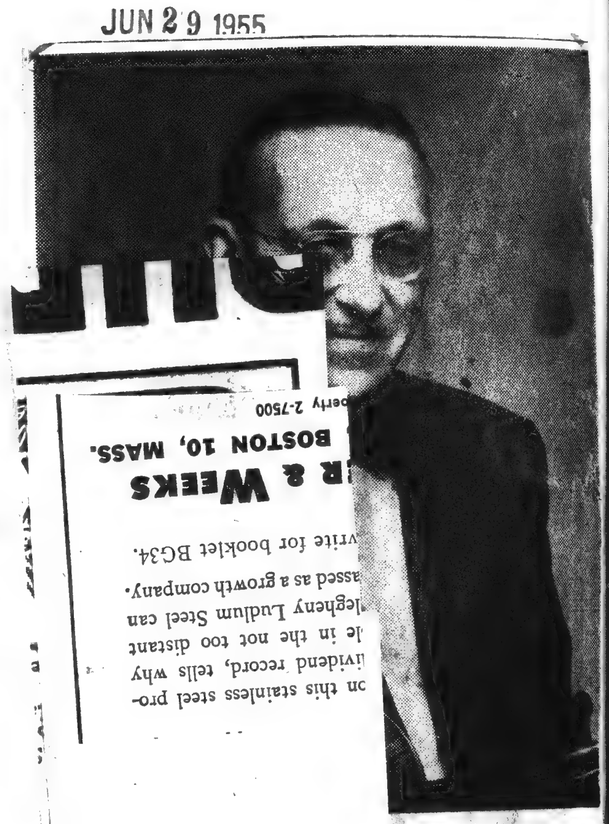
Tapley To Wield Baton At Pops

A delegation of 30 members of the North Shore Philharmonic Orchestra will attend the Boston Pops concert, in Symphony Hall, Boston, on Thursday evening, when their director, Rolland Tapley will be Arthur Fiedler's guest conductor. Mr. Tapley is the first violinist of the Boston Symphony.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 165,872

JUN 29 1955



of his arrangements at the

...on this stainless steel pro-
...dividend record, tells why
...le in the not too distant
...Allegheny Ludlum Steel can ...passed as a growth company.
...Write for booklet BG34.
...R & WEEKS
...BOSTON 10, MASS.
...berty 2-7500

...publican
Circ. 196,593

JUN 29 1955

Pops Soloist

BERNARD KRITZMAN is piano soloist tonight with the Boston Pops Orchestra for Ravel's Concerto in G for Piano and Orchestra.

JUN 27 1955

FINAL WEEK AT POPS

Harry Ellis Dickson, Conducting

Arthur Fiedler will bring an end to the 70th season of the Boston Pops at Symphony Hall next Friday night. He announces features of special interest this final week. Tomorrow night is to be family night. Thursday will bring the final Old Timers' Night and Friday, Request Night, for which the program has been determined by the vote of the Pops public.

Triumphal March from "Aida" Verdi
Roman Carnival, Overture Berlioz
Ave Maria Bach-Gounod

Solo Violin: Alfred Krips
On the Trail, from "Grand Canyon Suite," Grofe
Scherzo from "A Midsummer Night's Dream" Mendelssohn
Concertstuck for Piano and Orchestra, Weber
Soloist: Leo Litwin
Irish Suite Anderson
Selection from "Kiss Me Kate" Porter
The Lost Chord Sullivan
Trumpet Solo: Armando Ghitalla
Davy Crockett Bruns-Hayman

[103]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Enterprise
CONCORD, Mass.
Weekly Ind. Rep.
Comb. Circ. 4728

JUN 30 1955

TWO FIEDLERS

Milwaukee (UP) — Arthur Fielder took his Boston Pops Orchestra to Wauwatosa for a concert recently and discovered he had a namesake. Arthur Fiedler is a teller in the First Wisconsin National Bank.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX.
NEWS
Circ. D. 76,648

JUN 30 1955

Trinity Adds Music Teacher

Composer-pianist John Duke, professor of music at Smith College, Northampton, Mass., will join the faculty of Trinity University Sept. 7, Trinity President James W. Laurie announced Wednesday.

Duke

Except for a year of sabbatical leave in 1929 when he studied in Paris and Berlin, Duke has taught continuously at Smith since 1923.

As a concert pianist, he has given first performances of the works of a number of well-known American composers including Roger Sessions, Ross Lee Finney, Bernard Wagenaar, and Walter Piston.

As a composer, he is best known for art-songs set to English texts. His works have been played by the Boston Pops Orchestra, the National Orchestral Association of New York and the Walden, Smith College and NBC string quarettes.

At 16, he won a scholarship at Peabody Conservatory, Baltimore. After a year of Army service in 1918, he studied piano and composition in New York City.

MARION, IND.
LEADER TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 8,613

JUN 30 1955

DAVY GOES HIGH-BROW

Conductor Arthur Fielder of the Boston Pops Orchestra goes Davy Crockett to amuse his audience at Boston's Symphony Hall. Suitably equipped with a coonskin cap and top "shootin' arn," Fielder is shown directing with gusto a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Back Bay Ledger &
Beacon Hill Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,000 Free

JUN 30 1955

Pops Concerts Close Tomorrow; Programs Listed

Arthur Fiedler will bring an end to the 70th season of the Boston Pops at Symphony Hall tomorrow night. Mr. Fiedler conducted special features of interest during this last week and has announced that this evening will be the final Old Timer's Night and Friday will be request night for which the program has been determined by the vote of the Pops public.

The program for this evening and tomorrow evening are as follows:

Continued on Page Four

Sailors' Dance by Gliere; Overture to Poet and Peasant by Suppe; Prayer of Thanksgiving by Valerius; The Southern Cross by Clarke; Davy Crockett by Bruns-Hayman; Salute to Our Armed Forces by Bodge; The Glowworm Turns by Lincke Bodge; Song Fest Medley arranged by Bodge; George M. Cohan Medly by Bodge.

Friday evening, July 1, at 8:30 o'clock, Request Program, Harry Ellis Dickson, conducting—The Stars and Stripes Forever by Sousa; Overture to "Orpheus in Hades" by Offenbach; Meditation from "Thais" by Massenet; Dance of the Hours from "La Gioconda" by Ponchielli; Tales from the Vienna Woods, Waltzes, by Strauss; Warsaw Concerto for Piano and Orchestra by Addinsell; Bolero by Ravel; TViana by Hayman; The Glowworm Turns by Lincke-Bodge, and Pomp and Circumstance by Elgar.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Mercury (e)
MEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 6,624

JUN 30 1955

Catholic Club to Attend Pops Concert Friday

St. Francis of Assisi Catholic Club will attend the Boston Pops Orchestra final concert at Symphony Hall, Boston, Friday night.

Henry Mariani, 216 Fulton street, past president, is in charge of reservations. Members will leave from the church. The concert will begin at 8:30 P.M.

The club will meet at the church parish hall July 7 at 8 P.M. to plan for an outing on July 10. Miss Lorraine Corsetti, 7 Elm street, will preside.

A weenie roast is scheduled for July 30 at 6 P.M. at Nahant.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sun
WATERTOWN, Mass.
Weekly Independ
Circ. 4,665

JUN 30 1955

Watertown Man Conducts "Pops"

ROUBEN GREGORIAN

The Third Annual "Armenian Night" at "Pops" was held Saturday night in Symphony Hall with Rouben Gregorian of 176 Spruce St., conducting the entire program. Mr. Gregorian was former conductor of the Iranian Symphony Orchestra in Teheran and is internationally known as a conductor, composer, and musician. This was his third appearance at Symphony Hall and he again demonstrated his mastery in brilliantly conducting the symphony orchestra through an Interesting and varied program. Two of his compositions were played and sung during the evening. As a special feature, the traditional church liturgical hymn, "Hayre Mer" (The Lord's Prayer) was played by the orchestra with or-

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 185,401

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Mercury (e)
MEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 6,624

o Start Tuesday

Arthur Fielder said the evening ncerts will run through July 17. d will be held again from Aug. to 20. In addition, there wil three children's concerts on ednesday mornings.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News (e)
FRAMINGHAM, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
LONG BRANCH, N. J.
RECORD
Circ. D. 14,807

BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
Circ. D. 130,559 - S. 248,071

Arthur Fiedler has announced at the 27th season of Esplanade ncerts by the Boston Symphony chestra will open next Tuesday the Hatch memorial shell on rrow embankment.

and Concert gin Today

ork Philharmonic Symphony Orestra; Paul Schaller, first clarietist with the New Orleans Symony Orchestra now playing the restone show on radio and teleion Monday evenings: Gil John-, trumpet soloist, has played h th Boston Pops Orchestra and ow first trumpet with the New eans Symphony Orchestra; Wal- Bowne, trombone soloist with W.R.C.A. Band of America on io Monday evenings; Alex Wilis, first clarinet with the Symy of the Air, formerly the C. Symphony Orchestra; Rob- Morris, flute and piccolo solo- formerly with the Cleveland mphony Orchestra and now with Symphony of the Air; Stephen witt, oboist and English horn ist has appeared with the Sad- Wells Ballet Co. and the Bal- Theater; Albert Klinko, French formerly with the Budapest harmonic and Opera House Ortra, Tonhalle Orchestra, Zur- Switzerland, Denver Sym- y Orchestra and now with the New York Center Ballet Orchestra.

The two popular drummers, Al D'Amico and Meyer Sebold, will be back with the Municipal Band this summer.

Radio Station W.J.L.K. will Broadcast the concerts every Wednesday and Friday, beginning tomorrow night at 8:30 for a half hour program.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

JUN 30 1955

Esplanade Concerts Resume Tuesday

The annual Esplanade concerts at the Hatch Shell will open Tuesday at 8:30 p.m.

They will continue through July 17, except for Monday, July 11.

A third week of concerts will be given Aug. 15 through 20. Arthur Fielder will conduct.

Children's concerts will be given on July 6, 13 and Aug. 17 at 10:15 a.m.

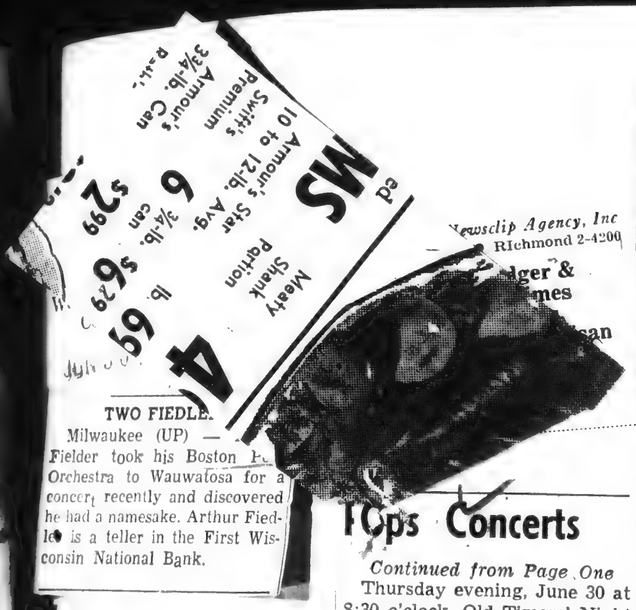
chaturian's "Masquer and the "Saber Da played together with tions by Spendarian rian.

Berj Zamkochian young organist and c tor of St. Theresa's West Roxbury, was ist and played Han certo for Organ and No. 2 in B-Flat without flaw. He also played an encore which was well-received by the audience. Mr. Zamkochian Recently made a tour of Europe under the auspices of the Gregorian Institute and played on many famous organs in the capitols of Europe.

Also appearing as soloist was Agnes Dadekian, soprano soloist of the St. James Armenian Church of Watertown who sang an aria from the opera "Madame Butterfly", "Un Bel Di" by Puccini and Mr. Gregorian's "Nocturne". Miss Dadekian thrilled the audience with her sweet voice and unfortunately was somewhat drowned out by the orchestra on occasions. However, her debut at Symphony Hall was well-received by an appreciative audience and her future looks very promising.

Irish Leprechauns are everywhere, even in Symphony Hall: regardless of the occasion - and sure enough, one appeared in Symphony Hall to lead the "Pops" orchestra in Anderson's arrangement of the "Wearing Of The Green" - But, to really top off the occasion - was the sight of the Americans of Irish Descent; the choir members of St. Theresa's Church of West Roxbury singing the "Hayre Mer" (The Lord's Prayer) in the Armenian Language - It certainly was international night at "Pops" in Symphony Hall on Saturday night.

Newsclip Agency, Inc
RIchmond 2-4200



TWO FIEDLE...

Milwaukee (UP) — ... Fielder took his Boston P... Orchestra to Wauwatosa for a concert recently and discovered he had a namesake. Arthur Fiedler is a teller in the First Wisconsin National Bank.

Pops Concerts

Continued from Page One

Thursday evening, June 30 at 8:30 o'clock, Old Timers' Night —Semper Fidelis, March, by Sousa; By the Beautiful Blue Danube, Waltzes, by Strauss; Sailors' Dance by Gliere; Overture to Poet and Peasant by Suppe; Prayer of Thanksgiving by Valerius; The Southern Cross by Clarke; Davy Crockett by Bruns-Hayman; Salute to Our Armed Forces by Bodge; The Glowworm Turns by Lincke Bodge; Song Fest Medley arranged by Bodge; George M. Cohan Medly by Bodge.

Friday evening, July 1, at 8:30 o'clock, Request Program, Harry Ellis Dickson, conducting—The Stars and Stripes Forever by Sousa; Overture to "Orpheus in Hades" by Offenbach; Meditation from "Thais" by Massenet; Dance of the Hours from "La Gioconda" by Ponchielli; Tales from the Vienna Woods, Waltzes, by Strauss; Warsaw Concerto for Piano and Orchestra by Addinsell; Bolero by Ravel; TViana by Hayman; The Glowworm Turns by Lincke-Bodge, and Pomp and Circumstance by Elgar.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Mercury (e)
MEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 6,624

JUN 30 1955

Catholic Club to Attend Pops Concert Friday

St. Francis of Assisi Catholic Club will attend the Boston Pops Orchestra final concert at Symphony Hall, Boston, Friday night.

Henry Mariani, 216 Fulton street, past president, is in charge of reservations. Members will leave from the church. The concert will begin at 8:30 P.M.

The club will meet at the church parish hall July 7 at 8 P.M. to plan for an outing on July 10. Miss Lorraine Corsetti, 7 Elm street, will preside.

A weenie roast is scheduled for July 30 at 6 P.M. at Nahant.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sun
WATERTOWN, Mass
Weekly Independ...
Circ. 4,665

JUN 30 1955

Watertown Man Conducts "Pops"

ROUBEN GREGORIAN

The Third Annual "Armenian Night" at "Pops" was held Saturday night in Symphony Hall with Rouben Gregorian of 176 Spruce St., conducting the entire program. Mr. Gregorian was former conductor of the Iranian Symphony Orchestra in Teheran and is internationally known as a conductor, composer, and musician. This was his third appearance at Symphony Hall and he again demonstrated his mastery in brilliantly conducting the symphony orchestra through an Interesting and varied program. Two of his compositions were played and sung during the evening. As a special feature, the traditional church liturgical hymn, "Hayre Mer" (The Lord's Prayer) was played by the orchestra with or-

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Bost...

Ar...
BOS...
In...
C...

New Engl...
Box 2078, ...

...TE

...art Tuesday

...r Fielder said the evening ... will run through July 17. ... be held again from Aug. ... In addition, there will ... children's concerts on ... day mornings.

Arthur Fiedler has announced ... the 27th season of Esplanade ...certs by the Boston Symphony ...estra will open next Tuesday ... the Hatch memorial shell on ...rrow embankment.

Circ. D. 130,559 - S. ...

JUN 30 195...

...and Concert ...egin Today

...York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra; Paul Schaller, first clarinetist with the New Orleans Symphony Orchestra now playing the Firestone show on radio and television Monday evenings: Gil Johnson, trumpet soloist, has played with th Boston Pops Orchestra and is now first trumpet with the New Orleans Symphony Orchestra; Walter Bowne, trombone soloist with the W.R.C.A. Band of America on Radio Monday evenings; Alex Williams, first clarinet with the Symphony of the Air, formerly the I.B.C. Symphony Orchestra; Robert Morris, flute and piccolo soloist, formerly with the Cleveland ...mphony Orchestra and now with ...e Symphony of the Air; Stephen ...witt, oboist and English horn ...oist has appeared with the Sadler Wells Ballet Co. and the Bal... Theater; Albert Klinko, French horn formerly with the Budapest Philharmonic and Opera House Orchestra, Tonhalle Orchestra, Zurich, Switzerland, Denver Symphony Orchestra and now with the New York Center Ballet Orchestra.

The two popular drummers, Al D'Amico and Meyer Sebold, will be back with the Municipal Band this summer.

Radio Station W.J.L.K. will Broadcast the concerts every Wednesday and Friday, beginning tomorrow night at 8:30 for a half hour program.

Concerts Begin On Esplanade Tuesday at 8:30

Boston's riverside symphony, ... the Esplanade Concerts, will ... open Tuesday evening at 8:30 ... o'clock and continue every night ... except Monday, July 11, through ... Sunday the 17th.

The third weekk will be from ... Aug. 15 through Aug. 20, all at ... The Hatch Memorial Shell on the ... Charles River.

In the interim, Conductor ... Arthur Fiedler announced that, ... Boston Symphony players will be ... performing at the Berkshire ... Festival in Tanglewood.

The Children's concerts will ... be Wednesday mornings at 10:15 ... on July 6, 13, and Aug. 17.

... the Mekhitarist Congr... Vienna, Austria, who ... ly touring the United ... and other distinguish... men who were prese... chaturian's "Masquer... and the "Saber Da... played together with ... tions by Spendarian a... rian.

Berj Zamkochian, ... young organist and c... tor of St. Theresa's ... West Roxbury, was ... ist and played Han... certo for Organ and ... No. 2 in B-Flat without flaw. He also played an encore which was well-received by the audience. Mr. Zamkochian Recently made a tour of Europe under the auspices of the Gregorian Institute and played on many famous organs in the capitols of Europe.

Also appearing as soloist was Agnes Dadekian, soprano soloist of the St. James Armenian Church of Watertown who sang an aria from the opera "Madame Butterfly", "Un Bel Di" by Puccini and Mr. Gregorian's "Nocturne". Miss Dadekian thrilled the audience with her sweet voice and unfortunately was somewhat drowned out by the orchestra on occasions. However, her debut at Symphony Hall was well-received by an appreciative audience and her future looks very promising.

Irish Leprechauns are everywhere, even in Symphony Hall: regardless of the occasion - and sure enough, one appeared in Symphony Hall to lead the "Pops" orchestra in Anderson's arrangement of the "Wearing Of The Green" - But, to really top off the occasion - was the sight of the Americans of Irish Descent; the choir members of St. Theresa's Church of West Roxbury singing the "Hayre Mer" (The Lord's Prayer) in the Armenian Language - It certainly was international night at "Pops" in Symphony Hall on Saturday night.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX.
NEWS
Circ. D. 76,648

JUN 30 1955

Trinity Adds Music Teacher

Composer-pianist John Duke, professor of music at Smith College, Northampton, Mass., will join the faculty of Trinity University Sept. 7, Trinity President James W. Laurie announced Wednesday.

Duke

Except for a year of sabbatical leave in 1929 when he studied in Paris and Berlin, Duke has taught continuously at Smith since 1923.

As a concert pianist, he has given first performances of the works of a number of well-known American composers including Roger Sessions, Ross Lee Finney, Bernard Wagenaar, and Walter Piston.

As a composer, he is best known for art-songs set to English texts. His works have been played by the Boston Pops Orchestra, the National Orchestral Association of New York and the Walden, Smith College and NBC string quarettes.

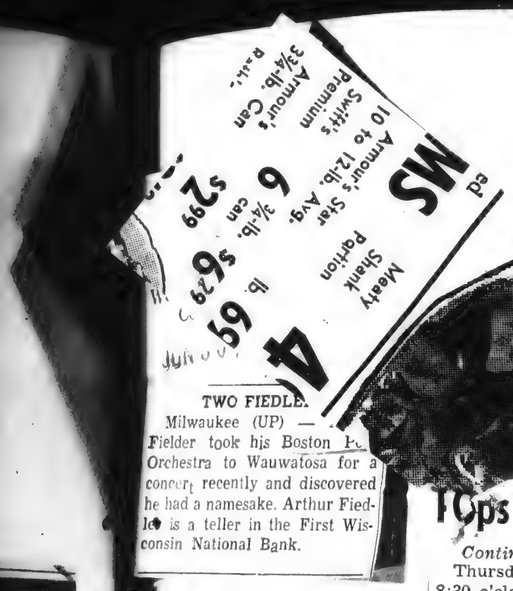
At 16, he won a scholarship at Peabody Conservatory, Baltimore. After a year of Army service in 1918, he studied piano and composition in New York City.

MARION, IND.
LEADER TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 8,613

JUN 30 1955

DAVY GOES HIGH-BROW

Conductor Arthur Fiedler of the Boston Pops Orchestra goes Davy Crockett to amuse his audience at Boston's Symphony Hall. Suitably equipped with a coonskin cap and top "shootin' arn," Fiedler is shown directing with gusto a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."



TWO FIEDLE
Milwaukee (UP) —
Fielder took his Boston P
Orchestra to Wauwatosa for a concert recently and discovered he had a namesake. Arthur Fiedle is a teller in the First Wisconsin National Bank.

Newsclip Agency, Inc
Richmond 2-4200

Pops Concerts

Continued from Page One

Thursday evening, June 30 at 8:30 o'clock, Old Timers' Night —Semper Fidelis, March, by Sousa; By the Beautiful Blue Danube, Waltzes, by Strauss; Sailors' Dance by Gliere; Overture to Poet and Peasant by Suppe; Prayer of Thanksgiving by Valerius; The Southern Cross by Clarke; Davy Crockett by Bruns-Hayman; Salute to Our Armed Forces, by Bodge; The Glowworm Turns by Lincke Bodge; Song Fest Medley arranged by Bodge; George M. Cohan Medly by Bodge.

Friday evening, July 1, at 8:30 o'clock, Request Program, Harry Ellis Dickson, conducting—The Stars and Stripes Forever by Sousa; Overture to "Orpheus in Hades" by Offenbach; Meditation from "Thais" by Massenet; Dance of the Hours from "La Gioconda" by Ponchielli; Tales from the Vienna Woods, Waltzes, by Strauss; Warsaw Concerto for Piano and Orchestra by Addinsell; Bolero by Ravel; TViana by Hayman; The Glowworm Turns by Lincke-Bodge, and Pomp and Circumstance by Elgar.

New England
Box 2078, Bost

New Er
Box 207

Ne
Box

rt Tuesday

Fiedler said the evening will run through July 17. be held again from Aug. In addition, there will children's concerts on day mornings.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX.
NEWS
Circ. D. 76,648

JUN 30 1955

Trinity Adds Music Teacher

Composer-pianist John Duke, professor of music at Smith College, Northampton, Mass., will join the faculty of Trinity University Sept. 7, Trinity President James W. Laurie announced Wednesday.

Duke

Except for a year of sabbatical leave in 1929 when he studied in Paris and Berlin, Duke has taught continuously at Smith since 1923.

As a concert pianist, he has given first performances of the works of a number of well-known American composers including Roger Sessions, Ross Lee Finney, Bernard Wagenaar, and Walter Piston.

As a composer, he is best known for art-songs set to English texts. His works have been played by the Boston Pops Orchestra, the National Orchestral Association of New York and the Walden, Smith College and NBC string quarettes.

At 16, he won a scholarship at Peabody Conservatory, Baltimore. After a year of Army service in 1918, he studied piano and composition in New York City.

MARION, IND.
LEADER TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 8,613

JUN 30 1955

DAVY GOES HIGH-BROW
Conductor Arthur Fielder of the Boston Pops Orchestra goes Davy Crockett to amuse his audience at Boston's Symphony Hall. Suitably equipped with a coonskin cap and top "shootin' arn," Fielder is shown directing with gusto a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Mercury (e)
MEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 6,624

JUN 30 1955

Catholic Club to Attend Pops Concert Friday

St. Francis of Assisi Catholic Club will attend the Boston Pops Orchestra final concert at Symphony Hall, Boston, Friday night.

Henry Mariani, 216 Fulton street, past president, is in charge of reservations. Members will leave from the church. The concert will begin at 8:30 P.M.

The club will meet at the church parish hall July 7 at 8 P.M. to plan for an outing on July 10. Miss Lorraine Corsetti, 7 Elm street, will preside.

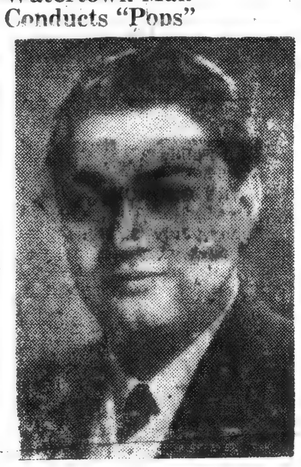
A weenie roast is scheduled for July 30 at 6 P.M. at Nahant.

New England Newsclip Agency,
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2

Sun
WATERTOWN, Mass
Weekly Independ
Circ. 4,665

JUN 30 1955

Watertown Man Conducts "Pops"



ROUBEN GREGORIAN

The Third Annual "Armenian Night" at "Pops" was held Saturday night in Symphony Hall with Rouben Gregorian of 176 Spruce St., conducting the entire program. Mr. Gregorian was former conductor of the Iranian Symphony Orchestra in Teheran and is internationally known as a conductor, composer, and musician. This was his third appearance at Symphony Hall and he again demonstrated his mastery in brilliantly conducting the symphony orchestra through an Interesting and varied program. Two of his compositions were played and sung during the evening. As a special feature, the traditional church liturgical hymn, "Hayre Mer" (The Lord's Prayer) was played by the orchestra with ordience in accordance cient tradition and in Most Reverend Archbi rob Habozian, Abbott- the Mekhitarist Congr Vienna, Austria, who l ly touring the Unite and other distinguish men who were prese chaturian's "Masquer and the "Saber Da played together with tions by Spendarian a rian.

B e r j Zamkochian young organist and c tor of St. Theresa's West Roxbury, was ist and played Han certo for Organ and No. 2 in B-Flat without flaw. He also played an encore which was well-received by the audience. Mr. Zamkochian Recently made a tour of Europe under the auspices of the Gregorian Institute and played on many famous organs in the capitols of Europe.

Also appearing as soloist was Agnes Dadekian, soprano soloist of the St. James Armenian Church of Watertown who sang an aria from the opera "Madame Butterfly", "Un Bel Di" by Puccini and Mr. Gregorian's "Nocturne". Miss Dadekian thrilled the audience with her sweet voice and unfortunately was somewhat drowned out by the orchestra on occasions. However, her debut in Symphony Hall was well-received by an appreciative audience and her future looks very promising.

Irish Leprechauns are everywhere, even in Symphony Hall: regardless of the occasion - and sure enough, one appeared in Symphony Hall to lead the "Pops" orchestra in Anderson's arrangement of the "Wearing Of The Green" - But, to really top off the occasion - was the sight of the Americans of Irish Descent; the choir members of St. Theresa's Church of West Roxbury singing the "Hayre Mer" (The Lord's Prayer) in the Armenian Language - It certainly was international night at "Pops" in Symphony Hall on Saturday night.

Arthur Fiedler has announced at the 27th season of Esplanade ncerts by the Boston Symphony chestra will open next Tuesday the Hatch memorial shell on rrow embankment.

Circ. D.

JUN 30 1955

Asbury Park Band Concert Series Will Begin Today

ASBURY PARK—The Asbury Park Municipal Band, directed by Frank Bryan, will open its summer concert series today at the 8th avenue band pavilion on the boardwalk at 8:30 p.m. This season the concerts will be given every Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings at 8:30. Special holiday concerts will be given Monday, and Labor Day.

Bryan has assembled a number of outstanding artists of national renown including William Bell, tuba soloist, formerly with the N.B.C. Symphony Orchestra, Goldman Band, W.R.C.A. Band of America and now with the New be Wednesday mornings at 10 on July 6, 13, and Aug. 17.

York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra; Paul Schaller, first clarinetist with the New Orleans Symphony Orchestra now playing the Firestone show on radio and television Monday evenings: Gil Johnson, trumpet soloist, has played with th Boston Pops Orchestra and is now first trumpet with the New Orleans Symphony Orchestra; Walter Bowne, trombone soloist with the W.R.C.A. Band of America on Radio Monday evenings; Alex Williams, first clarinet with the Symphony of the Air, formerly the N.B.C. Symphony Orchestra; Robert Morris, flute and piccolo soloist, formerly with the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra and now with the Symphony of the Air; Stephen Hewitt, oboist and English horn soloist has appeared with the Sadler Wells Ballet Co. and the Ballet Theater; Albert Klinko, French horn formerly with the Budapest Philharmonic and Opera House Orchestra, Tonhalle Orchestra, Zurich, Switzerland, Denver Symphony Orchestra and now with the New York Center Ballet Orchestra.

The two popular drummers, Al D'Amico and Meyer Sebold, will be back with the Municipal Band this summer.

Radio Station W.J.L.K. will Broadcast the concerts every Wednesday and Friday, beginning tomorrow night at 8:30 for a half hour program.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX.
NEWS
Circ. D. 76,648

JUN 30 1955

Trinity Adds Music Teacher

Composer-pianist John Duke, professor of music at Smith College, Northampton, Mass., will join the faculty of Trinity University Sept. 7, Trinity President James W. Laurie announced Wednesday.

Duke

Except for a year of sabbatical leave in 1929 when he studied in Paris and Berlin, Duke has taught continuously at Smith since 1923.

As a concert pianist, he has given first performances of the works of a number of well-known American composers including Roger Sessions, Ross Lee Finney, Bernard Wagenaar, and Walter Piston.

As a composer, he is best known for art-songs set to English texts. His works have been played by the Boston Pops Orchestra, the National Orchestral Association of New York and the Walden, Smith College and NBC string quartettes.

At 16, he won a scholarship at Peabody Conservatory, Baltimore. After a year of Army service in 1918, he studied piano and composition in New York City.

MARION, IND.
LEADER TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 8,613

JUN 30 1955

DAVY GOES HIGH-BROW
Conductor Arthur Fiedler of the Boston Pops Orchestra goes Davy Crockett to amuse his audience at Boston's Symphony Hall. Suitably equipped with a coonskin cap and top "shootin' arn," Fiedler is shown directing with gusto a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Mercury (e)
MEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 6,624

JUN 30 1955

Catholic Club to Attend Pops Concert Friday

St. Francis of Assisi Catholic Club will attend the Boston Pops Orchestra final concert at Symphony Hall, Boston, Friday night.

Henry Mariani, 216 Fulton street, past president, is in charge of reservations. Members will leave from the church. The concert will begin at 8:30 P.M.

The club will meet at the church parish hall July 7 at 8 P.M. to plan for an outing on July 10. Miss Lorraine Corsetti, 7 Elm street, will preside.

A weenie roast is scheduled for July 30 at 6 P.M. at Nahant.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sun
WATERTOWN, Mass.
Weekly Independe
Circ. 4,665

JUN 30 1955

Watertown Man Conducts "Pops"

ROUBEN GREGORIAN

The Third Annual "Armenian Night" at "Pops" was held Saturday night in Symphony Hall with Rouben Gregorian of 176 Spruce St., conducting the entire program. Mr. Gregorian was former conductor of the Iranian Symphony Orchestra in Teheran and is internationally known as a conductor, composer, and musician. This was his third appearance at Symphony Hall and he again demonstrated his mastery in brilliantly conducting the symphony orchestra through an Interesting and varied program. Two of his compositions were played and sung during the evening. As a special feature, the traditional church liturgical hymn, "Hayre Mer" (The Lord's Prayer) was played by the orchestra with ordience in accordance with Ancient tradition and in honor of Most Reverend Archbishop Mesrob Habozian, Abbott-General of the Mekhitarist Congregation of Vienna, Austria, who is presently touring the United States; and other distinguished clergymen who were present. Khachaturian's "Masquerade Suite" and the "Saber Dance" were played together with compositions by Spendarian and Gregorian.

Berj Zamkochian, Brilliant young organist and choir director of St. Theresa's Church in West Roxbury, was organ soloist and played Handel's Concerto for Organ and Orchestra No. 2 in B-Flat without flaw. He also played an encore which was well-received by the audience. Mr. Zamkochian Recently made a tour of Europe under the auspices of the Gregorian Institute and played on many famous organs in the capitols of Europe.

Also appearing as soloist was Agnes Dadekian, soprano soloist of the St. James Armenian Church of Watertown who sang an aria from the opera "Madame Butterfly", "Un Bel Di" by Puccini and Mr. Gregorian's "Nocturne". Miss Dadekian thrilled the audience with her sweet voice and unfortunately was somewhat drowned out by the orchestra on occasions. However, her debut at Symphony Hall was well-received by an appreciative audience and her future looks very promising.

Irish Leprechanns are everywhere, even in Symphony Hall: regardless of the occasion - and sure enough, one appeared in Symphony Hall to lead the "Pops" orchestra in Anderson's arrangement of the "Wearing Of The Green" - But, to really top off the occasion - was the sight of the Americans of Irish Descent; the choir members of St. Theresa's Church of West Roxbury singing the "Hayre Mer" (The Lord's Prayer) in the Armenian Language - It certainly was international night at "Pops" in Symphony Hall on Saturday night.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

BOSTON, MASS.
Independent Republican
Circ. 130,559

JUN 30 1955

Concerts Begin On Esplanade Tuesday at 8:30

Boston's riverside symphony, the Esplanade Concerts, will open Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock and continue every night, except Monday, July 11, through Sunday the 17th.

The third week will be from Aug. 15 through Aug. 20, all at The Hatch Memorial Shell on the Charles River.

In the interim, Conductor Arthur Fiedler announced the Boston Symphony players will be performing at the Berkshire Festival in Tanglewood.

The Children's concerts will be Wednesday mornings at 10:15 on July 6, 13, and Aug. 17.

Arthur Fiedler has announced at the 27th season of Esplanade ncerts by the Boston Symphony hestra will open next Tuesday the Hatch memorial shell on rrow embankment.

The evening concerts will run ough July 17 and from Aug. 15 garet; two sons, Francis K. Thom son of Quebec, Canada; Wilmer Thompson of Verona, and t grandaughters.

He was a member of the Simps Methodist Church; the Junior der of United American Mechi ics, Bayonne Council No. 119, a the Brotherhood of Railroad Cler

Mr. Thompson was a retired assistant chief clerk of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, Jersey City.

Funeral services are under direction of the Woolley Funeral Home, 10 Morrell St.

CHARLES L. BROWN

Red Bank Bureau

FAIR HAVEN — Charles L. Brown, 73, died yesterday at his home, 79 Navesink Ave.

Born in Virginia, Mr. Brown was the son of the late Abram and Amanda Brown, and had been a resident of this borough for the past 50 years. He had been engaged in gardening. He was a member of the Calvary Baptist Church of Red Bank.

Surviving are his wife Mrs. Sarah A. Brown; three daughters Mrs. Grace B. Cabaniss and Mrs. Irene McGuire, both of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. A. William of Red Bank; a sister, Mrs. Anni

Guild of New York in any capac

"It is a matter of record ty."

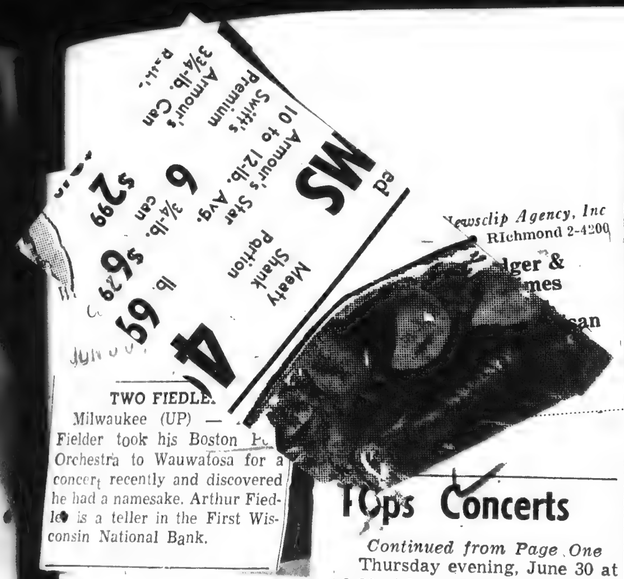
Local 3 added, "that none of th individuals named as employes of the Brooklyn Eagle have worke for that paper in a number o years and they have no voice guild affairs. . . ."

In addition to Grutzner, thos Communist unit were Victor Wei Burdett named as members of th man Charniak, Herbert Cohn, Mc Weingarten), Charles Lewis, H

Sailors' Dance by Gliere; Overture to Poet and Peasant by Suppe; Prayer of Thanksgiving by Valerius; The Southern Cross by Clarke; Davy Crockett by Bruns-Hayman; Salute to Our Armed Forces by Bodge; The Glowworm Turns by Lincke Bodge; Song Fest Medley arranged by Bodge; George M. Cohan Medly by Bodge.

Friday evening, July 1, at 8:30 o'clock, Request Program, Harry Ellis Dickson, conducting—The Stars and Stripes Forever by Sousa; Overture to "Orpheus in Hades" by Offenbach; Meditation from "Thais" by Massenet; Dance of the Hours from "La Gioconda" by Ponchielli; Tales from the Vienna Woods, Waltzes, by Strauss; Warsaw Concerto for Piano and Orchestra by Addinsell; Bolero by Ravel; TViana by Hayman; The Glowworm Turns by Lincke-Bodge, and Pomp and Circumstance by Elgar.

Newsclip Agency, Inc
RIchmond 2-4200



TWO FIEDLE

Milwaukee (UP) — Fielder took his Boston P Orchestra to Wauwatosa for a concert recently and discovered he had a namesake. Arthur Fiedler is a teller in the First Wisconsin National Bank.

Pops Concerts

Continued from Page One

Thursday evening, June 30 at 8:30 o'clock, Old Timers' Night —Semper Fidelis, March, by Sousa; By the Beautiful Blue Danube, Waltzes, by Strauss;

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

CHARLES L. BROWN

Red Bank Bureau

FAIR HAVEN — Charles Brown, 73, died yesterday at h home, 79 Navesink Ave.

Born in Virginia, Mr. Bro was the son of the late Abr and Amanda Brown, and had be a resident of th

...garet; two sons, Francis R. Tho... son of Quebec, Canada; Wilmer Thompson of Verona, and granddaughters.

He was a member of the Simp... Methodist Church; the Junior der of United American Mech... ics, Bayonne Council No. 119, the Brotherhood of Railroad Cle... Mr. Thompson was a retired sistant chief clerk of the Le... Valley Railroad, Jersey City.

Funeral services are under dir... tion of the Woolley Funeral Hom... 10 Morrell St.

ROCKETT Joseph Henry, of New York City, suddenly, Wednesday. Nativ... of Marlborough. Funeral Saturday at 9 a. m. from the home of brother, Richard H. Rockett, 6 O... Circle. Requiem Mass at The Star of the Sea Church, at 10 a. m. Interment, Mount Auburn.

...Sailors' Dance by Gliere; Overture to Poet and Peasant by Suppe; Prayer of Thanksgiving by Valerius; The Southern Cross by Clarke; Davy Crockett by Bruns-Hayman; Salute to Our Armed Forces by Bodge; The Glowworm Turns by Lincke Bodge; Song Fest Medley arranged by Bodge; George M. Cohan Medly by Bodge.

Friday evening, July 1, at 8:30 o'clock, Request Program, Harry Ellis Dickson, conducting—The Stars and Stripes Forever by Sousa; Overture to "Orpheus in Hades" by Offenbach; Meditation from "Thais" by Massenet; Dance of the Hours from "La Gioconda" by Ponchielli; Tales from the Vienna Woods, Waltzes, by Strauss; Warsaw Concerto for Piano and Orchestra by Addinsell; Bolero by Ravel; TViana by Hayman; The Glowworm Turns by Lincke-Bodge, and Pomp and Circumstance by Elgar.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

FRAMINGHAM, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 10,441

JUN 30 1955

Fiedler to Open 27th Season On Esplanade

BOSTON, June 30 (INS)—Director Arthur Fiedler has announced that the 27th season of Esplanade concerts by the Boston Symphony orchestra will open next Tuesday in the Hatch memorial shell on Storrow embankment.

The evening concerts will run through July 17 and from Aug. 15

...art Tuesday

...nur Fiedler said the evening ...rts will run through July 17. ...ill be held again from Aug. ... 23. In addition, there wil... ...children's concerts on ...esday mornings.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

SAN ANTONIO, TEX.
NEWS
Circ. D. 76,648

JUN 30 1955

Trinity Adds Music Teacher

Composer-pianist John Duke, professor of music at Smith College, Northampton, Mass., will join the faculty of Trinity University Sept. 7, Trinity President James W. Laurie announced Wednesday.

Duke

Except for a year of sabbatical leave in 1929 when he studied in Paris and Berlin, Duke has taught continuously at Smith since 1923.

As a concert pianist, he has given first performances of the works of a number of well-known American composers including Roger Sessions, Ross Lee Finney, Bernard Wagenaar, and Walter Piston.

As a composer, he is best known for art-songs set to English texts. His works have been played by the Boston Pops Orchestra, the National Orchestral Association of New York and the Walden, Smith College and NBC string quarettes.

At 16, he won a scholarship at Peabody Conservatory, Baltimore. After a year of Army service in 1918, he studied piano and composition in New York City.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Mercury (e)
MEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 6,624

JUN 30 1955

Catholic Club to Attend Pops Concert Friday

St. Francis of Assisi Catholic Club will attend the Boston Pops Orchestra final concert at Symphony Hall, Boston, Friday night.

Henry Mariani, 216 Fulton street, past president, is in charge of reservations. Members will leave from the church. The concert will begin at 8:30 P.M.

The club will meet at the church parish hall July 7 at 8 P.M. to plan for an outing on July 10. Miss Lorraine Corsetti, 7 Elm street, will preside.

A weenie roast is scheduled for July 30 at 6 P.M. at Nahant.

MARION, IND.
LEADER TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 8,613

JUN 30 1955

DAVY GOES HIGH-BROW
Conductor Arthur Fielder of the Boston Pops Orchestra goes Davy Crockett to amuse his audience at Boston's Symphony Hall. Suitably equipped with a coonskin cap and top "shootin' arm," Fielder is shown directing with gusto a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sun
WATERTOWN, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,665

JUN 30 1955

Watertown Man Conducts "Pops"

ROUBEN GREGORIAN

The Third Annual "Armenian Night" at "Pops" was held Saturday night in Symphony Hall with Rouben Gregorian of 176 Spruce St., conducting the entire program. Mr. Gregorian was former conductor of the Iranian Symphony Orchestra in Teheran and is internationally known as a conductor, composer, and musician. This was his third appearance at Symphony Hall and he again demonstrated his mastery in brilliantly conducting the symphony orchestra through an Interesting and varied program. Two of his compositions were played and sung during the evening. As a special feature, the traditional church liturgical hymn, "Hayre Mer" (The Lord's Prayer) was played by the orchestra with organ and sung by the entire audience in accordance with Ancient tradition and in honor of Most Reverend Archbishop Mesrob Habozian, Abbott-General of the Mekhitarist Congregation of Vienna, Austria, who is presently touring the United States; and other distinguished clergymen who were present. Khachaturian's "Masquerade Suite" and the "Saber Dance" were played together with compositions by Spendarian and Gregorian.

Berj Zamkochian, Brilliant young organist and choir director of St. Theresa's Church in West Roxbury, was organ soloist and played Handel's Concerto for Organ and Orchestra No. 2 in B-Flat without flaw. He also played an encore which was well-received by the audience. Mr. Zamkochian Recently made a tour of Europe under the auspices of the Gregorian Institute and played on many famous organs in the capitols of Europe.

Also appearing as soloist was Agnes Dadekian, soprano soloist of the St. James Armenian Church of Watertown who sang an aria from the opera "Madame Butterfly", "Un Bel Di" by Puccini and Mr. Gregorian's "Nocturne". Miss Dadekian thrilled the audience with her sweet voice and unfortunately was somewhat drowned out by the orchestra on occasions. However, her debut at Symphony Hall was well-received by an appreciative audience and her future looks very promising.

Irish Leprechauns are everywhere, even in Symphony Hall: regardless of the occasion - and sure enough, one appeared in Symphony Hall to lead the "Pops" orchestra in Anderson's arrangement of the "Wearing Of The Green" - But, to really lop off the occasion - was the sight of the Americans of Irish Descent; the choir members of St. Theresa's Church of West Roxbury singing the "Hayre Mer" (The Lord's Prayer) in the Armenian Language - It certainly was international night at "Pops" in Symphony Hall on Saturday night.

Ad
MS
Meaty Shank Portion
lb. 69¢
Armour's Star 6 ¾-lb. Avg. can $2.99
10 to 12-lb. Avg.
Swift's Premium Armour's 3¾-lb. Can
Jul

TWO FIEDLE...

Milwaukee (UP) — ...Fielder took his Boston P... Orchestra to Wauwatosa for a concert recently and discovered he had a namesake. Arthur Fiedler is a teller in the First Wisconsin National Bank.

...ewsclip Agency, Inc
...Richmond 2-4200

...lger &
...mes
...san

Pops Concerts

Continued from Page One

Thursday evening, June 30 at 8:30 o'clock, Old Timers' Night —Semper Fidelis, March, by Sousa; By the Beautiful Blue Danube, Waltzes, by Strauss; Sailors' Dance by Gliere; Overture to Poet and Peasant by Suppe; Prayer of Thanksgiving by Valerius; The Southern Cross by Clarke; Davy Crockett by Bruns-Hayman; Salute to Our Armed Forces by Bodge; The Glowworm Turns by Lincke Bodge; Song Fest Medley arranged by Bodge; George M. Cohan Medly by Bodge.

Friday evening, July 1, at 8:30 o'clock, Request Program, Harry Ellis Dickson, conducting—The Stars and Stripes Forever by Sousa; Overture to "Orpheus in Hades" by Offenbach; Meditation from "Thais" by Massenet; Dance of the Hours from "La Gioconda" by Ponchielli; Tales from the Vienna Woods, Waltzes, by Strauss; Warsaw Concerto for Piano and Orchestra by Addinsell; Bolero by Ravel; TViana by Hayman; The Glowworm Turns by Lincke-Bodge, and Pomp and Circumstance by Elgar.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX.
NEWS
Circ. D. 76,648

JUN 30 1955

Trinity Adds Music Teacher

Composer-pianist John Duke, professor of music at Smith College, Northampton, Mass., will join the faculty of Trinity University Sept. 7, Trinity President James W. Laurie announced Wednesday.

Duke

Except for a year of sabbatical leave in 1929 when he studied in Paris and Berlin, Duke has taught continuously at Smith since 1923.

As a concert pianist, he has given first performances of the works of a number of well-known American composers including Roger Sessions, Ross Lee Finney, Bernard Wagenaar, and Walter Piston.

As a composer, he is best known for art-songs set to English texts. His works have been played by the Boston Pops Orchestra, the National Orchestral Association of New York and the Walden, Smith College and NBC string quarettes.

At 16, he won a scholarship at Peabody Conservatory, Baltimore. After a year of Army service in 1918, he studied piano and composition in New York City.

MARION, IND.
LEADER TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 8,613

JUN 30 1955

DAVY GOES HIGH-BROW
Conductor Arthur Fielder of the Boston Pops Orchestra goes Davy Crockett to amuse his audience at Boston's Symphony Hall. Suitably equipped with a coonskin cap and top "shootin' arm," Fielder is shown directing with gusto a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Mercury (e)
MEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 6,624

JUN 30 1955

Catholic Club to Attend Pops Concert Friday

St. Francis of Assisi Catholic Club will attend the Boston Pops Orchestra final concert at Symphony Hall, Boston, Friday night.

Henry Mariani, 216 Fulton street, past president, is in charge of reservations. Members will leave from the church. The concert will begin at 8:30 P.M.

The club will meet at the church parish hall July 7 at 8 P.M. to plan for an outing on July 10. Miss Lorraine Corsetti, 7 Elm street, will preside.

A weenie roast is scheduled for July 30 at 6 P.M. at Nahant.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sun
WATERTOWN, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 4,665

JUN 30 1955

Watertown Man Conducts "Pops"

ROUBEN GREGORIAN

The Third Annual "Armenian Night" at "Pops" was held Saturday night in Symphony Hall with Rouben Gregorian of 176 Spruce St., conducting the entire program. Mr. Gregorian was former conductor of the Iranian Symphony Orchestra in Teheran and is internationally known as a conductor, composer, and musician. This was his third appearance at Symphony Hall and he again demonstrated his mastery in brilliantly conducting the symphony orchestra through an Interesting and varied program. Two of his compositions were played and sung during the evening. As a special feature, the traditional church liturgical hymn, "Hayre Mer" (The Lord's Prayer) was played by the orchestra with organ and sung by the entire audience in accordance with Ancient tradition and in honor of Most Reverend Archbishop Mesrob Habozian, Abbott-General of the Mekhitarist Congregation of Vienna, Austria, who is presently touring the United States; and other distinguished clergymen who were present. Khachaturian's "Masquerade Suite" and the "Saber Dance" were played together with compositions by Spendarian and Gregorian.

Berj Zamkochian, Brilliant young organist and choir director of St. Theresa's Church in West Roxbury, was organ soloist and played Handel's Concerto for Organ and Orchestra No. 2 in B-Flat without flaw. He also played an encore which was well-received by the audience. Mr. Zamkochian Recently made a tour of Europe under the auspices of the Gregorian Institute and played on many famous organs in the capitols of Europe.

Also appearing as soloist was Agnes Dadekian, soprano soloist of the St. James Armenian Church of Watertown who sang an aria from the opera "Madame Butterfly", "Un Bel Di" by Puccini and Mr. Gregorian's "Nocturne". Miss Dadekian thrilled the audience with her sweet voice and unfortunately was somewhat drowned out by the orchestra on occasions. However, her debut at Symphony Hall was well-received by an appreciative audience and her future looks very promising.

Irish Leprechauns are everywhere, even in Symphony Hall regardless of the occasion - and sure enough, one appeared in Symphony Hall to lead the "Pops" orchestra in Anderson's arrangement of the "Wearing Of The Green" - But, to really top off the occasion - was the sight of the Americans of Irish Descent; the choir members of St. Theresa's Church of West Roxbury singing the "Hayre Mer" (The Lord's Prayer) in the Armenian Language - It certainly was international night at "Pops" in Symphony Hall on Saturday night.

Circ. 6,624

JUN 30 1955

Arthur Fiedler to Start '55 Concerts July 5

BOSTON (INS) — Director Arthur Fielder has announced that the 27th season of Esplanade concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra will open next Tuesday in the Hatch Memorial Shell on Storrow Embankment.

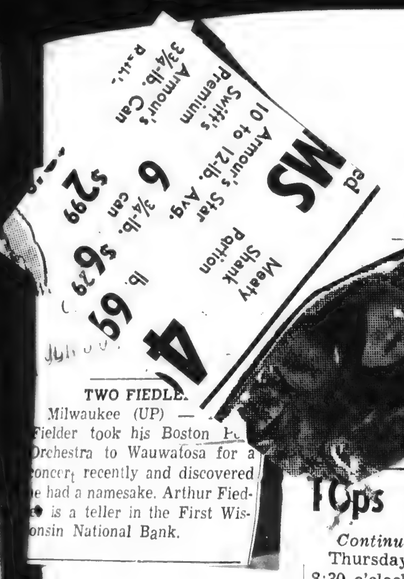
The evening concerts will run through July 17 and from Aug. 15 to 20. Three children's concerts will be given Wednesday mornings July 6, 13 and Aug. 17.

Framingham
Boys Lead (

...The pitche... at the Framingham...
...grandaughters.
He was a member of the Simp...
...dist Church; the Junior...
...der of United American Med...
...ics, Bayonne Council No. 119,...
...the Brotherhood of Railroad Cle...
Mr. Thompson was a retired...

...o Start Tuesday

...Arthur Fielder said the evening ...certs will run through July 17. ...d will be held again from Aug. ... to 20. In addition, there will ... three children's concerts on ...ednesday mornings.



TWO FIEDLE...

Milwaukee (UP) — ...Fielder took his Boston P... Orchestra to Wauwatosa for a concert recently and discovered ...e had a namesake. Arthur Fied... is a teller in the First Wis...onsin National Bank.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX.
NEWS
Circ. D. 76,648

JUN 30 1955

Trinity Adds Music Teacher

Composer-pianist John Duke, professor of music at Smith College, Northampton, Mass., will join the faculty of Trinity University Sept. 7, Trinity President James W. Laurie announced Wednesday.

Duke

Except for a year of sabbatical leave in 1929 when he studied in Paris and Berlin, Duke has taught continuously at Smith since 1923.

As a concert pianist, he has given first performances of the works of a number of well-known American composers including Roger Sessions, Ross Lee Finney, Bernard Wagenaar, and Walter Piston.

As a composer, he is best known for art-songs set to English texts. His works have been played by the Boston Pops Orchestra, the National Orchestral Association of New York and the Walden, Smith College and NBC string quarettes.

At 16, he won a scholarship at Peabody Conservatory, Baltimore. After a year of Army service in 1918, he studied piano and composition in New York City.

MARION, IND.
LEADER TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 8,613

JUN 30 1955

DAVY GOES HIGH-BROW

Conductor Arthur Fielder of the Boston Pops Orchestra goes Davy Crockett to amuse his audience at Boston's Symphony Hall. Suitably equipped with a coonskin cap and top "shootin' arn," Fielder is shown directing with gusto a symphonic arrangement of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

...ewsclip Agency, Inc
Richmond 2-4200

...lger &
...mes
...an

Pops Concerts

Continued from Page One

Thursday evening, June 30 at 8:30 o'clock, Old Timers' Night —Semper Fidelis, March, by Sousa; By the Beautiful Blue Danube, Waltzes, by Strauss; Sailors' Dance by Gliere; Overture to Poet and Peasant by Suppe; Prayer of Thanksgiving by Valerius; The Southern Cross by Clarke; Davy Crockett by Bruns-Hayman; Salute to Our Armed Forces by Bodge; The Glowworm Turns by Lincke Bodge; Song Fest Medley arranged by Bodge; George M. Cohan Medly by Bodge.

Friday evening, July 1, at 8:30 o'clock, Request Program, Harry Ellis Dickson, conducting—The Stars and Stripes Forever by Sousa; Overture to "Orpheus in Hades" by Offenbach; Meditation from "Thais" by Massenet; Dance of the Hours from "La Gioconda" by Ponchielli; Tales from the Vienna Woods, Waltzes, by Strauss; Warsaw Concerto for Piano and Orchestra by Addinsell; Bolero by Ravel; TViana by Hayman; The Glowworm Turns by Lincke-Bodge, and Pomp and Circumstance by Elgar.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Mercury (e)
MEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 6,624

JUN 30 1955

Catholic Club to Attend Pops Concert Friday

St. Francis of Assisi Catholic Club will attend the Boston Pops Orchestra final concert at Symphony Hall, Boston, Friday night.

Henry Mariani, 216 Fulton street, past president, is in charge of reservations. Members will leave from the church. The concert will begin at 8:30 P.M.

The club will meet at the church parish hall July 7 at 8 P.M. to plan for an outing on July 10. Miss Lorraine Corsetti, 7 Elm street, will preside.

A weenie roast is scheduled for July 30 at 6 P.M. at Nahant.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Sun
WATERTOWN, M...
Weekly Indep...
Circ. 4,665

JUN 30 1955

Watertown Man Conducts "Pops"

ROUBEN GREGORIAN

The Third Annual "Armenian Night" at "Pops" was held Saturday night in Symphony Hall with Rouben Gregorian of 176 Spruce St., conducting the entire program. Mr. Gregorian was former conductor of the Iranian Symphony Orchestra in Teheran and is internationally known as a conductor, composer, and musician. This was his third appearance at Symphony Hall and he again demonstrated his mastery in brilliantly conducting the symphony orchestra through an interesting and varied program. Two of his compositions were played and sung during the evening. As a special feature, the traditional church liturgical hymn, "Hayre Mer" (The Lord's Prayer) was played by the orchestra with or-

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 185,401

JUN 30 1955

Esplanade Concerts To Start Tuesday

The Hatch Memorial shell will be the mecca for thousands of music lovers Tuesday at the opening of the 27th season of Esplanade concerts by the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Arthur Fiedler said the evening concerts will run through July 17, and will be held again from Aug. 15 to 20. In addition, there will be three children's concerts on Wednesday mornings.

RECORD
Circ. D. 14,807

BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
Circ. D. 130,559 - S. 248,071

Arthur Fiedler has announced ...at the 27th season of Esplanade ...ncerts by the Boston Symphony ...hestra will open next Tuesday ...the Hatch memorial shell on ...rrow embankment.

...and Concert ...gin Today

...rk Philharmonic Symphony Or...estra; Paul Schaller, first clar...etist with the New Orleans Sym...ony Orchestra now playing the ...restone show on radio and tele...ion Monday evenings: Gil John..., trumpet soloist, has played ...h th Boston Pops Orchestra and ...ow first trumpet with the New ...eans Symphony Orchestra; Wal... Bowne, trombone soloist with ...W.R.C.A. Band of America on ...io Monday evenings; Alex Wil...s, first clarinet with the Sym...y of the Air, formerly the ...C. Symphony Orchestra; Rob... Morris, flute and piccolo solo... formerly with the Cleveland ...phony Orchestra and now with ... Symphony of the Air; Stephen ...witt, oboist and English horn ...ist has appeared with the Sad... Wells Ballet Co. and the Bal... Theater; Albert Klinko, French ... formerly with the Budapest ...harmonic and Opera House Or...tra, Tonhalle Orchestra, Zur..., Switzerland, Denver Sym...y Orchestra and now with the New York Center Ballet Orchestra.

The two popular drummers, Al D'Amico and Meyer Sebold, will be back with the Municipal Band this summer.

Radio Station W.J.L.K. will Broadcast the concerts every Wednesday and Friday, beginning tomorrow night at 8:30 for a half hour program.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 196,593

JUN 30 1955

Esplanade Concerts Resume Tuesday

The annual Esplanade concerts at the Hatch Shell will open Tuesday at 8:30 p.m.

They will continue through July 17, except for Monday, July 11.

A third week of concerts will be given Aug. 15 through 20. Arthur Fielder will conduct.

Children's concerts will be given on July 6, 13 and Aug. 17 at 10:15 a.m.

...and the "Sabe... played together ...tions by Spenda... ...rian.

...B e r ... Zamko... young organist ...tor of St. The... West Roxbury, ...ist and played ...certo for Orga... No. 2 in B-Flat ... also played an encore ... well-received by the audience. Mr. Zamkochian Recently made a tour of Europe under the auspices of the Gregorian Institute and played on many famous organs in the capitols of Europe.

Also appearing as soloist was Agnes Dadekian, soprano soloist of the St. James Armenian Church of Watertown who sang an aria from the opera "Madame Butterfly", "Un Bel Di" by Puccini and Mr. Gregorian's "Nocturne". Miss Dadekian thrilled the audience with her sweet voice and unfortunately was somewhat drowned out by the orchestra on occasions. However, her debut at Symphony Hall was well-received by an appreciative audience and her future looks very promising.

Irish Leprechauns are everywhere, even in Symphony Hall: regardless of the occasion - and sure enough, one appeared in Symphony Hall to lead the "Pops" orchestra in Anderson's arrangement of the "Wearing Of The Green" - But, to really top off the occasion - was the sight of the Americans of Irish Descent; the choir members of St. Theresa's Church of West Roxbury singing the "Hayre Mer" (The Lord's Prayer) in the Armenian Language - It certainly was international night at "Pops" in Symphony Hall on Saturday night.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD-TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 336,443 - S. 528,253

JUL 3 1955

Records: Music for the Fourth

Columbia and Louisville Feature Americans

By HERBERT KUPFERBERG

The July 4 week end is a good time to combine one's musical and patriotic impulses by examining some recent releases of contemporary American music.

Columbia—as befits its name—is the leader among record companies in paying attention to American music. Its annual Modern American Music Series, supervised by a committee of composers, has given native musicians an important outlet for their work, and it has also given audiences here a chance to get better acquainted with musical creativity in this country.

H. Kupferberg

The records issued this year include the following works:

1. Carl Ruggles: Lilacs, Portals, Evocations; Henry Cowell: Toccanta.

2. Virgil Thomson: Quartet No. 2; William Schuman: Voyage.

3. Samuel Barber: Hermit Songs; Alexei Haieff: Quartet No. 1.

4. Vincent Persichetti: Concerto for Piano, Four Hands; Paul Creston: Sonata for Saxophone and Piano.

5. Peggy Glanville-Hicks: Sonata for Piano and Percussion, Concertino da Camera for Piano, Flute, Clarinet and Bassoon; Nikolai Lopatnikoff: Variations and Epilogue for Cello and Piano.

Despite the great adeptness, even adroitness, displayed by these composers in handling their technical resources, none of these works stands out as a major contribution to the musical literature. They almost all display a sharpness and clarity of outline that contrasts strikingly with their vagueness of content. In short, most of these composers are stronger on manner than on matter; one can admire their music without becoming especially involved in it.

Although a pleasant quality of relaxation pervades a few of these compositions, such as Lopatnikoff's Cello Variations and Thomson's String Quartet, the predominating spirit is one of tension and even strain. In this respect these modern chamber works are a pretty accurate reflection of the times that have produced them.

Music in Louisville

An even more ambitious program on behalf of contemporary music is that undertaken by the Louisville Orchestra, which since 1948 has been commissioning music by American and European composers. The orchestra under its able conductor Robert Whitney, is currently producing a series of twelve LPs devoted to these works. Issued monthly, they are available on a subscription basis at $65 for the set, or at $5.95 a disk.

Since symphonies, concertos, operas and even a tape-recorder piece by Otto Luening and Vladimir Ussachevsky are included in this series, there is considerably more variety and color here than in the Columbia chamber music series (Columbia, incidentally, is the company which handles the recording and manufacture of the Louisville records—another fine contribution to the cause of contemporary music.)

Oddly enough—or perhaps it [illegible] music [illegible] teristics [illegible] ss that [illegible] r-music [illegible] percus- [illegible] e quali- [illegible] as in [illegible] No. 11, [illegible] Music," [illegible] uite, Op. [illegible] a Giaco- [illegible] notice- [illegible] ks, such [illegible] rto No. 7 [illegible] danville- [illegible] asposeed [illegible] d on the [illegible] ne of the [illegible] in the [illegible] she has [illegible] pon Hin- [illegible] ere is a [illegible] to the [illegible] ly seems [illegible] am of [illegible] which is [illegible] ative, if [illegible] m.

[illegible] ented on [illegible] far in- [illegible] e "Louis- [illegible] g piece), [illegible] a-Lobos, Halsey Stevens, Bernard Wagenaar, Peter Mennin, Wallingford Riegger, Ernst Toch, Mario Castelnuovo-Tedesco, Carlos Surinach, Vincent Persichetti, Robert Sanderi and Boris Blacher. Others are to follow.

Ward, Menotti, Ives

Robert Ward's Symphony No. 3 and Leon Stein's Three Hassidic Dances for Orchestra, coupled on a Remington record, are two more contemporary works displaying considerable technical skill by their composers. The recordings, produced by Remington in cooperation with the American Composer's Alliance, are made by the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra conducted by Thor Johnson.

Gian-Carlo Menotti's Violin Concerto is a smooth-flowing, graceful, melodic composition, rich in ideas and inventiveness. It is played on a Victor record by Tossy Spivakovsky, violinist, with Charles Munch conducting the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Coupled with it on the disk is Arthur Honegger's Symphony No. 2, written during the Nazi occupation of Paris and reflecting some of the torment and the unyielding faith of those dark days.

Finally, a record devoted to Charles Ives, who may possibly be the greatest—or at least the most authentic—American composer of all. These are twenty-four songs, sung on an Overtone Record by Helen Boatwright, soprano, with John Kirkpatrick at the piano. These songs, written from 1890 to 1921, are impressive in their modernity and musicality alike. Among the poems set are Vachel Lindsay's "General William Booth Enters Into Heaven" and John McCrae's "In Flanders Fields." But most striking of all is a song dated May 30, 1917, in celebration of the doughboys overseas—a melange of skillfully blended and contrasted patriotic melodies that would be the highlight of any Fourth of July celebration.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.
TIMES
Circ. D. 96,161
JUL 3 1955

Off the Record—

New RCA Record Is Educational Treat

A Red Seal experimental record just released by RCA Victor (12-inch, 33⅓ rpm) is something definitely different for education and listening pleasure.

Titled "The Synthesis of Music" the record gives the sounds and music produced by the newly-developed RCA electronic music synthesizer. The machine actually creates music, based on a breakdown of tone into its component parts, and the generation of these parts by electronic circuits.

On Side 1 you will hear demonstrations of frequency, waveform, envelope, intensity, synthesis by parts, and excerpts from musical selections, all produced on the synthesizer. On Side 2 are complete selections produced on the machine.

It is not intended to compete with musicians. Its purpose is to provide a broader field of creation for composers, as the machine is capable of providing a wider range of tones and sounds than any known combination of instruments.

Other releases received this week are:

MUSIC FOR A SUMMER NIGHT (Victor, 12-inch, 33⅓ rpm). The Boston Pops Orchestra conducted by Arthur Fiedler plays music to add gaiety and romance to your summer evenings. Hearts beat faster as the orchestra plays "Liebestraum," "Candlelight Waltz," "Liebesleid," and "Liebesfreud," by Kreisler, the "Faust Waltzes," and "Espana Waltz." On Side 2 are "Moonlight Sonata," "Caprice Viennois," "Tres Jolie Waltz," and "Kammenoi-Ostrow."

FOREVER THE WALTZ (Victor, 12-inch, 33⅓ rpm). Recorded in Europe by the Vienna Bohemian Orchestra conducted by Fried Walter. Seven of the best-known waltzes of Johann Strauss Jr. are done in real Viennese style. In Vienna the waltz is not played at the same speed from beginning to end. The experts know there must be a slight buoyancy, a sort of almost inaudible springing bow on the second beat. Waltz lovers will find it entrancing.

"SHEHERAZADE" by Ravel, recorded by Suzanne Danco, soprano, with L'Orchestra De La Suisse Romande conducted by Ernest Ansermet (12-inch London LP microgroove full frequency range recording. On the same record are two other interesting Ravel compositions: "Trois Poemes De Stephane Mallarme" and "Deux Melodies Hebraiques."

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

JUL 1 1955

"NOT GETTING ANY YOUNGER"

Guests to Conduct on Esplanade

By CYRUS DURGIN

Arthur Fiedler, spectacled, jacketless and shirt collar opened, was steaming away yesterday in the music library of Symphony Hall, clearing his desk before taking an airplane to San Francisco.

ARTHUR FIEDLER

This year the founder and guiding genius of the Esplanade Concerts will not be on the stand when the 27th season of free, open-air musical entertainment begins Tuesday night at the Hatch Memorial Shell. He will be conducting in the city by the Golden Gate, from which he will go to Miami and other cities, before returning to Boston Aug. 15.

"The Esplanade Concerts are still my baby," he smiled, "but neither I nor anyone else is getting any younger, and I think the time has come to let some of the newer conducting talent take over from time to time.

"Of course I'll be back for the final week at the Esplanade, and I'll conduct there from August 15 through the 20th. But as I say, we all must look ahead to the future, and I think it's a good idea to have a certain number of guest conductors."

Harry Ellis Dickson will open the season.

There is another reason for Fiedler's absence during the early part of the Esplanade season, a reason which modestly he did not emphasize. That is, Arthur Fiedler is now a musical figure of country-wide interest, thanks to his broadcasts, his tours with the traveling Boston Pops Orchestra and his guest appearances. In San Francisco, for example, his popularity equals that in his native Boston, and the public in that city invite him back for their popular concerts each year. His engagement for the present Summer was made, as it happened, before final dates for the Boston Esplanade Concerts could be determined.

"You have no idea how far the fame of the Esplanade Concerts has traveled," continued Fiedler. Time and again I have been approached by people in far corners of the country who would say to me: 'You know, I used to be in Boston, and I heard you many times on the Esplanade'

"People who have lived and worked in Boston, or who were in military service here, still cherish happy memories of those evenings they spent down on the Esplanade.

Romance Enters

"Another thing. I have received quite a number of letters from married couples who said they met each other at Esplanade Concerts. I suppose they happened to sit nearby, got into conversation and became acquainted through this mutual interest in music. Then, as time went on, they got engaged and married.

"I guess perhaps you could say that the Hatch Shell has hatched a good bit of romance."

The Esplanade Concerts for 195[illegible] will be played every evening from July 5 through July 17, with the exception of July 11. Then Fiedler will be back for the final session, Aug. 15-20. There will be three children's concerts, at 10:15 on the Wednesday mornings of July 6 and 13, and Aug. 17.

MIAMI BEACH, FLA.
SUN
Circ. D. 7,310 S. 7,310

JUL 3 1955

LEROY ANDERSON

Leroy Anderson Directs Pops Concert Tonight

"Tin Pan Alley Longhair" is a name that Broadway and the record distributors have attached to Leroy Anderson, [illegible] conductor of the University of Miami Summer Symphony orchestra in tonight's [illegible] concert of the season. It is [illegible] synonym to have, but Mr. Anderson wears it with some pride.

He is a graduate in music from Harvard University and for several years was director of the Harvard University band. After becoming associated with the Boston

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD-TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 336,443 - S. 528,253

JUL 3 1955

Records: Music for the Fourth

Columbia and Louisville Feature Americans

By HERBERT KUPFERBERG

The July 4 week end is a good time to combine one's musical and patriotic impulses by examining some recent releases of contemporary American music.

Columbia—as befits its name—is the leader among record companies in paying attention to American music. Its annual Modern American Music Series, supervised by a committee of composers, has given native musicians an important outlet for their work, and it has also given audiences here a chance to get better acquainted with musical creativity in this country.

H. Kupferberg

The records issued this year include the following works:

1. Carl Ruggles: Lilacs, Portals, Evocations; Henry Cowell: Toccanta.

2. Virgil Thomson: Quartet No. 2; William Schuman: Voyage.

3. Samuel Barber: Hermit Songs; Alexei Haieff: Quartet No. 1.

4. Vincent Persichetti: Concerto for Piano, Four Hands; Paul Creston: Sonata for Saxophone and Piano.

5. Peggy Glanville-Hicks: Sonata for Piano and Percussion, Concertino da Camera for Piano, Flute, Clarinet and Bassoon; Nikolai Lopatnikoff: Variations and Epilogue for Cello and Piano.

Despite the great adeptness, even adroitness, displayed by these composers in handling their technical resources, none of these works stands out as a major contribution to the musical literature. They almost all display a sharpness and clarity of outline that contrasts strikingly with their vagueness of content. In short, most of these composers are stronger on manner than on matter; one can admire their music without becoming especially involved in it.

Although a pleasant quality of relaxation pervades a few of these compositions, such as Lopatnikoff's Cello Variations and Thomson's String Quartet, the predominating spirit is one of tension and even strain. In this respect these modern chamber works are a pretty accurate reflection of the times that have produced them.

Music in Louisville

An even more ambitious program on behalf of contemporary music is that undertaken by the Louisville Orchestra, which since 1948 has been commissioning music by American and European composers. The orchestra, under its able conductor, Robert Whitney, is currently producing a series of twelve LPs devoted to these works. Issued monthly, they are available on a subscription basis at $65 for the set, or at $5.95 a disk.

Since symphonies, concertos, operas and even a tape-recorder piece by Otto Luening and Vladimir Ussachevsky are included in this series, there is considerably more variety and color here than in the Columbia chamber music series (Columbia, incidentally, is the company which handles the recording and manufacture of the Louisville records—another fine contribution to the cause of contemporary music.)

Oddly enough—or perhaps it isn't so odd—much of this music displays the same characteristics of tenseness and tautness that were noted in the chamber-music series. The availability of percussion instruments make these qualities all the more direct, as in Henry Cowell's Symphony No. 11, subtitled "Seven Rituals of Music," Alexander Tcherepnin's Suite, Op. 87, Gardner Read's Toccata Giacosa, and others.

Oriental colorations are noticeable in several of the works, such as Alan Hovhaness' Concerto No. 7 for Orchestra and Peggy Glanville-Hicks' opera, "The Transposed Heads." This opera, based on the Thomas Mann story, is one of the most interesting works in the series. The composer says she has based some of her music upon Hindu folk themes, and there is a distinctly Oriental tinge to the opera, though it frequently seems to resemble the Orientalism of Bizet's "Pearl Fishers"—which is to say, a rather derivative, if highly pleasant Orientalism.

Other composers represented on the Louisville records so far include Jacques Ibert (whose "Louisville Concerto" is a rousing piece), Paul Creston, Heitor Villa-Lobos, Halsey Stevens, Bernard Wagenaar, Peter Mennin, Wallingford Riegger, Ernst Toch, Mario Castelnuovo-Tedesco, Carlos Surinach, Vincent Persichetti, Robert Sanderf and Boris Blacher. Others are to follow.

Ward, Menotti, Ives

Robert Ward's Symphony No. 3 and Leon Stein's Three Hassidic Dances for Orchestra, coupled on a Remington record, are two more contemporary works displaying considerable technical skill by their composers. The recordings, produced by Remington in cooperation with the American Composer's Alliance, are made by the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra conducted by Thor Johnson.

Gian-Carlo Menotti's Violin Concerto is a smooth-flowing, graceful, melodic composition, rich in ideas and inventiveness. It is played on a Victor record by Tossy Spivakovsky, violinist, with Charles Munch conducting the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Coupled with it on the disk is Arthur Honegger's Symphony No. 2, written during the Nazi occupation of Paris and reflecting some of the torment and the unwavering faith of those dark days.

Finally, a record devoted to Charles Ives, who may possibly be the greatest—or at least the most authentic—American composer of all. These are twenty-four songs, sung on an Overtone Record by Helen Boatwright, soprano, with John Kirkpatrick at the piano. These songs, written from 1890 to 1921, are impressive in their modernity and musicality alike. Among the poems set are Vachel Lindsay's "General William Booth Enters Into Heaven" and John McCrae's "In Flanders Fields." But most striking of all is a song dated May 30, 1917, in celebration of the doughboys overseas, a melange of skillfully blended and contrasted patriotic melodies that would be the highlight of any Fourth of July celebration.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 ● RIchmond 2-4200

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 122,000

JUL 1 1955

"NC
Guort, S

Arthu etless a steamin

ARTHUR entertai night at
He will by the he will cities, b
Aug. 15.

"The still m neither ting an time ha newer from ti

nts collides with Do get Harris and Gil H

"Of
final w
I'll con throug all mus and I t a cert ductor
Harr
the sea
Ther
Fiedler
part of tribute to one of the greate reason uys ever to swing a bat, field empha all or run a base. God rest you is now on the radio from this par try-wie adcaster Curt Gowdy paid th broadcibute: "Harry Agganis, at th travelise of 26, has been lost to his fam y, friends, the Red Sox and ns of America

Agganis at W ill be an inspiration to us. W ll sorely miss you as well as you mily and your thousands riends. We have been lucky ave known you and been ass ated with you. We have suffere tremendous loss and your fello ayers all join in a silent praye

MIAMI BEACH, FLA.
SUN
Circ. D. 7,310 - S. 7,310

JUL 3 1955

LEROY ANDERSON

Leroy Anderson Directs Pops Concert Tonight

"Tin Pan Alley Longhair" is a name that Broadway and the record distributors have attached to Leroy Anderson, pops conductor of the University of Miami Summer Symphony orchestra in tonight's [illegible] of the season. It is an unusual pseudonym to have, but Mr. Anderson wears it with some pride.

He is a graduate in music from Harvard University and for several years was director of the Harvard University band. After becoming associated with the Boston

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.
TIMES
Circ. D. 96,161

JUL 3 1955

Off the Record—

New RCA Record Is Educational Treat

A Red Seal experimental record just released by RCA Victor (12-inch, 33⅓ rpm) is something definitely different for education and listening pleasure.

Titled "The Synthesis of Music" the record gives the sounds and music produced by the newly-developed RCA electronic music synthesizer. The machine actually creates music, based on a breakdown of tone into its component parts, and the generation of these parts by electronic circuits.

On Side 1 you will hear demonstrations of frequency, waveform, envelope, intensity, synthesis by parts, and excerpts from musical selections, all produced on the synthesizer. On Side 2 are complete selections produced on the machine.

It is not intended to compete with musicians. Its purpose is to provide a broader field of creation for composers, as the machine is capable of providing a wider range of tones and sounds than any known combination of instruments.

Other releases received this week are:

MUSIC FOR A SUMMER NIGHT (Victor, 12-inch, 33⅓ rpm). The Boston Pops Orchestra conducted by Arthur Fiedler plays music to add gaiety and romance to your summer evenings. Hearts beat faster as the orchestra plays "Liebestraum," "Candlelight Waltz," "Liebesleid," and "Liebesfreud," by Kreisler, the "Faust Waltzes," and "Espana Waltz." On Side 2 are "Moonlight Sonata," "Caprice Viennos," "Tres Jolie Waltz," and "Kammenoi - Ostrow."

FOREVER THE WALTZ (Victor, 12-inch, 33⅓ rpm). Recorded in Europe by the Vienna Bohemian Orchestra conducted by Fried Walter. Seven of the best-known waltzes of Johann Strauss Jr. are done in real Viennese style. In Vienna the waltz is not played at the same speed from beginning to end. The experts know there must be a slight buoyancy, a sort of almost inaudible springing bow on the second beat. Waltz lovers will find it entrancing.

"SHEHERAZADE" by Ravel, recorded by Suzanne Danco, soprano, with L'Orchestra De La Suisse Romande conducted by Ernest Ansermet (12-inch London LP microgroove full frequency range recording. On the same record are two other interesting Ravel compositions: "Trois Poemes De Stephane Mallarme" and "Deux Melodies Hebraiques."

BALTIMORE, MD.
AMERICAN
Circ. S. 3.7.397

JUL 3 1955

Records

By RECORDER

Hit Disks Bring Banjo Back

"The Ban[illegible] Back [illegible]" in Jazz

The [illegible] tune [illegible] hottest [illegible] on the [illegible] pop [illegible] here [illegible] the [illegible] for [illegible] of course, [illegible] aph record. [illegible] goes to the [illegible] "The Man [illegible] which was [illegible] Mr. Banjo." [illegible] Tell A Lie." [illegible] of bands that [illegible] the banjo in [illegible] traditional style [illegible]

[illegible] body and [illegible] Cliquot [illegible] among the [illegible] greats, and [illegible]

[illegible] some 10-[illegible] sound. Col-umbia, Mercury and London have virtually eliminated their 10-inch LP lines in favor of all-out concentration on the 12-inch platers. Columbia, originator of the long-play philosophy, who has not released a 10-inch LP since "Joanne Sings" last November, is closing out both the popular and classical series.

The reason: Wherever similiar collections are available in both sizes, the larger disk is the runaway favorite. RCA Victor, Capitol, Decca and M-G-M say they plan no changes—but don't take any bets.

* * *

TOMORROW — the Fourth of July — marks the birthday of Louis (Satchmo) Armstrong, born in New Orleans on Independence Day, 1900.

The harpsichord has come back to its own recently, and gets a monumental reception. First (for Columbia) Ralph Kirkpatrick has recorded a four-volume album of 60 sonatas by Scarlatti, while the culmination of five years of recording of Bach by Wanda Landowska has been issued in a limited edition album of six long-playing disks. Only 1,000 copies have been printed and each is personally autographed Landowska, who considers this to be her "last will and testament."

If you like "concert-in-the-park music, you'll enjoy "Music For A Summer Night," a typical repertoire which the Boston Pops, under Arthur Fiedler, does so well and has done for 26 seasons.

* * *

SCIENCE fiction fans can now go to their record store instead of the newsstand for their fun. "Exploring the Unknown" is a musical trip through space to the planets, via narration and vocal interludes by the Voices of Walter Schumann (RCA Victor, 12-inch LP). Besides songs of the really wide-open spaces, the Voices imitate comets and other noises of the outer world.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX.
LIGHT
Circ. D. 101,225 - S. 135,919

JUL 3 1955

Off the Record

Dame Edith Evans on Disc

By RENWICKE CARY

Dame Edith Evans, who in the course of her distinguished stage career has been a great boon to the revival of eighteenth century English comedy, is now to be heard on a 12-inch Angel LP disc in scenes from Congreve's "The Way of the World (1700), Farquhar's "The Beaux' Strategem" (1707) and Sheridan's "The Rivals" (1775). Also, she speaks the epilogue to Sheridan's "The School for Scandal" (1777).

In the Congreve masterpiece, Dame Edith exhibits her genius for high comedy by playing two roles. One is that of the lovely young coquette, Mrs. Millamant, and the other that of her absurd old aunt, Lady Wishfort. In turn she shines just as brilliantly as Mrs. Sullen in "The Beaux' Strategem" and as Mrs. Malaprop in "The Rivals." Assisting with the delightful business are Sir John Gielgud (Mirabell), Ralph Truman (Squire Sullen), Anthony Quayle (Captain Absolute) and others.

Music of India

On another new 12-inch Angel LP, you may listen to the music of India as performed by two of India's top-ranking musicians. Namely, Ali Akbar Khan, who plays the sarod (a stringed instrument) and Chatur Lal, who plays the tabla or drums. Shirish Gor, now studying in the U. S., also is heard as he provides a drone accompaniment on a four-stringed instrument called the tambura.

The listener will quickly sense the improvisatory quality of this strange music, which is comparable to the best in jazz improvisation. The effect is stimulating and at the same time somewhat hypnotic.

Andalusian Dances

Perhaps none of Spain's music is more colorful, spontaneous and exciting than its Andalusian dances, a collection of which has been released on a 10-inch Angel LP. The heel tapping of the dancers, the click of castanets and all are embodied in the performance. The best known of the participating artists is Luis Maravilla, the guitarist-composer, who has visited North and South America several times. And, interesting to note, he is responsible for some of the whirling rhythms on this new disc. He composes under his true name, Luis Lopez Tejera.

The Boston Pops

With Arthur Fiedler conductor, the Boston Pops orchestra has come up with a program of familiar melodies on a 12-inch RCA Victor LP. These include Liszt's "Liebestraum" (orchestrated by Victor Herbert), Kriesler's "Liebesleid" and "Liebesfreud," Mason's "Candlelight Waltz," Waldteufel's "Espana Waltz," the first movement of Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata" and others. Here Fiedler and his musicians are in full stride with a program that will appeal to those in quest of light summer listening.

DAYTON, OHIO
JOURNAL HERALD
Circ. D. 84,808

JUL 2 1955

Summer Records Of Light Music

The Boston Pops orchestra, with Arthur Fiedler conducting, plays for Victor Records a concert titled "Music for Summer Night."

The disc carries, among other numbers, an orchestrated version of Liszt's "Liebestraum," Kreisler's "Liebeslied" and "Liebesfreud," Gounod's "Faust Waltzes" and Anton Rubnistein's "Kammenoi-Ostrow."

Victor has issued, too, a record titled "Forever the Waltz." Played by the Vienna Bohemian orchestra, the record concert is comprised of seven Johann Strauss waltzes.

The RCA Electronic Music Synthesizer is introduced by a record which through word and sound, interprets the performing nature of the synthesizer.

The instrument, devised by electrical engineers to reproduce the sound of any musical instrument, may as it is developed take the place of some orchestras.

It would have to be handled, however, by trained musicians for best performance.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Patriot-Ledger (e)
QUINCY, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 37,681

JUN 30 1955

ESPLANADE POPS STARTS TUESDAY

BOSTON, June 30 (INS)—Director Arthur Fiedler has announced that the 27th season of Esplanade concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra will open next Tuesday in the Hatch Memorial Shell on Storrow Embankment.

The evening concerts will run through July 17 and from Aug. 15 to 20. Three children's concerts will be given Wednesday mornings July 6, 13 and Aug. 17.

KANSAS CITY MO. STAR

JUL 3 1955

SUMMER HUES ON RECORDINGS.

Victor Has Emphasis on Waltz Time and Vienna Flavor.

More of the vacation-time theme in recorded music is issued by R. C. A. Victor in its latest long-play discs, including a 12-inch [illegible] Music for a Sum[illegible] by Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops orchestra, all in 12-inch LP [illegible] waltz, in the sp[illegible] Vienna B[illegible] either one r[illegible] Grimm[illegible] yet conducive of a haunting nostalgia, as the Holstenian offering of Beautiful Blue Danube, Voices of Spring, Vienna Blood, Treasure Waltz, Tales From the Vienna Woods, Artist's Life and "Tritsch-Tratsch."

Boston Pops Style.

Somewhat more precise but equally persuasive is the Boston Pops style in Liebestraum, Kreisler's Liebesleid and Liebesfreud, the Faust waltzes, Moonlight Sonata in orchestral arrangement, Capriccio Viennois with violin solo, and others.

